PLAINFIELD EVENING NEWS.

ESTABLISHED 1884. PLAINFIELD, N. J., "THE COLORADO OF THE EAST," TUESDAY, SEPTEMBER 3, 1889. PRICE TWO CENTS

CITY COMMON COUNCIL.

THE SIXTEENTH SESSION.

The Committee Report on the Street Railway Question.—Routine Business Transacted.—Adjournment.

The City Common Council held its regular September meeting last evening. In response to roll call President Dumont and Councilmen Dickson, Gallup, Jenkens, Marsh and Newhall answered present. Councilman Dunham, Moffett, Myers, Squires and Watson were absent.

Mr. Dunham came in late.

On motion the reading of the minutes of the previous meeting were suspended.

A petition from Emma F. Fox, requesting council to lay a stone crosswalk across Broadway and Webster place was referred to the Committee on Streets.

A communication from the Secretary of the Seventh Day Baptist church petitioning Council to lay a stone crosswalk across Arlington avenue on the east side of Ninth street was referred to the Committee on Streets with power.

A like document from the residents of Prospect avenue signed by George D. Bascomb and others requesting Council for electric lights on that thoroughfare was referred to proper committee.

A petition from the residents of Prospect avenue, signed by T. S. Hunn and others requested the Council to repair the road way. Referred to Committee on Streets.

Mr. E. L. Finch and others desired the attention of the Council to the condition of Park avenue, and asked for it be repaired. Referred to Street Committee.

The following petition signed by Messrs. C. W. Evans, R. M. Stell, W. M. Stillman and others was read and referred to the Street Committee.

To the Honorable the Common Council of the City of Plainfield.

GENTLEMEN:—We, the undersigned, residents and property-owners along the line of Fourth avenue, would most respectfully bring to the notice of our honorable body, the wretched condition of this thoroughfare, owing to the amount of surface water that is drained into the same, or left standing along its boundaries. This avenue is one of the most important avenues leading out of the city, con-sisting as it does with the surrounding country of Piscataway and being the main road to New Brooklyn, New Brunswick and the country in that direction. It has a larger travel and is the only street of importance leading out of the city, that remains without improvements. This is owing to the amount of surface water that comes down the street, for by the present arrangement, such a large territory is drained into the avenue, that at the time of a heavy rain the entire road-bed is changed into a brook, and any improvements thereon, such as macadamizing, or otherwise, is useless, as it is immediately washed away.

The property-owners along the street, are anxious for its improvement, and desire to see it an ornament to the city and to bring its condition up to the present high standard of the other thoroughfares of the city, but feel that unless the relief is afforded them from the surface water, anything they may do or attempt to do would be useless.

Much, too of this water that now comes down through this avenue, is brought down illegally, as follows: The crown point as established by ordinance is twenty feet southeast of the centre of Seventh street, that is, all water north of this point flowing into said avenue, should flow into Green Brook, whereas the water from the gutters, as now been, so cut down, that the crown point has been made the centre of Fifth street, also, the crown point of Eighth street, as established by ordinance, is one hundred feet west of Central avenue, whereas the gutters of this street, have been so cut down, that the water from Central avenue also comes down and into this street.

At present the surface water from Seventh street to Third, along Plainfield avenue, scarcely flows in either direction, and large quantities remain standing.

Your petitioners would most respectfully ask your Honorable body to so fix and establish the grade by ordinance, that the same may provide for the carrying of all the surface water that comes down Seventh street, at both directions, to Plainfield avenue, and all that comes into Plainfield avenue from a point beginning at the southeast line of Seventh street, may be carried into Green Brook, its natural outlet.

A careful examination of the ground will show that such a grade can be made with but slight cost, in fact that it will require only the cutting down of the gutters.

Your petitioners deem this a matter requiring your early and careful attention, in view of the many improvements made in our city, and in view of the extremely bad condition of the road bed, and feel that whatever is done should be done before trees are laid or other improvements entered into.

An itemized bill from Frank Campbell, amounting to $19, claiming that he had lost goods to that amount by the over flow of the Liberty street sewer was received and filed.

A claim from T. W. Morrison of $83.20, was not allowed upon a misstatement of the facts by the City Clerk.

The monthly statements of the City Collector and Treasurer were read and ordered filed.

The Finance Committee reported that the following notes would become due Sept. 6th: $1,000 on the general fund; $500 on the fire department, and $500 on the poor fund.

The quarterly statement of the Overseer of the Poor was filed. It showed that $1,100 had been spent during the quarter; that 56 applicants and 48 families had been relieved; that 278 orders for food, etc., had been given out, and that better shelter was needed for the city's poor. It was received and filed.

The City Judge's quarterly report was presented. There had been 22 cases before that official: 14 persons were fined and three were committed to the county jail.

The written opinion of Corporation Counsel Marsh in reference to rebuilding the mill dams, set forth the fact that the city could do nothing in the matter, that it has no right to take action as the law applies to townships only.

In reference to the petition of the Putnam avenue residents for electric lights, the committee reported that the appropriation for lights was exhausted and that they could do nothing in the matter.

The Committee on Streets in reference to the proposed street railway reported that Mr. Daft had complied with the resolution compelling him to have his proposed system on exhibition in Plainfield before Sept. 3d, that the committee were satisfied with its workings, but desired that Council should inspect same before taking any action in the matter. Mr. Marsh moved that when the Council adjourn it will be to meet again in two weeks. So ordered.

The same gentleman also moved that $1,000 be appropriated for street repairs. So ordered.

A communication from Mayor Male appointed Francis Moran a special policeman. The appointment was confirmed.

Mr. Marsh offered a resolution that the City Treasurer be instructed to cancel notes falling due Sept. 6th; also that he be instructed to executive another note for $600.

Adjourned.

THE BUTCHERS AND GROCERS.

After a Parade They Spend the Day at Boynton Beach.

At about half-past seven o'clock yesterday morning the butchers and grocers of this city, their wagons handsomely decorated and headed by the Plainfield and South Plainfield Cornet Bands Paraded along Front street previous to their departure to Boynton Beach where they spent the day fishing, bathing, boating, ball playing and eating clams and other delicacies.

The parade was a very creditable affair and nearly every business firm in the city was represented. In addition to about seventy wagons were in line and each carried from two to six persons.

One of the features of the occasion, upon arriving at the Beach was a game of ball between the butchers and the grocers and it afforded considerable amusement to the onlookers, although before it was finished the umpire had been changed four times.

The game was eventually decided in favor of the butchers by a score of 8 to 7.

The clam bake which was enjoyed by all present was made by Mr. W. R. Love, of Three Bridges.

LABOR DAY IN PLAINFIELD.

Business Generally Suspended. Crowds at the Ball Games.

Yesterday Plainfield put on its holiday attire and all the business houses, with one or two exceptions, closed their doors Saturday night and did not open them for business again until this morning. Large crowds of people went to Boynton Beach and other pleasure resorts. The ball grounds of the Plain*field Bowling Club, while the morning and af*ternoon games of ball were in progress, crowded. The day passed off quietly and few persons under the influence of liquor were seen.

PERSONAL.

Col. Julian Scott is home again from a visit to Connecticut.

Miss Lizzie Bowling, of Brooklyn, N. Y., is visiting Liberty street friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Gorton have returned to their Liberty street home, from Alfred Centre, N. Y.

Mrs. Sanford and family have returned to their Washington avenue home from their Summer outing.

Mr. John Hibbitts, of Liberty street, has returned to his Plainfield home from a week's visit to friends in Brooklyn, N. Y.

Mr. Joseph Martin, of Grove street, left Plainfield this morning for a week's stay at Rockland, Sullivan County, N. Y.

Mr. and Mrs. F. Bass and Master Walter Hickling Bass, of Brooklyn N. Y., will spend the month of September in Plainfield.

A beautiful night blooming cereus was in full bloom at the residence of Mr. Charley Johnson, on East Third street Saturday evening. Five large flowers were out.

Mr. John Loiseaux, of Brook avenue, who has been on a business trip throughout the Western States for the past few months, returned home Sunday. He starts for Boston Wednesday to be gone indefinitely.

JOTTINGS.

Of this number 918 were employees, the rest were track walkers, trespassers and others crossing tracks; number of fatal accidents 335; train and track hands killed 218.

THE CRESCENTS WIN.

SATURDAY'S GAME OF BALL ADDED TO THEIR LIST OF VICTORIES.

Some of the West Ends Say Umpire Keller was Unfair; But His Decisions Seemed to Give General Satisfaction. — The Game Devoid of Interest.—Other Games.

The Somerville West Ends came to Plainfield Saturday afternoon to defeat the Crescents in a game of base ball, but when the nine innings were concluded found out that their mission had proved unsuccessful: for the Crescents are the victors by a score of 10 to 9.

Fully two thousand people witnessed the game, which was notable for its wrangling all through; nevertheless the result pleased a majority of those present.

The game in detail is as follows:

At the time of calling the game Saturday, Gateley had not arrived and it was learned he was sick, so Capt. Condon went in to pitch He did very well for five innings when they changed the battery around, Bowes going in to pitch. The game was not very interesting both sides playing in a listless manner.

THE GAME.

First innings—Bishop was hard to suit and we t to first on balls. Hatfield struck out and Williams went out. Condon then threw wild to Bowman and Bishop scored. Hawkins was given a base on balls, stole second and came home on Cadmus's fumble of Sublich's grounder. That player then stole *second and third and came home on Bow*man's error. Bergen got first base on balls, but was left as Davenport got out at first.

Lee hit for a base and after McMurray had got his base on balls stole second. Bowman then raised a high fly which Frelinghuysen dropped after a long run. Lee scored. Bowes then got in a two bagger and McMurray and Bowman scored. Bradley got his base on balls and stole second. Cadmus and Hayden struck out, and it looked as if McLaughlin would do the same to Bowes tried to steal home, but was put out.

Second innings—Kelly went out at first, Frelinghuysen got first on balls, stole second, took third on Bowes error, and came home on Bishop's hit. Hatfield hit for a base, and with a passed ball allowed Bishop to score. McLaughlin struck out, Condon also, but Hatfield let the third strike go by and he got first, stole second and third on another error by Hatfield. Lee flew out to Harkins. McMurray got first on Bishop's error and Condon score l. Bowman scored.

Third innings—Sublick struck out. Bergen got first on Lee's error. Davenport flew out to Bishop and Kelly to Cadmus. Bowes, Bradley and Cadmus went out at first.

Fourth innings—Frelinghuysen fouled out to Bowes. Bishop flew out to Bowman, and Hatfield went out at first. Hayden struck out. McLaughlin hit safely and Condon sent him home with another. Lee flew out to Bergen. McMurray was hit by pitched ball. Bergen got first on Williams' error, on which Condon scored. McMurray scored on Bowes' two-bagger. Bowman also tried to score but was thrown out at the home-plate.

Fifth innings—Williams hit for two bases. Harkins then hit to the centre field fence the ball rolled under his feet and Harkins got a home run. Sublich also hit for a base and got second on Bradley's error. Bergen then struck out and Davenport flew out to Lee and Kelley to Bowes. Bradley flew out to Frelinghuysen, Condon got first on balls. Hayden hit for a base. Both were left as McLaughlin struck out, and Condon flew out to Davenport.

Sixth innings—Frelinghuysen went out on first. Bishop was hit by pitched ball. Hatfield flew out to McMurray. Williams hit for a base. Bishop scored on a passed ball. Lee got first on balls. McMurray hit for a base. Bowman struck out. Lee scored on Harkins' error of Bowes ball. Bowes stole second and got third on Bergen's error. Bradley struck out, but both scored on Cadmus.

Seventh innings—Sublich and Bergen struck out and Davenport went out at first. Mc*Laughlin struck out. Condon went out at* first. Lee flew out to Kelley.

Eighth innings—Kelley went out at first. Frelinghuysen was hit by pitched ball, but was thrown out while trying to steal second. Bishop struck out. McMurray and Bowman flew out to Kelley. Bowes went out at first.

Ninth innings—Hatfield flew out to Bradley. Williams hit for a base, and went to third on Bowman's error. Harkins hit for a base and Williams scored. Harkins was thrown out at second. Sublich struck out, but Condon let it go by. He was thrown out trying to steal second.

THE YOUNG MEN ENTERTAIN.

An Enjoyable Evening Spent in St. Mary's School Hall.

The Catholic Young Men's Literary Union, celebrated their first anniversary in St. Mary's School Hall last evening. The hall was tastefully decorated with flags.

Promptly at nine o'clock the grand march was started and about seventy-five couple participated. At its conclusion dancing was indulged in and continued until about half-past eleven o'clock, when the guests were formed in line and marched to supper in the Young Men's rooms.

After the inner man had been satisfied, dancing was again resumed and continued until about half past one, when the guests departed for their homes, thoroughly satisfied with the pleasant evening they had spent.

The first anniversary of the Catholic Young Men's Literary Union will be a memorable one to all who were present. A beautiful programme, containing twenty-four dances, was presented to each guest as a memento of the occasion.

The Committee of Arrangements was composed of Messrs. George J. Tobin, John Carney, Edward B. Daly and George McLean.

The Races Saturday.

A large number of persons witnessed the races at the Gentlemen's Driving Park Saturday afternoon. They resulted as follows:

THE WONDERFUL CAR.

THE DAFT EXHIBITION YESTERDAY OF A STREET RAILWAY.

The Mayor and Common Council, and the People Generally, Ride on its and Are Delighted.

The Daft Electric Car, which is to be used on the proposed Electric street railway in Plainfield, was exhibited all day yesterday in running order, and until a late hour last evening, hundreds of people riding in it, and all going away delighted, and expressing a wish that it would be put in use without delay.

We gave an excellent illustration Saturday afternoon of the beautiful car as it is to be used. The exhibition car arrived a few hours before THE NEWS appeared.

The Central Railroad company tendered Mr. Daft the use of the side track at the Oil-Cloth Works, and when it was found that the tracks had to be placed six inches further apart, the company had the work done by their own men, without charge to Mr. Daft.

In order to make up for the delay caused in shipment Mr. Daft arose at one o'clock Monday morning, and with his assistants worked through until daylight getting the car into running order and testing it on the track. When everything was satisfactory he had invitations sent to Mayor Male and Common Council and as many other prominent citizens as could be reached, and these with friends responded. Their was but one opinion among all that the car was perfect excellence, and just what is wanted in Plainfield, after they had ridden in it several times and had its mechanism explained to them. One sees nothing but a very handsome car moving back and fourth at the will of a man at one end, who is motionless to all appearances, except when it is desired to reverse the motion of the car, which is effected by a slight turn of a small crank.

The car embodies all the latest improvements, is absolutely self-contained, deriving its energy while running entirely from the batteries underneath the seats and therefore not in any way affecting the rails or any surrounding objects. When the charge in the batteries is partially exhausted the car is run into the charging house and connected with the main by the dynamo vehicle refill the cells in from two and a half to four hours. The car is then ready to run from thirty to thirty-five miles. There is absolutely no danger as the potential or electric pressure is only 175 volts, which is perfectly safe under all conditions. The machinery is of the most substantial character and with a factor of safety sufficient to permit of its running at its full speed in case of emergency, which stops the car in less than its own length. A most valuable characteristic in crowded thoroughfares. There is of course no obstructions on the streets, whatever, except the indispensable rails. The car is brilliantly lighted by electricity and there are call bells at the sides to signal the conductor. The powerful alarm gongs underneath the car all of which are actuated by the batteries, it is therefore an electric car from Alpha to Omega. About 1,000 persons rode in the car yesterday afternoon. Councilman P. E. Marsh officiated a considerable part of the time as engineer, a position he filled with satisfaction.

| Total increase | | | | $353,900 |

A total increase in five years of over twenty-five per cent.

The loss on personal property in the year 1888 was owing to the change in the law in the Winter of 1887, making personal property taxable where found. Therefore the business men living in North Plainfield and doing business in the city of Plainfield occasioned a withdrawal, in 1888, of $65,500 from North Plainfield's personal property valuation.

UNEASINESS IN LONDON.

An Outbreak of the Strikers Is Hourly Expected.

READY FOR ANY EMERGENCY.

London in a State of Nervous Excitement Over the Anticipated Conflict—Mr. Davitt Writes a Vigorous Denunciation of Balfour's Catholic University Scheme.

LONDON, Sept. 3.—Hunger has done its work among the striking dock laborers, and their savage looks and their more savage threats are anything but comforting to the officials charged with the duty of preserving order. The authorities are in hourly expectation of an outbreak, and the most careful preparations have been made to meet it. Scotland Yard detectives are circulating among the men so as to secure the prompest information of the first move in the direction of organized violence, while the reserve police are so distributed as to be within call from any point likely to be threatened. Troops, too, have been quietly concentrated at stations near by the shipping, where it is expected their services will be first called into requisition, and altogether the authorities will be found fully prepared in the event of serious disturbances.

An Outbreak Expected at Any Moment.

London is in a state of nervous excitement and little doubt is felt that before night the truce between the police and the hungry and desperate laborers will have come to an end. People on the streets speak low and eye the soldiers on the eve of a battle, for the feeling is almost universal that the shock must come soon, and that the police and the soldiers will not be the only people who will have to take hard knocks when the time comes.

Clerks as Freight Handlers.

Steamship clerks are clumsily working away at some of the docks loading a few vessels, while 10,000 angry strikers are looking on or hurling curses at the men. They are kept at a distance from the docks by a strong force of police, but they receive accessions to their numbers every hour, and it is feared that the first trouble will arise at these points.

Ship Owners Urging a Truce.

A deputation representing eighty of the leading ship owners of London called upon the managers of the dock companies and urged them to permit vessel owners to make their own arrangements with men to load and discharge their ships, pending a settlement of the existing troubles. Charles Morgan Norwood, the chairman of the dock companies, replied to the delegation and urged them not to press their request, as it involved concessions to the strikers against which the companies are fighting. Mr. Norwood reminded them that it was in the interests of all shippers as well as in their own that the companies had taken the determined stand they now hold, and he was convinced that the whole commercial community and the laborers themselves were interested that the principle should be maintained inviolate at any cost, that prices for cargoes as well as for commodities should be fixed by free competition in the open market, and not by an oligarchy of conspirators, acting in secret and combining their demands upon a consideration of one side of the question, and only one.

The government is employing convicts to unload vessels at Dublin.

The excitement growing out of the labor troubles has spread to Rochester. Coals have advanced there two shillings a ton in consequence of the stopping of the supply from vessels, and strikers exercise extraordinary vigilance to prevent the importation of laborers to fill coal orders.

A mob composed of about 800 strikers invaded the Albert docks yesterday afternoon and compelled the workmen there to cease their labors. No damage was done to property.

Later.—It is stated that Sir Donald Currie, M. P., had a long conference with Mr. Norwood, the chairman of the dock companies, and that a settlement of the pending strikes is likely to be the outcome.

The strikers are considering a proposition to go to work at the old rates of wages, with per hour regular and sevenpence for overtime. The offer was made by a committee of the wharfingers, and Burns, the leader of the strikers, seems to regard it favorably.

DAVITT'S DENUNCIATION.

He Bitterly Assails the Alliance Between Balfour and Home Rulers.

LONDON, Sept. 3.—Considerable dissatisfaction has been developed within the past few days in the ranks of the Irish party over Mr. Parnell's compact with Balfour, by virtue of which Ireland is to secure the endowment of a Catholic university. Although nothing is positively known as to the precise nature of the concession which Mr. Balfour was promised in returns for this concession, he Irishman believes that the Tory principal one of the bribes held out to purely disinterested motives, and that a quid pro quo in the shape of a promise of Irish support in some shape for Tory plans exists, is generally accepted.

A long letter from the pen of Michael Davitt appears in The Fall Mall Gazette, in which that gentleman very severely condemns the action of Parnell and those who act with him in giving countenance to this Irish university scheme of Mr. Balfour's. Its acceptance, he says, by the Home Rule party places them in a ridiculously grotesque light, for they deliberately accept at the hands of the imperial parliament a measure which, whatever may be said of its merits, deals with a subject purely of local concern and one which an Irish parliament alone is competent to settle without a question, he says, as the establishment and endowment of a Catholic university in Ireland is not a proper subject for legislation on the part of a Home Rule parliament, there is no such subject, the dream of an Irish parliament is a fantasy and the Home Rule party should disband. To couple with such a proposal a promise of a measure of some sort for Ireland, he says, is one of the grotesqueness of the situation, for it may well be asked what sort of home rule can it be which excludes from the subjects with which it is to deal a matter of such purely local concern as an Irish university?

"It is only too evident," writes Mr. Davitt, "that the Irish party have been entrapped by a cunning enemy into affording them assistance in their endeavor to drag the red herring athwart the course of home rule just as it is coming within sight of its goal."

Nihilist Documents Seized.

ST. PETERSBURG, Sept. 3.—The Kharkoff police have seized a large quantity of Nihilist documents, material and persons. Many arrests have been made in connection with the seizure.

A Disgruntled Cabinet Officer.

BERLIN, Sept. 3.—The retirement of Herr von Scholz, the Prussian minister of finance, is looked upon as occasioned by shelving by the cabinet of his proposed tax reforms.

THE WAY THE MONEY GOES.

Heavy Pension Payments Makes Uncle Sam Overdraw His Monthly Wages.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 3.—The public debt statement shows an increase of the debt during the month of $6,676,602. During July there was a decrease in the debt amounted to $1,017,311, thus making the increase in the debt for the two months of the current fiscal year $7,693,913. The bonded indebtedness has been reduced $16,250,000 during the past month, and now amounts to $873,378,302. The net cash or surplus in the treasury amounts to $43,489,905, or $22,357,189 less than a month ago.

National bank depositaries hold $32,325,015 of government funds, or about $2,000,000 more than on Aug. 1. The gold fund balance has decreased about $2,000,000, and today amounts to $180,654,670, and the silver fund balance, exclusive of $6,000,000 trade dollar bullion, has decreased about $7,500,000, and now amounts to $19,392,840.

Government receipts during the past month aggregated $34,470,905—about $125,000 less than in August, 1888. Customs receipts were in round numbers, $20,500,000, against $21,-970,000 in August, 1888, and internal revenue receipts were $13,000,000, or nearly $1,500,000 greater than in August a year ago.

Expenditures during the past month were unusually heavy, amounting to $38,209,240 against $34,115,458 in August, 1888. The pension charge for the past month amounted to $20,245,969, or nearly $6,000,000 more than in August, 1888. The pension charge for the seven months of the current fiscal year amounts to $75,462,214, or fully $9,500,000 more than for the months of July and August last year, but about $6,000,000 of pension money paid out this year was for back pay pensions due during the last quarter of the preceding fiscal year.

Receipts and expenditures for the two months of the current fiscal year compared with the corresponding months of the preceding year were as follows: Receipts, July and August, 1889, $69,000,000, or nearly $1,500,000 greater than in August a year ago.

FOR A CASH CONSIDERATION.

Graham Would Do It Again—A Chicago Girl Who Wants to Try It.

BUFFALO, Sept. 3.—Carlisle D. Graham, the only man who ever braved the waters of Niagara and lived to tell of his experience, is resting. The excitement is overwhelming that he accomplished the task he set himself, and the event is the sensation of the hour. He is badly bruised, but the after effect of the ordeal is not known as yet which he was subjected, when for nearly one hour he was at the mercy of the waves that had never before relinquished any one within their grasp, may not be manifested for days, pending a settlement of the existing troubles. Charles Morgan Norwood, the chairman of the dock companies, replied to the delegation and urged them not to press their request, as it involved concessions to the strikers against which the companies are fighting. # DEATH BY ELECTRICITY.

An Expert Electrician Stricken While at Work.

HIS DEATH WAS INSTANTANEOUS.

He Grasped a Live Wire to Save Himself From Falling and 1,000 Volts Passed Through His Body—One Hand Was Burned to the Bone.

NEW YORK, Sept. 3.—Darwin A. Henry, superintendent of construction for the East River Electric Light company, was instantly killed yesterday at the company's works, 421 East Twenty-fourth street, by receiving a shock from a current, said to be of 1,000 volts. He was standing on a ladder making some change in the wires of the switchboard, when in some way, it is not positively known how, he came in contact with the wires so that a current was conducted through his body, from one hand to the other. The right hand was burned to the bone. The left hand was only scorched. Henry did not utter a sound, but fell from the ladder and was apparently dead before reaching the floor.

Efforts to Revive Him.

The workmen on the floor where the accident occurred went over to the body of Mr. Henry and tried to revive him, without success. He was apparently stone dead. An ambulance from Bellevue and Dr. W. C. Feely, of 379 First avenue, got to the factory about the same time. Ambulance Surgeon L. B. Henderson and Dr. Feely worked energetically for nearly three hours trying to restore Mr. Henry to consciousness. They even him brandy, bled him, used a battery on him, and vainly tried artificial respiration and hypodermic injections. Then they concluded that he was dead. His sister, with whom he lived at 17 West One Hundred and Twenty-fifth street, was notified, and she had the body removed to her home.

He Was an Expert Electrician.

Mr. Henry was 28 years old. He recently invented a safety switch board, in which the most careless expert may work without any danger of extinction. This board will be used by the company. Mr. Henry had been working since his boyhood for telegraph, telephone and electric light companies. He spent the last seven years of his life in the electric light business. He had been two years with the East River company. His father is Charles B. Henry, superintendent of the Standard Underground Cable company at Bethlehem.

Chief Engineer Leahy, of the same company, was knocked from a pole up town by accidentally per-mitting about 2,000 volts, twice as much as killed Henry, to go through him. He says he felt as if he had been hit with a club. He is a thin, raw boned man, and Mr. Henry was stout.

How the Accident Happened.

The officials and employes of the company are very reticent about the matter. One of the men employed about the works said that Henry was at work on the incandescent light switchboard instead of on the alternating current board, but reporters were rigidly excluded from the room where the fatality occurred. It was said that the ladder slipped, and that in trying to save himself Henry threw out his hands and clutched some wires near him, thus receiving the shock. An inquest will be held.

SATISFACTORILY SETTLED.

The Illinois Miners Will Resume Work on a Compromise Agreement.

JOLIET, Ills., Sept. 3.—The conference of the coal miners and coal operators held here yesterday effected a settlement of the differences of the wage troubles throughout the northern Illinois coal fields, and an early resumption of work, except in the mines of W. L. Scott, is certain. The operators, all of whom were represented, barring Mr. Scott, gave their ultimatum about 5 p. m. after a two hours' executive session.

Their terms were a reduction of 7½ cents a ton, no discount on company store orders, a reduction of 50 per cent in tool sharpening in all the fields except Streator, and the sale of coal to the miners at the cost of putting it on the cars.

The miners considered the proposition until late in the evening, and finally resolved to accept it. They workmen decided in addition the item of rent free during the strike and no victimizing on going to work. The operators refused to embody these points in the agreement, but said privately to the miners that the result would be as desired.

William Thaw's Will.

PITTSBURG, Sept. 3.—The will of the late William Thaw has been filed in the register's office. The vast estate, estimated at between $9,000,000 to $12,000,000, is divided into hundreds of bequests, a large amount of it going to worthy charities. The inheritance received by Mrs. Thaw and each of the ten children approximates three-quarters of a million dollars each. Among the charitable bequests are: Western University, Allegheny City, $100,000, which is the second donation of like amount to that institution; Presbyterian Board of Missions, church erection, disabled ministers, colleges, etc., $100,000; hospitals and public homes of Pittsburg and Allegheny, over $100,000 and numerous legacies to clergymen and friends.

A Cathedral Burned.

ST. JOHNS, N. B., Sept. 3.—The Catholic cathedral at Harbor Grade was discovered to be on fire at 3 o'clock in the morning, and, despite all efforts to save it, was burned to the ground. Loss, $50,000; no insurance. The greatest sympathy is expressed for Bishop McDonald.

Accidentally Killed His Friend.

UTICA, N. Y., Sept. 3.—Frank Palmer, aged 15, a student of Little Falls academy and son of Charles Palmer, a prominent lawyer of that place, was shot and fatally killed by Barbor Gregory, a hunting companion, while the latter was trying to remove a cap from his gun. The top of Palmer's head was blown off. Gregory is almost crazed by the accident.

A Decision Affecting Cigarmakers.

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 3.—In the United States circuit court Judge Thayer rendered a decision to the effect that the counterfeiting of the union label, used on cigars, cannot be prevented or punished. The ruling will affect the cigarmakers' organization in the United States and Canada, it is said, very seriously, as it practically decides that their label is of no value whatever.

Horribly Mangled by a Train.

SALISBURY, Md., Sept. 3.—The scattered remains of a negro were found along the track of the Wicomico and Pocomoke railroad between Berlin and Ocean City. The body was so horribly mangled as to render identification impossible. It is supposed the man was one of the excursionists from Cape Charles to Ocean City.

THE NEWS IN BRIEF.

Fresh Tips from the Wires Carefully Culled.

There was a very general celebration of Labor day throughout the country, and the elements favored the celebrators. Ten thousand men paraded in New York, and in Brooklyn business was generally suspended. Boston's observance of the day was more general than ever before. In Chicago's parade of 10,000 was a pony engine built of wood, made by the switchmen of Unions Nos. 2 and 58.

The will of the late Henry Shaw, of St. Louis, gives the bulk of his $5,000,000 estate to the city, on certain conditions. A number of charitable institutions get $1,000 each.

The reported death of Mrs. Delia Parnell, mother of the Irish leader, is unfounded.

Samuel Holmes, a wealthy farmer near Farmington, Ills., was murdered on Sunday. Circumstances point to his wife as the guilty party, and she is under arrest. She had repeatedly threatened his life. Holmes was 65 and Mrs. Holmes 44.

The United States steamer Dolphin is undergoing repairs at Plymouth, England.

Rev. Lorenzo T. Bennett, aged 84, died suddenly at New Haven while waiting for a train. He was the oldest Episcopal clergyman in Connecticut.

After six months' idleness, the foundry, rolling mill and pipe and tube mills of the Reading iron works have resumed partial operations. Two thousand men will be employed.

During a fire in Chicago a man named Blank threw his child from a window to the crowd below. The baby was terribly injured, and recovery is doubtful.

Mgr. McColgan, vicar general of the Catholic diocese of Baltimore, has been a priest for fifty years.

Mrs. Mary A. Lippitt, wife of Rhode Island's ex-governor, died at Providence, aged 63.

The Remington Paper company at Watertown, N. Y., has been sold to German capitalists for $1,500,000.

Hippolyte's army entered Port au Prince Aug. 23, Legitime having gone aboard a French warship the day before.

William Hoagland, a grocery clerk in Newark, N. J., died from hydrophobia. He was bitten nine weeks ago.

John McConnell, a snake charmer, was bitten by one of the reptiles he was making he was taking up Broadway, New York. It was his seventh experience of the kind, and he expects to recover with the help of a doctor, whisky and a sacred remedy.

THE WAR OF THE RACES.

Whites and Blacks in Alabama Arming for the Fray.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Sept. 3.—Trouble is expected in Bibb county, about thirty miles south of this city, between the two races, and unless the sheriff or military interfere the results may be very serious. Both races have been heavily armed since the beginning current board, but reporters were rigidly excluded from the room where the fatality occurred. It was said that the ladder slipped, and that in trying to save himself Henry threw out his hands and clutched some wires near him, thus receiving the shock. An inquest will be held.

SATISFACTORILY SETTLED.

The Illinois Miners Will Resume Work on a Compromise Agreement.

JOLIET, Ills., Sept. 3.—The conference of the coal miners and coal operators held here yesterday effected a settlement of the differences of the wage troubles throughout the northern Illinois coal fields, and an early resumption of work, except in the mines of W. L. Scott, is certain. The operators, all of whom were represented, barring Mr. Scott, gave their ultimatum about 5 p. m. after a two hours' executive session.

Their terms were a reduction of 7½ cents a ton, no discount on company store orders, a reduction of 50 per cent in tool sharpening in all the fields except Streator, and the sale of coal to the miners at the cost of putting it on the cars.

The miners considered the proposition until late in the evening, and finally resolved to accept it. The workmen decided in addition the item of rent free during the strike and no victimizing on going to work. The operators refused to embody these points in the agreement, but said privately to the miners that the result would be as desired.

William Thaw's Will.

PITTSBURG, Sept. 3.—The will of the late William Thaw has been filed in the register's office. The vast estate, estimated at between $9,000,000 to $12,000,000, is divided into hundreds of bequests, a large amount of it going to worthy charities. The inheritance received by Mrs. Thaw and each of the ten children approximates three-quarters of a million dollars each. Among the charitable bequests are: Western University, Allegheny City, $100,000, which is the second donation of like amount to that institution; Presbyterian Board of Missions, church erection, disabled ministers, colleges, etc., $100,000; hospitals and public homes of Pittsburg and Allegheny, over $100,000 and numerous legacies to clergymen and friends.

THE KING'S HOME COMING

Malietoa, Exiled by Germany, Returns to His Kingdom.

THE MEETING WITH MATAAFA.

United States Vice Consul Blacklock Warmly Received by the Two Monarchs—Grateful Tribute to Our Consul at Marshall Islands.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 3.—Advices from Apia describe the return of King Malietoa as follows: The German gunboat Wolf arrived in the harbor in the afternoon of Aug. 11. When the vessel came to anchor Malietoa was seen standing on the deck. The flag of the returning monarch was at once hoisted on shore, and hearty cheers were given by the Americans and English residents. Mataafa, Asi and the king's brother, Moli, who were exiled with him, were also on the Wulf. No canoes were allowed to approach the vessel, but about dark the king and chiefs were taken ashore in one of the Wulf's boats, with Dr. Buehler, German consul general, and Folau, chief magistrate of Samoa, who had gone aboard the Wulf an hour before. Quite a crowd of natives and a few white residents had assembled at the spot where the landing was made. When the boat touched the beach Dr. Stuebel sprang ashore and assisted Malietoa to land once more upon his native shore. The king was taken at once to Folau's house, where he was followed by a number of people.

An Affecting Meeting.

The meeting between Malietoa and his relatives was most affecting. The women fell on their knees and kissed his hands and the whole party, including the king, were weeping all the time. The greatest expression of joy was heard, and all present extended sympathy to the monarch who had been carried off by the Germans and landed first at the Cameroons, one of the most unhealthy shores in the world, and taken from there to Hamburg as a steerage passenger, and then exiled on an island in the Marshall group, till the German power to give the highest praise to Dr. Morgan, the United States consul at Marshall islands, and declare that had it not been for his assistance they would have suffered severely.

The Two Monarchs Meet.

About an half hour after Malietoa had arrived at the house, Mataafa, who had been resigning during his absence, arrived and was received with even more cordiality. Malietoa seemed to be a careworn man and broken down in health. The white residents present drank the health of the two monarchs, and an invitation was then given to attend an impromptu banquet. The greatest good will existed between the two kings. Among those who called during the evening was United States Vice Consul Blacklock, who was warmly received by both.

Good Feeling Between the Kings.

On the following day Malietoa went to Mataafa's house and the two monarchs received with a royal salute. The two kings will remain in the same house for the present. Perfect feeling of amity exists among them. Mataafa will retain control of affairs until a satisfactory settlement is made.

The American schooner Lena Sweasey, lying in the harbor, saluted Malietoa's flag on the day of his return. No formal acknowledgement of this kind was made by the Sophia or Wulf.

There are no American or British men-of-war in the harbor.

ONE OF THE SMARTEST.

"Come over and get introduced to one of the smartest girls in Philadelphia," said the colonel the other morning, after we had finished our cigars. "I don't call her a beauty, but she is highly educated and as sharp as a razor."

"Detroit, Detroit," she missed, as we were introduced. "Oh, yes, I can place it now. I was wonder where it was in Canada or Quebec or Chicago. I was there once."

"Indeed!"

"Yes, and the people were celebrating the queen's birthday."

"Yes."

"They were celebrating it by a snow and ice carnival. You are a very patriotic people."

"Well, yes."

"I suppose the Johnstown horror has rendered them somewhat apprehensive in Detroit."

"As to what, ma'am?"

"Why, that Lake Michigan might burst out and sweep you all away."

"Oh, we don't feel any fear of that."

"Don't you indeed? Ah! yes, but how stupid of me! The Rocky mountains are between you and the lake, of course. Are there many wild animals left in Detroit?"

"A few grizzly bears and mountain lions."

"And the Indians?"

"They never approach within a mile of the citizens, and they don't kill over a dozen people a week."

"How nice! I must sit down sometime and talk to you a whole half day."

When the colonel and I had returned to our end of the veranda I looked at him. He had his face turned away. It was all of two minutes before he slowly wheeled around and brought his fist down on his knee with the exclamation:

"Well, I'll be hanged!"—Detroit Free Press.

By Their Words You Shall Know Them.

"No, sir," said Farmer Thistlepod, "you needn't tell me anything about the beauties of a free government. I'm sick of it. I've toiled and moiled and dug and delved on this farm, boy and man, forty-five years, and all I've been able to do has been to pay taxes, keep up the interest on a mortgage and wish I had money enough to take out a little insurance on the stock, but I can't do it. Pastor was here this morning to try to do a little more for the church, an' I had to tell him I was goin' to give up my pew at the end of this quarter; just got to do it; I haven't the money. I tell you, and, what's more, you can't make it on a farm in this country. I don't know a farmer in York state that is makin' enough to pay for labor on the farm." That night three burglars who overheard the old man talking in this strain to the church clerk came into his house at midnight, gagged him, tied him down on the kitchen table and held a torch to his feet until he came down, and they got away with $4,000 in gold cash, $3,500 in United States bonds, four gold watches, two breechloading shotguns, English; $600 worth of solid silver and about a dozen cythroat mortgages on western farms, drawing 9 per cent. interest. Ananias down at the depot he used to tell stories a great deal more than if he did.—Burdette in Brooklyn Eagle.

An Independent Darky.

The rising generation of colored youth in the south is far from being polite and obsequious. On the contrary, there is a manifest disposition to put on airs.

Not long ago an elegantly dressed white gentleman rode his horse up to the sidewalk in front of an Austin, Tex., hotel, dismounted, and snapping his fingers at a light mahogany colored youth, shouted:

"Here, boy! Hold this horse while I go into this drug store for a minute."

"Am dat ar hoss so sperated dat it takes two men to hold him?"

"Of course it don't take two men to hold him," replied the white gentleman.

"Den of one man can hold him what does yer want me for? Yo' don't yer hold him yerself?"—Texas Siftings.

Anxious Mother.

The 5-year-old boy of Lewis Stewart, employed in the extract works of Dovis & Walton, at Houlton, fell head first into a barrel half full of water, Friday. No one was near, and after a few minutes kicking he succeeded in turning in the barrel and crawled out, and presented himself to his astonished mother gasping and begging her not to whip him for spoiling his clothes. "Why didn't you call?" said the frightened mother, after the "drowned rat" had explained matters. "I did," said he shyly, "but nothin' come but blubbers."—Bangor Commercial.

A Crusher.

"So, Mr. Hankinson, you are going on a tour of the world?"

"Yes, Miss Whitesmith."

"And will you promise to write to me from every country you may visit?"

"Personally I know not how I will value the privilege. And you will really care to hear from me?"

"Yes. I am collecting the postage stamps of all countries."—London Tit-Bits.

The Charm of Long Distance.

Amos Keeter on the Catskills—Why will you persist, Miss Keeto, in following that unwary Boston girl? Surely, the Chicago ladies are more tempting!

Too Ripe for the Occasion.

Uncle Zeb—Heah, yo' boys. Did you stole dat watermillion from Squar Wigginses?

Boys—Yas, we did.

Uncle Zeb—Well, if er obbeah ketch yo stealin' fum Squar Wigginses agin I'll—but dis am good an' ripe. De cote's adjourned for de 'casion.—Life.

He Drew the Line.

Wm. C. Smith, mason and builder, in repairing the damage done to the arch of the race under the Stillman Music Hall, discovered the large hot-air furnace of Messrs. Carney Bros., which was lost in the ruins of Tuesday, July 30, after having fallen in the gulch in front of the store; it would seem almost impossible for such a large furnace to be carried such a distance but perhaps it had a close shave. Dookstader was shivering from fright and thought it would take the chances of having Janitor Mattox fire it up and show the public what a powerful heater it was.

BEAUTIFY YOUR FACES.

ADVICE TO GIRLS WHO WOULD HAVE A FINE COMPLEXION.

The Most Important Thing Is to Keep the Skin Clean—Soap and Water the Most Healthful Things—Be Wise in Eating and Take Plenty of Exercise.

Exercise and again exercise! This is the Alpha and Omega, the beginning and end, of rubefaction.

Exercise! to shall your eyes be bright, and your skin clear soft, satin smooth and healthy.

It is so easy to have a fine complexion as a good education, and the means are just as certain if you will but discipline the body with half the care bestowed on the mind.

If your skin is faded in color sallow and will not stretch the interior glow of the tint never you read, exercise. If it is losing the elasticity it had when you were younger, if it looks flabby and pallid and old, exercise. If tan has become coarse in texture and full of minute holes, if it is sickly, blotchy and irritable exercise till it smiles, and grace, freshness and fairness make it dimple and smile once more.

Wash it first. It is shocking to think how many an exquisite skin is ruined by lack of frequent and thorough bathing. The dangers of the use of soap are never to be remedied by all the unguents, lotions and cosmetics ever invented. The hue and cry raised against the use of soap and water on the face by the vertest stuff and nonsense. Nothing is better for the skin of any part of the body than warm water and imported castile soap, unperfumed, made of olive oil and acknowledged by chemists to be absolutely pure. Let Patti wash her face with cold cream and actresses innumerable wipe away dust and stage make-up, but no person should with vaseline only; between you and me, to clog the skin indefinitely with sour milk or grease is a filthy trick unworthy of common intelligence.

EXERCISE THE SKIN.

Did it ever occur to you that the skin wants exercise and can very justly be said to be a better tonic for the complexion than a brisk, cold sponge bath on rising, followed by a vigorous rubbing with a dry towel, not too coarse, for that must be reserved for the final stage of the friction unless the skin be very sensitive, in which case the bare hands may be the instrument instead of the linen. This sets the blood to moving briskly and electrifies the system. At bedtime a warm bath may be taken, and the face should be washed slowly, carefully and thoroughly with warm water and castile soap. The oily matter exuding from the skin catches minute particles of dust, which cannot be removed in any other way, and many eruptions on the face are caused by nothing else than neglect of this simple precaution. After this wholesome cleansing dip the face into a basin of clear, cold water several times and shutting the eyes under the surface, and the flesh will be left firm and healthy. The entire process will take barely ten minutes in the morning and twenty at night, and can, if needful, be taken from the regular sleep, the bath being quite as restful and refreshing.

After such a cleaning the skin is ready to be taken out of doors, but it must be fed before going. A simple, nutritious diet is just as necessary to a fine complexion as rain and sunshine are to flowers. A taste for vegetable food often seems to need as careful cultivation as a taste for good reading instead of trashy novels. Will the girl who makes herself fullsome with strong coffee do sallow? She will. Will the woman who prefers pickles and pink ice cream to roast beef or juicy beefsteak have blackheads? Most surely she will. Let the woman whose skin is dull, thick, yellowed with moth patches and sluggish review chocolate, gravy and grease, milk and unripe fruit, and then let small indigestibles and not the most favorable conditions. Let her eat good beefsteak, the soft part of fresh clams scalded in their juice, broiled fresh fish, fresh apples or peaches with cream, and to give the face a color unfermented grape juice or malt extract and brown bread.

If the digestion is bad and a poor skin is traceable to this cause let her eat toasted crackers, with fruit juice, beefsteak, chopped raw and browned, clam broth, grape juice, soft boiled eggs and whole wheat bread. If she is thin and wishes to gain at once flesh and color let her eat only what satisfies hunger, and eat very slowly, but eat vegetables and fruits of all kinds, cereals boiled and simply cooked meats five or six times a day if she craves them, and drink a pint of milk just before going to sleep. If she is fleshy and yet sensuals let her reduce her weight and make bland by eating good beefsteak, lettuce, tomatoes, string beans, cabbage and cauliflower. Let her eat whole wheat bread and abjure cake and pastry.

And what to do with a skin which, after bathing and after dieting, still looks languid and unfreshened? Try exercise in the open air. Why, exercise. We women stitch our trials and our losses and crosses into scarfs, curtains, and clothes when we should take our woes out into the open air and fight them and fight. We should pound down our pains, walk our quiet, firm footsteps, and as the tired heart all unconsciously beats up accompaniment to the long walk so will the soft air gently touches the flushed cheek in sympathy and the glad warm sunshine rests on the face in loving benediction, the pain will be hushed and new strength and new vigor will add new graces.

There is one glory of the sun and another glory of the moon, and one star differeth from another in beauty. Women are not born equal in personal attractiveness, but any girl, not positively deformed, can be bred to be handsome, queenly and stately to hold their arms down at their sides, to be "lady like" and to "graduate." To begin with, it ought to be a part of every girl's education to learn to run. Running is as undoubtedly a healthy girl as breathing, but it is carefully trained out of her at as early an age as possible, and when we see a grown woman who possesses the "free gait" of childhood! To see a woman run is to look at a gloss wedding. Did you ever look at a friend of Greek girls running in any classic collection? Did it not bubble, ripple and be beautiful, beauty and sweetness, its joy in living! Could you look at its round, supple limbs, instinct with grace and freedom, its short tunic, its lightened feet, its flying hair and not feel that the long skirts, the corsets, the confinement and the flowing trains were unnatural? Do not fancy that these large eyed, round lunged creatures were what women was meant to be! Many disorders of the complexion come from functional difficulties, and to be able to run is to possess strong hips which bear life's burdens easily.

Find a woman who has made a stir in the beauty market or on the stage and you find a girl who was a hoyden, a Peg Wiffington who sold oranges, the Gunnings who were washing girls, the fairy who was the despair of her brothers, a Mary Anderson who got her matchless complexion from the blue grass of Kentucky.—E. P. H. in New York Mail and Express.

FOREIGN GOSSIP

During the last eighty years 8,000,000 people have died of phthisis in France.

The total indebtedness of the various churches in Amsterdam exceeds £120,000.

The French government will, within a year, take control of all the telegraph lines.

The Russian language has now been formally imposed on the German and all other inhabitants of the Baltic provinces.

The German officials on the eastern frontier of France are said to be more than troublesome with their passport regulations.

It is said the English government contemplate selling the Netley hospital, which is declared to be too costly an establishment.

The latest order concerning the Russian railways is that only men who have served in the army are to be employed on them.

The municipal council of Dijon has determined to name one of its streets after M. Eiffel, who was born within the city walls.

Forestry is a national object in Switzerland. In 1888 nearly six million coniferous trees were planted, besides nearly half a million of other plants.

Melrose Abbey is falling into decay, and the restorers are now at work upon it. A number of young trees and other growth were displaced last week.

A band of brigands has been terrorizing Macedonia, which, upon final capture, was found to include several priests, a Greek archimandrite, the superior of a monastery, and three "ladies."

Liverpool last year yielded 15,000 cases of drunkenness from a population of little over half a million. The London police area, with the four and three quarter millions of people, yields only 2,000 cases more than Liverpool.

The primate of England has two chairs considerably over one thousand years old—the chair of Canterbury and the coronation chair in which he sits at Lambeth, which belonged to the Abbot of Reculver in the Seventh century.

L'Osservatore Romano gives all the details of the pompous fetes given by King Humbert to guard the Vatican day and night, for fear the pope should escape. No less than twenty-four special agents have been appointed for the occasion.

The census of Bulgaria and eastern Roumelia gives the population of the two principalities as being 3,154,372, of whom 2,326,250 are Bulgarians, 967,000 Turks, 50,000 Greeks, 50,000 gypsies who have no fixed residence, and 23,400 Jews.

The Russian minister of the interior is making arrangements whereby all children at present under age, whose parents have become Russian subjects by naturalisation, shall be declared to be Russian subjects and liable for military service.

The London season just over was the gayest ever known. On an average there were said to be about seven "good" parties going on each night for three months. None of these, it was estimated, would have cost less than £300 apiece—many, of course, costing several times that.

The longest uninterrupted debate on record was, on Aug. 1, brought to a close by the New Zealand house of representatives. It had caused a continuous sitting of seventy-six hours, entirely given up to the discussion of a representation bill. Yet the debate was not finished.

It is said that the members of an embassy from the sultan of Maadara to Berlin became so exhilarated by the wine and beer served to them in Bismarck's palace that they executed a war dance in the prince's parlor, but with disastrous consequences to several pieces of furniture.

ROYAL FLUSHES.

The Princess of Wales is a skillful pianist.

The Prince of Wales plays the banjo fairly well.

The Duke of Edinburgh is a persistent but poor violinist.

The Duke of Connaught amuses himself on the flute.

The czar of all the Russias plays a handsome silver cornet.

Four sons of the king of Siam are being educated in England.

Queen Marguerite of Italy makes herself happy at the piano.

The beautiful empress of Austria plays splendidly on the zither.

Queen Victoria and her daughter Louise play well upon the organ.

None unknown admirer of the Prince of Wales recently gave him $50,000.

Queen Elizabeth of Roumania plays with equal skill on the harp and piano.

Prince Henry of Prussia is a composer and a performer on the violin and piano.

Queen Victoria is said to contemplate bestowing the Order of the Bath upon Thomas A. Edison.

The empress of Japan is proficient on the "koto," the national instrument, which is a kind of big zither.

Prince Ferdinand, of Bulgaria, has become very popular with his subjects. This is surprising in light of the fact that he paints his cheeks.

Among the pensioners on the English civil list is Prince Lucien Bonaparte, who gets £1,250 per annum for "distinguished literary services."

A rumor has been flying about in London that the beautiful Countess of "May," of Teck, is to marry the Hon. John Baring, eldest son of Lord Revelstoke.

The shah of Persia purchased a number of valuable paintings in Paris. They were all said to be deficient in execution, but were very high necked in price.

The Indian tour which Prince Albert Victor—or Prince Edward as he prefers to be called—is about to undertake will extend over several months.

Princess Victoria is the most original and most thoughtful of the Prince of Wales's daughters. Princess Maud acts as her mother's amanuensis. Princess Louise does been her father's favorite.

In order to distinguish the royal princesses of England, they will be designated hence forth as "of Great Britain and Ireland," like Princess Beatrice, or as, "of Wales," like the Duchess of Fife.

King George of Greece can play all kinds of tunes on hand bells and wine glasses of different shapes. He can also play the "nyckelharpa," an instrument played only by the Tsiganes of Hungary.

The Duke of Sparta and Princess Sophia, of Prussia, who are to be married presently, are industriously studying each other's native language. The duke has got on so well that he recently wrote the German emperor a letter in German, and the princess can now talk Greek a little.

Emperor William was specially pleased with the performance of the artillery and the volunteers at Aldershot, but while in England nothing amused him so much as the fall of the unlucky German admiral, whom he shook warmly by the hand and reassured with these words: "I honour your disinclination to grow fat."

The Sun and Fire Worshipers of Ancient Times—Little Nell's Fairy Tale About the Wicked Queen and the Handsome Prince and Princess.

The splendor of the sun, the most glorious object in nature, and under whose warm rays all things bloom into life, made mankind in the earliest ages look on it as a god and offer sacrifices to it. Some nations worshiped it as a deity itself and erected temples to it.

THE SUN AND FIRE WORSHIPERS.

The ancient Persians, though they believed in a sun god or spirit, Mithras, worshiped the sun as the mighty creation and brilliant emblem of the Great Spirit, for which had neither temples nor images. When the Arabs conquered Persia in the middle of the Seventh century, they called the people Guebres, or fire worshipers, on account of the veneration in which fire was held amongst them, and from their preserving certain fires as sacred; and all those who would not acknowledge Mohammed as their prophet were driven from the country, or into the most remote mountain fastnesses, where some of their descendants still linger. Great numbers of these Persians who clung to the faith of their fathers migrated to India, where they formed settlements at Bombay and at other places on the western coast; and they have since become flourishing communities, and are known as Parsees, from their ancient name.

The Tea We Drink.

There are several different varieties of the tea plant, but the various kinds of the leaf known to commerce are mainly influenced by soil in which the plant is produced and the different manner in which the leaf is prepared. When the plants are 3 years old they yield their first picking of leaves. They attain their maximum yield when about 10 years old, and then deteriorate, giving way to young plants. Naturally the plant would grow to the height of a tree, but, for the convenience of picking, it is kept pruned down to five feet. The earliest picking of the tea leaves is made the first of April. This consists of the buds and the very young set leaves, and, though the smallest picking of the year, is the most valuable, because of the fine flavor of the leaf. The largest crop of the year is picked about the last of May, and there is a picking of an inferior quality in July, and in some localities one of old and poor leaves even later.

The leaves, when picked, are first exposed to the sun and air in shallow baskets; then they are stirred in heated pans, and then are spread upon a table, where workmen take them in small handfuls and rub them to roll them into the form which they finally retain. For fine teas there are repeated heatings and airings, and, before packing, they are spread upon a table, and the imperfectly rolled leaves are removed, and the dust and fine fragments sifted out. If the process of drying is completed as rapidly as possible after the leaves are gathered, green tea, but for black tea the process is prolonged. The very bright green teas are said to be dried in copper pans. The Chinese climate in which tea is extensively raised lie between latitude 25 and 31 degs. north. Tea is also extensively cultivated in Japan, in India, and also on the Island of Java, also to some extent on others of the South Sea Islands. Some successful experiments have been made in raising tea in this country, both in the southern states and in California. The cost of labor here is the great difficulty, as there is much slow and tedious work necessary in cultivating the plant and preparing the leaves for commercial use.

Nell's Fairy Tale.

Nell's fairy tale and how it ended was recently told in St. Nicholas in the following verse:

THE FAIRY TALE WAS ENDED.

The fairy tale was ended, the wicked Queen had died;
The Prince had saved the Princess and cut off the monster's head;
The people all were joyful, and the Princess and Prince were married and—so ran the tale—"lived happy ever since."
Nell closed the book of fairy tales and mused: "I wonder why
There are no fairies nowadays? I only wish that I Could be a fairy princess like the Princess Golden hair."
Here Nell dropped off to sleep, and then she dreamed of her chair,
When, of its own accord, the book popped open and behold!
Out crept a wee elf princess all arrayed in cloth of gold;
She sighed a little tired sigh, and then Nell heard her say,
In a tiny, tired, little voice, that sounded far away:
"Oh, dear! how very nice it is for ones to get out side.
You've no idea how flat it is, my dear, and tired we're tried,
To be shut up in a story book with dragons queens and kings,
And always have to do and say the same old senseless things;
You think it would be very fine, but really it is not joke!
I'd rather be a girl like you."
Then little Nell awoke.
"Poor Princess Goldenhair," said she—"unhappy little elf, I'm very glad, upon the whole, that I am just myself!"

PERSONAL GOSSIP.

Gen. Boulanger, like a great many noted men, is superstitious.

The youngest admiral of the English fleet is Sir Geoffrey Hornby.

W. S. Huntington says railroads will soon make 100 miles per hour.

The Comte de Paris is supposed to have 400,000 or 500,000 francs a year.

George Meredith has an intellectual, delicately cut, highly spiritual face.

Samuel Bryan, of Ripley county, Ind., is seven feet tall and is still growing.

Lord Brassey's London house is described as a dream of loveliness from floor to ceiling.

Hadje Hassein Ghioli Khan still has American newspaper clippings sent to him in Europe.

Brown-Sequard has become a more interesting personage to visitors in Paris than Pasteur.

Jerry Morrow, of Hancock county, W. Va., is over 30 years of age and scarcely three feet high.

Ex-Mayor Richard Vaux, of Philadelphia, was the first American to dance with Queen Victoria.

George Bancroft preached from his father's pulpit several times during his tutorship at Harvard in 1822.

John L. Sullivan considers his experience in a Mississippi court the best advertisement he ever received.

M. Charles Garnier, the famous French architect, has a refined nervous face and hair touched with gray.

The pope has had his large bedroom filled with beautiful birds and seems to take great pleasure in watching them.

Tony Pastor, now 56 years old, made his first appearance before the public at the age of 6 years as singing at temperance meetings.

Commodore Robert W. Sterling, of Brooklyn, is 74 years old, but he is having a new boat built with which he expects to row 100 miles a day.

Lord Robert Cecil, the second son of Lord Salisbury, is practicing at the English bar. He means business, and bids fair to become a good lawyer.

Mr. Gladstone says that he brought his children up without constraint. "They have always been governed at any period of their lives by force."

Mr. Labouchere kindly observes that the German emperor "seems to be a manly young fellow, with a good deal in his character that is commendable."

Sir Edward Watkin has formed a company with a capital of £1,000,000 for the erection in London of a tower twice the height of the Eiffel tower at Paris.

The Swedish composer, Ivar Hallstrom, has just completed an opera, "Nesga," the libretto of which is from the pen of Queen Elizabeth of Roumania.

The oldest admiral in England is Sir Provo Wallace, aged 98. He was in the fight in 1812 between the Shannon and the Chesapeake, but he never commanded a steam vessel.

M. Solabel, a French architect, who has been employed of late in the palace of the king of Corea, was recently stoned by the servants of the palace and had to flee for his life.

Mr. Maybrick ("Stephen Adams"), the popular English singer, is much distressed at the death of his brother, and while sentencing of that brother's wife for murder, and has canceled all engagements for a year.

Capt. Sidney M. Hinman, the young navigator who made the voyage from New York to Boston in the smallest boat that ever made the trip, is preparing for a trip from New York to Key West, Fla., in a dory.

Justice Field is a small man, owing to his short legs. His front is impressive. His forehead is high, running back into polished baldness; his remaining hair is bushy and silvery and his beard a venerable white.

William Waldorf Astor, who is the heir presumptive to about $50,000,000, is a model man for a millionaire's son. Although moderately fond of horses and yachting and a good boxer and fencer, he is more of a man of business than a man of pleasure.

Oliver Optic thinks that if he had half a dozen wide awake American boys to amuse he could do it better in Constantinople than in London or Paris. The two latter cities would not seem so much unlike New York or Boston to them, but in the city of the sultan everything they saw would have the charm of novelty.

WOMAN'S WEAR.

Richly tinted nasturtions, poppies of all colors, and corn flowers are all in high favor just now.

Shot grenadine is a new dress material. Costumes of this fabric are made up over shot silk and trimmed with velvet.

English dressmakers have adopted the fashion of having the seams on the outside of the skirt and binding them with ribbon.

Old pieces of jet passementerie are utilized to trim sashes of black moire ribbon, the ribbon being cut away where passementerie is applied.

Guimpes and slips are still much liked for little girls, and they also wear guimpe dresses, which have white cambric yokes and sleeves to simulate guimpes.

Many of the newest white cambric petticoats are tucked diagonally or perpendicularly to the hem, and are trimmed with insertion and edgings of torchon lace.

The prevalent fancy for "baby" ribbon has extended to underwear, and very elaborate undergarments are trimmed with lace, with the ribbon run in and out of the meshes.

Some of the newest bridal dresses are made with low corsages and long sleeves, the latter wrinkling about the arms in a manner similar to that produced by a very long glove.

Leather beads are used as hems, cuffs, collars, revers and waistcoats, upon walking and driving suits for country wear, and may be procured in colors to match the costume.

Alpinose waist which fits the figure perfectly has a number of fine plaits at the back, which converge at the waist, and also on each side of the front. The collar and belt are also tucked in fine rows.

Very young ladies wear fichus which are made of white wide sash ribbons. They are joined diagonally at the middle of the back and cross in front, where a few plaits fit them to the figure, and are knotted at the waist line at the back.

Velvet is likely to reign supreme during the coming fall and winter, not the figured and brocaded varieties, but the plain, rich material from the looms of Lyons, and it will be utilized for entire costumes and elegant wraps, as well as for combinations and accessories.

Among the daintiest of tea gowns was one of white cashmere and surah silk, made with a single Watteau pleat, falling from the shoulders to the feet in one unbroken line. The fronts were bordered with the silk, and long, flowing sleeves, over close coat sleeves of cashmere, were faced and turned back in revers with the same.

PLAINFIELD EVENING NEWS.

ESTABLISHED 1884. PLAINFIELD, N. J., "THE COLORADO OF THE EAST," WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 4, 1889. PRICE TWO CENTS

Republican State Convention.

The Republican voters of the State of New Jersey are requested to elect delegates to a State Convention to be held at Taylor's Opera House, in the city of Trenton, on Tuesday, September 17th, 1889, at 12 o'clock, noon, to nominate a candidate for governor, to be supported at the ensuing election.

The basis of representation under this call will be one delegate for each two hundred Republican votes cast at the last election for governor in this State, and one delegate for each fraction thereof exceeding one hundred votes; provided, that each township or ward shall be entitled to at least one delegate.

Townships or wards created since the last election for governor shall be entitled to due representation, but the number of delegates from the county shall not be thereby increased. In such cases the county committee will make the appointment to existing townships and wards.

By order of the Republican State Executive Committee.

GARRET A. HOBART, Chairman.
JOHN Y. FOSTER, Secretary.

JOTTINGS.

—The Peck & Furman's Daniel Boone company paraded the streets of Plainfield at noon to-day.

—Men are engaged repairing the damage caused by the freshet to the Grove street bridge.

—The membership of the Y. M. C. A. will meet to-morrow evening at 7:45 o'clock and the Board of Directors at 8.

—The third annual re-union of the Third New Jersey Regiment will be held at Toms River, Tuesday, September 24th, 1889.

—The Board of Managers of the Children's Home will hold their monthly meeting of the Home on Thursday, Sept. 5th, at 4 p. m.

—George Washington was arrested by Policeman Lynch Saturday afternoon charged with horse stealing. Justice Nash fixed his bail at $200 to await the action of the Grand Jury.

—Next Sunday morning at 7:30 o'clock the Unitarian church will re-open its services in the music rooms of Jacob Bros.' Rev. Mr. Moselcone will preach. After next Sunday the services will be held regularly in the morning at 10:30 o'clock.

—The Democratic voters of North Plainfield will meet in the basement of the school building on Somerset street, Friday evening, at eight p. m., for the purpose of electing two delegates to the Gubernatorial Convention to be held at Trenton on Tuesday next.

—Messrs. J. B. Miller & Bro., this morning awarded the contracts for their new building. Mr. John Emmons received the contract for the mason work; Messrs. Brokaw & Kane the contract for the carpenter work and Mr. F. O. Smith the painting. It is expected that the work of building will be commenced to-morrow.

—The managers of the New Jersey state experiment farm are cutting ensilage this week, and those farmers of Union county who are interested may find it to their advantage to visit the farm and see the process. The days most likely to prove best for the visitors will be Thursday and Friday of the present week. The farm is at New Brunswick, on the east of the city.

—There is fair promise of a legal row between the Piscataway Township authorities and the Middlesex County Board of Chosen Freeholders over the repair of a road near the New Brooklyn mill, which was extensively washed out during the recent freshet. John Gregory, road commissioner, notified the board to repair their the damages and the latter refused to comply. The courts will settle the matter.—Newark Evening News.

Dan't Boone To-Night.

At the performance of Dan't Boone to-night, a very interesting feature will be shown, that of horse vaulting a man bound to a stake, while numerous other examples of equine sagacity will be presented. The company numbers nearly thirty people this season, and is fair superior to any that has before presented the play.

The scenery has been entirely re-written and is now played in four acts. New wardrobes have been prepared and the four comedy clogs are introducing many catchy song and dances. A magnificent uniformed orchestra is carried by the management and nothing is left undone to make the performance a perfect one.

W. C. T. U. Anniversary.

AT THE HOTEL NETHERWOOD.

A Testimonial Presented to a Plainfield Lady by the Guests.

The Hotel Netherwood is so fortunate as to number among its guests this season, a lady already well known in the artistic circles of New York, as an earnest and efficient, though unassuming, champion of every enterprise tending to encourage and advance worthy young students of either music, literature or art.

On Friday evening last, after the various prizes had been awarded the winners in progressive euchre in the hotel drawing-room, the lady above referred to, quietly presented a written tribute of thanks, and an elegant cardcase containing sixty-five dollars, to Miss Josephine Mears, from the hotel guests who had responded to the suggestion that Miss Mears deserved a substantial acknowledgement for her daily rehearsal of choir vocal music.

The following is a copy of the testimonial presented by Mrs. C. Walter Crosby, to which the names of her fellow contributors were added.

TESTIMONIAL TO MISS MEARS.

"The undersigned, guests of Hotel Netherwood, desire to express most cordial thanks to Miss Josephine Mears for so largely contributing to their enjoyment the past month, through her admirable rendering of vocal classical music. This little testimonial is tendered as a slight expression of appreciation for the conscientious and earnest student and artist who has so cheerfully and generously given us the best and most elevating selections from her extensive repertoire, which include gems from such inspired composers as Mendelssohn, Gounod, Verdi, Schubert, Liszt and Denisette. Everything objectionable, or that could cater to a coarse or lower standard of music, she has studiously avoided, and Miss Mears will ever be remembered and associated with all that is refined, cultured and elevating in the musical world."

PERSONAL.

The Misses Runyon, of West Fourth street, are spending two weeks with friends in Jersey City.

Mr. A. J. Everitt, of Summit avenue, left town yesterday to accept a position at Newark, N. J.

Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Brokaw, of West Fourth street returned yesterday from a brief stay at Mt. Tabor.

Mrs. John N. Smith, of Millstone, N. J., is visiting her brother Mr. P. G. Kline, of Sumner avenue.

Master Robbie Tingley returned to his home on Orchard place from a visit to friends at Springdale.

Miss Mamie McCord, of Park avenue will start to-morrow for a three weeks stay at Deckerstown, N. Y.

Mr. Morris VanArsdale and family have returned to Plainfield from an extended visit to friends at Pluckamin, N. J.

The family of President Dumont, of the Plainfield Common Council, will return to-morrow from Pemaconia, N. H.

Willie, youngest son of Patrick and Lizzie Melville, of Cottage place, was interred in St. Mary's cemetery Monday afternoon.

Mr. A. T. Slauson and family of No. 19 Second place who have been summering at Pocono Mountains returned last evening.

The family of Chief of Police Tunis J. Carey returned to their former home from a pleasant visit to friends at Lebanon, N. J.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Clifton, of Madison avenue and Second street, returned yesterday to their Plainfield home from their Summer outing.

Lizzie, a fifteen-month old child of Patrick and Mary McGrath, of South Second street, was buried in St. Mary's cemetery, Monday afternoon.

Miss Dilla, of Trenton, succeeds Miss Mamie O'Connor as teacher at the Springdale school. Miss O'Connor, has been transferred to the Warrenville school.

Emil Zehler, a German, aged 30 years, died at the Muhlenberg Hospital Saturday afternoon from pneumonia. He was an unmarried man and was admitted to the Hospital about a week ago. He was buried yesterday in the city plot by Morgue-Keeper Casey.

A pear tree in the yard of Mr. T. S. Burr, of La Grand avenue, after having borne a large crop of fruit in August, and had all its leaves, has now a fresh supply of leaves and blossoms. This freak of nature is probably due to the heavy rain of the past Summer.

Miss Lottie D. Springman, of Somerset street, celebrated the eighth anniversary of her birth at her home Saturday evening. Parlor games and a magic lantern exhibition were features of the occasion. Among those present were Miss Gracie Hunter, Miss Lizzy Hughes, Miss Agnes Jones, Miss Katie Palmer, Miss Minnie Gulick. Miss Mamie Philpit, Miss Tiny Voehl, Miss Addie Carney, Miss Soper, Miss Hattie Voehl, Miss Rickert, Miss L. Pangborn, Miss L. Zieus, Miss Amy Gee, of Pamrapo, Miss Maggie Hunt, of Newark, Miss Annie Mackey and Master John Voehl, Eddie Becker, Henry Voehl, Elmer Wheeler.

A STRAW BOND.

Mr. and Mrs. Harris Hoyt Accused of False Representation.

United States Commissioner Deuel yesterday held Harris Hoyt, of 233 West One Hundred and Fifteenth-street, in $7,500 bail, on a charge of perjury, and let Mrs. Hoyt go on her own recognizance on a similar charge. They will be examined Tuesday. In a suit brought by Maria A. Shaw, against the Randolph (West Virginia) Boom Company and the Central Trust Company of New York, Percival K. Jones, a young lawyer, was appointed a receiver, and Mr. and Mrs. Hoyt went on his bond, claiming that they were worth $30,000 each. Examination, it is alleged, disclosed the fact that neither Mr. and Mrs. Hoyt had any property, and they were arrested.

Mr. Hoyt is a very small man, and looks as if he had a wholesome respect for his wife, who is considerably larger and looks dignified. He is, he says, not engaged in active business, but is associated with W. C. Jones, the father of Percival C. Jones, at 45 Broadway, in a sort of real estate business.

Before Commissioner Deuel Mrs. Hoyt did most of the talking. She declared that she had lands in West Virginia. In this land, she supposed, her husband had some sort of a joint interest, enough to justify him in going on the bond. Commissioner Deuel declined to answer the legal questions which she fired at him. Mrs. Hoyt said she simply wanted to make some statement, if one was in any way required and adjusting her gold-rimmed glasses, and fanning herself vigorously, declared that if she was alive and able to be brought to the Post Office Building on Tuesday, she would come.

In conversation with a Times reporter Mrs. Hoyt declared that her husband was a second or third cousin of Jesse Hoyt, over whose millions Mary Irene Hoyt waged luckless warfare. Mr. Hoyt's own proud bearing of the defendation, but Mrs. Hoyt said sharply: "It was proved at the congress of the Hoyt family that your relationship was that of a second or third cousin, wasn't it?" and Mr Hoyt dared say no more.—N. Y. Times.

Percival K. Jones is a nephew of Moses A. Shaw of Crescent avenue, and of the Randolph Boom Company in the one in which L. A. Rheaume of Plainfield become involved and forced to make an assignment for the benefit of his creditors.

It is alleged that neither Mr. nor Mrs. Shaw have put any money in the enterprise and that the above suit was instigated by Mr. Shaw in the name of his wife.

THE GERMANS' CELEBRATION.

A Target Excursion to Kellars Grove Labor Day.

The Shooting Section of the Plainfield German and Turning Society celebrated Labor Day at Kellers Grove by a target excursion. A large number of invited guests were present and a most enjoyable day was spent. The Schulzen Gilde, of New York, Capts in Shroeder, commanding. The Independent Germania Schulzen Corps, of New York, in charge of Capt. Ludwig and The Independent Schulzen Company, of Brooklyn, in command of Capt. Roth were present.

The visiting companies arrived on the 9:15 p. m. train and after a short parade through the principal streets proceeded to the grove, and the day's sport commenced immediately.

The first prize of $5, was won by Frederick Haberle; the second prize was returned to the treasurry on account of a tie; the third prize was awarded to Frederick Bechtel; Mr. Henry Gremfield, was crowned king and Miss A. Keller was made queen of the day.

The days fun concluded with dancing.

BURGLARS BLED WHILE AFTER BOOTY

How Dr. Burnett Damaged a Midnight Visitor.

Burglars attempted to affect an entrance into the residence of Dr. J. B. Burnett, of Central avenue, Monday night. They were not only unsuccessful, but failed to escape without injury, for at least one of them, from one of the traps which the wife awaks doctor keeps in the least-to-be-expected places for just that class of thieves. From the bloodstains it was evident the burglars got more than they bargained for, and were compelled to leave without affecting an entrance, although the glass in the door was cut out by them, and showed them to be no novice at the business.

Dr. Burnett keeps a watch-dog, but on the evening in question the animal happened to be imprisoned in a room where he could not hear the burglars at work, and hence gave no alarm. Otherwise there might have been a dead burglar or two to be buried in the morning.

—Mr. P. T. B. Nevius has an advertisement in another column relating to crushed stone. He is prepared to furnish it in a satisfactory manner both in quality and price.

Sealed proposals, accompanied with plans and specifications, will be received by a committee of the Board of Chosen Freeholders of the county of Somerset, at 2:30 o'clock p. m., on Tuesday, September 3th, 1889, at the hotel of Joseph Blatz, in the Borough of North Plainfield, for the erection of a bridge over Stony Brook; length of bridge, one span of fifty feet between the faces of abutment walls; the bridge to be on right angles to line of bridge; roadway eighteen feet in the clear; one sidewalk five feet wide; planking to be 3-inch Georgia pine, free from sap or knots. The structure to sustain eighty pounds per superficial foot on total area, besides weight of bridge with a factor-safety of four.

At the same time and place will be received by the same committee, proposals for the construction of said bridge. Specifications for same can be seen and examined on the day of sale.

Also at the same time and place proposals will be received for the masonry for an A frame bridge near Four Shade.

The committee reserve the right to reject any and all proposals, for either of the above.

By order of the committee,

WM. E. JONES, Chairman.

The Use of Tobacco.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE NEWS:—There is probably no city or town in America where the habit of using tobacco in some form, is increasing more largely than in Plainfield. And while we speak of Plainfield, we need not omit the majority of our eastern towns. There is more smoking in our eastern cities than in the southern or western, according to our observation. There may be various causes for this. There is much more idleness with the rising generation in the east than in the west, more sporting and games that call men and boys together. It has become a social habit, and tobacco is common stock to those who use it. To treat to cigars or cigarettes is considered manly among our young or old. To bet the cigars on any game, or guessing as to a fact has become common. Men and boys will sit hours over games of chess, cards, checkers and the like, and think they are playing the gentleman. They will do it on cars, steamboats, in drawing-rooms, reading-rooms, clubrooms and other social gatherings, to the detriment of themselves and great unpleasantness of all that chance to be in their company, who do not use it. It has become one of the greatest curses of our land. In common, that it is rolled as a sweet morsel underneath every man and boys' tongue. Nearly every business place, hotel, steam-boat or the cars are provided with a supply as the hotel, saloon, etc., is with the variety of strong drinks. Of these two evils upon the human system doubtless the tobacco is the more poisonous, and possibly as many suffer and die from it as there does from rum: but they do not know it. A man may become so pickled through and through that his breath may become poisonous to his own household, to wife and children, and he or they not know it. I can bring to mind several families in our own beautiful city that have been poisoned in this way. Women, delicate in health, have paled, and their children become puny and sickly, and die with an early grave from this cause, while the doctors dare not tell them so lest they may lose practice, or expose themselves, for the same use of it. Men do not condemn common evils, it makes no difference how great, if the masses are engaged in it, or if they are popular in common use; while at the same time they would reproach a boy or man for vulgarity, or some trifling thing.

A man's standing in church or society may be good in common, while his real inward man and moral standing may be dead and destruction to the whole human family that he comes in contact with. How easy it is for a man to be deceived in himself. He may think himself a man when he is in reality nothing but a whisky pickle, or a poisonous substance. Many a one is living a lifeless to-day that does not seem to know what is the matter with him. He may say that he drinks nothing, but to live without tobacco is impossible; as his craving is such that he must have it It is the same with him as with the rumdrinker, it has become chronic. The child may inherit the same habit. What an example to set, to be handed down perhaps to the third and fourth generations. This habit of the use of tobacco was introduced by Nicot in France in 1560. Thus the oil of nicotine from tobacco took its name as a poison. All the rattle snakes in the world since that day have not poisoned as many men, and caused and many deaths, yet it is sold and used as freely as any necessary article of food for the building up of the human system without stint or hindrance. The church and the world alike partake, and set the example to the rising generation. They visit the smoking-rooms and promenade our streets alike. The children from eight to eighteen can be seen with cigarettes or cigars following the example, which leads to death, and yet no public warning is given. "These things ought not so to be."

Learn a Trade.

A good trade is something which bank failures or commercial panics do not destroy.

It is a passport to all countries and climes.

Something which can be carried in our heads and hands.

A demand note which passes current everywhere.

The one thing that cannot be learned in an academy or college.

A strong crutch on which to lean.

The friend of our youth who will not desert us in our old age or affliction.

The only language understood by the people of all races and climes.

Beyond the possibility of decline at any time—years enhance its value.

The only property which cannot be mortgaged or sold.

It is a calling which can be declined or taken up at pleasure.

Something about which neither friends nor kindred can quarrel.

Long Evenings in the Country.

The union game is the latest fad in rural society, and it will doubtless interest city people who enjoy introducing unique features at their social entertainments. The onion game is not intricate or hard to learn. Six young ladies stand in a row. The hostess gives a "silver skinned" onion to the head or the—row, who passes it along the line. Some one takes a bite, and the young men who have been rigidly excluded from the drawing-room and imprisoned somewhere in the vicinity of the front hall hat rack, are called upon to guess who bit the onion. The young man who guesses correctly is allowed to kiss the fair biter of the tender vegetable. The game is in one respect a hard ordeal to young men who are good guessers, but the country papers report its "unqualified success."—Bridgeton Pioneer.

It seems as though the age of aluminum is almost here. By a process known in Europe the cost of it has been brought down to a dollar a pound. One of the greatest obstacles in the way is the difficulty of getting it in a pure state.

A New Religious Order.

About two years ago two strangers came to the St. Charles hotel in Morrisville. They were very quiet in their movements as to excite suspicion. They were arrested, but nothing could be found against them, and they were set free. Whence they came, however, or what their antecedents were is not known to this day. Being questioned they always answered: "We seek no aid from anybody; we only desire to do good by our own methods. All we ask of the public is to be let alone."

The two strangers had money to pay their way. They bought a large lot at the corner of Pagnie street and Grand Clay avenue, and built a roomy house upon it. In this house they established a foundling asylum. The sign "Infants' Home" appears over the gate. No contributions were asked from the public.

But the public was interested in them, and desired information about them. Nothing wrong could be found; on the contrary, all that they did and said seemed good. At last it was discovered that the two strangers were the heralds of a new religion. Currently, as one looked at it. They called their organization the Kosmon church. The two founders never gave their names. Names, they say, are of no consequence; works are everything. They welcome those who come to them, but do not go out of their way to find followers.

The head of the order is a large, strong man of strikingly attractive personal appearance—a man whom people would turn to look at in a crowd. He is an enthusiast who believes the time has come to found a new religious organization, one that shall begin all over again. Adherents of the Kosmon church are not allowed to eat flesh, use tobacco or drink anything containing alcohol. Flesh eaters are quarrelsome, and the new kingdom is the kingdom of peace. Divorce is not permitted under any circumstances. All profits and all property are shared in common. Who joins the new order must cease as the young man in the New Testament was commanded to come, giving up all his worldly possessions. All are on an equal footing, men and women alike. They go back to first principles and declare their faith that God will provide for all who serve him unfalteringly, and that there is no need of fretting or worrying about the future. Students are taken to receive instruction in the tenets of the Kosmon faith. Members of the order have it to provide for them in this world, working for its advancement as they are directed. At last, in answer to many inquiries, the distinguished looking founder issued a circular, from which follows an extract:

Friends inquiring about the Kosmon church, as to what it is and who are its founders, etc., are respectfully informed that it is not founded by any man, nor clique, nor sect of people, but is the progeniture of many advanced thinkers interested in human development. For which reason no names are published, as no one can say this man or that man is the founder of the Kosmon church. The Kosmon church embraces all that is good in Brahmanism, Buddhism, Christianity, Mahometanism, Confucianism, and all worthy and impressiveness in rites and ceremonies the Kosmon church annuls all other churches that now are existing on the earth, and hence it is the original, grand, sublime and instructive in all religions, ancient and modern. The Kosmon church is in religion to be learned and who what the Kindergarten is intellectually to the child. Its whole method is instructive, without lectures and argumentation, and the whole service is congregational.

Stand Up.

A wise physician has lately called attention to the injurious effects of too much sitting. The American people are notoriously a nation of sitters. The result is that the lower limbs grow weak and spindling, while the body gives down and doubles up and grows at once thick and flabby. The internal organs are cramped and weakened. The stomach becomes dyspeptic, the kidneys debilitated and diseased.

These unfortunate people could stand or walk about at their work twice as much as they do. Then the chest would expand and the trunk grow erect, slim and graceful, particularly if attention was paid to deep breathing. Admiral Porter, 75 years old, engaged constantly in literary work, always stands up at his desk to write. He is a splendid specimen of health and vigor. Stand up to read and write, at least part of the time.

About the beginning of the Christian era an Egyptian coloring substance, known as the Alexandria blue, was in use in Italy and elsewhere for wall decorations. It was a magnificent, brilliant, deep sky blue crystaline pigment. The specimens showed pale rose color when looked at edgewise. The Alexandrian blue was, however, lost in the middle ages, greatly to the regret of modern chemists and artists. Professor Fougne, of the French Academy of Sciences, announces that he has rediscovered the art of making the pigment and will give the knowledge to any Frenchman who will manufacture it. The main ingredients are silica, oxide of copper and lime.

HOW THEY TOOK HIM IN.

Another Interesting Chapter in the Hamilton Scandal.

MRS. HAMILTON'S GREAT SCHEME.

Before the Name was Given Her by Law She Introduced a Variety of Children to Induce Marriage—Mrs. Swinton Confesses Her Part in the Deception.

NEW YORK, Sept. 4.—Another chapter in the Hamilton-Donnelly tragic scandal at Atlantic City was laid bare by the aid of Chief Inspector Byrnes. While Mrs. Hamilton, alias Evangeline Steele, etc., is languishing in her comfortably furnished cell at May's Landing her co-conspirators, Mother F. J. Swinton and "Deity" Josiah Mann, are plying behind the iron bars of separate cells at police headquarters in this city. They were both arrested Monday at No. 325 West Twenty-ninth street.

It has been claimed that prior to the alleged marriage of Hamilton to Mrs. Swinton the latter had become a mother in Elmira. The child was said to have been born Dec. 17, 1888. About that time Eva lived at Elmira, both at a hotel and a boarding house, with Mann as husband and wife. That the woman was sick there at various times is attested to by Dr. Barnard Marsh, a physician of twenty-nine years' standing in the place, but he positively denies that she was ever the mother of a child.

Mr. Hamilton Learns the Secret.

All these facts and others were learned there and telegraphed to New York by Detective McNaught, of Byrne's staff, and the latter lost no time in apprising Mr. Hamilton of what had been gleaned. Mr. Hamilton came on from Atlantic City Friday night and met Swinton up at the residence of Charles A. Peabody, No. 15 Park avenue. When he had heard all the facts Hamilton said: "The woman is my wife and as such I shall protect her, but if conspiracy was resorted to and a spurious child palmed off on me, then I am as anxious as any one to hunt down the conspirators and have justice meted out to them."

The same night, and, in fact, the same train that brought Mr. Hamilton to this city bore to it also Mother Swinton and her son Joshua, who registered at the St. Charles hotel, at Broadway and Bleecker street, as "Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Brown," and occupied the same room. Detective Sergeant Dan Crowley went to arrest the pair at the St. Charles Sunday night, but they had gone during the afternoon. At noon Monday she came back, remained at the house a few minutes and left, being followed by the detectives. She went direct to No. 325 West Twenty-ninth street, where both she and Mann were stopping, and she was then arrested and taken to police headquarters.

Mrs. Swinton Confesses.

Joshua did not make his appearance until 5 o'clock in the afternoon. He was bound to drink and was at once taken into custody by Detective Hickey. Through the usual methods adopted by the inspector he succeeded in unraveling the tale of the birth of little Joshua and myself will be back about that time."

"What do you want it for?" asked Mrs. Swinton.

"Oh, there is a friend of Ray's' meaning Mr. Hamilton's son, who has got a lady into trouble, and when the child is born I want to take it on Ray's account and place it away until such time as I can use it."

Eva came to Elmira on Christmas day and went to Mrs. Swinton's home at Fourth avenue and Thirty-fourth street, coming to the house at 9 o'clock in the morning.

"Have you got those baby clothes?" was her first question.

"Yes, everything except a cloak and cap," replied Mrs. Swinton.

"Well, let's go and get them," said together they went to the Bowery, only stores on that thoroughfare being open on that day. They finally found a shop up in several flights of stairs, and Eva said, "You go back home and I'll go get the baby."

Brought the Baby with Her.

She returned in about three hours, being in a car or 2 days old baby with her, wrapped up in a rough, green striped shawl. The same day Mrs. Swinton secured board at No. 105 East Twenty-eighth street for "Mr. and Mrs. Mann and child," and that night Eva, Joshua and the baby came and stayed one week as "Mr. and Mrs. Mann."

There she hired a room and furnished at No. 208 East Fourteenth street, and the trio went there to live. A week later the baby was taken sick, and, though Dr. Kemp, of No. 297 West Twenty-third street, was called in, it died a few days later. This child was named "Alice Mann" and was 14 days old, and died from the want of mother's milk. The death certificate gave the parents' names as George and Alice Mann.

Another Child Produced.

So anxious was Eva to have a girl that while the baby of the infant still in the house unburied she and Mrs. Swinton started out on the hunt, and before long returned with another baby they had bought from a midwife. The baby was 10 days old. At the expiration of the second day it also sickened, and Eva said to Mrs. Swinton: "We must send for a doctor or the child will die, but we want it cured for the same doctor, as it would look suspicious."

Dr. Gilbert, of No. 407 West Twenty-third street, was summoned by Mrs. Swinton, who said the baby was that of a friend of hers at East Thirty-first street, where it also died Jan. 14, aged 28 days. This child was called Ethel Parsons. On the death certificate its parents' names were given as Walter and Lydia Parsons, and its death was recorded as occurring from the same cause as the other.

Eva Didn't Like This One.

While the baby of the dead child still lay in the house Eva went out and got another baby from a midwife, and laid it down in the same room with the corpse. This waif was of German parentage, dark complexioned and black eyed.

"I can't love this baby," exclaimed Eva. "I couldn't kiss it and I hate it," as she turned the little head from side to side like so much merchandise.

So the next day, after the second baby had been buried, the women brought the dark complexioned babe to the needle, locked the door and went skirmishing for something "Eva could love and kiss."

One Eva Could Love.

In this they succeeded by paying $10 for a pretty little baby, this being the one that was palmed off on Mr. Hamilton as his own offspring.

All this was done to make Hamilton believe he was the father of that child supposed to have been born in Elmira, and with it to induce him to marry Eva. He had seen the first child that died, out not No. 2 or 3, and when No. 4 was a few days older he was again given a chance to see that and made to believe it was the same one. In this he was relectant until Eva burst into tears and passionately cried: "It is my child—your child—and it has no name. Why don't you marry me?"

Hamilton, thinking he was really the father of the child and that the woman was honest and true to him, felt that it was his duty as a man to make the matter legal, for the sake of his child, and they were married in a church at Paterson, N. J., Jan. 7, 1889, Edward Dryden, an insurance broker on Broadway, and Mrs. Swinton's brother being the witnesses.

Mrs. Swinton said that during the illness of the first child she told Eva she must try and save its life, as a fortune of $100,000 for the mother depended on it. She also said that Eva afterward asked Hamilton to take up and care for the baby to make him think he was the father. All that time and for four years prior, as well as after Eva's marriage to Hamilton, Mrs. Swinton said she believed Eva was married to Mann secretly.

How She Provided for "Josh."

In March, 1889, Eva gave Joshua $2,000, which had been drawn out of the Union Dime Savings bank, and next day she deposited there $1,000 more. On April 15 following Joshua drew out the money, and Eva, hearing of it, became angry, went to the bank, and declared the money must be paid back to her. Joshua, fearing her husband, was demented and had run away.

Just before going to Elmira, Eva gave Joshua $500. When she returned from there Swinton, after Hamilton had married her, how she had imposed on him, and that the child found was resorted to because by will all the family property, amounting to many thousands, belonging to Hamilton's mother, would go the benefit of his wife, and when she got the jewels she would have plenty of money and would not need Hamilton. For the past two or three years Joshua and Eva have been living at various places as man and wife, and during that time she has given him over $4,000.

Mann said briefly that he first met Eva several years ago in a house of ill repute on Thirty-first street and from there they went to Boston, Eva returning to the stand-by life. He knew right along of the deception that had been practiced upon Hamilton.

The prisoners were consigned to the Tombs police court yesterday and were remanded.

Eva Is Left Alone.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Sept. 4.—Robert Ray Hamilton has apparently abandoned his alleged wife. He has had no communication with her since Wednesday last, and she has not been seen up to the present time at the Ocean. The authority for this is Mrs. Rupp, who visited the jail at 3 o'clock, carrying with her Mrs. Hamilton's babe. Little Beatrice was dressed most extravagantly. Indeed, her appearance attracted very general attention from every person in the train. On each of her tiny arms was clasped a bracelet of Etruscan gold, and the center of each golden band blazed a solitaire diamond. On the middle finger of the right hand the baby wore a gold ring. Around her neck hung a bracelet by a finely wrought gold chain of delicate workmanship. Her dress was made of the finest white silk.

HE PLUNGED AND LOST.

Murgrave & Co. Fail on $300,000 and Wall Street Is Surprised.

NEW YORK, Sept. 4.—The members of the Stock Exchange were surprised yesterday afternoon at hearing that the old and well known firm of Murgrave & Co. had failed. T. B. Musgrave, the head of the house, has been a member of the exchange since 1869. Away back when Henry Keep was one of the leaders of the street and startled the community with his bold operations in Northwest T. B. Musgrave was on deck and a prominent figure in all the big deals. Indeed, he was one of the principal operators for Mr. Keep and carried large blocks of stock for him in his transactions.

The house of Murgrave & Co. has twice proved to be an unfortunate one. That was the Northern Pacific deal, engineered by Henry Villard, all of the movers in which came to grief, and the other was the Grand Crashes Wall street has ever witnessed. From the time of that collapse until his failure Mr. Musgrave has not figured so extensively in financial circles as he did.

Nothing definite about the failure could be learned at the office. Mr. Musgrave could not be seen, and the clerks declared that there was nothing to give to the public and that it would be impossible to tell how they stood until after the books had been straightened out. Considering the high standing this man would not express any opinion, but the street had the amount all the way from $100,000 to about $500,000, the generally accepted figure being about $300,000.

Within the past three or four months Mr. Musgrave has been plunging and the order most substantial privilege brokers such as Russell & Co., Price, Eyre & Co., Lyon, Kennedy, and even W. S. Williams, suffered severely by reason of this lively and unexpected competition. Musgrave's brokers sold the privileges at such figures that the older men in the business could not attempt to compete. All sold, privileges representing about 5,000 shares are out with Musgrave's name on them.

T. B. Musgrave at one time was reckoned to be worth $500,000. Originally he was a dry goods merchant at Park place and Church street. He lived in Fifth avenue, near Forty-fifth street.

Candidate Campbell Serenaded.

COLUMBUS, O., Sept. 4.—The Democratic state executive committee met here yesterday and organized, with Hon. James Neal, of Hamilton, as chairman, and John A. Sarber, of this city, as treasurer. At 8 o'clock in the evening the various Democratic clubs assembled at the Neil House, Campbell, the candidate for governor. A ratification meeting was held at the city hall, with Hon. Lawrence T. Neal, of Chillicothe, as president, who introduced Hon. Allen W. Campbell, Hon. Allen W. Thurman, Hon. George L. Converse, Hon. J. A. Norton and others.

A Famous Case Called in Brooklyn.

BROOKLYN, Sept. 4.—Judge Bartlett, of Kings county supreme court, heard arguments on a motion of counsel for Bishop Stephen Vincent Ryan, of Buffalo, to compel Rev. Father Francis Dent, who suspended priest, to furnish a bill of particulars in the suit he has brought against the bishop for slander.

The Water Ways Convention.

CINCINNATI, O., Sept. 4.—This morning all the delegates to the Water Ways convention met in the Chamber of Commerce and proceeded to the Scottish Rite cathedral, where the convention is being held. Hon. B. D. Tracy, of Tioga, Pa., chairman of the executive committee, called the convention to order.

Connecticut Odd Fellows Celebrate.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Sept. 4.—Yesterday, the fiftieth anniversary of Odd Fellowship in this state, was celebrated by the Grand Lodge of Connecticut with a parade and banquet. About 5,000 men were in the procession, visitors coming from various cities throughout the state.

SOCIALIST BURNS' POWER

He Has Absolute Control of London's Idle Thousands.

HIS AUTHORITY IS UNDISPUTED.

A Proposition to Load and Unload at Southampton at the Full Price Demanded by the Strikers Is Rejected for Reasons Satisfactory to Burns.

LONDON, Sept. 4.—John Burns, the leader of the London strikers, has made himself as completely the master of the lives and fortunes of the men as any eastern despot over his subjects. For some days past the most unruly of his hungry followers were disposed to rebel against his pronounced purpose to preserve order at all hazards, and these, growing more numerous as food became scarcer, were a constant menace to his authority. This source of danger is now largely reduced, Burns having succeeded in procuring sufficient funds to supply his relief depots fairly well, and as he keeps a sharp lookout on the purse strings and peremptorily forbids any relief being given to such as question his authority he is now everywhere implicitly obeyed.

Burns Rejects the Proposal.

After the proposal of the shippers and vessel owners to engage their own help had been rejected by the dock managers the former applied to the strikers' committee to permit the open to load and unload at Southampton such vessels as could be sent there from London, offering to carry the men out and back and to pay them the sixpence per hour which they claim as wages.

This proposition was rejected. He says that if once the pressure upon commerce which the strike has brought about at so many of the ports of the country is relaxing the concessions which the men demand, then it is good-by to all hopes for the success of the strike. He will not only prevent the London dock laborers from going to Southampton, but if the shippers should attempt to send vessels to that point to be loaded and discharged by them they will follow the ships and organize a strike in Southampton.

The Strikers' Position Improved.

The refusal of the dock companies to permit the vessel owners to make such terms with the laborers as they see fit for unloading their own ships, very materially improves the strikers' position, as it places the entire responsibility for the existing trade deadlock upon the shoulders of the dock managers. This intensifies the feeling in the commercial community against them, and as a result sympathy for the strikers grows stronger and contributions flow unceasingly into their coffers.

The belief is gaining ground that the great strike will be settled no later than Thursday, when the directors of the dock companies are expected to concede the strikers' demands. Charles Norwood, the chairman of the directors, late last evening sent a telegram to the strikers' committee requesting an appointment for a conference. This will probably be followed by an agreement between the companies and the strikers.

Switzerland Is Sorry.

BERNE, Sept. 4.—The representations to the Swiss authorities made by Mr. Washburn, the United States minister, against the recent arrest and detention of two Americans by Swiss officials on a charge for which there was no warrant, have been made in the most manly fashion. The Bundesrath announces its regret at the illegal arrests and adds that measures will be taken to effectually prevent the repetition of such an occurrence.

Threatened with Inundation.

VIENNA, Sept. 4.—The city of Szegedin, which suffered so greatly by the disastrous flood of 1879, is threatened with another inundation. It is reported that the protective quays built immediately after the flood of that year, when the town was destroyed, are now crumbling. Floods are reported from all portions of the mountain districts about Szegedin and many lives have been lost.

Dr. O'Brien Critically Ill.

DUBLIN, Sept. 4.—The Galway prison officials, from whom the request to be relieved, have telegraphed to the prison board that their prisoner is critically ill. Mr. O'Brien, on arriving at the Galway jail, requested the attendance of his own physician. This was refused and the prison doctor was given charge of his case.

Says Parnell Will Not Support It.

LONDON, Sept. 4.—The Freeman's Journal, which claims to have thoroughly informed itself as to the position of the Irish party on the proposed Catholic university schemes, predicts that when that measure is actually brought into the house at the next session Parnell will not be found among its supporters.

Jewish Schoolmasters Inhibited.

ODESSA, Sept. 4.—The Jewish schoolmasters of Odessa have been forbidden to continue teaching. The Jews here are greatly excited, and the Jewish committee of the most influential and wealthy of their number to St. Petersburg to intercede with the czar for the removal of the inhibition.

The Maybrick Children Adopted.

LONDON, Sept. 4.—The children of Mrs. Maybrick have been adopted by a wealthy couple residing in London, the consent of Mrs. Maybrick and that of the relatives of her husband having been obtained. The children will assume the name of the foster parents.

Socialist Documents Seized.

HAMBURG, Sept. 4.—The leading Socialists of this city were favored by visits at their residences by the police, who carried off all the documents believed to be of importance, missing literature they could lay their hands on. The seizures were not accompanied by arrests.

Gladstone's Reception in Paris.

PARIS, Sept. 4.—Mr. Gladstone was received on his arrival here yesterday by a numerous delegation of his admirers. Many brought bouquets and presented them to the aged statesman.

Ireland's New Lord Lieutenant.

LONDON, Sept. 4.—The Earl of Zetland, the new lord lieutenant of Ireland, will be sworn in on the first of next month. His state entry into Dublin will take place Dec. 3d.

Six Killed by an Explosion.

LONDON, Sept. 4.—A boiler explosion at a mill in Munster, in Westphalia, killed the owner, his wife, his mother and his foreman besides two employes.

Fifteen Hundred Out of Work.

NORTH ADAMS, Mass., Sept. 4.—All the shoe factories in town are closed except H. T. Cady's, and 1,500 men are out of work. The settlement of the wage question does not seem near.

The Hartford Bicycle Races.

HARTFORD, Sept. 4.—About 2,000 people attended the bicycle races yesterday. Heubs lowered the one mile safety record from 2:46 to 2:34½, and Rowe and Rich made the tandem record of 2:39 for one mile, their time being 2:37. G. M. Hendee, of Newton, Mass., won the one mile handicap in 2:41½. Another handicap for one mile safety was won by G. M. Worden, of the Manhattan Athletic club, who given 200 yards start. Frank Weber, of the Hartford Light Infantry, won the five mile safety championship. The three mile C. A. U. championship was again declared off, the contestants failing to cover the distance within the limit of 9:15.

The Nagle Case.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 4.—The Terry case progressings in the case of Deputy Marshal Nagle were begun yesterday. Testimony was taken showing that Terry had threatened to kill Justice Field. It was also testified that Terry had said he had friends and persons, and had threatened harm to Judge Sawyer as well as to Judge Field, and that Terry had told Marshal Frank that he would get even with Field if he (Frank) injured him. The facts of an assault upon Judge Sawyer in a railroad car a year ago by Mrs. Terry were also given. The woman pulled the judge's hair, while Terry sat opposite, ready to take action if Sawyer should resent the insult. It was shown that Terry had posted all absent witnesses. A newspaper reporter testified that Mrs. Terry once told him she would probably kill Judge Field some day.

The Army of West Virginia.

COLUMBUS, O., Sept. 4.—The Society of the Army of West Virginia held its annual here today and will continue to-morrow. Gen. W. H. Powell, Gen. Eugene Powell, Gen. B. F. Kelley, Gen. E. B. Enochs, Gen. E. B. Tyler and others.

Both Duelists Are Dead.

SALT LAKE CITY, Sept. 4.—Malad City, just over the Idaho border, has been thrown into excitement by a duel. Ried Brown's young men, Abraham Likes and Jude Spring, of Clark's Flat. They came here last spring and went into partnership ranching. Both fell in love with Miss Emma Hamilton Traute. Unable to reach an amicable arrangement, they resorted to the brook side with six shooters, and there settled the matter by fighting a duel. Both men were buried where they fell, side by side. What has become of the girl does not appear.

For a National Bankrupt Law.

MINNEAPOLIS, Sept. 4.—The representatives of the commercial bodies of the United States to formulate a national bankrupt law assembled here today. Between two and three hundred delegates were present. The meeting was called to order by President Torrey, of St. Louis, and the members to order and appointed committees on credentials and permanent officers. A large number of the leading jurists of the country are represented.

In 1875 he was chosen president of the Cincinnati Wesleyan college, and from that institution went west and took charge of the Denver university.

Nature Extinguishes the Forest Fires.

HELENA, Mon., Sept. 4.—Rain in the valleys and snow in the mountains have extinguished the fires that have been raging for the past month. The damage to timber has been quite severe, but not so heavy as anticipated.

Iron Workers' Wages Advanced.

SHARON, Pa., Sept. 4.—The wages of the employes of the Sharon Iron company have been raised 10 per cent. This is regarded by the men as a forerunner of a general advance in the wages of the 2,000 Shenango Valley furnacemen.

TRYING TO GET A JURY.

The Wheels of Justice Move Slow in the Cronin Trial.

ONLY FOUR JURORS IN THE BOX.

All of Them Are Americans from Away Back, but Two of Them May be Dismissed—Lathrop Did Not Answer the Clan-na-Gael Question Satisfactorily.

CHICAGO, Sept. 4.—The only progress made yesterday in selecting a jury to try the five men now on trial for the murder of Dr. Cronin was the loss of eleven more peremptory challenges, and the admission of a revised list of stereotyped questions to be asked of talesmen by the defense. Of the eleven peremptory challenges the defense used up nine, making thirteen for them altogether, with eighty-seven more at their disposal. The defense found it expedient to peremptorily challenge two jurors. Twenty-seven jurors were excused for cause. When court adjourned the state was about to begin the four promising looking jurors to the defense. Two of them had already been passed up by the attorneys for the prisoners. One, and perhaps two, of this quartet, may be accepted by both sides.

The most promising one of the four is a clean-cut business man, Freeman Grass, a manufacturer of war panoramas. The other juror who may be accepted is T. P. Kellogg, a well-to-do farmer from Arlington Heights, who wears a flannel shirt and the emblems of three great secret societies. The other two who were locked up for the night with Grass and Kellogg are Thomas Bowles and William P. Turner. It is possible, however, that these two men will be set free.

All Are Americans.

All four are Americans from away back, and have never formed an opinion as to the guilt or innocence of the accused. The crowd in the court room in the morning was larger than at any time during the trial, and when it was permitted to enter the inside of the railing. The prisoners paid little attention to the legal sparring over the admission of the six questions and the twenty-two subtleties of the eleven submitted by the defense. The six questions which the court ruled as admissible are these:

The Admissible Questions.

"Have you formed any opinion as to whether or not the alleged murder of Dr. Cronin was in pursuance of the action or failing of a secret committee, or its officers or any of them, to try said Cronin for any supposed offense?

"Have you formed any opinion as to whether or not Dr. Cronin was killed in the Carlson cottage?

"Have you formed an opinion as to whether that tenant or tenants of the Carlson cottage had anything to do with said murder?

"Have you formed an opinion as to whether Dr. Cronin was taken to the Carlson cottage by the horse and buggy engaged by Daniel Coughlin of Dalton & Coughlin's stable?

"Have you formed an opinion as to whether or not Martin Burke, one of the defendants, was the tenant of the Carlson cottage?

"Have you formed an opinion as to whether or not Martin Burke, one of the defendants, was the tenant of the Carlson cottage?

Only the killing of Cronin, and that the so called Clan-na-Gael society is in any way to blame for the death of Dr. Cronin?"

Lathrop Has an Opinion.

The state offered no objection to these questions, but Attorney Longenecker was disposed to be conservative in order to escape errors. This set of questions was probably responsible for the overthrow of young Lathrop, who made a bad and unfavorable impression for two days. When the questions of conspiracy and the culpability of the Clan-na-Gael were dwelt at the keen looking juror he answered that he had formed an opinion on these points in the case. But an hour later he together with Lillibridge, who had been kept locked up for two days, was peremptorily challenged for the defense.

Only Three Postage Stamps Left.

CRESTON, Ia., Sept. 4.—The private bank of L. S. Brooks at Lennox has been closed by the sheriff, owing its depositors from $25,000 to $30,000. For some weeks the rumors of its unsound condition have been current, but the proprietor and his cashier have constantly denied these reports, and, it is stated, received $15,000 from Mr. Brooks's cousin, since which time the doors have not been opened. Writs of attachment were sent out by Ridgeway & Worth, creditors of the bank, and the sheriff found but three postage stamps in the safe. The town is excited over the event, as many of the depositors are poor people or tradesmen who will lose their deposits and continue their business.

Plundered by Robbers.

TROY, N. Y., Sept. 4.—News has been received that on Friday, while Mrs. Ralph Brainards and her children were passing over the road from the west end of Saratoga lake to their summer home in Hamilton county, the party encountered robbers, who broke through the trunks and destroyed what they did not want. Diamonds, jewelry and other articles amounting to $2,000 were stolen. The jewelry had been unintentionally left in a trunk. The thieves escaped.

New York's Board of Equalization.

ALBANY, Sept. 4.—The state board of equalization met in the comptroller's office yesterday afternoon. Lieutenant Governor Jones, the state officers and three assessors were present. The latter presented a county schedule of assessments, and arguments were made by representatives of Greene and Genesee counties and Assessor Weaver, of this city. The matter of equalization was then considered in executive session.

A Supposed Johnstown Victim.

WHEELING, W. Va., Sept. 4.—The body of a man supposed to be that of a Johnstown victim from the length of time it had evidently been in the water, was found in the river west of the 16and, last evening, partly imbedded in the sand. Identification was impossible, but the body was apparently, judging by the clothing, that of an iron worker in his working garb.

Liquor Dealers in Session.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Sept. 4.—Many delegates arrived in the city to attend the convention of the New York State Wine, Liquor and Beer Dealers' association. The various committees were in secret session preparing the work of the convention, which opened at 10 a. m. today. The delegates will parade on Thursday evening.

Stationary Engineers Convene.

DETROIT, Mich., Sept. 4.—The National Association of Stationary Engineers opened their annual convention here. About 100 stationary engineers, representing nearly every state in the union, are present. The association has assemblies all through the United States, and has a membership of about 12,000.

A Gold Mine Sold.

HALIFAX, N. S., Sept. 4.—The Northrup gold mine, at Rawdon, has been sold to an American syndicate. The price paid is said to be $100,000.

MEXICAN DISASTERS.

Landslides and Floods Cause Much Damage to Life and Property.

CITY OF MEXICO, Sept. 4.—Further particulars of the destructive landslide at Ixmiquilan, Hidalgo, have been received from that remote locality. For a week previous to Aug. 25 rain had been falling incessantly, and on Sunday night it culminated in a cloud burst, which caused streams to overflow their banks and loosened the earth on the mountain in the rear of the iron works of Mr. Alfred de Bohl.

At midnight a large landslide occurred, bringing down with it the huts of the laborers who had built on the side, and covered many others with their débris. Hundreds of laborers employed in the works commenced to hunt for the unfortunate creatures caught in the slide. They managed to take out several alive, but a woman, her daughter and an infant were not found until several days after.

At 9 o'clock the same night another slide, fifty times as large as the first, rushed down over the settlement, breaking down walls, filling doorways, covering gardens, crushing huts and depositing immense rocks, which the moonlight revealed. The fresh slide caused great terror to the miners and workers in the mills, who sought safety in flight. Nearly all of the huts, hundreds in number, were swept away from the valley and piled up one above the other. Houses at the base of the mountain were crushed, walls swept away and the devastation was generally most complete. Search parties were at once formed, searching was carried on in the slide and five bodies were taken out. It is believed that many others were buried in the ruins.

Floods in the sides of the Sierra Madre and Vera Cruz are causing much damage. The prices of food are rising all over owing to the heavy rains. Washouts have delayed travel on the Mexican Central railway. It is raining heavily all over the country. Serious floods also prevail in Tampico and in the surrounding districts. The water is higher than during the floods last year. Many families up the river have taken refuge on the high ground, their houses being flooded. Telegraphic communication is generally interrupted.

Brown Is Not in Boston.

BOSTON, Sept. 4.—Ex-Judge John Lowell, the acting counsel of Mrs. Gideon P. Brown, and who will represent her husband's interests at the coroner's inquest into the remains of the defunct firm of Brown, Steese & Clark, was seen by his office relative to the alleged presence in Boston of the missing wool merchant. Mr. Lowell said: "I cannot say that I know positively Mr. Brown is not in Boston, but I do know that he is not in Boston and has not been seen since his departure from this city, Aug. 6. I am satisfied that today Mr. Brown is neither in the state of Massachusetts nor the United States, and I am pretty certain that he will not return until a more complete understanding of the case is reached than at present exists." Information said to be reliable comes to Mr. Brown in Montreal.

Didn't Need the Military.

JACKSON, Miss., Sept. 4.—The Capital City Guards have returned from Leflore county, where they went at the request of Sheriff Minter City at the report of trouble from the negroes and dispersed the armed blacks before the guards arrived there. Reports say that 500 negroes were under arms. Some persons claimed to have seen a number of dead bodies, while others only knew of one negro having been killed, and that accidentally. Forty negroes were captured by the guards and turned over to the sheriff. The guards then left. The sheriff said he did not need them further. They were hopeful of effecting a peace between the negro leaders and law is handed.

THE LADY LOBSTER AND THE SHARK

The Lady Lobster loved the Shark
That swam in the dark blue sea,
But she had to keep it so dreadfully dark
That her lover was a hankering, cankering cark,
For the Shark didn't care for she.

The Lady Lobster languid lay
In the rocker's deepest gloom,
And she sighed, for she felt herself pining away
In her young unwedded glad heyday
And the Sigh of her sighs was Boom.

Her smell was large and beautiful thin,
And her eyes were a beautiful pink,
And her claws were an exquisite lavender tan,
And of animals she'd shining two—
Be commonplace charms, I think.

The Eels and the Dogfish sued in vain
And the Jellyfish worshiped afar
And the Sturgeon wood her again and again,
And the Bass and the Tomcod swelled her train,
And she was the dream of a Star

But the Lady Lobster in her lagoon—
She sighed for her darling Shark
By light of sun, and light of moon,
And from morn till eve, and from night till noon,
And from daylight until dark

One day a venturesome skipper came
A sailing along the sea,
And he thirsted for great piscatorial fame,
So he baited a hook for the very big game,
And he heaved it mervine

The Shark was tasting a lazy swim
That shroud seemed day
When the Lady Lobster remarked to him,
As she wagged her lavender claw so slim
In her own ladylobsterlike way

"A constitutional, I suppose—
Do you keep your old relish for food?
I trust you are free from dyspeptic woes—
If a thing goes down do you find that it goes?
Is your appetite always good?"

The Shark he flopped his dorsal fin
And he smiled expansively,
"So long as my mouth can take it in,
From a chair to a bather's reluctant shin,
It's sure to be good," said he

Just then the skipper's alluring line
Came dangling down by his chin,
And the Shark proceeded to turn supine
(Although t'was a little too early to dine)
In order to gather it in

But the wasteful, quick, pink eye of love
In the Lady Lobster saw,
As the slender line swung down from above,
That the skipper's bait should dangerous prove
To her darling's dear old maw

In the flash of a fin she had made up her mind
How to meet the emergencies,
And her pink eyes closed (for love is blind),
And all her sinlessness she swiftly entwined
Lest they should tickle he

One glance of love she ventured to cast,
And she blushed a deeper hue;
And then an arm'ft as the claw of winter's blast
She sprang down that mouth so vast—
And upward the bubbles flew

Those jaws closed up with a cruel crunch,
And the hook swept harmless by;
And the Shark gave a gentle munch—
And he felt himself comforted by his lunch—
For Love and dared to die

She had won the right to be with him
At morn and noon and night;
And since she had made so free with him,
She'll try her best to agree with him,
And to keep his digestion right.

The Lady Lobster quite lies,
The Shark he swims the bay
Ye tassels, cease your wailing cries,
Ye Mermaids try your streaming eyes!
Love will find out a way.
Sweet heart
Love will get them some day

Wm. C. Smith, mason and builder, in repairing the damage done to the arch of the race under the Stillman Music Hall, discovered the large hot-air furnace of Messrs. Carney Bros., which was lost in the ruins of Tuesday, July 30, after having fallen in the gulch in front of the store; it would seem almost impossible for such a large furnace to be carried such a distance but perhaps it had a clue that Dockstader was shivering from fright and thought it would take the chances of having Janitor Mattox fire it up and show the public what a powerful heater it was.

LIGHT AND AIRY.

A Description.

Her dimple cheeks are pale;
She's a lily of the vale,
Not a rose.
In a meadow or a lawn
She is fairer than the dawn,
To her beaux.

Her looks are thin and cool;
She is vain about her feet,
It is said.
She sustaines her r's,
But her eyes are like the stars
Overhead

On a balcony at night,
With a fleecy cloud of white
Round her hair,
Her grace, sir, who could paint?
She would fascinate a saint,
I declare.

—New York Telegram.

A Mean Trick.

Mr. Chugwater laying down the morning paper and shaking his head pensively)—How strangely that "thirteen" superstition keeps coming up! Something I have just read reminds me of a sight I saw yesterday. A gang of men were carrying large iron columns across the sidewalk. I had to wait till they got out of the way. I couldn't help thinking what a terrible accident might happen if any of them should stumble, and before I knew it I was counting them. There were exactly thirteen! Just as they got to the outer edge of the walk one of the men—

Mrs. Chugwater and the Children (breathlessly)—Yes!

Mr. Chugwater picking up his paper again)—Called out: "Let 'er go, boys!" and they dumped it on the ground without the slightest accident. You see you can't always—

Mrs. Chugwater and the Children disappointed and indignant)—Now that's real mean!—Chicago Times.

The National Flour.

Upon the hill the golden rod,
With royal grace in every nod,
Salutes the sun, as far away
He heralds forth the joyous day.

Dainty in form, with perfume sweet,
Arbutus, in some cool retreat,
Peeps 'neath the snow's protecting fold,
And shuns the daylight's ruthless glare.

A dainty jewel richly set,
You find the modest violet;
Shrinking from sun and shady grove
It welcomes those who chance to rove.

But, on a crisp and frosty morn,
Who sees the griddle cake with scorn?
Above them all the merits tower,
The good old fashioned buck wheat flour.

—Merchant Traveller.

Plantation Philosophy.

In life we oughter rickollect dis fack: One word spoke ergin er man has mo' weight den fifty words spoke in his prasha.

When a man say he wuk hisse'f do' enough fur er man we're mighty ap' ter do too much fur him.

De man dat acks de fool once is er wise man. It's de possun dat acks de fool mo' den once dat ain't got much sense.

It 'pear like it is harder ter bear trouble on yer bright day, fer de sunshine seem like er mockery; but on er dark day de clouds 'pear like dar in sympatny wid us.—Arkansaw Traveller.

Paradoxical.

This world is but a paradox,
Though true but ill surveyed,
A man whose hat is all store in
Is apt to be deranged.

A man-ey surly when he's mad,
And when he is long
He may not wish to do much good,
And yet may write quite wrong.

Some low men only eat high meat;
A fish may be alone,
And some who've early been of late
Were oft behind before.

—Lawrence American.

The Lion and the Fox.

First Boy—I kin lick you.
Second Boy—Let you try it.
"Huh! What'll ye do?
"I look like you, an' the furst time I hear your voice I run away. You ain't around an' I am, I'll wiggle my fingers at him an' maa him; an' then you'll catch it when you git home, an' if you say you didn't do it he'll lick you harder for lyin'."—New York Weekly.

A Poet's Woes.

He wrote some verse;
'Twas to rehearse,
In language that was glowing,
Her dainty grace,
Her lovely face,
Her smile so joy bestowing.

She took her pen
And wrote again,
"I think this much is due you:
Though that your rhymes,
Misspent your time,
I'll be a sister to you."

—Washington Capital.

A Serious Case.

Mrs. Brisbe—Johnny, did the doctor call while I was out?

Little Johnny (stopping his play)—Yes'm. He felt my pulse an' looked at my tongue, and shook his head and said it was a very serious case, and he left this prescription and said he'd call again before night.

Mrs. Brisbe—Gracious me! It wasn't you I sent him to see; it was the baby.—New York Weekly.

A Wail.

A bite!
A swish!
A fight!
Ah! Sah!
What piscatorial glory
For them,
What good?
Since none
Ever would Believe a fishing story.

—Washington Post.

Turn About.

"Mamma, Jimmie Brown has hit me on de nose."

"What for?"

"I don't know."

"Well, why didn't you hit him back?"

"I hit him first and then it would be my turn to take it again."—Texas Siftings.

All Here.

The shoemaker wooed her with all his might,
And told her of love that was boundless as light.
He said, as before her he hastened to fall:
"I haven't got much, but I'll give you my all."

—Washington Capital.

The Reason of It.

Jones—Wonderful change has come over my neighbors. He's as meek as a lamb and does all that he's told me to.

Smith—Exactly. What's the matter with the man, to be afraid of you?

Jones—I discharged him for a vacation.

Smith—Oh!

LITERARY LIGHTS.

Browning has a yearly income of $5,000.

Lord Tennyson walks three miles every day.

Byron was the most subjective of poets, and never looked at the world except through his own short sighted eyes.

R. H. Stoddard says: "Books are not necessarily literature. The majority of books, indeed, are not literature at all."

George W. Williams, the historian of the colored race in America, is living at Worcester, Mass., engaged in literary work.

Herr Gottfried Keller, of Zurich, whom Paul Heyse called "the German Shakespeare," has recently celebrated his literary jubilee.

Alexander Dumas is 66 years of age. He began to write at 17 and at 26 produced that "Dame aux Camelias," which first caused his countrymen to admire him.

Tschernischewski, the too outspoken Russian novelist, who was sentenced to twenty-five years' service in the Siberian mines, has been pardoned by the czar.

A volume of the poems of Frederic Tennyson, eldest brother of the poet laureate, is announced for publication shortly in London. They have become difficult to procure.

Wilkie Collins is short and delicate looking, with very small hands and feet and a cheerful face. His luxuriant hair and beard are silvery white, as he habitually wears spectacles. He is an inveterate smoker.

F. C. Burnand, the present editor of Punch, was in early life a member of a Catholic ecclesiastical establishment at Bayswater, near London. His intention was to become a priest, and he was even admitted to tonsure and minor orders.

Edgar Fawcett, the novelist, is a small, clean shaven man with a large head and a deprecatory, almost piteous manner. He is high priest of the Union club, and his Saturday nights opposite Brown's chop house are altogether unknown to the younger generation of litterateurs.

William Black says, respecting his habits of composition, that after breakfast he writes steadily for two hours and one hour after dinner, which is all the time he gives to literary work. During the rest of the day he walks or reads or writes letters. He writes rapidly and makes few erasures.

Tolstoi, the Russian novelist, although of noble birth, affects the life of a peasant and the trade of a shoemaker. He dresses like a village artisan; his shirt is soiled with soot, trousers begrimed with mud, and his whole appearance is that of a working man, a day laborer, a down trodden Russian serf.

Edward Bellamy, the author of the famous socialistic novel, "Looking Backward," is a native and resident of Chicopee Falls, a quiet village near Springfield, Mass. He is 39 years of age, though his face, which is strong and earnest, hardly looks it. He has an attractive personality, is cordial in his manners, and talks easily and well. He was married seven or eight years ago, and has two interesting children.

SOME USEFUL HINTS.

If a whole egg is too much of a burden for the invalid's stomach try the yolk only.

If poisoned by ivy, bathe the afflicted part freely three times a day with sweet spirits of niter.

Damp salt will remove the discolorations of cups and saucers caused by tea and careless washing.

To clean willow furniture use salt and water. Apply with a nail brush, scrub well and dry thoroughly.

Seamless boiler tubes are now made from solid ingots of metal by a process that twists and stretches the fibers, and is said to make a tube much stronger than the ordinary ones.

A room with a low ceiling will seem higher if the window curtains hang to the floor. Lambrequins may be used to extend the curtains to the ceiling and thus carry out the effect.

A London medical man says: "Be careful in your dealings with horseradish. It irritates the stomach far more than spice, and an overdose will bring on an unpleasant sensation for days."

A kitchen table, with as many drawers beneath it as a writing desk and having a high back like a sideboard full of pigeon holes for kitchen utensils, is a recent addition to the tired girl's comfort.

From a recent study of the bones of an theropid apes it appears that the gorilla and chimpanzee approach nearest to man, but in different degree, the orang outang holding the third place. But great differences exist between the proportions of the human frame and those of all the apes.

THE ANIMAL KINGDOM.

A goose with several links of a gold chain in its craw was killed at San Lucas, Cal., recently.

At Waterville, W. T., squirrels are so plentiful that they enter people's houses and eat the crumbs from under the tables.

While a party of children were out berry picking near Annapolis, N. S., a bear made his appearance and killed and ate one little boy.

D. J. Charbonneau, of Williamstown, Ky., has a hen that is fourteen years old. She has had an egg for four or five years, but is sound and hearty.

A Cadenus, Mich., farmer fed a flock of swine several gallons of cider which was not soft. The hogs got gloriously drunk for three days, and a few of them passed peacefully away, never realizing what had touched them.

John Brown, of Long Branch, is a veteran fisherman, and he donned a bathing suit and sauntered into the surf to coax out the finny creatures of the sea. His first bite nearly pulled him off his feet, but he landed his victim. It proved to be a striped bass weighing thirty-five pounds and measuring three feet eight inches in length.

A man who went to pick berries near Bear Lake, Pa., was found some hours later lying on the grass unconscious with a huge rattlesnake fastened to his trousers. The snake was killed and the man revived with cold water. He had not been bitten, yet he was affected just as if he had been until his limbs called him out of it.

WHAT A GIRL SHOULD LEARN.

To sew, to cook, to mend, to be gentle, to value time.

To take plenty of active exercise, so see a mouse without screaming.

To read some books besides novels, to be light hearted and fleet footed.

To dress neatly, to keep a secret, to be self reliant, to avoid idleness, to mind the baby.

To wear a shoe that won't cramp the foot, so be a womanly woman under all circumstances.

To darn stockings, to respect old age, to made good bread, to keep a house tidy, to control her temper, to be above gossiping.

To make a home happy, to take care of the sick, to manage a cross old man, to marry a married man worth, to be a helpmate to a husband.—New York Mail and Express.

DAUGHTERS OF EVE.

Brooklyn has a woman blacksmith and a female undertaker.

A lady astronomer in The London Times that she "gives lessons in tennis."

Mrs. Kohl, of Reading, Pa., hanged herself because she could not endure the toothache.

The Duchess of Fife can squeeze her foot into a 3½ shoe, but a full fledged No. 4 feels better.

After a deal of persuasion Mme. Carnot, mother of the French president, has ascended the Eiffel tower.

Mrs. Forsyth, a celebrated Samoan beauty, is an American widow, 26 years old, and has 150,000 acres of land.

A daughter of M. Carolus Duran is presently to wed M. G. rge Feydeau, the young French dramatic author.

Ilva Lowtzeff has astonished Londoners by going alone in the Whitechapel district, the scene of Jack the Ripper's exploits.

Miss Louise F. Charles has been tendered and has accepted the temporary presidency of Mount Holyoke seminary, Springfield, Mass.

Mrs. Harrison recently remarked that if a woman loves the society of her husband she should never encourage him to be a public man.

Mrs. Kate Ringgold, of Louisiana, is the only author on the list of Chautauqua graduates this year, but there are nine dressmakers and two milliners.

A woman of 97 in Massachusetts claims she has smoked tobacco for half a century, her average consumption of the weed being twelve pipefuls a day.

A daughter of Alma Tadema, who displays remarkable talent, has received at the Universal exposition a medal of the second class for three water colors.

Mrs. Katherine Chase, the daughter of Salmon P. Chase, is still at work on the life of her father. She lives at Edgewood, just outside of Washington.

Fanny Bigson, who is praised by zoologists for a recent paper on the anatomy of the lachrymal gland of the green turtle, is one of the remarkable women of Paris.

Miss Olive Schreiner, of the "South African Farm," is a sister of the Miss Schreiner who has made herself so conspicuous as a temperance advocate in South Africa.

Amelie Rives-Chanler, since she abandoned literature for art, is said to have used her own figure as the model for her sculptured productions, posing in front of a mirror.

Mary Anderson values a dagger given her by Lady Martin (Helen Faucit) the most highly of her theatrical properties. Lady Martin always used it when playing Juliet.

Australia is sending another actress to England, of whom great things are predicted. Miss Myra Kemble is the young woman's name, and she essays the higher walks of the drama.

A Boston woman imported quill pens from Germany at twenty-five cents apiece for three years before she discovered that a man in the same block furnished much better ones for a nickel.

Mrs. Gill, of Mulberry street, is the only woman shoemaker in New York. She made a pair of shoes before she was 14 years old, and has worked at the cobbler's bench for the last ten years.

An Elmira (N. Y.) school teacher has just married a young and prosperous merchant of that place, whom she birched many a time. She is about 40 years old; he is half that age, and proud of his bride.

Mrs. Frances Jeune is one of the leaders of the social world of London. She is said to have a genius for entertaining. She has a bright and beautiful face, cordial manners, and a perfect self forgetfulness.

Mrs. Gates, one of the many daughters of Brigham Young, has published a long defense of Mormon domestic relations. According to her they are pure, holy, and even romantic, and all outside attacks are simply the result of prejudice and envy.

Victoria Morosini, the daughter of the millionaire who married her father's coachman several years ago, and starred on the stage and later in the back chorus, has done satisfactory penance for her social sin, and is again with her father as a modest but attractive belle at Saratoga. The whereabouts of the husband are unknown to the outside world.

Miss Jennie Gilder, the editor of The Critic, is a strange compound of masculine and feminine traits. In winter she wears an ulster down to her feet; the waist of her dress is a close fitting sack coat, with a man's pockets; under this is a man's vest holding a watch and chain; her standing collar and frayed cuffs are entirely masculine. Even her face has a strong, masculine cast, and she bears a striking resemblance to her brother, the editor of The Century.

PLAINFIELD EVENING NEWS.

ESTABLISHED 1884. PLAINFIELD, N. J., "THE COLORADO OF THE EAST." SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 7, 1889. PRICE TWO CENTS

At a meeting of the Union County Republican Executive Committee, held August 31st, 1889, it was resolved that the several wards and townships hold their primary meetings to elect delegates to the State Convention, on

at 8 o'clock p. m., (with power to local Executive Committees to change such date if thought best).

In accordance with this resolution the Republican voters of Union county are requested to meet at their usual places and elect delegates to the State Convention in the ratio of one delegate for each two hundred Republican votes cast at the last Gubernatorial election, and one delegate for each fraction thereof exceeding one hundred votes, each ward and township to have at least one delegate.

The number of delegates to be elected under the above apportionment from each ward and township is as follows:

| | Votes. | Del's. |
|---|---|---|
| Elizabeth—1st ward | 563 | 3 |
| " 2d ward | 139 | 1 |
| " 3d ward | 166 | 1 |

—A horse and wagon belonging to George Feller, in which was seated a small boy, ran away on Somerset street at about one o'clock to-day, but the frightened animal was caught by Mr. John Becker before it succeeded in doing any damage.

—There were 143 failures in the United States reported to Bradstreet's during the week, 176 in the preceding week and 157, 119 153 and 169 in the corresponding weeks of 1888, 1887, 1886 and 1885 respectively. The total number of failures in the United States from January 1st to date are 7,746, against 6,878 in 1888.

—According to a list made at the beginning of the present year, there are 370 newspapers published in New Jersey, of which 62 are Democratic, 67 Republican, and 73 are ostensibly independent in politics. Twenty-one of these publications are printed in a German language. This would average about one paper to every 1,125 voters, which is a fairly good average for general information.

North Plainfield Borough Tax Rate.

Below is given the tax rate for the Borough of North Plainfield, for the last five years, that of the present year having been just decided by Assessor Brokaw:

| | 1889. | 1888. | 1887. | 1888. | 1889. |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| Borough Tax | 21 | 23 | 21 | 20 | 20 |
| Township Tax | 11 | 10 | 9 | 11 | 12 |
| County Tax | 33 | 37 | 38 | 40 | 47 |
| State School Tax | 34 | 33 | 33 | 30 | 31 |
| Special School Tax | 52 | 49 | 43 | 41 | 45 |
| Poor Tax | 10 | 7 | 7 | 7 | 7 |
| St. Improvements | | | | | 2 |
| and Sinking Fund. | 54 | 33 | 33 | 55 | 41 |
| Board of Health | | | | | 2 |
| | 2.04 | 1.92 | 1.74 | 2.44 | 2.54 |

Price to 1888 the Fire Department was maintained by a special tax. From 1888 it has been included in the general levy. The State school tax for 1889 is one per cent. higher, the county seven per cent. and the special school four per cent. higher than last year, despite which the rate has been kept the same as that of 1888. It will be observed that a considerable item is for Sinking Fund. This is to meet the bonds for Johnston's drive, which will soon be paid off and greatly reduce taxes generally.

BOROUGH COUNCIL MEETING.

Willow Avenue to be Macadamized.—Other Business.

The North Plainfield Borough Council met last evening. It was their regular September meeting.

In response to the roll call Mayor Cooley and Councilmen Buckle, Emmons, McGee, Needham and Smalley answered present. Councilman Bettman was absent.

The minutes of the previous meeting were read and approved.

A petition from Mrs. David Jones for a scavengers license was granted.

The report of Collector H. N. Spencer was read and ordered filed.

A communication from Councilman J. M. Bettman, in behalf of the residents and property-owners of Willow avenue, stated that they would subscribe $800 to have that thoroughfare macadamized, provided the work be done this Fall. Mr. Bettman suggested that the Council could macadamize said avenue with very little expense to the borough. The communication was received and referred to the Committee on Streets and Public Health.

The following claims were presented and referred to the proper committees:

|---|---|
| H. Kellogg | $5.00 |
| H. H. Wilson | 5.00 |
| H. H. Wilson | 3.00 |
| Samuel Taylor | 3.00 |
| J. M. Van Fleet | 1.30 |
| James Hardy | 3.85 |
| Isaac Brokaw | 11.40 |
| Thomas McDonald | 37.50 |
| N. Y. & N. J., Globe Gas Light Co | 290.36 |
| James Hardy | 7.35 |
| James Hardy | 45.83 |
| W. N. Pangborn | 5.00 |

A communication from Chief Engineer Martin stated that he had received $20 from Homan & Ryerson for the use of the engine for pumping out their cellar after the freshet. He also requested the Council to procure badges for the members of the company; and called their attention to the fire alarm; the gong of the bell not used as a fire alarm in the borough resembles as many bells that it occasionally fools the firemen, and he suggested that Council procure some other method of giving an alarm. The communication was received and ordered filed.

Mr. Emmons from the Committee on License and Marshals communicated to the Council the fact that the borough lockup had been changed in conformity with a resolution passed at a previous meeting; that since the change a prisoner had escaped from a cell that had been tampered with by former prisoners; that the damaged cell had been repaired and more care would be exercised in the future to prevent a like mishap. The report was received and ordered filed.

A bill from Louis Conrad for $7 was received and referred to the proper committee.

Mr. Smalley from the Committee on Streets reported that Greenbrook road for a distance of 300 feet had been macadamized; that a number of washouts on Somerset street and Clinton avenue had been filled in, and that the work remaining to be done would cost about $100. Received and filed.

Mr. McGee offered a resolution that the Mayor and Clerk negotiate a loan of $1,000 for lighting purposes only. So ordered.

A discussion then arose as to what had be come of some dirt taken from the gutters of a borough avenue.

Mr. Smalley explained that the Street Commissioner had volunteered to clean the gutters on that thoroughfare, if the Committee on Streets would permit him to use the dirt, and that the committee had instructed him to go ahead.

Mr. McGee thought that any money which should accrue from the sale of dirt should go into the borough treasury, and did not think that the work done on the thoroughfare had benefitted it any.

Mr. Smalley stated that the work had not been completed as yet, but would be in a few days.

Mr. Needham thought that when the gutters of the streets were cleaned without cost the borough certainly was benefitted thereby. The discussion was finally dropped.

A resolution offered by Mr. McGee that the property-owners along Willow avenue be given permission to macadmize that thoroughfare to a depth of four inches and that the Council would complete the work to a depth of six inches in the Spring was adopted.

A resolution offered by Mr. Smalley that the Mayor and Clerk be authorized to negotiate a loan of $200 to be used for street purposes only, was carried.

The Council then adjourned.

Democratic Primaries.

The Democrats of the Third and Fourth Wards of this city held their primary meeting last evening and the result was as follows:

SUNDAY SERVICES.

What Will Be Done by Religious Societies To-Morrow.

[Twelfth Sunday After Trinity.]

SO HIGH IS GRANDEUR TO OUR DUST,
SO NEAR IS GOD TO MAN,
WHEN DUTY WHISPERS LOW, THOU MUST,
THE YOUTH REPLIES, I CAN.
—Emerson.

Rev. A. H. Lewis, DD., will preach in the First Baptist church morning and evening.

Sunday morning Gospel temperance service at 9:15 and at 4 p. m. in Reform Hall. All are invited.

Mr. George H. Fountain will lead the prayer meeting in the rear of Scheplin's clothing factory to-morrow afternoon at half past four o'clock.

German Lutheran services to-morrow morning at 10:30 a. m. at the W. C. T. U. rooms, 73 West Front street. Sermon by the Rev. Mr. Tappert, of New York.

Services in the Park avenue Baptist church to-morrow. Sunday school at 9:45 a. m. Preaching at 11 o'clock by Mr. Edwin H. Lewis of this city. No evening service.

Services in the Warren Mission to-morrow: Sunday-school will open at 2:30 p. m. A song and prayer service will be held at 7:30 and Mrs. Ellis will conduct the services at eight o'clock.

The Rev. Zoyn Talmage, a brother of the celebrated Brooklyn divine, will preach in the Trinity Reformed church to-morrow morning and evening. A quartette will lead the singing.

Service in the German Reformed church on Craig place, North Plainfield, will be held to-morrow morning at 10:30 only, and Friday evening at 8 o'clock. The Sunday school will commence again Sunday, Sept. 15th, at 2:30 p. m.

First Presbyterian church, the Rev. K. P. Ketcham, D. D., pastor.—Morning service, 10:30 a. m.; Sabbath school and Bible study, 3 p. m.; Young People's Society of Christian Endeavor, 4:15; evening service, 7:45. All welcome.

The services of the First Unitarian Society will be resumed Sunday, Sept. 8th, at 7:30 p. m., in the music store on East Front street, (near the post office.) Rev. D. W. Morehouse, of Brooklyn, will preach. Subject "The Unitarian doctrine of Judgement and Retribution." All are cordially invited.

The First Church of Christ of Plainfield will meet at Reform Hall, Lord's Day at 10:30 a. m. Preaching by the Rev. J. H. Cleaver, 19 th. "Memory of Him". 2:30 p. m. Bible school. Ordinance of baptism in Green brook at Washington Square, Sunday at 5 p. m. Social meetings: Wednesday and Friday evenings at 7:45 p. m. All are cordially invited.

To-morrow the Feast of the Nativity of the Blessed Virgin the services at St. Mary's Roman Catholic church will be more than usually solemn and impressive. The first mass will be celebrated at 8:30, the second at 10:30 and vespers will be held at 4 p. m. At the 10:30 mass Rt. Rev. Bishop Wigger will administer the Sacrament of Confirmation to about one hundred and fifty children and adults. The church of St. Mary the Immaculate was built in honor of the Virgin Mother of God. She was chosen as the patroness of the congregation, and at each recurrence of the feast of her Nativity the faithful assemble to testify their gratitude for favors received through her intercession, and to ask a continuance of her protection. To-morrow evening at eight o'clock vespers will be sung and a sermon appropriate to the feast will be delivered by the Rev. Dr. Kennedy, of Philadelphia. The evening devotions will conclude with the Benediction of the Blessed Sacrament. The music on this occasion will be furnished by the organist Prof. David Lyons, assisted by his choir of boys and young men.

PERSONAL.

Miss Lizzie Raftis, of Poughkeepsie, N. Y., is visiting her friend Miss Conway, of West Third street.

The Huff family of this vicinity held a re-union at the Park House Thursday after noon and evening.

Mr. John Lindsay, of South Second street, has gone on a trip to Philadelphia, Baltimore, Washington and Chicago.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Moore, of South Second street, are spending their holidays at Philadelphia, Baltimore and Washington.

A masquerade sociable was held at the residence of Miss Adams at Glenside Park last evening. Several Plainfielders were present. Prof. Guttman furnished the music.

At the Congregational church, West Seventh street, the Sacrament of the Lord's Supper will be administered at the morning service. The pastor, the Rev. C. L. Goodrich, will be present.

Mrs. Ellis will speak at a meeting in the W. C. T. U. rooms this evening at 7:45 o'clock. Monday afternoon at three o'clock the annual meeting for the election of officers will be held. All members are urged to be present.

Miss Josie Higgs, formerly of this city, died suddenly, at Brooklyn, Tuesday morning, from a stroke of paralysis. Miss Higgs was in the twenty-ninth year of her age, and her sudden death has cast a gloom over a large number of friends and acquaintances.

Mary C., the estimable wife of Mr. William H. Lyon, died suddenly at her home this morning in the sixty-sixth year of her age. The funeral services will take place from the residence of her son-in-law, Mr. A. C. Vail, No. 10 West Eighth street Monday, Sept. 9th, at 12 o'clock a. m. Interment will be made at South Hingham, Mass.

HORRIBLY MANGLED.

Amzi Hetfield's Narrow Escape From Death.

Mr. Amzi Hetfield, a young man aged about thirty years, residing on the Rahway road, near "Two Bridges", met with a horrible accident, Thursday afternoon.

He was cutting hay in a field with a mowing machine, when one of the wheels of the mower struck a deep gulley, throwing him in front of the sharp knives of the mower. His left arm was broken and the muscles were terribly torn and cut. He also received numerous cuts and bruises about the legs and body. He was carried to his home where he now lies suffering intense pain.

This is the second accident of this kind that has occured in this vicinity this Summer. About two months ago Smith Scudder, of Fanwood Township was thrown from a mowing machine and received such injuries that he died a few hours afterward.

To School Again You Go.

The vacation season is over. Hunt up your books, boy, and get ready to study as hard as ever. You have had a long session of idleness and no doubt you have been a source of much annoyance to your parents. More than half the time during the last two months they have been uncertain as to your whereabouts, not knowing whether you were lying under an apple tree, with a broken neck, or at the bottom of some neighboring lake or river. You have "imspired" in your minds-eye a big lot of ball games; you have tied more than one empty tomato-can to the vagrant dog's tail; you have undoubtedly killed several pretty song birds in a spirit of mere wantonness; you have "cadged" apples from neighboring orchards, and have "whoopedjer up" for Sullivan when he whipped Jake Kilrain. Now the roll call is on, step up to your desk and answer to your name. Resolve to have done with your nonsense, and make an effort to learn something useful in the months before you.

Workers' Training Classes.

The Workers Training Classes of the Young Men's Christian Association, which have been so successful in past years, and to be started again soon. It is expected that two classes will be founded, are for beginners and the other for advanced scholars. The course of study in both classes will be for the purpose of fitting the members for better Christian work. The first part of the lesson hour will be devoted to Bible study; the second half to the study of individual cases of inquirers. The lessons will be entirely different from the Sunday school lessons, but will be very useful to Sunday school teachers. The classes will be opened to men only. But in order to accommodate young men the class will be continued. Any one who desires to join the classes or who desire further information may call on the Secretary of the Y. M. C. A., at the rooms of the association No. 8 and 10 East Front street.

He Was Not the "Peeper".

Thursday evening a Mrs. Smith, who keeps a boarding house at the corner of Broadway and Tenth street, notified Policeman Flanagan that a man was prowling around her house. The officer accompanied by Policeman Giese and Patrolman Engineer Laine hastily repaired to the house, thinking they surely had track of "Tom the Peeper". The man saw the policemen and ran. The trio gave chase and eventually captured John Forger, a boarder in the house, who was under the influence of liquor. He was locked up for the night, and yesterday morning the complainant failing to appear against him, Judge Stillman discharged him.

Union County Freeholders.

The Union county Board of Freeholders held a meeting in the Court House at Elizabeth, Thursday afternoon.

The first business in order after the reading and reception of the minutes of the preceding meeting was the reading of a communication from John W. Morrow, by his attorneys, Messrs. Gilhooly & Marsh, in which he takes an appeal from an order requesting him to change the waste gates and milldam at Vreeland's mills, which have caused a washout of the roadway.

A resolution was adopted to the effect that the board would meet at the spot on the 10th instant, and view the premises, to see what action, if any, is necessary to be taken.

A resolution was adopted to the effect that hereafter all bills involving the expenditure of money, and requiring the approval of the auditing committee, shall be presented on the day preceding the regular meeting of the board, or else lie over until the next regular meeting.

Mr. Thompson briefly explained the object of the resolutions, and said it would prevent a great deal of confusion at the meeting of the board.

Mr. Howard thought there was a rule of the kind now in operation, which was passed a year or more ago.

The resolution was adopted by a vote of 11 5.

A resolution was adopted requesting the committee on Morris avenue turnpike to confer with the Lehigh Valley Railroad company in regard to the proposed crossing of the avenue by the new road. The subject was left to the discretion of the committee.

County Attorney Ward said he had prepared the resolution at the request of the company. He had conversed with the engineer, who was busily engaged in laying out the route of the new road, and the company were anxious to know as soon as possible what action the board intended to take. It was proposed to have the road cross at thirty feet above the road bed.

A large number of bills were ordered paid.

A resolution was adopted, instructing the advertising for bids for county roads bonds in such papers as it was deemed necessary.

The board then adjourned to Monday, 16th inst at 2 o'clock.

North Plainfield Democratic Primary.

At the primary meeting held at North Plainfield last evening of which David J. Carney was chairman and E. C. Morse secretary, Messrs. Alfred H. Jackson and John H. Carney were unanimously elected delegates to the Gubernatorial Convention to be held at Trenton on Tuesday, September 10th.

The delegates were instructed to vote for Leon Abbott.

—They call a watermelon party a "Red, white and green" gathering.

—Giving women's names to race horses produces odd results sometimes. How does this sound: Lady Pulsifer canters in with her nose ahead!—Ex.

—Warren, Sussex and Morris counties are being flooded with counterfeit silver dollars, the work of a gang of Italians belonging to the colony of Allen Brothers, at Stanhope. Many merchants have been victimized, and one arrest has been made.

Want Automatic Couplers.

Nearly 10,000 railroad brakemen have signed a petition that the inter-state Commerce Commission will take action that shall cause the adoption of automatic couplers and brakes, on freight cars throughout the country. All it can do is to call the attention of Congress to the matter, and the power of that body is questionable. The State legislature ought to take hold of the subject. It is estimated that more than 400 brakemen are killed and more than 4,000 severely injured every year, while using the old link and pin coupler. The Master Car Builders' association has recommended the substitution of automatic couplers of a certain type on all freight trains, and the recommendation can be followed without giving the owners of any patent a monopoly, but the work of putting the safe couplers proceeds slowly.—Patterson Guardian.

Church Increase.

The Independent publishes an annual summary of the statistics of church membership which is interesting and instructive. The latest one does not at all bear out the theory that the religious denominations are declining. During 1888 the net gain of church membership in the United States was 876,995. The number of churches increased 3,882, the ministers 3,865. This keeps step very fairly with the annual increase of population the country over.

Of church members in the whole country there are now 20,067,315. Thus it will be seen that nearly a third of the whole population, counting men, women and children, are church members. The Roman Catholics have the largest following, their constituency numbering 7,885,294. Next come the Methodists, with 4,723,881, and these two denominations divide between them three-fifths of all the church membership in the Union. The Roman Catholics alone have considerably more than a third of the whole number, but The Independent says this showing is because that church counts in its census all the children of a Catholic family, while Protestants only include actual church members. Children are not birthright members of the Protestant churches.

The larger denominations have more churches than preachers, while the smaller ones have more preachers than churches. It is worth noting that the Mennonite Brethren, mostly Russian immigrants, have already in our country 400 church edifices and 603 ministers. The Unitarians have, it seems, only 381 church organizations. The Swedenborgian, or New Jerusalem, church has 6,000 members.

A Young Man's Luck.

Mr. Gwynne R. Tompkins was a southerner, and a very good looking, refined young man. He was modest, too, for a newspaper reporter, which he was, and a first class one in his line. That was reporting horse races and turf matters. He began his career as a page in the United States senate, but drifted about the world till he settled into journalism. He had the knack of knowing the points of a horse naturally, and he aided this talent by carefully cultivating his judgment. His first prominent work in turf matters was done in Washington. His nom de plume was "Greystone." He also did occasionally some work for The New York Evening Sun. Some weeks ago he went to Saratoga to report the races there. He left New York with $10 in his pocket, and "no property but hopes."

The races were reported satisfactorily when one day, about four weeks after he went away, he sent in his resignation as turf reporter of The Evening Sun. Everything was smooth and fair in his relations with the paper, but Mr. Tompkins wished to go into another business.

Beginning with the $10, he had won between $95,000 and $30,000 on the Saratoga races, and was now going to start a racing stable of his own. He had won the money by systematic and careful betting, using his "horse sense." The story is extraordinary, but true in every particular. Mr. Tompkins is probably the only newspaper reporter in the world who ever had such a streak of what men call "luck."

We, in the United States, do not begin to appreciate the value of the right sort of industrial schools. What they can accomplish is well shown in Denmark. Five years ago that country took seriously in hand the national dairy schools. Government has since then spent on them $50,000 annually, with such effect that the dairy exports of Denmark have been increased six fold of late years, and there is throughout Europe a great demand for Danish butter.

The story is repeated that the relations between the pope and the Italian government become more hostile instead of friendly, as time goes on. It is believed, indeed, in many quarters, that the king and queen of Italy have actually been excommunicated by the pope. If this story be true the effect on the future of Italy can hardly be calculated. The crowned heads of Spain and Austria are his holiness' favorites in Europe.

South Carolina sent to northern markets this year 3,000,000 watermelons. Nearly a third of them went to New York. All the large eastern cities got away with their proportional share of the tender, juicy fruit which is dear to the heart of the African, except Boston. Of the whole 1,880 car loads, that city took only 63. What is the matter with Boston? Is the eating of melons inimical to culture?

A young lady writes to The New Orleans Times-Democrat to know the etiquette of certain points in regard to a young man with whom she is keeping company. Thereupon The Times-Democrat retorts: "Cultivated people do not keep company with any one. The expression belongs to the kitchen or garbage barrel." Cruel, cruel T.-D.

MORNING NEWS.

DYNAMITE AND FLAMES.

Frightful Havoc of an Explosion at Antwerp.

TWO HUNDRED PEOPLE KILLED,

Hundreds More Were Seriously Wounded.

Eighty Thousand Barrels of Petroleum Aflame—The Damage to Property will Reach Many Millions of Dollars.

ANTWERP, Sept. 7.—This city has just been the scene of a frightful accident. A large quantity of dynamite exploded in a cartridge factory, totally demolishing that portion of the building in which the explosive was kept, killing two hundred people and more than injuring about six hundred others. Of the wounded a majority are workmen but the number includes several soldiers.

Where the Explosion Occurred.

The explosion occurred in a workshop where a large number of old cartridges were being taken to pieces. Many men and women were employed in this shop and they were actively engaged in breaking up the old cartridges. There were fully 25,000,000 of these in and about the premises, a part of them already made up. The factory was located in the vicinity of the Bourse, which at the time of the explosion was crowded. Burning fragments of the factory were hurled against the Bourse, setting it on fire and creating a panic among the members, several of whom were injured.

A Fierce Petroleum Fire.

The explosion occurred immediately back of the docks upon which millions of cartridges were being stored. Large petroleum stores stood adjacent to the factory and these were set on fire by the burning fragments, and 80,000 barrels are now burning fiercely. The city is enveloped in smoke. Fortunately the cartridges on the docks were not affected by the explosion.

The Loss will Reach Millions.

The damage to property will reach many millions. The fire is still burning fiercely, and the best the firemen hope for is to extinguish it in twenty-four hours. The heat from the burning petroleum is intense. The heat is such that it is impossible to approach within a hundred yards. Several vessels have been burned at their docks, and others were only saved through the prompt action of their officers in towing them out of danger. The fire is not now spreading and it is hoped, if the wind does not rise during the night, that the flames can be confined to their present limits. A strong west wind would, however, set the whole city in a blaze.

Two Acres of Flames.

The flames covered two acres of ground and rise to an immense height. Amidst the fierce roar of the flames is heard from time to time the loud reports of explosives, to which there are constantly added. These explosions are supposed to be of packages of cartridges stored in the buildings, which seem to remain intact until the fire tongues of flame are actually upon them. The shipping at the African docks and at the American docks is in serious danger, and all the facilities for removing the vessels from the immediate vicinity of the conflagration are being pressed into service.

The Reports Increase the Number of Dead.

Later.—At an early hour the fire is still raging with undiminished fierceness. The military are assisting the firemen in preventing the spread of the conflagration. It is now certain that fully 300 people have perished and not less than 1,000 are injured. The scenes at the hospitals where the wounded have been conveyed are heart-rending. The ships at the American docks were saved after much difficulty and danger.

The explosions at the burning cartridge factory still continue at frequent intervals, and the flying shells render the work of the firemen and soldiers extremely perilous.

The cartridge factory at which the explosion occurred was known as the Carvilean factory. The continual report of explosives condemned it as dangerous, but for some unexplained reason it was allowed to continue operations. The victims are mostly factory girls.

Windows were shattered at points three miles away.

The Murder of Donoghue.

DUBLIN, Sept. 7.—The man Donoghue, who was shot by a constable at Timoleague, in county Cork, on the 20th ult., on accounts of the shooting seem to agree that it was entirely unprovoked. Donoghue was standing upon a street corner quietly conversing with an acquaintance, when the constable, without warning, drew his revolver and fired. The constable, who was arrested, has been taken to the Cork jail for safety.

Honlanger's Request to be Denied.

PARIS, Sept. 7.—There is no likelihood that the government will grant the request of Gen. Boulanger to be brought to a court martial to answer the charges upon which he was recently convicted by the high court of impeachment of the senate, and The Temps says that M. Tirard will pay no attention whatever to the impudent demand. It is generally believed here that the request is only a piece of bravado, and that only the certainty that it would be refused prompted the demand.

LONDON'S STRIKE.

Desperate Attempts to Bridge the Breach by Eminent Citizens.

LONDON, Sept. 7.—The Steam Navigation company has conceded the strikers' terms and an increase has been given to hart laborers at work. The shipwrights in the employ of the Williamsons at Workington, in Cumberland, have struck for an advance of 4s. weekly.

Cardinal Manning, the lord mayor, the bishop of London, and Sir John Lubbock held a conference with the officials of the dock companies and shipping merchants. As a result, the dock directors agreed to consider a proposal for a 6d. rate to begin January next. This time is fixed in order to allow a restoration of charges to meet the added outlay. The strikers' committee consented to advise the men to accept this proposal.

Lord Randolph Churchill, speaking at Newtown, said that the strike was the natural outcome of the excesses into which employers had fallen in their efforts to extract an undue amount of labor at an inadequate rate of wages. The president of the Wesleyan conference, in an address to a body of delegates, asserted that the sympathy of the whole Methodist body. The president daily superintends the giving of free breakfasts to nearly 1,000 men.

The dock directors have issued a notice that unless the old hands return to work at once their places will be filled with other men.

Three Convicts Killed.

ATLANTA, Ga., Sept. 7.—At Rising Fawn furnaces three negro convicts were killed by a premature explosion of dynamite. The accident was the result of the men's carelessness.

PRESIDENTIAL APPOINTMENTS.

Thomas H. Anderson Minister to Bolivia. A Number of Consuls Appointed.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 7.—The president has made the following appointments: Thomas H. Anderson, of Ohio, minister resident and consul-general of the United States to Bolivia. Edward Dunn to be secretary of the legation of the United States to Japan.

Arthur W. Barrett, of Massachusetts, to Venezuela.

William R. Gardner, Jr., of Indiana, to be secretary of the legation of the United States to Japan.

And the following consuls: Joseph T. Mason, of Virginia, at Mannheim.

Bernard G. Macauley, of New York, at Managua, Nicaragua.

Ashley Palmer, of the District of Columbia, at Dresden.

John D. Delille, of Texas, at Bristol.

The president has also appointed postmasters as follows:

Maine—William Dunn at Waterville, Vermont—John H. Stewart at Middlebury, Massachusetts—Edgar N. Nash at Newton Highlands, Charles H. Savage at Cottage City, New York—Frank Jones at Ballston, Frank B. Mitchell at Norwich, E. M. Gates at Watertown, New Jersey—Cornelius Kiel, Jr., at Hoboken.

John A. George, William B. Babcock and Charles E. Thompson have been appointed postmasters respectively at Dutch Mount, South Bombay and Sylva, fourth class offices in New York state.

PRESIDENTIAL PERSPIRATION.

Mr. Harrison Plants a Tree at the Wanamaker Residence.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 7.—The closing of the president's visit to the postmaster general's Chelton Hills residence was marked by the planting of a tree by Mr. Harrison, which the president announced that he was ready to do the planting. A spade was procured, and armed with it and accompanied by the postmaster general, Mrs. Harrison, Mrs. Sheppard and Rodman Wanamaker, the place of planting was visited.

With his tall silk hat on the back of his head and his shirt sleeves pushed up nearly to his elbows, President Harrison commenced his work. The soil was a little hard, the morning sun was very hot, and the president's face is still burning fiercely, and the best the firemen hope for is to extinguish it in twenty-four hours. The heat began to affect the president after a few minutes, and it is impossible to approach within a hundred yards. Several vessels have been burned at their docks, and others were only saved through the prompt action of their officers in towing them out of danger. The fire is not now spreading and it is hoped, if the wind does not rise during the night, that the flames can be confined to their present limits. A strong west wind would, however, set the whole city in a blaze.

Two Acres of Flames.

The flames covered two acres of ground and rise to an immense height. ## HAMILTON ON THE STAND

He Tells the Story of His Betrayal.

HOW HE LAVISHED MONEY ON EVA.

Many Thousands of Dollars Readily Flew From His Pockets to Her's—He Thought the Babe His Own—Inspector Byrnes' Damaging Testimony.

NEW YORK, Sept. 7.—Mrs. T. Anna Swinton and Joshua J. Mann were formally arraigned before Justice Hogan in the Tombs yesterday, charged with having in September last entered into a conspiracy with Eva L. Mann, now Mrs. Hamilton, to defraud Robert Ray Hamilton of various sums of money. The victim of the alleged conspiracy, Robert Ray Hamilton, was the first witness called by the defense. He testified that he met Eva about four years ago in a house on Thirty-third or Thirty-fourth street, and has had criminal relations with her from the first time he met her. He went on to say: "In 1886 and 1887 Eva represented to me that she was in a delicate condition. She made the same representation again in March or April of last year. Before she made this representation to Hilliard, I only saw her about once a week. I was in Albany last spring, but it was at her house in this city she told me of her condition.

He Lavished Money Upon Her.

"We were living together as man and wife at that time."

"Not as man and wife in May, 1888, I gave her $2,000 to go to Europe, and did not see her again until the beginning of August. She went to Pennsylvania on her return from Europe, I believe. While she was away I sent her money from time to time as she sent for me and said she needed funds, and I gave her about $300. Through all the four years I furnished her with $25 a week regularly, besides presents of $100 or $200. In addition I afterward increased. Early in 1887 I gave her one sum of $1,000. Up to that time the largest sum given at once was $650 to buy a gold watch. Then I gave her $1,500 to purchase the place in New Jersey. Some months after I gave her another $1,000, perhaps two months. I gave her $1,500 as well in addition to the regular weekly payments. Prior to her supposed departure for Europe I gave her a mortgage for $1,100. I took or sent to her $1,000 at another time. She asked me for $1,000 to go up to Elmira and be confined. I gave her $650, and sent her $500 more to Elmira Dec. 11. I was in this city then and left for Elmira on the 12th or 13th.

Indignant at Mrs. Swinton.

"While Eva was in Europe," he went on, "Mrs. Swinton called at my office and wanted $30 to pay her rent. I was indignant, and told her she should have gone to her own relatives, as she had no claim on me; that I would not submit to such an extortion, and I ordered her out of the office. She said she had a letter from Eva saying she was coming home. Mrs. Swinton did not say anything about the relations between Eva and her son, Joshua J. Mann."

He Thought the Child His Own.

Continuing, Mr. Hamilton said he was married to Eva in Paterson, Jan. 7 last, and that the child was baptized in St. James' church, Atlantic City, by the name of Beatrice Ray. He believed the child to be his own. He was positive that the full names of the assumed parents, Robert Ray Hamilton and Evangeline Hamilton, were given, and that if not so recorded it was through a mistake of the clergyman. Mrs. Swinton and Josh Mann were present as witnesses, and the body of the church was filled with the congregation at the time. The witness asserted that Eva Hamilton had represented to him that the child baptized at Atlantic City was the same she said she bore at Elmira in December.

Inspector Byrnes Testifies.

Inspector Byrnes testified that "Josh" told the witness that Eva had taken him (Josh) to Elmira with her. They first registered at the Delevan House as mah and wife, and after thirty hours went over to her brother's house in the same relation. While there Eva had some sort of stomach sickness and Dr. Moss was called to attend her. The doctor had sent the inspector an affidavit that Eva was not then in a peculiar condition. Inspector Byrnes continued that Josh Mann had told him that he had about $3,000 to enjoy himself because she loved him very dearly and all that sort of thing.

More Sinned Against Than Sinning.

The inspector said he had shown Mrs. Swinton a letter which she identified as in the handwriting of Eva Hamilton. The letter stated that Eva wanted Ray to come down to Atlantic City for the child, and that she would then tell him the whole truth of the scheme to get money from him. She was more sinned against than sinning, and there were others more deeply implicated. This letter was addressed to Mr. Hamilton, and had been furnished to the inspector by Mr. Hamilton for use in his investigations.

Eva's Relations with Mann.

The witness went on to say that he had used no threats or promises to secure the statements made by Mrs. Swinton and "Josh." The former agreed that the baby baptized as Beatrice Ray Hamilton was the one bought for $10. She could give no motive for going to the midwife with Eva except that Eva had asked her to do so. She further insisted that Eva always claimed to be married to "Josh," but that he said he was not married to her. "Josh" said he had first met Eva at Long Branch at a fashionable house in Twenty-third street, and their illicit relations had continued ever since.

Eva Assaulted Her Brother.

WILKESBARRE, Pa., Sept. 7.—The Tunkhannock (Pa.) Republican says that Mrs. Hamilton, now in jail at Atlantic City for assault, is under bail for $1,000 security for an assault upon her brother, Mr. Steele, at Laceyville last fall, while visiting here in company with Josh Mann.

Was She a Binghamton Girl?

BINGHAMTON, N. Y., Sept. 7.—The young woman who committed suicide at Niagara Falls is believed to be Miss Merrill of this city. She left her home to take a walk on Wednesday morning and her parents have received a letter in her handwriting, postmarked Niagara Falls, in which she said she intended going over the falls and expressed the hope that her body would not be found. Miss Merrill was 25 years of age and well connected. No reason can be given for her act.

Ex-Senator Platt Succeeds Brown.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Sept. 7.—Ex-Senator Thomas C. Platt, of New York, has been elected president of the Tennessee Coal, Iron and Railroad company, at a meeting of the directors in this city, to fill the place made vacant by the death of Hon. John C. Brown.

Shot by a Chicken Thief.

BETHLEHEM, Pa., Sept. 7.—A supposed chicken thief shot and killed Washington Dilliard, 40 years old, on his farm at Hellertville, near here. The murderer escaped.

SEVEN SCHOONERS SEIZED.

Lively Work of the Revenue Cutter Rush Off Sealing Seal.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 7.—A dispatch from Victoria, B. C., says that the schooner Lilly, belonging at that place, has arrived there from Behring Sea. She reports that she was boarded Aug. 6 by the United States revenue cutter Rush, her papers searched and 335 sealskins confiscated. She was ordered to proceed to Victoria, where she was to be given up. The vessel sailed for Victoria a few days after this, but finally sailed for home.

On her way down she spoke the Victoria schooner Kate. The captain of that craft had been ordered to leave by the Rush and did so, but the wind was so high that the cutter could not lower a boat. The Kate was ordered off Port Townsend. She had 550 skins aboard. The officers of the Rush told the officers of the Lilly that seven schooners had already been seized.

An Ex-Convict Shot Dead.

DENVER, Sept. 7.—Timothy Stocking, a faro dealer, shot and killed Bully Murphy, an ex-convict, while the latter was in Stocking's premises, evidently intending to kill Stocking, as he had often threatened to do. In 1885 the men were rivals for the hand of a young lady of Leadville. The girl married Stocking. Murphy became dissipated, and was finally caught robbing a house. Stocking was the principal witness against him. He served a term in jail for the crime, and swore that he would kill both Mr. and Mrs. Stocking. After his release he followed them, swearing vengeance. He had been driven from Stocking's premises several times by the police.

A Warm Biblical Discussion.

OSWEGO, N. Y., Sept. 7.—At the afternoon session of the Evangelical Lutheran Synod of New York and New Jersey there was an exciting discussion of certain passages in the liturgy, the Lord's prayer and the Lord's supper. Rev. A. C. Wedekind began an impassioned address disapproving of the action of the general synod in the matter, but was not allowed to proceed. Considerable feeling was manifested. A charge was made against Rev. J. Jaeger, of the Hartford church, for indiscretion and giving just cause for criticism, was acknowledged by the accused clergyman, who was admonished and recommended to reconcile himself with the people.

A National German Holiday.

MILWAUKEE, Sept. 7.—The Seebote, the prominent German daily newspaper of this city, devotes a page to the opinions of the German press of the country on the much agitated question of a national German-American holiday, which, it is proposed, is to be celebrated annually by the German-Americans all over the country. The Seebote sent out eighty-two questions to German dailies in all parts of the United States, and the answers received show that a great majority of them are in favor of such a holiday, although some of the most prominent papers are opposed to it, among them The Seebote.

Moving the New Hampshire.

NEWPORT, R. I., Sept. 7.—An effort was made to change the position of the United States steamer New Hampshire to one in which the vessel could receive the benefit of the sea breeze, and thus remove the deposits of sewage to which the typhoid fever now prevalent among the crew is ascribed. After being pulled off about 150 feet she stuck on a sand bar. The Yorktown and Dispatch have sailed for Baltimore.

A Boy's Fatal Joke.

OSWEGO, N. Y., Sept. 7.—Bertie Crouch, 9 years old, sat down on a slate pencil placed under him by his companions at school. The pencil entered under the hip and passed upward four inches into the body. In attempting to extract the pencil it was broken off. The boy's life is dispaired of.

A Lottery Man in Trouble.

RACE TROUBLES GALORE.

Lawless Whites Brutally Beat Innocent Negroes.

A REWARD FOR THE GUILTY MEN.

A Race War Anticipated in West Virginia. Missouri White Caps Routed by a Dexter Posse—Many Negroes Killed in Louisiana—Governor Lowry Denounced.

ATLANTA, Ga., Sept. 7.—On Wednesday evening a white girl was assaulted by a negro boy named Warren Powell, aged 14. That night he was lynched. Not satisfied with this act, a party of lawless white men took the rounds of the country in the neighborhood, and flogged negroes everywhere.

Men were taken out of bed, stripped of their hirts and lashed with buggy traces. The sick son of one negro, scarcely able to stand, was dragged out of the house naked and whipped. His sister, notwithstanding her sex, was treated on the same way. Fourteen men are known to have been flogged, and many more not yet reported.

Atlanta People Aroused.

These deeds of violence grew out of the fears of some whites that the negroes meditated an attack upon the latter. Groups of weary of waiting for an attack which was never intended, went out in pursuit of their victims. The tales told by such negroes as came out alive are blood curdling. A motion made in the legislature to cause such conduct was laid on the table by a vote of 66 to 22. The people of the city of Atlanta will take vigorous steps to run down the perpetrators of this crime upon the defenceless blacks. The governor has taken the matter under advisement and will offer $1,000 reward for the apprehension of the white criminals.

White Caps on the War Path.

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 7.—A rep ort from Dexter, Stoddard county, Mo., has been received to the effect that thirty-five desperadoes visited that town with the design of driving from the town a recent settlement of negroes. The marauders entered the town mounted and armed. The marshal summoned a posse and ordered them to leave town. For awhile the scene was intensely exciting, the gang firing into the street and the marshals pursuing and firing every instant. One of the White Caps was captured. His name is Buck Mays, and he is seriously injured. The marshal's posse wounded and captured two others named Vort, Davis and Dickerson. The gang is said to be a part of a White Cap organization numbering 150 men, which has existed for several months in Stoddard county.

Many Negroes Killed.

NEW ORLEANS, La., Sept. 7.—A letter from Leflore county says armed negroes are, now scattered in squads in the swamps and are being pursued by 300 armed white men. Negroes being refused ammunition at Jamieson's store, on the Tallahatchie river, burned the building. They were pursued them, and about forty negroes were killed. Many negroes were killed at the other end of the parish. Governor Lowry is severely denounced by the white people of Leflore for not sending Cromwell back to them. The charge that Col. Jones Hamilton, lessee of the state penitentiary, used his influence to save Cromwell, who is an ex-convict.

Trouble in West Virginia.

HUNTINGTON, W. Va., Sept. 7.—The colored men along the Kanawha and Ohio railway, between this city and Hinton, Summers county, are arming themselves and anticipate a bloody race between themselves and the white people of New River coal regions. Two colored miners have been murdered by the whites in Lafayette county within the last week, and the negroes appear to be about ready to make an attack upon the whites for the murders they have committed.

That Alleged Extra Session.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 7.—The morning Capital quotes "a prominent United States senator" as follows: "I saw the president the other day, and in the course of conversation I said: 'Mr. president, I don't wish to be impertinent, but I would like to know if you are going to call an extra session? I want to know so that I can perfect my arrangements.' The president smiled and he said: 'The members and senators from the new states could not get here before Nov. 10 and I think it would be very foolish to call congress to meet just two weeks in advance of the time for the next session. I am still in doubt about the extra session, as the cabinet has not yet discussed the question in meeting.' Attorney General Miller came in after I had seen the president that there would be an extra session. However, I place more dependence on what the president said."

She Scared the Burglar Away.

MOUNT STERLING, Ky., Sept. 7.—At 3 a. m. a burglar was discovered in the residence of Gen. John S. Williams by Mrs. Hendaughter, Miss Ida Williams, who snapped her revolver at the intruder three times, frightening him away, but not before he had taken a fine diamond pin belonging to Mrs. Judge Bailey, of Mount Pleasant, Tenn. He had also gotten two valises that contained about $10,000 worth of valuables, but Miss Williams had made it too hot for him and he left them on the porch.

Empire Marshall Not Dead.

CHARLOTTE, N. C., Sept. 7.—The story published north in a special from Charlotte that Umpire Marshall, of Wadesboro, this state, who was hit on the head with a baseball bat at a baseball game in Darlington, S. C., last week by Congressman Dargun's son, died Monday, is erroneous. Marshall is resting well now and his physician hopefully expects his permanent recovery.

HE FELT HURT.

The Romance of a Hotel, a Guest and a Departure.

His pantaloons were poked in his bootlegs, and the heels of the boots tapered at the ends to the proportions of a billiard cue. He wore on his head a wide brimmed hat, his face was hidden behind a beard of a week's growth, and his hair was ragged and unpermissable. But he was no slouch, if his appearance made him look like one. With a dash, and the least bit of exasperation illumining his eye, he rushed up to the desk of the Midland last night, and bringing his hand down with a thump, howled:

"You 'ere fellars be not stuck on my trade, be's yer?"

The affable clerk, after recovering his breath, meekly replied that the hotel was run for the accommodation of the traveling public, and that any insubordination on the part of employes meant prompt dismissal for the erring one.

"Then that'ar being the case, treat me decent," snapped the wild westerner. "I own 5,000 acres of as good land in Arizona as a bullock ever chawed grass from, and I have 10,000 head of 'em. I've been monkeying round this 'ar tavern starving all day, and I have not heard the gong ring for chuck. Besides, I writ my name down when I came in, and you're fellers ain't got sense enough to give me a bed. Out our way when a stranger goes to the tavern the landlord invites him to take a drink, steers him to the chuck room and sees him to bed. There's no cheer here, nohow, and I guess I'll hunt up another ranch."

He squirted a stream of tobacco juice on the marble floor and vanished.—Kansas City Times.

It Never Fails.

They had been friends and neighbors for fifteen years, but in an evil hour one of them put a telephone into the house and insisted that the other family should make use of it whenever occasion required. It was the o'l, old story. After about a month there was a coolness, and two weeks later even the respective servant girls made up faces at each other over the back fence. Then the next minister called at one of the houses, and as he was about to depart after his visit he inquired:

"Let me see. Don't the Spondulicks family live next door?"

"Spondulicks! Spondulicks!" repeated the lady. "Just wait and I'll ask the cook. She knows all the washwomen in this neighborhood!"

And when the new letter carrier left mail for the other family, he said:

"There must be a family named Gigback up this way somewhere. Ever hear of them?"

"Gigback! Gigback! Let's see. I'll ask my Tommy if that wasn't the name of the man who wanted to take care of our horse and run our furnace next winter?"—Detroit Free Press.

He Knew the Business.

Dirty Tramp—Madam, I am starving, but I wish you to know that I am a gentleman.

Lady of the House—How are you going to prove it?

Dirty Tramp—First let me have some soap and a piece to wash myself, and then I will thank you for what cold victuals you may have to spare.

He gets a bath and a hot dinner.—Lowell Citizen.

A Look Ahead.

Mother—Laura, you ought to make that young man of yours go home earlier.

Miss Laura—But we are engaged, mamma, and I don't see why——

Mother—You will get him into habits of staying out late that you will be sorry for some day, after the honeymoon is over.—Omaha World-Herald.

Very Rude.

Dicky Toolittle—I must apologize for my rudeness to you the other day; I usually—

Penelope—What was it? I'm sure I——

Dicky—Why, I talked to you through the telephone in my shirt sleeves, don't you know. I was at the office. It was awfully thoughtless of me.—Saturday Evening Herald.

Not Late Enough.

Black—Brown is one of those men who think it is never too late to mend.

White—Ah! He has reformed, then?

Black—No; he's still going on in the old way. It ain't late enough for him.—Boston Courier.

It Might Have Been Better Expressed.

Grace—And yet, dear, how little we have seen of each other lately, considering there is only a partition wall between us.

Edith—But then, dear, it is such a comfort to feel that you are on the other side.—Punch.

Nature's Divans.

Mother—Now, dear, if you must go to the picnic, please don't sit on the grass.

Daughter—Oh, no. Horatio promised to take me to a nice place where there are plenty of toadstools.—Lowell Citizen.

A Pastoral Hymn.

A feller was walkin' through the fields one day
And a-whistlin' at his best,
An' when, gittin' tired, he sot himself down
Kerplump on a bumble bees' nest,
He riz.

The bees, of course, took a sorter offense,
An' kinder resented the thing,
An' sot about protecting their interests
An' whoop bees got to work and sting.
Things stir.

The bees went to work a-swelling his ear,
An' one feller tackled his eye;
Kinder predicated the chap was in,
But he slapped himself, and then he'd cry
See who.

Finally, the chap got snuff of the thing
(That an hour 'fore he found it out);
An' as the bees numbered "knot a chequest to one,
He wisely concluded to meander whom
His ha.

PHYSIOLOGY AND HYGIENE.

Some Facts About Poisonous Snake Bites and a New Remedy for Them.

In an article on the cure of poisonous snake bites by hypodermic injections of liquid strychnine Dr. Mueller, of Victoria, Australia, affirms that an error which has cost many lives is the following, viz.: That poisonous snakes under all circumstances leave only two punctures, and that in any alleged case of snake bite showing more than two punctures we may safely infer that it was not inflicted by a poisonous snake. On the contrary he has met with fatal cases in which the poisonous bite left one, two, three or four punctures, depending on the position of the reptile, as well as of the part bitten. When the bite has been received in a part capable of being ligatured, as the foot or hand, a boot lace or string should be at once tightened as near the wound as possible, on the side toward the heart, to prevent absorption of the poison into the circulation.

With an antidote at hand, and no antidote, Dr. Mueller advises that, should the physician be unable to judge from the history of the case whether the symptoms emanged from fear or from snake poison, a small injection of liquid strychnine will, in case of mere fear, be quite sufficient to brace up the nervous system and restore confidence of recovery, while in all cases of snake poisoning quickly disappear. Their continuance would indicate the presence of snake poisons and call for larger injections of the antidote. But if in one of these cases alcohol, alcohol has been administered in excess, as is usually done, we find the patient in the condition of crime-alcoholic coma—and we must diagnose this from snake bite coma. In alcoholic coma, the pupil is as often contracted as dilated, and becomes greatly dilated in extreme cases only, but even then with a sluggish reaction to light; the conjunctiva is invariably injected, the pulse slow and small, and the respiration slow, intermittent and often stertorous. In snake bite coma, the pupil is always greatly dilated and insensible to light, the conjunctiva pale and not injected, the pulse quick and small and the respiration quick and labored.

Dr. Mueller claims that the use of alcohol in snake bite is perfectly useless, while, on the other hand, strychnine acts with the unerring certainty and precision of a chemical test. Purely physiological in action, it neutralizes the effects of the snake poison, and, if pushed beyond the amount needed to neutralize the snake poison, would itself act as a poison.

The amount of strychnine solution injected varied in the several cases cited from seventeen minims to one minim per dose, or from one-sixth to one-fifth of a grain, repeated from time to time as the snake poison symptoms returned.

The amount of strychnine required can only be estimated by the nature and virulence of the bite, and whether ligature and excision have been well performed.

Don't Turn the Gas Too Low.

In spite of the fact that these are days of popular enlightenment, the newspapers are not infrequently called upon to chronicle cases where gas poisoning has been caused through ignorantly blowing out the gas, instead of turning it off. Little attention, however, has been drawn to a danger not as great, but more common. This consists in the habit many persons have of allowing one bracket to burn dimly all night long while they are asleep. If the gas is low it burns a stench, it should for safety's sake be left blazing fairly high; for, when the flame is reduced to the faint blue spark, the least diminution in the force of the works will cause this to go out, and when the pressure is renewed the gas, of course, escapes steadily into the room, to the possible injury of all its inmates. A night lamp should be used, if light is necessary, or a fair likes is shaded as not to fall upon the faces of sleepers. A while family were nearly killed recently through leaving a low light too low to survive the lapse of pressure soon after midnight.

SOCIAL ETIQUETTE.

Garden Parties—Informal Entertainment of the Out of Door Season.

At this time of the year a garden party presents itself in bright colors. We fancy we can enjoy the society of our friends in a less formal manner than we are able to do at dinner parties, or even the "at homes."

The first thing to be done is to send out the invitations, on which do not put R. S. V. P. Ask a certain number and reckon that a certain, proportion will turn up when the day comes; a few more or less will not matter, and it gives a feeling of ease when a family party know they can arrange as they like. If people are requested to answer they often accept and then find later that they are unable to come. In the country this is often the case. The number of guests must naturally depend on the size of your grounds, but do not ask too many: it is better to give two moderate sized parties than one unwieldy one. The grounds must also provide for the possibility of a wet day.

Now, as to refreshments. The dining room is often used, but, except in case of rain, this is fatal to the all important nature of a garden party. In any case the table must be entirely removed, and a buffet substituted, behind which the servants can stand, and across which they can hand tea, etc. This is easily managed by placing a suitable board on trestles, which can be hired for the purpose either in town or country. An excellent arrangement lately used was one adapted over a long wall at one end of the garden was fitted with an awning just wide enough to shade a narrow table, or buffet, behind which stood the servants, the guests moving to and fro at pleasure. This plan can be carried out, and near the house, in front, dotted over the grass, can stand several small tables, at which the guests sit comfortably, and thus prevent too much crowding at the buffet. If you have not a sufficient number of small tables borrow them from friends or hire them from some large firm who supply such things, but they must be small and light, so as to be easily moved. One or more servants should be told off to attend to these tables, and to see that no crumbs or empty cups, etc., are left standing about. In the event of rain the buffet can be placed in the dining room or hall, as already suggested, and if a conservatory is available the small tables will be found useful. Near the tennis lawn should stand a table in a shady spot, plentifully supplied with cooling drinks.

If the hostess has sons and daughters they will naturally look after the different departments; but if she is not blessed in this way, she should collect a staff of helpers among her young friends, each of whom should take a share of the responsibility, as the hostess will be entirely occupied in receiving her guests, and should not be worried with minor matters, after having made every possible provision before hand. One of these assistants should take charge of the music, and send up the sets; another should be at hand near the refreshments to see that every one is attended to; another should gather the guests who may wish to stroll round the garden and point out the prettiest views, and show any new or rare plants that are of interest. The best use should make a few notes for the guidance of her helpers as to people who wish to meet and those who have interests in common.

SCIENCE AND PROGRESS.

SUBJECTS OF A PRACTICAL NATURE SURE TO INTEREST READERS.

Electric Lighting by the Knowles System.

An Illustrated Description of the Storage Battery—An Experiment in Equilibration Affords a Pleasing Recreation.

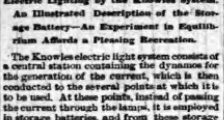
The Knowles electric light system consists of a central station containing the dynamos for the generation of the current, which is then conducted to the several points at which it is to be used. At these points, instead of passing the current through the lamps, it is employed in storage batteries, and from these storage batteries the current for lamp use is obtained. It is maintained that this system is more economical and that it allows of longer circuits than that of direct distribution.

The system has been in operation for some time in Brooklyn, N. Y. The battery station in this Brooklyn plant is about half a mile away from the dynamo station.



STORAGE BATTERY—KNOWLES' PATENT.

In his secondary battery Mr. Knowles has several new features, and has avoided the application of the active material as a paste. The figure in the cut, a reprint from Science, shows the cell complete. The perforated plates of non-oxidizable alloy are made in two sheets, between which is held a layer of the active material, which is molded to the right shape before being placed between the two halves of the retaining plates. When ready the whole is assembled as shown in the illustration, flexible insulating rods being passed through the hooks cast on the plates top and bottom.

An Experiment in Equilibrium.

A pleasing scientific recreation is afforded by a box of dominoes, the problem being to stand every piece upon its point without the aid of any foreign object. This, explains La Nature, is accomplished by arranging them in a circle, as shown in the engraving, the first domino being kept in position by resting it against another one which lays flat upon the table. When the circle is almost completed the two ends are carefully steadied with the hands, and the recumbent domino raised to an upright position, forming, as it were, the keystone of the structure. This is the only part of the experiment requiring any care, and, as is shown in the engraving, the greatest stability is obtained by giving the dominoes such an inclination that the top of each rests against the middle dividing line of the succeeding one.

STANDING EVERY DOMINO UPON ITS POINT.

By another method it is even possible to arrange the dominoes in a straight line. To do this, the cover of the box is used as a support for the first piece, and the others are placed in the same order as in the previous experiment, taking care to make the inclination somewhat less. After all are in place, the cover is steadied by a rubber band pressed together, while the line of dominoes is gently worked back and forth until the desired stability is obtained, when the box cover may be removed and the dominoes left standing by themselves, mutually supported by each other upon their points.

The Cause of Fog.

H. A. Hazen, in Science, asserts the cause of fog as follows: 1. It is essential that there be no wind. I do not mean that the wind does not blow after the fog is formed, but there must be little or none while it is forming. 2. The sky must be clear. We often notice a cloudless sky after a fog is dissolved. On several occasions "fog" is entered as fair, for, though not a particle of sky is visible, yet it is almost a certainty that the sky is clear. 3. The air must be saturated or nearly so. It is a very surprising how rarely the last condition occurs at inland stations. A relative humidity of 95 per cent has been noted in the air in which rain is falling and had been falling continuously for seventeen hours. This condition almost always can occur only to the south, southeast or northeast of a storm. At nightfall, whenever these conditions combine, there is a rapid radiation from the earth to the sky, which speedily supersaturates the overlying air; and after that radiation from the upper surface of the cloud

POLICE COURT NEWS.

Six Persons Arrested for Various Offenses.

Saturday evening Michael Cox, a young man about eighteen years old, filled up with "fire-water" and imagined he owned Front street. He was so abusive that Policeman Hedges found it his duty to lock him up, and he accordingly did so. Yesterday morning the "fi rave" Michael pleaded guilty to the charge of being drunk and disorderly, and it being his second offense, Judge Stillman fined him $10, which was paid.

Policeman Giese arrested Charles Payne for being drunk and disorderly Saturday evening, and yesterday morning that individual from the rural district informed Policeman Lynch that "he would sooner be in church than where he was". He was given the privilege of going where he chose after he paid a five dollar fine imposed by City Judge Stillman.

Policeman Flanagan and Grant last night arrested James Harding and James Coffield for creating a disturbance at the corner of Third and Washington streets. This morning Judge Stillman fined them each $10.

Paul Uxmann was last night arrested by Policeman Lynch for indecent exposure. This morning Judge Stillman fined him $5.

A man named Bowman was arrested by Policeman Giese last night for using foul and indecent language. This morning he pleaded not guilty to the charge and Judge Stillman released him on $50 bail to appear for trial at two o'clock this afternoon.

Bowman failed to appear at the time set for his trial.

PERSONAL.

Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Dolbier, of Bayonne, are visiting at Westfield.

Mr. Robert Taylor, of Westfield, is lying ill at Berlin, Md., with typhoid fever.

Mr. Charles Thompson, of No. 7 Washington street, is visiting friends in Lambertville.

Mrs. Ceri Kearth, of East Second street, returned Saturday, from a week's stay at Blue Point, L. I.

Mr. John Traynor, formerly of Plainfield, but now of Yonkers, N. Y., spent Sunday with friends here.

Mrs. J. B. Damont and her three children, of West Seventh street, returned home Saturday from a two months sojourn at the White Mountains.

The Rev. Goyn Talmadge, a brother of the late Rev. T. De Witt Talmadge, preached an eloquent and instructive sermon in the Trinity Reformed church, last evening.

Messrs. G. C. Martin, jr., J. Frank Martin, and Jules Erickson, of West Eighth street, returned Saturday from a two weeks' weeks outing at Wyalusing, Pa.

Mrs. D. A. Mills, of Summit avenue, who has been visiting relatives in various parts of New York State, arrived home yesterday morning. She has been gone about five weeks.

Mrs. Jula A., wife of the late James Fairmar, died at the residence of her son-in-law, Mr. M. H. Brandon, on West Front street Sunday afternoon. Her remains will be taken to Pittsburgh for interment.

Mr. William A. Coddington, of West Front street left Plainfield this afternoon for Boston, in the interest of the Montague heirs. Mr. Coddington was give the power of attorney to settle the estate, which is valued at about $50,000.

"Gaily We Go", is the title of a new music composition by Dorsey W. Hyde, of this city, published by George Molloneux, of New York. It is inscribed to Mr Hyde's little sister, Edith L., which circumstance alone shows how highly Mr. Hyde, who is among the most accomplished of our musicians, regards it.

Miss Luella G. Northup, the charming daughter of Mr. W. H. Northup, of East Front street, foreman of the foundry at Scott's Press Works, returned home Sunday morning from a two months' visit at her uncle's, at Providence, R. I. Her uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Young, accompanied her on a return visit to Plainfield, where they are accustomed to spend a portion of every Summer season.

The Rev. D. W. Morehouse, of New York, who preached yesterday for the Unitarian congregation recently organized in Plainfield, says that since 1852 the organization has increased eighty-five per cent., and the contributions for missionary work have quadrupled, while the ratio of increase for the past five years greatly exceeds that of any other corresponding period in the history of the denomination, facts which tend to prove that the organization is not decreasing, as has been published in papers throughout the country upon the authority of a statement contained some time ago in The Boston Herald.

The pastor of the Methodist church, Rev. Chas. B. Mitchell, and wife, who have been traveling through Europe for the past six months, returned last Friday. During their absence a great affliction had befallen Mrs. Mitchell in the death of her mother, at her home in Pittsburg, Pa. Mr. and Mrs. Mitchell started immediately upon their arrival, for Pittsburg, where they will probably stay until next Thursday or Friday. Mr. Mitchell will occupy the pulpit Sunday. The ladies of the church give their usual monthly sociable next Friday evening in Vinchet chapel. and all those who wish to welcome Mr. and Mrs. Mitchell back, will have an opportunity then.

Republican Primaries.

The Republican voters of the city of Plainfield are requested to meet on Thursday evening, September 12th, at the following places, for the purpose of electing one delegate from each ward, to the Gubernatorial Convention, to be held on the 17th inst.:

First Ward at the Association rooms, over the City National Bank, at 7:45 p. m. Second Ward at the Association rooms, at 8 o'clock. Third Ward at the Park House, at 5 o'clock. Fourth Ward at the Association rooms, at 8:15 o'clock.

By order of the City Executive Committee.
C. M. GODDARD, Chairman.
J. B. COWARD, Secretary.

Sept. 3, 1889.

SOMERVILLE BASE-BALL.

THE CRESCENTS AND WEST ENDS ALMOST AT BLOWS.

The Plainfield Visitors Become Indignant and Leave in a Body. — A Stormy Game Throughout.

The Somerville West Ends and the Plainfield Crescents have had another wrangling match, which they dignify by the name of base-ball. These two clubs, have each an opinion of the other. Some say it means blood. They are so evenly matched that a point is to them of almost as much importance as the game. Therefore, when they are playing, and the umpire gives a decision that is not to their liking, they all crowd around and call him and each other pet names. Knowing this, and to give a person an idea of the wonderfully interesting game last Saturday at the West End's grounds, it is only necessary to say that they had a "dickering closty meeting", about every five minutes, over some dissectible or cussible point.

Volapuk is not generally known, but the language used upon these occasions, is certainly not to be found in "Webster's".

At one time they would only be occupied by a John L. or as it once was in Massachusetts. There, a game was to be played between two such nines as the game of Saturday.

The umpire, knowing that he would not be equal to the sudden changes of atmosphere likely to take place, induced a western cowboy cousin, out on a visit, to take his place.

When the day of the game came, the western cousin appeared at the grounds, in his cowboy costume, lasso, revolvers and all. A few minutes elapsed, he called the game off. It proceeded for a short time all well and good. Then one of the players knocked a ball outside the flag. The umpire called foul. The batter turned, gave him a look, and then as he started for the first base, told the umpire to go to — with a place that don't look well on paper. He had almost reached first base, and was doubtlessly chuckling as he thought how he had bluffed the umpire, when he received a sudden check and come down. A lasso had fallen over his shoulders and pinioned his arms to his sides. In this condition he was ignominiously dragged through the dust by the "sassy little umpire" back to the plate, and then while covered with a pistol he was told to "go on and play ball and herself is to understand that a foul was a foul, and not a cyclone or a tornado and left".

Thereafter they did play ball, and without any fighting, for the umpire discussed and backed all his opinions with his pistols, and brought back any player that started to run by his lasso.

Mr. Matherson, the umpire on Saturday's game, while a very gentlemanly, straightforward person, was not the one to be umpire over such a game. In the first place he probably knows as much about Brown-Sequard's elixir as he does about base-ball; and in the second place he was altogether too much the mouth-piece of Harkins, of the West Ends. Once when the West Ends were at the bat, a ball was knocked out to centre field by one of the players, who reached second base. The ball was thrown to Cary, the short stop, of the Crescents, who as he saw the fellow was not watching, threw the ball to the second baseman, to put him out. It was caught and thrown aside by the West End man, who then started hot foot for, and reached, third base. Such a thing of course ought to put him out. But when the umpire was discernible through the clouds of dust and players coursing him, it was known that he decided to "kind of even things off" by sending the player back to second base. The game was full of just such decisions, each club receiving its share. The audience in the grand stand afforded more amusement to one who could appreciate it, than the game itself. Hardly a man or a woman either, would keep their seat for five consecutive minutes, each one standing on their seats, and trying to drown out, by rapping canes and shouting, the friends of the opposite club, when they applauded a good play. There was much illfeeling throughout. It had been given out, several days before the game, that the West Ends had determined to win, fair or foul, and the game justified that conclusion. Harkins, who is a professional, has a trick of throwing the ball, when he is pitching so as to strike the man at the bat, sometimes disabling the latter. He has done this so often that his pretence that it is accidental has ceased to go, and Saturday, when he struck McMurray with the ball, the latter quickly retaliated by hurling the bat at Harkins who succeeded in dodging it, and probably saving himself from serious injury.

Before the game was over a train-load of Plainfield left Somerville in a body, generally denouncing the West Ends as too much given to unfairness to play with, and declaring that they would never go to see another game of the Crescents if they had anything to do with the West Ends beyond the considerable money what bet on the game. A colored man in this city claimed to have won $17, through a tip that the West Ends had fixed things to claim the game anyhow. The game was a tie at the ninth innings. The Crescents were induced to continue the innings more. Harkins resumed his old trick, and struck one of the Crescents in the head with a ball, the umpire, however, refused to allow him first base, and the Crescents then refused to play any longer.

The feeling against Harkins is very bitter. Some one remarked on the train, "Well, you can't expect anything honorable from a saloon-keeper." It seems that Harkins has kept a saloon, and the person who made the remark regards saloon-keepers as a bad lot generally.

THE GAME.

First innings—Bishop's high fly was nicely taken in by Bowes, and Hammill caught a nice one from Cuff's bat and then Currie struck Williams out. Lee hit the first ball pitched at Harkins but it was to hot for him to hold, he then stole second and third. McMurray struck out. Cadmus got first on ball and stole second. Both he and Lee were left as Bowes struck out and W. J. Currie flew out to Williams.

Second innings—Harkins was presented with a large bouquet of flowers by his friends Currie then amid the shouts of the boy's struck him out. Sutlich flew out to Hornell and Bergen to Hamm ill. Cary was thrown out by Harkins. W. Currie flew out to Davenport and Hornell struck out.

Third innings—Davenport was thrown out by W. J. Currie. Kelly and Frelinghuysen struck out. Hammill was sent to first on four ball ball and stole second. Lee flew out to Kelly. McMurray then hit for three bases and Hammill scored. Cadmus struck out and Bowes was thrown out at first.

Fourth innings—Bishop fouled out to Currie. Cuff was given his base on balls, went to third on Williams's two-bagger, and scored on a wild pitch. Harkins hit to Cary who made a nice stop, threw to the plate and cut off Williams. Sutlich then hit for a base, but both were left as Bergen went out at first. W. J. Currie struck out. Cary also struck out, but Cuff muffed the third strike, he stole second and went to third on Cuff's error, and came home on W. Currie's hit. Hornell flew out to Williams, and Hammill struck out.

Fifth innings—Davenport went out at first. Kelly got first on Cary's error. Frelinghuysen flew to Bishop got first on balls Both he and Kelly were advanced a base on a passed ball. Kelly then came home on Cuff's two-bagger, and Bishop on Williams's safe hit. Harkins then flew out to Hammill. Lee went out at first. McMurray got his base on balls. Cadmus flew out to Frelinghuysen and Bowes struck out.

Sixth innings—Sublich flew out to Bowes. Bergen hit for a base and was forced to second on Davenport's base on balls. Both were left. Cary struck out, and Frelinghuysen went out at first. W. Currie scored on Cuff, Cary hit safely, and by fine running scored on W. Currie's two-base hit. Hornell struck out and Hammill went out at first.

Seventh innings—Bishop went out at first. Cuff hit for a base, Williams also hit safely and while the ball was being thrown around Cuff scored. Harkins flew out to Hammill. Sublich got first on balls and stole second, but both were left as Bergen struck out. Lee went to first on balls. McMurray was hit by pitched ball, Cadmus struck out, Lee then scored on Bowes safe hit. Bowes stole second. W. J. Currie hit to Williams, who cut McMurray off at the plate. Bowes then stole the home plate. Cary went out at first.

Eighth innings—Gateley went in to pitch and Bowes to center field. Currie going to center field and W. J. Currie on the bench. Davenport hit for a base. Kelly flew out to Hammill. Frelinghuysen went out at first, and Lee caught a fly from Bishop's bat for which he had to run away out into left field. W. Currie went out at first, and Hornell and Hammill struck out.

Ninth innings—Cuff was thrown out at first. Williams hit for two-bases and scored on Hammill's error of Harkin's hit. Sublich went out at first and Bergen flew out to Cadmus. Cary fouled out to Cuff. McMurray struck out and Cadmus was thrown out at first.

Tenth innings—Gateley then hit Davenport, and gave Kelly his base on balls. Frelinghuysen got first on Hammill's error. Bishop then flew out to Cary, and Cuff to W. Currie, as Currie caught the ball Davenport started home, the ball bounded over Bowes's head, and both Davenport and Kelly came home Williams then flew out to Cadmus. Bowes went out at first, and Gateley struck out. Cary was then hit by the ball. Captain Bowes then refused to play any longer, and took the nine off the field. The game was then given to the West Ends by a score of 9 to 0. All of the new men played a good game. Lee and Cadmus did their usual good work.

George Thatcher's New Move.

[From The Boston Herald.]

Many persons thought that the statement that Mr. George Thatcher was to withdraw from the ministrel firm of Thatcher, Primrose & West was merely an advertising dodge, and that the trouble in the firm was simply manufactured by the advertising agents; but the fact that yesterday Mr. Thatcher signed a five years' contract with Messrs. Rice & Harris proves conclusively that the firm has not been broken up, but has been dissolved. The partners, who made a fortune of no small proportions during the past few years, could no longer agree, and each has his own version of the trouble to tell to personal friends. The quarrel is a matter of regret, as it has no special interest to the public, which is mainly interested in them as performers. Managers Rice and Harris are likely to profit by the dissolution of the firm, as they will this year add Mr. Thatcher to their Howard Athenaeum All Star Specialty company as an extraordinary attraction, and next year will manage the tour of George Thatcher's minstrels, which will be one of the strongest organizations ever placed on the road in this country.

THE SCHOOLS OPEN.

After a Two Months' Vacation the Scholars Resume Work.

The public schools of this city commenced another year's good work this morning. A large number of pupils were present. At the High School Judge Wadsworth and the Rev. Dr. A. H. Lewis addressed the scholars and visitors. In behalf of the Board of Education Judge Wadsworth welcomed the scholars back to their labors again. Dr. Lewis also made a brief address. A letter from Mr. Bulkley was then read. She expressed her sorrow at being absent from the opening exercises for the first time in seventeen years, but felt grateful that she would be with them again in a little while.

Mr. Goodrich will assume charge of the schools until Miss Bulkley's return.

The North Plainfield Public school opened this morning with an enrollment of over 500 scholars. Miss McCoy, of New Brunswick will teach the sixth-grade class. Rev. T. Logan Murphy addressed a few remarks to the scholars.

St. Mary's Parochial school commenced the year's labor this morning. Nearly four hundred scholars were enrolled.

AT ST. MARY'S CHURCH.

Bishop Wigger Administers the rite of Confirmation.

The seating capacity of St. Mary's church was taxed to its utmost yesterday morning at half-past ten o'clock, the occasion being the ninth anniversary of the dedication of that edifice. The Rev. Father Stafford celebrated the solemn high mass and at its conclusion Bishop Wigger preached a sermon, after which he administered the rite of confirmation to about one hundred and fifty persons, adults and children. The music for the occasion was furnished by the male choir, Mr. David Lyons presiding at the organ. In the evening Vespers were sung after which the Rev. Dr. Kennedy, of Philadelphia, preached an eloquent sermon on the "Nativity of the Blessed Virgin." The congregation was dismissed with the benediction of the Blessed Sacrament.

Yesterday afternoon about 500 assembled at the St. Mary's cemetery to witness Bishop Wigger dedicate the new plot of ground recently purchased by St. Mary's congregation.

A HORSE THIEF ESCAPES.

He Stole a Rig at Sterling, and took Passage Here.

A constable from Sterling drove into Plainfield at about six o'clock last evening and informed the authorities of this city that a young German, whose name he did not know, but who had been in the employ of Mr. Joseph King, of that place, had during Mr. King's absence, in the afternoon, stole a horse and carriage, a gold watch and chain, about sixty-one dollars in money and some of Mr. King's best clothing.

A search for the missing rig revealed the fact that the thief had left it in charge of a backman at the station and had taken the train for parts unknown. He did not purchase a railroad ticket and all efforts to trace him were unsuccessful.

Mr. King came to Plainfield this morning and said the man's name is Rhinehards Myer and offered $100 reward for his capture.

Broke His Wrist.

"Maud" Slater, age about 10 years, son of ex-Councilman Slater, of Jackson avenue, North Plainfield, fell from an apple tree Saturday afternoon and broke his right wrist.

—A large audience was present at the regular weekly meeting of the Reform Club last night.

—Leaves have already commenced to fall from many trees, probably on account of the two weeks' drought which has been experienced.

—As the days shorten and the nights grow cooler the malarial season tightens its grip upon the patient but helpless public. Damp air, impure water and unripened fruit are the agents which at this time of the year furnish doctors and undertakers with so much new business. Fruits are exceptionally dangerous this year, the cool weather of Summer having prevented them from ripening properly.—Hunterdon County Democrat.

PLAINFIELD EVENING NEWS
THE NEWSPAPER OF PLAINFIELD AND VICINITY, IS PUBLISHED AT 4:30 O'CLOCK EVERY AFTERNOON, AT NO. 11 SOMERSET STREET,

Work for the lower masses of humanity every where is of a character indicating, as has been said, that "the era of sentimentalism is passed." Crime and poverty are to be classified, analyzed, and their causes looked into scientifically by the new school of philanthropists. It is to be hoped that the new school will have better success in curing the disease than the old ever had. There is every reason why they should have, too, since they go at the matter of reform in a reasonable, sensible way.

The time of year for fall tree planting will soon be at hand. It is cheering to observe that every year more and more attention is paid to the fostering of trees and grass plots in our villages and cities. In many cases towns full of bare, bald little wooden houses have become so embowered in lines of shade as to make the whole landscape charming and green and useful, so that the traveler does not notice the shabby houses. So plant trees and encourage your children to plant them. In nearly every part of the Union where the hillsides along water courses have been stripped of timber and washed into deep gullies, willow sprouts may be planted in the bottom of these gullies in the fall or early spring, and they will take root and stop the wash. In an incredibly short time they will become trees, holding the soil and shading the earth.

Tschernischewski.

"This name," says a newspaper writer, "is a watchword among the people throughout the length and breadth of Russia." If this be true, it is no wonder the inhabitants of Russia are bloody Nihilists. A people who will make a watchword of a name like that would be capable of anything.

The man who carries this formidable name is called the father of Nihilism. Twenty-five years ago he was a Russian man of wealth. He was 35 years old, had been delicately reared and highly educated, and was in the possession of all that makes life desirable.

One May morning at 8 o'clock Tschernischewski was placed in the pillory in a public square of St. Petersburg and a sentence read banishing him to hard labor in the salt mines of Siberia. He had been advocating in burning, ringing words the liberation of the serfs. It was his efforts which started the final movement that freed them. Then he went further, and wrote pamphlets advocating the abolishment of private ownership in land, depriving the nobility of their special privileges, disbanding the army, and conferring on women all the legal and civil rights of men. For this he was sent to Siberia. But in prison he managed to write two more books secretly. One, entitled "What Is to Be Done?" is a novel, and has been called the gospel and encyclopedia of Nihilism. For writing this book he was sentenced to several additional years in Siberia.

Now, at the age of 60, broken in body and mind, penniless and alone in the world, he has just been pardoned by Czar Alexander III.

New Army Tactics.

In twenty-two years there have been no changes in the United States army tactics, though other nations have revised theirs to conform to modern mechanical improvements. A year and a half ago, however, a board of officers were appointed by our own government to go over our army tactics carefully and make needed improvements. Upton's manual has been the textbook in use ever since the war.

The revising board remained in Washington a considerable time, studying the book part of the work before them. Then they went in a body to Fort Leavenworth to try on real soldiers the effect of the changes they proposed. At the conclusion of their labors a new drill book will be published and our army tactics will be complete.

There will be changes in all branches of the service. In the practice with arms there will be simplification. Also, when a company is allowed to go off duty, the command to them will no longer be, "Break ranks, march," but "Dismiss, march." This is considered an improvement.

The physical drilling and gymnastic exercises will be considerably added to and increased in thoroughness. This will doubtless add much to the grace, strength and precision of the soldier. It is a part of the athletic craze now sweeping over the country, and is a change which will rejoice all who are interested in the appearance and the efficiency of our army. The additional movements belong to the class known as setting up exercises. In the new tactics a difference will be made in movements for field and for garrison.

In connection with these briefly noted changes in our own tactics may be mentioned the fact that the military authorities of the German army are beginning to favor the use of lance instead of saber for cavalry.

CRIMES OF A SINGLE DAY

The Brutal Assassination of a Newark Man.

FOUR BULLETS WERE IN HIS BODY

And His Throat Was Cut from Ear to Ear—A Tragedy That Is Shrouded in Mystery—Other Deeds of Violence and Blood.

NEWARK, N. J., Sept. 9.—The body of a man, apparently about 35 years of age, was found at East Newark at 11 a. m., about 100 yards from Stanley's stone crusher and the same distance from the river bank. His throat was cut from ear to ear; two bullets had pierced his heart, another had entered the left side and was lodged in the shoulder, and still another had entered the abdomen.

Four Death Wounds on His Body.

Any but one of the bullets would have caused death, and the wound in the throat was also sufficient to has killed the man.

The deceased was neatly dressed, his shoes were polished and his underclothing clean, and there was not a particle of blood on the clothing.

It Is a Mysterious Affair.

There were no signs of a scuffle, and there is not a doubt in the mind of Chief Hopper that the body was carried to the spot where it was found. The Italians of Newark all live on River street, which runs along the river, and there is a suspicion that the body was rowed across the river and carried to the spot where it was found. The police are working on this theory.

The body has been identified as that of Frank Arvalento, formerly lived in Pittsburg and New York. He has been living in Newark but two months. It is understood that he stabbed his son-in-law in New York and has since been in hiding in Newark. It is believed that some of the friends of his son-in-law followed him here and murdered him.

The police have a description of a man who crossed the bridge with Arvelios on Saturday night and it tallies with his son-in-law, who it is now learned, is living at 89 Mulberry street, New York. Newark officers have gone after him.

A Fatal Riot at New Castle.

WILMINGTON, Del., Sept. 9.—A riot occurred at New Castle, Del., between Hungarians, employed at the Tasker Iron works, and a gang of Irish Americans. The Irishmen were in Martin Leonardi's saloon at 7 o'clock when a gang of Huns entered and created disorder. The sheriff arrested eight Huns and put the Irishmen out of the saloon. Both factions returned later, the Huns armed with fence palings, and a melee took place about midnight. The Irishmen were at drunk and armed with guns and other weapons. They attacked a row of houses in the suburbs of the town where they supposed the Huns lived, but which were occupied by Poles. Shutters and windows were smashed and a general riot took place, in which four Irish-Americans were hurt. The sheriff made another raid and arrested thirty-four men, and then the streets quieted down, but about 2 o'clock in the morning a Pole went out of his house to the yard and he was set upon by the Irish-Americans, who were watching, and he was beaten and shot through the heart. Great excitement prevails in the town. The men were arrested and given a hearing before the mayor and held for court.

Race Troubles in Georgia.

STOCKTON, Ga., Sept. 9.—A white man stabbed a negro at this place, and this so enraged the blacks that they surrounded the store in which the white man took refuge and demanded that he be given up, or they burn the store if the request were not complied with. A race war is feared. The whites have telegraphed to Valdosta for re-enforcements and twenty-five armed whites have left there for the scene of the trouble.

Foul Play Is Suspected.

ZANESVILLE, O., Sept. 9.—At about 8 a. m the body of Charles Wurster, a rolling mill man, aged 45 years, was found in a pool of water at the bottom of the elevator shaft at Stolenbach's distillery, now building in Court alley. His forehead, nose and eyes were crushed to a jelly, and he was only identified by his clothes. Wurster was a sober, industrious laborer, with a wife and several children. There are strong suspicions of foul play, as certain parties are accused of having threatened him harm.

Murder and Suicide.

CHARLESTON, S. C., Sept. 9.—In York county W. B. Boyd, a mulatto man, shot his wife and then killed himself. Mrs. Boyd lived only an hour after being shot. She was the second wife of Boyd. He left here some years ago with his first wife for Atlanta. He returned without her claiming to have been divorced. The fate of the second wife suggests that he may have murdered his first wife.

A Brutal Wife Beater.

NEWARK, N. J., Sept. 9.—John Gillesheimer beat and kicked his wife so badly that she will probably die, and if she recovers she will be crippled for life. She was about to become another Gillesheimer before the end. He has been in custody before for the same offense.

A Railway Trust This Time.

NEW YORK, Sept. 8.—The bankers and their counsel who were prominent in effecting the formation of the Interstate Railway association are now actively engaged in perfecting a railway trust under the title of "The North American Railway Investors' Union." The movement is in charge of J. J. McCook, Pierrepont Morgan's counsel, and it is understood that Gould, Huntington, the Vanderbilts and Sloan, Philadelphia and London interests have agreed to deposit enough stock with the union to assure the success of the scheme.

Duellist Huff Did Not Appear.

ATLANTA, Sept. 9.—The Huff-Patterson duel did not take place. The Patterson party left the city on the train for Sulphur Springs in the morning and waited in the woods all day for Huff, who failed to put in an appearance. In the meantime Huff was being chased over three counties in Alabama by officers. He succeeded in keeping out of their way during the day and returned to Columbus, Ga., where he was arrested.

He Fell from a Window.

ATLANTA, Ga., Sept. 9.—Dr. H. H. Tucker, one of the best known Baptist clergymen in the south, fell from a second story window in which he was seated, and sustained injuries which will doubtless prove fatal.

Accidentally Shot His Wife.

RICHMOND, Va., Sept. 9.—At Smokytown, Norfolk county, Andrew Johnson, a negro, shot his wife through the body while trying to draw the lead from an old gun. The condition of the woman is precarious.

THE REPUBLICAN MAJORITY.

A Washington Paper Reviews the Peculiar Situation in the House.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 9.—The Post in speaking about the disadvantages the Republicans will labor under, with their slim majority in the next house of representatives, says:

"If the next congress were called into session forthwith the Republicans would have a majority of three. This is not very large, and it depends entirely upon the question of a quorum is raised. There are 325 members of the house, and it requires 163 members to constitute a quorum. As the Republicans have 168 altogether, the absence of two members would place them at the mercy of the minority if the minority choose to obstruct business by voting. The journal could not be adopted if the point of no quorum was raised, provided the minority did not vote.

"All that resources of the party could not keep a quorum in the house fifteen minutes if one was secured and the doors not locked. The most careless observer of legislative proceedings can see that the Republican majority is not a majority at all, except for such a momentous purpose as electing a speaker, when the attendance of everymember can be secured. For doing anything more than accomplishing the mere work of organization, it would be out of the question. The fact that a working majority in the face of opposition from the beginning does not exist is obvious. The suggestion, therefore, comes that it is policy to wait until the congressmen from the new states appear with their representatives before the Republican majority is swelled to six. The presumption is that when the membership of the house is increased to 330 by the admission of the five new states the majority will be elected, four will be added to the Republican and one to the Democratic column, making the relative strength of the two parties in the house of representatives 168 Republicans to 162 Democrats.

"A little figuring will show that the situation will not be bettered much even with this increased Republican majority. With a membership of 330 it will require 166 to constitute a quorum. Assuming that the minority for obstructive purposes decline to vote, the Republicans will be compelled to produce 166 members out of a total of 168. Three absentees on the side of the majority places it hopelessly at the mercy of the minority, and all the laws of chance in the case that can be regularly made will not affect the constitutional requirement as regards a quorum.

"Can a quorum be produced with such a small majority in the event of the minority filibustering?

"It cannot be done six times in six months. In the last congress the Democrats had some experience in that direction. Their majority over the Republicans and Independents combined was eleven. One of the Independents acted uniformly with the Democrats and practically their majority was increased to that extent. Yet on the most important occasion it was not in their task to get a quorum when the Republicans refused to vote.

"On several occasions the Democrats had to filibuster to prevent the Republicans from securing a quorum. On the Independent Democrat paired. The neglectful and delinquent members who hang around committee rooms when they ought to be on the floor, and who have to be fished out of the nearest bar when roll calls are in progress, are the horror of party leaders.

"A case in point is furnished by the Carlisle-Mills contest. Mr. Carlisle has been elected speaker even though his seat was contested. There was no higher duty to the party demanded of the Democratic members during the Fiftieth congress than to see that their speaker was fully supported in the contest. Notwithstanding the importance of the issue from a party standpoint, when the vote was taken there were enough Democratic members absent to have unseated speaker Carlisle.

"As it was, a large number of Republicans voted with the Democrats and the absentees had no assurances that such would be the result. One of the absentees was a New York Democratic congressman who was repeatedly telegraphed to attend the session. There were plenty of trains to enable him to get to Washington without losing much time. When too late to get here, he telegraphed that he would be here in an important law case. It afterwards turned out that he was trying to get remitted a fine of $15 imposed on one of his constituents for illegal liquor selling.

"Most party men would have preferred to have paid the amount rather than risk the consequent delinquency. Yet this member took the opposite course. Like him to take the trouble to come to Washington.

"The above is a sample of Democratic experiences. In the coming congress the Democratic leaders will be closely watched. The Republican leaders sweat in the effort to poll the full strength of their party."

Nearly Roasted Alive.

MANISTEE, Mich., Sept. 9.—The steam barge Charles Reitz caught fire off Big Point from sparks of fire falling into some hay on the deck. Considerable hay was destroyed, besides burning the deck and sails. The alarm of fire startled two men from their berths in the forecastle. They rushed up stairs, finding the hatch near the cabin door ablaze. The first man passed through with slight injuries, but John Newmeyer, who attempted to follow in his bare feet, fell in the flames and was burned terribly. The terrible agony of his body being seriously burned and his face, hands and feet burnt to a crisp. Physicians have no hopes of his recovery. Newmeyer hails from Middleburg, N. Y., is 28 years of age and unmarried.

The Assembly Ceiling Contract.

ALBANY, Sept. 9.—Attorney General Tabor will bring the assembly ceiling contract matter before the grand jury at once. The investigation into the matter began next Thursday and will continue through Friday and Saturday. Subpoenas have already been issued for two witnesses who testified regarding the ceiling scandal before the assembly special committee, and also for some persons who had knowledge of some material facts.

Festivities at Camp Harper.

GETTYSBURG, Pa., Sept. 9.—The second day of Camp Samuel Harper was devoted to religious exercises, in which the veterans took part, and to a drive over the battlefield in the afternoon. Chaplain Sayres preached the sermon and there was a service of song in the evening. Many more veterans are expected.

Ruthless Waves at Coney Island.

NEW YORK, Sept. 9.—There was a heavy southeast wind which drove the waves high over the bridge at Coney Island channels. Many small booths were carried away, the marine railway was flooded, and walking along the beach was impossible. The water was higher than at any time since the heavy gales of last spring.

Hurled His Wife from a Window.

BROOKLYN, Sept. 9.—Michael Dillon, while drunk, threw his aged wife from a window forty feet below. Mrs. Dillon's thighs are fractured, one of her arms broken and her skull crushed. She will not recover. Her husband was arrested.

CHINESE EVADE THE LAW

They are Smuggled in from Cuba

AS CITIZENS OF FAR AWAY SPAIN

There are Three Hundred Strange Chinamen in Mott Street, New York—The Mystery as to How They Pass the Forbidden Portal Fully Explained.

NEW YORK, Sept. 9.—The increasing number of Chinese in New York city is a matter of speculation which has had no apparent solution. The colony augmented mysteriously and steadily, but no information as to the manner of these additions could be gained. There are at present over three hundred strange Chinamen in New York. That these aliens were in some manner or other smuggled into this port was evident, but the manner in which it was accomplished remained unsolved until a reporter investigated the matter.

A Regular Smuggling Business.

It now develops that a regular smuggling business is carried on by certain vessels in the Cuban fruit trade, and with the apparent connivance of the government of the island, for, as the consul general to Cuba says, nearly all the Chinamen in Cuba are naturalized citizens, and as such could not be debarred from visiting this country. The story told below is from reliable sources, the persons being prominently identified with the fruit trade, but for the reason that it might militate against their business interests to have it known that they furnished this information their names are withheld.

Citizens of Cuba Assisting.

"Citizens of Cuba, with the co-operation of certain officials of the Spanish government in that island, are aiding Chinamen to evade the United States restriction act, and are landing hundreds of them at this port every month, and a well known Fulton market fruit dealer to a reporter.

The Way It Is Done.

"There is a certain steamship company in this city owning or controlling nine steamers that ply between New York and Cuban ports," he continued. "On each of these vessels there is a Chinese interpreter. His name does not appear on the pay roll of the company's employes nor on the roster of the ship he sails on. It is his duty to receive and care for the Chinamen who embark at Cuban ports and to see that they pass the customs officers and are landed here safely.

Safe in Mott Street.

He is not paid by the company, but receives certain perquisites, the evident object of this arrangement being to enable the company to claim, with an appearance of justice, that it is not responsible for the interpreter's acts, as he is not in its employ, but simply a passenger on its boats.

"Now, as to the manner in which these Chinamen are enabled to pass the United States customs officers. Each Chinaman having Cuban papers in the form of a book provided with a Spanish passport, in which he is represented to be a traveler desirous to sojourn for a brief period in the place named as his destination. This passport secures him the privilege of landing. Once he sets foot on the steamship company's pier here he is safe. His passport has served its purpose and is destroyed, and the Chinaman joins his fellow countrymen in Mott street."

ANTWERP'S HORROR.

King Leopold Smoothes the Pillows of the Suffering Victims.

ANTWERP, Sept. 9.—A dense mass of smoke still rises from the burning Bazar and hangs like a pall over the whole city. The flames have, however, been subdued, and the efforts of the firemen and the troops to prevent the spread of the fire were successful. The ruins of the burned buildings are still too hot to admit of much effective work toward recovering the bodies of the dead, but a few scores of fifth-rate bodies, apparently have been gathered by the brave explorers among the smoking ruins to make it certain that the death list will not fall short of 200, if, indeed, it does not largely exceed that.

King Leopold and a number of his ministers have arrived here from Brussels, and were taken in carriages to the scene of the fire. After spending over an hour among the firemen and the troops at work on the flames the party were driven to the hospitals, where those injured by the explosions are being cared for. The king passed from ward to ward, whispering words of comfort to the poor sufferers, occasionally stopping to smoothe the pillow and cool the forehead of one of the little factory girls stretched upon a bed of pain. Before leaving the king ordered everything possible for the comfort of the patients to be done. The arrest of Coryllion, the proprietor of the cartridge factory in which the explosions occurred, has been ordered.

The meeting of the strikers at Hyde park was largely attended, and no disturbance of any sort is reported, either from the park or from the route of the procession. Burns again harangued the men, and in the course of his speech declared that the assumption on the part of the gentlemen who had acted as mediators that he had agreed to their proposal was a mistake. He again asked the men whether they desired to accept the proposition, and there was a loud shout of "No."

It is the belief of many persons in a position to be well informed that a compromise on the lines of the rejected proposal will be reached in a few days, and that the only modification will be that the increased pay will date from Nov. 1 instead of Jan. 1.

Incendiaries at Wrightsville.

COLUMBIA, Pa., Sept. 9.—At Wrightsville, a small town opposite Columbia, on the Susquehanna river, five barns and the police station were destroyed by incendiary fires. After the first fire a vigilance committee patrolled the streets, but failed to prevent the other fires. During the night James Fiscler, alias "Reddy" McEntire, was arrested on suspicion of being the incendiary. He was lodged up here and engaged in making his escape. He was afterward recaptured and taken to the York county jail.

St. Louis Did Not Play.

BROOKLYN, Sept. 9.—The St. Louis-Brooklyn game, which was to have been played Sunday was not played, the St. Louis club absenting themselves. The umpire gave the game to the Brooklyns. The St. Louis club's refusal to play was because they objected to the umpire's decision Saturday, refusing to call the game on account of darkness and giving it to the Brooklyns.

A Young Lady Drowned.

RED BANK, N. J., Sept. 9.—Miss Louisa Hancock was drowned while bathing in the river, near her boarding place. She was in company with three other ladies, and was seized with cramps. She threw up her hands and cried loudly for assistance. Her cries were heard by Arthur Slocum, who started toward her, but she sank before he reached her. The body was recovered.

PUBLIC SYMPATHY ESTRANGED.

An Alleged Revulsion of Feeling in Regard to the London Strikers.

LONDON, Sept. 9.—Public opinion, which had been almost a unit in sympathy with the strikers in their long struggle against the dock companies, has experienced a revulsion which cannot fail to have an influence upon the ultimate result of their fight. The action of Messrs. Burns and Tillett, the leaders of the strike, in signifying their approval of a proposition for a compromise, made by Cardinal Manning and the Lord Mayor, and then when the proposal had been unconditionally accepted by the dock managers, deliberately repudiating it, is almost everywhere condemned. The lord mayor asserts that Burns unquestionably accepted the compromise proposals, and says that now that the men have rejected it, he washes his hands of the whole business. Hints are not wanting that the leaders of the men have cooks of their own to compose which are to be further cooked only by a continuance of the strike, and that they do not hesitate, for purely selfish considerations, to sacrifice the best interests of their willing dupes.

Burns himself denies that he ever accepted the terms proposed, and insists that the men are certain to bring the dock managers to their terms, and that what he wants is a complete victory for the men. He says that the strikers had excellent reasons for rejecting the compromise by virtue of which the increased pay for work by them ceased not to be deferred until Jan. 1 next. The dock managers, he says, were willing enough to end their troubles in this way, as this would give them a long respite from trouble to prepare for the change, and long before the end of that time they could have ousted every man concerned in the agreement and filled their places with men on whom they would be perfectly willing to work at any terms offered them. The men he says are not to be caught by this sort of chaff. They are well aware that they hold the whip hand at present, and they will not consent to yield their advantages for a deferred advance of wages, the fruits of which they are never likely to reap.

TRAINS WRECKED.

One Man Was Killed and Another Severely Injured.

GREENVILLE, Pa., Sept. 9.—Vestibule train No. 8, the fast New York, Pennsylvania and Ohio train from Chicago to New York, was wrecked about two miles below Greenville at 12:30 p. m.

A freight train was standing on the switch, B. Ludwig, a brakeman, was ordered to open the rear switch and flag train No. 8; instead, he opened the front switch and flagged the fast train on the main track. It was going at the rate of twenty-five miles an hour flashed into the freight train. The engineers and firemen on both trains jumped for their lives and escaped with slight injuries. Only the passenger engineer, Dick Johnson, of Meadville, who was seriously wounded, but may live. The tender telescoped into the baggage car, which was loaded with trunks, instantly killing the baggagemaster, Alva Cleveland, of Salamanca.

When found trunks were piled over him. His head is badly crushed, and he had evidently tried to open it. He was a married man about 40 years old. The brakeman, Ludwig, lives at Cambridge and was a green hand, the latter's first trip in three days. The passengers were badly shaken up, but none injured.

Murdered and Partly Cremated.

BALTIMORE, Sept. 9.—The Sun's special from Norfolk, Va., says: "C. S. Walters, who kept a grocery at Sewell's Point, was found murdered in his bed room. It is supposed that about 3 a. m. parties called at the store and woke up Walters, and as he opened the door was struck down with a club and then beaten to death, his broken skull and mangled face plainly showing the manner of death. The murderers then robbed the store of $100 and left. In this condition, after which Walters' body was placed between two cotton mattresses, which were set on fire. The fire burned slowly and when the body was found by members of the family one arm and a portion of the face was burned off. The authorities were notified and two negroes who acted suspiciously in a boat near Sewell's Point were arrested, brought to Norfolk and jailed. Both had spots of blood on their clothing and are believed to have concealed the plunder.

Patriotism and Temperance.

BALTIMORE, Sept. 9.—Since the extinction by death of the "Old Defenders' Association" of this city, the Grand Lodge of Maryland Knights of Pythias has taken it upon themselves to keep live the memories of the event the old men celebrated annually—the battle of North Point on Sept. 12, 1814. On Sunday, the 8th, the 12th is the day appointed for this duty by the cadets. Sunday, the "old defenders" day, was celebrated by members of the cadets marching in a body to the Broadway Methodist Protestant church in the morning and listened to a sermon by the Rev. Hugh L. Eldredge entitled, "The old defenders and the new defenders." In the afternoon they met at Ford's Opera house and sang patriotic songs and listened to an oration by Rev. E. Olin Eldredge on patriotism and temperance.

Mrs. Blaine Will Surely be a Star.

NEW YORK, Sept. 9.—Although young Mrs. Blaine is confined by her bed with inflammatory rheumatism, she does not like having it said that she has abandon her idea of going on the stage at the instance of her father-in-law. No confidence has been placed in either directly or indirectly, from her husband's family. In all probability her tour will begin in January next instead of October, as originally contemplated.

A Philadelphia Bather Drowned.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 9.—A special to The Record from Sea Girt, New Jersey, says: The sea has been extremely treacherous and running unusually high. Benedict Blumchel, of Philadelphia, was drowned while bathing. He was young and could not swim, but nevertheless narrowly escaped. They had come down from Philadelphia with a Swiss excursion party.

He Tried to Shoot the Officers.

LIMA, O., Sept. 9.—Chief of Police Calvin and Officer Stephens have arrested a man named Albert Guyer, who is wanted at Trenton, N. J., for robbery and murder. The chief received a letter from the Trenton police describing the man. Several days ago and arrested him. Guyer made an attempt to shoot the officers, but was prevented from doing so.

He Fell Dead in Church.

BROOKLYN, Sept. 9.—The Rev. Dr. Hull, pastor of Greenwood Baptist church, was addressing a prayer during the services, when one of the members of the church, Mr. Joseph J. Farris, 57 years of age, who occupied a seat in the middle aisle, well up in front, with a groan fell forward and was a corpse before any one could reach his side.

Editor Smith's Murderer Convicted.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 9.—Dr. Llewellyn A. Powell, who killed Editor Ralph Smith at Redwood City two years ago because of an article in Smith's paper reflecting upon Powell, has been convicted of manslaughter. On two former trials the juries disagreed.

BALTIMORE'S GREAT DAY

Thrilling Historical Events to be Re-enacted.

THE BATTLE OF NORTH POINT.

And the Bombardment of Fort McHenry Gone Over Again—President Harrison Reviews the Parade—United States War Vessels as British Men o' War.

BALTIMORE, Sept. 9.—Baltimore is resplendent with flags, banners and other gay decorations, and the opening day of her great celebration of the seventy-fifth anniversary of the battle of North Point and the bombardment of Fort McHenry by the British in 1814 was a pronounced success. In both of those engagements the Americans forces "downed" the red coats in gallant style, saving the city of Baltimore from capture and perhaps from total destruction; therefore the descendants of those brave soldiers have started in to honor the memory of their glorious deeds on a scale of magnificence that shall outdo any display the city has ever seen. Fourth of July celebrations, military and civic parades, and even the gorgeous Oriole festivals, the fame of which has spread over the whole country, all will pale into insignificance before the present Baltimore and Maryland exposition inaugurated today, and which will continue with undiminished brilliancy throughout the week.

The Great Parade.

The event of the day was the great civic and trades' procession. The parade was divided into six sections preceded by a series of historical floats and mounted guards of honor. The latter was composed exclusively of descendants of those who fought at North Point and Fort McHenry, Sept. 12 and 13, 1814. The procession, which moved over the great length and wonderful beauty, was reviewed in the morning by President Harrison, Governor Jackson and Mayor Latrobe. At 3 p. m. the procession was dismissed and at 4 p. m. an informal banquet was tendered the president.

The Programme for the Week.

The following is the programme outlined for the remainder of the week:

Monday—Parade of soldiers, 9 a. m.; Tournament at Pimlico, 8 p. m. Ball in open pavilion at Pimlico after tournament.

Tuesday—Base ball at Pimlico, 3 p. m. Fireworks at Pimlico, 8 p. m.

Wednesday—Parade of labor organizations. Labor meeting and addresses at Pimlico. Representation of battle of North Point at Pimlico, 8 p. m. Marriage ceremonies performed at once at stone of battle. Dedication of new postoffice 8 p. m. Maryland ball, Concordia Opera house, 10:30 p. m.

Friday—Parade of soldiers, 9 a. m. Races at Pimlico, 3 p. m. Bombardment of Fort McHenry, 8 p. m.

Saturday—Races at Pimlico, 3 p. m.

The Battle of North Point.

The battle of North Point will be more than a sham battle, for the maneuvers of both armies will be carried out as accurately as possible with those of the soldiers who participated in this notable engagement seventy-five years ago.

Nobody will play the British, especially as one of the British officers, Gen. Ross, is supposed to be shot dead and to fall from his horse. Some of the Fifth Maryland regiment volunteered to fill the role, and Thursday they will try to look and act as English as a well drilled body of fine, stalwart, young American could be expected to.

Fort McHenry's Bombardment.

The most sensational event of the week will take place Friday evening, when the bombardment of Fort McHenry by the British Sept. 13 and 14, 1814, will be reproduced on an elaborate scale.

Uncle Sam has kindly agreed to take a hand in the reproduction of the bombardment, and will send government war vessels, among them the Pensacola, the Omippee and the Yantic will take part. These war vessels will represent the British fleet. They will be moored in the harbor in the channel midway between Fort McHenry and Fort Carroll. Between the vessels and at both ends of the fleet will be placed batteries or mortar boats from which will be fired Lowell shells and rockets representing the fire of the fleet.

The space between the fleet and Fort McHenry will be occupied by a line of 100 torpedoes which will be fired simultaneously by electricity. Batteries will be placed on the glacis of Fort McHenry, returning the fire of the attacking fleet. United States troops will reinforce the fort and it is expected that a gallant defence will be made.

Mrs. Logan Backs Her Son.

CHICAGO, Sept. 9.—Mrs. John A. Logan in an interview in dorsed her son's action in refusing to forward his father's picture to the Union league club of Cincinnati. "I am glad," said she, "my son has done what he did. It means no disrespect to Ohio people, to whom for their many kindnesses, due consideration is always shown for his father and his memory, he has every reason to be, and is, grateful."

HIS STOCK WENT UP.

How Maj. Biddleford Was Convinced of His Dog's Great Worth.

An angry looking man called at the office of Maj. Biddleford. "I have come, sir," said the man, "to tell you that while passing your home this morning your dog ran out and bit me."

"You don't say so!" the major exclaimed.

"Yes, I do say so." I was walking along the road, attending strictly to my own business, when on a sudden the wretch leaped over the fence and bit a piece out of me."

"You don't say so!"

"But, confound it, I do say so."

"Oh, I see. You do say so."

"Yes, I do, and moreover, I want to know what you are going to do about it."

"I can't do anything; I'm no surgeon."

"But I want to know if you are going to kill the dog?"

"Killing the dog wouldn't help the wound, would it?"

"No, but it would be of great satisfaction to me, and I demand his death."

"Did he jump over the fence and nab you?"

"Of course he did."

"Didn't crawl under the gate?"

"No, I tell you he jumped over the fence."

"Did he go over with a clear leap or did he scramble on top?"

"He jumped clear over, but what difference does that make?"

"Makes considerable difference. A dog that can jump so high a fence must be valuable. For some time I have thought that he was of no account, and I had intended to kill him, but now that you have given me so strong a proof of his worth, why his stock goes up. He shall live. Now, if he had crawled under the gate, or if he had scrambled clumsily on top of the fence, I should at once have signed his death warrant, but as he cleared the fence at a bound I"——

"You are a fool."

"Thank you. When he bites you again call around and see me. Good day."—Arkansaw Traveler.

Not Used to It Yet.

Willie (gazing with undisguised interest at one of the guests—What funny people take their dinner at this restaurant, papa! Look at that man over there eating his soup. Adolphus and Kate.

When young Adolphus married Kate—
Slim of the circus, flashing eye—
He found, but when it was too late,
That 'twas no earthly use to try
In any way to tame Kate.

The Wind Taken Out of Her Sails.

"Mr. McClintock," shouted his better half, "I want you to take your feet off the parlor table."

"Mrs. McClintock," he said, in a fixed, determined voice, "I allow only one person to talk to me that way."

"And who is that?" she demanded.

"You, my dear," he replied softly, as he removed the pedes.—Judge.

Too Late.

"No, George," she muttered, as the miserable youth knelt in a passionate frenzy at her feet, "I can never be yours."

"Well, Clara," he answered bitterly, as he rose quickly, "you might at least have told me so before, and saved me from bagging those trousers."—Clothier and Furnisher.

Why Elijah Whistles.

A good deal of fun has been poked at Elijah Halford for going about his work whistling "White Wings," but the fact that it is now proposed to put a pair of them on the White House demonstrates pretty clearly to us that the private secretary knew what he was whistling for.—Washington Post.

Couldn't Finish His Sentence.

Convict—You have been very good to me for the past few months, and I can't sufficiently thank you, Sir.

Visitor—Well, why don't you finish your sentence?

THE WELL BRED WOMAN.

SHE IS NOT ALWAYS TO BE FOUND ON THE UPPER CRUST.

Common Sense and Tact Greater Essentials to True Refinement Than Birth and Breeding—Self-Centered Individuals Who Create Their Own Pitfalls.

If one definition of what constitutes vulgarity of manner would be determined upon there would be in the world less uncertainty of purpose, less dissatisfaction with self and sudden mortified collapse from astonishment without end.

For it is not alone such as feel their inferiority in birth or breeding who have a trace of commonplace about them, but the very self satisfied ones, who cannot conceive in the[re] is an error, are by others seen to be [illegible] there is no [illegible]

[illegible] and cultivation are not [illegible] other things are so essential, characteristics inborn—plain common sense and tact.

"DON'T LOOK AT ME."

The natural intuition and aptitude of women to make things straight for one's feet, to strew a thorny path with flowers—a trait of character which is peculiar in the sex—the world defines by the one word "tact," and hence it is that, common sense being an attribute of both sexes, with tact to weigh down the scale of the balance, it is not surprising that we see more apparently well bred women in the world than men.

Apparently, I say, for given the same opportunities can they get more of the real thing than men? Hardly; yet such is their endowment of observation, such their quick inception of ideas, that they more quickly seem to be—anything desired.

"Defend me from the person who calls himself well bred" is a truism uttered long ago, but which spells itself into the code of the elect who people the world today. The same writer affirmed that the sure test of a gentleman is whether he does the trifling acts of courtesy that society demands of its votaries with perfect unconsciousness or with an air which says: "Just look at me: see how polite I am!"

Things done have a voice as well as things said, and it is by the little details which sum up our daily manner that the world judges us.

It is so easy to fall into bad habits, half the courtesies of life require exertion, and humanity is inert. Be not surprised then that the large majority of wise seeing persons disowning that pitch definite, carefully avoid association with those whose speech and manners are interlarded with, what the kindness make may be called—mistakes. In a country such as ours, free to all, "as they say of certain horse races, it cannot be expected that every one who enters, or aspires to enter, society shall have had those associations from his youth up which best cultivate the speech, the mind and the manners, but we have all God given powers of observation, and he who refuses to avail himself of using them is not wise in his day and generation.

ONE KIND OF "LEADER."

At a meeting of a certain literary club, composed of the most cultured women of a certain city, several distinguished women were invited—women from afar—to hear a very able paper read on a certain subject of widely general interest. Previous to the meeting these guests had heard much of the acknowledged leader of society in the place. "Have you met Mrs. D——?" everybody questioned. "You will admire her so much; she is charming; such lovely manners; so well bred; so much admired; we are so proud of her," etc., everybody affirmed. The introductions were arranged to take place at the literary society.

The meeting convened with its usual formality, prologued by the charming fron fron of women's voices and gowns, and the general informality of arrival everybody greeted everybody else with pleasant words, and fluttered about from group to group. The guests held curiously at one end of the hall, expecting it to be a part of the charming personality of lovely Mrs. D——. The president addressed the assembly, the secretary read the notes of the last meeting, some heads of committees made reports—in fact, the business was all transacted and no Mrs. D—— had arrived.

At last the president introduced the speaker and the event of the meeting, the reading of a paper which had been in preparation for months began. A carefully written paper, rounded periods, argument after argument being unfolded with a strength and logic that fixed all attention, an interruption occurred; there was a subdued flutter, a momentous stir, the door was thrown open, on the threshold appeared a tall, willowy figure, graceful as an aspen, clad in picturesque muslin draperies and crowned by a smiling, beautiful face.

She looked absently a moment or two, hesitated, and then passed across the front of the assembly room before the very face of the waiting, astonished speaker, in front of the president, and drew a chair before the burning coals of a great open fire. Then, with another pretty rustle or draperies, a gathering up of skirts, showing ruffle after ruffle of filmy lace, a graceful shape sank into cushioned depths, two dainty shod little feet were extended toward the stage, and, with a pretty gesture and a mirthful, low, half apologetic laugh, a voice broke the silence with the words: "Mrs. President, I am so sorry, but I was unavoidably detained. Won't you ask dear Mrs. D—— to commence over again? I would so regret to miss anything of hers."

The distinguished guests looked and listened aghast. Intuition told them who had thus dared. A group of what the president said. The paper was continued at the point of interruption, but the distinguished guests declined the honor of meeting the lovely lady whose manners were "charmingly well bred," and the city, represented by its women, blushed.

This woman, this leader, was not so much to blame after all; she was human. Association had spoiled her.

Association! She! the leader of society! of the most cultured circle in the city, she, for she had associated for years with naught but adulation, and her conduct was but a proof that common sense and tact are as necessary to true refinement as birth and breeding.—S. S. E. M. in Chicago Herald.

Gems of the Months.

For January we have a garnet, which, for garnet, which denotes constancy and fidelity in every engagement. —February—Amethyst, insuring peace of mind. March—A bloodstone, denoting courage and success. —Daring and enterprise. April—Sapphire or diamond, signifying repentance and innocence. May—The green emerald, typical of love. June—An agate, promising long life and health. July—Ruby or cornelian, which insures the forgetfulness or cure of evils springing from friendship or love. August—Sardonyx, a happy married life. September—Chrysolite, which preserves from folly. October—Aquamarine or opal, which engender both constancy and hope. November—The topaz, bringing the wearer fidelity and friendship. December—Turquoise or malachite, signifying the most brilliant success and happiness.—Young Ladies' Journal.

Fruits as Food and Medicine.

Of all the fruits we are blessed with, the peach is the most delicious and digestible. There is nothing more palatable, wholesome and medicinal than the fruit, ripe peaches should be ripe, but not over ripe and half rotten, and of this kind they make a peach of either meal, or be eaten between meals; but by no means at the table with the regular meal. It is a mistaken idea that no fruit should be eaten at breakfast. It would be far better if our people would eat less bacon and more fruit at that meal, for the fact is the morning there is an acrid state of the secretions, and nothing is so well calculated to correct this as cooling, sub-acid fruits, such as peaches, apples, etc. Still, most of us have been taught that eating fruit before breakfast is highly dangerous. How the idea originated I do not know, but it is certainly a great error, contrary to both reason and facts.

The apple is one of the best of fruits. Baked or stewed apples will generally agree with the most delicate stomach, and are an excellent medicine in many cases of sickness. Green or half ripe apples stewed and sweetened are pleasant to the taste, cooling, nourishing and laxative, far superior, in many cases, to the boasted lemon juice, and can be universally given in fever and other diseases. Raw apples and dried apples stewed are better for constipation than liver pills.

Oranges are very acceptable to most stomachs, having all the advantages of the acid alluded to; but the orange juice alone should be taken, rejecting the pulp. The same may be said of lemons, pomegranates and all that class. Lemonade is the best drink in fevers, and when thickened with sugar is better than strup of squills and other nauseous in many cases of cough.—Hall's Journal of Health.

A Fee for the Baby.

Little Jack's mother is enjoying a happy freedom from anxious care while about her household duties, knowing that Jack is placed where he can injure nothing and nothing can injure him. A corner is fenced in and which can be folded and conveniently stored away when not in use, is made as follows: It is formed of four frames fastened together with hinges. Each frame consists of two posts and three rails. It requires strips of board two inches wide cut into twenty pieces of three different lengths. The eight posts are twenty-one inches high; the six sides rails are forty-eight inches long, and the six end rails are twenty-three inches long. Any other size may be used, it being necessary to cut the side rails just two inches longer than twice the length of the end rails.

In making the frames, place the top rail even with the tops of the posts and the other two rails below, five inches apart, clear. In putting the frames together hinge both end frames to the back frame on the inside so that each can open at an angle of 90 degs. Then the side rails pass by the end rails. In fastening the front frame, fit the side and end rails so they cannot move up or down and hold in place with bolts. The fence when can be moved to any part of the room, and a soft rug spread underneath makes it a comfortable place for the baby, whether in winter or summer.—American Agriculturist.

About Clothing.

Clothing possesses no warmth in itself, but, as it is a more or less poor conductor of heat, it prevents the escape of the bodily warmth. If we look upon the large meshes of the air entangled in their meshes, which, being a poor conductor of heat, adds considerably to the warmth of clothing made from them. In hot weather we wear light cotton or linen clothing, so as to allow as much of the bodily heat to escape as possible. There is a prejudice in the favor of light colored clothing for summer wear, but it is hardly based on scientific grounds. Dark colored cloth is the best radiator, allowing the bodily heat to escape freely, while white clothing absorbs less of the heat radiated directly from the sun. Therefore, to dress scientifically in summer, one should wear dark clothing in the shade and light clothing when exposed to the sun's rays. Practically, however, the white garment is the only one to be considered, as the warmth or coolness of clothing is not appreciably affected by its color.—Popular Science News.

Pretty Girls of New Orleans.

On a flying visit to New Orleans one is impressed by the peculiar appearance of the women. One can see in New Orleans more delicious looking young girls and more prematurely old looking women than in any city in the country. The girls, up to the age of 18 or 20, are lovely. They have rich complexions, bright eyes, the mingled languor and vivacity that render the southern girl so fascinating. Then, too, in summer time most of them wear white dresses with lace or open work sleeves and yoke, through which a glimpse of pink or blue ribbon gives a coquettish attractiveness. There is but one word that fully describes them to the masculine mind. They are delicious looking. But they fade rapidly, and this accounts for the large number of old looking women that in any city or thoroughfare one sees on the streets or in their carriages.—Chicago Times.

Treat Them Like Gentlemen.

It is the wisest thing in the world for a woman traveling alone to regard all the men she meets as gentlemen, and to display the presence of that conviction in her mind directly she is approached by them in any way. A cad will usually be at great pains to avoid disturbing the illusion when he finds himself taken for a gentleman. A gentleman would break his neck rather than peril your evident good opinion of him. Men have a beautiful regard for womankind in the abstract. They may be quite capable of abusing the particular woman dependent upon them for protection, but they full up o. courtesy and kindness for the women they meet on the streets, in cars and depots. Also they are likely to treat with every consideration the damsel whom a group of travelers throw upon them for protection.—Ladies' Home Journal.

Sleeveless Arms.

There is considerable opposition in France to the revival of the custom of wearing short sleeves in the daytime. When women's arms were uncovered in our grandmothers' days they were red, as a rule, and were badly chapped in cold weather. Women's arms have improved much in the last two or three generations, for the reason that they have not been exposed to wind and weather, which has made the skin white and more delicate, and also because of the introduction of tennis, rowing and various athletic amusements that develop the muscles and make them much rounder and more perfect in outline than the arms of our grandmothers.—New York Telegram.

How to Wash Flannel Shirts.

Yes, we have had a good deal of complaints from customers about the shrinking of their shirts.—All materials will shrink some; we generally allow half an inch for flannel, and if it is properly washed there is no reason why it should shrink perceptible after that. The proper way is to soften the garment in hot soapwater, never rubbing it, and put it repeatedly through a wringer. The garment should never be wrung with the hand, and never put in cold water.—A Clothier in The Argus.

An Entertaining Account of Pearls and Pearl Oysters—Pearl Fisheries and the Brave Divers Who Risk Their Lives for the Precious Gems.

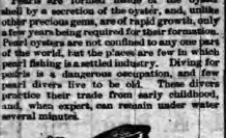
Pearls are formed inside of the oyster shell by a secretion of the oyster, and, unlike other precious gems, are of rapid growth, only a few years being required for their formation. Pearl oysters are not confined to any one part of the world, but the places are few in which pearl fishing is a settled industry. Diving for pearls is a dangerous occupation, and few pearl divers live to be old. These divers practice their trade from early childhood, and, when expert, can remain under water several minutes.



THE PEARL OYSTER.

The most noted pearl fisheries are near the coasts of Ceylon, Japan, Java, Sumatra and the Persian gulf. The pearls found near some American coasts are usually of very fine polish but of irregular shape.

A pearl diver carries a net bag for holding oysters, places his foot in a stirrup, to which is fastened a stone weighing nearly thirty pounds, then, taking a long breath, he descends rapidly to the bottom. He tears the oysters from the rocks, and when he feels his breath failing, pulls a rope as a signal and is very rapidly drawn up. Seven or eight divers descend at the same time. When the oysters are dead the shells are examined for pearls. One shell may contain several pearls or none, and there is no way of telling which hold a prize except by destroying the oyster.

In addition to the pearls it yields, the pearl oyster, explains Golden Days, which furnishes the finest pearl description, is mainly for its lining. This lining is called "mother of pearl," and from it are made knife handles, buttons, card cases and many other articles.

The Author of "Home, Sweet Home."

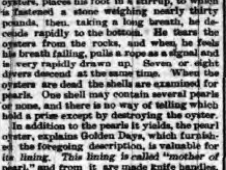
John Howard Payne, the author of that song of all songs, "Home, Sweet Home," was born in New York in 1792. He showed great precocity, and at 13 years of age began to give evidences of his literary ability. As author, playwright and actor, both in this country and in Europe, he made various artistic and pecuniary successes, but owing to his lack of business ability was often in financial straits. It was the author of "Home, Sweet Home," adapted to an old Sicilian melody, a song full of tears, smiles, sorrow and delight, that Payne acquired a lasting reputation.



JOHN HOWARD PAYNE.

As the lightning shines out of the east to the west
So mighty its tone when it swelled from the breast,

As the thrilling shines out of the east to the west
It filled every heaven, it thrilled every breast.

In 1851 Payne was reappointed American consul to Tunis, where he died, April 10, 1852. The United States government has erected a monument over his remains in the cemetery of St. George at Tunis. There is also a bust of him in Prospect park, Brooklyn.

"There Is a Happy Land."

How many of the myriads who in childhood have sung, "There is a Happy Land, Far, Far Away," know anything of its writer? His name is Andrew Young, and he is now 80 years of age, extremely active physically vigorous, and retaining in all its early freshness his sympathy with children. The hymn was composed in 1838. The tune to which it is married is an old Indian air, which blended with the music of the woods in the primeval forest long before Sunday schools were thought of. The hymn was composed for the meeting of a monthly concert. Its bright and strongly marked phrases struck Mr. Young's musical ear the first time he heard it carefully played in the drawing room. He asked for it again and again. It haunted him. Being accustomed to relieve the clamor of his thoughts and feelings in rhyme, words naturally fell into line, and the hymn was created. Mr. Young happened to have his hymn performed in the presence of his intimate friend, Mr. Gall, a member of the publishing firm of Hall & Gall, Cincinnati, and Mr. Gall took it home. It has been translated into nineteen different languages. And yet the author has never received, and, indeed, has never been offered a penny remuneration.

"Can't" and "Try."

Can't do it sticks in the mud, but Try soon drags the wagon out of the rut. The fox said "Try," and he got away from the hounds when they almost snapped at him. The bee said "Try," and turned flowers into honey. The squirrel said "Try," and he went to the top of the beech tree. The snow drop said "Try," and bloomed in the cold snows of winter. The sun said "Try," and sprung soon three of Jack Frost out of the saddle. The young lark said "Try," and he found that his new wings took him over hedges and ditches and up where his father was singing. The old cat said "Try," and proved the field friend and to end. No hill too steep for Try to climb, no clay too stiff for Try to plow, no field too wet for Try to drain, no hole too big for Try to mend.

Boys, Remember This.

Sharp eyes may make mental note of a boy's general appearance in making up their estimate of what he is worth. A straightforward, manly bearing will help any lad to get his way in the world, while the slipshod sort of a way usually suggests to the observer a corresponding character. Manliness is not a garment you can put on and off like your Sunday coat. It must have its foundation in the heart, or it will be a flimsy sham that will deceive nobody.

The Wind at Work.

The wind has swept the clouds
To a corner of the sky
And left the air so blue—
The wind is very busy.
The wind has swept the dust
To a corner of the street
And left the flowers sweet—
The wind is very neat!
—Little Men and Women.

Antiquity of Keeping Birthdays.

It is not generally known that the custom of keeping birthdays is many thousand years old. It is recorded in Genesis xl, 20: "And it came to pass on the third day, which was Pharaoh's birthday, that he made a feast unto all his servants."

SHUTTING UP HER FOLD.

The fire burns finely on the hearth.
The light is turned down low;
And wintry winds through bare oak trees
In fitful gusts do blow.
The mother pulls the curtains down
To keep away the cold;
Tucks tightly in the children's beds—
She's shutting up her fold.

She covers up the little hand
Thrown o'er the coverlet;
She wipes the place on baby's cheek
Where tear drops still are wet;
Kisses the little ones who sleep
And smooths the hair of gold.
Then kneels and "prays the Lord to keep"—
She's shutting up her fold.

Oh, little ones, fenced round secure
With mother's love and care,
What looks of peace and trust and joy
Your sleeping faces wear!
Outside to night across the children, who
Are tall and large and old,
Are wishing they could be once more
Sheltered in mother's fold.
—Sarah Trail Parry in The Home Maker.

HOW BABIES' FEET ARE SPOILED.

Mothers Inflict Torture on Their Little Ones So That Their Feet May Look Pretty.

"Now stamp down your foot, dear. That's it. That shoe is too large. Let me see a size smaller."

"Really, madam, if you take my advice," began the shoemaker, but madam cut him off with—

"Just get a smaller shoe. That one fits like a sack."

The smaller shoes were put on the child, a pretty little tot of about 2 years of age. They fitted tight and stood out like a board. The child was a very small one, but they pinched the child and made it cry.

"Mothers exhibit more vanity than judgment in their selection of shoes for their young children," said the shoe dealer, after the lady had disappeared, to a reporter who wanted a pair of russet ties. "One will bring her baby here and carry a pair of shoes on it that will look 'real sweet.' I know what that means and am always sorry for the baby, who is usually in its first short dress, and such little as an old maid of forty having its feet interfered with. I don't say I am going to put a shoe on it a size larger than the foot seems, but I do; at least I get it on as well as one can when the foot is operated by a perpetual motion power. Then I trust to the mother's sense for results. If it's her first baby she will be indignant and say that she does not want the shoes to look sloppy in his shoes. They must fit exactly or she won't take them. I tell her that the child's weight will push the foot out at least one-fourth of an inch, and that the shoe is just right. If she objects again I give up and find what she wants. The little foot is squeezed into a tight shoe and the baby objects by squalling. She gets the setup, a mashing of some kind in its usual nap, and declares the shoes are just lovely and papa will be delighted.

"The chances are that when she wants another pair she will leave the baby at home, and bring down the old pair literally burst out at the toes. She wants several pairs to take for trial, and I have to sell her nearly one I consider unsuitable she selects. Children would have better looking feet if they had wise mothers, but the fact is that in the first shoes worn, the pair the short will ruin the feet, no matter how loose subsequent ones may be."

"Then some women accept your advice?"

"Yes, after the little people have laid the foundation for corns and bunions. I know many children between the ages of two and three years who have both these afflictions because their mothers wanted them to look cute."

"Is there no change in the shape of children's shoes?"

"None. There can't well be, because the sole must be sufficiently broad to stand the wear and tear. Square toes are preferred to round, because they allow freer development of the setup. A number of years ago they make very stylish shoes for children. They will have beals, pointed toes, patent leather tips and so forth. Some mothers buy them here, but the physician sense also is the best, and the children, when they grow up, will appreciate the fact by having perfectly formed feet, free from corns. The spring shoe is the worst ever put on the feet worn by children as young as two years old, but is more fashionable for children in their teens. It is nothing but a strip of leather inserted between the sole and the upper, and is secured by the wearer's heel. It is seldom that a smaller than No. 8 is made with a regular heel, and that on the common sense plan—low and broad."

"How are babies' shoes numbered?"

"No. 4 is the first size out of babyhood. No. 0 has a soft sole of white kid and pasteboard, and is the successor of the knit wool boots that are worn by babies in long dresses. Nos. 1, 2 and 3 have what is called the turned sole, sewed right on to the upper side and turned out. There are from four to five buttons on the side, and a black tassel is now fastened at the top in front. The latest is to have a vamp that is cut high in front. It is not new, but is still better, a half boxed round toe, tipped with patent leather."—New York Mail and Express.

Miss Bottle.

I would like to tell the little people how to make something pretty. Take a bottle holding about three gills. Get a piece of wire, with a long hook, such as an old beer bottle; get mamma to give you one of her old stockings (cotton); cut off the foot and gather the leg closely and tie well; put your bottle in this, stretching it quite tight, and tie around the top of the bottle, or rather an inch from the top; now, with a stick, poke the rest of the bottle in between the meshes.

The stocking leg should be as long inside the bottle as it is outside. Wet the outside and fill the bottle with water, roll it in tinsel, or gold paper, or you have gilt wire and cover evenly all around; hang in a warm, sunny place, and fill the bottle with soft water twice a day; wet the outside at the same time, but be careful not to wash the seeds out of their places, and in a few days your bottle will be covered with a beautiful green moss; but you must keep the stocking moist or the seed will not grow.—Western Rural.

Beauty shows are, it appears, not quite a novelty. The intermediate dee Chevalliers describes a ball at Paris in 1853. In remembrance of the oldest competition of the kind, the prizes were golden apples. The first prize was, of course, awarded to the queen of flowers, and the second was obtained with 1,720 points by a. Mlle. Semure. Most of the prizes were given to ladies from Normandy.

THE ABOVE HEADLINE appears at first sight quite unintelligible. Read it backwards and you will readily perceive its meaning (News) Paragraph. First of all we want to get your attention for a few moments only. Of course you are very busy, just getting back from your vacation. But you will need a good many little and big articles for the children to get them ready for school. And we want to help you in saving time and expense in the purchasing of them. You know, or ought to, by this time that Edsall keeps the largest assortment of Boys' and Girls' Clothing in this city. You should go right their first, where they make a specialty of such things—goods are always fresh and new. Our new Fall Stock for the Boys' and Girls' is now ready. # PLAINFIELD EVENING NEWS.

ESTABLISHED 1884. PLAINFIELD, N. J., "THE COLORADO OF THE EAST," TUESDAY, SEPTEMBER 10, 1889. PRICE TWO CENTS

At a meeting of the Union County Republican Executive Committee, held August 31st, 1889, it was resolved that the several wards and townships hold their primary meetings to elect delegates to the State Convention, on

at 8 o'clock p. m., (with power to local Executive Committees to change such date if thought best.)

In accordance with the resolution the Republican voters of Union county are requested to meet at the places named in their wards to elect delegates to the State Convention in the ratio of one delegate for each two hundred Republican votes cast at the last gubernatorial election, and one delegate for each fraction thereof exceeding one hundred votes, each ward and township to have at least one delegate.

The number of delegates to be elected under the above apportionment from each ward and township is as follows:

| | Votes. | Del's. |
|---|---|---|
| Elizabeth—1st ward | 90 | 3 |
| " 2d ward | 139 | 1 |
| " 3d ward | 166 | 1 |

FOSTER M. VOORHEES, Secretary.

DOING IS THE GREAT THING. FOR IF, RESOLUTELY, PEOPLE DO WHAT IS RIGHT, IN TIME THEY COME TO LIKE DOING IT.—Ruskin.

JOTTINGS.

—Days of 1889 past, 253; days to come, 112.

—The equinox, September 21, is fast approaching.

—Pheasant and quail are reported to be in abundance.

—The new Jewish year of 5650 commences this month.

—The Somerset County Board of Freeholders meet to-day.

—Counterfeit ten dollar bills are in circulation in this vicinity.

—Mark it on your hatband—advertising is the key to business success.

—The September term of the United States District Court opened at Trenton to-day.

—Harper's Bazar has issued a much big stories are generally illustrated with cuts.

—There are 73 different languages spoken by the American Indians.—Bridgeton Pioneer.

—An oyster dealer says there is a greater percentage of nutrition in a clam than there is in milk.

—The annual meeting of the New Jersey Sanitary Association will be held in this city on November 13th and 14th.

—A new order has been issued by the Central Railroad requiring all station, ticket and freight agents to wear a uniform.

—Men were engaged to-day removing the organ from the First Baptist church, preparatory to its removal to the new one in the rear.

—Wagon loads of peaches from surrounding farms pass through Plainfield for Newark and New York, every morning and evening.

—The Washington Giants will play a game of base ball with the Plainfield Stars on the Crescent grounds Thursday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock.

—Quite a little excitement was caused on Somerset street this morning by the breach of two wagons becoming locked. No damage resulted.

—The members of the Borough fire department will meet at the engine house this evening for the purpose of forming a Relief Association.

—An authority on the anthracite coal market advises consumers to buy their winter coal now, as indications point to an increase in prices.

—For want of a quorum the Exempt Firemen's Association, at this city could not hold a meeting last evening and it was adjourned over for one month.

—The members of Bonnyr Hook and Ladder Company held a meeting last evening and decided to take their apparatus out for a drill this evening, provided the weather will permit.

—Apropos of the coming season it is well for housewives to know that a silver spoon placed in a jar will prevent the contents of the boiled preserves from becoming sugared.

—About the only time a female will lose her self-control in a crowd, according to call or shout, is when she is at a base-ball game and some favorite player drops a fly and loses some deciding point.

—Very few people, if any, now living, will again date a document without using a "1." It now stands on the extreme right—1889. Next year it will take third place—1890, where it will remain 10 years. It will then move into second place—1900, and there will abide for a century.

—A tennis tournament, of gentleman's doubles, will be held on the grounds of the Plainfield Lawn Club Saturday, Sept. 14th. Playing will commence at 10 a. m. The tournament is open only to present or former members of the Club. Entries may be handed to A. A. Hyer, 24 West Eighth street, up to Friday at eight p. m.

—The regular monthly business meeting of the Plainfield Bicycle Club was held in the club-house on Somerset street, last evening. After the regular business had been attended to, the advisability of having an athletic tournament and a lantern parade this year was discussed, and a committee of five appointed to work it up and see if the members showed any interest in the matter. They will probably be held in the Fall.

—The habit of chewing gum is a detestable one, but appeals to good taste are powerless to check it, as the very existence of the habit indicates a deficient sense of fitness or good breeding. Now that it has been shown that chewing gum will kill, as in the case of the little girl at New York, there is a strong argument against it that may have the effect of suppressing it. Gum chewing and smoking may be ranked together as vices of immature Americans.—Exchange.

ANNUAL MEETING OF THE W. C. T. U.

The Officers to Serve for the Ensuing Year Elected.

The Woman's Christian Temperance Union of this city held their annual meeting in their rooms, No. 73 West Front street, yesterday afternoon, and elected the following officers for the ensuing year:

President—Mrs. T. H. Tomlinson.
Corresponding Secretary—Miss Emma French.
Treasurer—Mrs. J. MacNaughton.
Vice Presidents—Calvary Avenue church, Mrs. Eaton and Mrs. Cahoone; Seventh Day Baptist, Mrs. Georgs H. Babcock; First Baptist, Mrs. Martin I. Cooley and Mrs. Clinton Randolph; Park avenue Baptist, Mrs. J. W. Johnson and Mrs. Asa R. Dilks; First Presbyterian, Mrs. R. V. Shotwell; Methodist, Mrs. T. M. Smith and Miss S. Jackson; Congregational, Mrs. Gambling; Trinity Reformed, Mrs. P. H. Bennett and Mrs. Carman Parse; Front street Friends, Mrs. Francis Wood; Peace street Friends, Mrs. Rachel Rogart; Holy Cross, Mrs. W. J. Ford; Warren Mission, Mrs. John Cory and Miss Mary Mair.

Badly Cut About the Head.

A woman who resides in the vicinity of the Pond Machine Tool Works, complained to Policeman Flanagan last evening, that she had been assaulted by a German named Brown. Her head was badly cut and she exhibited other marks of violence. The officer told her that she would have to swear out a warrant before the Justice of the Peace before anything could be done in the matter. She did not tell the policeman her name.

The Fifth Annual Tournament.

The Fifth Annual Tournament of the Middlesex County Gun Club will occur at Dunellen October 8th, 9th, 10th, and 11th. Guaranteed purses of $1, 300 will be awarded. The shooting will commence at nine o'clock a. m. daily. There will be twenty-two events and the prizes will range from $50 to $400. The committee who have charge of the tournament are laboring zealously to make the affair a grand success.

All Aboard For Switzerland.

The Reform Club excursion to Mauch Chunk, the Switzerland of America, to-morrow, should be enjoyed by all who possibly can avail themselves of the opportunity. The scenery along the entire route is superb, and at this season of the year is more delightful than could be taken. The excursion train leaves Plainfield at 9:25 a. m., and the expense will be moderate. Secure your tickets.

To Go to Trenton.

The members of Crescent Division, Uniformed Rank, Knights of Pythias, had a meeting last evening and decided to participate in the annual parade of the First Regiment of New Jersey Uniformed Rank Knights of Pythias, which will occur at Trenton on the 23d, inst.

Lamp Explosion on a Train.

A lamp exploded in a car on the milk train of the New Jersey Central on Sunday night and set fire to the roof of the car. The conductor in trying to put out the blaze fell off a seat and was severely burned. There was almost a panic among the passengers. The damage was slight.

Disorderly Persons.

A colored boy named Hamilton notified Policeman Flanagan and Geiss that two men named Gratton and Giles, were creating a disturbance at the home of James Babbott on Lake street and that he was unable to eject them. Policeman Cooney went to his assistance but when he arrived peace and quiet reigned.

Injured His Foot.

Yesterday morning Lewis Coddington, a truckman of Regent street, North Plainfield, received injuries from his truck, which was a sharp stone, which penetrated the shoe and severely cut his left foot. The limb is terribly swollen and very painful.

Held for the Grand Jury.

Constable Hardy, of Scotch Plains, yesterday morning arrested William Oache, on complaint of Lyman Walpole, charging him with breaking and entering. Justice Nash held the prisoner to await the action of the Grand Jury.

—The high wind of last night has shaken most of the ripe fruit off the fruit trees.

—"Joe" English, the temperance advocate, will open his tent meeting in Dover to-morrow evening.

—Weather Prophet De Voe predicts that the first frost will appear in this vicinity on the 13th inst.

—This sudden cool weather if it last long enough will bring temporary relief, at least, to hay-fever victims.

—The wet weather has been hard on bees But little honey has been made, some swarms barely making enough to live on.

—Nine farmers of Warren county have paid a fine of $50 each for watering the milk they sent to the Marksboro creamery.

—With the single exception of Massachusetts, New Jersey has a larger mileage of railroads in proportion to territory than any other State in the Union.

—When will that miserable hole in Somerset street be filled, is the question of the hour! The sidewalk on the western side of the street is very narrow and dangerous.

—The death rate crowded the birth rate uncomfortably during the last fiscal year reported in New Jersey. The total births was 26,074 and of deaths 27,173.

—Mr. Frederick Clark of Scotch Plains called at THE NEWS office this afternoon and desired the statement made in another paper last evening in reference to an old man being assaulted and robbed in Scotch Plains Wednesday evening contradicted. He says there is no truth whatever in the matter.

That Same Old Mule.

Our Democratic friends don't seem to get wisdom by experience. Last year in the National election they received the worst defeat they had been given in sixteen years. After having been kept out of power a quarter of a century, they were entrusted with control for one Presidential term of four years. That was enough for them to show the people.

party believed its first mission was to go in and smash our home industries and reduce our wage-earners to the level of the pauper labor of Europe. They tried it and were defeated—and their defeat was of the most humiliating kind. Now, we should have learned from experience. Again they salty forth with resolutions intended to humbug what they are pleased to designate by the indefinite term of "the toiling masses". We are all toilers, but the only Democratic politician means the least intelligent of "the toilers", because they are the most easily humbugged. At the various local political meetings resolutions are adopted, all of the same strain as the following, adopted at the Democratic meeting in Plainfield last week:

Resolved, That we, the Democrats of the city of Plainfield, in primaries assembled, do hereby pledge anew their fidelity to the principles of the Democratic party, as set forth in the platform and hearty endeavor to aid and advance the election of the candidates of that time-honored organization, and especially ask the support of those of our fellow citizens to compare the present business depression and universal reduction of wages, with the high and unprecedentedly prosperous times of 1882, and to follow the lead of the Republican candidates in the late contest.

Resolved, That we as one man proclaim to all the contest shall be renewed on the line of battle fought in the last campaign, and that we pledge ourselves to work for victory.

Resolved, That we take no step backward, but still look upward and onward to assured success, believing that victory will only be defeated through unholy alliances and damnable practices, thereby voters were marshaled in blocks of five as slaves usually are led by the master.

In other words they are still for Free Trade and against Protection. To-day the dockmen in Free Trade England are engaged in a gigantic struggle to rise above pauper wages. The great strike in London is not likely to succeed permanently, because the weapons used in the strike are not adapted to the end of cementing capital to pay wages different from the law of supply and demand. Yet it will be interesting to the student of history, and especially to the Free Traders in this country, to note while New York dockmen, who struck in the great strike of 1882 for 30 cents an hour, now get 45 cents per hour; formerly for 17 cents, the London workmen receive only 9 and 10 cents per hour, and ask for an increase to 12 cents! Free Trade wages are pitiful indeed. Yet the Democrats shouters are still braying Free Trade.

PERSONAL.

Miss S. G. Kenney's school for little girls, will re-open Sept., 19th, at No. 3 First place.

A large congregation was present at the Park avenue Baptist church last evening to listen to Mrs. J. T. Ellis.

Mrs. J. M. Whitfield and family have returned from a few weeks stay at Pine Bush, N. J. They are now at their home on Broadway.

Mr. Alexander Weir and Miss Kate Donahue, both of this city were united in marriage last evening by Justice Crosley, of North Plainfield.

Mr. Frederic Van Emburgh, of Westfield, a son of Mr. George M. Van Emburgh, of the firm of Van Emburgh & White, was married to Miss Cora Rappleye, at the home of the bride's parents, Bergen Heights, by the Rev. Charles Herr, on August 29th.

Ex-Senator Peter Cramer, of Warren county, died at Instagdale, near New Hampton, Friday, in the sixty-sixth year of his age. Mr. Cramer was a prominent member of the New York Produce exchange and was well-known throughout this State.

Miss Mamie McCaffley, of Clinton st., Brooklyn, returned home to-day after a week's visit in Plainfield. She was the guest of the Misses Mary and Julia Field, of Liberty street. She expressed herself as highly pleased with her visit and her many new acquaintances.

Gunners Read This.

A good many gunners seem to labor under the delusion that a farmer must put up signs against trespassing if he would enforce the penalty. A much better delusion to labor under is that a farmer owns his property and that it would be the proper thing to do, to go ask permission to tramp over a farm. The gunner would think the farmer very rude if he were to come tramping through his house without asking permission, and what is sauce for the goose is sauce for the gander.

Somerset County Bible Society.

The seventy-second annual meeting of this Society will be held Tuesday, the 17th day of September, in the Reformed church of Franklin Park at 10:30 o'clock a. m., when the annual sermon will be delivered by the Rev. W. W. Jordon, and the usual business of the year transacted. The friends of the Bible cause and the public generally are respectfully invited to attend.

Mr. Kean Will Accept.

A number of New Brunswick Republicans waited on Congressman Kean at Elizabeth Friday and urged him to become an avowed candidate for the Republican nomination for Governor. He gave them to understand that he would accept if nominated.

—The Milford Leader tells us that a glib-tongued chap appeared in Frenchtown recently, and announced his intention of getting up a guest register for one of the hotels containing the cards of the leading business men of the place. He succeeded in inducing a number of business men to go into the scheme and got money for the proposed work in advance. The fellow then left the town after he had "worked it for all it was worth," and neither he nor the register have been seen since, although it is reported that the same game was played at Clinton and other places. This is an old trick, which has been exposed time and again in the newspapers; but it will do no harm to sound the warning cry again, "Look out for the swindler." Pass him along, brethren of the press.—Hunterdon County Democrat.

NEW JERSEY NUGGETS.

Live News Notes from Various Parts of the State.

The industrial department of the Orange public school opened yesterday.

Henry R. Van Horne, ex-clerk of Hudson county and a member of the Board of Aldermen of Jersey City, is generously stout.

The fourteen-months-old son of Michael Plake, living at No. 177 Twelfth street, Jersey City fell from a window Sunday night and crushed his skull, from which he died about midnight.

In the Newark Court of Special Sessions yesterday Delia Collins, alias Lillie Watson, who, in the name of Lillie Williams, robbed several houses, was convicted and sentenced to five years in State Prison.

James H. Corrigan, of Glenwood avenue, Orange, was driven out of the Orange on Sunday evening with his wife and child when the boat's intelligence office overturned the buggy. The child was badly injured, and Mr. and Mrs. Corrigan were severely bruised.

Thirteen cows belonging to Charles Stecher, a milkman, at Hoboken, were killed yesterday by officials of the National Bureau of Animal Industry. All the cows were suffering from pleuro-pneumonia. Other cattle were placed in quarantine.

The pavers employed by the city presented a request yesterday to the Board of Street and Water Commissioners for a 10 per cent. increase of wages from $3.50 to $4 a day. The petition was referred to a committee.

The Social Society of Elizabeth had a demonstration yesterday in connection with their annual festival. Members of the society paraded the streets in quaint German costumes. A float in the procession represented an old time Christmas in Germany.

The body of an elderly man who fell from the New York Central Railway pier while fishing Sunday morning and was drowned was identified yesterday as that of Rudolph Aberhalter, of 361 Grove street, Jersey City.

John Marren, of Elizabeth, was struck on the head and knocked senseless yesterday during a ball game in which he was catcher for one of the nines. The blow was accidentally struck by a batsman, who hit Marren directly in the face with his bat. The youth was found to be seriously injured, and it is feared his skull is fractured.

Bicycling and County Roads.

Bicycling has done one great service to the great American public. It has started a genuine boom in road building. The pleasure of bicycling depends upon the quality of the roads over which it is done. Thousands who take bicycle exercise in the country the bad condition of the roads have been a constant source of complaint. The subject was brought up in the convention of the Wheelmen's league, at which time a plan has been published giving information as to the methods and advantages of road improvements.

In this pamphlet it is demonstrated that good roads are capital investment while poor roads cost far more than would be required to keep them in good order. Besides the danger to teams which result from neglected roads, there is the increased amount of work necessary to overcome the disadvantages they offer. To pull a heavy truck of 9,000 pounds on a stone road, out of repair, there is necessary a traction of 243 pounds, according to the league's statistics; to pull the same load on a road in good repair, a traction of only 166 pounds is required.

There is also economy in the lessened cost of repairing of roads, for a bad road is a continual expense for repairs. Time in transit is another important consideration, for time means money in this country. Better time can be made over a good road than over a bad one. The "down" time on horses and vehicles is another thing that needs to be taken into consideration. Add to these considerations the increased attractiveness to population of a section having good roads and we have the further item of enchanced property values.—Newark Journal.

Signs of the Coming Winter.

Samuel Lovelace, an old Jersey farmer, gives the following opinion, based on long observation, that we are going to have an early Fall, and a long, cold, hard Winter. Samuel says: "I have a full crop of all sorts of good fruit. You will find your apples and peaches and grapes and all your fruit for that matter, which is home-grown, with a thicker and tougher skin than you have seen for several years. That is one of the indications. My corn was taken care of her products. Last Winter, apples and other fruits were so thin-skinned that the rotted it was hard to get them without bruising. If you remember, and we had an extraordinarily mild Winter. Corn is another of Nature's signboards. The ears this year are protected by thicker and stronger husks than I have seen before for years, and talking with farmers in Pennsylvania I find it is the same way there. Wheat and rye straw are tougher, hay is more wiry and the seed pods are better protected than usual. These are old farmers' signs, and they are good ones, because they don't come from any moon-planting superstition, but from actual observation, year after year, by a class of men whose interests lie in keeping close watch of all Nature's moods."

An Unfortunate Sermon.

The people of Metuchen are somewhat excited over a sermon by the Rev. F. S. Simmons, of the Methodist church, on the "Evil Tendencies of a Modern Dance." In the course of his talk he said that no young man can dance for half an hour with a girl without "sinning in thought." The young men of his congregation do not take this kindly, and one of them has protested publicly against the language.

—The members of Warren Engine Company No. 1, took their apparatus out for a "wash" last evening. Everything worked satisfactory. The steamer was located on the Grandview avenue well.

—The usual Tuesday evening meeting of the Young Ladies' Endeavor Society of the Warren Union Mission will be held this evening in the chapel commencing at 9:45 o'clock with a song service. Mrs. J. T. Ellis will be present and will give a short talk. All are invited.

—The six great coal-producing companies have decided to restrict the production for the month of September to 3,000,000 tons, which is 1,000,000 tons less than was mined in the same month last year. The fact that these great corporations are able to choke off production and strangle competition is a single illustration of the need by nearly everybody, is not at all to the credit of the institutions of our people. If there is any class of people who should be protected as far as cheap as possible, by means of abundant production and open competition. It is the class of people which rich and poor alike must have. Coal is a necessity, as much so as wheat and flour and wool. There should be no restriction in our own production of these things that would tend to arbitrarily increase the price of them. These great coal corporations should never be allowed to dictate either the amount of coal that shall be mined, or to fix the price for the same.

The Village Is Nearly All Silk.

Sterling, Morris county, is peculiar in that it is virtually "all silk". Up to some four years ago the town was of little importance, there being only a few houses clustered about a mill-dam, a factory, of about 1800 Mr. C. Chaffanjon purchased the factory and nearly the entire village, enlarged the former and added largely to the number of dwellings, and turned everything into silk. After about three years he abandoned the enterprise, and the valuable property fell into the hands of Mr. Julius C. Schlacter, from whom it has been purchased by Messrs. Cole & Kuehn, ribbon manufacturers, of Mount Hope Mill, Paterson. The property includes a factory, of stone and brick, three stories and basement in length, three stories in height; forty cottages for operatives, seven residences of a superior character, them very spacious, situated in the midst of ample grounds and fitted up with all modern conveniences, and nearly 400 acres of land. The factory will be enlarged, and the entire property greatly improved by the new owners, who have expended $100,000 for the whole, a great bargain. Nearly 100 looms are already in motion and about three times that number improvements. Terms moderate. P. O Box 376. 9-10

Lords in America.

When it was reported that a French baron was drowned at Long Branch this summer, industrious newspaper young men traced up the Brooklyn home of the alleged nobleman and interviewed his landlady, who merely smiled and said her late boarder wasn't much loss, as he never had more than $5 at a time in his possession. That was how the average American boarding house keeper has come to regard a nobleman. On the whole, the average boarding house keeper is a tolerably accurate judge of human nature.

Lords and barons are a drug in the market at present. If a stranger comes to an American hotel without the stiffest of credentials and says he is a British nobleman, the proprietor of that house has learned to be suspicious even of the real article when once in awhile it travels this way. It is unfortunate in these instances that there is no infallible way for an Americans to discern the lord from the valet. The one may act the blackguard quite as well as the other.

"That's the man who says he's a lord, but it's my opinion he is about as much of a lord as I am," is the confidential verdict of the American hotel keeper, after looking one of these self styled noblemen over from head to foot. When they send real blue bloods to us hereafter our British cousins should label and ticket them in some way so that we may know them certainly. At present Albert Edward himself might appear among us and be thought the butler of some rich tradesman. In fact, it is rather against a man now to be suspected here of being a lord.

A Natural Gas Treat.

It is doubtful whether geologists know much about it, but they tell us that the Ohio natural gas wells spout from the peaks of a great subterranean mountain range that runs parallel with the Alleghenies. This mountain range was submerged at some unknown period in the past. The gas is formed by heat, internal pressure, chemical action, etc., upon organic and inorganic matter in the clefts and caverns of the mountains. The gas field extends northeast and southwest from northwestern Ohio, through part of Indiana.

The history of this natural gas field is full of interest. The Standard Oil company discovered its extent and value while boring for an entirely different object, the discovery of petroleum wells. The original pressure of a natural gas well is tremendous, 400 pounds to the square inch. It is claimed that the supply shows practically no sign of diminution.

It is said now that a great combination of the principal gas operators of this field in question is to be made, and that they will at once proceed to pipe the product to the principal cities of Ohio and Indiana. Chicago will also be reached.

The revolution that will be wrought in this soft coal region can hardly be estimated. The gas fuel will clean up Cincinnati and Chicago till they no longer know themselves. The cost of the original product is of course nothing, except the well drilling, and the expense will be the piping. The impetus given to manufacturing in the gas field can hardly be estimated. Findlay, O., from a population of 5,000, grew in two years to 25,000, with thirty-five factories, where two had been before.

The reigning families of the Old World will soon be so closely kin to one another that they will constitute one great family. The marriage of Princess Sophie, sister of Emperor Willie of Germany, to the crown prince of Greece, will join by blood the families of Russia, Denmark, Great Britain, Germany and Greece, a regular chain guarding from northeastern Europe westward and back again to the east. Italy, Austria and Spain are the only principal monarchies not yet in this blood alliance. Difference of religion constitutes the bar to union with these. But elsewhere it will soon be that royalty cannot fire a gun without shooting in the direction of a grandmother, a cousin or an uncle.

There is a government school for youths of the Eastern Cherokee band at Yellow Hill, in Swain county, N. C. It counts eighty pupils, who are taught mechanical labor. The greatest difficulty in civilizing the Indian is one not usually known to his ardent admirers in Massachusetts and elsewhere. It is the almost utter impossibility of making him wear trousers. Col. Cody had wrestling and heartache on this account in his Wild West show, and no end of a time getting his red men in shape so that they would not upset the dignity of the crowned heads.

AN ALBANY HOLOCAUST.

Two Women Were Burned to Death.

MANY OTHERS WERE INJURED.

Scenes of Horror at the Burning of Mackie's Paper Warehouse—Men and Women Frantically Leap from Upper Stories—The Dead and Injured.

ALBANY, Sept. 10.—Fire started at 1:45 p. m. in the paper stock warehouse of P. J. McArdle, corner of Arch and Church streets. The building was a four story brick structure and was filled with junk. The flames spread with great rapidity and the entire building was soon a seething mass of flames, upon which the volumes of water seemed to have no effect. In an hour the west wall fell.

A Cry of Horror Went Up,

As immense crowd of people were attracted to the spot by the dense volumes of smoke. A cry of horror went up as a woman was seen in a fourth story window surrounded by the flames. She looked below for a moment and then jumped to the pavement. Her ribs were fractured and she sustained internal injuries that will prove very serious. Her name is Ellen Frank.

At Mrs. Powers jumped from a fourth story window and fell upon a pile of iron. She was horribly bruised and will die. The latter two were taken to the hospital.

Alarming Rumors Prevalent.

The fire originated in the fourth story over the boiler, but from what cause is unknown. The spread of the flames was so quick and the heat so great that it was reported that a number of people were burned to death before they had time to escape. The most alarming reports were circulated. It was impossible to obtain the names of the operatives, and tonight but a search will reveal the truth or falsity of the exciting rumors. A large number were employed in assorting the junk, many of them women of an advanced age. Later in the afternoon it was reported that a dozen had met death in the building.

Two Women Perished.

Two women are known to have perished in the flames. When the walls fell the streams began to take effect and the fire was speedily under control. The west wall in falling badly damaged the roof of a two story brick building. The name of one of the two women burned to death are Mrs. Scott and Mrs. Hyman. Mrs. Powers, who jumped from the window, said to a United Press reporter that there two women did not escape.

Two More Victims Dead.

When the fire started there were twelve women and four men in the building, all in the fourth story. The flames spread so rapidly that there was no time to escape by the stairway, and the roof and windows were used. Three men got out by the hoistway apparatus, but Edward Gentile, the bookkeeper, jumped down the elevator shaft and died at 6:30 p. m. Four women jumped from the fourth story windows. Mrs. Mack, 50 years old, fell on a pile of broken iron, sustaining injuries from which she died. Others badly injured were: Lulu Hartmann, Carrie Swartz, Ellen Franks, Mrs. McShane, Daniel Grennan and John Biglin. All of the latter will recover.

McArdle's loss is about $50,000, fully insured.

SEARLE DEFEATS O'CONNOR.

The Australian Champion Was an Easy Winner—The Stakes Fought For.

LONDON, Sept. 10.—The great sculling match for the championship of the world and $5,000 between Henry Searle, of Australia, and William O'Connor, of Canada, ended in a decided victory for the Australian. As he reached the stake, twenty-two minutes and forty-two seconds from the start, his opponent was fully six lengths behind. The interest in the race extended far beyond England. All over the country, but especially in the mining districts, bets were freely made on the result. At the start the betting was 5 to 4 on O'Connor. Searle won the toss and chose the Surrey side. O'Connor led to the start but caught a "crab," which enabled Searle to forge ahead. After this he led to the end, increasing his lead all the way.

At the close O'Connor gracefully admitted that Searle had proved the superior in the world. O'Connor disappointed his admirers. The general feeling is that he was overtrained. Besides, he is unaccustomed to tide water, and the tide ran at times miles an hour.

Henry Searle, the champion of the world, was born in 1866 at Grafton, Australia. His first attempt as a professional carsman was 16 November, 1884, when he won a waterman's race. His first race in an out rigger boat was in January, 1886, when he defeated the New Zealander, Edward Hearn. He gave him a start of two and a half boat lengths. In September, 1888, Peter Kemp won the championship of the world from Hanlan, and in October Searle defeated Kemp in a race against Stansbury in July, Searle broke all records over the Paramatter course, making 3 miles 330 yards in 19 minutes 30 seconds. Searle rows at 159 pounds. He is 5 feet 10 inches in height, and has a chest development of 41½ inches.

The Assembly Ceiling Scandal.

ALBANY, Sept. 10.—Judge Nott presided at the court of sessions when the assembly ceiling fraud was presented to the grand jury. District Attorney Reilly asked that Mr. Philip Rose be excused, as the latter, in answer to questions, stated that he had been employed by Speaker and was counsel and friend of Mr. Andrews. The excuse of Mr. Charles Tiernan was also asked for on the same grounds. The judge, however, held that he could not excuse them under the statute. Attorney General Tabor then presented a statement of the ceiling question and asked that it receive the attention of the jurors. After Judge Nott had addressed the jurors, dwelling at length on the subject of the conspiracy involved, they retired, with Mr. Norman O. Bell as foreman.

A Plumber Editor Fatally Shot.

CHICAGO, Sept. 10.—Alberto Bement, editor of the Master Steam Fitter and Heating Engineer, and Edward Cavell, an employe of his and his private secretary, while interested went to their lodgings at the corner of Cass and Illinois streets in a cab. There they became involved in a fight with the cab driver and Cavell drew a revolver, and in attempting to shoot the cab driver shot his friend and employer in the head, inflicting a probably fatal wound. Cavell and the cab driver are under arrest.

DOWN ON DUELLING.

Georgia is Very Angry with Messrs. Huff and Butterworth.

ATLANTA, Ga., Sept. 10.—The Georgia legislature will at once take steps towards expelling the world be duellists. Huff and Butterworth, who had been introduced making it a felony to participate in any correspondence proposing a duel. The correspondence between Huff and Patterson has been published in the papers, and Patterson yesterday waited thirty-six hours at Sulphur Springs, Ala., without hearing from Huff. Patterson has returned to Atlanta.

Huff went from Columbus, Ga., to Macon, Ga., but left there almost immediately for Salem, Ala., near Opelika, and wired his whereabouts to his friends here. Huff and his friend, Capt. Geo. Hurt, were arrested at Salem and taken to Opelika, where they were put under heavy bonds—Huff $10,000 and Sims $2,500—to keep the peace. This will prevent them from being bailed in Alabama. It is believed here, however, that there will be some sort of a conflict between the two men.

A Fatal Freight Wreck.

LYNCHBURG, Va., Sept. 10.—A freight wreck occurred at an early hour four miles below this city on the Norfolk and Western railroad, resulting in the killing of Fireman Charles McVey, of Lynchburg, Va., and perhaps the fatal injury of Brakeman Randolph. The first section of the train broke loose on a heavy grade and seven cars ran back and collided with the second section, with a short distance in the rear, with the result stated. The injured brakeman was brought to this city, where his leg was amputated.

"SUNSET" COX IS DYING.

His Death May be Looked for at Any Moment.

HIS MALADY DREAD PNEUMONIA.

A Brief Sketch of the Well Known Politician, Traveler and Literary Man—The Important Incidents of His Public Life at Home and Abroad.

NEW YORK, Sept. 10.—"Sunset" Cox is dying. It is thought by those in attendance at the congressman's bedside that the critical hour in his illness may come at any moment, and no one is allowed to see him. About a month ago, while in Washington, the congressman contracted what was supposed to be malarial fever, but which rapidly developed into pneumonia. Dr. Sowers, of Washington, who two years ago brought the congressman through an attack similar to the one he is now undergoing, first called of the case. The doctor has within the past twenty-four hours discovered alarming symptoms, and from what he says regarding the physical condition of Mr. Cox, it is thought by others in attendance that the witty statesman may never rally.

A Sketch of Mr. Cox.

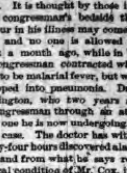
Samuel Sullivan Cox is now in his 66th year, having been born in Zanesville, O., Sept. 30, 1824. He has lived in New York for a quarter of a century. He was elected to the forty-third congress from New York city in 1866. He was appointed secretary of legation to Peru in 1885, and represented the Columbus (O.) district in the Thirty-sixth, Thirty-seventh and Thirty-eighth congresses long before coming to New York. He resigned the office of minister to Turkey and returned to New York city, where he was elected to the Forty-ninth congress to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of another congressman from New York. He was re-elected to the Fiftieth congress. It is said that a quiet but healthy boom for Mr. Cox as a presidential candidate in 1892 was started by his friends and admirers, both in this city and in the far west.



SUNSET COX.

Some of His Public Services.

Congressman Cox has always been in great demand as a campaign speaker, drawing large houses wherever and whenever he had announced to speak. He was a delegate to the Chicago, New York and St. Louis Democratic conventions of 1864, 1868 and 1876. Mr. Cox introduced and aided in a great measure the successful passage of the life saving bill. He also inaugurated the scheme of apportionment adopted by the house of representatives. To him is due the raising of the salaries of letter carriers.

For many years the congressman served as one of the regents of the Smithsonian institution. When the committee was selected to investigate the Black Friday affair, Mr. Cox was chosen as one of its members. He also served on committees appointed to look into the matter of Federal elections in cities, the New York postoffice and the Ku-Klux outrages.

His Literary Productions.

The congressman had traveled much abroad, having visited Europe and northern Africa in 1869. Among his literary productions are the following: "Puritanism in Politics," "Why We Laugh," "The Buckeye Abroad," "Eight Years in Congress," "A Search for Winter Sunbeams," "Arctic Sunbeams," "The Three Decades of Federal Legislation," and many shorter productions in pamphlet form.

At 11 o'clock Mrs. Cox said that Mr. Cox was resting better, though still in a precarious condition. He has spells of choking, owing to inability to expel phlegm from the throat. At midnight the doctors held a consultation and decided that no crisis would be reached for some hours yet.

Mrs. Cox sent the following reply to an inquiry from a friend in Washington: "Mr. Cox is slowly rallying, and hopes of recovery are increasing."

Valuable Yearlings Sold.

NEW YORK, Sept. 10.—The annual sale of the yearlings of Hurstbourne and Meadowthorpe stud farms, of Lexington, Ky., and Ferncliffe stud farm, of Rhinebeck, N. Y., took place at the Central Park Riding academy. About 600 people were present, including a number of noted horsemen throughout the country. Fifty-four colts and fillies were nine yearlings from the Ferncliffe farm. The prices ranged from $100 to $625 and averaged $306. The next lot offered were the yearlings of the Meadowthorpe farm. Fifteen were sold at prices ranging from $175 to $1,050, the average price being $492.

Taylor was in the Hold.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 10.—Richard E. Taylor, who is charged with complicity in the forgery by which Wells, Fargo & Co.'s agent, Wm. Jas Lee lost $4,800 several months ago, was captured on the steamer Australia, which is lying at her dock here. Taylor was arrested in Honolulu several weeks ago and brought to San Francisco on the Australia, but when the steamer arrived in port last Saturday he was missing. He was found concealed in the hold.

He Will Go Through the Rapids.

NIAGARA FALLS, N. Y., Sept. 10.—Walter G. Griffin, of Buffalo, and Wm. Jas. N. Y., has constructed a life preserver with which, he says, he will on Sunday next swim the rapids from the Maid of the Mist landing through the Whirlpool rapids. His life preserver, or rather double life preserver, as he calls it, is similar to the one worn by Kendall in his trip. It is made of sixteen pieces of cork, 5 by 14 inches, and 1 inch thick.

Incendiaries Caught in the Act.

DENDALE, Sept. 10.—Since July 4 there have been six incendiary fires in Roslyndale. R. G. Duffee, 21, of West Roxbury, and Benjamin Davison, 26, of this place, were arrested in the act of firing an unoccupied house, and were held in $1,000 each for the grand jury. Losses by fire attributed to them aggregate $6,000.

The Aurora Watch Company Assigns.

AURORA, Ills., Sept. 10.—The Aurora Watch company has assigned, with liabilities amounting to nearly $250,000. The assets are supposed to be double that amount. The managers of the concern say the shut down is only temporary, and it is rumored that a foreign syndicate is at the bottom of the matter.

The President's Plans.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 10.—The presidential party returned to the city late in the evening. The president will go to Deer Park at once. Private Secretary Halford, who is still unwell, hopes to be able to accompany the president. He did not go to Baltimore.

THE DRESSED BEEF QUESTION.

Investigating the Alleged "Combine" at Kansas City.

KANSAS CITY, Sept. 10.—The senate committee investigating the dressed beef question has begun its session here. George W. Dick, ex-governor of Kansas, and Charles Durst, of Atchison, were the only witnesses examined in the forenoon. Mr. Dick said he had been in the cattle raising business for thirty years, during which time the prices had deteriorated 30 to 40 per cent. He claimed that this was due to the establishment of the Kansas City of a great packing interest which had developed first a great competition among the sellers of cattle, and afterwards a combination among packers that was so powerful that its members could buy cattle at their own prices. He then related his own experiences in attempting to sell cattle at better prices than those fixed by the "combine," concluding with the statement that after reshipping cattle to Chicago he was compelled to sell at the "combine's" prices.

He also stated that the business done at Atchison was being ruined by the combination until the city council passed and enforced a city ordinance requiring the inspection of beef on the hoof.

Charles Durst, a butcher, of Atchison, testified that the impression existed among his business acquaintances that there is a combination among packers to control the prices of dressed beef and cattle.

FRIGHTFUL BOILER EXPLOSION.

Five Men Blown to Atoms Near Carbondale, Ills.

CARBONDALE, Ills., Sept. 10.—At 11:30 a. m. a boiler used on the farm of John W. Snider, half a mile east of this city, exploded with disastrous results. Five men lost their lives, viz.: John W. Snider, Thomas Lygat, Andrew Lygat, John Biggs and Isaac Miller (colored).

The men were grouped about the boiler, which was cutting and giving it trouble. Mr. Snider gave the order to shut down, when in an instant the boiler exploded. William G. Spiller was blown some distance and escaped with a broken leg. All the men except Andrew Lygat, are families, and all are residents of this vicinity.

Honoring Governor Thayer.

MILFORD, Mass., Sept. 10.—The reception to Governor Thayer, of Nebraska, by the Irish societies of Milford was a very successful affair. A large procession escorted Governor Thayer from the Mansion house to the town hall, where Mr. P. H. Curran delivered an address of welcome, to which Governor Thayer responded appropriately. There were also speeches by a number of prominent Irish-Americans, after which an informal reception was held and a banquet followed. The governor was presented with a fine gold headed blackthorn stick by the Emmet association. The occasion of these honors to Governor Thayer was his recent defense of Hon. Patrick Egan from the attacks of political enemies.

Killed While Resisting Arrest.

BALTIMORE, Sept. 10.—Frank Gaithl was killed by being struck in the breast with a brick, alleged to have been thrown by a negro named William Chester, in the saloon of John Frisch. At 9 o'clock Sergeant Thomas F. Hogan, who was looking for Chester, arrested him. Chester struck the sergeant a heavy blow and knocked him to his knees. Sergeant Hogan drew his pistol and fired four shots at Chester. One of the bullets struck Chester in the back of the neck and killed him. Kolbl was 30 years of age and leaves a widow and three children at No. 504 Lloyd street.

Charlemagne Tower's Will.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Sept. 10.—The terms of the will of the late Charlemagne Tower, of Philadelphia, have been made public. Fourtenths of the estate is bequeathed to the widow and the remainder is to be divided among the five children of the deceased. On the death of the widow her property is also to be divided among the children. Mr. E. B. Putnam, wife of an attorney in this city, is a daughter of the deceased, and her share is estimated at $4,000,000.

The Clergy Want Their Rights.

PARIS, Sept. 10.—The bishop of Seez has written to M. Thevenet, minister of justice, protesting against the circular letter recently sent by the minister to the bishops reminding them that they are forbidden by law from taking part in the elections. In his letter the bishop states that the circular of the minister of justice wounds the dignity and patriotism of the clergy. "As French citizens," he says, "we claim our rights, of which you cannot deprive us."

The Flack Case.

NEW YORK, Sept. 10.—The grand jury took further testimony in the Flack divorce matter. Margaret Smith and her sister testified that they did not make the affidavits purporting to have been made by them which were used in the circuit court here, and in which it was stated that Flack lived with Mrs. Raymond at Mrs. Smith's house. They stated that they signed the affidavits upon misstatements by ex-Judge Monell as to their contents.

The Cronin Case.

CHICAGO, Sept. 10.—At the famous Carlson cottage Lawyer Forrest, the most prominent attorney engaged in the defense of the men accused of the Cronin murder, went into the cottage to secure some of the plastering said to have been stained with Cronin's blood. He was accompanied by four men, who intimidated the Carlsons with revolvers. Forrest will make a test of the stains to see if they are really of human blood.

California's Thirty-ninth Anniversary.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 10.—The banks and exchanges and a large number of business houses are closed, it being a legal holiday, the thirty-ninth anniversary of the admission of California into the union. It is being celebrated in the usual manner by parades, festivities, etc., the principal event being the celebration at San Jose, the first order of the Native Sons of the Golden West.

Johns Hopkins All Right.

BALTIMORE, Sept. 10.—The rumor that Johns Hopkins university will close on account of the fact that no dividends have been declared of late by the Baltimore and Ohio railroad, in which the bulk of the university fund is invested, is denied. The university has lost largely, but is not crippled by any means.

The Shah Frightened.

ST. PETERSBURG, Sept. 10.—It is understood that the shah is greatly alarmed at the severe illness of the railway accident at Bar, which he considers was of a suspicious character. He will not visit Odessa and will return directly to Persia. It is thought he will probably modify his plans regarding Russia.

A Boston Business Man Suicides.

GLOUCESTER, Mass., Sept. 10.—Mr. Eben Dale, of Boston, treasurer of the Dexter woolen mills, committed suicide in his room at Fresh Water Cove, shooting himself through the head. Mr. Dale was 49 years old and was a cousin of Assistant Postmaster W. J. Dale, of Boston. He leaves a widow.

A FIENDISH BUTCHERY.

The Horrible Fate of a Pretty Young Woman.

SHE FOUGHT FOR LIFE AND HONOR

Miss Leconey, of Merchantville, N. J., Was the Victim—Several Hundred Dollars were Stolen—Francis Lingo, a Negro, is Thought to Be the Murderer.

MERCHANTVILLE, N. J., Sept. 10.—One of the most brutal murders ever recorded in this county took place near here, the victim being a very pretty and accomplished young woman, Miss Annie E. Leconey. The crime occurred a short distance from this borough at a place known as Leconey's Mill, and the entire community is aroused, and parties are now searching the swamps for the murderer. The murdered woman was the miller's niece and the housekeeper for the Leconey homestead, and had lived there for about seven years.

Discovery of the Crime.

The first known of the murder was at about 7 a. m., when a girl named Lizzie O'Donnell went to the mill to get some chicken feed. Finding the mill closed, she went across the road to the house and knocked at the kitchen door. Receiving no answer, she pushed the door open and a terrible spectacle met her gaze. Stretched at full length on the floor in the room was Miss Leconey with her throat cut from ear to ear and the floor covered with blood. Near the body lay a large butcher knife covered with blood, and the room bore evidence of a determined struggle.

The Work of a Fiend.

The alarm was soon given by the terrified little girl, and a large and excited crowd soon gathered at the scene. The village physician was summoned and an examination of the body of the dead girl was made. Her clothing was much torn and disarranged, and it was evident that the murderer had been cut after an attempt at assault had failed. The head was almost severed from the body, and from the gashes it is not thought that the knife found near the side of the body was the weapon used, as the cuts were very clean, as though made with a razor.

Two Negroes Suspected.

The young woman was alone in the house when attacked and at the time was engaged in washing the dishes. It is thought by the detectives now engaged on the case that she picked up the butcher knife to defend herself as the fiend entered the house. The men had gone to the field to work and there was no help within sound of her voice. When they left the house Annie was standing in the kitchen door. No one was noticed in the vicinity when they went to work, but a short time afterwards two negroes were seen leaving the vicinity of the mills. Suspicion at once fastened on them as the murderers. One of the suspected negroes is named Frank Lingo, who lives in the hamlet of Homestead ville, near the scene of the tragedy.

Robbery Also a Feature.

The murderer or murderers ransacked the house and carried off one pocketbook containing about $300. They had secured another containing about $250, and dropped it in the yard. The murderer left a charge of the house, which is literally smeared with blood. The window shutters were closed by the murderers, who left bloody finger marks on the inside and edges of the shutters. This and the deliberate search for money, which was made in the upstairs rooms while the murdered girl lay dead, is regarded as convincing proof that the guilty man or men knew the habits of the household and that no interruption was likely to occur unless some passer by learned of the horror by glancing in at the window.

Lingo Under Arrest.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 10.—Francis Lingo, a burly negro, was arrested this afternoon by State Detective Burr and Constable Naylor on suspicion of being the murderer of Miss Leconey. He was committed to the Mount Holly jail to await the action of the coroner. Lingo was to have gone to Leconey's to work, and he had told his friends telling his wife that he would spend breakfast and dinner there. He dined at the "Starr farm," and while eating he appeared to be agitated and very nervous. Lingo is an old jail bird. He has served three years at Trenton for robbery. The officials here think that he had an accomplice.

TEN MINERS DROWNED.

Water Floods the White Ash Mine from an Adjoining Shaft.

GOLDEN, Colo., Sept. 10.—One of the most serious mining accidents ever known of in this portion of the state occurred in the White Ash coal mine near this place. An abandoned shaft belonging to the White Ash has for months been full of water, which, without a moment's warning, burst through into the White Ash mine, filling it with mud and water. Ten miners are known to have been at work in the mine at the time of the disaster, and not one of them could have lived five minutes after the surging mass broke in upon them. It will probably take two or three weeks to reach their bodies. The names of but three of the unfortunate men can be given—John Murphy, John Morgan and Tom Allen—but it is positively known that ten lives have been lost. Most of them have families. The work of pumping and clearing out the mine will be commenced at once.

Broche Swears to His Story.

NEW BRIGHTON, Pa., Sept. 10.—Steve Broche, the latest hero of Niagara, accompanied by his witnesses, Ernest Jerrold, Louis Leiljer and John McCarthy, went before Notary Public E. R. Wood, of this place, and to an affidavit told the story of the passage over the falls by Brodie last Saturday. The affidavit simply reiterates the story as published on Saturday last, and sworn to by the four men above mentioned.

Guilford's Celebration.

GUILFORD, Sept. 10.—The celebration of the 200th anniversary of this town's settlement was continued. There were literary exercises at the First church, including a poem by George A. Hoskins, of Detroit, Mich., and addresses by several distinguished visitors. Col. T. W. Higginson, Senator Hawley and others also spoke.

Fatal Sport with Dynamite.

CLARKSBURG, W. Va., Sept. 10.—An Italian working on the Midland railroad picked up a dynamite cartridge and began boring it to a more powerful charge. In so doing he let it fall and it exploded. Two of the Italians were literally torn to pieces, while others were seriously injured.

A Confectioner Suicides.

CINCINNATI, Sept. 10.—John Boecher, aged 60, a retired confectioner of this city, committed suicide by shooting himself at his residence in St. Bernard, a suburban village. No cause is thus far assigned. He leaves a widow and six children.

BURDETTE'S PHILOSOPHY.

NATURAL AS DAD.

"A strange and unaccountable story that comes from Texas," is the title of a newspaper letter telling about a rose bush, near Fort Worth, that when cut drips human blood; pronounced to be real and truly human blood by the best chemists that ever tasted her in Texas. We have read the letter and the affidavits of the apothecaries, but we can't see anything strange or unaccountable in it, even to the story of the skeletons found under the rose bush. All it explained when it is remembered that under the old law of 1839 all the liars of Texas were banished to Fort Worth.

SPORT AND POLITICS.

"I can't see," complained Rollo's sister, looking up from the paper she was reading, "how you can tell, when they name so many horses after great men, when the paper speaks of the horse and when it refers to the man who is named after him." "What does it say?" asked Rollo, who was beginning to tell time by the clock himself. "It says: 'Russell Harrison and Daniel Voorhees,'" replied his sister, referring to the paper. "Oh," said Rollo, as he turned to his English grammar again, "that's the horses, of course. If it meant the men, the editor would have said 'Cab Harrison and Hoosier Dan.'"

BAA!

The governor of Harvard university, who always comes to The Eagle when he is stuck on a rocky one, to use his own expression, wants to know why the lovers in Virgil's pastorals were shepherds? Because, governor, the lover and the shepherd are alike devoted to the praising. We'll take a degree for that. Say about 62 in the shade.

QUERY TO MR. THEOPHILUS.

William Heagen, of Baltimore, advertises that his wife Anne has left his bed and board and he will pay no debts of her contracting. That's the second time within twelve days that Heagan has run away on that same division of the Pennsylvania railway.

HARROWING NEWS.

The tramp leaned over the old rail fence, and as the weary plowman came near on his monotonous round hailed him: "How do you like it, furrows you've got?" And the w. p. said he was only following it up to see what his share would come to.

OPTICAL DELUSION.

"Doctor," said a despondent patient, "I believe I'm going blind." "Huh," said the doctor, impatiently, "that's all in your eye."—Burdette in Brooklyn Eagle.

He Got It.

Among the passengers on a western train yesterday was a woman very much overdressed, accompanied by a bright looking nurse girl and a self willed tyrannical boy of about 3 years.

The boy aroused the indignation of the passengers by his continual shrieks and kicks and screams and his viciousness toward his patient nurse. He tore her bonnet, scratched her hands and finally spat in her face without a word of remonstrance from the mother.

Whenever the nurse manifested any firmness the mother chided her sharply. Finally the mother composed herself for a nap, and about the time the boy had slapped the nurse for the fifth time a woman sitting in front gave the children of the nurse's seat. The boy at once tried to catch it.

The nurse caught his hand and said, coaxingly:

"Harry mustn't touch. Bug will bite Harry."

Harry screamed savagely and began to kick and bite the nurse.

The mother, without opening her eyes or lifting her head, cried out sharply:

"Why do you tease that child so, Mary? Let him have what he wants at once."

"But, ma'am, it's a"—

"Let him have it, I say."

Thus encouraged Harry clutched at the crawling insect. The scream that followed brought tears of joy to the passengers' eyes.

The mother awoke again.

"Mary," she cried, "let him have it!"

Mary turned in her seat and said, confusedly:

"He's got it, ma'am!"—Boston Journal.

She Was Reading About the President.

Nantucket is smiling at a little adventure of Mrs. Harrison at that place. There is a little store at Nantucket where they sell baskets of odd shapes, and it is the custom with visitors to buy them as souvenirs of the place. Mrs. Harrison wandered in there the other day, and looking over the baskets, asked the funny old woman who attends the store, and who is of herself a character worth seeing:

"What is the price of this basket?" holding one up.

"Marked on the bottom," was the terse reply.

Mrs. Harrison repeated the question, and the woman, with a most annoyed expression, glanced up from her paper and said: "It's marked on the bottom: I don't see why you can't be bothered to stop and answer questions; I'm reading about the President's trip to Bar Harbor."—St. Louis Republic.

Keegan's Imported Cigar.

They gave a ball at Mulvaney's,
Miss Keegan he smoked a cig-yar,
He knew that it was tin-pon-tod,
And Mulvaney knew it on a bigyar.
It was wonse than any sto-gie—
Oh, my! though, but wasn't it rank!
From the way that Keegan smoked it
You'd a thought that he owned a bank.

He smoked it out in the hallway,
Wid a plashter back in his neck,
And "the wind blew through his whiskers,"
Making of them a total wreck.
Through the window he left Keegan,
He landed a shtiff hat-et-case;
But 'twill be many a day, though,
Before Keegan will smoke again.

Miss Keegan said, Mulvaney,
Mary Ann's got bad eggs in the duff."
But Keegan, he calmly stood there,
And he took another long puff.
Then he said, "I'm not a-smoking;"
While others, "A rat had died there;"
But Keegan, he kept on smoking
As his face got big and hazi-ar.

They ar-pire-ad a con-sid-ra-ble
To discover the ho-rid smell,
Who got onto Keegan's smoking,
For we soon heard an awful yell.
"I'm smoking said a smoking,"
"Keegan," We found old Towser dead
Next day—he'd ex-haus-ted Keegan's cigar.

THE LATE HENRY SHAW.

He Was the Founder of the Shaw Botanical Gardens in St. Louis.

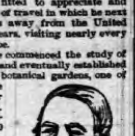
St. Louis has lost the best friend she ever had by the recent death of Henry Shaw. Mr. Shaw was born in Manchester, England. At the age of 19 he sailed for America, and finally settled down in St. Louis on May 4, 1819. He started a hardware business on his own account in a small building on the river front, and for a time was proprietor, clerk and porter. Owing to his close attention to business, economy and natural shrewdness the young merchant prospered. For twenty years of active commercial life he had amassed a fortune that enabled him to retire from business when but 40 years of age. Mr. Shaw's record as a business man was of the highest. During the busiest part of his life he had found time for study, and when he retired was well fitted to appreciate and profit by the years of travel in which he next indulged. He was away from the United States about ten years, visiting nearly every quarter of the globe.

On his return he commenced the study of plants and flowers and eventually established the world famous botanical gardens, one of the most complete in existence. For many years Mr. Shaw made a standing offer of $1,000 for any specimen for the garden. He was several times called upon to pay this sum. Mr. Shaw determined that others should enjoy the pleasure his wealth had secured for him, had the gates of his gardens thrown open and visitors were welcomed to the private grounds for which he had spent a fortune to beautify. He was a great public benefactor. His gift to the city of the Tower Grove park, and the statues of Humboldt and Shakespeare, are examples of his great generosity. He was of a singularly modest and unassuming nature. His residence at Tower Grove was always open to the public.



HENRY SHAW.

On the 4th of May, 1889, the fiftieth anniversary of his arrival in St. Louis, a brilliant company of St. Louisans gathered at his residence to do honor to the city's benefactor. Mr. Shaw was then informed that the incidents of his first arrival in the city and other reminiscences, and was answered by an address from Governor B. Gratz Brown. Mr. Shaw lived at Tower Grove for years. He was very hospitable, was always glad to welcome visitors, and nearly every afternoon a number of callers were to be seen at his beautiful homestead. He was a member of the Episcopalian church, the charitable institutions of which will be particularly favored in his will. Mr. Shaw never knew what sickness was until 1879, when he suffered from a severe attack of double pneumonia, from the effects of which he never entirely recovered. His estate is estimated to be worth $2,500,000, and the greater part of his fortune will be left to the city of St. Louis in various bequests.

MILFORD AND GUILFORD.

One Has Celebrated and the Other Is About to Celebrate a 250th Birthday.

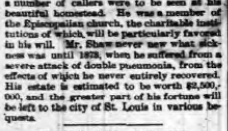
Milford, Conn., has just celebrated the 250th anniversary of its founding, and Guilford, of the same state, is about to follow suit, her quarter millennial date falling Sept. 6 and continuing three days. The Milford celebration included the dedication of a handsome memorial bridge and tower, the bridge spanning the Wepawaug river at the head of what is known locally as the Gorge. It is adorned with divers tablets bearing appropriate inscriptions. The town is filled with old houses, churches, etc., and the old graveyard is a delight for those who love the antique in burial places.



OLDEST HOUSE IN GUILFORD.

The Guilford celebration is in some quarters regarded as more important than that at Milford, especially by the Guilford people. The exercises will include the delivery of a poem by Charles Lete, of Guilford; historical address by Professor Samuel Harpe, of Trinity college; a paper by Professor Johnson, of the same institution; addresses by Col. T. W. Higginson, W. R. Dudley, of Cornell university, and John Todd, of New Haven, etc., etc. Among the proudest relics of the past in Guilford is the "old stone house," of which a view is given. Built in 1639 by Mr. Whitfield, one of the original settlers. It is the oldest house in Guilford, and by some is held to be the oldest in all New England.

OLDEST HOUSE IN MILFORD.

A cut is also given of the oldest house in Milford.

Insensibility to Odors.

A Californian, writing to Garden and Forest with regard to the sense of taste, cites the case of a prominent Chicago physician, who declared that he could not tell the difference between the taste of castor oil and of olive oil. To test the question his wife dressed a salad with oil ricin, which he partook of with great gusto, but not without enjoying afterward all the remedial benefits of the drug. The editor of The Journal, commenting on the foregoing, says: Perhaps this is only another example of the "deceitfulness" of certain odors. The peculiar "flavor" of castor oil is conveyed through the olfactory nerves. Children are directed not to breathe through the nose while taking this medicine, and in this way they escape its disagreeable "taste." The subject has interested many readers. One writes: "It seems like an affectation to say that peppermints have any odor. It has to me more the taste of clean, white plate." Another writes that the members of his family cannot distinguish between the fragrance of the flowers of a large vine of Clematis crispa, now in full bloom, while he has never yet been able to detect the slightest odor in these flowers.

ROYAL FLUSHES.

Princess Louise's favorite diversion just now is glass painting.

The czar has received from Berlin a magnificent pair of pillow shams.

Prince Ferdinand Croy, of Westphalia, has gone to Rome to take holy orders.

The sultan of Turkey has a small electric railway, constructed entirely by native workmen.

The betrothal is announced at Berlin of the Duke of Nassau to Princess Margaret, youngest sister of Emperor William of Germany.

Prince Henry of Battenberg may soon become duke of Inverness—the title of duke of Kent, which his mother-in-law desired for him, being vigorously opposed as exclusively royal.

The crown princess of Sweden is to pass the winter at Cannes, in consequence of the delicate state of her health; and her brother, the hereditary prince of Baden, is also ordered to go to the Riviera in October.

On his return to power ex-King Milan is expected in Paris, and his agents are negotiating for the late Duc de Morny's house in the avenue des Champs Elysees. King Milan has an allowance of £12,000 a year from the Servian civil list.

The Empress Frederick will probably occupy the beautiful royal palace of Capo di Monte during her residence at Naples next winter, and King Humbert has also offered to place the chateau of Caserta at her disposal.

The shah contemplates introducing certain European dishes into the royal Persian menu, and has consequently engaged for one of his cooks, who received instruction in the kitchens of Buckingham palace as to the preparation of certain English dishes, to go through a year's instruction in cookery at a Parisian restaurant.

On a recent visit of the queen regent of Spain at Castle Granjanlas, she had her three children, the young Spanish king and his two little sisters, weighed in the kitchen scales. The king turned the scales at 15 kilo, the princess of Asturias at 21 kilo, the infanta Maria Maria Teresa at 26 kilo. The queen regent weighed 55 kilo.

Count Hartenau, otherwise Prince Alexander of Battenberg, Beatrice's brother-in-law, has been received in private audience at Gratz by Archduke Charles Louis, who invited him to attend the maneuvers to be held this year in the valley of Lavant, in Carinthia. It is understood that the "count" will shortly be appointed to the command of an Austrian regiment stationed at Styria.

NOVELTIES IN BRIC-A-BRAC.

Classic and historic subjects in Castilian marble are exciting much admiration.

The ivory back of a desk blotter showing through a perforated covering of silver deserves praise.

The figure of the king of beasts realistically represented in oxidized silver makes an admirable paper weight.

Decidedly pretty as a mantel ornament is the figure of a demure young lady sitting on a park seat, apparently engrossed in a book.

Originality of design is shown in the spreading leaves of the plebeian cabbage, the centers of which are clustered into a bowl for flowers.

Etched on the front of a silver triplicate mirror, recently shown, are the figures which have made the painting "The Angelus" so famous.

A small bronze basket, painted to imitate wicker work, having the figure of a child perched saucily on the edge, is a recent importation.

Wrought iron filigree work interspersed with polished brass flowers makes a harmonious piano lamp stand for a darkly furnished apartment.

Grotesque figures of gnomes represented in extravagant postures have filled the places vacated by the stone dogs and monkeys in the homes of fashionable people.

Roman contests between animals and muscular gladiators form the decorations of a vase of recent importation. The figures are both artistically and minutely executed.

Small rose jars of the Egyptian vase pattern are gradually forcing the old fashioned styles to the rear. The new designs are decorated with Arabic scenes, in which richly caparisoned camels, with shapely slaves, are prominent.

The face of a small mantel clock showing through the triangle entrapped in a silver Indian wigwam constitutes an original ornament. The exterior of the miniature habitation is profusely decorated with mythological animals.—Jeweler's Weekly.

FASHIONS FOR MEN.

The latest fad in bicycle breeches is in Jersey made goods.

In length the winter overcoat will extend to the top of the knee cap.

Black hosiery is still fashionable, though tan, blue and gray socks are worn.

Blue coats and brass buttons have been worn by fashionable French bridegrooms this summer.

For overcoats the smooth surface goods of the Kersey mellon school will be the most popular.

For full dress occasions patent leather shoes continue to be worn, and may be either laced or buttoned.

The black, lusterless finish fabrics will be generally chosen for the full dress suits and the frock coats.

Walking shoes for men come in form of buttoned gaiters, and may be tipped with patent leather or not, as best suits the wearer.

The handkerchief preferred by good dressers is of fine, strong linen, with narrow hem and monogram, or initial embroidered in one corner.

Trousers will be fashioned upon the same roomsome straight cut of last spring, with perhaps a shade more of inclination to the peg top.

The buttoned kid or suede gloves, which had gained favor in the latter part of last winter, will find increased favor in the fall among the best dressers.

The top vest button will be a trifle lower in the fall styles. The vest will be made with notched lapel and the opening curved to fine a perceptible degree, no more.

Numbered with luxuries come silk suspenders with gold or silver buckles, necktie holders of gold set with gems, night shirts of China silk with colored embroidery, and bathroom fashioned flannel silk shirt in shaped shape.

SAYRE—HAMMOND.

Sketches of the Men Who Have Been Quarreling About the Elixir.

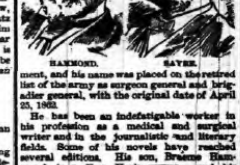
W. A. Hammond, M. D., of Washington, and Lewis A. Sayre, M. D., of New York, who have been airing one another's private records because of a disagreement as to the advisability of making experiments with Dr. Brown-Sequard's alleged elixir, are both old enough to know better than to make such an exhibition as they have of themselves.

Dr. Hammond was born in Annapolis, Md., Aug. 28, 1828; is 6 feet 2 in. height, and still carries himself erect. He was graduated from the medical department of the University of New York, and entered the United States army in 1849 as assistant surgeon, with the rank of first lieutenant. In October, 1860, he resigned, to become professor of anatomy and physiology in the University of Maryland, but when the civil war broke out he again entered the army and rose, step by step, to be surgeon general in April, 1862. He instituted radical changes, but suffered from charges of irregularity in awarding certain liquor contracts. Then came trouble, and his dismissal as surgeon general, after a court martial, by Secretary Stanton. This was in 1864, and the young surgeon had but about $500 in the world. He determined to leave Washington and settle in New York, where he did so made a vow that he would return to the capital in twenty-five years reinstated and cleared of all suspicion.



HAMMOND. SAYRE.

His reinstatement took place in 1879, but he was not yet ready to return to Washington, and in fact did not go back till 1888, when he established himself at Washington at the head of a large private institution for the treatment of the disorders he had made a specialty. He had by that time accumulated a very comfortable competence, and had won a name second to none in the ranks of his profession. During the early days of his residence in New York he was often in straits financially, but he struggled manfully with adversity, making various disorders his specialty and eking out his slender income with his ready pen. Quite early in his New York career he was made lecturer on nervous diseases in the New York College of Physicians and Surgeons. In 1873 he set about the vindication of his character, a bill being introduced in congress authorizing the president to review the court martial by which he was displaced. The result was reinstatement, and his name was placed on the retired list of the army, with the rank of major general, with the original date of April 25, 1863.

He has been an indefatigable worker in his profession as a medical and surgical writer and in the journalistic and literary fields. Some of his novels have reached several editions, and his latest work, a book on "Nerve Force," is now in its second issue. It is from this same house, where he first received fame, that he now receives celebrated her one-hundredth birthday, and was strong enough to receive not only her children, grandchildren and great grandchildren, but also a large number of her friends and acquaintances.

Dr. Sayre is a native of Oneida Hill, new Madison, N. J., where he was born Feb. 29, 1820. He was graduated from Transylvania university, Ky., in 1839, and the College of Physicians and Surgeons in 1841. He was shortly given the office of prosecutor to Dr. Willard Parker, professor of surgery in that institution, which he held for ten years. In 1859 he was made surgeon to Bellevue hospital, New York, and since that time has held several similar offices in other institutions in and about New York city. In 1863 he became consulting surgeon at Belleview. Dr. Sayre was one of the first to advocate clinical practice in medical colleges and was among those who helped along the establishment of the Bellevue Hospital Medical college in 1861. When its faculty was formed he became professor of orthopedic surgery and fractures and luxations, and later of clinical surgery, which chair he still holds.

From 1860 to 1868 he was resident physician of the city of New York, in 1876 he was a delegate to the International Medical congress that convened in Philadelphia, and in 1877 was a delegate from the American Medical association to the British Medical association. He has served in a similar capacity at several other medical congresses of note, and in many cases being called upon to demonstrate before those present difficult treatment of different cases. His surgical inventions are many and useful. In 1873 he was made a Knight of the Order of Wasa by Charles XIV, king of Sweden and Norway, and is member of many medical bodies in America and elsewhere.

He is a voluminous writer, but his works have been confined to surgery. In the recent discussion of the Brown-Sequard elixir, in which he held Dr. Hammond up to ridicule for his experiments, he proved himself an extremely vigorous if not an elegant and temperate master of English.

Need in South Dakota.

Arthur C. Mellette, who was recently nominated for governor of the Republicans of South Dakota, was born in Henry county, Indiana, in 1842. For a while he attended school in an old log house, and then was a school teacher for one term.

In 1864 he graduated from the regular course of the state university at Bloomington. At the close of the course he served one year in the war with Company A, Ninth Indiana cavalry regiment. After the war he began to read law and graduated from the State University Law school. Mr. Mellette then took up the practice of law at Muncie, where he was made district attorney in 1868. In 1872 he was a member of the Indiana legislature and helped to return Oliver P. Morton to the United States senate.

ARTHUR C. MELLETTE.

Mr. Mellette was the proprietor of The Muncie Times for seven years. He then went to Washington and for three years thereafter was appointed register of the Watertown land office. For four years he remained in this position, and was succeeded by C. G. Williams. He was a member of the first South Dakota constitutional convention, in 1885, and displayed great skill in the manage ment of territorial affairs. In 1889 Mr. Mellette was elected governor of South Dakota by a large majority, and since his term expired has been engaged in business in Watertown.

DAUGHTERS OF EVE.

Mrs. Harriet Beecher Stowe's favorite dish is bread and butter and pineapple.

Lucy Stone is 71. She began lecturing on women's rights and wrongs in 1847.

Mrs. Henry S. Kimball, of West Philadelphia, is receiving the credit of originating Memorial day.

Poughkeepsie, N. Y., possesses a musical prodigy. She is the 5-year-old daughter of Dr. Peter Deyo.

If Sarah Althea Hill looks like all her pictures, she is more variety than a kaleidoscopic chameleon.

Mrs. Harrison has decided not to indulge in promiscuous handshaking at public receptions or on state occasions.

Among the petitioners for clemency for Mrs. Maybrick were several women who offered to be hanged in her place.

Mrs. Emily Crawford, the Paris correspondent, is about to receive a testimonial from English and French women journalists.

The Baroness Cantoni is to start in November on a year's journey in the interior of Africa. She is 19, and is celebrated for her beauty.

The widow of Richard A. Proctor, the distinguished astronomer, is to deliver a series of lectures next winter and will use the same outfit her husband did.

Miss Morcomb and Miss Wilson, guests at the Windsor state hotel, at Saratoga, have introduced there the fashion of wearing wreaths about their heads.

Three Polish sisters, the Misses Welt, of Cornwegig, have been graduated from the Vienna Medical university and two of them will practice in the United States.

Miss Elizabeth Balch, authoress of "Zora," "An Author's Love" and "Mustard Leaves," has adapted a play from the French, which will be brought out in London during the autumn.

At a Catholic church dedication near London Mary Anderson wore a gray costume, with crimson trimmings, a small black velvet mantle, trimmed with jet, and a hat of black velvet, trimmed with birds.

Dr. Maria M. Dean, a homeopathic physician who took an office in Helena, M. T., three years ago, after studying medicine in the United States and Berlin, now has a practice that yields her an income stated at $12,000 a year.

The recent appointment of Miss Joanna Baker to the chair of Greek at Simpson College, Indianola, Ia., is a significant fact, as showing the progress of woman since it was first permitted to her to acquire the alphabet. Miss Baker succeeds to the position filled by her father, Professor O. H. Baker, seventeen years ago in the same institution.

Mrs. Mackay, the wife of the "bonanza king" of California, is the owner of the superb robe presented to the Empress Eugenie by the municipality of Paris in the time of the second empire. The robe is of lace, embroidered with silver. It was worn at Chantilly, and took five of the first hands of that celebrated fabric fourteen years to make it, at a cost of 100,000 francs.

Seventy-three years ago Mrs. Sally B. Wood, a bride of seventeen, visiting bride, went to housekeeping in a snug farm house on the west slope of Mount Prospect, N. H. In this same house, where she first entered as a bride,

MEN OF LETTERS.

A new novel by Dumas is expected about Christmas.

Mr. William Ernest Healy, the author and poet, began life as a laborer.

Mr. Marion Crawford is described as a man of really profound scholarship.

There is said to be little doubt in England that Sir Edwin Arnold will be the next laureate.

William Henry Bishop, the novelist, is now settled with his family at the Villa Blanchard, near Nice.

Tolstoi, it is reported, has been obliged to stop writing, and this has sadly interfered with his power to write.

Tennyson's forthcoming volume is to be made up of verses recently composed and of scraps rescued from forgotten books.

James Whitcomb Riley has not been well this summer and has done very little literary work. He is regaining his health rapidly.

It is said that Luther R. Marsh, the New York lawyer who became a believer in Spiritualism and Miss. Dias De Bar, is writing a book on Spiritualism.

Mr. Archibald Grove, who is at the head of The New Review, is only about 28 years old. He took scholarship honors at Oxford in 1880, and has spent much time in travel.

A most interesting literary event in the shape of a new and hitherto wholly unknown series of letters by the famous Lord Chesterfield is promised. They will be edited by Lord Carnarvon.

Oscar Browning, the English writer, and Robert Barrett Browning, the artist, are often confounded with each other. The latter is Robert Browning's only son, and is not related to the former.

Robert Louis Stevenson is last heard from in the Gilbert islands of the South seas. He is on board his schooner Equator, and has picked up not only his health, but much good material for a book.

Peter Mitchell, who wrote the independence articles in The Montreal Herald recently that caused such a sensation, is a man of wealth. He was once a Tory and member of Sir John Macdonald's cabinet. He is one of the directors of the Grand Trunk railroad of Canada.

Joaquin Miller, the poet of the Sierras, has shaken the dust of the effete east from his boot heels and gone to California to plant trees. He says that he has planted 15,000 within the past three years. When not engaged in tree planting he is busy with his great work, a life of Christ.

WONDERFUL MEMORIES.

John Wesley had a remarkable memory, and at 85, even, it was still vigorous.

Both Macaulay and Sir Walter Scott had prodigious memories.

Andrew Fuller could repeat a poem of 500 lines after hearing it read once or twice.

Before the days of shorthand reporting, "Memory Woodfall" used to attend the house of commons, and, after listening to a debate, could reproduce the whole without taking a single note.

Robert Penfield, an illiterate Puritan, invented a long leather girdle, which he wound twice about his body, and upon which he preserved an accurate biblical record. By means of this girdle he was able to take such notes of the sermon that on returning home he could give all the heads and quote all the various texts mentioned in it.—All the Year Round.

PLAINFIELD EVENING NEWS.

ESTABLISHED 1884. PLAINFIELD, N. J., "THE COLORADO OF THE EAST," WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 11, 1889. PRICE TWO CENTS

At a meeting of the Union County Republican Executive Committee, held August 31st, 1889, it was resolved that the several wards and townships hold their primary meetings to select delegates to the State Convention, on

at 8 o'clock p. m., (with power to local Executive Committees to change such date if thought best.)

In accordance with the resolution the Republican County Committee of Union county are requested to meet at their usual places and elect delegates to the State Convention in the ratio of one delegate for each two hundred Republican votes cast at the last Gubernatorial election, and one delegate for each fraction thereof exceeding one hundred in each ward and township to have at least one delegate.

The number of delegates to be elected under the above apportionment from each ward and township is as follows:

| | Votes. | Del's. |
|---|---|---|
| Elizabeth—1st ward | 502 | 5 |
| " 2d ward | 139 | 1 |

JOTTINGS.

—Is this the equinox? Well, rather!

—Days of 1889 past, 252; days to come, 111.

—The Union County Board of Freeholders will meet on Monday next.

—Frost is nearing us on every turn. Leaves are turning in some places.

—"Barnum's, what is it?" is the heading in Mr. J. C. Allen's advertisement to-day.

—The North Plainfield Republican primaries are called for next Saturday evening.

—Rail and birds may now be shot, but other game is prohibited until next month.

—The Pennsylvania Railroad Company are expending three million dollars on freight cars.

—Several umbrellas were turned inside out by the wind on Front street yesterday afternoon.

—Justice Nash last evening united two colored people in the holy bonds of matrimony.

—The storm interfered somewhat with the attendance at the Warren Mission chapel last evening.

—A "combined donkey-tail and watermelon party" is the latest relaxation for charity's sake, in some cities.

—Several important changes in the timetable on the Long Branch Division of the Central Railroad occur to-day.

—A miniature base ball nine in the show window of Mr. Eugene Laine's tonsorial parlor, attracts considerable attention.

—Monday evening the members of the Plainfield Corner Club rounded Mr. Edward Dowe, of West Fifth street. It was the anniversary of his birth.

—The re-union of the First New Jersey Brigade will take place on the 14th inst., at Gen. Kearny's old mansion at Kearny near Newark, by invitation of Mr. Watts Kearny.

—The excursion of the Plainfield Reform Club to Manch Chunk, Glen Onoko and the switchback, which was to have taken place to-day, was postponed on account of the weather.

—The meeting of the North Plainfield firemen which was called for last evening to organize a Firemen's Relief Association in the Borough, was postponed for one week on account of the weather.

—The Currie brothers who put up such a good game of ball for the Cresents at Somerville Saturday will compose the battery for the Wintrops next Saturday afternoon in their game in this city.

—A black horse belonging to Miss Verdon, corner of Somerset street and Summit avenue, escaped from its stable this morning and was badly cut about the legs while endeavoring to jump a ribbon wire fence.

—New Jersey sustains its reputation as a peach growing state this year, and all the late peaches in market are supplied from its orchards. Specimen baskets shown by some of the dealers are simply superb.

—At the meeting of Engine Company No. 2, to be held to-morrow evening, the members will decide whether or not they will accept the invitation of the Bayonne fire department to attend their annual parade on Oct. 3d.

—The gracious influence of that beautiful order known as the King's Daughters is perpetually shedding light in the dark places of this sinful universe. Each "circle" of ten chosen some benevolent work for its especial object and bends all its several and united energies to the alleviation of some particular form of distress, either of mind, body or estate.

—A plea for safety of life and limb is made by over nine thousand brakemen and other train men, who have signed a petition to the Interstate Commerce Commission, asking its influence to bring about the general adoption of the automatic brakes and couplers on the railroads of the country. If the Commission can accomplish this reform, it will have performed a great work in the interest of humanity. Every year hundreds of railroad employes are killed or maimed through the use of the old link and pin coupling. In the last nine months 90 persons were killed long ago have compelled the railroad companies to abolish.—New Brunswick Home.

THE STORM.

Wind and Rain Play Havoc ter Many Trees.

The long looked-for storm is here, and, from all appearances, will likely remain with us for some time to come. At an early hour Monday evening a strong east breeze began to blow, and increased in volume so that before midnight it made its presence known to all. Window shutters, which had been left unfastened, and loose window frames, began to rattle in such a lively manner that many people were obliged to arise from their beds and put a quietus to the racket by fastening the blinds, so as they could rest undisturbed.

The Long Branch division of the Central railroad, between Amboy and Elizabeth, at different points, is flooded and the track washed away. All trains from Amboy to Elizabeth are compelled to run over the Pennsylvania road.

The telegraph poles and wires in many instances are blown down, and the wind is so strong as to delay telegraphic communication. Messages from Trenton yesterday were sent by a roundabout way.

The corn in this vicinity is blown down and the stalks are broken. A large limb was broken off of a tree in Mr. Henry Stanton's yard on Prospect place. Several other trees throughout the city were more or less damaged. The chimney on the house of Mr. John J. Kenney, of East Second street, was badly wrecked.

The electric light line men experienced considerable trouble with the companies wires last evening and at about seven o'clock the business portion of the city was left in total darkness for a few moments.

Escaped From the Asylum.

William M. Marsh, aged 30 years, an inmate of the Morris Plains insane asylum, escaped from the institution early yesterday morning. He has been an inmate but a few months and became insane over a patent which he was endeavoring to perfect. His family in Rahway and relatives in Newark were notified of his escape by telegraph, but it is not known whether the police were notified. He is about five feet ten inches in height, dark complexioned and weighs about 155 pounds and was dressed in a dark suit.—Newark Press Register.

Brigade Meeting Postponed.

The time for the meeting of the Second N. J. Brigade Society was first appointed for Tuesday, September 17th. But as the Republican Gubernatorial Convention was called on the same date, the Executive Committee deemed it advisable to change the time to Thursday, 26th inst., in Library Hall, Broad street, Elizabeth, at which time and place it is hoped meet a goodly number of the old comrades at roll call.

Honest David.

Mr. David B. Nestor, a driver for Mr. P. M. French, while driving along Park avenue yesterday morning, espied a pocket book lying in the road. It contained among other things $65 in cash, and had been dropped out of the carriage of Mrs. O. T. Waring, who advertised her loss in yesterday's NEWS, and had her property promptly restored to her this morning.

Committed to Jail.

Monday evening Constable Moffett took William Ouche, the German accused of breaking and entering Lyman Walpole's store at Stockton, Tuesday night, to the county jail where he was committed by Justice Nash to await the action of the Grand Jury.

Arrested for Taxes.

Delinquent Tax Collector Nash yesterday arrested three men for refusing to pay their poll tax. Two residents of New street were eating their supper when he arrested them. They all agreed to pay up.

PERSONAL.

Mr J. C. Pierson, of Broadway is at Wyalusing, Pa.

Mayor Job Male is at Saratoga Springs, N. Y. He will be gone about two weeks.

Mrs. M. A. Marsh, of East Fifth street, is sojourning at the Delaware Water Gap.

Chief Engineer Hain, of the Flemington fire department is visiting in Plainfield.

George Butcher, the driver for Engine Co. No. 2, is confined to his home by illness.

Miss Annie Moore, of New street, is the guest of Miss Clara Scott, of Elizabeth.

Mrs. Chapman and family, of Third place, have returned from their Summer outing.

Ex-Councilman John H. Cuthbert and bride are spending a few days among Plainfield friends.

Policeman Lynch is confined to his home by a severe cold. Officer Cooney is doing duty in his stead.

Mr. William T. O'Connors of West Front street, started to-day on a visit to his parents at Worcester, Mass.

Mr. Robert Connolly, formerly of this city, but lately of Somerville, left this morning for Patchogue, L. I. He will probably be gone about a year.

Messrs. Robert L. R. Furce and William T. Dayton, of Piscataway, have been drawn as petit jurors for the September term of the Middlesex County Court, and Mr. Jonathan Dayton of the same place will serve as a grand juror.

The funeral services over the remains of the late Mary C. Lyon were held yesterday at the residence of Mr. A. C. Vail, at the corner of Madison avenue and Eighth street. The remains were taken to Hingham, Mass., for interment.

—The calls of the 700 convicts in the Northern Indiana penitentiary, at Michigan City are illuminated by electricity. The Board of Directors have adopted the incandescent system. Every cell will have one lamp. The convicts have heretofore been allowed candles but under the new method through the use of the old link and pin coupling of illuminating, the officers will have the assurance that all lights are extinguished on time.—Trenton Emporium.

LEON ABBETT'S ASPIRATIONS.

What He Depends on for Success.

The New York Tablet, the leading Catholic weekly paper in this country and now in the thirty-second year of its existence, has the following respecting Leon Abbett's nomination for Governor of New Jersey:

"The ex-Governor depends, it appears, on three elements for success, namely, his hostility to prohibition, the liquor interest and the Catholic church. As regards the first of these factors, its claims are spurious. All the anti-railroad and anti-corporation legislation that was passed during Abbett's governorship was framed, introduced and passed by the Republicans, and they alone are entitled to the credit. During Abbett's term of office the Republicans always controlled one branch of the Legislature, and both branches a portion of the time. All that the Governor did in relation to anti-corporation legislation was merely to sign the Republican bills. As to the second element of support—the saloon power—nobody will deny that Mr. Abbett possesses it. His pictures adorn all the saloons in the State, just as those of Gov. Hill decorate the bar-rooms of New York. But though the liquor interest is strong, its open and avowed support of Abbett must evoke a strong temperance opposition without regard to party.

But the claim of the Abbett managers that they have the support of the Catholic Church is the most preposterous that has promptly evoked. The Catholic Church supports no political party, whether in State or National elections Catholics have equal rights with others, and if these rights are curtailed or withheld they demand them as American citizens, and not as Catholics. Besides, there would be a serious incongruity on the part of Catholics, as a body, supporting the saloon interest, of a party that, in the event of success, would make local option and all-reform legislation impossible for the next three years. The Catholic Church is the most powerful advocate of temperance in existence, and her moral influence, always and everywhere, exercised against the rum power, has been productive of more beneficial results than all the legislation restricting the liquor traffic ever passed by legislatures. The allegation that Catholic influence will be used to further the liquor traffic in the New Jersey approaching elections a preposterous sham.

Free Masonry in New Jersey.

The early history of Free Masonry in New Jersey is involved in a shade of obscurity, yet there is evidence that it existed in the province nearly a century and a half ago, and was introduced but a few years after its revival in England. In 1720, Daniel Coxe, a large proprietor in West Jersey, and for many years a Justice of the Supreme Court, was appointed Provincial Grand Master for New Jersey, and in 1730 the Duke of Norfolk, Grand Master of England. There is no evidence that the appointment resulted in the Province, and it is presumable that at times temporary lodges were convened, at irregular intervals, to give the brethren an opportunity of enjoying fraternal amenities, and promoting the cultivation of Masonic science among scattered brethren. At these esoteric communications it is probable that candidates were initiated into the ancient mysteries of the craft under a dispensation from the Grand Master.

The first deputation for New York was granted in 1737, during the Grand Master-ship of the Earl of Darnley, to Richard Riggs as Provincial Grand Master, and neither is there any record of his having established a lodge or doing anything towards organizing or extending the order.

By the deputation of Grand Master Coxe, therefore, whose jurisdiction included New York and several other provinces, it is safe to say that the history of Free Masonry on American soil had its startling point in the province of New Jersey.

On Dec. 18, 1786, a convention was held in New Brunswick, and a Grand Lodge was organized, the Hon. David Brearley, Chief Justice of the State, being elected Grand Master. From that time Masonry in New Jersey has a distinctive history, and the growth and prosperity of the institution in the country which first adopted the Constitution of that body, both at home and in other States, is a matter of pride and congratulation to the more than twelve thousand craftsmen now within the borders of the fraternity.—American Free Masonry.

The first regular organized lodge of which we have any record, and which antedates the Grand Lodge by nearly a quarter of a century, is Hiram Lodge, No. 1, F. and A. M., of Newark, which was instituted the 13th day of May, 1761.—Bridgeton Pioneer.

To the Friends of the Children's Home.

DEAR FRIENDS:—Back to our work once more after our Summer rest, we find ourselves facing our old perplexity, an almost empty treasury. At the close of our year in May, we had, it is true, a balance of $500. Of this amount, we have paid $170 for painting the outside of our building. We have also paid for three months the household bills of a family having from seventeen to twenty in number. These bills average from $190 to $200 per month. At our meeting on Sept. 5th, our treasurer reported "cash in hand $95.90." There are now eight forlorn, little children waiting at our doors for admission to this home. What shall we say to them for you? What shall we say to all the other poor little waifs, who as the cold Winter comes on will claim our care? We are poor in purse, but rich in faith in the loving hearts and generous hands which have always responded so loyally to our needs. "Our need is our only claim."

For the Association,
N. E. KIMBALL, Pres.

Sept. 7th, 1889.

—At the Democratic State Convention at Trenton yesterday the platform endorsed the National Democratic platform of 1888, known as the Free Trade platform, upon which the Democrats were so ignominiously defeated, and stated that those were the principles of Jefferson and Jackson, both of which were conspicuous Protectionists. Our Democratic friends need to read up a little.

COMMUNICATIONS FROM THE PEOPLE

THE LIQUOR QUESTION.

As Discussed by a News Correspondent.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE NEWS:—The liquor traffic is passing through one of its hardest spasms for life or death at present in our city. While I trust upon the subject, I would desire to do it fairly. Knowing that the drink habit has had free sway for many years with many of our citizens; and that this habit has become a second nature, and necessary upon the subject, looking at it from their own standpoint. Every individual has formed some sort of an opinion about the traffic as to the question of right or wrong as to the business. Most people claim that their opinion is as good for them as other people's is to them. This may seem to many as a fair conclusion; but that depends largely upon the standpoint from which the man bases his conclusions. Every person should first ask himself the question: Is the world and community morally made better by his or her a beverage? Does it increase or decrease crime? Does it increase or decrease the good name and the characters of those that habitually practice it? Does it increase or decrease young men's or old men's capabilities for usefulness, or success in the more economic business of life? Does the habit tend to greater or less happiness to the family of the man that uses it? Does it tend to bring poverty or the comforts of life to the human family? Does it tend to destroy and tear down the church and christianity, or to build it up? Does it bind the affections of husband and wife, parents and children, or does it destroy the family relations? Does it tend to licentiousness and deceit, or to the building up of good citizenship in society? Does not the drink habit blunt the conscientiousness of the man that drinks or engages in the business, and tend to make him falsify the truth touching that subject, and tempt him to swear falsely when called before the court to testify to the truth and nothing but the truth in reference to the sale or traffic?

After reading over these questions carefully let conscience, or the inner man of our natures, decide this question. If you decide that the traffic is an evil, and that it works evil to the human family, then there is another question to be considered; and that is: What are you doing, and what are you going to do about it? Do you say that there is more liquor being sold and drank that when license was granted? I have heard men talk that way; and even an officer that should not be in the business to arrest every such man for thus selling. Do you say that the Council had better grant them license; for men will sell anyway; and then the city would save the $700 from each; and the more licenses granted the greater the revenue? Can you thus argue the way, and already decided in your heart that the traffic is wrong and sinful? Would you argue that way in reference to stealing, burning or any other sinful crime that we find men to do to the people and families of our city and county do not the officers of the law possess as from the drink habit; yet if it should be rumored that a horse thief was in town every officer would be notified, and every one would be on the watch about the stables, and if a horse had been stolen a large reward would be offered for the arrest. Is a man worth more than a husband or son to a wife or mother? Do you manifest more interest in houses, barns and horses than in human beings? Do you think more of a revenue paid into than the salvation of men and sinners saved? Men professing Godliness, that have your name registered on the church book, do you argue in this way? Taxpayer: Do you argue thus and claim justice before the great Judge? Does not high-license tempt your fancy? Does not the revenue paid in vote with and for the rum-sellers interest for the saving of a few pieces of silver? It was only for thirty pieces of silver that our Saviour was betrayed into the hands of sinners! Would you betray the sons of men into the hands of the rum-sellers for a few pieces of silver? I am aware that the "love of money" lies at the root of all evil, yet it is said that man is possessed of the "knowledge of good and evil". From the action and arguments of many men at the present day, this gift of knowledge is locked by the key of the grossest sins of this world. Many men seem to have become so much conformed to customs of sin in the world that they neither "fear God, or regard man". The whole effort of many in our city at the present time seems to be to make people believe that our city is in a worse condition without license than with it, and it would seem that some professed temperance and religious men are allowing their selves to be fooled by such arguments. This argument will doubtless be kept up until the next election with a hope to elect a Council and officers that will grant license again. This is common practice in all States, counties and towns where an attempt at reform is made. Reform comes from moral conviction of the people carried into effect. A wavering people never bring about any great reform in church or State; neither will the people of Plainfield ever make reform a success so long as they are wavering and carried away by the winds of sinful men that are governed by selfish ends, politics, high or low license to promote. License, high or low, can never change sin of any kind into righteousness, however smooth the argument may appear. Sin is sin, and cannot be ameliorated without repentance and a turning away there from. The rumseller is not the only sinner connected with the business. He is the agent of the churches and people of our town. Every slider or abettor in any way is a partner in this public nuisance. It does not require stock and cash paid in as in banks and other stock companies. Your influence is your stock, and with it you control the city. It takes but little observation or listening to a persons conversation upon this subject to learn whether he has an interest in some way in the liquor traffic. Such men use many excuses, apologies, "ifs," "buts," etc., to their conscience, and are always ready and ready to act or vote against the traffic they prefer to wait until after election. The only way to dispense with the traffic is to suspend, and stick to it. Elect officers that are in favor of suspension, and that will appoint law abiding men that are not interested in the traffic, or that indulge occasionally in the beverage. If this city is a temperance town, and desires the cause promoted, let every preacher of the Gospel commence to preach against the traffic, mouths and weeks before our municipal election, and let every religious and moral man and woman advocate no-license. And let every man that is a man go to the primary meetings and see that no license men are nominated for office regardless of minor issues that have no especial bearing upon the morals of society. The great trouble often comes by neglecting proper action until after election; for then the stable door after the steed is stolen. We know of towns that have not granted license for forty years; and that have no trouble to keep out the traffic, because they take no stock in its favor. Rumsellers never open business in a town where men do not take stock in the business. It is a question of character to remove a long standing curse. What say you ministers and laymen of the churches, moral men and politicians? Are we to be governed by brewery and saloon stock?

NEW JERSEY NUGGETS.

Live News Notes from Various Parts of the State.

The Commissioners of Taxation of Elizabeth met yesterday to give a hearing to property-owners who were dissatisfied with the valuations of the assessors for the current year. A large number of protests were made.

Jose Sposkda, who boarded at No. 115 South Canal street, was arrested yesterday on suspicion of having murdered an old Italian bootblack, Avdilco, who was killed on Sunday last. He was held for identification.

Patrick Murphy, of Jersey City, who beat an old man named Smith with a heavy bludgeon as he was passing through a lonely section of the city, and then robbed his victim of his watch and money, was arrested yesterday in Jersey City. He was arraigned with five minutes' walk of depot, to let with board. Gentleman a prisoner yesterday in Judge Stilsing's Police Court. He was charged with having beaten his wife on the head with a heavy tin-pail until she became unconscious. Murphy was held in $500 bail for the action of the Grand Jury.

Marie Hadder was last evening fined $5 in the police court at Trenton. She has been given a great deal of trouble to Officer Like for the neighbors of Belle avenue. She is represented as a common scold and frequently becomes very disorderly. Yesterday morning she was remanded for further hearing and last evening fined as above.

John A. Ray of Newark, committed suicide by shooting himself August 16th at his home in Baldwin street. He had been divorced from one wife and had married another. Yesterday the latter wives appeared in a suit in the Chancellor's Court for the ownership of an insurance policy for $1,000, held by Ray in the Loyal Order of Heptacopitis. Decision was reserved.

The September term of the Hudson County Courts opened yesterday. Justice Knapp called the attention of the Grand Jury to the continued neglect of the Board of Freeholders to provide separate quarters in the county prison for the confinement of female prisoners. The law was imperative, and the freeholders had made themselves liable to indictment. The Justice also urged the indictment of all persons who violate the excise laws.

Fearful Destruction Caused by Wind and Water.

SUMMER RESORTS RUINED.

Destruction Along the Rockaway and Coney Island Shores.

Ocean Grove, Atlantic City, Cape May and Other Watering Places Made Desolate by Old Ocean's Mighty Waves—Beaches Ruined, Hotels Wrecked and Bath Houses Swept Away, Causing Immense Damage—Narrow Escape of Three Hundred Horses at Brighton Beach Race Track—Two Men Drowned in the North River—The Worst Storm Along the Coast at This Time for Many Years.

NEW YORK, Sept. 11.—For thirty-six hours past the North Atlantic coast has been the plaything of wind and wave and rain battling with demoniac fury in air and on land and sea. Even yet the angry elements are waging a fierce war that brings destruction and dismay in its path. Property to the value of hundreds of thousands of dollars has been destroyed, and at this writing loss of life has to be added to the roll of disaster, which follows thick and fast in the trail of the storm. The havoc wrought in and around New York by the storm was especially severe.

Two Men Drowned.

Thomas Dellus, a cigarmaker, and Camillo Angerani, aged 18, hired William Callon to row them from One Hundred and Twenty-fifth street ferry to Fort Lee. The water was so rough that the boat capsized and Angerani and Dellus were drowned. Dellus clung to the overturned boat and was nearly dead from exhaustion when rescued by a passing schooner.

Fire From Broken Electric Wires.

Early in the morning the wind broke down an electric light wire in Grand street, setting the roofs of two houses on fire and badly frightening all the residents in the block. Along South street from the Battery to Peck slip the street was covered by four inches of water over the sidewalks, blocking all traffic.

Devastation at Coney Island.

Serious and impressive was the ruin wrought at the Rockaway and Coney Island beaches and along the New Jersey, Long Island and Connecticut shores. Startling evidence of the storm's fearful force was presented in the wreck of the marine railway from Brighton to Manhattan beach. The heavy timbers were shattered and broken like kindling wood, the steel rails, where visible, were twisted into sinuous shapes and bent like pins in the grasp of the storm god. The footings of the stations were completely demolished, and five passenger coaches are piled in the sand at the Brighton end of the road. The beautiful lawn in front of the Brighton Beach hotel was washed away, cut out, the basement of the hotel itself flooded, and the music pavilion in which Seidl and his orchestra has held thousands entranced is so badly undermined that it may topple over at any moment.

A Family's Narrow Escape.

The Sinitzer house, about half a mile above West Brighton, came near being the scene of a tragedy. Mr. Sinitzer, his mother-in-law, wife and three children, occupied it Monday night. Early yesterday morning they were awakened by the noise of crashing timbers that followed the undermining and floating of the great waves on the shore. The house trembled like a leaf as each wave struck it, and finally, when the tide was at the full, it was in a seething foam. The women rushed about screaming and panic stricken. Murray barricaded the front doors, and quieting the fears of the women and children, conveyed them through the back door in a place of safety. Twenty minutes afterward the edifice fell in a shapeless mass of wooden fragments.

At the Brighton Beach race track 300 horses, including the famous Exile, were rescued with difficulty when the track was four feet under water. English Nugent and two babies was seen floating in a stall upon the track and was rescued by a colored stableman.

The Damage $100,000.

At West Brighton as the waves grew larger and fiercer people fled in terror, hardly hesitating to secure their personal possessions. The damage on the island will not fall short of $100,000 in the aggregate. A conservative of the flood's ravages may be imagined from the fact that a strip of the island 500 feet wide and 1,000 feet long, extending from the Oriental hotel to Gard's Katten's under water from three to twelve feet deep.

Parts of Vanderveer's and West Brighton hotel have already been carried away. The Casino is completely wrecked, and the Manhattan Beach and Brighton Beach hotels were so badly undermined that their entire destruction is feared. Both the iron piers are badly wrecked, the flooring being torn up and broken and many of the iron columns uprooted and twisted.

Ruin at Rockaway.

Rockaway beach and the contiguous resorts of Far Rockaway, Arverne and Wave Crest also suffered severely. Old residents say that the ocean has not manifested itself so wildly and long than since in thirty years. At Rockaway, Eldred's hotel and bathing houses were washed into the ocean. The East End hotel lost 120 bathing houses. The iron pier was covered, and all the houses near the surf were swept away. The train that left Arverne at 10:17 a. m. only reached Long Island city at 11:49, after a perilous trip. Later on the train for Long Beach from Arverne to Lawrence was washed away. The tracks for miles were submerged and numerous washouts occurred, causing immense damage that cannot yet be definitely calculated.

Ruin Along the Jersey Coast.

Along the Jersey coast the wind and water have worked the same havoc of destruction, and from Long Branch timber and wreckage are to be seen for miles in every direction. Thirty feet of the bluff in front of the Atlantic hotel slid into the sea, and along Ocean avenue there are a number of bad washouts. The new bulkhead in front of the B. Percy Dobbins estate is gone, and twenty-five feet of the roof of the iron pier. Small buildings and bathing pavilions are strewn in piles along the shore. At Elberon the damage was equally great.

At the West End, Ocean avenue, between the Depeyster property and Scarboro hotel, is eaten away so that there is barely room for one carriage, and a number of people have been driven out of their flooded cottages. All the bulkheads between North Long Branch and Highland Beach are destroyed, and the loss will reach many thousands. There is a big washout on the Long Branch railroad at Tremley's, and Central trains are running by way of the Pennsylvania from Wade's bridge to Elizabeth.

On Staten Island.

Staten Island is directly in the path of the gale, and experienced its full fury. At South Beach the surf broke over the banks and flooded the meadows for miles. At the South Beach hotel the waves flooded the bar room and washed away the piazza and plank walks. The docks along the east shore of the island were submerged, and C. C. Raby & Sons' lumber, which was piled up on which were 40,000 bricks, was completely wrecked. Two loaded coal barges alongside of Raby's coal yard were sunk. From St. George to South Beach the shore is strewn with debris of wrecked docks, boat houses, bathing houses and flooded lands. Of the hotels at South Beach none below Gebhard's was above reach of the water.

From Bay Head to Barnegat.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 11.—The damage along the coast from Bay Head to Barnegat is unprecedented. The railroad from Seaside Park to Berkeley is washed away. People are fleeing from the low-lying sand bars in their can. The splendid Berkeley Arms hotel at Berkeley is badly damaged. Beach Haven, Barnegat, Long Beach City, Harvey, Cedars and other points on Long Beach are inundated. No trains can be run below Manahawkin. At that place the bridge is damaged and it is feared that it will be carried away, and that the bridge tender, who can not be reached, will perish.

Atlantic City Inaccessible.

Telegraph wires in this city and through out the adjacent country are in a demoralized condition, and railroads are badly interfered with by the storm. Reports of damage come from all coast points. Ocean City is almost entirely under water. No trains can get into or out of Atlantic City, and as the water is reported rising the situation there is rather alarming. The place is on low ground, and if the flood should continue people might have difficulty in getting away from the city.

It is reported that a train was turned out its side on the Anglesea branch of the Pennsylvania railroad and that the passengers had to climb out of the windows, and are now sitting on the sides of the cars amid a waste of water. The tide at Lewes is the highest since 1867. Many schooners are ashore, and both wooden piers have been destroyed.

At Cape May.

The tide at Cape May was the highest for thirteen years. The horse railway along the beach is destroyed, and the meadows and drive flooded. Many cottages and hotels were partially wrecked, and the conformation of the beach seriously altered. The pier at Cape May Point is wrecked, and Coulton hall undermined. Every yacht in the vicinity was driven ashore. Telegraphic communication between Philadelphia and most coast towns is cut off.

HON. S. S. COX DEAD.

The Well Known Politician at Last Passed Away.

NEW YORK, Sept. 11.—Hon. Samuel Sullivan Cox died at 9:27 p. m. at his home in this city. He was born Sept. 30, 1824, and consequently 65 years of age at the time of his death.

About 8 p. m. Mrs. Cox telegraphed Dr. Searing, one of the physicians, that Mr. Cox was failing rapidly and was not expected to survive the night.

Mrs. Cox, Mrs. Hardenburgh, sister of Mr. Cox, Dr. Searing, Dr. Newton and Dr. Hollenbeck, of the statesman, were present when Mr. Cox died. There were also a number of intimate friends in other states waiting for news in the sick chamber. A large number of telegrams from persons among the highest in government in the country were received during the evening.

Mr. Cox was conscious up to half an hour before his death. He then failed to recognize those around him. He had not spoken at length since 11 o'clock in the morning, when he talked rather incoherently about the new congress and referred to the hope of his re-entered congress next year. He fondly but feebly caressed his wife's arm with his hand. Just before the unconscious stage set in cause of death is given as peritonitis. The place of burial has not yet been announced.

Snaith After His Balance.

ALBANY, N. Y., Sept. 11.—John Snaith has filed a claim against the state for a balance due on his capitol ceiling contract of $12,000. In the Assembly document the following data are given: "That this claimant, after the completion of said work, demanded of said committee of the assembly and of said contractors the balance due him under said contract, and that they certify in writing that the said contract was completed to their satisfaction, but that they have unreasonably refused to make such certificate or to accept said work and materials, as this claimant is informed and believes, and further says that all the conditions required by the act of the legislature were properly complied with, and that the work was completed as provided in the contract on Dec. 15, 1888.

Arrested at His Wife's Grave.

PITTSBURG, Sept. 11.—Richard Fitzgerald was arrested, charged with the murder of his wife, while he was at the grave of her dead grave at the close of the funeral ceremonies. Mrs. Fitzgerald died very suddenly Sunday night and under peculiar circumstances. The husband says that he thought she was poisoned by order of the city officials pending a post mortem examination. The physician making the examination discovered that the woman's death had been caused by cruel treatment. One of Fitzgerald's children stated that on last Saturday night his father had brutally kicked and beat his mother.

Fires in Florida.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Sept. 11.—Lorenzo Pendas & Co.'s cigar factory at Tampa was destroyed by fire the afternoon of 6th inst. It was an incendiary fire, kerosene having been spread about the floors to aid the progress of the flames. The jail at Fernandina was also burned, and a negro prisoner by the name of Jesse perished. It is thought that Baker accidentally set the jail on fire while lighting his pipe.

Chevalier Paine Dead.

PARIS, Sept. 11.—Ira Paine, the celebrated American marksman, unequalled with shotgun, rifle, pistol or revolver, died at the Hotel du Rhone, in the Rue Rambuteau. He was taken ill on Saturday evening with strangulation of the bowels and expired after forty-two hours of intense suffering. His body will be embalmed and taken to America for interment, at Providence, R. I.

Fatally Shot by His Wife.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Sept. 11.—John H. Spaulding, an employe of the Chesapeake, Ohio and Southwestern railroad, was shot twice and fatally wounded by his wife. They had frequently quarreled. Both bullets took effect and he will die.

Roadmasters of America Meet.

DENVER, Sept. 11.—The seventh annual convention of the Roadmasters' Association of America met in this city this morning. About 100 delegates present, representing nearly every railroad company in the United States.

ABBETT IS THE MAN.

He Was So e Democratic Candidate for Governor

IN THE STATE OF NEW JERSEY.

Other Work of the Convention—The Platform That Was Adopted—The Names of Messrs. Cleveland, Hill and Abbett Were Loudly Cheered.

TRENTON, N. J., Sept. 11.—Taylor's Opera house, where the Democratic state convention to nominate a candidate for governor assembled, was profusely decorated with streamers, flags and bunting. The balting delegates from Hudson county, nearly 100 strong, with white badges upon their breasts, were the first to arrive. They were, however, refused admission to the floor by order of the state committee, but they were allowed ten seats on the stage until the appointment of the committee on credentials. The rest of the delegations took seats in the galleries.

Cleveland, Hill and Abbett Cheered.

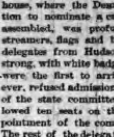
The convention was called to order at 12:15 p. m. by Allen L. McDermott, chairman of the state committee, who named Frederick



LEON ABBETT.

Marsh, of Union, temporary chairman, and Michael T. Barrett as temporary secretary. In accepting the office Mr. Marsh, after thanking the convention for the honor conferred, said his appointment was a recognition of the young men of the party. He assured them that the young men would show their appreciation of that recognition by practical work from now until the election. He hoped the Democracy of New Jersey would take no backward step in its platform today in its view on the tariff question, which the state had indorsed in the presidential election. Cheers were given when Mr. Cleveland was mentioned as the possible Democratic candidate in 1892. Governor Hill was cheered even more, while the mention of the possibility of Leon Abbett as a presidential candidate was greeted with tumultuous applause. Equal to mention for consideration for indivíduals, Mr. Marsh claimed, would be an issue in the coming gubernatorial campaign.

The Platform Adopted.

After recess the committee on resolutions reported the following platform, which was adopted: Reaffirming on all national issues the St. Louis platform of 1888, and on all state issues the last Democratic platform; indorsing Governor Green's administration; declaring that the result of the last national election showed a large plurality of the people to be in favor of the Democratic administration, and the Republican success was won by corrupt use of money; denouncing bribery and urging elective reform; condemning trusts, and calling for more equal taxation. "The reform in taxation," says the platform, "should follow the lines laid down in Governor Green's inaugural address of six years ago. The attempt of the Republican legislature in passing a general state tax is denounced as extravagant, and as intended to unduly relieve corporations from their share of public burden. The law regulating employment of children should be strictly enforced. The platform pledges the party to educational and agricultural advancement. Common carriers should not be allowed, in charging for the transportation through the state, to discriminate against the citizens of New Jersey. Legislation to foster the interests of labor is pledged. Municipal expenditure should be economical and strictly limited. Secrecy of the ballot should be secured by law." The platform was adopted.

The committee on permanent organization reported George S. Wurts, of Morris county, for permanent chairman, and he was chosen. The committee on credentials reported in favor of the regular delegation from Hudson county, following the contest which went out a vote. The contestants protested, but were refused a hearing and withdrew. The Monmouth county contest was similarly reported on. The report was adopted.

Hon. Leon Abbett Nominated.

The counties were then called for nominations for governor. Each county, from Atlantic to Warren, named Leon Abbett. The principal nominating speech for Mr. Abbett was made by Charles H. Winfield, of Hudson county, who dwelt upon the candidate's early struggles in life, and his able and honest efforts to relieve them from the thralldom of the railroads. When the roll call was completed Abbett was nominated by acclamation amid great applause. A committee was appointed to notify him, also a committee to select a state committee. There were loud calls for Mr. Abbett, but he was not in the city. The convention then adjourned.

The Clergymen Will Go to Law.

HELENA, O., Sept. 11.—Bishop Becker, Bishop Wright, Revs. Burkst, Dillon and Powell, with a large number of lay delegates, who were recently expelled from the United Brethren conference for antagonism to secret societies, have just closed a five days' session of the Grace M. E. church. These meetings were held in a school house, the use of the church being refused, and though secret, enough has leaked out to warrant the statement that the protestants have completed arrangements to go into the courts and try to regain possession of the church property and of the Dayton publishing house, one of the largest concerns of the kind in the country.

Treasurer Dale's Suicide.

BOSTON, Sept. 11.—The letter addressed to Mrs. Glen Dale, which was left by her husband, does not contain, it is said, any reason for his suicide nor does it refer to his business matters. It is simply a personal letter containing expressions of affection toward his wife. The directors of the Dexter woolen mills have called a meeting of the executive to take the place of Mr. Dale. Mr. Dexter said that no suspicion of any discrepancies in Mr. Dale's accounts had been found, and that he believed the Dexter woolen mills corporation is stronger financially than it ever has been.

A Stage Held Up.

OROVILLE, Cal., Sept. 11.—The stage from Orovillo to Quincy was stopped by a highwayman seven miles east of here, in Bitwells canon. The express box was taken and two passengers were relieved of their possessions. It is not thought that the robber secured much, however.

Ives Trial Commenced.

NEW YORK, Sept. 11.—The trial of Henry S. Ives for fraudulently issuing a certain number of Cincinnati, Hamilton and Dayton stock certificates was begun before Recorder Smyth in part 1, general sessions. At 3:30 p. m. the full jury was obtained and the court adjourned.

THE NEWS IN BRIEF.

Fresh Tips from the Wire Carefully Culled.

The people of Melbourne, Australia, have sent $10,000 as a contribution to the relief fund of the London strikers.

The National Zeitung says reports that the czar will pay a visit to Berlin after the army maneuvers in September.

The court martial sentence in the case of Commander Harrington, of the training ship Constellation, which recently ran ashore near Norfolk, is two years' suspension under waiting orders pay. Secretary Tracy, in approving the verdict of the court, modified the sentence to one year's suspension under waiting orders pay.

Mr. Rosner, a Philadelphian, was painted red and ridden on a rail by citizens of Bayonne, N. J., who believed the stories told by a Mrs. Rosner, and avenged her wrongs.

Mrs. Mary Hall, of Pine Brook, Wilkesbarre, Pa., attempted to kill her two children and herself, and murderously assaulted her son-in-law while possessed of an insane frenzy.

Samuel Wheelwright, of Tacoma, and Thomas C. Griffin, of Spokane, have been nominated for congress by the Democratic state convention. Ex-Governor Eugene Smith, of Tacoma, has been nominated for governor.

Tony Delight, the barber evangulist of Chicago, is dead. He was 60 years of age.

The president has appointed H. C. Warmoth, of New Orleans, collector for the district of New Orleans, La.

Highbinders have inaugurated a reign of terror in San Francisco. It is said that there are fully 3,000 well known highbinders now living in Chinatown by blackmail.

Samuel H. Reynolds, president of the People's National bank, of Lancaster, Pa., is dead.

Hurlbert B. Cunningham, of Newtonville, Mass., who embezzled $5,000 from his employers, Boley, Bay & Dove, was sentenced to the Concord reformatory for an indefinite period. He pleaded guilty.

A FIGHT WITH TRAMPS.

The Serious Shooting Affair That Occurred at Coshocton, O.

COLUMBUS, O., Sept. 11.—A special from Coshocton, O., says: "At 4 p. m. two tramps were ordered to leave the town by Marshal Isaac Hagans. They refused and drew revolvers and began a fusilade upon the crowd of bystanders. More than twenty shots were fired by the desperadoes as they retreated toward the bridge over the river. Marshal Hagans was struck in the right breast, but luckily the missile came in contact with a rib and glanced outward and into his arm. A citizen named Ringle caught a 38 caliber ball in his thigh. Hundreds of men accompanied Sheriff Manner and posse in pursuit of the tramps. Both attempted to cross the river, but one of them finding unable to swim, was caught floundering in the deep water and quickly hurried to the jail. His companion gained the opposite shore and came down the river bank. The sheriff's assistants, brought his Winchester to his shoulder and fired. The ball took effect in the tramp's left temple and blew a frightful wound through the flesh, coming out at the elbow. Rose fired a second time and the ball struck the tramp on the cheek, passed along and under the jaw bone into the muscles of the neck. The prisoner was then taken to jail."

Pensions for July and August.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 11.—The following statement, bearing upon disbursements by the pension office during July and August for the past two years, has been given out at the pension office: The amount advanced to pension agents during July and August, 1888, was $24,800,000, and the amount disbursed by agents during those months was $4,840,577. The amount advanced during July and August, 1889, was $34,700,000, and the amount disbursed during July and August past was $11,000,000. The large increase in the disbursements during July and August, 1889, were in payment of cases allowed during the past fiscal year ending June 30, 1889, and were not paid on account of a deficiency in the appropriation. This year, it is stated, it, therefore, necessary to pay these claims out of the amount appropriated for the current fiscal year. There is no account for the apparent increase in the payment of pensions during July and August, 1889.

Consul Edwards Criticised.

BERLIN, Sept. 11.—The Vossische Zeitung publishes a complaint signed by a number of merchants of Berlin, in which it is stated that Mr. Edwards, United States consul at Berlin, subjects exporters to trivial vexations in the matter of verifying invoices, thus hampering trade with America. The merchants further call attention to the consul's protest against Consul Edwards' action and to request the German foreign office to intervene for the removal of the consul.

Another Woolen Firm Embarrassed.

BOSTON, Sept. 11.—A Providence (R. I.) special to The Herald says: "The failure of woolen goods dealers in this section, Burt & Snow, are financially embarrassed. Notes have gone to protest, and the Bradstreets announce that the firm will make an early assignment. The liabilities are estimated to be about $100,000; assets unknown. The cause of the failure is said by one of the firm to be a general lack of confidence in the woolen trade and slow collections."

A Flurry in Oil.

NEW YORK, Sept. 11.—There was a flurry in the petroleum market on the Consolidated Exchange yesterday. The price of oil advanced to 102½ because of an official report of a decrease in the nearly 1,000,000 barrels, as well as a large decrease in outstanding certificates. Later in the day a portion of the advance was lost and the impending corger was averted.

Proposed Sites for the Fair.

NEW YORK, Sept. 11.—The executive committee of the world's fair site and building committee has decided to report four sites to the full committee from which to make a selection, namely—Claremont park and vicinity, Oak and Barretto Points, Fort George and Inwood, Riverside and Morningside parks.

The Exposition to Close in October.

PARIS, Sept. 11.—It is now definitely decided that the exposition will not remain open longer than October 31st. In response to public appeals from many quarters for the postponement of the time for closing the directors announce that the exhibition must close Oct. 31.

Governor Beaver! Was Present.

GETTYSBURG, Pa., Sept. 11.—Governor Beaver reviewed the parade of veterans at Camp Harper. The G. A. R. men were out in great force and had a thoroughly enjoyable reunion.

Judge James Dying.

HALIFAX, N. S., Sept. 11.—Judge James, of the supreme court of Nova Scotia, is reported to be dying.

ARE THERE TWO RIPPERS?

A Suspicion That London Has Two Jacks.

ANOTHER WHITECHAPEL TRAGEDY

The Last Murder Thought to Be of Another Series and by Another Fiend—The Dead Body Was Recently Brought to Whitechapel.

LONDON, Sept. 11.—Although the murder discovered here in the Whitechapel district is generally spoken of as the work of the mysterious Jack the Ripper, a close examination of all the facts leads to the conclusion that this murder is not of the Ripper series. The police and the medical men familiar with the details of the recent London horrors of this class say that this last murder must be classified with those that have been the embankment murders, of which there have now been four in all, including the one in which the headless body of the victim was recently discovered in Chelsea, and of which the head has never been found. Although there is a general resemblance between the horrible work of the two murderers, both taking special pains to mutilate their victims and to carry off portions of the bodies, each carries off a different portion.

Fiendish Surgical Skill.

Besides this, there are other evidences of differences to experts versed in the surgical work involved in all the mutilations, the embankment murderer being by far the more scientific of the two. For some time it was doubtful whether all these horrors were the work of one or of two fiends, but this last murder convinces the medical men that there are two entirely distinct sets of murderers and two different men responsible for them.

The Police Helpless, as Usual.

It is believed that in the present instance the body was purposely brought to the Whitechapel district to throw the police off the scent by inducing the belief that the body was that of another victim of Jack the Ripper. In this the perpetrators, however, went to trouble that is entirely superfluous, for the police are as much in the fog about the one class of murders as the other.

The Discovery of the Crime.

The story of the discovery of the murder is as follows: At 5:30 a. m. a policeman found the body of an abandoned woman lying in a corner of a railway arch spanning Cable street, in Whitechapel. Examination showed that the head and legs had been cut off and that the body was ripped open and otherwise disemboweled. The police authorities immediately placed a cordon of officers around the spot, but no arrests were made. A policeman passed the place where the body was found every fifteen minutes throughout the night and saw nothing to arouse his suspicions.

Singularly enough, the crime has been perpetrated within a few feet of the extra police had been withdrawn from the neighborhood in order to guard the docks. This tends to confirm the suspicion that the criminal is a member of the police force or that he is well posted in their movements.

The Head and Legs Carried Away.

Physicians who examined the body believe that the murder occupied an hour, and it is supposed that the murderer carried the head and legs away in a bag. The murder is the most horrible of the Whitechapel series. The dissection of the body shows that the perpetrator possesses considerable surgical skill. The woman was about 30 years of age and was evidently addicted to excessive use of spirituous liquors. Her clothing was shabby. As yet she has not been identified.

The murder has created tremendous excitement, and a large crowd of agitated humanity surrounded the morgue to which the body was taken. A careful investigation reveals the fact that there was no blood on the ground where the body was found, nor was there any indication of a struggle.

The Body Brought From Elsewhere.

This confirms the general belief that the woman was murdered in a house and her body taken to the spot where it was found. The body was nude and a torn chemise was in the room. Experts are of the opinion that the woman was killed two days ago. Three sailors were, subsequently to the discovery of the body, found sleeping in the adjoining arch. They were arrested, but convinced the police that they had neither seen nor heard anything of the murder or the body lying near them, and were discharged.

Fifteen Hundred Miners Strike.

BRADFORD, Pa., Sept. 11.—A special to The Era from Punxsutawney, Pa., says about 1,500 miners are out on strike at the Watson-Stanley mines, operated by Rose & Co. Yesterday the company brought 300 men from Buffalo, Rochester and Bradford. After arriving the men refused to go to work, believing they were being put in the stead they have taken. Most of the men have returned to their various homes. The company claim to have 400 negro miners on the way here from the South and West Virginia. Everything is quiet now, but trouble is expected. At 5 p. m. a crowd of Italians stopped at the residence of John W. Brown and asked for a drink of water. The intoxicating liquor, when Brown fired two shots into the crowd, one bullet hitting Joseph Jacota in the right eye, killing him instantly. Brown guarded his residence all night with a shotgun. Troops to the authorities in the morning. The Italians are much exercised over the shooting.

She Married a Jap.

MILWAUKEE, Sept. 11.—Miss Catherine Adams, of Chicago, and Theodore Sozzo Tomagaira, a Japanese merchant of New York, were married in this city. It is said the couple became acquainted in Chicago five years ago and became engaged three years ago. Miss Adams' mother objected to the match, consequently the couple determined to elope.

She Consented to the Murder.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 11.—Mrs. Dilliard, arrested at Easton on suspicion of complicity with Bartholomew in her husband's murder, has confessed that she consented to the murder. Dilliard, it is said, was about to leave to another place in order to separate her from Bartholomew.

Montana Forest Fires.

HELENA, Mon., Sept. 11.—Extensive forest fires are raging around Georgetown, Deer Lodge county. Many have been burned by setting fire to grass. Hundreds of men are fighting the flames, which, nevertheless, continue to spread, and threaten the destruction of much valuable property.

Cut to Pieces by a Train

LIMA, O., Sept. 11.—A Chicago and Atlantic passenger train struck Charles Weaver at the Main street crossing in this city and cut him into a dozen pieces.

The Nagle Case.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 11.—Argument has begun in the United States circuit court on the question of Federal jurisdiction in the Nagle case.

A COOL SUNDAY AT HOME.

A Tragedy with a Corpulent Woman and a Small Girl for Characters.

A Parnam street woman, whose stoutness makes her susceptible to the heat, stayed at home from church last evening, and, in the absence of her 9-year-old daughter and a quiet half fan, prepared to enjoy a quiet evening upon the front porch.

Unfortunately the 5-year-old was in a mischievous mood and the following unseemly side dialogue took place:

"Ma, why don't you wear your black velvet dress instead of that old white wrapper?"

The stout woman fanned vigorously.

"Hush, darling; it is too heavy for such weather. I will wear it next winter."

"And will you bury me a little muff next winter, with fur all around the holes where you put your hands through?"

The stout woman's fingers adhered to the handle of her fan.

"Be quiet, dear; I can't tell what I shall do next winter."

"I'd like a nice white wooly hood, too."

The string came out of the stout woman's bang as she said:

"Well, do not think about it now."

"Ma, may I bring the bear skin rug out to sit on?"

The tormented mother moved uneasily in her willow chair.

"Do anything you like, but don't bother me."

"I guess I'll bring the afghan, too."

There was a short silence.

"Ma, do you remember when we had that lovely prize fire last fall, I used to lie on this rug with the afghan over me and warm my toes by the hour?"

The stout woman's feet burned and began to ache.

"Will you stop talking? I will not hear another word."

A long pause brought temporary relief to the suffering mother.

"Ma, a mosquito bit my ear. If I only had my wadded ear muffs that match my blue plush cloak, they couldn't hurt me then, could they?"

The 8-year-old giggled, but the stout woman made no remark.

"Ma, my slippers pinch so; may I put on my crocheted bedroom shoes?"

"If you speak again you shall go to bed immediately."

Another short silence.

"Ma, if I go to bed so early must I have a hot water bottle like I did when I had a sore throat and you put red flannel around it?"

The stout woman's collar wilted and the 8-year-old was sent upstairs.

Over the bannisters there came one more question:

"Ma, must I have my pink cretonne quilt over me to-night?"

Then the stout woman sought the water cooler and bandaged her head with a damp cloth.—Omaha World.

It Was Hot.

A man was sitting on the third seat in a street car recently when a short, fat man climbed aboard and at once began fanning himself with his hat. "Well, this is a hot day, ain't it?" said he, addressing his neighbor.

"Beg pardon?" said the first man.

"I say, it's a pretty hot day?" repeated the short, fat man, raising his voice.

The other put his hand to his ear and answered: "I didn't quite catch that; please repeat it."

The little man's ears grew red as he shouted: "It's a hot day, I tell you!" and people in the back seats began to titter.

"I'm a little deaf," responded the first man. "If you will raise your voice"——

"Confound it; sir!" howled the little man, perspiring like a sponge. "I say it's hot! hot! I tell you! hot day! D'you hear that?"

The other shook his head, and the little man, striking a look of wrath on him, alighted. Then the first man looked around and chuckled gleefully.—St. Louis Republic.

Delicately Put.

There are diplomats in some of the lesser positions in Washington. A clerk in one of the departments was asked the other day if his immediately superior officer was not a good deal troubled with what is popularly called big head.

"I should dislike," said the clerk, "to speak so disrespectfully of my superior officer as to say he has the big head, but I frankly admit that if I were a barber and he should come to my shop I should feel warranted in charging him two prices for a hair cut."—Washington Post.

Song Birds.

"It's a pity," said De Kique to the summer hotel man, "that mosquitoes are not more musical."

"Why?"

"Because you might cage some of these and hang them up around the hotel instead of canary birds."—Washington Capital.

The Judge's Trade.

"Judge Lynch is not a real judge, is he?" asked Mrs. Faugle.

"No," replied her husband; "he's usually in the suspender business."—Time.

A Prayer.

Backward, turn back, oh, Time, in thy flight,
Send back the draft that is labeled "on sight;"
Or turn to that note and the date mark efface—
Give one more chance at the three days of grace.
—Washington Capital.

Illusive Health.

Dr. Mr. Oglethorpe (of the village church) [illegible] my little son, I'm glad to see you [illegible] fat and hearty. The country air [illegible] good, eh, sonny?

Little Willie—Yes, sir; [illegible] from the City—Not much it [illegible] to a regular Sam Hill of a tooth-[illegible] ddon.—Judge.

ROBBED OF $9,500.

Farmer Ordway Relieved of His Money at the Point of a Revolver.

CONCORD, N. H., Sept. 11.—Joel A. Ordway, aged 80, a well to do farmer of London, has been robbed of $9,500 near here. A smooth faced, well appearing man of 30 called upon and talked with him about buying his farm. This man drove into Mr. Ordway's yard and induced him to go with him to Concord and draw $9,500 from the bank to prove his responsibility, and that he could give a good title to the farm. On their return two men were met by a youth of 20, an acquaintance of the prospective purchaser. The two strangers engaged in a game of cards, in which the older apparently lost $10,000. He asked Mr. Ordway to lend the $9,500 with which to win back his money. The old gentleman refused to comply with the request, whereupon one of the men covered him with a revolver while the other took the money from his pocket. The robbers then drove rapidly away. Mr. Ordway walked to London and there brought here, where he notified the police of his loss.

New York's Indian Problem.

BUFFALO, Sept. 11.—At a meeting of the presbytery of Buffalo an address was made by the Hon. Andrew S. Draper, state superintendent of public instruction, on "The Indian Problem of the State of New York." He prefaced his remarks by locating the remnants of the different tribes of Indians subsisting in the state, to the number of 5,000 or 6,000 in all, mentioning the Onondagas, the Oneidas, the Tuscaroras, the Senecas and the Shinnecocks, formerly subject to the Mohawks. He questions the expediency of supporting the Indians in idleness upon the state reservations, and argued that with the same advantages an individual could have done more for the redskin than the state has done. "After a hundred years of trial," he said, "the reservation system stands overwhelmingly condemned. It put protects and perpetuates all that is opposed to Christian civilization."

Arrested as Lingo's Accomplice.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 11.—William Boss, of New York, was arrested at Merchantville, N. J., on suspicion of being concerned in the murder of Miss Mooney, but was released. He had been loafing around the place, but there was no evidence against him. It is still the general belief that the negro Lingo was the murderer. John Adkins, a colored man, of Matchtown, has also been arrested in connection with the murder of Miss Mooney at Merchantville. He is a crony of Lingo, and is said to have been seen with him about the time of the murder.

Paterson's Sons of Veterans.

PATERSON, N. J., Sept. 11.—The eighth annual encampment of the Sons of Veterans has opened here. The programme included a "camp fire" at Washington hall, a street parade in the afternoon and a banquet at night. The rain somewhat interfered with the parade, but the balance of the programme was successfully carried out. Commander-in-Chief Alcott made a stirring address at the "camp fire."

No Trial for Mousas Bey.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Sept. 11.—It is reported that the porte has concluded to dispense with a trial in the case of Mousas Bey, charged with cruelties to the Armenian Christians, and to exile him. Mousas declares that he will not tamely submit to this treatment, and threatens to produce letters from Turkish governors urging him to the depredations with which he is charged with a view to mutual profit.

LIGHT AND AIRY.

New Ending to a Summer Flirtation.

He met her at the mountains,
A maiden young and fair,
And, forming her acquaintance,
He flirted with her there.

They roamed the hills together,
They wandered through the vale,
And there to her he whispered
Love's tender, fervid tale.

The maiden did not chide him,
She did not say him nay,
But said she'd give an answer
To him some future day.

He met her in the city,
This maiden young and fair;
Did she receive his greeting
With cold and haughty stare?

Did she attempt to pass him,
His outstretched hand ignore,
And say, I do not think, sir,
We ever met before!

Oh, no, she smiled upon him,
Her hand she let him press,
Responded to his greeting
With words of friendliness.

The maiden knew he loved her,
And love the youth did she;
The wedding-bell at Hymen's
Will shortly wedded be.

—Boston Courier.

An Insulted Poet.

Caller (hesitatingly)—I have here a little production of my own which I should like to have you look over for your poet's corner.

Editor (facetiously)—Poet's corner! Certainly. We're all poet scorners in this office. The janitor, perhaps, may find some use—

Caller (stiffening up)—The poem, sir, is descriptive of my patent hedge trimmer, and I was going to ask you if a dollar a line would be sufficient compensation for publishing it as an advertisement. I don't mind your allusion to the janitor, but that diddledy-dad banged chestnut about the poet scorner makes me tired. Don't get between me and the door, sir, if you please. I don't want any explanations or apologies. You shouldn't have this poem now if you got down on your knees for it. Good morning, sir, and be hanged to you!—Chicago Tribune.

The Unwritten Code.

De Courcey—French society proposes, I see, to ostracize M. Bolo, who killed M. Pisruti in a duel.

De Vere—Perfectly proper.

De Courcey—Yes; they say that M. Bolo has dishonored himself.

De Vere—He has violated the unwritten code, which requires that no gentleman shall hurt another in a French duel.—Memphis Sunday Times.

The Garden Hose.

Oh, the kind, the treacherous hose,
Just where it will sprinkle there's nobody knows,
For the boy that controls it is careless indeed,
And we wish we were he, as we quicken our speed
Over the garden and over the lawn,
Tender young sprinkler, he couldn't do wrong.
Dashing,

Slashing,

Splashing the spray.
We feel a relief as we hasten away.

The danger seems past and we feel we are free,
When—just as it happens nobody can see—
But while the boy's trying to get a new grip
For hose in some manner or other will slip,
And just when we feel there is nothing to fear,
The treacherous waters assail from the rear.
Then we hate him,

Berate him,

And wish him in France
But we wish most of all for a pair of dry pants.

—Omaha World.

His Golden Opportunity.

A farmer was arrested for peddling vegetables without a license in a western village. The magistrate disregarded the prisoner's statement that he had sold only two dozen carrots, and fined him $10. The farmer now refers to his experience as his golden opportunity, because it was twenty-four carrots fine.—Jeweler's Weekly.

The Decision Was Final.

Husband—Do you call this spring chicken? How much did you give for it?

Wife—Why, I gave forty cents a pound for it.

Husband—I shall have to declare you out on the fowl, then, if that is the case.—Lowell Citizen.

A Conundrum.

Professor Diamond, of the Union school, gave us the following original conundrum:

"When the girls feel buoyant, how should the boys feel?"

"Gallant, of course."—Danville Breeze.

His Choice.

"Where do you think," said the Wealthy Widow, "I ought to be?"

He drew her to his side,
And hugging her replied,
"I'm satisfied'ly dear
To hold the fair right here."

—Tom Masson in Life.

Some One Else Would Have Done It Before.

"What a perfect specimen of self made man," remarked Bilson.

"Yes," replied Gilson; "and he met the fate of most men who go in to save the expense of an architect."—Washington Capital.

Why He Liked It.

Bobby—Pa, I like to saw wood.

Father—Do you?

Bobby—Yes, it's fun to think while I'm sawing it that when I get it all sawed I can stop.—Binghamton Republican.

WOMAN'S DRESS.

Vandyke and sandal are new corn shades.

The shades of gray now worn are absolutely lovely.

All the new browns have more gold than red in them.

"Or rouge" is the name of a new red gold color, with more red than yellow in it.

Pure white tollets, prepared for autumn, are exquisite in their artistic simplicity.

Half shawls of white muslin and lace are worn with bats of colored muslin to match.

Several new and pretty shades of lilac and violet cashmere are shown for house dresses.

Full velvet sleeves are in fashion and wool gowns prepared for autumn trousseaux.

Black velvet capes are lined with white silk and trimmed with white silk passementerie.

Stuart frills of costly lace falling over the corsage are worn on many bodices slightly open in the neck.

In new autumn gowns there will be less use made of goods in combination than of handsome solid colors richly bordered.

Light colored tan warm woolens will be worn all through the autumn until the stormy days of early winter impose darker tints.

Very striking plaids are imported, with a silk surface thrown up above soft wool goods, and many of these are in Madras colors.

The gray and silver shades are strikingly beautiful this season, and in every many cases these tints take the precedence of all others.

The favorite ribbon for dress garniture is a rich gros grain, irregularly striped with satin or else with a border of satin on each edge.

The dull surfaced cords call le now made up in dark brown and black shoes as well as in tan and russet, and has a soft, luxurious appearance.

The illusion bonnets will be worn later this year than they have been hitherto, and it is said that they will even be prepared for autumn use.

Embroidery of all kinds in silk, in metal and in beads will be one of the principal ornaments for winter toilets of all kinds, day or evening.

Flower bonnets and brims continue in high favor. Directoire hats of black chips are trimmed with scarfs of black tulle and sprays of pink or lilac heather.

The Venetian silk warp challies designed for demi-dress during the autumn are very lovely, both in color and fabric, and their handsome velvet ribbon trimmings give additional charm.

By way of preserving the general average, the bodices worn with evening dress are rather higher on the shoulders since the introduction of the falling frill sometimes worn with day dress.

THE ANIMAL KINGDOM.

Roswell P. Flower, the New Yorker of note, shot an eagle with a seven foot spread of wings at Eagle lake., Ont.

A fish hawk has built its nest on a chimney on a vacant Hoboken's house, in Fishing Creek, Cape May county, N. J.

Louis Fenton, who is camping at Bells View, near Jamestown, N. Y., caught a twenty-two pound muskallonge the other day. It was 48 inches long and 4¼ inches across the back.

A Rustic (Fla.) paper tells of a pet alligator that drinks cider, going to the barrel and turning the faucet himself. He has been taught to use a palm leaf fan, which he handles with skill, to keep off the flies. Oh!

For years a Springfield, Mass., horse suffered from a sore shoulder. A veterinary surgeon who made a close examination of the shoulder found a twenty-five cent silver piece deeply imbedded in the flesh. How the coin got there is a mystery.

A negro on Mr. Rod Lecnard's plantation, in Talbot county, cut a snake's head off and was surprised to see about a dozen young snakes run out of the old snake. The body of the snake was then cut in two and about fifty more young snakes ran out. Ah!

A very rare specimen of animal life was discovered in Pennsylvania recently on the farm of Henry H. Davenport, father of George F. Davenport, of Mauch Chunk. Mr. Davenport set a trap for what he supposed to be a white skunk, and caught what turns out to be a genuine white woodchuck.

In Brownsville, Schuylkill county, Pa., some seamless young men, in want of a lark, soaked a lot of corn in whisky and flung it to a flock of geese. An hour later the woman who owned them found them somnolent, and, believing them dead, picked their feathers off and flung the carcases down a mine breach. During the night the birds slept off their debauch, and next morning were found huddled at the gate in a naked and prodigal condition.

A curious scene was witnessed in Penn yard, Westminster, England. A sparrow was picking up the grain which had fallen from the horses' nose bags, when a mouse appeared and proceeded to dispute with the sparrow his right to the dainty morsels. A fight ensued, which lasted for some minutes, and then the sparrow beat a retreat. The sparrow had evidently been injured in the tussle, and for a time he was unable to fly. At last the sparrow flew up, and a cabman finished the incident by killing the mouse with a whip.

DON'T.

Don't wear a silk hat to a picnic.

Don't wear tight clothing of any sort.

Don't hang your Mackintosh in a warm place.

Don't affect horizontal stripes if you are short in stature.

Don't confound a very tight glove with a well fitting glove.

Don't carry a silk umbrella at the middle. Use the handle always.

Don't sit cross legged if you wish to preserve the set of your trousers.

Don't wear an elaborately patterned vest with a Prince Albert coat.

Don't wear pronounced effects in down stripes if you are tall and slight.

Don't wear made up neck wear if you can adjust easily and gracefully your ties and scarfs.

Don't—though some men with pretensions to style do—wear a high hat with a sack coat.

Don't put on a collar which has just been relaundered without examining it for raw edges.

Don't wear last season's ties with the idea that people will regard you as prosperous but eccentric.

Don't play tennis with the ordinary business shoes on. The right sort for the game can be had cheap.

Don't get into a heated argument on a summer's day unless your linen is thoroughly well starched.

Don't wear satin or raised pattern neckwear if your beard is harsh or bristly. Wear finished close woven silk, such as gros grain, etc.—Man's Outfitter.

PERSONAL GOSSIP.

Since his recent marriage Meissonier has neglected his palette.

President Harrison has leased his house in Indianapolis for three years.

The Rev. Ellis Howell, of Marshall, Ills., has just married his one-thousandth couple.

Dr. Nansen, who lately completed an adventurous journey across Greenland, is only 27 years old.

Gen. Crook says that Sitting Bull has no reputation among the Indians as a brave, but only as a medicine man.

Samuel Ayres, an Attwattist, living in Worcester, Mass., predicts the end of the world on the night of Oct. 7, 1892.

Edwin S. Connor, an aged actor of Philadelphia, has acted Richelieu 1,013 times, but has never seen any one else act it.

Ex-Mayor McGowan, of Trenton, who is prominently mentioned as a candidate for governor, began life as a newsboy.

Mr. Gladstone allows all the people in the neighborhood of Hawarden to freely use his splendid library of 20,000 volumes.

Henry Irving writes to a friend denying emphatically that he has complained of unfair treatment by the American press.

Dr. Talmage says he has been deceived and defrauded by many people, but that no newspaper man ever broke professional faith with him.

Sims Reeves, the English tenor, is about to take another farewell of the public. He considers the money thus obtained the cream of taste.

Dr. Oscar Montelius estimates that the stone age ended about 2,500 years ago in Sweden, where it reached a very high development.

It has been stated that the lamented Father Damien attributed his leprosy to the inoculation of an abrasion in the scalp through the agency of flies.

Eighty years ago Tennyson, Darwin, Gladstone, Lincoln, Oliver Wendell Holmes, Edgar Allan Poe and Lord Houghton were born: 1809 was a great year.

Lord Charles Beresford is authority for the statement that the sons of the transatlantic Miner Yankees could have sunk Nelson's whole fleet in half an hour.

Gustave Dumoutier has constructed a veritable Buddhist temple in Paris, on the Champ de Mars, for the use of Annamites and Chinese who may visit the exposition.

The president of the French council, M. Tirard, is a "Cockney Parisian." Before embarking in politics he kept a jeweler's shop—imitation jewelry and "Parisian" clocks.

Philip Gossan, who left the United States forty years ago, is now at the head of probably the largest stevedore business in Bombay. India, employing no less than 7,000 men.

Alexander MacKenzie, ex-premier of Canada, is in delicate health. Mr. MacKenzie was offered the doubtful honor of knighthood ten years ago and refused it. He is a bricklayer by trade.

The late Judge Terry took part in the first battle of Bull Run, fighting in civilian's clothes on the southern side. He commanded an independent body of Texan cavalry hired in the war.

The late Daniel E. Steward, who is said to have been "the wealthiest man in Virginia," made his money on snuff and tobacco. He was a Scotchman and never surrendered his allegiance to Great Britain.

Chauncey M. Depew, who has recently had an opportunity of making an instantaneous study of Emperor William, is very much impressed by his militarism. He says that William looks every inch the emperor.

Robert Ray Hamilton is 87 years old, though he looks younger. He is an agreeable conversationalist and a fair public speaker. It was he that conducted the proceedings against Capt. Cregan in behalf of Allen Thorndike Rice, whose close personal friend he was.

Gen. N. P. Banks has had a varied career. He was a "bobbin boy" in a factory an actor fifty years ago, having played Claude Melnotte in the "Lady of Lyons" at the old Nonpareil Theatre, Lowell. Later on he was a lawyer, and still later a general in the army, governor of the state of Massachusetts, and speaker of the house in the same state.

The late William Thaw, of Pittsburg, Pa., was a man of extraordinary intelligence, having a remarkable memory, and discussed the affairs of the world at large with a rare degree of discernment and power of expression which was shown by but a few individuals. He dressed plainly, with a noticeable absence of jewelry, and his generosity was proverbial.

The name of Charles A. Absolom, who came to the United States recently on the steamship Muriel, is known to all cricketers. He was graduated at Oxford at the head of his class, and was a man of good birth and breeding. In his youth he was the most famous cricketer in all England. His eccentricity was to play without his hat. In Australia he played bareheaded under the broiling sun, with the mercury at 120 degs., and while in the West Indies he slept on deck bareheaded in rain and dew.

A feminine summer boarder, who recently killed a rattlesnake in Passaic county, N. J., will wear the tanned skin of her victim as a girdle.

A deathbed marriage took place lately in Wheeling, Conn. The groom lived to do, and willed all his money to his wife. He was 94 years old.

Somebody has discovered that nearly every one of the world's famous beauties was born in summer, at a time when the earth seemed to smilingly welcome them.

The 110 son gun at Shoeburyness is stated to have cost £15,000, and the carriage, with its various mechanical devices for handling it, £11,000, a total of £26,000.

It is stated by one of the guides at the capitol in Washington that fifteen brides an hour is the average number of visits to the statuary hall each day of the year.

The elm tree that shadowed the Sheldon homestead at Deerfield, Mass., is one of the oldest in the state, and its history can be traced back authentically for 200 years.

A young man from Philadelphia has lost his job as school teacher in Accomac county, Va., by cheating the girls under his charge in study hours and kissing them at recess.

In San Francisco one day recently watermelons sold so low that wholesale dealers, rather than still further glut the market, threw a consignment of 5,000 into the bay.

According to a German paper, there is now living at St. Hubert an old stager of 92, who takes daily exercise on a bicycle, and is reckoned all over the country side as an expert rider.

The diary of the famous Baron Friedrich von der Trenck, counts of the notorious Pranx von der Trenck, and a prisoner for ten years with his own blood while a prisoner at Magdeburg, is now offered for sale at Leipzig.

The statisticians of the Pennsylvania weather service have calculated the rainfall of the state during the month of August, and that if gathered in one place it would form a lake "1,000 miles square" and 35 feet deep.

A man named William J. Haines, 102 years old, has been converted and has joined a Methodist church in Cincinnati. He says he was never sick a day in his life. He was an orderly on Gen. Jackson's staff in the war of 1812.

The cross for pearl fishing has extended from Wisconsin into Illinois. At Belvidere, on the Kishwaukee river, a baker found 300 pearls, for which he has been offered in Chicago an average price of thirty-five cents a pearl.

A remnant of the Seneca tribe of Indians still lingers in Warren county, Pa., spearing fish, etc., for a living. The tribe all told numbers 1,000 souls. Last year one was so dwindled that marriage among blood relations has become almost a necessity.

Clinton A. Snowden, of Tacoma, saw bees going and coming from a hollow tree. He followed them to the tree, and on its top a bear had cut down the tree to get the honey. He found a great lot of it; but, better still, a large quantity of gold was in the hollow trunk.

The house in which Oliver Wendell Holmes was born is still standing on the common at Cambridge, Mass., and is now one of the college buildings. It is an old gambrel roofed house, and during the siege of Boston it was the headquarters of the American officers.

A party of fossil hunters are having good luck in the North Fork country of Oregon. They have found the bones of small horses with three toes on each foot; rhinoceros skulls and other bones that show, as they think, that Oregon had a tropical climate before the glaciers came down from the north and covered the land millions of years ago.

One of the jewels which Col. North, the "nitrate king," brought back with him from Chili was a miniature canoe, fashioned of gold, after the model used by the Peruvian and Chilian warriors hundreds of years ago in the construction of their war canoes. Col. North announced that he felt much inclined to build a resting boat on the lines of this little canoe, and if he now rumored that he intends to remodel the Thistle in this manner.

STATIONERY NOVELTIES.

A big gnome and a very little one lying prone on a sheet make a very funny letter clip.

Attached to a tiny, cut glass inkstand is a huge nickel key with a thermometer set in the shank.

One of the most beautiful novelties shown is an owl in punched steel which hides in its neck an ink well.

An old worm eaten, cross roads sign post, to which is affixed a thermometer, is held erect by a grinning brown bear.

A gold bronze vise and bars and buttons of the same material inclose a blue ink well, standing a perfect beautiful cop in miniature.

A beautiful, slender hound sitting on its haunches holds in its mouth an envelope, the loose flap of which forms a novel card receiver.

A saddle in real leather, with stirrups of nickel, bind and buckle, and saddle cloth of black and red, makes as pretty a pen wiper as one could wish.

A funny little sprite, laughing in every line of his face, stands in a pair of old worn shoes quite as large as himself, thus making a cute paper weight.

Three little red capped sprites playing at leap frog make a comical paper weight. One has taken the lead and has fallen dangerously close to the spot where his companion, who is just flying over the bent back of the opposite frog, will land.

Under a huge mushroom sits a lean visaged, melancholy little sprite hugging his knees and sporting a turkey feather in his red painted cap. Peering over the edge is a great, green grasshopper, perplexed and and ill at ease at the woful countenance of his companion in summer sports. The mushroom is an ink well.

Republican State Convention.

The Republican voters of the State of New Jersey are requested to meet delegates to a State Convention to be held at Taylor's Opera House, in the city of Trenton, on Tuesday, September 17th, 1889, at 12 o'clock noon, to nominate a candidate for governor, to be supported at the ensuing election.

The basis of representation under this call will be one delegate for each two hundred Republican votes cast at the last election for governor in this State, and one delegate for each fraction thereof exceeding one hundred votes; provided, that each township or ward shall be entitled to at least one delegate.

Townships or wards created since the last election for governor shall be entitled to such representation, but the number of delegates from the country shall not be thereby increased. In such case the county committee will make the appointment to existing township and wards.

By order of the Republican State Executive Committee.

GARRET A. HOBART, Chairman.
JOHN Y. FOSTER, Secretary.

JOTTINGS.

—Days of 1889 past, 255; days to come, 110.

—The storm from all appearances is yet far from being over, and a strong east wind prevails.

—Overcoats came to the front Monday and Tuesday night with many—the first of the season.

—Bivalve is the latest New Jersey postoffice. It is a mile from Port Morris, Atlantic county.

—The annual meeting of the New Jersey Sanitary Association will be held in Plainfield on November 13th and 14th.

—The Central Rail Road Company are putting up automatic block signals from Jersey City to Bergen Point.

—Nineteen brakemen were laid off on the Central Railroad Monday, on account of the discontinuance of seaside trains.

—The smallest incorporated town in the country is said to be the borough of South Atlantic City. It has nineteen voters.

—The coal of Alert Hose Cart, which was badly damaged at a recent "wash", has been repaired and the cart is once more ready for duty.

—While alighting from his wagon Tuesday, Mr. James O'Neill, of South Second street, slipped and fell, inflicting painful injuries to his left leg and eye.

—Daisy K., a promising young trotting mare belonging to Mr. Lewis Kelly of Oak Tree, died Sunday from throat trouble. She had a record of 2:36.

—Messrs. E. F. Campbell and John Mannion, were yesterday granted licenses to keep an inn and taveren in Piscataway township, by the Middlesex County Courts.

—Republican voters should not overlook the primary meetings which are called for to-morrow evening to select delegates to the convention to nominate a governor.

—Policeman Cooney on Tuesday arrested two boys named Friess and Fisher for playing truant from school. They were discharged yesterday morning after spending Tuesday night in jail.

—It is said that rats are so fond of sunflower seeds that they will, if plenty, flock into the wire cage kind of a trap in such quantities as to nearly fill it. But they should be fed awhile on the seed before introducing the trap.

—"And now they say that mosquitoes live on vegetable substances. Oh, yes; and flesh is grass, withal remarks the New York Press. That calls to mind a joke so old as to be almost forgotten. "If all flesh is grass, then is not hay, beef a la mowed!"

—L. T. Fell, State Inspector of factories and workshops, has issued a circular to the police authorities of every city in the State, requesting that one or more police officers be detailed to insist on the enforcement of the truant law in accordance with the provisions thereof.

—In a day or two the sun will be shining brightly again, and September, unless it is different from the months of that name which have preceded it, will furnish additional warm weather. There is usually a hot spell of weather during the week in which the State fair is held.

Bridge Damages.

The Somerset County Board of Chosen Freeholders recently elected County Collector Hugh Gaston and clerk A. P. Stelphen as a committee to make out a statement of damages done to bridges throughout the county and at the meeting, Tuesday the committee presented the following report:

North Plainfield township and borough, $15,500, Hillsborough $2,000, Branchburgh $2,500, Warren $1,500, Bernards $600, Bedminster $500, Bridgewater $5,100. Total $34,300.

These damages include extra bridge work that has to be done throughout the county this year. The work is now in progress.

Died.

BOE—this city Wednesday, Sept. 11th, Mr. Holden in his forty-fourth year. The and friends are invited to attend the funeral from the Warren Mission Sunday, Sept. 15th, at 4:30 p. m. The Rev. J. S. [illegible] will preach the sermon.

SOMERSET COUNTY FREEHOLDERS.

The Committee on Bridges Report Contracts Awarded.

The Somerset County Board of Freeholders met at the Court House Tuesday. All the members were present.

Mr. Wyckoff, for Finance Committee, reported expenditures to date, $16,017.64.

On motion, Hugh Gaston Collector was authorized to borrow $5,000 in anticipation of taxes.

The Lunsey Committee reported quarterly Asylum bill as $2,613.70. Report was accepted and bill ordered paid.

Peter S. Bellis presented a bill for $125 damages sustained by him in crossing stream, near Peter Studdiford's, while the bridge was washed away. The matter was referred to Bridge Committee.

Mr. Jones reported that the Committee on North Plainfield bridges had awarded contract on Grand avenue bridge, iron structure to J. W. Shipman & Co. for $1,975, masonry to George W. Townley for $335.20. This is a line bridge. He also reported contract for Water street bridge, masonry to Eugene Moore for 26 25 per cubic yard, iron structure to Canton Bridge Co. for $3,170, including Richmond street bridge, masonry on latter to Jos. F. Sillery for 96.45 per cubic yard. Bridge at Stines was awarded, masonry to John W. Whitlock for $215. The committee was continued.

Mr. Haver reported progress on bridge near C. V. D. Corle's and that the masonry contract was awarded to H. W. Baird for 25 per cubic yard. Mr. Bullman reported progress on bridges near Scotch Plains and at Somerset Pond. Mr. Conkling reported bridge near Mine Brook school house completed, at a cost of $285.16; also that masonry contract on Cliffs Bridge was given to Robt. Hanna for $210, the county to furnish iron and wood; also that contract was awarded for bridge near P. Z. Smith's, woodwork to Oscar Smith for $289, masonry to Robert Hanna for $384. Mr. Kirch reported Springdale bridge ready for examination.

Matter of claim by Dr. Van Nest for services as Coroner was referred to Auditing Committee.

Mr. Haver reported that Jacob Vroom, a lunatic in the asylum, has not more estate than will pay his board one month. Referred to Finance Committee.

Petition for iron bridge near Studiford's was received and placed on file. Mr. Jones moved the committee advertise for estimates on both iron and wood structures, and that they have discretionary power to select either. The motion was carried.

The board then adjourned, to meet at site for bridge on extension of Bridge street, Somerville, Tuesday, Sept. 17th, at 10 a. m.

CHARLES E. HOBBY DEAD.

Sorrow and Sickness at Last Overcome Him.

Charles E. Hobby, a house painter, after a long and painful illness resulting from a complication of diseases, died last evening, at the residence of Mr. Mark Lee, on West Second street. Mr. Hobby resided in Plainfield for many years. He had three children. He owned a house and lot on this street a few years ago, and had a snug bank account. He put the house in his wife's name. Everything prospered with him until his daughter became a young woman. She, a few years ago, married one of the young men employed in Lovell's paper manufactory, on North avenue, and had one child, a son. Shortly after her marriage her name became connected with a scandal at Coney Island, in which she, upon being arrested, gave to screen herself, the name of a respectable young girl, residing on Second street, greatly to the sorrow of the young lady and her friends. Her husband left her, and it was reported that he had begun proceedings for a divorce. A reconciliation was eventually effected, but later the husband disappeared. Mr. Hobby was greatly troubled over his daughter's conduct and it is said drove her from the house. She went to Atlantic City, where she is now supposed to be. A family quarrel resulted, the mother sided with her daughter, sold the house in which the family lived to Mr. Winckler, the grocer, and went to reside in Paterson on the proceeds. Mr. Hobby was finally taken ill, and recently his wife was sent for, although against his wishes. He had some $800 in the bank, and just before he died he made out a check for the amount to Mr. Winckler, with directions to pay the doctors bill, attendance and funeral expenses. This Mr. Winckler undertakes to do and if there is any balance intends to turn it over to the wife, who is in reduced circumstances. Mr. Hobby left enough for sufficient to buy mourning dresses, and with her concurrence has bought a burial plot, in which deceased is to be buried.

PERSONAL.

Invitations are out announcing the approaching marriage of Mr. Herman Klinsman and Miss Augusta Keller, both of North Plainfield.

Mr. Joseph C. Martin, of Grove street, returned last night from Rosendale, Ulster County, N. Y., where he has been spending a ten days' vacation.

Warren, the twelve year old son of Mr. Frank Church, of Craig Place, lies seriously ill at is home, with bowel trouble. Dr. Probasco is attending him.

Mr. August Leing, formerly of this city, but who is now employed in the Government Printing office at Washington D. C., is spending his vacation among Plainfield friends.

Plainfielders in Peril.

Mr. J. D. Spicer, of West Fifth street, this morning received a telegram to the effect that the hotel at which his family was stopping at Ocean Beach was almost under water and that the occupants were compelled to move out. Mr. Spicer started immediately to join his family.

—The tax rate of Scotch Plains township is $3.10 on the $100.

DIED BY HIS OWN HAND.

GEORGE W. TOWNLEY SHOOTS HIMSELF IN A BARN.

No Cause Assigned for the Rash Act.—He Shot Gun was His Weapon.—The Family Greatly Distressed Over His Sad End.

George W. Townley, a mason, residing at 21 Grandview avenue, North Plainfield, committed suicide at about nine o'clock this morning in a barn in the rear of his house.

It is about eight o'clock he went to the home of his son Harvey, who is married and resides on Linden avenue, and borrowed a gun, ostensibly for the purpose of shooting a cat which he said had been in the habit of sucking eggs. The son unsuspectingly loaded the weapon as requested. About an hour afterward Warren was notified that his father had killed himself as above stated.

The gun was a two-barrel breech-loader. Deceased shot himself in the left side and must have held the weapon in close proximity to his body, as his clothing was burned by the powder.

No cause can be assigned by the family for the rash act and persons who had been talking to him yesterday and this morning say that he appeared cheerful.

Marshal McDonald placed Special Marshal Thayer in charge of the premises and notified County Physician Van Wagoner, of Somerville.

Deceased was a man about fifty years of age. He had been twice married and leaves a wife and five children, one of whom formerly played with the Crescent base-ball club of this city.

Mr. Townley had been a soldier in the late war and served three years in Company I, Third New Jersey Volunteers. He was at the time of his death a prominent member of Plainfield Lodge, No. 44, Independent Order of Odd Fellows.

For a number of years he had been employed by Mr. Isaac Pangborn, the builder, and but recently was awarded a contract by the Somerset County Board of Freeholders to build a bridge over Green Brook, near Cadmus' mill. In conversation with a friend yesterday he said that if the weather had been clear he could have completed the contract.

He owned the French-roof brick house on Grandview avenue, where he lived, and his domestic relations were apparently happy.

The family are greatly distressed over the sad affair. The gun with which he committed the deed was partially covered by his body when discovered.

The County Physician arrived this afternoon and after ascertaining the facts, and deeming an inquest unnecessary, granted a permit for burial. From the nature of the wounds he decided that death had been instantaneous.

TO IGNORE THE WEST ENDS.

The Bowling Club Pass a Resolution to that Effect.

The Plainfield Bowling club held a meeting last evening and decided to lease the property at No. 5 West Second street and have it transformed into a club house, at as early a date as possible.

The committee were also instructed to have the club incorporated, previous to which the name will probably be changed. A resolution was also passed to the effect that the club, under whose management the tournament took place, is not to be nothing more to do with the Somerville West Ends, nor allow them to play any more games on the grounds in this city. The meeting then adjourned for two weeks.

ARRESTED FOR ROBBERY.

Harry Forrester Accused of Entering a House.

Under instructions from Chief Carey, Special Marshal Van Fleet last night arrested Harry Forrester, of Grovestreet, North Plainfield, on a charge of breaking and entering the house at No. 154 West Second street, occupied by Mary Cliff, and stealing therefrom two gold rings, a gold breast pin, a silver watch and silver valued at $40. Chief Carey this morning locked him up in the station house to await a hearing before Justice Mulyne.

Court of Special Sessions.

The following prisoners were arranged in Court of Special Sessions at Elizabeth yesterday morning:

James Gaffney, charged with assault and battery on officer Maynes, of Elizabeth, pleaded not guilty. He also plead the same to another charge of the same character. The court committed him, in default of bail of $1,000 on each charge. By request of his mourning dresses, and with her concurrence has bought a burial plot, in which deceased is to be buried.

Peter Grimes, of Plainfield, charged with the theft of a pair of shoes and of assault and battery, pleaded not guilty and was remanded for trial.

Several arguments were listened to, after which court adjourned until Wednesday morning next.

Board of Education.

Messrs. Kirkner, Murray and Wadsworth were appointed by the Board of Education held Tuesday evening.

Bills amounting to $2,400 were ordered paid. The bill amounting to $2,500 for placing the steam heating apparatus in the High School building was not presented.

Acting Principal H. B. Goodrich was present and rendered his opinion in relation to the placing of children in schools according to grades and districts.

Many petitions from parents who desired their children to attend schools outside of their own were received. The Board decided that the rule for districting the scholars must prevail in every instance, and the scholars must, if possible, physically, to walk the greater distance.

Relief Meeting.

The Firemen's Relief Association held a meeting in Fireman's Hall last evening. After the transaction of routine business Chief Engineer T. O. Doane and Messrs. Moore, Mosher and Shurwin were appointed delegates to attend the State Convention, which will be held at Long Branch on the 25th inst.

THE OTHER SIDE OF THE STORY.

As Presented by The Somerville Messenger to Its Readers.

The following is the comment of The Somerville Messenger on Saturday's base-ball game between the West Ends and Crescents:

"The Plainfield Crescents ten in all, three Plainfielders and seven professionals, hired for the occasion, came with a crowd of boosters and kickers on Saturday, ostensibly to play base-ball with the West Ends. Before starting, the Plainfield management said they were coming here to do the Somerville players up and wipe the club out. Our grounds have never seen a more disgraceful aggregation than those that followed the opening of the game, and the large attendance gathered to see ball playing was treated to the rankest field rowdyism. To the credit of the players, however, and particularly the imported ones on the Crescent nine, it must be said that most of the wrangling, kicking and ungentlemanly conduct was confined to the crowd who came with a view of having a row before the game was over. The West End club nobly withstood the difficulties and disgraceful conduct when playing with other organizations, including clubs that play much rougher ball than is played here, how to play, and among the fraternity our club and our grounds are regarded with favor.

"The Crescent nine, it must be said, by the most contemptible, unsportsmanlike tactics are gross libels on Dr. C. B. Matthews, the umpire. In regard to the second base decision at the 7th inning when Gordon of the Crescent Bergen reached second on a hit to centre field and was standing squarely on the base when the ball left the fielder's hand, and reached the third baseman at Bergen. He had no time to dodge and simply turned the ball with his foot on the base. Whether this play should have been judged out is absurd. There was no desire on the part of the umpire to win this game. One of the best he ever had, and we think a successful one, to give an honest decision on a point not covered by any umpire's book.

The statement that "it had been given out several days before the game that the West Ends had determined to win or lose" is a fabrication. If use word "Crescents" be substituted for "West Ends" in other club, and made by him were correct beyond doubt. The ball that The Press notes was foul near the right field line was three feet more inside the line. This is admitted by a number of Plainfielders who were in a position to know.

The bad-throwing incident is sadly colored by our Plainfield contemporaries. The assumption that Harkins purposely hit McMurray is unwarranted, but there can be no doubt of the intentional throwing by Bergen to bat at Harkins. It was simply an evidence of his disposition and a murderous attempt at revenge as well as a most cowardly one. He is certainly the Crescent's champion rowdy and should have been ruled off the field.

The Press and News both say that the Crescent nine in the last of the 9th inning was not allowed to take his base on being struck by the ball. The contrary is true; he was ordered to take his base and refused to do so. It was at this moment that Capt. Bowes of the Plainfield's ran up, and he ordered his man to take the base. At the same time informing the umpire that he would play no longer. He then withdrew from the field. After calling the game "no play" five minutes was allowed for the Crescents to return, and as they did not do so the game was declared forfeited by the usual score, 9 to 0. So far as the game being Somerville's championship is concerned, we are glad to hear Plainfield will play no more ball here. We prefer to have gentlemen and gentlemanly players in the future of the Crescents, we care very little about it.

District Convention of the Y. M. C. A.

Tuesday afternoon the district executive committee of the Y. M. C. A. met in Elizabeth to arrange for the district convention to be held on Oct. 18th, 19th and 20th. It was decided to hold the convention in Rahway. There will be delegates from Elizabeth, Plainfield, Asbury Park, Long Branch, New Brunswick, Rahway and other places. The program will be as follows:

Friday, Oct. 18th, 7:45 p. m., service of song, conducted by James Dunn, of Rahway; 8:15, address by Merrill E. Gates.

Saturday, Oct. 19, 9 a. m., devotional exercises, A. R. Hines, of New Brunswick, leader; 9:45 a. m., "Personal Work," Prof. Chas. Jacobus; 10:30 a. m., "How to lead associate members into active Christian work", W. D. Murray, of Plainfield; 11:15 a. m., "Young men's meeting and how to obtain best results", A. R. Hines, of New Brunswick; 3 p. m., Bible reading, Rev. Dr. Hollefield, of Newark; 3:45 p. m., "Boss' Work", S. F. Dudley, of Orange; 3:30 p. m., "The financial problem," C. T. Kissam, of Plainfield; 4 p. m. "The Workers' Training class;" 8 p. m., address by C. H. Dodge, of New York, and W. E. Janeway, of New Brunswick; stereopticon views of buildings, State Secretary D. F. More.

Sunday, Oct. 20, 9 a. m., consecration meeting, led by Prof. Wilbur; 4 p. m., young men's meeting and women's meeting. In the evening platform meetings in two churches.

Mutilated Currency.

A notice has been issued at the Sub-Treasury in New York city, that all United States notes that are "not mutilated so that less than two-thirds of the original paper remains" may be redeemed at par on presentation at the building, corner of Wall and Nassau streets. Heretofore it was the custom to allow only one-tenth for the usual wear and tear of circulation. Under this new regulation fifteen of the notes now in use here do be stroyed and yet the remainder will be redeemable. Merchants who have a number of mutilated notes in their possession will find this new rule of advantage to them, as they will be enabled to get the mutilated currency redeemed without being compelled to suffer a heavy discount at the hands of money brokers.

—Some naturalist has written an article entitled, "The suffering of the oyster." The oyster suffers more when he knows it is cold read all the funny things that are said about the presence or absence of the letter r in the names of the months.

—The march of time is Winterward. Soon the bleak northwest winds will come howling over the hill, casting up hip and thigh. But these is joy even in this freezing picture of the near future. Men will not lie standing in blocks of five on the streets discussing the merits of base ball, and playing the last game over inning by inning.

COMMUNICATIONS FROM THE PEOPLE

WHEELERS WITHOUT WHEELS.

Visiting the House of Irving, and West Point.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE NEWS:—A few days ago two young members of the Plainfield Bi-Club started off without their wheels, for a ramble along the banks of the Hudson river.

The first stop was made at the new Westchester Racing Track, where they arrived in time to see the wonderful Bi Rio Ray run three-quarters of a mile in 1 minute 11 seconds lowering the record one second for the distance. Walking westward through Bedford Park and Van Constandt, theese straight north over fine macadam roads and past handsome residence our travellers reached Yonkers by night-fall. The Y. M. C. A. of this place has rooms very similar to Plainfield's, being situated in the room over a number of interesting original drawings made for the Century Co—The "sight" of the town is the old Manor House, built in 1682 and now used as a City Hall. Starting early next morning Irvington was reached in time for dinner. Less than a mile from this place are the grounds and residence of Washington Irving. Situated on a well wooded bluff, the house, an old Dutch-gabled story-and-a-half building, stands beautifully venerable, with its walls hidden under a profuse growth of ivy. An inscription cut in marble placed here high up in one of the gables, reads thus:

CEBDUWN.
Anno 1685.

Verbetard door
Washington Irving
1842.

Geo. Harvey.

Down the road several miles further the author lies buried in the beautiful Sleepy Hollow Cemetery. At the entrance stands an old church, built in 1699, and the little round turret-like pulpit was occupied and the room full as our friends passed up the foot-path leaving to the living plot. In the center under a modest white marble gravestone lies the great writer. Reluctantly leaving such a storied and romantic locality our tourists traveled on to Sing Sing. In looking around the town early the next morning they stopped to admire a very handsome fire engine. One of the members of the company, which is entirely volunteer and composed of sixty of the best young men in the place, showed the Plainfielders through their handsome and spacious rooms. The members have a great deal of enjoyment socially out of their organization and very little active work, as the houses thereabouts are mostly of stone. The bills are very steep and the hose carriages often have to be let down on tall first.

Before bidding their newly made friends good-bye he put them under still further obligations by writing them a letter of introduction to the Superintendent of the State prison. It being a holiday nearly all the convicts, about 400, were in the yard. They are exercised by marching in step, made friends scendingly well watched and rarely attempt escape. Between Sing Sing and that home of the firemens' picnic, Ionian 'Island, plies a small propeller.

After a pleasant sail on this boat and a short ride on the West Shore Railroad, the wanderers reached West Point, just as the cadets were filing out from the dining hall. Last of all marched the "Awkward Squad", with their chests braced out three times too far, and their elbows at all conceivable angles, bringing up the rear.

The museum here is very interesting, the parade ground splendid and the outlook both up and down the Hudson magnificent.

Here ended the active part of the tour and as the young pedestrians talked it over on the Albany boat going home they both agreed that they had had the very best sort of a time.

The Future American Theatre.

Modjeska—Countess Bozenta—beautiful Modjeska, who overflows with dramatic expression to her very finger tips, has given some valuable points to a New York Times reporter. The best sign of progress for the American stage she finds in the tendency towards combinations of great artists on one stage—such a combination as herself, Booth and Barrett will bring before the public this winter.

The real actor does his best when he has in the same play with him another gifted artist to inspire him. True art knows no jealousy. Modjeska says the hardest work she ever had was to play with indifferent actors in her own company. A star necessarily suffers from it and deteriorates. For this reason she disapproves thoroughly of the star system, and hopes it will be abandoned. There ought to be in the United States one model theatre, where all the actors are great artists. Other actors the country over could imitate these, and the whole stage would thus be elevated artistically.

The model playhouse of the world is the Theatre Francais, in Paris, she says. Such a theatre in this country would cost a mint of money, and Mme. Modjeska thinks it should be supported by government, like the French one. But there she is mistaken. We ought to have such an institution, everybody knows. But we have in the United States several hundred men—like those who have been lately spending so much money on single entertainments that compared to them Cleopatra would feel very small over her achievement of drinking off her best pearl dissolved in vinegar. Our hundred millionaires—these are the ones who should build and endow our model theatre. Great wealth is a great trust.

Modjeska says plainly that she never saw a society woman who amounted to anything on the stage. She does not consider young Mrs. Blaine a society woman. A woman who is to be a real actress cannot begin with the conviction that everything she does is charming. The great artiste says further:

Of course a "society lady" is helped by everybody, and everything goes sweetly for her person ally; but when she goes on the stage she would begin in soubrette parts, be scolded and called a fool a few times, as many a great actress has been, and learn gradually the impossibility of the thought of how little she really knew. She couldn't stand the trial. But that kind of experience is what makes an actress. I don't believe in anything that comes easy.

The Steamer City of Paris.

What Maud S. is among trotters, the City of Paris is among ocean racers. There is nothing left for her to beat except herself. Possibly it will be years before the time made on her last marvelous trip will be surpassed, the one on which she lowered her own record by 3 hours and 5 minutes. Let it be remembered that in August, 1888, the steamship Paris crossed the Atlantic in 5 days, 19 hours and 18 minutes.

The steamer seems to travel more steadily and comfortably the faster she goes. An interesting incident of the trip was the meeting at which the passengers presented to Capt. Watkin a resolution with six feet of signatures congratulating him on the quick journey.

The brave seaman's speech in return was this: "Ladies and gentlemen, I thank you." There would have been an inglorious ending to the meeting, then and there, but it is pleasing to know that an American newspaper man rose to the occasion, and made a speech that must at least have astonished his British fellow passengers. Mr. Medill, of Chicago, informed his audience that the City of Paris and her splendid achievement were nothing else than a tribute to Yankee skill and enterprise. Nine-tenths of the capital of the Inman line was American money, and the increase of one knot an hour in the magnificent ship's speed was due solely to the application of American improvements to her machinery. Other American orators followed in the same vein. When they were done glorifying our exploits the only Englishman who spoke at all arose and meekly said it was all true.

An important item of educational news comes from Vassar college. It is that in the fall will be opened for the girls a magnificent gymnasium, 100 feet long and 40 feet high. Besides all the ordinary athletic appliances, there will be a tank containing 47,000 gallons of water. It is said that some of the Vassar girls can already swim a mile. With the new bath nearly all will be apt to learn. The man who gave that gymnasium to the school is the benefactor of the race. Whatever tends to draw girls away from novels and chewing gum and feeble sweetishness is to be welcomed warmly. Vassar will send to us young women who as mothers, teachers and professional and social lights will give glimpses of what the beautiful athletic woman of the future is to be.

ECHOES FROM THE STORM

Ravages of the Elements Along the Coast.

THE DAMAGE AT ATLANTIC CITY.

Gallant Rescue of a Woman and Child. Many Ships Wrecked and Ashore at Various Points—A Surprisingly Small Number of Lives Lost.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 12.—The Reading railroad succeeded in getting the first wire into Atlantic City. The joyful news went over the Knights of Pythias wire: "Road not washed away. Can come to-day." It had destroyed and no lives lost." A later dispatch says that it is hardly likely that communication by rail will be established for two or three days. Two cottages are said to have been washed away on Baltic avenue.

The Pennsylvania railroad has a force of 1,000 men at Absecon ready to commence repairing the tracks as soon as the water subsides. They expect to have trains running in eight hours after they get to work.

The Reading railroad has a large force of men at Pleasantville ready to go to work repairing the damage to their road.

The Fire Was a Small One.

Superintendent Dayton, of the West Jersey railroad, says that when railroad and telegraphic communication with Atlantic City were re-established it was found that no serious damage to property had been done by the storm and that no lives had been lost. The fire, of which rumors had got afloat, proves to have consumed only half a dozen shanties of small value at the southern end of the island.

The board walk, with its booths, pavilions and places of amusement located thereon, were destroyed by the waves. The Shelburne hotel, which is the largest edifice of all the hotels, was but slightly damaged.

There is now but one serious washout on the Camden and Atlantic road between Pleasantville and Atlantic City, and Superintendent Dayton expects this to be repaired in a few hours so that trains can be run. An attempt to run a steamer from Somer's Point to Atlantic City had to be abandoned on account of the storm.

Gallant Rescue of a Woman and Child.

A dispatch from Atlantic City via Absecon, N. J., gives the following particulars of the storm: "The storm reached a velocity of over sixty-two miles an hour. The sea was but twenty feet high above the inlet pavilions. There was great alarm among the visitors and residents when a woman and a child in her arms was lifted up by the wind and thrown into the water near the Howard pier. Mr. Walter Field, a photographer, plunged in and rescued the woman and child. People living in the houses beyond Baltic avenue and the Thoroughfare had to be taken from second story windows in boats by men in oil-skins. Many are left homeless. These people are mostly negroes, and are very poor. Many of their humble dwellings are ruined." St. Monica's Roman Catholic church at Absecon is badly damaged. In fact, hardly a hotel or residence along the water front escaped damage, and some are nearly ruined."

Bridges Houses Washed Away.

Postmaster Chester, of Seaside City, reached the mainland and reported that that place is very bad shape. The sea will has destroyed fifteen houses, washed away, including the Newland, Star and Shakespeare hotels. The Excursion house and Surf house may be destroyed. The Central, Ocean and Bay hotel there, is safe. No lives have been lost.

Famous Yachts Sunk or Sent to Sea.

The schooner R. R. Leeds and Rebecca M. have been lost. A number of yachts were wrecked in the harbor, among them the elegant pleasure yachts sunk or driven to sea are the Godfrey, Volunteer, Alert, Neptune, Cornet, Charles P. Wahl, Tillie, Covert and Schemer. The fire early Sunday morning was caused by a tin roof being blown off upon some electric light wires.

Fifty Lives Reported Lost.

Late dispatches state that the storm was the most furious known to the oldest inhabitant. The beach from Rehoboth to Lewes is strewn with wreck. It is thought at least fifty lives were lost. Many were seen clinging to the rigging of the fast sinking vessels, frantically yelling for help. The life saving crews were powerless to render assistance owing to the fury of the gale. Three bodies were washed ashore in the morning and were buried in the sand.

The Loss Will Reach $5,000,000.

The loss to vessel property at the breakwater will reach at least $5,000,000.

The storm has continued here with unabated fury, but beyond demolishing a few outbuildings and fences and the uprooting of trees there has been no appreciable damage in this vicinity.

At Laurel the storm has continued with unabated fury, but beyond demolishing a few outbuildings and fences and the uprooting of some trees there has been no damage in this immediate vicinity. Further up the country peach orchards have been ruined, some having scarcely a tree left standing.

Almost as Bad as the Blizzard.

A special from Dover, Del., says the storm has greatly damaged fruit, especially peaches and pears. Corn is also much damaged. Many fruit trees are torn by the roots or broken off. Many cottages were swept away at the bayside summer resorts and at Slaughter's Beach, Bowers' Beach, and Mc Kinsey's Landing were broken down. Much damage to shipping in the bay is reported.

Sixteen Vessels Ashore.

WILMINGTON, Del., Sept. 12.—Latest advices from Breakwater are that up to 9 a. m. sixteen vessels were ashore. The wind was still high, and more damage is expected. A few of the vessels on shore may be saved. The water is a few inches lower than when most of the vessels were blown ashore. No lives are reported lost. Oil seems at Lewes say the storm is worse than the blizzard of March, 1888, the gale was higher and the swell greater than then. Schooners C. C. Tilton and H. S. Paul are ashore at the mouth of the Broad Kiln creek, six miles north of Lewes. Reports from Milford, Del., state that three vessels are ashore at Slaughter's Beach, near Milford. One of them, a three masted schooner, is unknown. One is the Belle of Dover and the other Thomas Draper, of Milford. The crews are safe. It is not thought that the schooners will be badly damaged. It is reported that the pilot-boat Thomas F. Bayard is lost.

The Ships Ashore Near Lewes.

LEWES, Del., Sept. 12.—A ship, supposed to be the William R. Grace, from Havre for Philadelphia, is ashore on the point of the cape. Her masts are cut away, and it is impossible for a boat to reach her. The vessels known to be ashore are the El Salvadore, brig Richard T. Drew, schooners Addie B. Baum, S. A. Paddock, Alma A. Rose, Unity R. Dyer, J. D. Robinson, Maj. William H. Tuxton, Charles P. Stickney, Henry N. Clark, Alena Covert, J. F. Becker, Bryan N. Norton, Gertrude Summers, Maud Seward, barge Tinsor, and pilotboat Bayard.

Four Sailors Drowned.

Following are the names of additional wrecks that reached Lewes: A. E. Hooper and Nettie Chapman, brig Richard Green, with logwood; ship William R. Grace, for Philadelphia, ashore at Capes, with masts gone and in bad condition; barge British Lord Thomas Keillor and Danish bark Atalanta, supposed to be ashore at Point of Capes. Pilot boat Thomas F. Bayard dragged her anchors and came ashore with four men. The crew of eleven are safe. Schooner J. & L. Bryan, with coal, Philadelphia, went to pieces on Fourteen Foot Bank. The crew came ashore in their yawl boat. The last four men are undoubtedly lost. One man on the raft did and was thrown overboard. Lewes' life station is partly washed away, and the roof of the breakwater was washed ashore at Lewes.

Nine Pilots Carried to Sea.

NEW YORK, Sept. 12.—Nine pilots were carried out on steamers which they were guiding from port. They could not find pilot boats outside to bring them back. Some will have to take involuntary trips to Europe, others to southern ports. By law they are entitled to receive $25 per week and first class board during the time absence from port. Steamships from the east and south report passing through a storm of almost unexampled severity.

The Storm in Maryland.

SALISBURY, Md., Sept. 12.—The destruction wrought by the storm at Ocean City is fearful. The surf is now breaking in the second story of the Atlantic hotel and Congress hall, and the water is six feet deep on the ground floors of the hotels. A train was sent to Ocean City this morning on the beach. The work was done by a large number of men joining hands and wading through the water waist deep.

Damage Near New Brunswick.

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J., Sept. 12.—The highway bridge over the creek at Spotswoode was swept away during the storm. This bridge cost $6,000. A railroad washout near Perth Amboy is reported, and much other damage has been done in this and adjoining counties. There are down and details cannot yet be obtained.

A Man Killed in Brooklyn.

BROOKLYN, Sept. 12.—Many trees were uprooted and houses unroofed in this city during the night. John Mangen, aged 5, was hit on the head by a piece of flying timber and will probably die. Charles Wunsch was blown from a building on which he was working, and was instantly killed.

Probably Lost in the Storm.

NEW HAVEN, Sept. 12.—Rev. C. M. Pegg, George M. Harford, Jacob Smith and Capt. Daniel Craft, of Oswalk, left that place in an eighteen foot catboat Monday afternoon for Long Island. It is feared that they were lost in the storm.

THE RIPPER'S LAST WORK.

Suspicion That Jack Is a Well Known London Physician.

LONDON, Sept. 12.—The inquest in the case of the woman whose headless body was discovered in the Whitechapel district was conducted with closed doors, as the police declare precautions are taken to prevent the medical testimony in the case being made public. A rumor is afloat, but cannot be traced to an authoritative source, that one of the doctors has pointed out that the surgical work of the fiend who committed the murder bears a remarkable resemblance in certain features to peculiarities which have frequently been noted by the profession in the work of a well known London surgeon, a man of the highest standing in his profession, but whose name is withheld.

The police maintain a discreet silence, and refuse to either deny or affirm the rumor. They appear to be active, however, and their conduct indicates that they have a clew of some sort.

Uncle Sam's Men Shooting.

FORT NIAGARA, N. Y., Sept. 12.—This was the third day of skirmish firing in the department competitions of the United States army. The following are the names of the best twelve marksmen: Sergt. James A. Richardson, Fortress Monroe, Va., 123; Private Allin Krebs, Buffalo, 111; Sergt. William A. Rose, Buffalo, 110; First Sergt. John Heckman, Buffalo, 104; Private George Beal, 103; Corp. Martin Hamburg, Fort Columbus, N. Y., 99; Sergt. D. E. Langley, Sackett's Harbor, N. Y., 96; Private Thomas Cunningham, Sackett's Harbor, N. Y., 95; Sergt. Charles Ryan, Atlanta, Ga., 94; Lieut. Charles L. Potter, Willett's Point, N. Y., 92; Lieut. John D. Barrett, Washington, D. C., 92; Lieut. Ed. F. Brown, Fort Columbus, N. Y., 92.

Railroad Men Arrested.

BUFFALO, N. Y., Sept. 12.—Frank Johnson, a conductor on the New York Central railroad, and Edward L. Bagley, one of the gatemen at the depot, have been arrested upon complaint of W. R. Gillett, auditor of the road. The officers claim that Johnson would take up tickets on the train, and when he arrived in Buffalo would hand them to Gatekeeper Bagley, who disposed of them at scalpers' offices. Both men were admitted to bail.

Still After a Cronin Juror.

CHICAGO, Sept. 12.—Twenty-five talesmen of the ninth venire and six of the tenth were examined in the Cronin trial. Ten peremptory challenges were used, five being credited to each side. The state has passed eighteen and the defense thirty-eight of its 100 challenges. Three men were held over since the last adjourned. The eleventh venire has just been issued.

The Great London Strike.

LONDON, Sept. 12.—Several more wharfingers have conceded to the demands of the strikers, and nearly 1,000 men resumed work in the morning. The strikers are as resolute as ever in the stand they have taken. Their pickets display greater activity and have prevented many batches of new men from proceeding to the docks.

Sued for $150,000 Damages.

BROOKLYN, Sept. 12.—Mrs. Dr. Mary Jones, proprietress of a woman's hospital, has sued The Eagle for $150,000 for libel, the alleged libel being the publication of charges of malpractice, murder, forgery, conspiracy and larceny in connection with the treatment of patients in the hospital.

Injured by a Falling Derrick.

HARRISBURG, Pa., Sept. 12.—By the breaking down of the big derrick known as the "traveler" at the bridge works quarry near Hummelstown, John Thomas, the engineer, was horribly scalded with steam, and Augustus Kinley had an arm broken and his back sprained. The derrick fell thirty feet.

Ladies' Aid Societies in Camp.

WATERTOWN, N. J., Sept. 12.—The third annual encampment of the Ladies' Aid societies, auxiliary to the Sons of Veterans, opened here. The annual reports show a great increase in membership and in interest, manifested in the work during the year.

HAS TANNER RESIGNED?

Rumors That He Has and Has Not Done So.

PRESIDENT AND CABINET CONSULT

The Corporal Declares That He Is Still Commissioner of Pensions—Secretary Noble Has Asked for His Retirement, However—Tanner's Alleged Successors.

NEW YORK, Sept. 12.—A Washington dispatch states that Commissioner Tanner has sent a letter to the president resigning his position. The letter is a cordial one, expressing highest esteem for the president and continued devotion to the Republican party. It is very brief, scarcely fifty words in length, and is thoroughly good natured, with no evidence of ill feeling.

The President and His Cabinet Deliberate.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 12.—The retention, removal and resignation of Commissioner of Pensions Tanner were subjects of protracted conference at the executive mansion between the president and most of his cabinet officers. Informal conferences were held during the day between the president and Secretaries Noble and Tracy, but the formal cabinet meeting to discuss the matter did not convene until nearly 4 p. m. and lasted until about 6 o'clock p. m. Secretary Noble was with the president as early as 2 o'clock. He brought with him the report of the committee appointed to investigate the charges in the pension office during Commissioner Tanner's administration, presumably to be used as an argument for securing the commissioner's resignation, if possible.

Not Removed Nor Asked to Resign.

Members of the cabinet are extremely reticent about what happened at the meeting. The president, however, authorized a representative of the United Press to state that "Commissioner Tanner had not been removed, and that he had not asked for the commissioner's resignation."

Commissioner Tanner declined to talk about the imbroglio further than to say that he had not been suspended and had not resigned. He is undoubtedly being made to induce the commissioner to resign by offering him another equally lucrative and honorable position, but whether he will yield to such persuasion is not known, and further conferences and more time is needed to settle the matter.

Who Will Be His Successor?

Now that it is generally believed that Commissioner Tanner will resign or must go, rumor is rife with candidates to succeed him. Ex-Pension Agent Poole, of New York, and ex-Congressmen Brown, of Ohio, and Thomas, of Illinois, are already mentioned, among others, for the place.

Vice President Morton arrived here from New York and called at the White House while the president and his cabinet were considering the case of Pension Commissioner Tanner. He was shown in the cabinet room and joined in the discussion.

Mr. Tanner Refused to Talk.

Commissioner Tanner left the president at 3:45. Secretaries Tracy and Windom and Attorney General Miller came to the executive mansion shortly after, a meeting been summoned by the president to a conference. Mr. Tanner refused to make any statement to a United Press reporter.

The President Loath to Act.

Secretary Noble will say nothing except to make the admission that he has asked for Tanner's resignation. He has told his friends that he has taken the step with great regret, but he had decided the president's course for all. In case Commissioner Tanner concludes to accept some other office Senator Hiscock, it is understood, being anxious to have a New York man continue commissioner of pensions, will recommend ex-Pension Agent Poole, of Syracuse, as his successor. Ex-Governor Foster, of Ohio, wants ex-Congressman Brown, of the Buckeye state, to take charge of the bureau.

The president has been loath to act at all in the controversy, and it is said that Secretary Noble and Commissioner Tanner would be able to settle their differences without calling upon him to step in as a mediator. Consequently he was disturbed upon an immediate decision, however.

Will Warner be the Next Commissioner?

KANSAS CITY, Sept. 12.—Maj. William Warner is reported to have left Kansas City for Washington in response to a telegram from the president or the secretary of the interior asking him to call upon them about the position of commissioner of pensions to succeed Commissioner Tanner in event the latter should be removed.

Tanner to Succeed Rosecrans.

CHICAGO, Sept. 12.—A Washington special says that Tanner is to succeed Gen. Rosecrans as register, and that Congressman McKinley, of Ohio, has been offered the position of commissioner of pensions. McKinley has just left Chicago for New York to attend the funeral of Congressman Cox. From there he will go to Washington, but it is understood he will decline the position, as he has strong hopes of becoming speaker of the house.

Two Murderers Lynched.

CHARLOTTE, N. C., Sept. 12.—A special to The Chronicle says that Frank Stack, a white man, and Dave Boone, colored, were lynched at Morgantown, Burke county, about 2 a. m. by a mob of 150 men, who overpowered the jailer and broke open the prisoners' cell. Stack was in jail on the charge of shooting Robert Parker last August, and Boone was charged with killing Eli Holder, a white man. It is said that Boone confessed, but that Stack protested his innocence to the last. The jailer claims to have recognized three of the lynching party, and warrants have been issued for their arrest.

A Train Robber in Trouble.

BESSEMER, Mich., Sept. 12.—Holsbey, the young train robber who terrorized northern Michigan and Wisconsin all summer and was captured at Republic a week ago, has been bound over to the circuit court on the double charge of robbery and murder. He will have his trial at the October term. The court room was packed with people anxious to see the man whose exploits have occupied so large a share of public attention since May.

Labor Troubles at Du Bois.

DU BOIS, Pa., Sept. 12.—Bell, Lewis & Yates' miners hold a meeting and decided to demand an increase of five cents a ton or strike. A committee was appointed to confer with S. Bell Elliott, superintendent for Bell, Lewis & Yates. Should their demand be refused 600 men will strike. The men are now receiving forty cents a ton.

Fire at New Britain.

HARTFORD, Sept. 12.—Arnold's block on Main street, New Britain, was burned. Loss $30,000. Dunn's restaurant, the Emmet club rooms, The News office and an adjoining building were badly damaged.

THE DEAD POLITICIAN'S FUNERAL.

Distinguished Men Will Bear the Late S. S. Cox's Remains to the Grave.

NEW YORK, Sept. 12.—The funeral of the late S. S. Cox will take place Friday morning from the Presbyterian church, Tenth street and University place.

The following gentlemen have been selected as pallbearers, but as changes and declinations may prove necessary: Gen. Sherman, Vice President Morton, J. T. Agnew, Senator Dawes, Superintendent Kimball, Gen. E. S. Walker, Secretary Gen. Garland, ex-Governor Hoadly, C. A. Dana and Col. Cockerill. A list of alternate pallbearers has been made out, including the names of ex-President Cleveland, Governor Hill, Vice President Morton, Senator Voorhees, W. S. Holman and Senator Hiscock. Among those that called at the door were Gen. Hurlbut Halstead, Clifton R. Breckenridge, Mayor Grant, O. B. Potter, S. V. White and Postmaster Van Cott. Flags on municipal buildings will be placed at half mast during the funeral.

Mourning Colleagues from Washington.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 12.—Hon. Simon Wolf, president of the Jewish order O. K. S. B., has sent the following letter to Mr. Alexander Reinstein, the secretary of the order:

"Hon. S. S. Cox, a friend of Israel, in and out of congress, has fallen. I recommend memorial services throughout the order."

Gen. Clark, clerk of the house of representatives, has appointed a committee on the part of the house to attend the funeral ceremonies over the remains of Representative Cox. The committeemen are named below: Ex-Speakers Carlisle and Randall, Holman, Reed, Campbell, Senay, Hoard, Mutchler, Kelley, Cannon, Reed, Burrows, O'Neill (Pa.) and McKinley.

Killed by a Policeman.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Sept. 12.—John Gleason, a big and burly New Mexican, who came to this city a few months ago, was shot by Policeman Frank Fuller, officer detailed to arrest Gleason for fast driving and boisterous conduct. The Mexican, who intended leaving town and was going around bidding the people good-bye, resisted the officer in the struggle that followed he was shot by the policeman. But little hope is entertained of his recovery. The officer was seriously hurt in the fight.

Grave Charges Against a Minister.

ALBERT LEA, Minn., Sept. 12.—Rev. N. H. Galos, pastor of the United Brethren church at Glenville and Twin Lakes, was brought here to-day and charged with indecent assault upon a little girl ten years of age, daughter of Fred Foster, of Pickeral Lake, who is the complaining witness. There will be a hearing on Wednesday, Sept. 18. Galos is a young man who has stood well in the community, and few believe in his guilt.

$2,300 Damages for Slander.

WATERTOWN, N. Y., Sept. 12.—Mary M. Banister has obtained a verdict of $2,300 against Gouverneur Banister, her father-in-law, in the circuit court for slander in circulating a report against her character. Banister, Sr., is a rich, retired farmer, aged over 70 years. He felt such an antipathy to his son's wife that when she married him he immediately altered his will, cutting his son off with six cents.

Mayor Coggeshall Re-elected.

NEWPORT, Sept. 12.—The city election resulted in a Republican victory. Mayor Coggeshall was re-elected by a majority of 42 over Democrat Sherwood and Independent candidates. City Treasurer David M. Coggeshall, Republican, was re-elected by 716 majority. The board of aldermen is entirely Republican, and a majority of the school board and common council are also Republican.

THE RIDING CLUB.

THEY were galloping, galloping, galloping, now in a furious procession one behind another, but there came of a sudden a halt in their galloping and they came down to a plain, prosaic walk, and the riding club now doesn't ride any more.

They had long been accustomed to ride in the morning in the earliest dawn of the summer day bright, and the patter of hoofs on the hard ground was exciting enough for their hearts with the pleasure delight, but they came to a hurdle that stopped the proceedings and shot off the rhymes of their gallop, and they came down with a jar that jerked the metrical feet out of their stirrups, and the riding club now doesn't ride any more.

It appeareth that one of the sweet lady riders was wondrously handsome in features and dress, but she had a peculiar fashion of headgear her fondest admirers never would speak of, and accident happened while under some branches where foliage hung all the narrow path over and it pulled her hat off and her hair all came off with it, leaving her head as bald as a pickled nanimny—and the riding club now doesn't ride any more.

Then the riders all stopped from their rhythmical gallop, and sat around on their horses and gazed at the bald headed woman, while her short vest came below her and the hair, and every one of the women said they might have known it before, and all the men were struck speechless and completely knocked silly, and it took all the poetry out of horseback riding and brought it down to the commonest kind of prose, and the riding club now doesn't ride any more.

Though soon we may hear at the dawn of morning the hurrying hoof beats of some gallant steed as he scours the cleared of dew rhythmical meter while hurrying onward with regular speed, yet the gathering dozens of regular riders all gaily and galloped in morn's early light, and who rode till the glow was on all of their features and eyes were all sparkling and glistening bright, that is now for this club the same freedom of gallop, it's not the same gallop they galloped before, for the woman with the bald head haunts the whole crowd and the lost hair takes the poetry all out of a metrical gallop; so the riding club now doesn't ride any more.—Inlet News.

Nomadic.

A gentleman riding on horseback over the western prairies, met a dilapidated "prairie schooner" drawn by a pair of bony and hollow eyed oxen. A ragged, uncouth man and a woman of equally unattractive appearance, with a fretful and mighty baby in her arms, occupied the front seat, while the rear part of the wagon did not seem to contain anything but other ragged children of all ages and sizes.

The man brought the oxen to a standstill and thus accosted the traveler:

"Got any tarbacker, mister?"

"No, I never use it."

"You don't? Well, I wonder how in creation a feller kin git along 'thout terbacker! Are you terrible, or j'st goin' somewhar?"

The traveler, not unwilling to have a little conversation with this queer specimen of humanity, had reined up his horse and said: "I am going to the next town. Where are you bound?"

"Well, I don't zactly knows just where we will settle down. Where'd you come from?"

"From Kansas."

"How's times out there?"

"Very good."

"Any chance for a feller to make livin'g?"

"Oh, yes, plenty of chances."

"What at?" asked the man, eagerly.

"At hard work."

This reply evidently dampened the man's ardor.

"Some kin stand hard work," he said, "and some can't. I don't b'lieve in a feller makin' a slave of hisself. That's why I left Iowy and Ohio and Illinoy."

"What do you want to do for a living?"

"Well, I don't zactly know."

"And you've no idea where you will locate?"

"No, dunno as I hev; but I'm willing to stop in any place where time is good, and I kin git along."

He is probably wandering still, he and his family, adding to that great and widely scattered army of people who never "git along" in any country.—Youth's Companion.

Political Note.

Our esteemed contemporary, Cahman Jones, informs us that he cannot support our nominee, the mosquito, for the dignified office of national bird. He says the mosquito does not soar high enough. Indeed, he says that he has lived in countries where mosquitoes filled the air chock full down near the earth, yet on going up fifteen feet above the ground he always escaped them. The Post does not argue. It means to be fair to all parties, and it must say that Cahman Jones, if his testimony be accurate, has presented the only real argument we have heard against the mosquito. Surely this proud nation will not stoop for its bird one that never flies higher than fifteen feet from the earth. However, before we forsake the mosquito we mean to obtain, if possible, the evidence of somebody who has slept in a second or third story room without bars on the window.—Washington Post.

Purely Mechanical, of Course.

Wherever bicyclists are seen
To them observed that cranks abound.
Mistake me not; of course I mean
The cranks that make the wheels go round.
—Washington Post.

PUBLIC SALE OF REAL ESTATE.

CITY OF PLAINFIELD.

Notice is hereby given that by virtue of a warrant issued by William M. Stillman, esq., City Collector of the City of Plainfield, in the County of Union, to make the unpaid taxes assessed for roads, assessments, improvements and assessments, in the said City of Plainfield in the year eighteen hundred and eighty-seven, the subscriber, the officer so nominated and appointed by the Common Council for that purpose, will on Wednesday, the twenty-fifth day of November, at the hour of two o'clock in the afternoon, at his office, 32 Park avenue, in the City of Plainfield, sell at public vendue, the several tracts or parcels of land and real estate hereunder described, at public auction, for the amount due for which any person or persons will agree to take the same and pay such taxes, together with the interest thereon, and all costs, fees, charges and expenses:

WOMAN AND HOME.

ONE DAUGHTER OF ST. CRISPIN WORKING AT THE BENCH.

Why Women Are Not Familiar with Money Matters—A Young Lady Shoemaker's Experience—Hints on the Care of Children and Housekeeping.

"Can you tell me where Mrs. Gill lives, little girl?" was the question a reporter asked of a German boy-baby in Hoboken, Sunday after he had spent a fruitless hour in a search for that lady.

"You mean Mrs. Gill, the shoemaker, do you?" replied the urchin, and when the reporter said that was the very personage he was looking for, the child pointed down the street, indicating where the only woman shoemaker in New York was to be found.

The reporter had little difficulty in reaching Mrs. Gill's little cobbler's shop at 275 Mulberry street in one of the tenements in the rear of old St. Patrick's cathedral. There was little to distinguish it from the ordinary cobbler's stall, except, perhaps, an unwonted tidiness and a pretty ornament here and there that at once bespoke a woman's taste. Mrs. Gill herself rose from her cobbler's bench, where she was busily engaged in mending a pair of child's shoes, to greet the reporter, and when he said he only dropped in to have a quiet chat with her she wiped a stool with the corner of her apron and asked him to be seated.

He saw in this one brief moment that Mrs. Gill was a woman that might be possibly 50 years of age, gray haired and pleasant faced. She was evidently quite ready for a chat and began by saying that she had been told she was the only woman shoemaker of the old school in New York or, perhaps, the whole United States. She said she wouldn't vouch for this being absolutely true, for, of course, she had never heard of any other woman following the trade at the bench.

"Of course," she glibly talked on, with very little coaxing, "there are hundreds of women working in the modern shoe factories, but any of them would be insulted if they were called shoemakers. Now, I glory in being a shoemaker. I am a disciple 'good ol' craft,' and, though the shoemaker of the olden time has long since been pushed to the wall by modern inventions, I propose to stick to the craft to the end."

"Were you regularly apprenticed to the trade?" ventured the reporter.

"I was born to it," promptly replied the old woman. "My father was a shoemaker of Northampton, England, where it was the great shoe emporium of the old country, and I learned the trade as naturally as a duck takes to the water. I watched my father by the hour, and when he saw what a taste I had for leather he fostered it more to humor me than in any hope that I would ever master the craft. That I did, and before I was 14 years of age I made a pair of shoes for my mother that I don't think I could better now. When I was old enough I went to work in a factory in the Northampton shoe district, and I worked in Massachusetts factories after my father came to this country in 1868. I have been working here nearly ten years and have all that I can do, as you may see," and the old woman swept the little shop with a wave of her sturdy arm.

"How did you come to go into the business on your own account?" was the next question.

"Well, I really don't know," she replied. "I worked on a machine years ago, sewing uppers for Mr. Reed, that is the Reed & Barton street pattern maker. I worked for him, maybe, two or three years and then I did the same kind of work for Arthur & Dixon in Tenth street, the best place I ever had was for Mr. Creed in Gold street. But all this while I was heart and soul a shoemaker, and I always intended to have a shop of my own when the factory system would drive me up the slaving of a factory. It was then I started this little shop. I prospered from the beginning. I had a good deal of custom work, and I took a pride in doing it well. Of late years, however, I have had so much mending to do, and it can be done so much quicker and pays so much better that it's a long time since I made a pair of shoes.

"My work is the ordinary run of work done in any cobbler's shop. I repair men's, women's and children's shoes, and may say I have the entire mending of the neighborhood to do. Sometimes, perhaps from curiosity, I have a call from a fine lady to mend her own or her children's fine shoes, and I have never had any one to find fault with my work."

Everybody in the neighborhood seemed to know Mrs. Gill and to have a good word to say for her. She has the reputation of being a kindly, industrious woman and a good neighbor. Many acts of unobtrusive charity are recorded of her, and the children seem to be particularly attached to her.—New York Press.

Women as Financiers.

Many women are generally supposed to be entirely helpless in the taking care of their money matters. But why should they not be? How many girls at school learn how to keep accounts? And if they did study the art at school they are not allowed the benefit of putting what they learn into practice during their school days, for the reason few of them are encouraged to do it or have regular allowances of money. A father of a large family of daughters once told me he did not like children allowances; he did not like the idea, as he thought it made them feel like boarders in his house; he preferred that they should come to him when they wanted money and ask for it. A very pretty sentiment, but in these practical days it would be better if every girl had a fixed allowance for dress, and were made to keep her accounts in the regular business way.

There are numbers of women doing business of various kinds who did not know how to make a bill when they first started out in trade, and who keep their accounts according to a method of their own, an incomplete one, and there are many little sums paid out or received that never get into their account books at all. They manage to add up the larger sums fairly correct and spend; but the intricacies of bookkeeping are unknown to them, and consequently at the end of the year they are surprised to find that they have spent more than they have received. Just where the fault is they do not know, and so they stumble on blindly.

In the matter of investments, too, women generally show little judgment. Many of them have a wild desire to own land, and will grasp at the opportunity of buying lots at a low price with the expectation of realizing a fortune in a few months, or years at most, by its rise in value. In many instances the large sum invested has been more than the price paid for the land, and the unfortunate woman has been obliged to sell at a loss. The desire to own land with a prospect, or hope, of one day building a home for herself, is natural and laudable. But the investigation of titles is expensive and troublesome, and unless a woman has a large sum to invest it is best to let real estate alone.

Savings banks are, probably, the best places for women to invest their money. A savings bank pays a fair percentage, and it is the best bookkeeping way for a woman to invest her savings. The buying of stock or other securities necessitates the care of bonds, which is something that few women are capable of undertaking. For with the best intentions in the world, and a great amount of carefulness, women do mislay or lose very many important papers.—Miss Palfrey in New York Star.

Perils of Overfeeding.

Excessive eating is not the most striking or the most widely prevalent fault of the present generation. On the contrary, moderation and careful selection in the matter of diet is the prevailing fashion. There is still, however, a considerable number of persons who habitually overeat at meals, and to such a few physiological hints may not be without their value. Dr. Reudon has been at the pains to make some careful investigations on the subject, and his results have recently been published.

According to this observer, a not uncommon consequence of overfeeding is the development of a series of symptoms in many respects similar to those of typhoid fever. The temperature rises, there is a feeling of serious illness, the sleep is disturbed, the brain is overexcited, and in severe cases the disability is complete. The cause of these symptoms is insufficient elimination and an alteration in the blood brought about by the impregnation of the organs with accumulated waste products. In addition to these typhoid symptoms thrombosos occur in the vessels, and what is known as spontaneous gangrene, or mortification of parts without any obvious or sufficient cause.

Now, these are conditions of very marked danger, particularly the thromboses and the spontaneous gangrene. There is danger to life here. The obvious remedy for such a series of evils is, of course, rest for the overworked digesting and eliminating organs. Both the quantity and the quality of the food must be so changed as to admit of the performance of easy digestion, perfect assimilation and adequate elimination of waste.

Lemonades and lemon juices are said to be of great service in diminishing the excessive craving for food; and this, from a limited experience, we can to some extent confirm. Milk, also, in moderate quantities is useful, and in certain cases silk milk could probably be best. It is not always found that the resting of the organs is sufficient. The fever may persist for a long time, and with it the typhoid symptoms. The writings of different kinds are then urgently demanded, and a competent physician should be consulted without delay.—Hospital.

A Book Canvasser.

I have often thought that the publication of my experience in a big city, trying to make a living, would benefit young women who are anxious to get away from country homes. Both my brother and I had every reason to expect that we would be successful when we came to St. Louis from New Orleans. My brother was drowned, my landlady went to Chicago and—would you believe it?—I had a hard enough time to find another boarding house, even though I pawned my watch and my bracelets, and offered to pay in advance. After I got into a home on Washington avenue it was struggle, struggle, struggle, and the only thing that kept me from the Woman's Exchange, to pay my room rent and buy two meals a day. I am well enough satisfied with the employment I have now.

I canvass for Bulwer's works and an encyclopedia. I get $3 for each Bulwer order I take and $5 for each encyclopedia, and I don't have any trouble about collecting the money. That is done by a man. I don't go about my work in a haphazard fashion, and so I am. I daily leave the impression a gentleman until I know at least his name, and if he is busy when I call I give him a card and ask him to let me call again. I count upon making between $15 and $20 a week.

I have never had to suffer extreme rudeness but once, and, it may seem strange to you, the person who was deceitful to me was a woman. She was a manager over a dry goods store of fashion.—London Saturday Review.

To Soften Wet Stiffened Shoes.

"The woman have a new use for vaseline," observed a Fifteenth street drug clerk, as he forced his thumb over his right shoulder in the direction of a well dressed lady who was leaving the store after having made a purchase of the petroleum compound.

"What's that?"

"They are using it on their shoes now."

"On their shoes?"

"Yes, and the ladies must be given credit for having made a valuable discovery. The ingredients of vaseline have a wonderful effect on fine leather and it is fast taking the place of all the compounds manufactured for softening the shoes. Take a pair of shoes that have become stiff and uncomfortable by constant wear in the rain and apply a coat of vaseline, rubbing it in well with a cloth, and in a short time the leather becomes as soft and pliable as when it is taken from the shelves of the shoe dealer. Yes, indeed, this rainy weather has caused quite a boom in the vaseline trade."—Washington Post.

Girls in Alaska.

In Alaska a girl is ready for society as soon as she enters her teens. It does not require many years in that country for a girl to grow up. The dress of the average Sticken river maiden is very elaborate. A plain cotton garment, long and loose, envelops her person, and a Turkish bath towel is wound about her head. When she goes out a blanket of bright colors is thrown around her shoulders. The wife of a missionary in that section says the young women often go bareffooted, but that after they see the boots and shoes of white women the great desire is to have a pair.—Harper's Bazar.

Worry Kills, Not Work.

It is not work that kills, but worry. It is not the revolution that destroys the machinery, but friction. Work is good for the soul, good for the body and good for the mind. If you want to add years to your life, work. If you want to stand well with yourself and the world, and want things to go right in your home and your business, do not worry. If you want to add up the ten on the dollar do not worry.—Albany Journal.

Do you ever have any trouble with your "canned fruits" spoiling, especially canned tomatoes? I mean the good home made kind, put up in glass jars. Just try this: When you put them away wrap each jar in dark blue paper, which you get in front the drug store; they use it for Seidlitz powders. Then put the jars away in a dark place. This is a good thing to remember and put in practice when you want to keep anything from action of the light.

Hiccough may often be stopped by holding the breath, by swallowing a piece of bread, by a sudden fright or a draught of weak liquid. When from heat and acidity of the stomach in children, a little rhubarb and chalk will be efficacious. Should it proceed from irritability of the nerves take a few drops of sal volatile, with a teaspoonful of paregoric elixir.

Common salt moistened with lemon juice to form a paste, applied to freckled hands and allowed to dry on the freckles in the sun, is tried by young ladies just back from the sea shore. When dry five minutes, wash off and apply cold cream.

WHAT SHALL WE WEAR?

CORRECT STYLES IN DRESS FOR WOMEN AND CHILDREN.

The Incoming Fashions—A Fetz Costume and a Virot Hat for Autumn Wear—A Picturesque and Comfortable Blouse Dress for Little Girls.

Numbered with early importations are the charming Felix costume and Virot hat shown in the annexed cut. The dress is of plain brown silk and striped brown wool and silk, with chenille dots embroidered in the stripe.

FELIX DRESS AND VIROT HAT.

The plain silk skirt is accordion plaited. The bodice is finished with an Empire belt. The pointed plastron back and front of the bodice is of plaided silk and the pointed puff on the sleeve matches, the whole being bordered with brown velvet.

The hat worn with this charming dress has a brown velvet crown and a black lace front; the garniture consists of pink roses.

New York Styles.

The first French dresses imported for autumn repeat many of the designs brought out late in the summer by Parisian modistes. Round waists, full skirts and straight effects reappear with variations. Jacket waists and elaborate fronts of corsaged remain in vogue, and basques are not wholly abandoned. Some features of the Directoire are revived. Fur and new cuss are added. Passementerie, braiding, fur and feathers, with velvet cut bias and also velvet ribbons, are the trimmings of the first dark dresses.

The round waist is without darts, and, paradoxical as it may sound, is slightly pointed in front and back. It has but few seams, and may be made with or without side darts; its fullness below is plaited or gathered to the points at the waist line, and it is trimmed there by vandyke points of embroidery or of velvet ribbon, or else it is edged by a folded ribbon, fastened by a bow without ends on the left side. The round shallow yoke so often mentioned will still be made of velvet, bolds, jet, passementerie, or of the dress material covered by passementerie. The high standing collar and mutton leg sleeves will be made for most woolen dresses; cloth dresses, however, seldom have very full sleeves, as they cannot be worn under a cloth jacket or fitted coat.

The skirts of new dresses are hung to appear almost straight, yet those of heavy fabrics have one or two short steels in their foundation skirt merely to support them, not to add to their size; the pad besides are omitted altogether. In the case of many skirts they are perfectly flat, while all are made full in the back by means of gathers or plaits, or some lengthwise jabot folds.

Short waists, both plain and figured, and shot moire ribbons will be much used for parts of dresses, for sashes and for bonnets or their trimmings. Short sleeveless jackets of velvet, of faille or of moire will form the bodice of many dresses of silk or of fine wool, according to Harper's Bazar, which is authority for the foregoing.

New Trimmings.

Judging from recent importations in dress trimmings, polats are to be the mode; and it will be possible to have apparently most elaborately braided dresses with but little trouble. Gowns are to be arranged with these loop vandykes formed of braid coming almost to the knee, on the fronts of the skirt. They are made often with the braid placed on edge, and many widths are used. The vandykes are sometimes filled in with black style. Cord is often intermixed, and this adds a great deal to the intricacies of the pattern. There is quite a new range of trimmings also in the form of gimps, which resemble the imitations of Spanish and Italian lace amateurs worked some years ago with broad braid, the edge outlined with silk cord, and the intervening filled in with stitches. It is extremely rich and handsome looking, and is a vast improvement to a dress. Whether in guipure or braid the character is the same long or short, the points are united at the base only. The same class of trimmings and rich guipures are made for the first time in pure white fast cream silk, and are very pretty they are. The black braid trimmings can be had in either silk or wool, and in navy or myrtle, navy blue being the tone that is more in demand than all the rest put together.

Child's Blouse Dress.

In the illustration is shown a simple and at the same time attractive blouse, which mothers will find to be a very convenient garment for children at play. It is inexpensively made of Holland gingham or flannel, as may be required.

CHILD'S BLOUSE.

As the cut gives both a back and front view of the blouse further description is rendered unnecessary.

Fashion Notes.

A new mahogany shade is introduced for autumn under the name of "Le Buffalo Bill."

Some of the new silks are brought out in odd lengths for the fronts of dresses.

Slippers are more worn than boots for evening, though women to whom slippers are not becoming wear boots of kid or satin to match the gown.

PLAINFIELD EVENING NEWS,
PUBLISHED EVERY AFTERNOON, EXCEPTING SUNDAY, AT THE NEWS BUILDING, NO. 21 SOMERSET STREET.

E. W. MORRISON, EDITOR AND PROPRIETOR.

THE NEWS IS DELIVERED BY CARRIERS TO ALL PARTS OF THE CITY AT TEN CENTS A WEEK, OR, IF PAID IN ADVANCE, AT $5.00 PER YEAR.

SUBSCRIBERS LEAVING TOWN CAN HAVE THE NEWS MAILED TO THEM EACH DAY WITHOUT EXTRA CHARGE.

FEAR TO DO BASE, UNWORTHY THINGS, IS VALOUR;
IF THEY BE DONE TO US, TO SUFFER THEM IS VALOUR, TOO. —Ben Fonson.

Republican State Convention.

The Republican voters of the State of New Jersey are requested to elect delegates to a State Convention to be held at Taylor's Opera House, in the city of Trenton, on Tuesday, September 17th, 1889, at 12 o'clock, noon, to nominate a candidate for governor, to be supported at the ensuing election.

The basis of representation under this call will be one delegate for each two hundred Republican votes cast at the last election for governor in this State, and one delegate for each fraction thereof exceeding one hundred votes; provided, that each township or ward shall be entitled to at least one delegate.

Townships or wards created since the last election for governor shall be entitled to due representation, but the number of delegates from the county shall not be thereby increased. In such cases the county committee will make the appointment to existing township and ward.

By order of the Republican State Executive Committee.

GARRET A. HOBART, Chairman.
JOHN Y. FOSTER, Secretary.

JOTTINGS.

—Republican primaries to-night.

—Days of 1889 past, 256: days to come, 109.

—North Plainfield Republican primaries to-morrow night.

—If you value your vote attend the primaries to-night.

—The stormy weather interferes with outside building arrangements.

—Doane & Van Arsdale say they are selling rubbers of all kinds at reasonable prices.

—The Latimer will come up before Judge McCormick at Elizabeth next week.

—The subscription list for Mr. A. Venino's chamber music concerts is now at Reynold's drug store.

—A reunion of the Marsh family will be held at the North Baptist Church, Newark Oct. 2 and 3, at 10 a. m.

—The Reform Club excursion to Mauch Chunk, Glen Onoko and the Switchback has been postponed until October 9th.

—The business meeting of the Reform Club which was to have been held last evening, was deferred on account of the weather.

—Corn is unusually green at this stage of the season, and farmers hope for a long spell of warm weather in which it may ripen properly.

—In his advertisement in another column Mr. I. H. Boehm announces that his Fall and Winter millinery opening will occur on Sept. 18th and 19th.

—A socialist is to be given at the Methodist church this evening. Rev. Mr. Mitchell, the pastor, who has been absent all Summer in Europe will be present.

—The members of the Oriental Social Club of this city went to Dunellen last evening and partook of a banquet at Muir's Park Hotel, after which they spent the remainder of the evening in dancing. Prof. O'Reilly furnished the music for the occasion.

—Thomas Clacy, the employee of A. M. Griffen who recently had his left hand amputated as the result of an accident while putting up a furnace, will soon have an artificial hand of great ingenuity which will prove a very valuable substitute for the natural member.

—Everybody knows Mr. Benton. Everybody says he is a good man to do business with, and that he will make trade lively by the low cash price system he has introduced in the "Cash City Market" corner of Park avenue and Second street, which he recently purchased, and elsewhere advertises, wanting patronage, which he will make profitable to the patron.

—Messrs. Rice & Co., who bought Shotwell's grocery, corner of Duer and Emily streets, less than two years ago, say that they have expended some $40,000 in this vicinity in one way and another during this brief interval for the benefit of the locality as well as themselves. They give employment to some nineteen persons, and have nearly doubled their business by their energy and skill in pleasing their patrons. Their advertisement in another column tells their story.

—And now will commence a series of political exhibitions at the State and county fairs. Leon Abbett will deal with the argument that he thinks will take with the farmers, and he will be at every fair and make a political speech, if he is allowed to do it. If the farmers swallow all he says, particularly on the matter of railroads, they are much more gullible than they have ever been before. But Mr. Abbett will not, it is safe to say, tell them anything about temperance.—Elizabeth Journal.

Fire Department Matters.

The members of Plainfield Engine Company No. 2, held a meeting in the company's parlor last evening. After the routine business had been transacted, a communication from the Bayonne Fire Department, inviting the "boys" of No. 2, together with their Spartans, to participate in the department annual parade, to be held in Bayonne city on October 31. After considerable discussion it was decided not to accept the invitation as the funds of the company were not in condition to stand any unwarranted expense.

The meeting of Anoskeag Council, Order of American Firemen, called for last evening, was postponed for want of a quorum.

—Don't let the storm interfere with your attendance at the primaries to-night.

PERSONALS.

—Policeman Lynch is confined to his home with pleurisy.

—Corporation Counsel Craig A. Marsh is home again from his western trip.

Miss Marion Randolph and Miss Clara Burt, on this city have resumed their studies at Wellesley college.

Walter Bird, of West Front street, is visiting his home at Clinton. He is recovering from a severe spell of sickness.

Mrs. Asa. R. Dills, wife of the pastor of the Park avenue Baptist church, is slowly recovering from her recent serious illness.

Theodore E. Stiles, of 223 Grove street, is the happy father of a bouncing baby boy, born Sunday night. Mother and child are doing well.

In the forthcoming book by Mark Twain, the title of which has not yet been announced, Mr. George W. Morrison, eldest son of the proprietor of THE NEWS, has been selected to supply the illustrating work. Mr. Morrison is a young Yankee who is transported back a century, with his advanced ideas, and the fun comes in where the Yankee's and those of that age are brought together. All the illustrations of the leading character are from Mr. Morrison's pencil. Mr. Morrison, as the advance sheets the book will be the most laughable produced by that prince of humorists. Mr. Morrison is at present in New York doing the finest class of photo-engraving for Harper's, Frank Leslie's and Judge, to increase his reputation prior to his coming back of THE NEWS photo-engraving department.

Our readers may remember the remarkable phenomenon of two years ago, whereby the accomplished young authoress, Miss Lillian Paul, was photographed on a Japanese placque in her home on Fourth street, one Sunday evening by a flash of lightning, during a thunder storm. Almost immediately thereafter Miss Paul's heart beats as high as 150 per minute, and the number has with much difficulty been kept down to 105. Her parents attribute her extreme nervous condition as thus indicated, as due to the shock from the lightning flash. The attending physician has ordered his patient to go to Orange, to be nearer the office in Newark, of Mr. Paul, who is the State agent of the North western Life Insurance Company. They will take away with them the placque, containing the remarkable image of their daughter, the case being probably the only one on record. The image remains as when first taken, August, 1887.

One of the new residents of Plainfield is Gen. Jas. S. Negley, formerly of Pittsburg, Pa., Gen. Negley made a national reputation as a soldier in the war, and served in Congress six terms, twelve years in all, in Congress. Before the Rebellion he was an officer in the U. S. Army and served in the Mexican war. A few months ago he was on a visit to Plainfield on the invitation of his friend Gen. H. B. Edwards, also a new comer, who for some two years ago purchased the John I. Holly farm on Park avenue. Gen. Negley became so captivated with Plainfield that he decided to make it his home, if his family should be pleased with the place as he was. His wife and three daughters made a visit as they were equally pleased with the Queen City of New Jersey. He purchased the residence at the southwest corner of Seventh street and Plainfield avenue, owned by Mr. W. Rockhill Potts, and has ix proved it until it now ranks among Plainfield's most beautiful homes. The family moved into it last week, and Gen. Negley was immediately called away to Europe on business connected with the Mexican Pacific Railway, of which he is president. He is also president of the Mexican Trust and Improvement Company. Gen. Negley received a telegram while in Europe, which the telegram he had sent ahead did not reach its destination on account of the storm, and when he arrived he was somewhat non-plussed as to the whereabouts of his home, not having remained long enough in Plainfield before his departure abroad to become acquainted with its location. He eventually reached home and aroused his family, who were most agreeably surprised. The General considers Plainfield about the most beautiful spot on the face of the earth, and he has seen much of it in all its climes, being an extensive traveler. He is very fond of flowers, and has at home some of the rarest plants to be found anywhere. He is one of the managers of the National Soldiers' Home, and one of the Commissioners who last year selected a site for a soldiers' home in Southern California, where a town has since been built which in his honor has been named Negley, an indication of how well thought of he is by the Californians. We welcome the distinguished gentleman, and feel sure that he will find Plainfield people as pleasing as the city.

HELD FOR THE GRAND JURY.

Harry Forrester Pleaded Guilty and is Held under $900 Bail.

Harry Forrester, the prisoner arrested by Chief of Police Carey Wednesday evening for breaking and entering Mrs. Mary Olsen's house on East Second street, recently, and stealing goods valued at $40, was arraigned before Justice of the Peace Bodyne, yesterday afternoon. He pleaded guilty and the Justice held him in the sum of $900 to await the action of the grand jury. Previous to his arraignment he made a clean breast of the whole affair to Chief Carey.

Forrester was unable to procure the required bail and Chief Carey this afternoon took him to Elizabeth and locked him up in the county jail.

Yesterday's Suicide.

No direct cause has yet been discovered for the suicide of Mr. George W. Townley, who yesterday shot himself in a barn on Grandview avenue, North Plainfield. It is a mystery to a number of persons as to how he could successfully handle the gun to commit the awful act. County Physician VanWagoner, of Somerville, gives it as his opinion that the deceased placed the gun against his left side and pulled the trigger with a stick, causing the cap to explode. The wound is an ugly one. It is just below the heart.

The funeral services will take place from his late residence Sunday afternoon at two o'clock. It is expected that the Odd Fellows and the Grand Army will attend in a body.

A RUNAWAY LUNATIC.

IS HE IN PLAINFIELD?

The Horse and Buggy He Is Supposed to Have Stolen Found Here.

Mr. C. McCollom keeps a livery stable at Morristown. Wednesday afternoon a physician hired of him a horse and buggy to make professional visits, and took his niece, a little girl, with him. While waiting in the buggy for the doctor at the home of a patient, it became restless, the niece got afraid to remain in the buggy, because of a strange man passing near, got out and went into the house, and when she came out with the doctor the horse and buggy had disappeared.

The doctor reported the loss to the owner, who immediately sent telegrams in all directions.

A lunatic escaped from the Morris Plains Asylum Wednesday, and it was surmised that he had taken the "rig".

Some time during Wednesday night or before daylight the turnout arrived in North Plainfield from over the mountains. It was left in Hudson's lane, in an unfrequented spot. This lane extends northerly from Somerset street toward the mountain.

The horse, a fine animal about six years old, was left standing in the lane all day yesterday, in the drenching rain. A colored man who resides in the neighborhood, notified the borough police several times during the day, appealing to them to remove the poor animal, but no one felt that they had any right to do so.

Last evening constable Bauerschke had the animal removed to the stable of Mr. Samuel Moore. A girl's slipper found in the buggy excited suspicion of foul play, before the facts became known. It is thought probably that the girl had been taken into the lonely lane and murdered, and that her murderer had left the horse and buggy and escaped.

Chief Carey was interested in the matter, found the owner, who arrived from Morristown this morning, recovered his property, and paid the chief $50 reward for his trouble. The chief divided the reward with Constable Bauerschke.

The horse was very stiff in the joints from the exposure and will need some nursing. Meanwhile the police are on the lookout for the lunatic.

The following about the lunatic is from the Elizabeth Herald of yesterday:

John Shay, of Elizabeth, was sentenced to State prison in 1884 for burglary, but was afterwards declared insane and sent to the Morris Plains Asylum. He escaped yesterday and stole a horse and buggy belonging to James McCollum.

BITS OF BASE-BALL NEWS.

Information of Interest to Lovers of the Game.

The famous Darrin battery will be here and try to down the Crescents to-morrow.

Look out to-morrow for the base-ball flag across the street in front of Vanderbeek & Co.'s. Andy says it is going to clear in time to put it out.

The following players will compose the Crescent base-ball nine to-morrow: Bowes, catcher; Gateley, pitcher; Herauld, first base; Hammill, second base; Lee, third base; Cashmus, short stop; McLaughlin, left field; Hayden, centre field; McMurray, right field.

The P. R. R. Deny the Report.

The Pennsylvania Railroad Company, through its chief engineer, William A. Brown, has sent a communication to the Elizabeth City Council, denying the rumors in circulation that the railroad officials intended to throw a force of men into the city some night and seize Pennsylvania avenue, for the right of way for a fourth track. The Street Commissioner and other officials had given credence to the report and had prepared to call upon the State for troops to resist the supposed steal, and also had the fire department in readiness to be called out as a moment's notice to dislodge the invaders with streams of water, while the police would grapple with and arrest them.

Somerset County Politics.

Indications point to a close and peppery Assembly contest in Somerset county this Fall. Many Democrats think that Klotz is not worthy of re-nomination for the Assembly, but to all probability he will get the same. The Republicans are unanimous in pushing Charles A. Reed, the Corporation Counsel of North Plainfield, into office. Reed is a son-in-law of ex-Congressman Clark, of Somerville, who will support him if Klotz is re-nominated. Reed is a rising young lawyer, being one of the firm of Clark & Reed. He has splendid abilities, a wide acquaintance and will give any Democrat yet named for office a good tug to beat him.—Newark Evening News.

The P. & W. Minstrels.

The following are among the artists who will compose the Primrose & West Minstrels, which appear at Music Hall on Monday evening:

George H. Primrose, W. H. West, Barney Fagan, Barber, the bicycle wonder, Hurley & VanAnken, Silsvin, Wood, Bud Primrose, Le Mar, Smith, Waldron, Hailey, Martin, Oakland, Moore, Dixon, Samuels, Natus, Wilson, Reynolds, Sharpleigh, Cronkhite and Carpenter.

The Third Ward Primary.

The Republicans of the Third Ward held their Primary meeting at the Park House last night.

Mr. Wm. Thompson was elected chairman; Mr. Ernest R. Ackerman acted as Secretary; and Messrs. John W. Murray, jr., and Howard C. Tracy were the inspectors. Mr. R. R. Pope was chosen as the delegate to the State Convention and Mr. John W. Murray, jr., as alternate.

—The report that the oyster crop had been injured by rain is unfortunate, but the fact remains that a large number of bivalves are now threatened with quick consumption.—Ex.

Enterprise-Gazette's Comment.

The following is the comment of the Somerville Unionist Gazette on Saturday's ball game between the West Ends and Crescents:

On Saturday last the fourth game of the series with the Crescents of Plainfield, was played on the West Ends grounds. The attendance was large and the game a sharply played one. The Crescents had overcome their objections to hired players and had placed six new players on the field, and the seventh, Gateley, sat on the bench until the eighth inning, when he went into the box. The change of pitchers was a fortunate one for the home team, as in the tenth inning he hit Davenport with the ball, and gave Kelley a base on balls, both of whom scored on an error by Bowes. In their half of the tenth, after two men were out, the third man was hit by the ball. The umpire told him to take his base, but Bowes, who acted as captain for the team, would not allow him to go to his base, and thereupon called his men off the field; the game was thus declared forfeited to the Somerville Unionist Gazette's Comment. The following is the comment of the Somerville Unionist Gazette on Saturday's ball game between the West Ends and Crescents:

Comment on the above is unnecessary. The publications cast by the Plainfield Press upon Dr. C. B. Matthewson, who umpired the game, are very unjust to that gentleman. Admitting there were errors of judgment, the home club suffered more from them than the visitors, but no one who knows him at all will question his integrity. The worst exhibition of spite and hatred towards Harkins, surpassing, if possible, that of the writer for The Press, was shown by McMurray when he was hit by a pitched ball. He waited a moment until Harkins turned his back and then deliberately threw the bat at him. Fortunately he did not hit him. The expression on McMurray's face was that of one who had murder in his heart. For yielding to such passions many a man has been hung.

Death to the Buffalo Fly.

The following receipt for an ointment with which to treat cattle suffering from the attacks of the terrible "Buffalo Fly" is recommended as the most effective yet discovered. It is announced by Franklin Dye, Secretary of the State Board of Agriculture:

Melt five pounds of roll sulphur slowly over a fire in a large iron pot, and add two gallons of pine tar. Then remove from the fire and while cooling add five gallons of fish oil. A small portion of this mixture is to be applied at the base of the horns, on the dewlap, between the forebuilders, and on the other parts of the animal where flies congregate.—Bridgeton Pioneer.

Struck by the Cars.

Yesterday morning Peter Aarler, while coming to Elizabeth on a passenger train of the Central railroad, jumped from it when passing through Bayonne, and was so unfortunate as to be struck by the locomotive of a train coming from another direction.

He sustained quite a severe scalp wound, and was taken to Elizabeth by the same train which had struck him. He was admitted to the hospital, where he was doing well at noon. His residence is at 26 Port avenue, Elizabethport.

Telegraphic Uncertainty.

From New York comes word that many telegraphic messages sent to that city by instruments because the wires are down and the messages which are piled up on the operator's desk, so that the delivery is rendered it very difficult to get telegraphic communication with points along the coast. Messages sent to points outside New York in many instances have been delayed for several hours owing to broken connections. So far this city has been very lucky in this respect.

North Plainfield Primary.

The Republicans of the borough and township of North Plainfield are requested to meet in the Republican Headquarters, Spencer's Hall, Saturday evening, Sept. 14th, at 8 p. m., for the purpose of electing delegates to the county and State conventions.

By order of
EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE.

A Lamp Explosion.

At about 7:15 o'clock a kerosene lamp exploded in the basement of Charles McQuoid's house, on Central avenue, Westfield. An alarm of fire was sounded and the fire department turned out, but when they arrived at the scene the flames had been extinguished. Excitement ran high for a few minutes.

A Wreck at Westfield.

A freight car ran off the track at Westfield yesterday afternoon at about one o'clock. The car ran off the track at the switch and tore up the track for a distance of about twenty-five feet. The wrecking train was sent for. Travel was somewhat delayed.

—The Central Railroad Company announces that on the occasion of the Republican Convention at Trenton next Tuesday, excursion tickets will be sold from this city Sept. 16th and 17th, valid for return trip until Sept. 18th inclusive, at a rate of two cents per mile.

—Don't fail to attend the Republican primaries to-night.

NEW JERSEY NUGGETS.

Live News Notes from Various Parts of the State.

The Elizabeth Board of Education, after a long session Wednesday night, refused, by a vote of nine to six, to appoint a permanent superintendent of public schools at a salary of $6,500.

Three Italians arrested on suspicion of having been concerned in the murder of Avidico, the Italian bootblack, in Harrison, N. J., was taken to Jersey City by the Hudson county authorities to the Newark police. Joseph Sperelo, one of the men, who lives at No. 115 Canal street, identifies a man who accompanied Avidico.

The Republican primaries for the selection of delegates to the State Convention will be held to-night in the various wards of Elizabeth. The delegation from Union county will probably be made up of the names of ex-Congressman John F. Shea, jr., and ex-Congressman Amos Clark, jr., as candidates for the Gubernatorial nomination.

A train on the Newark and New York branch of the Central Railroad of New Jersey struck two men on the Ashbridge street bridge of the road in Newark at 9:30 p. m. yesterday. James Dougherty, one of the men, was instantly killed, and his companion, Frank McAlary, so badly injured that he died on the way to the hospital. Dougherty lived on No. 91 Chambers street, New York, and McAlary at No. 238 Ferry street, Newark. They were both in the employ of the railroad company. Dougherty leaves a wife, [redacted] now threatened with quick consumption.—Ex.

Conventions Comments.

The proceedings at the Democratic State Convention Tuesday seem to have been as same as a discussion among deaf mutes. Well harmony is a first rate thing to have in the house and the Democracy has never been burdened with surplus of it.

There isn't a word about local option or high license in the platform adopted by the Democratic convention which nominated Leon Abbett for Governor. This omission may be considered wise by some, but by many others it will be called cowardice. Even the burning question of ballot reform is dismissed with four or five lines. The platform endorses the administration of Gov. Green, condemns trusts, favors equal taxation and indulges in other platitudes about the employment of children, the dignity of labor and the limiting of taxation for municipal purposes, but is notably silent on the important subject of local option and high license. The Republicans will not fail to remind voters of this omission.—New Brunswick House News.

The platform which Leon Abbett stands on is the most cowardly ever framed by a party in this State This is peculiary a time when the liquor issue is a State issue, and yet it does not dare to say one word upon that momentous question. It does not dare even to commend the Raines bill, which the Prohibitionists aver is a Temperance measure. It is afraid to advocate, it is afraid to denounce.—Local Option. The people understand the situation, however, and expected nothing else.—Unionist Gazette.

Martinsville Briefs.

Mrs. Brady, of Brooklyn, visited her mother, Mrs. McCord, last week.

Mrs. L. C. Waldron and daughter Josie have been spending a week at Long Branch.

The clanging of the school-house bell Tuesday morning, Sept. 3d, announced to the small urchins that trouble was brewing, with Mr. Lance as master of difficulties.

The repairs to the Mt. Horeb church, which was struck by lightning some time ago, are completed. Damages to the amount of $335 were allowed by the insurance company.

Wm. H. Hunt, age 40, son of Mrs. Emma Hunt, of New York, died of cancer of the stomach at the residence of John P. Reynolds, near this place, Sept. 1st. Mr. Hunt was an unmarried man and had been preparing for the Episcopal ministry. He had confined himself so closely to his studies that his health failed and a month ago he came out to Mr. Reynolday to recuperate. His funeral was held from the residence in this place, New York, and his remains were buried in Woodlawn Cemetery. Mr. Reynolds has been peculiarly afflicted within the last few years, having lost his mother-in-law August, 1887, his wife August, 1888, his son, August, 1889, and now his cousin, Mr. Hunt.

The jail in which John L. Sullivan was imprisoned in Mississippi will hereafter be the Mecca of tourists. It will be as great a relic as the house in which Gen. Grant was born. Sacred will be its rusty padlock and iron bars.

The huge lines which the metropolitan journal displays in its columns are now called very appropriately a "scare head." In many instances they might also be called a scarecrow, from the fact that there is nothing in them, or under them.

Mr. Henry Watterson says a rule strictly enjoined on all the attaches of The Courier-Journal is never to flirt with a fool or fight with a cripple, and it is a rule by which the editor-in-chief regulates his own conduct. Fortunately for the gallant Louisville editor there are a great many ladies who are not fools.

Rev. Washington Gladden might have known he could not talk down Layman Gunton in the great debate on trusts in the Chautauqua assembly. Gunton was a journeyman barber before he became an orator. In fact, that is said to be how he learned to be an orator. The barber who cannot outtalk even such a preacher as Rev. Mr. Gladden is a very poor specimen of the craft.

Crippled Confederates.

There is something that appeals with an infinite pathos to every humane person in the thought of the thousands of disabled and crippled Confederate soldiers who are left stranded wrecks upon the shores of the new south. For them there are no soldiers' homes and no pensions, unless their own states provide them. Undoubtedly private subscription north and south would aid largely in establishing soldiers' homes for Confederate veterans. But it has been suggested that individual states can do easily what no other agency can in the passing of state laws giving pensions to crippled soldiers who wore the gray uniform. Prosperity has returned to the south in greater measure than it has before this year. Wealth is pouring into it and new life is regenerating it. An excellent thing in the midst of this new found prosperity would be to provide for the scarred veterans who have no hope and no future in this world.

The Summer Young Man.

This summer, at one of the most popular seaside resorts on the Atlantic coast, the dancing hall was full of gay couples one evening spinning around to the rhythm of a Strauss waltz. A philosopher who was curious to know the number of men present counted and found only one small, thin creature in masculine habiliments among all the throng. The rest were girls, women and children. Even the fiddlers were boys and dodged out of it when possible, especially in hot weather. But this would not sufficiently account for the absence of young men altogether from summer watering places.

In truth, the disappearance of the summer young man has become a serious and perplexing question. Girls, sweet, pretty lassies, too, bless them! pack their trunks with enough handsome clothes to wear a new gown every day. They go to the summer resorts, wear their pink and blue and canary colored robes, and wait for the waltz and dances, the giggling flirtations and the deeper love affairs that have always been considered the due of the summer girl.

But the summer young man does not appear. The girl waits with the dull disappointment of one who looks daily for the letter that never comes. At the end of the season she packs up her pretty gowns and goes home declaring she has "not had a bit good time."

One reason alleged for the disappearance of eligible young men from the watering place is that they can no longer afford to go. It is said the summer hotel rates are so exorbitant that nobody but the millionaire's son can afford them, counting in the ice cream for the summer girl. The rest must stay at home and attend to business. But this again does not sufficiently account for it. There never before was so much wealth in the country as there is at present, and naturally the young man has his share of it.

The melancholy truth must be told that the young man no longer cares for watering places. He is prefer to gather a number of pleasant companions of his own sex and go off for a stag party. Long bicycle tours, jolly fishing and hunting parties, camping out for weeks in the woods, pedestrian trips through the mountains, rough flannel garb, with no suggestion of an evening dress in his gripsack—this is what becomes of the summer young man. Freedom, outdoor air and the companionship of merry good fellows of his own sex have infinitely more delight for him than dawdling after girls at the seaside. To his mind it is more manly and manly. It is a phase of society to which the summer girl must make up her mind.

TWENTY-TWO DROWNED.

Old Ocean Claimed Them for His Own.

SUICIDE OF THE PARKER'S CREW.

One After Another of the Despairing Sailors Sought Death in the Sea—Trains Reach Atlantic City—More Ships Ashore at Lewes.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 13.—The Inquirer's special from Lewes, Del., says: It is known that up to the present time there are twenty-two deaths as a result of the devastating storm. The sad intelligence has just come that Capt. Tracy and his crew of six men perished. The history of the two nights aboard the Morse and Parker is one of suffering and despair. The Red Star tug Argus sighted the vessels Tuesday night, and noted that the men on both were in urgent need of help. So tumultuous were the waves that the Argus was unable to approach either the Barker or the Morse, and the captain concluded that the best thing to do was to come to the life saving station and take off the crew. On its way the Argus saved the crew of the Maritime Exchange, and this taking some time, the boat did not reach the life saving station until late in the morning and when it did Capt. Clampett refused to allow any of his men to go out, as they were exhausted. Unfortunately the captain of the Argus made no suggestion of organizing a volunteer crew, and the stupidity of the life saving people in not attempting to organize a volunteer relief corps is greatly denounced here. Had they done so, it is believed that every man aboard the Parker would have been saved.

After the Parker Left the Morse.

After the tug left the Morse and Parker the condition of things soon became serious. The storm increased in volume, and late in the afternoon it seemed as if the boats would go to pieces. The men on both boats strapped themselves to the rigging and resigned themselves to their fate. All Wednesday afternoon and night and until noon Thursday they remained lashed to the rigging, with the storm howling and beating against them. The men on the Morse could plainly see their fellows on the Parker, but of course could do nothing for them. Those on the Parker took to the rigging several hours before the men on the Morse, and late at night it was evident by their cries that they were suffering terribly.

One After Another Leaped to Death.

Early in the morning nearly every man on both ships was almost dumb from exposure and stiff from suffering. Finally one of the crew of the Parker could stand it no longer, and tearing away the cords that bound him, threw himself into the water. In a few minutes another followed his example, then another and another, until the last man, the captain, was seen to throw himself overboard and disappear in the waves. Those on the Morse were stricken at the sight. The captain of the Morse kept his courage and frequently urged his men to keep up heart, as still land was in sight and some one would come from the shore and render aid. The first gleam of hope occurred when Capt. Henry Williamson's tug, owned by the Baltimore, of Baltimore, saw the flag of distress flying, and at once began making desperate efforts to reach the Morse, but it was soon evident that he was unable to do it.

Rescue of the Morse's Crew.

The sailors were almost exhausted, and just before the tug had hove in sight several of the men had made ready to throw themselves overboard. Just as they were about to do so some one threw a line with a buoy on the end of it to the schooner, and the men jumped into the water, caught the rope and were pulled on board the tug.

The Death List Swelled to Twenty-two.

The barges Casilda, St. Cloud, Tonawanda and Wallace from Philadelphia anchored near the Morse and Parker on Monday. The four barges were in hailing distance and rested in security until Tuesday afternoon at 4 o'clock, when the Casilda was compelled to put out a small flag, having lost a rudder. The crew were saved.

The St. Cloud was still floating when the crew of the Casilda left, and the rescued crew report that they tried to ascertain whether the men are drowned, they were unable to see a single man on the St. Cloud. Late in the afternoon the men from the Tonawanda were taken aboard. They also report that the men on both boats were drowned. Should this be true it will make the total loss of life up to this date twenty-two.

Wreck Strewn Coast.

A singular incident occurred in connection with the Bryan. Before her loss was known positively a package of letters was washed on the deck of the Life Saving Service Yard, which had been beached over twenty miles away from where the Bryan foundered. The letters were addressed to the captain of the Bryan, Jr., and to Mr. Bayley, in a friend. They were bound together by a piece of blue ribbon, and were evidently cherished by the officer, who is now at the bottom of Delaware bay. How letters came such a long distance and in such perfect condition is one of the many singular things of the great storm.

There is great concern here over the missing police force of Lewes. They are due to see on Monday morning and on that day spoke a vessel. Since then no tidings of her have been received, and it is feared that she is lost. She had a crew of eight men and four well known pilots.

ATLANTIC CITY RESCUED.

The First Train Crosses the Meadows. The Life Will Have to be Saved.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Sept. 13.—The storm has at last abated after a continuance of five days and people here rest easily. Glassy, isolated from the world, a train just arrived here from Philadelphia welcomed at 11:30 a. m. It brought meats and produce as well as passengers, and the provender was cooked. Exaggerated accounts have been published about the conditions here which are not sustained by circumstances. There was no famine and no loss of life. Now that everything is calm once more, a careful survey of the situation manifests a loss of about $150,000, principally to property along the ocean front, although on the northwestern side of the city householders and boatmen sustained loss to personal property by flood and damage to yachts and the small sailing craft.

The Reading and the West Jersey tracks over the meadows are badly wrecked, and it is not expected that they will be ready for business before Sunday or Monday. The turnpike bridge between Atlantic City and Mainland over Thoroughfare is down, and goods and supplies must be sent by rail. The schooner Palestine, hailing from New York and bound for Chincoteague, went ashore on Middle inlet. Ocean City, the life saving crew at the latter place went to her aid, and she will be floated off at high tide.

A Sea Isle City.

From Sea Isle City it is learned that the sea wall is all gone and the pleasure railroad track is washed out. The main line of the West Jersey road between Sea Isle and the drawbridge is entirely destroyed. Richard Rowland, Jr., Hotel and Bankruptcy houses, and the Surf hotel are all destroyed. The Excursion house is almost gone. The railroad to Avalon is washed out, and portions of the railroad over Townsend inlet are swept away.

The Loss at Cape May.

CAPE MAY, N. J., Sept. 13.—The storm has abated, and tidewaiters are running off the meadows through trenches where the heavy thrown and piled. Not for thirty years has a storm of such magnitude visited these shores. The damage in and about Cape May to improved property has been comparatively small. The steamboat landing which was swept away on the Delaware to Sewell's Point, it is estimated to be $150,000. On unimproved land the beach has suffered severely from the invasion of the sea. Janice V. Clark and wife, reported lost, have turned up. They took refuge when the yacht May was beached in Sewell's Point house.

Anxious About the Atlanta.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 13.—No information has been received at the navy department from the United States steamer Atlanta, and much uneasiness is expressed as to her safety. The Atlanta left New York for Newport on Monday, and should have arrived there on Wednesday morning at the latest. When last seen by a passing schooner the Atlanta was plunging badly, and the schooner's crew reported that she would show much buoyancy. The Atlanta, however, is regarded at the navy department as a first class sea boat. Her non-arrival is, therefore, inexplicable.

More Ships Ashore at Lewes.

LEWES, Del., Sept. 13.—The schooner Sarah C. Hall, of Bridgeton, N. J., is ashore and abandoned near Rehoboth life saving station. She is in good condition. The bark Doris Eckhoff is anchored safely in Lewes harbor. Edwards & Co. and J. K. Manning, Philadelphia for Washington, and Schooner Rebecca M. Smith, Philadelphia for Portland, are at the breakwater and all right.

THE UNFORTUNATE'S FRIEND.

Mrs. Ellen Gifford Leaves Thousands of Dollars to Various Institutions.

NEW HAVEN, Sept. 13.—The will of Mrs. Ellen M. Gifford, widow of the late Hon. Arthur N. Gifford, of New York, who died last week after giving legacies of $150,000 to her relatives and those of her husband, and $100,000 to Connecticut Yale College, the rest of her property to charitable institutions. The New Haven hospital gets $50,000, with power to the executors to increase it to $40,000; the New Haven dispensary, $5,000; the New York Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, $50,000; the Massachusetts society for the same object, $25,000, and $30,000 for the support of a home for stray animals at Boston; the New York Society for the Relief of Crippled and Ruptured, $25,000; the Connecticut Prison association, $5,000; the New Haven Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, $5,000; the Massachusetts General hospital, $10,000; the *Home for the Friendless, $5,000; the Massa*chusetts Society for Aiding Discharged Convicts, $3,000; Society for Aiding Poor, Sick and Incurables, $20,000; New York Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children, $5,000; the New York Society for Relief of the Destitute Blind, $5,000; the New York Colored Home and Hospital, $5,000; the Washington Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, $5,000; the New Hampshire society for the same object, $5,000, and the Massachusetts Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children, $5,000.

The Situation at Johns Hopkins.

BALTIMORE, Sept. 13.—President Gilman, of the Johns Hopkins university, issues an official reply to the statements contained in northern papers relative to the financial condition of this university. He says the salaries of neither the president nor of the professors have been reduced. The accumulated income of investments, outside of the Baltimore and Ohio railroad stock (which amounted last year to $40,000), is available. Besides this a number of generous persons have subscribed $108,000, to be expended as an emergency fund during the next year. By the bequest of John W. McCoy the university is also the residuary legatee of his estate. The amount to be received from this source will be perhaps $100,000.

Uncle Sam's Marksmen.

FORT NIAGARA, N. Y., Sept. 13.—The following are twelve highest scores for the first day of the department shooting: at 200, 300, 500 and 600 yards: Private Thomas Cunningham, 182; Corp. Martin Hamburg, 170; Corp. Truman Cook, 169; Corp. Kelly, 169; Sergt. Corp. D. O'Donnell, 167; Sergt. J. A. Richardson, 166; Lieut. Charles L. Potter, 166; Sergt. S. S. Stanley, 165; Capt. Charles T. Willcox, 165; Sergt. David R. Langley, 164; Sergt. William Greenhalgh, 164; Sergt. Walter Pocock, 161. Four desertions from Company D, Twenty-third regiment, have occurred.

Funeral of S. S. Cox.

NEW YORK, Sept. 13.—The funeral of the late S. S. Cox was held at 10 a. m. from the First Presbyterian church, corner of Fifth avenue and West Twelfth street. The impressive services were conducted by the blind chaplain of the house of representatives assisted by Rev. T. DeWitt Talmage and Rev. Dr. Dillenger. Among those were John D. O'Connor, Mr. Cox's private secretary; M. H. Whalin, John Henry McCarthy, W. J. Hirschfeldt, J. J. Norris, J. H. Beeling, N. J. Kearney and Henry Bischoff, Jr.

Hollender and Terhune Removed.

NEW YORK, Sept. 13.—Collector Erhardt has decided to remove Clerk Hollender and Terhune, owing to the charges that they and Clerk Davis revealed to applicants for civil service examination the questions that would be asked. Davis will not be removed. Chairman Roosevelt, of the civil service commission, wanted all three removed, but his colleagues, Messrs Lyman and Thompson, favored the removal of Hollender and Terhune only.

National Conference of Charities.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 13.—Bishop Gillespie called the session of the National conference of charities and correction to order, and after prayer by Rev. Dr. Wendt, H. H. Wines, of Illinois, submitted the report of the committee on reports of states. The summary of the condition of charities and correction in the various states followed to with great interest. Among the speakers were Dr. A. G. Byers, of Ohio; H. H. Hart, of Minnesota, and Alex Johnson, of Indiana.

The Franklin Life Buoy Tested.

PORTSMOUTH, N. H., Sept. 13.—The new Franklin life buoy, designed by Naval Constructor Hobbs, was tested this morning at the navy yard. The buoy displayed a light on being thrown into the water, thus furnishing a guide both for the person who may be overboard and for his rescuers.

A Counterfeiter Arrested.

PHOTOGRAPHIC, Sept. 13.—Adolphe Peter Smith, formerly a counterfeiter in Cincinnati, was arrested here for passing counterfeit bills. Several Italians and others had been swindled.

TANNER'S RESIGNATION.

It Has Been Both Tendered and Accepted.

CORRESPONDENCE IN THE CASE.

The Commissioner's Letter and President Harrison's Reply—An official Statement of the Beginning and End of the Trouble.

Mr. Bussey's Retirement Predicted.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 13.—James Tanner, commissioner of pensions, has resigned. The following correspondences between himself and the president has been made public by the latter:

The Letters in the Case.

DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR, }
COMMISSIONER OF PENSIONS, }
WASHINGTON, D. C., Sept. 12. }

TO THE PRESIDENT: The unfortunate difference that exist between the secretary of the interior and myself as to the policy to be pursued in the administration of the pension bureau have reached a stage which threatens to embarrass you to an extent which I feel I should not call upon you to suffer, and as the investigation into the affairs of *the bureau has been completed, and I am as*sured, both by yourself and by the secretary of the interior, that no reduction on my integrity as an individual or as an official, I herewith place my resignation in your hands, to take effect at your pleasure, to the end that you may be relieved of any further embarrassment in the matter. Respectfully yours, JAMES TANNER, Commissioner.

EXECUTIVE MANSION,
WASHINGTON, Sept. 12, 1889.

Hon. James Tanner, Commissioner of Pensions:

DEAR SIR—Your letter tendering your resignation of the office of commissioner of pensions has been received, and your resignation is accepted, to take effect on the appointment and qualification of your successor. I do not think it necessary, in this correspondence, to discuss the causes which have led to the present attitude of affairs. I have personally and officially kindly and fully advised of my views upon most of these matters.

It gives me pleasure to add that, so far as I am advised, your honesty has not at any time been called in question, and I beg to renew the expression of my personal good will. Very truly yours,
BENJ. HARRISON.

A History of the Trouble.

The following statement of the beginning and end of the Tanner difficulty is officially thoroughly correct in every respect: Before his departure from Washington for his vacation trip Secretary Noble on several occasions spoke to the president about the course of Commissioner Tanner and his clerks in the matter of reuniting pensioners, and also in relation to unguarded remarks which the commissioner had made from time to time. The president was inclined to defend Tanner, and he did so several times. Recently Mr. Tanner made speeches at Elmira, Chautauqua and Milwaukee which called forth strong protests from prominent Republicans. Directly after the Milwaukee incident Secretary Noble returned to the city determined to bring the Tanner matter to a climax. He expressed his views to the *Hon. Benjamin Harrison, president, and in*timated that he would retire from the interior department if Tanner was continued in office much longer.

Senator Hiscock's Interference.

Tuesday Senator Hiscock, of New York, who had been talking with the president about the matter and who had learned from him that it was likely to come to a climax, went to Commissioner Tanner without authority from the president, however, and told the commissioner he had better resign his office, as, if he did not, he would be removed. When Mr. Tanner visited the White House later he learned that the president had not asked for his resignation and that Senator Hiscock had been acting on his own responsibility. Wednesday evening about 9 o'clock Daniel Ransdell, marshal of the District of Columbia, and a particular friend of the president, went to Mr. Tanner's house and in his private capacity spoke explained to the commissioner, suggested that Mr. Tanner would better relieve the president of the difficulty in which he found himself placed by resigning. He told the commissioner that the president had been his consistent friend, and that he had shown it when he gave him his office to which he was appointed, and afterward when he defended his course. The commissioner said he appreciated this fact, but for a time he was quite firm in his determination to force the president to choose between removing him and leaving him in office.

He Concluded to Resign.

Shortly before midnight, however, he gave in and agreed to write his resignation and placed it then and there in the hands of Mr. Ransdell. Commissioner Tanner may have some other reason for his action, but the administration. None had been offered him at 4 p. m. The tone of the president's letter of acceptance is generally considered not at all cordial, and it is generally interpreted as unfavorable to Mr. Tanner's chances of being appointed to another office. One of the theories about his removal is that he will be made recorder of deeds of the District of Columbia. The office pays $6,000 to $10,000 a year in fees. It was held by Fred Douglass under Arthur, and a colored man named Trotter now holds it.

Mr. Tanner Talks.

Mr. Tanner was reluctant to talk about his resignation. His disposition, however, appears to be not to speak any unpleasant, but to maintain cordial relations with the administration.

He said: "The president did not ask for my resignation, nor did he advise that I resign. He assured me, however, that the investigation into the affairs of the pension office had developed nothing that reflected upon the integrity of my official intercourse, and that if I remained in office Secretary Noble would resign. The dismemberment of a cabinet is a very serious thing, and I decided I would be useful to the president, not be removed. Chairman Roosevelt, of the civil service commission, wanted all three removed, but his colleagues, Messrs Lyman and Thompson, favored the removal of Hollender and Terhune only.

Tanner's Successor.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 13.—Maj. Poole, of Syracuse, and Maj. William Warner, of Kansas City, are both mentioned as Mr. Tanner's probable successors.

The College's 87th Year.

WILLIAMSTOWN, Mass., Sept. 12.—Williams college opened its 97th year with the largest attendance in its history. The total number of students is 512. Professor Bassett, late of Yale Theological seminary, begins his duties as Mark Hopkins professor of intellectual philosophy. Sept. 13. Charles Potter Flint, of '90, becomes assistant in chemistry. The Rev. Dr. Henry Hopkins, of Kansas City, delivers the call to the college pastorate.

BURKE WAS TO DIE.

Alleged Sensational Revelations Made by Detective George Williams.

WINNIPEG, Man., Sept. 13.—Detective George Williams, of Chicago, who is here, informed a reporter that he had discovered evidence of the greatest importance in connection with the Cronin murder. He has learned positively who gave the Winnipeg chief of police the information upon which he arrested Burke, and has also discovered that after Burke had been captured, and lodged in jail here Clan-na-Gael men were sent from Chicago to make efforts to assassinate the prisoner. It has leaked out that an attempt was made to kill the prisoner while in jail, the would be assassins making good their escape. This has been kept hushed up by the authorities, but Detective Williams makes no effort to conceal the fact from the lawyer who defended Burke. Williams claims that he has succeeded in learning the source from which they obtained funds to conduct the defense, and that several of the most prominent Chicago men will be called upon to make important explanations.

The Stains Were Human Blood.

CHICAGO, Sept. 13.—The Globe says: "Lawyers W. S. Forrest and J. M. Wing took a trip to La Porte, Ind., last night to interview Dr. Frohn, No. 876 Clybourne avenue, they met Dr. John R. Brandt, who has analyzed the blood stains on the walls of the Carlson cottage. The conference lasted for over two hours and toward the close became very animated. None of the principals could be seen, but Dr. Frohn stated to a reporter that he understood that the lawyers from Chicago were going to persuade Dr. Brandt to testify that the stains on the walls of the cottage were made by blood from a human being. If so could be learned from the stand they intend to change the professional opinion that the stains were those of human blood. The lawyers left the drug store very much disgusted at the failure of their mission to break down one of the strongest points in the prosecution's line of argument, and will undoubtedly endeavor to secure further testimony to rebut Dr. Brandt's analysis."

A Possible Juror in Sight.

CHICAGO, Sept. 13.—Thirty-four venire men were examined in the Cronin case, most of them were business men who had formed opinions or had conscientious scruples against the infliction of the death penalty. The defense used up eight and the state one of its peremptory challenges during the day. This is the most progress made in a single day since the trial began. Four jurors were held over night. Among those being Thomas Jerome Pearson, who has been passed repeatedly by both sides, and who now looks like a possible juror.

THE NEWS IN BRIEF.

Fresh Tips from the Wire Carefully Culled.

A scheme is announced for the construction of a ship canal between Edinburgh and Glasgow. The capital is placed at £7,000,000.

G. R. Pierpoint, a leading farmer of Ritchie county, W. Va., and nephew of the war governor of Virginia, fatally stabbed a son of Peter Wilson, a neighbor, about a girl with whom both were smitten.

William B. Macferran, of Philadelphia, the partner of Tax Receiver Clay in the conveyancing business at 59 North Sixth street in that city, has absconded with more than $2,000 of Mr. Clay's money.

The select council of the Ancient Order of Knights of Pythias Chatty, of York, Pa., has elected D. K. Bottiger, of Columbia, Pa., select commander; John J. Davis, of Pittsburg, corresponding secretary, and W. C. Brown, of Pittsburg, treasurer.

Hon. Nathan R. Weeks, of Plymouth, N. H., is dead, aged 64. He was prominent in New Hampshire political and business circles and a member of the legislature from 1879 to 1881.

John Cannon, of Suspension Bridge, N. Y., single, aged 22 years, shot and killed himself on the bluff near Lewiston. Cause, ill health and liquor.

They Fear It Is Another Cronin Case.

LONDON, Sept. 13.—The disappearance of Rev. Mr. Barfield, a Congregational minister from Walsall, continues to be a subject of much speculation. Mr. Barfield is said to have incurred the enmity of the Irish Nationalists by some utterances of his in a series of Tory political speeches in London. There are vague rumors of his having been lured to Ireland by a fictitious invitation to lecture there, but the police have not yet been able to verify this supposition. Indeed, it is hinted that the detectives are working on a vulgar and prosaic theory of their own that the dominie may have temporarily fallen from grace, and that his absence may thus be accounted for. Mr. Barfield has friends, however, fear that it is another Cronin case.

Caught Pneumonia at a Ball Game.

NEW YORK, Sept. 13.—Colonel Holcomb Molleson, a well known paper merchant of this city, died at his home in Brooklyn at 6:30 a. m. of pneumonia after a short illness. He was taken with a chill while at a ball and sat on the ground. On Sunday he felt badly and grew worse rapidly, until death came. Mr. Molleson was born in New Brunswick, N. J., about forty years ago, going to work for Cyrus W. Field as clerk. He started in business for himself in 1871. Mr. Molleson's father was a prominent lawyer in New Jersey. He was attorney general for New York for a number of years.

Balfour Defends the Prison Pens.

LONDON, Sept. 13.—Chief Secretary Balfour, replying to Mr. Gladstone's statement that the prison treatment of Mr. Conybeare showed an absence of right judgment and human feeling, denies that Mr. Conybeare was suffering from disease to an extent justifying his release. The treatment of Irish prisoners, says Mr. Balfour, is more lenient than that enjoyed by criminals in England. Even those convicted under the crimes act are more favored with relaxations of prison discipline than any other prisoners are.

Sheehan Sues The Albany Union.

BUFFALO, Sept. 13.—Hon. William F. Sheehan has brought suit in the supreme court of Erie county against the Albany Evening Union for libel, and places the damages at $50,000. The summons and complaint states that the defendant published an article on Aug. 27 headed "Sheehan the Traitor," which reflected upon the character of the plaintiff and with intent to destroy his good reputation.

The London Strike.

LONDON, Sept. 13.—The Mansion house committee announce that the feeling on both sides is becoming more conciliatory, and that only extraneous questions prevent an immediate ending of the strike. It is hoped that the causes of difference will be entirely removed and a satisfactory settlement reached soon.

The Phoenix Company's Condition.

PROVIDENCE, Sept. 13.—The report of the committee of creditors of the Phoenix Woolen company, whose mills are at East Greenwich, gives a personal liabilities of $235,000 and assets $468,916. An offer of twenty-five cents on the dollar is recommended by the committee.

The Assembly Ceiling Scandal.

ALBANY, Sept. 13.—Philip Buss and Charles Tiernan, capitol employes, who are on the grand jury, will not attend it at all until the ceiling case has been disposed of on account of newspaper criticism of their friendship for Andrews. Attorney General Tabor says that he thought there was a mistake made in following either Mr. Russ or Mr. Tiernan on the jury. He comprehended the statutes in the matter and knew Judge Notz's difficulties in the case, but he hoped the men would ask to be excused from serving. He wanted a thoroughly impartial and unassailable decision from the grand jury. Deputy Comptroller Westbrook and Commissioner Perry testified before the grand jury in the afternoon.

LACONIC.

The Gotham Office Boy and His Peculiarities Illustrated.

In one of the biggest law offices in this city there is employed a little pale faced boy whose bright eyes are forever on the alert to detect something. The manner says much what it is so that it violates some of the rules laid down by his employers or seems to him to be wrong, or in need of correction. His sentiment for wealth and power is unrepressed, and he will discover some slight fracture of the rules by a famous man and chide him as quickly as though he were the poorest client on the list of his employers. His little desk is near the entrance, and here he sits throughout the day with his pointed chin in his hands and his eyes fixed upon some bloody tale of bairbreadth escapes. Both his wits are always on edge, and the fall of the lightest footstep without causes him to prick up his ears and listen with every fiber of his body. When the person enters he asks:

"Who did you wish to see?"

"Mr. ——"

"What did you wish to see him about?"

"I will tell him."

"Very well."

Then the boy resumes his reading, and the visitor, after a puzzled glance at the row of little offices, says:

"Please tell Mr. —— that Mr. Smith is out here and would like to see him."

"What about?"

"Since your impudence, what's that to you?"

The boy returns wearily to his book and pays no further attention to anything outside of it until Mr. Smith weakens and says:

"Tell him I want to see him about the Hank matter."

Then the boy looks up and, says, with an air of renewed interest in life:

"Oh, but I can't 'cause Mr. —— isn't in. He has just stepped out."

"When will he be in?"

"Don't know."

"Will he be in again today?"

"Guess not."

"Do you know where he is?"

"Yessir."

"Where?"

"Europe."—New York Sun.

Fun in Signs.

As I was passing up E street yesterday afternoon with a hypercritical friend, he called attention to a pair of signs in the window of an eating house. One of them read: "Ladies' Restaurant," the other "Childs' Cafe." He said: "Now, why don't that fellow be a little grammatical and say 'Children's Cafe?'" That put me in mind of a somewhat similar blunder made a few years ago by an eminent member of the English Royal society, whose name I forget. Ernstus Wiman, the millionaire head clerk of R. G. Dun & Co., presented $50,000 to his native city of Toronto, Ont., for free swimming baths. The grateful burg labeled the baths in letters six feet long in honor of the donor. When the Royal society visited Canada a few years ago the afore mentioned but name forgotten member of it stated in some of his "impressions" published in an English journal as an evidence of a lack of culture among the Canucks that they spell "women's baths" "Wiman's baths." He gravely said he saw it.—Washington Post.

A Story of Oliver Hampton Smith.

Oliver Hampton Smith was elected senator from Indiana in 1836. When the election was over Smith, who was a good lawyer and had been in congress eight or ten years before, took a drove of hogs down to Cincinnati, going on foot all the way. On the way he arrived at a tavern, covered with mud, unwashed and unshaven for many days. The crowd surrounded him, eager for the news of the election. "Who's senator? Hendricks?" "No." "Noble?" "No." "Who, then?" "I am." There was a dead silence for a moment, and then one asked: "Who are you?" A man's speech, delivered with all the mud still clinging to his face and clothes, was necessary to convince them of his right to the title of senator in the congress of the United States.—San Francisco Argonaut.

A Good Guess.

Jinks (at a party)—You never met my wife, did you?

Blinks—Wife! I didn't know you were married. Is she in the room?

"Yes."

"Well, then, it must be that beautiful creature over there."

"By George! You hit it the first time. She's the most beautiful woman in the room, isn't she?"

"Yes; that's why I guessed she was your wife. You are, by long odds, the homeliest man in the room, and people always marry that way."—New York Weekly.

A Pleasant Shave.

Customer—What makes your hand jerk so with that razor?

Barber—Why, boss, I'm used to de fits.

"The fits?"

"Yes, boss; but don't be scart; it is ten minutes befo' dey come on. 'Sis you res' easy; dat's jis de symptom."—Light.

Hardup—I notice that European politics are in an unsettled condition.

Landlady—Did that idea occur to you when you were thinking of your board bill?—Chicago Liar.

ANNIVERSARY YEAR.

Some of the Celebrations They Have Lately Taken Place.

Verily this is a year of centennials. Not only have Americans generally celebrated the inauguration of the Federal government, and Montana, Canadians and South Americans celebrated the various events in their history, but towns and churches have commemorated anniversaries anywhere from 100 to 250 years from their foundation. In short, Americans of all races are powerfully reminded this year that their country is no longer in its youth. In Massachusetts alone three places have just celebrated the 250th anniversary of their settlement.

Of those the Sandwich celebration was, perhaps, as interesting as any, because its history is documentary and clear from the start. On the 31st of September the old town called together its scattered sons and daughters to commemorate the fact that the place was incorporated in 1639. But this was not the beginning, for the records tell that some time before that "ten men of Sengus set themselves down in Shawmet" to found homes for themselves and their children, and on the 3d of April, 1637, a grant was made to various parties of lands there, said grant recognizing the fact that there was a "location" there already. So we may say that Sandwich, as a settlement, dates back from 1637 at least, but the town as an organization was not erected prior to 1639. From that day to the present, through all the vicissitudes of French and Indian, Indian, Revolutionary, later British and civil wars, Sandwich has preserved the character of a thoroughly patriotic Massachusetts town. Its celebration on the 3d was therefore a truly enthusiastic and American affair.

In the same year, 1639, a grant to Antony Thacher, John Crowe and Thomas Howes laid the foundation of the present towns of Yarmouth and Dennis. No place in the state or nation, and few if any places in the world, can outrank Yarmouth, Mass., in richness of historic incident. Capt. John Smith visited the coast in 1614, Capt. Hunt kidnaped some of the natives in 1616, and later and laid the foundation for much trouble. Miles Standish was "frozen in" there in 1622, Giles Hopkins started a cattle farm there in 1626, and from that date even to the present the place has contributed much to the national wealth of character. The Thacher homestead, erected in 1680, is still standing; but Yarmouth generally is quite modern as one of the prettiest towns in Cape Cod. Bourne celebrated in connection with Sandwich, of which it was once a part. Sudbury and Wayland also celebrated together on the 4th.

The religious centennials, bi-centennials, quarter-millennials and other celebrations during September are very numerous. On the 8th the Congregational church of Stratford, Conn., celebrated its 250th anniversary, and on the 3d of October the town will repeat the commemoration, having been founded at the time the church was established and officially organized but a month later. On the same day a soldiers and sailors' monument will be dedicated.

But of all the celebrations of the month the one that attracted most attention was that of the noted "Log College of Neshaminy," west of the Delaware, in Bucks county, Pa. It was not only interesting in itself as the anniversary of an important event, but the occasion was heralded by the attendance of Elder Jonathan Hutchison, Elder John Wanamaker and Elder James A. Beaver, somewhat known as president, postmaster general and governor of Pennsylvania. All these are ruling elders in the Presbyterian denomination and all took some part in the celebration, as did many other eminent men.

The Presbyterians of Pennsylvania and New Jersey look to the "Log College" as the beginning of their branch of the church. It was built by William Tennent, Sr., in 1726, on what is still called the "Tennent farm," the building being a mere log hut but eighteen feet wide and twenty feet long. Yet the school

t up, there turned out many eminent men and formed a powerful center of Presby-

terianism. Whitfield was there in 1739, and preached in the open air to 5,000 people. The school there remained in active and influential operation till the establishment of Princeton college, New Jersey, and the work of William Tennent and his sons long remained a noted power in the church.

The Late S. A. Allibone.

Samuel Austin Allibone, whose death was recently chronicled, became known to the world of letters through his dictionary of authors, the full title of which was "A Critical Dictionary of English Literature and British and American Authors." He was well known in New York city through his connection with the Lenox library, which extended through quite a term of years, beginning in 1870. He was born in Philadelphia April 17, 1816, and his early life followed mercantile pursuits.

S. A. ALLIBONE.

His business, however, could not prevent him from following his literary bent, and he brought out the first volume of his dictionary in 1858, the second and third following in 1871. The last whole volume preceded the other work, ably published. He was a close student of Shakespeare. His knowledge of authors was something incomprehensible.

"Why, he knows everything about every book, and every edition, and every author, dead or living," exclaimed a lady to whom he had opened the fountains of his knowledge. Dr. Allibone's talk was ripe, rich and racy when interesting, and his conversation was totally regardless of the "tyranny of fashionable Donnelly."

THREE NOTORIOUS MEN.

BRIERLY, FRIEND OF MRS. MAYBRICK, "BLACK BART" AND "JOSH" MANN.

Briefly Is Broken Hearted, and "Black Bart" Beldhay Will Probably Have to Swing; Mann Is the Most Hopeful and Much the Lowest of the Lot.

Popular interest in America now centers on three curious fellows, two criminal, the third unfortunate at least, and all unhappy. Albert Brierly, the Liverpool merchant who gained a most unenviable notoriety by his intimacy with Mrs. Maybrick, the alleged murderess, has found it necessary to leave England, and landed a few days ago in Boston. The persistent reporter tackled him before he got off the ship and secured his version of the story. He's described as a fine looking gentleman, ruddy and stalwart, with a most pleasing address; and it is generally conceded that, though moral, he was not criminal. He expended a large part of his fortune in defense of the wretched woman, and his business was ruined by the notoriety; so therefore comes to America to begin life anew.

BRIERLY.

In his first interview with a journalist Mr. Brierly declared that he paid the costs of Mrs. Maybrick's defense, amounting to 5,500 pounds sterling, and that he had barely capital enough left to start in business very modestly. He finished by an emphatic declaration that his reputation in the newspapers was already sufficiently notorious, he could wish, and sought consolation in a glass of Scotch whisky. He was accompanied to America by his brother, F. J. Brierly, who was much more troubled by the notoriety than Albert; and both men were much liked by the few who made their acquaintance on the voyage. They heard of the commutation of Mrs. Maybrick's sentence in Queenstown, and were much agitated by it. Soon after he was drawn into conversation by an American acquaintance, and said of the case:

"It was most unfortunate, and the papers have painfully misrepresented me. My relations with Mrs. Maybrick were not nearly so intimate as they make out, and only continued for a few weeks. I had no great influence with her." He added that he would buy some land in Canada and might return to England in a few months. There are indications, however, that America will be his permanent abiding place. He has been very courteously treated by both ladies and gentlemen, and may rest assured that by a proper demeanor he can start with a clean page to make a new record in the new world.

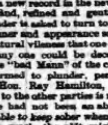
From the bland, refined and gentlemanly Briefly the reader is asked to turn to a criminal whose manner and appearance so clearly indicate his villainous character that one would wonder how any one could be deceived in him. He is the "bad Mann" of the combination lately formed to plunder, perhaps to murder, the Rev. Ray Hamilton, but his exact relation to the other parties is not fully known. If he had not been an abandoned drunkard, unable to keep sober under any circumstances, he might have made a shrewd and successful villain. But his habits might have been a success despite the woman's folly. It would seem that they planned to have Hamilton make a will in favor of his supposed wife and child and then murder him.

"Black Bart," whose true name is Redmund or Reinhold Holstay, is a young German



"BLACK BART" HOLSTAY.

who broke into the middle states in the wilds of Northern Wisconsin and Michigan, became a highwayman's fame almost equal to that of Claude Duval. Single handed he robbed coaches and trains loaded with passengers, "held up" lonely travelers in the woods, fought desperately when tracked and finally when he thought it was necessary. But he was captured at last, and in his own room were found, they say, a hundred or more diamonds. His fame is that of a lifelong confinement for life in the Michigan penitentiary, unless the men of the wild region cut his existence short by lynch law.

"BLACK BART" HOLSTAY.

As often happens in such cases there is a dispute as to the inciting cause to his career of crime; but the popular verdict puts them in two words—"a woman." About a hundred of these extraordinary productions were found in his quarters, and the statistical crank may amuse himself with the reflection that he needed but one more romance to turn an innocent lad into a villain. The man of any literary taste, however, will insist that such a dose of such stuff would disgust rather than attract, and the philosopher will maintain that unless one is a criminal at heart all the "penny dreadfuls" in the world would not make him a criminal in fact.

Mann, the third of these fellows, from Inspector Byrnes, of New York, to a rural justice of the peace, will tell you that men do not become criminals by reading of criminals; neither do they enjoy such reading because they are already criminal in feeling. If, therefore, you find a boy or a tricksy roguey unduly fond of "pirate stories" and the "Claude Duval series," watch him!

One encouraging fact must be noted. The "lone highwayman" and the "daring robbers" of the far west are rapidly disappearing. Joaquin Miller, "Ned Buntline," the "James gang" and the Younger brothers have no successors that will at all compare with them. The western robber is now a very tame being, and his criminal career is generally short.

Useless Not Wanted in China.

News from the Celestial kingdom makes it known that a governor of one of the Chinese provinces has forbidden the young men in his province to wear gorgeously colored and embroidered gowns, a practice which, he says, is foolish and unmanly, and he gives the warning to fathers, elder brothers and teachers that they will be held responsible for any display of extravagant clothing on the part of would-be dudes.—Boston Herald.

When petroleum was first discovered in the United States it was bottled and sold for medicinal purposes under the name of rock oil. Its medicinal properties were last night of until they were reintroduced in a semi-solid form as vaseline.

ANTON RUBINSTEIN.

The Famous Pianist Whose Jubilee Year is Approaching.

Anton Rubinstein's friends are about to celebrate his jubilee—the fiftieth anniversary of his first great success as a pianist. He had appeared before the public occasionally for a year or more before, but his jubilee dates from his concert at Paris at the age of 10, and Czar Alexander has lately congratulated him, by telegram as the greatest of Russian musicians.

Rubinstein was born Nov. 30, 1830, in an obscure village on the southern border of Russia. He is of pure Israelitish stock, but was reared as a Christian. His father was very early age evinced his wonderful talents. He was first taught the piano by Alexis Villoing at Moscow, and made his first public appearance at the age of 8. He next moved to Paris and received instruction and cordial encouragement from the Abbe Liszt. He afterwards made tours in England, Sweden and Germany, taught in Berlin and became famous as a composer, after which he took up his residence in Russia. In 1858 he reassumed his travels, and in 1873 visited the United States.

Rubinstein has at various times produced compositions of almost every class, but is chiefly known by his grand operas and oratorios. Among these the most noted are "Dmitri Donskoi," "Lalla Rookh," "Nero," "Paradise Lost," and the sacred drama, "The Maccabees." He is still engaged on what is expected to be his crowning work, the opera of "Ivan Kaldshorikof." The first production of his "Nero" in the United States, in March, 1887, was a noted event in American musical annals; there was a regular Rubinstein furore and Rubinstein clubs were projected in several cities, some of which have attained considerable fame.

The Rubinstein club, of New York city, is composed entirely of ladies, but was organized chiefly by Mr. William R. Chapman. Modern Slavonic composers have produced many pieces suited for female voices exclusively, and so the club appropriately took the name of the greatest of Slavonic composers. At its first public rendition sixty-six ladies took part, the audience, at Chickering hall, being composed only of invited friends of the ladies. The opera of "Nero," as rendered by the National Opera company, was more purely professional and excited an enthusiasm which led Americans to consider Rubinstein the greatest of composers in that line and "Nero" as the greatest of his works.

A BRAVE WAR HORSE.

Comanche, a Pensioner, and Sole Survivor of the Custer Massacre.

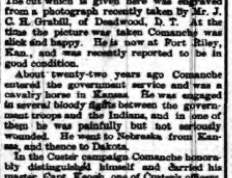
Probably there is no beast in the United States that leads a life of more perfect bliss than Comanche, the brave war horse and sole survivor of the Custer massacre. He is pensioned and is fed on the choicest of hay and oats. Lumps of sugar are frequently given him to sweeten his declining years.



THE OLD WAR HORSE COMANCHE.

The cut which is given here is engraved from a photograph recently taken by Mr. J. C. H. Grabill, of Deadwood, D. T. At the time the picture was taken Comanche was thirsty and happy. He is now at Fort Riley, in Kan., and was recently reported to be in good condition.

About twenty-two years ago Comanche entered the service of Uncle Sam and was a cavalry horse in Kansas. He was engaged in several bloody fights between the government troops and the Indians, and in one of them he was painfully but not seriously wounded. He went to Nebraska from Kansas, and thence to Dakota.

In the Custer campaign Comanche honored by distinguished himself. He carried his master, Capt. Keogh, one of Custer's officers, through many a desperate brush with the Indians. Keogh, who was riding Comanche in the battle of the Little Big Horn, was shot early in the fight and fell from his saddle. A complete ring of savages made it impossible for any of the soldiers or even their horses to escape, but Comanche left the field. And they supposed that horses and men were all dead.

This was true of all but Comanche, who, wounded by many bullets and bleeding profusely, had succeeded in reaching a brook, where he was found some time after by Maj. Reno's men. He was standing in the water, mournfully gazing at the battle ground. His legs were swollen to an enormous size, and his sufferings were so great that, to end his misery, he was ordered to be shot. The orders were recalled, however, and everything was done to save him. He was very kindly treated had his wounds slowly healed.

After his recovery Lieut. Col. Sturgis, of the Seventh United States cavalry, issued an order that the horse known as Comanche should be a matter of special pride and solicitude to the officers and enlisted men of the Seventh cavalry, in order to prolong his life to the utmost limit. Also, that on all occasions of ceremony, Comanche, saddled, bridled, and led by a mounted trooper of Company I, would be paraded with the regiment.

Comanche has many scars on his body, but he does not seem to be suffering. He is very faithfully cared for, and no one is allowed to mount him.

One of the pleasantest stories about Rogers is Campbell's defense of his friend. Some one said that Rogers was always speaking evil of his acquaintances. "Is he?" said Campbell. "Borrow five hundred pounds of him, and he will never say anything unkind of you till you try to pay it back." That is good—as good almost as the very different story that the late Mrs. Procter told to Rogers: "Mr. Rogers, I hear you have been attacking me." "Attacking you, my dear lady! Why, I pass my life in defending you."

A story is told of an American plutocrat visiting Oxford. On his tour of the colleges nothing struck him so much as the velvety turf in one of the quadrangles. He asked for the gardener, and made minute inquiries as to the method of laying down and maintaining the grass. "That's all, is it?" he exclaimed, when the whole process had been carefully described. "Yes, sir," replied the gardener, with a twinkle in his eye, "that's all; but we generally leave it three or four centuries to settle down in."

A WOMAN WITH A HISTORY

THE MOTHER OF CHARLES STEWART PARNELL.

Her Health Is Said to Be Failing—Brief Sketch of Her Career—The Daughter of "Old Ironsides," as the American Commodore Stewart Was Called.

Among the many women of prominence for whom America has formed a home, few are better known to the people of both hemispheres than Mrs. Delia Tudor Stewart Parnell, for many years she was a power in the Irish National League movement in the United States, and she became as well known on the platform as any of the male speakers for that cause.

She early in life showed that she had great force of character, and exquisite culture and tact. During her residence in Ireland and subsequent visits there she gained a thorough knowledge of the complicated mechanism of British politics, which she used to great advantage in her efforts as a Nationalist.

Her father was the famous Commodore Stewart, of the American navy, a figure that stands out in bold relief as the "Old Ironsides" of history. The name was perpetuated in Mrs. Parnell's beautiful home overlooking the Delaware near Bordentown, N. J. He came of that sturdy Ulster Presbyterian stock that took refuge in America from what was considered persecution, and, whether the hatred of England was justified or not, it grew in intensity until the tide of his death.

Mrs. Parnell's husband was the younger son of Sir John Parnell, and was a "rabid Liberal." They met during a visit of young Parnell to America, at a ball in Washington and were married in 1842. After the ceremony young Parnell returned with his bride to Ireland and settled down at Avondale, County Wicklow, a spot which has been immortalized by Thomas Moore—the "Sweet Vale of Avoca."

She lived elegantly in Ireland in the heart of the peasantry in and about Wicklow. She passed many of her leisure hours in the cottages and devoted herself, so far as she was able, to relieving the condition of the poor. The awful famine of 1847 affected her powerfully, and even now the tourist in the "sunny glens of Wicklow" is sure to hear tales of her noble conduct during that trying ordeal.

She played an important though quiet part in the Fenian troubles of 1865-67, in many instances proving herself a friend who could be trusted in the unfortunate reverses of the Union army who went to Ireland to join in the proposed "rising."

Her residence in Ireland continued for some time after her husband's death and until her children were educated. Her return to America was caused by a clause in her father's will. The damp climate of Ireland, and the dampness of dwellings, had an unfavorable effect upon her health.

The Parnell family is of Anglo-Norman origin and originally located in Cheshire. They settled in Ireland in the time of Cromwell, but their estate at Avondale was acquired by purchase, not by confiscation. The old property in Cheshire is still in the possession of one of the family, a second cousin of Charles Steward Parnell, Lord Congleton. The famous poet Parnell, of the days of Pope and Dryden, was also a member of the family.

WHAT IS IT?

A Big Bone That Is Puzzling the Folks at Block Island.

A man walking along the beach of Block Island not many days ago saw something white sticking up out of the sand. Upon examination it proved to be the petrified bone of some huge animal. It was dug up out of the sand and deposited in front of a photographer's, where it now lies, the object of curious eyes. It bears the following inscription:

"This immense bone was found on Crescent beach, ten feet below the surface, partly buried in the sand. Weight, 300 pounds when wet. Five scientists held a consultation and all decided that it must have been the hip bone of a mastodon, an extinct animal twice as large as an elephant that lived before the flood. This bone is petrified and is in a good state of preservation for its age."

THE BIG BONE.

The five scientists proved upon inquiry to be mythical, one of them being a hotel clerk. The bone can be, however, no doubt that the bone is genuine, and that the some former of it was part of some huge animal. It measures in length just six feet and eight inches.

The New Interstate Commissioner.

The appointment of Judge Wheelock G. Veazey to the interstate commissionership is very acceptable to the Republicans of Vermont. A curious fact in regard to this appointment is the circumstance that he had for many years presided law against Col. Aldace F. Walker, who has now succeeds, and who was appointed by President Cleveland to the Commission of Senator Edmunds. Since then Mr. Veazey's abilities have developed by a service of ten years on the supreme court bench. He is a fine lawyer, a man of excellent executive ability and unlimited capacity for hard work. Judge Veazey was graduated at Dartmouth, served through the war, rising to the rank of colonel, and has since been active in Republican politics and in the Grand Army. Before his appointment to the bench he was for many years reporter of the supreme court, and has been prominently mentioned for governor and for the United States senate.

Carney Bros., which was lost in the ruins of Tuesday, July 30, after having fallen in the gulch in front of the store; it would seem almost impossible for such a large furnace to be carried such a distance but perhaps it is, as the Hall Dockrader was shivering from fright and thought it would take the chances of having Janitor Mattox fire it up and show the public what a powerful healer it was.

JOTTINGS.

—Weather man, bear that in mind.

—This storm will do for the equinox.

—Days of 1889 past, 257; days to come, 108.

—When, oh! when, will Somerset street be fixed?

—The high winds are doing what they can to ruin the little prospects of the poor farmer.

—If you wish to purchase good butter, cream or buttermilk, read the Holly Grove farm advertisement to-day.

—The Potter Press Works is so rushed with orders for new presses that the employees work every night until nine o'clock.

—The theory that September is the most delightful part of the season at the seaside was given a black eye by the recent storm.

—Thursday evening two coal cars were thrown from the track of the Central railroad at the Elizabeth switches, and travel was delayed half an hour.

—A large willow tree near the Washington avenue bridge toppled over last night. The earth had been washed away from the roots by the recent flood.

—Drill engine No. 30, of this city, has a crew of five men, four of whom have the familiar name of John, the conductor being the only one not of that name.

—Chief Capper, of Somerville, has received information that a large bay horse and a two-seat of road wagon were stolen from Maurice Brosst, of Fanwood, last week.

—Next Thursday, Sept. 19th, the members of the W. C. T. U. will hold one of their mothers' meetings, which have proved so helpful and interesting. All are invited.

—P. & R. engine No. 16 is called the smallest engine drawing freight on the Central Railroad, and yet it makes a round trip each night between Jersey City and Philadelphia.

—The game of base ball between the Winthrops of New York and the Crescents which was to have taken place in this city to-day has been postponed indefinitely on account of the weather.

—The stormy weather has compelled the masons who were building the piers for the Water street bridge to stop work; and work already done has been completely covered up by [illegible] and sand.

—It is considered correct for a bridegroom to wear a buttonniere of orange blossoms in his coat. The idea is that he is being married just as much as the bride, and is just as glad as the girl presumably is.

—Over forty car loads of peaches have been shipped over the Central division each day since the peach trains have been put on; and this in the face of the reports that the peach crop was small in Hunterdon county.

—The North Plainfield Republican primaries to be held at Republican Headquarters (Spencer's Hall) this evening is for the purpose of electing delegates to the State Convention, to be held at Trenton, 17th inst.

—Mr. L. H. Bigelow will lead the young men's meeting at the Y. M. C. A. rooms Monday at 8 p. m. An attractive feature of these meetings are the brief practice at remarks by young men. All men are most cordially invited.

—The season of county fairs is now at hand, while the prize cow, the big pumpkin, the politician and the pretty girl will compete for admiration, and the pretty girl will get all of it that is worth having.—New Brunswick Home News.

—The Woman's Christian Temperance Union has engaged the services of Mr. P. A. Burdick, a well-known gospel temperance speaker, for a two weeks' campaign, which will commence Nov. 10th. The place for holding the meetings will be noticed hereafter.

—"Owing to trade depression" three thousand looms have stopped in Blackburn, England. From trade or the "markets of the world" do not seem to be a preventive or cure for labor or industrial ills, as its advocates in America declare.—Woodbury Constitution.

—There were 190 failures in the United States reported to Bradstreet's during the week, against 183 in the preceding week and 194, 184, 182 and 158 in the corresponding weeks of 1888, 1887, 1886 and 1885 respectively. The total number of failures in the United States January 1st to date is 7,936, against 7,702 in 1888.

—Application will be made at the opening of the September term of court in Somerville for a new road from Bound Brook to Chimney Rock. It will start on Union avenue east of Prof. Flack's residence and keep up on high ground all the way to Mr. Haelig's place. The Middlebrook washed the road so badly this Summer that the people who use this road will be glad to get a better route.

Married.

MUIRHEID — STURTEVANT.—Thursday, Sept. 12th, 1889, privately, at the home of the bride's parents, by the Rev. Asa Reed Dun, Edward L. Muirheid, of Phila., Pa., to Miss Lillian Sturtevant of Plainfield.

Died.

HOAGLAND—In this city, Sept. 12th, Anna M., wife of Peter Hoagland, age 57 years. Funeral services Monday, Sept. 16th, at 1:30 p. m., from her late residence, 138 West Front street.

TEMPLIN—In this city, in his 37th year, Elmer E., youngest son of the late Hiram W. and Emily Y. Templin, at his home, 12 East Second street.

His friends will have an opportunity of viewing his remains on Sunday evening after 6 p. m. Interment at Doylestown, Pa., Monday, Sept. 16th.

TOWNLEY—Suddenly in North Plainfield, Sept. 13th, George W. Townley, aged 50 years, five months, 27 days.

Funeral services from his late residence 21 Grandview avenue, North Plainfield, Sunday, Sept. 15th, at 2 o'clock p. m.

THE METHODIST SOCIABLE.

Pastor Mitchell's Greeting By His People.

In spite of the stormy weather quite a large number of people attended the Methodist Episcopal church, sociable held in Vincent chapel last evening to welcome home the pastor, Mr. Mitchell, from his travels in foreign lands.

The program for the evening consisted of a piano solo by Miss Morrison, and vocal solo by Miss Ketcham accompanied on the piano by Miss Bowman. The latter was well received. Then followed remarks by the pastor. He gave a brief, but extremely pleasant, account of his trip, telling how he enjoyed it; also of the delights of the Irish passengers aboard, when Ireland was sighted. How when Queenstown was reached he was so glad to get on terra firma, that he, figuratively speaking, "jumped on Ireland with both feet," for it was the home of his ancestors, and he was delighted to be there.

He discoursed on the wonderful beauties of that country, and kept the audience laughing by his account of some of the witty answers made to questions by the proverbial "Pat". He told of his journey through Scotland, Germany, and, in fact, took the audience in imagination over his whole trip. He was listened to with the closest attention throughout. Refreshments were then served, after which these present dispersed.

REPUBLICAN PRIMARIES.

Delegates to the Gubernatorial Convention.

The chairman of the Republican City Executive Committee, directing that the primaries be held Thursday evening, Sept. 12th, and the chairman of the County Executive Committee, directing that they be held Friday evening, Sept. 13th, led to confusion, especially as the county call was given fuller notice. The primaries were held Thursday evening, and the delegates, as partly announced yesterday, were elected in the various wards as follows:

First ward—Chairman, Joseph B. Coward. Secretary, R. J. Ollson. Delegate, J. B. Coward.

Second ward—Chairman, Vincent W. Nash. Secretary, Chas. Hand. Delegate John Ulrich. Alternate, V. W. Nash.

Third ward—Chairman, Wm. Thompson. Secretary, Ernest R. Ackerman. Delegate, Silas Bishop. Alternate, John W. Mount.

Fourth ward—Chairman, Abram Anglesman. Secretary, Joseph Randall. Delegate, Tunis J. Carey.

THE COUNTY ROADS.

Work to be Commenced Monday on Morris and Elizabeth.

Contractor Mahon, the contractor who is to construct the road from Elizabeth to Springfield, will begin work on Monday, with a full force of men, and will proceed as rapidly with the work as circumstances will admit. He was in that city yesterday morning, and went over the route of the proposed improvement with a view of having uncoupled buildings for the occupancy of the men who are to do the work. It is expected that a large force of men, with all required in the construction of the road, and property owners and others residing between Elizabeth and Springfield will be pleased when the new road is completed.

Runaway on North Avenue.

A team of horses owned by Lambert De-Camp, ran away on North avenue at about half-past eleven o'clock this morning. The frightened animals collided with another team and wrecked it to a considerable extent. The force of the collision knocked the three horses down and they were then captured before they started in doing further damage. The cause of the accident was the breaking of a bit in the mouth of one of Mr. DeCamp's horses.

PERSONAL.

Mr. F. J. Dominick, of Central avenue, has returned to New York for the Winter.

Mrs. John Erskine and family, of Third place have returned from their Summer outing.

Mr. W. T. Voorhees, of Greenport, L. I., is visiting his cousin, Mr. Wm. VanLiew, of West Front street.

Miss Ida Haywood, a talented young lady of Rahway, is the guest of Miss Aagie Feytel, of Jackson avenue.

Judge Van Syckle is expected to fill Judge Magie's place as the September term of the Somerset County Court.

Miss Emma Whitehead has returned to her home on Manning avenue after spending two weeks with relatives at Plainville, Somerset county, N. J.

Miss Nellie Warnock, of New York, returned home yesterday from a two weeks' visit to her sister, Mrs. Vincent L. Frasse, of Orchard place.

The funeral of the late Charles Hobby took place from the Warren Mission chapel this afternoon at half past four o'clock. Interment was made in the Presbyterian cemetery, North Plainfield.

Mr. Edward L. Muirheid, of Philadelphia and Miss Lillie Sturtevant of Liberty street, were united in marriage Thursday evening by the Rev. Asa Reed Dunn. Only the immediate members of the family witnessed the ceremony.

Mr. James Clark and Miss Mary Elliot, were united in marriage by the Rev. Frank Kelley in New York Thursday afternoon at four o'clock. At the conclusion of the ceremony the happy couple came to this city and were tendered a reception at the residence of the groom's uncle, Mr. David Clark, on West Fourth street. A number of invited guests were present and an enjoyable evening was spent. Mr. and Mrs. Clark will reside in New York.

—The certificate of incorporation of the Somerville Woolen Mills has been filed in the Somerset County Clerk's office. The corporators are James Brown, jr., Matthew P. Lane, John S. Miller, John A. Powderly, David K. Craig, Edwin I. Lane and Samuel Brown. The capital stock is fixed at $100,000 in shares of $100 each, business to be commenced on a paid-up capital of $60,000.

SUNDAY SERVICES.

What Will Be Done by Religious Societies To-Morrow.

[Thirteenth Sunday After Trinity.]

WORK WITHOUT HOPE DRAWS NECTAR IN A SIEVE,
AND HOPE WITHOUT AN OBJECT CANNOT LIVE. —Coleridge.

Gospel temperance service, Sunday e. m. at 9:15 o'clock and at 4 p. m. in Reform Hall. All are welcome.

German Lutheran services at the W. C. T. U. rooms, No. 78, West Front street, to-morrow morning at 10:30. Sermon by the Rev. R. P. Mondeika, D.D.

Providing the weather proves favorable the usual grove meeting will be held in the rear of Schepfin's clothing factory to-morrow afternoon at 4:30 o'clock.

The meeting at Reform Hall to-morrow evening will be addressed by gold speakers. It will commence at 7:30 o'clock. Good singing will also be a feature.

All are cordially invited to attend the preaching of the Gospel of the grace of God in the hall over the Dime Saving Institution, No. 6 East Front street at 7:45 p. m. Lords day evening.

Services in the Park Avenue Baptist church to-morrow. Preaching by the pastor, the Rev. Asa Reed Dulls, at 10:30 a. m. Subject: "The Unsearchable Riches of Christ." Sunday- chool at 2:30 p. m. All are welcome.

The Unitarian services at the Music store on East Front street, near the post-office will hereafter be held on Sunday morning at 10:30. The Rev. William P. Tilden, of Boston, Mass., will preach. All are cordially invited.

At the Methodist Episcopal church services will be held Sunday as usual. The pastor, the Rev. Chas. B. Mitchell, having returned from Europe is expected to occupy the pulpit, morning and evening. The Sunday-school will resume its afternoon session at 2:30 o'clock.

The First Church of Christ, of Plainfield, will meet at Reform Hall Lord's Day at 10:30 a. m. Preaching by the Rev. J. R. Cleaver. Subject: "The Fear That Will Be Bared." At 12 m. "In Memory of Him". At 2:30 p. m. Bible school. Local meetings: Wednesday and Friday evenings, at 7:30 o'clock. All are cordially invited.

The W. C. T. U. meeting will be held as usual in their rooms 73 West Front street, to-morrow, in which all are cordially welcome at 9:15 a. m. consecration service. At 4 p. m. Gospel service, with Mr. Seeley Edsall, as leader. The meeting at 7:30 this evening will be of special interest.

Sunday school will be held at Warren Mission chapel to-morrow afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. At 7:30 o'clock there will come a prayer and song service under the leadership of Mr. M. M. Dunham. The devotional meeting at eight o'clock will be in charge of Capt. George D. Morrison.

Prospects For Fall.

The fall never opened with brighter prospects for business in all departments. Legislature has furnished employment enough, so that the temptation to wild speculation is reduced to a minimum. Abundant crops of all kinds are now assured, and there seems little danger that we will repeat the folly of the past two years and bid up the price of grain and provisions beyond all demands. Iron has been supplied by other markets. Wheat, corn and oats have steadily declined during the week, and although the English wheat crop will be better than was anticipated, there will still be a considerable demand for grain from this country, which will be promptly met, and not choked off by high prices.—Bridgeton Pioneer.

To Meet in Elizabeth.

The young Republicans of this State intend taking an active part in the gubernatorial campaign, and with this in view will hold a convention, similar to the one held at Asbury Park last year during the Presidential campaign. It is expected that the convention will be held in Elizabeth, and as Mr. James MacMaster is one of the leading spirits in the movement, it is more than likely that such will be the case. The date has not been definitely agreed upon, but it will be some time between the 15th and 20th of October.

Dr. Carroll Will Take the Census

Dr. H. K. Carroll, LL.D., editor of the N. Y. Independent, and a resident of North Plainfield, who has been secured to take charge of the religious census of the United States, has decided to establish his office in this city. Dr. Carroll has an important branch of the national census of 1890 to look after and it will probably require two years to complete the work.

The Minstrels.

Primrose & West, the millionaire monarchs of minstrelsy, will appear at Music Hall Monday evening. These gentlemen have spared neither pains or money to secure an aggregation of talent that positively excels their own former successful efforts.

—Farmers say the rain will not injure tomatoes.

—Scratches at last this afternoon after a week of rain.

—It is reported, on the authority of a Gibbon correspondent, that some Buffalo county cowboys found, in the sand hills south of Lowell, a band of petrified elk, surrounded by a circle of petrified coyotes, the adjacent atmosphere being full of petrified yelps and howls, each yelp having a diamond in one end and a geologist's hammer in the other, and every howl containing a pearl and a butcher's knife.—Omaha Bee.

—Eben Winton, former editor and proprietor of The Englewood Times, was last week greatly annoyed by a pain in one of his eyes, which became so intense that he called on a physician to examine the eyelids with the result of finding a needle. The needle was extracted, having a small piece of a needle extracted. Mr. Winton says that fifty years ago a piece of a needle was run into his leg near the knee, and he thinks it has been traveling through his body ever since. His eye is now improving; the pain has subsided, and no further trouble is anticipated.

The Democrat Has Its Say.

Amazed is the comment of the Somerville Democrat on Saturday's ball game, between the Crescents and West Ends:

September 7th, 1889—That was the date. 7 to 5—That was the score. Harkins—He was the hero. There is the whole thing in a nut shell. "Mukum in parvo". It was a great game, though, and a credit to the boys. Opposition—It is an axiom with "no flies on it". Fifteen hundred people who saw the game will vouch for it.

The most disgraceful action that has ever taken place on our grounds occurred in the seventh inning. Fitzy Hall struck out by the ball. In an ungovernable burst of rage, this hero (?) threw over his bat at Harkins with the avowed intent of maiming him. A most disgraceful, more contemptible or more dastardly action could not be imagined. The Plainfield contingent, three hundred strong, howled out approvingly. This was scientific to their taste. This was what they relished. This was the kind of ball playing they enjoyed. "Good boy, Hall," shouted the crowd in the field, accompanied by a Plainfielder. Dr. Mathewson and McMurray whether he threw the bat intentionally; and received a negative answer; although he afterwards boasted to an admiring group of his townsmen that he had lied to the Doctor. The McMurray is a fair specimen of Plainfield chivalry, and also of the club which claims that it will carry the pennant this season. A natural question to ask is what did Harkins do during this low lived action? Why, he did what any true gentleman's anger he started toward the ruffian, but passed half way and resumed to his position. It was a magnificent exhibition of self-control. From now on let the sobriquet, "Gentleman John", stick to him. He deserves it if any man does.

A glance at the Plainfield team showed nine players carefully selected from clubs within a radius of fifty miles of New York. There were the Currie Bros. and Cary from the famous Winthrops, Bowe and Geisley of the Senators; Harnutt and Hammill of the Trentons; Cadmus of the Orange Athletic Club, and Lee and McCarthy from Plainfield. The West End played their regular team.

The above completes the statements of all the three Somerville papers about the disgraceful game. Now for the facts and the truth. It is a significant fact that prior to the admission of Harkins into the Somerville team, the Crescents, of Plainfield, and the West Ends, of Somerville, got along very well together, but when such a skillful player as Harkins resorts to such unsportsmanlike practice as to try to hit, with a ball as hard as a rock, and hurled with all the force of such a powerful man as he is, the man at the bat, to disable him, no wonder the opponents object. Harkins must be a cowardly rowdy to do such a thing. That Mr. McMurray, as described and as gentlemanly a person as can be found anywhere, should resent Harkins brutal trick, knowing it to be an old practice of his, is not to be wondered at, and the Plainfield Bowling Club ought to amend its refusal to play with the West Ends, to refuse to play with Harkins, if he is going to be allowed to play. Persons who pervert such a grand game as base-ball as Harkins does, ought not to be allowed on any team. It is all the more inexcusable in his case because he is admitted by all to be a fine player. The Plainfield fielders believe in fair play, and when the visitors left the grounds in a body it was not without just cause and provocation.

WESTFIELD WHISPERS.

Interesting Items Concerning Plainfield's Neighbors.

It is announced that the choir of the Methodist church which disbanded during the Summer months is to re-organize with Prof. Chas. H. Day as leader. The first rehearsal will take place in the Methodist church to-night.

Seventy five Italians are coming to Westfield to live—for a while, they say—to work on the county roads. Fifty will make their home in Westfield and twenty five will be domiciled up at Hiff man's Stone Crusher. The census of Westfield's population is not on the increase!

Harry Taylor has returned from a six weeks vacation at Ocean City, Md. He tells many amusing stories of the people down there and says that they will stop their sightseeing (?) excursion trains at any points on the road if it takes up to a carload that an entire train can be chartered for $6. Life must be worth living in that part of the country.

Panwood Notes.

J. O. Cottrell is confined to the house with a severe cold.

Paul A. Oliver spent most of the week among his old friends.

A most enjoyable hop was given at the Monmouth Monday evening.

Mrs. Geo. Kyte and youngest son, with Mrs. Silas Kyte, have gone to Ocean Beach.

Mr. and Mrs. Rhodes, Mr. and Mrs. Woodward and Miss Childs, left the Homestead for Ocean Grove.

Mrs. J. O. Cottrell, who had charge of the Japanese department at the Bazaar, brought the unsold articles to her home and contented her self over library into a most attractive Japanese nook, where her friends have been and will probably require two years to complete the work.

The West End played their regular team.

The above completes the statements of all the three Somerville papers about the disgraceful game. Now for the facts and the truth. It is a significant fact that prior to the admission of Harkins into the Somerville team, the Crescents, of Plainfield, and the West Ends, of Somerville, got along very well together, but when such a skillful player as Harkins resorts to such unsportsmanlike practice as to try to hit, with a ball as hard as a rock, and hurled with all the force of such a powerful man as he is, the man at the bat, to disable him, no wonder the opponents object. Harkins must be a cowardly rowdy to do such a thing. That Mr. McMurray, as described and as gentlemanly a person as can be found anywhere, should resent Harkins brutal trick, knowing it to be an old practice of his, is not to be wondered at, and the Plainfield Bowling Club ought to amend its refusal to play with the West Ends, to refuse to play with Harkins, if he is going to be allowed to play. Persons who pervert such a grand game as base-ball as Harkins does, ought not to be allowed on any team. It is all the more inexcusable in his case because he is admitted by all to be a fine player. The Plainfield fielders believe in fair play, and when the visitors left the grounds in a body it was not without just cause and provocation.

WESTFIELD WHISPERS.

Interesting Items Concerning Plainfield's Neighbors.

It is announced that the choir of the Methodist church which disbanded during the Summer months is to re-organize with Prof. Chas. H. Day as leader. The first rehearsal will take place in the Methodist church to-night.

Seventy five Italians are coming to Westfield to live—for a while, they say—to work on the county roads. Fifty will make their home in Westfield and twenty five will be domiciled up at Hiff man's Stone Crusher. The census of Westfield's population is not on the increase!

Harry Taylor has returned from a six weeks vacation at Ocean City, Md. He tells many amusing stories of the people down there and says that they will stop their sightseeing (?) excursion trains at any points on the road if it takes up to a carload that an entire train can be chartered for $6. Life must be worth living in that part of the country.

Panwood Notes.

J. O. Cottrell is confined to the house with a severe cold.

Paul A. Oliver spent most of the week among his old friends.

A most enjoyable hop was given at the Monmouth Monday evening.

Mrs. Geo. Kyte and youngest son, with Mrs. Silas Kyte, have gone to Ocean Beach.

Mr. and Mrs. Rhodes, Mr. and Mrs. Woodward and Miss Childs, left the Homestead for Ocean Grove.

Mrs. J. O. Cottrell, who had charge of the Japanese department at the Bazaar, brought the unsold articles to her home and converted her cosy library into a most attractive Japanese nook, where her friends have been and will probably require two years to complete the work.

Jersey Genius.

The following is a list of the patents granted to Jerseymen for the week ending, Sept. 10th, 1889:

D. Arnold, Morristown, roller-stud, universal joint.

J. Edgar, Woodbridge, apparatus for burning hydro-carbon oils. (Two patents.)

B. W. Elliott, Flemington, metal railway tie.

C. Ellis, Jersey City, folding baby carriage.

H. H. Everett, Passaic, car coupling.

O. B. Ganley, Newport, hair for buckets.

J. Gibbons, Jersey City, gas stove.

J. H. Jessel, Camden, machine for slotting screws.

E. Lamb, Camden, elastic webbing.

A. M. Martin, Jersey City, heating apparatus.

W. Pyle, Elizabeth, pen cleanser.

J. Reposh, Staten Visle, brush.

J. W. Richardson, Jersey City, mirror.

C. Royle, Paterson, shedding mechanism for looms.

G. P. Stenge, Newark, stretching frame.

J. J. Turner, Princeton, chimney cowl.

F. M. Wheeler, Montclair, expansion and gauge.

C. N. Wirth, Hoboken, hatchway.

W. Woolcock, Perth Amboy, clay-wash gate.

F. H. Williams, Jersey City, radiator, design, two patents.

—And now the seashore hotel man and boardinghouse keeper is numerously skipping out without a preliminary settlement with his creditors. Not only do this class of people clear out without paying up, but the Asbury Park Press says that many boardkeepers leave without paying their servants' wages and that the dockets of the justices team with suits against the petty swindlers, many of whom claim to be people of respectability and social position.

Skilled Labor.

Editor Babcock, of the Advance, the organ of the Jamesburg Reform School, makes a very earnest and pertinent plea for the introduction of instruction in skilled labor into that institution. It is a conceded fact that skilled labor has a much larger chance for financial and social success than unskilled labor, and taking this accepted truth as his text Editor Babcock says:

In State reformatories like ours the great majority of the boys come from the cities and large towns, and after their release will naturally drift back again to such communities, and therefore it is necessary that the institution should have some training in an occupation that they can easily find employment at, and which will afford them at least a reasonable compensation until they shall have an opportunity to master it. In our School we have a large number of boys who have of just the right age to learn trades, and they should have an opportunity to do so. The employment would most certainly aid in their reform than anything else that could be done for them, and our corporation is the main object of our School the best means should be taken to secure that end. Assure the boys that they are learning not something of value to them and they would be more contented, yield more readily to discipline, and not have the desire to run away. Every boy upon whom the necessary plant is provided, the extra expense to the State would be trifling, and in the long run the State would be the gainer. Introduction of the boys would amount to much more than the cost of supervision and the materials used. But the State must first furnish the means necessary to obtain the tools, machinery and stock required to begin with in a proper manner.

We are of the opinion that the practical man will be disposed to accept the idea that the boy who is furnished with the means of support and obtaining some standing is helped far upon the road to useful citizenship. The young man who can command money and respect by his skilled labor is far less likely to adopt a criminal course of life upon leaving a reformatory than one who is cast upon the world with hands and brains alike uneducated. There are many trades that the boys in the Reform School could learn with advantage to themselves and with benefit to the State, which would become the means of support to them when they start out to fight the battle of life. The State has now the opportunity offered of trying an inexpensive experiment which promises incalculable benefits to its wards, and through them to the public at large, and we have faith to believe that a reasonable amount could not be more advantageously expended than in giving the plan a free and fair trial.

Hypnotism.

One of the most important of the many congresses at Paris during the summer was that which considered hypnotism. Any report from the learned body was so long reaching this side of the water that Americans might have been justified in thinking the grave professors had put one another all to sleep and would remain in that state for an indefinite time.

At last, however, an outline of the work done at the congress has come to hand. It shows admirably the exceeding clearness and carefulness in detail of these French scientific men.

Hypnotism is well known in this country under its other name of mesmerism, or animal magnetism. Professors (so called) of the art hypnotize subjects on a public stage, and force them to do absurd and extravagant things for the amusement of the audience. Such exhibitions as these the French medical professors condemn in strong terms. They say that after a subject is once hypnotized changes are produced in his nervous system which make him afterwards always easily susceptible to the mesmerizer's influence, even though distant from him.

Moreover, when the subject is in the trance or somnambulic state, the operator may throw into his brain a certain idea, and will it to remain there after the spell is broken. Ideas implanted in one brain by the will of another in this manner are known as "suggestions," and the means by which they are implanted are known as the method of suggestion. Weak minded and hysterical persons may thus be led on to commit atrocious crimes "by suggestion." Such considerations induced the congress to pass the following resolution:

1. That the practice of magnetism and hypnotism ought to be prohibited by the authorities in the interest of public health and morals.

2. The practice of hypnotism by a competent agent ought to be regulated by the laws governing the practice of medicine.

Also the convention passed a resolution profoundly interesting to medical men the world over. It was that hereafter the study of hypnotism and its applications should be introduced into the teachings of medical science. It must be remembered that in this body were some of the most accomplished and scientific members of the medical profession in the world. It is a hundred and five years ago since a committee of the French Academy reported that the science of Anton Mesmer was a delusion and he himself was a quack. Now his science is recommended by men still more learned to the careful study of medical men throughout the world. Mesmer has been revenged.

Recently were made on the employment of hypnotism for the insane, for nervous patients and for vicious children. The treatment consists in getting the patient under control, as the mesmerist does, and then throwing a healthy suggestion into his mind in place of the diseased one. The method worked well in nervous diseases and could be utilized for performing painless surgical operations. It was not so successful with the insane, owing to the difficulty of fixing their attention. But the most signal success was obtained in the reforming of vicious children. Several of the learned physicians were of opinion that hypnotism would be of great use to educators, though only to be employed when everything else failed.

A model pleasure yacht has been constructed to run by electricity in this country. The experiment has been a success. The motive power is generated from 200 Faure accumulators, by the storage battery system. The little boat runs noiselessly, and with speed enough for a pleasure boat. Sufficient material can be stored in a small boat to generate electricity for four or five hours. There is no smoke and no annoyance from machinery or puffing steam. The stored batteries occupy far less room than coal, water and machinery do. These small electric boats have been run successfully for some time on the Thames, in England, but they have not yet been tried to any great extent in America.

The Nebraska State Journal scouts the idea that western farm mortgages and western securities in general are of doubtful value. The editor declares that first-class farm mortgages and all the bonds of growing western cities offer as good securities as can be found anywhere, even in Massachusetts. This is especially true of Nebraska, it is said. So rapid is the rise of real estate there, The Journal declares, that a loan made today upon a farm mortgage for five years, at the end of that time will probably be doubled in value, as far as security goes.

In The Atlantic Monthly E. G. Scott takes the ground that in Canada the French will finally overthrow the English by sheer natural increase in numbers. If they should, it will be contrary to the previous history of the two races anywhere else. Today in Europe, in their original homes, the English are increasing in numbers much more rapidly than the French.

Good Work of the Lewes Life Savers.

TWO HUNDRED PERSONS DROWNED

The Atalya's Adventure—Coney Island's Cloudburst—The Situation Along the New Jersey Coast—The Atlanta Safely Rode Out the Storm.

NEW YORK, Sept. 14.—The steamship Yumuane, of the Clyde line, brings with it one of the most thrilling tales of rescue to which the storm has given birth. Capt. McKee, her commander, had on board eighteen shipwrecked people, the crew of the bark Atalya, who, but for their rescue by the Yumuane, would probably have carried with them in a watery grave the secret of an awful experience. On Sunday morning the storm broke upon the Atayles in all its fury. The sails were ripped from the masts, the deck fixtures were washed overboard and there were four feet of water in the hold. The crew were put to work at the pumps, but their exertions proved of little avail.

Capt. Bull's Nine Lives.

The captain succeeded in running the vessel to within a couple of miles of the Five Fathom lightship, off the Delaware breakwater, when, after a hard struggle he anchored her. By this time the water was up to the deck and all the furniture was floating in the cabin. The salt water, too, had destroyed most of the provisions.

Eventually the vessel commenced to settle, and, deeming further effort vain, the captain determined to abandon the vessel and take to the boats. The two lifeboats were launched and the only food on board, a box of sea biscuits, was put in the captain's boat. After three hours' tossing in the boats the Yumuane hove in sight, and a little later was sent by the steamer and their occupants taken aboard more dead than alive.

Capt. Bull and his crew were loud in their praise for Capt. McKee, who did everything possible for their comfort. This is the fourth time that Capt. Bull has been shipwrecked, and he says that he must have as many lives as a cat. While on his perilous trip were his wife and two children.

A Lightship Goes Adrift.

The steamer City of Columbia from Havana arrived here. Capt. Foster reports that he found the Five Fathom lightship adrift, going toward the Fenwick Island lightship. She was then thirty-five miles out of her way.

Fears for the Snow's Safety.

Considerable fear is felt in marine circles that the pilot boat Ambrose Snow, No. 14, may have been lost in the storm. She sailed from New York nine days ago, having on board five pilots. A pilot called at the pilot commissioner's office and said that he left the vessel off Barnegat. He refused to say what his name was for fear of the fate of the vessel brought in. He declared that the boat was all right and would turn up in good time.

Coney Island's Cloudburst.

At Coney Island the storm reached a cloudburst shortly after midnight. The Brighton Beach hotel received a good share of the big waterfall, the rain irreparably damaging carpets and furniture on the ground floor and floor. The wind blew a veritable hurricane, doing frightful damage everywhere. The waters at Arverne and Rockaway beach have somewhat subsided since Sunday, and an army of workmen are now engaged picking up driftwood and righting the overturned bathhouses. The work of raising several yachts and rowboats which were sunk in the progressing rapidly. Great damage has been done to the oyster beds in Princess bay by the heavy tide and winds. Thousands of bushels of oysters have been ruined by the storm.

NEW JERSEY'S SUFFERING CITIES.

A Family Quartered with a Cow—One Man Drowned.

ATLANTIC CITY, Sept. 14.—Atlantic City is being rapidly emptied of its summer population. After the last few days the visitors evidently think they have had enough of the City by the Sea for this year. Every outgoing train is heavily loaded. A party of citizens rescued a woman found by Mrs. Brown Smith and family safe in Beter's Beach hotel, some distance above their place. The Smith family were without provisions, and were huddled together in one of the large rooms with a cow.

Latest advices from Cape May show that the damage there has been somewhat exaggerated.

A trainload of food has arrived at Manasquan for the cottagers at Beach Haven, and another attempt was made to get over in sailing boats. North Beach Haven is very much damaged. Beach Haven has suffered less severely.

At Sea Isle City the lighthouse was tilted, and the keeper and family were taken from it by the life saving corps. Several houses have been blown down. George Sayers attempted to swim out and save his yacht and was drowned.

The Atlanta Is Safe.

NEWPORT, R. I., Sept. 14.—The anxiety as to the safety of the United States cruiser Atlanta is at an end. She steamed into the harbor at 10 o'clock this morning. She has the worse of her experience in the gale. Since Monday she has been lying for the most part off Montauk light, keeping well out to sea to avoid the dangers of the coast. One of the crew, Coxswain John Sanders, died of heart disease during the trip and was buried at sea. W. E. Vanderbilt's steam yacht Alva, which is now fearful that the disaster on the way to Bar Harbor, is safe in the harbor here.

Twenty-Three Men Were Rescued.

NORFOLK, Va., Sept. 14.—A brigantine rigged steamer, name unknown, went ashore near Cape Henry. She displayed signals of distress, and the life saving crew of No. 1 station endeavored to get a line to her, but had not succeeded at last accounts. She has a red and yellow funnel and came from the south. The life saving crew saved the lives of twenty-three men on board the British steamer Godwyn, from Cuba to Baltimore, which went ashore near the station during the gale.

They Saved 200 Lives.

LEWES, Del., Sept. 14.—The life saving crews have rescued about 200 persons in all from twenty-four wrecks. The crew of the barge Costilo, from Philadelphia for Boston, which was wrecked on Brandywine shoal, were taken off by a schooner and landed here. These men were given up for lost. A Norwegian bark is sunk on Five Fathom bank. The crew were saved by a Boston steamer.

A Schooner's Crew Probably Lost.

CHATHAM, Mass., Sept. 14.—An unknown schooner is sunk ner the Pollock Rip. Her crew are safe aboard the lightship. A vessel supposed to be a three masted schooner is sunk on Pollock Rip shoal, and it is feared that the crew are lost. Boats from Monomoy will go out when the sea abates. The vessel was probably south bound, and missed the light.

GAUDAUR DEFEATS TESMER.

The Race Breaks Up in a Row—Trainer Mason Assaulted.

PITTSBURG, Sept. 14.—John Teemer and Jake Gaudaur rowed their race for $1,000 a side over the McKeesport course, from Port Perry to McKeesport, a distance of four miles, in the afternoon, Gaudaur winning in 23 minutes. He was not awarded the race owing to Teemer not putting in a claim of foul. He claims Mason, Gaudaur's trainer, fouled him at the critical stage of the race by rowing in front of him and in his water. Mason claims that he was fifty feet in front of Teemer and did not foul him. Referee Pringle took Teemer's claim under consideration, and will render a decision later. Teemer's claim of foul will not likely be allowed.

About 30,000 people witnessed the race, which was started at 5:40 by Referee Pringle. The men both took water together, Teemer pulling 36 strokes and Gaudaur 33. At the eighth of a mile Teemer increased his stroke to 36 and Gaudaur to 34. Teemer kept up at the rate of 36 strokes for two miles, when he gave way to 32, and by the time he got home at the rate of 30 strokes, while Gaudaur still kept pulling steadily at the rate of 34, and crossed the line a quarter of a mile ahead of Teemer, in 23 minutes.

No official time was taken at any stage of the race, it not being an official contest. Teemer's brother assaulted Mason after the race and Hannah Mason was arrested by the railroad station under police protection. The betting was 2 to 1 on Teemer, and McKeesport people had $25,000 on the result.

Teemer says Gaudaur is a fast rower, but Teemer set the pace, but could not keep it up.

FIGHTING THE BATTLE OVER.

Anniversary of Fort McHenry's Bombardment Celebrated at Baltimore.

BALTIMORE, Md., Sept. 14.—Today's sight was the seventy-fifth anniversary of the bombardment of Fort McHenry by the British and the repulse of the latter. The event was celebrated by a reproduction of the exactment of the engagement itself. For this purpose three United States war vessels were sent on here—the Pensacola, the Omaha and the Yantic.

The Fatapsco river off Fort McHenry presented a beautiful picture. The water was covered with hundreds of boats, from the little tug to the big excursion steamer, and the twinkling glimmer of their lights as they wended their way in procession down the harbor to the fort, together with the more positive and fixed illumination of skyrockets and other pyrotechnics, made a scene of rare animation.

The three war vessels stood out about three-quarters of a mile from the fort. The Pensacola was the flagship of the fleet and from her came the first shot in the attack at 8:30. The fort quickly responded with a roar from one of her 15-inch guns that was simply deafening. The firing continued for an hour. The fire from the men-of-war was rather tame, but that from the fort was very heavy. Col. Livingston, who commanded, had in operation at the barquette five 15-inch guns, eight 9-inch and three Gatlings. With each discharge of the 15-inch guns could be heard the crashing of the windows in the buildings within the walls. The naval display immediately below the fort of pyrotechnic bombs was very pretty and they added much to the general din. The affair was at an end at 9:45 p. m.

Governor Hill's New Secretary.

ALBANY, N. Y., Sept. 14.—Governor Hill has appointed T. S. Williams, of New York city, to be his private secretary in place of Col. W. G. Rice, resigned. Mr. Williams is a native of Auburn, N. Y., a graduate of Cornell University, and for some years has been connected with the New York Commercial Advertiser. He was the Albany correspondent of that paper in the legislative session of 1887, and afterward promoted to the city editorship and for the last year and a half has been the Washington correspondent of The Commercial Advertiser and other papers. He is a democrat in politics. Governor Hill has also appointed Mr. Williams aide-de-camp on his military staff, with the rank of colonel. Col. Williams will assume his new duties on Sept. 23.

Was It a Murder?

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 14.—Mrs. Christina Brown, who was found as her home in French's court, Camden, N. J., suffering from injuries in the head, is dead. The police assert that the bruises Mrs. Brown rented the miserable attic in which she lived, have been arrested upon suspicion of having been concerned in the injuries to the woman. Mrs. Brown's daughter and Mrs. Brown is also in custody. She says that her mother broke a bottle over her own head, causing a bad cut. The county physician says that the wound, combined with fright and exposure, superinduced by the blow on the head. The condition of the house where these people lived is filthy beyond description, and the place is overrun with vermin.

Wheelmen in Convention.

NEW YORK, Sept. 14.—The board of officers of the League of American Wheelmen met in the Grand Union hotel and received the reports of various committees. In the evening the visiting cyclists to the number of 70 attended the performance of "The Colah" at the Broadway theatre, and afterward enjoyed a banquet at the Metropolitan House cafe.

A Yellow Fever Hero Dead.

AUGUSTA, Ga., Sept. 14.—Judge W. Milo Olin died here, aged 76 years. He was a native of New York, but had resided here fifty years. He voluntarily acted as nurse for the sick during the yellow fever epidemics at Norfolk, Wilmington, Savannah, Memphis and Jacksonville, and refused to accept any compensation for his services.

All Night in the Rigging.

CHATHAM, Mass., Sept. 14.—The schooner Nellie V. Stokes, (Capt. Low), of Deer Isle, Me., from New York for Boston with a cargo of granite, went ashore on the outer bar here. The six men forming her crew were driven into the rigging to escape the break in the vessel. They were taken by a boat from the Chatham life saving station.

Prime Minister Crispi Attacked.

ROME, Sept. 14.—While Prime Minister Crispi was driving a stone thrown by a man on the roadside struck him on one of his eyes, inflicting a painful but not serious injury. The assailant was arrested and found to be a lunatic.

Eighteen Men Killed in a Mine.

LUNCENBURG, Va., Sept. 14.—Meager information comes from the Jellico coal mine in Tennessee of a terrible accident there. The Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific railway is said to be interested in the mine. Eighteen men were killed in the accident. No further particulars are obtainable.

A Native Village Destroyed.

LONDON, Sept. 14.—Advices from Zanzibar are that the native village of Kondicheli, where Lieutenant Schmidt supplied the insurgents with arms, has been destroyed by Capt. Wissmann's police.

William to Visit Humbert.

BERLIN, Sept. 14.—Emperor William will stop to pay a visit to King Humbert at the Italian resort of Monza on his way to Athens.

TANNER'S SUCCESSOR.

Will It Be Maj. Warner, of Missouri?

OTHER MEN AFTER THE PLACE.

It Is Said That the President Has Offered the Vacant Position to the Missouri Man—Assistant Secretary Busey Not at All Alarmed.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 14.—The arrival in this city of Maj. Warner, of Missouri, past commander-in-chief of the Grand Army of the Republic, in response to a request from Secretary Noble is generally believed to mean his appointment to the position of commissioner of pensions. Other prominent G. A. R. men are mentioned for the position, among them Past Grand Commanders Fairchild and Rea, but Warner stock seems to be above all others.

Conferring With Secretary Noble.

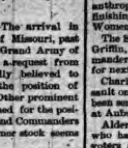
Maj. Warner had a long conference with Secretary Noble at the interior department during the afternoon, presumably about the position that most people think has been offered to him, but which some think he will not accept, unless at a great sacrifice of business income and prospects. An intimate friend of the president's said that Maj. Warner had been tendered the position, but that the president had no positive information that it would be accepted, and that there were some doubts as to the commissionership, with a salary of but $5,000.



WM. WARNER.

Congressman Wm. Wade, of Missouri, who was associated with Maj. Warner during his two terms in congress, said that he had no doubt that Maj. Warner would accept the position.

Representative Lamb on the Situation.

Representative Lamb, of Indiana, in a conversation with a reporter of the United Press, said:

"I have not seen Maj. Warner since he arrived in Washington, but from what I hear I have no doubt he will be made commissioner of pensions. It will be a very good appointment. There is sure to be a good deal of disappointment among the old soldiers about Tanner's resignation. There is not one of them but had an idea that Tanner would at some time or other give them the surplus, and it will be impossible to convince them that Tanner was not removed because of his liberality. The mismanagement of the pension office under Commissioner Tanner has been such that I have been kept at my home all summer attending to a correspondence, the principal part of which related to pension cases. It has been almost impossible to get any answers to letters addressed to the pension office, and claimants have been calling on us to have their business attended to."

Busey Is Not Alarmed.

Assistant Secretary Busey, who has been harshly criticised by G. A. R. men as the primary source of all of Mr. Tanner's trouble, and who, it has been reported, is likely to be removed with Mr. Tanner, is, apparently but little disturbed over the situation growing out of Mr. Tanner's retirement. He insists that in running counter to some of the views of the pension commissioner he has been actuated by no feeling of personal ill will toward Mr. Tanner, and feels confident that influential G. A. R. comrades, men who thoroughly comprehend the situation and the circumstances that led to the friction between the departmental executive officers and the head of the pension bureau, will sustain him in what he has done.

What the Correspondence Made Public.

Considerable pressure is being brought to bear upon the administration to make public the correspondence which took place between Secretary Noble and Commissioner Tanner respecting the latter's management of his bureau. The correspondence is very exhaustive. Friends of Commissioner Tanner desire to be satisfied until they know all the facts in the case, and as the publication of the correspondence is the only way to convince them that they have all the facts, it is thought to be only a question of time when the budget will be made public. The correspondence is decidedly crisp and will make interesting reading. It shows among other things that Commissioner Tanner was inclined to ignore Secretary Noble's directions, and indeed his position, claiming in at least one instance that the power behind him (the commissioner) was greater than that which was behind the secretary.

There Was But One Alternative.

A gentleman who is familiar with the contents of Secretary Noble's correspondence received by the president from Secretary Noble said that when made public the correspondence would show very conclusively that there was but one course open to the administration in the late unpleasantness, and that was the one which has resulted in the retirement of the commissioner. It has been incorrectly stated that Secretary Noble took the correspondence to the president, and in presenting it submitted an argument on his side of the question. It is learned that the correspondence speaks for itself executive, and after reading it the president almost immediately determined upon his course of action.

Secretary Noble says that he has no intention at present of making this correspondence public, but if it is deemed necessary, and there is any public demand for it, he may do so in the near future.

Commissioner Tanner was not at his office during the day. He has taken a temporary leave of absence until his successor is appointed.

Twenty-three Cars Burned.

WARRAW, N. Y., Sept. 14.—A Lehigh Valley freight, east bound, on the Erie track, split in two about a mile west of here at 4 a. m. The rear section overtook the first section and collided, making a bad wreck. Ten cars in the train and thirteen coal cars on the siding were burned. They were loaded with grain, machinery, coal, etc., and the loss is very heavy. Passenger trains were delayed only a short time.

Gettysburg Deserted Again.

GETTYSBURG, Pa., Sept. 14.—Governor Beaver and staff, Gen. Hastings and other state officers left town on a special train for their homes. The celebration is over and the various G. A. R. posts have broken camp and the town is deserted.

Drowned by a Capsizing Boat.

BALTIMORE, Sept. 14.—By the capsizing of a sailboat in the harbor Philip Sparrow, a locomotive engineer, was drowned.

THE BEHRING SEA AFFAIR.

Canada Hopes Sir Julian Pauncefote Will Bring About a Settlement.

OTTAWA, Ont., Sept. 14.—Sir John Macdonald and nearly all his colleagues have returned to the capital from the cabinet meeting daily. Considerable attention has been devoted to the Behring sea question.

The governor general has not failed to urge England to take some action all the recent seizures. The hope is expressed that Sir Julian Pauncefote will signalize his term by bringing about a settlement of all the questions in dispute between the two countries. Canada is not unwilling to negotiate for a simultaneous settlement of the dispute. It will be a great relief to Canada, as the illegal seizure of the American ship Bridgewater, at Shelburne, N. S., two years ago means the inevitable payment of compensation to the American owners.

The situation on the Atlantic coast will be more complicated than ever next season unless the United States promptly seeks a settlement. The modus vivendi under which fishing licenses are granted to Americans in the maritime provinces expires next February, and so far Mr. Blaine has not written the English government with regard to its renewal. It is the position that she cannot consistently take the initiative, owing to the action of the United States senate.

THE GREENBACKERS.

A Resume of the Platform—What They Think Should be Done.

CINCINNATI, Sept. 14.—The national Greenback convention resumed work at 12 o'clock. The platform, which was adopted, reasserts the third and fourth planks of the Democratic platform of 1888:

That all laws changing the time or manner of payment of the public debt are ex post facto laws and should be repealed; that all legal tender notes (greenbacks) now outstanding should immediately be changed for others of like denomination, and that the words "promise to pay" stricken from their face, and an additional amount issued to reclaim our arid lands, to subsidize the American merchant marine and build an American navy, to erect public buildings, and for such other purposes as will promote the general welfare, until this volume in circulation shall amount to $50 per capita of the entire population; that nearly all signs now point to a greater financial panic in the near future than this country or the world ever saw; that the Greenback party has come when all sectional prejudice between the people of the north and south should end.

Another Faith Cure Victim.

BROOKLYN, Sept. 14.—Martha Olsen, a Norwegian, aged 32, died of typhoid fever under such circumstances that the attending physician would not grant a certificate of death, and an investigation of the case has resulted in the arrest of Carl Olsen—no relation—with whose family the girl was stopping at the time of her death. Miss Olsen, who came to this country three years ago, was a believer in Christian Science, and attended the meetings of followers of that faith, became acquainted with Carl Olson and his family, who were also strong believers. Tuesday last the girl died. She believed that the Lord would cure her." Neighbors, however, insisted on the attendance of a physician, and Dr. A. W. Ford was summoned. He left a prescription to suit the case and was astounded when called again to find that it had not been filled. The girl was dead, as the doctor claims, from neglect in not having the prescription filled. Dr. Ford says that Olsen and his belief in the faith cure as an excuse for himself and the girl's own strong feeling in that direction.

2,500 Hungarians on Strike.

PUNXSUTAWNEY, Pa., Sept. 14.—Twenty-five hundred Hungarians are now on a strike in the Punxsutawney district, and 500 more will likely join the strikers next week. The Hums struck because the mine bosses pay the English speaking miners forty cents and the Hums in the same coal mine only thirty-five cents.

A Dishonest Letter Carrier.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 14.—The postoffice department is informed that postoffice inspectors have arrested Charles Lunt, a carrier in the New York postoffice, for stealing valuable letters. The arrest is considered as important. Lunt confessed.

CAIRO, Ills., Sept. 14.—There are symptoms of a race war in Mounds, at Dexter, a town about forty-two miles down the Iron Mountain road.

TWO STEAMERS COLLIDE

Three Men Were Killed in the Accident.

THRILLING SCENES ON BOARD.

A Panic Seizes the Passengers of the Pothesy and Many Leap Overboard in Terror—Saved by the Cool Bravery of the Captain.

MONTREAL, Can., Sept. 14.—A collision between two powerful steamers occurred on the St. Lawrence, resulting in the sinking of one and the wrecking of the other, and involving the loss of three lives. The dead are Samuel Jordon and Cornelius Sullivan, of Myra, and an unknown man.

How the Accident Happened.

Shortly before 8 o'clock the steamer Rothsay was running down the river toward Prescott, Ont., with an excursion party of seventy. A mile above Prescott the steamer Myra, the largest and most powerful tug of the Oglensburg Coal and Towing company, with a barge in tow, was coming at full speed up the river. At the point where the boats sighted each other the channel is very narrow, and the pilots whistled signals which, it appears, were misunderstood.

Almost immediately after the whistles sounded the two steamers came together with a terrible crash. The Rothsay struck the Myra on the port bow and cut half way through her, but in doing so smashed a terrible hole in her own bow, and the water began to fill with water, and as it was only a question of moments when they would go down, both were headed for the shore in an effort to reach shallow water.

A Panic Among the Passengers.

A panic immediately ensued on board the Rothsay, and the shrieks of the excursionists mingling with the hoarse cries of escaping steam from the exploded boiler of the Myra, made a pandemonium of terror striking sound, while now and then could be heard the heartrending cries of the men who had been fatally scalded by the terrible steam of the Myra. The latter boat sank in four minutes, all on board being thrown in the water, save the unfortunate men named, who went down with the boat.

Jumping Overboard in Terror.

When the Rothsay approached the shore the terror stricken passengers began jumping into the water. Then the boats were lowered, and the remainder, being somewhat quieted by the captain and officers, all with the exception of an unknown man, reached the shore in safety. The Rothsay was beached in fifteen feet of water, but was badly damaged. The boat is valued at $40,000 and the lost Myra at $10,000. Charles McEwan, a passenger on board the Rothsay at the time of the disaster, says that as the boats neared the shore the scene on board was a terrible one. The passengers were driven mad with terror. Women tried to drown their children in the river. Man fought and struggled to be first in the boats, many being seriously injured in the fight, and it was only his cool bravery at the helm of the boat which prevented a wholesale drowning calamity.

THE FLOOD COMMISSION.

Report of ex-Representative Hanna as to Individual Losses.

HARRISBURG, Pa., Sept. 14.—At a meeting of the State Flood Relief commission it was decided to distribute $80,000 in addition to the $107,500 already distributed to the sufferers of the flood in the West Branch valley. Ex-Representative Hanna, of Johnstown, representative of the committee selected to inquire into the individual losses of people in the Conemaugh valley, submitted papers showing that according to the statements of the sufferers they lost in the aggregate about $8,000,000. It is believed that 160 persons had suffered to the extent of $10,000 and over.

The commission at a late hour was devising plans looking to an early distribution of the fund under its control, amounting to over $1,500,000, nearly all of which will go to the flood sufferers at Johnstown and vicinity.

The Assembly Ceiling Case.

ALBANY, Sept. 14.—The grand jury resumed the hearing of the Assembly ceiling conspiracy. Second Deputy Attorney General Hogan conducted the case in the absence of Attorney General Tabor. Messrs. Jones and Rand did not attend. Owing to the newspaper criticism of their friendship for Andrews. Charles Tiernan, the other one of the trio and a capitol employe, was in his seat during the hearing of Mr. Andrews. Assistant Attorney Reilly was present. Those witnesses examined were: Capitol Commissioner Isaac G. Perry, Architect Prentice Cole, Superintendent of Public Works E. P. Shannahan, John Barry, of Buffalo, one of Sullivan's inspectors on the job; Architect Arthur C. H. Howe, George Hall, C. C. Wright, James H. St. Clair, John H. Mooney and Mr. Cole, who was storekeeper for Mr. Andrews. Charles B. Brush, another witness, failed to show up. Among the long list of witnesses yet to be called, and for whom subpoenas have been served, are Stanford Whitmore from Europe and George S. Weed, of California.

Skeletons Unearthed.

NEW BEDFORD, Mass., Sept. 14.—While workmen were excavating for the foundation for the new Catholic church, in this city, a dozen skulls and a number of human bones was exhumed a short distance below the surface. Inquiry developed the fact that while digging a cellar in the same place about forty-five years ago several skeletons were unearthed and reburied. Tradition has it that the bones belong to the crew of an English vessel, the Hazard, which, it is said, were buried here about the time of the revolutionary war.

Wyoming's Constitutional Convention.

CHEYENNE, Wy. T., Sept. 14.—The constitutional convention adopted a chapter on county organization. The only thing left to do on fixing a minimum valuation for new counties. The sum was placed at $2,000,000. A hot contest on apportionment is brewing. One proposition is to allow each county a state senator; another to make population the basis of representation. McCandlish, of Johnson, presented a bill making the formation or consolidation of a trust in the state a misdemeanor.

The London Strike to End Soon.

LONDON, Sept. 14.—It is considered almost certain that the strike will be ended during the day unless some unexpected hitch should occur in regard to the lighterman's remaining work. The dockers were greatly aided by the former in their fight, and now that employers of lighermen are disposed to withdraw their concessions, the dockers will stand by their friends. It is thought this difficulty will be avoided. Cardinal Manning's compromise is the basis of settlement.

Searle Will Row Gaudaur.

LONDON, Sept. 14.—Searle is willing to row Gaudaur on the Tyne or the Henley course, provided the race can be arranged to come off within five weeks from Sept. 16.

FERTILITY.

A Real Estate Agent Who Knew His Business.

Real Estate Agent showing prospective purchaser a tract of bottom land—"You don't find another quarter section like this within a hundred miles of here. Look at the color of the soil. See how the land lies toward the sun. It's cheap at double the price."

Prospective Purchaser—"But isn't it somewhat under water?" Does this stream never overflow its banks?

Real Estate Agent—Overflow! Never, sir, never.

Prospective Purchaser (peering to spy a bunch of half decayed grass and driftwood lodged twenty feet above his head in the fork of a tree)—How do you suppose that clump ever got up there?

Agent (enthusiastically)—Don't you see the tree grows right at the edge of the bank? That bunch of stuff was caught there when the tree was a little sapling. Probably happened a year or two ago. Just as I said, sir, richest soil in the world, sir!—Chicago Tribune.

Shut Up.

Bobby (trying to be funny)—Supposing I should steal him some night and take him to the pound?

Miss Edgeways—I don't believe the pound keeper would be entirely sure just which one of you to keep.—Judge.

He Was All Right.

On the draw of the bridge between East Boston and Chelsea there is a sign which reads:

"No one allowed on the draw when in motion."

As the bridge tenders were about to put off the draw the other day a gentleman who was standing on it did not move.

"You'll have to get off here," said one of the tenders.

"What for?"

"What for! Are you blind? Don't you see the sign there, 'No one allowed on the draw when in motion?'"

"Yes, I see the sign, but I'm not in motion. I'm standing quite still."

The tender didn't see the point, however, and the critic had to move.—Boston Courier.

A Thoughtful Fly Cop.

Sergt. Hennessy, when he was on the detective force, was the Sir Hoyle Roche of the department. It is related of "Tom" that he went with his partner to the river one day when the stream was rising. He saw a great many of the wharves in danger of being washed away, so that there were about three inches between the surface of the water and the top of the dock.

"We'd better go aboard," said Tom to his partner, "and warn the captain."

"Of what?" inquired his partner.

"Of his danger. The river is rising so rapidly that if it rises a few more inches the boat will sink," replied the wise detective.—St. Louis Star-Sayings.

Marine Disaster.

"Won't you come to the rescue, Mr. Simpkins?" said a young woman to a gentleman on an ocean steamer.

"What's the matter? Is there a man overboard?"

"I should think there was. Lillie Litched has been talking to Jack Wilson for nearly an hour. If you don't think he's overboard, come and look at him."—Washington Capital.

PHYSIOLOGY AND HYGIENE.

The Fatal Drug That for the Moment Makes Life a Dream of Happiness.

An English authority gives the following graphic description of the action of morphia and the experience of those who are known as "morphia fiends:"

Imagine an instrument about the size of a pencil case, constructed somewhat after the model of a syringe, and fitting into a tiny case that will go with ease into the waistcoat pocket or the bosom of the dress. This is the injector, and a slight puncture of the skin with the vaccinated point is the only way the required quantity of the magic fluid to be discharged into the system. There are three distinct stages of morphia absorption, all of them brief in duration, the last one briefest of all.

During the first stage the results are purely pleasurable, they bring a draught of fresh life into jaded limbs. The faculties receive a sudden stimulus, the callous sense of pleasure is sensitive once more, the vision of the world rosed on the mental eye is drawn in rosy lines, the whole is appreciation of things earthly is that of one who is prepared to drain the cup of life to the bottom and enjoy it to the full. The subject lives in a glorious sense of the happiness, her half closed eyes reveal the state of exquisite lassitude which laps her limbs, she feels that her one enemy is exertion, she is too happy to trouble about anything.

In time, however, a change comes o'er the spirit of this rose colored dream. Its continuity becomes broken by dreadful intervals of depression, during which the victim is oppressed by all the horrors of intense melancholy and weakness, and from which relief can only be obtained by continued repetition of the process of injection. It is so easy to drive away the blue devils that are making themselves apparent, to steel the reaction which has begun to set in, to change the dark misgivings which are cloudling over the vision of life into the rainbow hues of the morning, to transform the victim of melancholy, the prospective suicide, into the laughing child of fortune, and all for only constant use of the fatal drug; and as the former slight injections have lost their power, larger doses of the stimulant must be launched into the system.

The result, however, of the increase of the quantity injected is to develop the feeling of insomnia until in time—such a brief period it is completely overpowers the senses, and the victim becomes practically lost to the world. She lived in a rose colored world of her own, in which happiness reigns supreme and which she would not leave if she could; for her reentry into the life she has forsaken can only be accomplished by passing through a period of intense mental and bodily torture. She knows that she is slowly dying, that she is hastening to extinction in a soulless, mechanical way, like a clock which inevitably runs down when its motive power is exhausted; but her appreciation of abstract ideas has become blurred; life has lost its meaning, death its terrors. Better it is, she thinks, so far as she compares her condition at all, to feel slowly and happily out of life without a thought or a care to checker the last brief period of existence than to face the struggle by which alone she could be saved.

It has been reserved for modern science to bring into existence and use the dreams of the ancient poets—the drug which conferred happiness unchecked and unalloyed. Were it possible, however, to analyze the mental condition of the victim during the hours of reaction, it might be possible to realize also the tortures of the damned in the mediæval hell.

Sparkling Waters.

A very good way to prepare one's stomach for a day's work in warm weather is said to be to drink a glass of some sparkling water, the reason given being that the gas which is the cause of the stomach lining membrane after some hours of inactivity, and this needs to be removed before digestion fairly begins. Nothing is said to be better than a copious draught of sparkling water, whose carbonic acid sweeps the organ clean and makes it ready for the day's labor. It ordinarily has a slight purgative action, and as it is of the utmost importance now that the bowels do their work well. Neglect of this most important function is almost sure to bring about serious trouble.

Cure for Deafness of Old Age.

A Milan physician reports that he has successfully treated cases of deafness from old age. He mops the membrana tympani with a weak oleaginous solution of phosphorus. He claims that this diminishes the opacity of the membrana, increases the circulation and improves the hearing.

SOCIAL ETIQUETTE.

The Underbred Girl—Signs That Mark an Unpleasant Species of Woman Kind.

The underbred girl is known at a glance. Harper's Bazar enumerates some of the things that stamp her like a sign manual. She giggles, stuffs her handkerchief into her mouth and wears her glove with one finger out and bare. She is usually dressed as nearly in the height of fashion as her knowledge and circumstances permit, even if her "things" are pinned together and her waist answering for a stitch with her. In the street she is always more or less conscious of her clothes, throws about side glances that, however innocent, expose her to misconception, and receives amiably glances that would be insulting if she knew enough to be insulted instead of flattered by them. In the house she sits with her feet pushed out or her feet drawn in, and one foot high in air; she has a finger in her mouth, or thrusts her tongue into the side of it; she bites her nails, scratches her face, or keeps her hands at work on her lips or chin or eyes.

She is rather fond of perfumes, waits of them following her as she moves, with the suggestion of burned or singed cottons to the cheap kind she is usually obliged to content herself with; she wears cotton lace, and all sorts of shams in jewelry and adornment, and so long as her outside is fine, what matters underclothing is of no consequence. In her conversation, too, she affects the knowledge of the world which expresses itself to those in it in a number of vague phrases or lips that is not savored with the spice of this misuse of English. She may be, with all this, the soul of kindness, warm hearted, sincere, even of a certain refinement; but she is an exceedingly uncomfortable, mortifying and distasteful person to be thrown with to any extent in daily life.

At the Table.

All ladies, including those of the household, should be served before any gentleman guest is helped.

Eat quietly and slowly; don't take huge mouthfuls or masticate audibly.

A lady sitting at a gentleman's side should receive attention and not be neglected, whether he has been introduced to her or not.

It is no longer considered necessary to pause food upon the point; in fact, to worry one with impertinities to partake of this or that article of food or drink to is the worst taste.

Drink tea and coffee from the cup, never from the saucer. Let the spoon lie always in the saucer, except when used for stirring; especially do not carry it to the cup when the latter is raised to the lips.

SCIENCE AND PROGRESS.

A VARIETY OF SUBJECTS CONSIDERED IN A PRACTICAL MANNER.

The Maximum Density of Water—An Interesting Experiment Adapted for Lecture Illustration—The Lighting of Trains by Electricity Practicable.

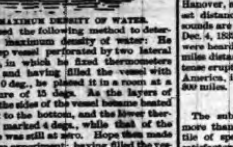
Water presents the phenomenon that when its temperature sinks it contracts up to 4 degs.; but from that point, although the cooling continues, it expands up to the freezing point, so that 4 degs. represents the point of greatest contraction of water, or what is called its point of maximum density.



THE MAXIMUM DENSITY OF WATER.

Hope used the following method to determine the maximum density of water: He took a deep vessel perforated by two lateral apertures, in which he fixed cylinders open at both ends, and having filled the vessel with water at 5 deg., he placed it in a room at a temperature of 15 degs. As the layers of liquid at the sides of the vessel became heated they sank to the bottom, and the lower thermometer marked 4 degs., while that of the upper one was still at zero. Hope then made an aperture in the upper cylinder, filled the vessel with water at 15 degs., he placed it in a room at zero. The lower thermometer, having sunk to 4 degs., remained stationary for some time, while the upper one cooled down until it reached zero. Both these experiments prove that water is heavier at 4 degs. than at 0 deg., for in both cases it sinks to the lower part of the vessel. The experiment may be adapted for lecture illustration by using a cylinder containing water of 15 degs. C. partially surrounded by a jacket containing ice and ice, as shown in the cut.

This phenomenon is of great importance in the economy of nature. In winter the temperature of lakes and rivers falls from the surface downward, the cold air, and from other causes, such as radiation. The colder water sinks to the bottom and a continual succession of currents is formed, until the whole mass a temperature of 4 degs. The cooling on the surface still continues, but the cooled layers, being lighter, remain on the surface and ultimately freeze. The temperature then prevails below, which remains at a temperature of 4 degs., even in the most severe winters, a temperature at which fish and other inhabitants of the water are not destroyed.

Why Sixty Seconds Make a Minute.

Why is our hour divided into sixty minutes, each minute into sixty seconds, etc.? Simply and solely, replies Max Muller in Fortnightly Review, because in Babylon there existed by the side of the decimal system of notation another system, the sexagesimal, which counted by sixties. Why that number should have been chosen is clear enough, and it speaks well for the practical spirit of those ancient Babylonian merchants. There is no number which has so many divisors as 60. The Babylonians divided the sun's daily journey into 24 parcasangs, and as each parcasang or hour was subdivided into 60 minutes. A parasang is about a German mile, and Babylonian astronomers computed the parcasang or hour's journey to be 180 stadia at the time of the equinox to the progress made by a good walker during the same time, both accomplishing one parasang. The whole course of the sun during the 24 sexagesimal hours was fixed at 24 parasangs or 720 stadia, or 360 degrees.

This system was handed on to the Greeks, and Hipparchus, the great Greek philosopher, who lived about 150 B. C., introduced the Babylonian hour into Europe. Ptolemy, who wrote about 140 A. D., and whose name still is that of the highest authority in the science of astronomy, gave still wider currency to the Babylonian way of reckoning time. It was carried along on the quiet straits of traditional practice through the Middle Ages, and strange to say, it sailed down safely over the Niagara of the French revolution. For the French, when revolutionizing weights, measures, coins and calendars, and subjecting all to the decimal system of reckoning, were induced by some unexplained motive to respect our clocks and watches, and allowed the dials to remain as they were, that is, Babylonian, each hour consisting of sixty minutes.

Lighting Trains by Electricity.

The experiments now being conducted on the trains of the Milwaukee and St. Paul railroad, according to Popular Science News, give substantial evidence that electric lighting of trains is not only possible but practicable. Four main conductors extend the whole length of the train, and the circuit is so arranged that the dynamo, the storage batteries and the lamps may be handled collectively or separately, as occasion requires. The engine is coupled directly to the dynamo, and drives the armature at a speed of 900 revolutions a minute. When the locomotive is detached from the train, the storage batteries are brought into service and the lights are unaffected. Signal or cars may be separated from the train without interfering with the light of either the train or the detached cars, as the storage batteries supply all the lamps. Each car is fitted with a switch at each end of each car, the lamps in the middle, at either end, or on either side of the car may be cut out of circuit without affecting the remainder. The couplings between cars are made with cables placed over the doors and under the projecting roofs. The dynamo, engine, switches and resistance coils occupy an apartment in the baggage car, while in one end of a baggage car, and a storage battery of thirty-two cells is placed under each car.

How a High Chimney Was Overthrown.

The simple and successful plan by which a high chimney was recently overthrown at New Bedford, Mass., is described in Scientific American. The chimney, which was 160 feet by 80 feet square, was undermined by removing one the bricks on the west and north sides, and shored up by placing wood in the apertures. These planks were liberally covered with tar and kerosene. When the time arrived for felling the chimney, they were fired. As they became consumed they ceased to support the chimney, the mass settled out of the perpendicular to the north, and then cracked and fell with a crash to the ground.

The Chevalier Gaudet, who, driven penniless from France at the time of the outbreak of the first revolution, made a fortune in London by preparing salads at ten guineas apiece, always approached the sacred bowl in full dress costume, with his sword by his side.

THE CURIOSITY SHOP.

How Far Sound May Be Heard—The Most Useful Stone Should Be Dense.

In reference to the question as to the distance at which sounds may be heard, both of the voice and of cannon, it may be observed that the conditions under which the sound of cannon or even the sound of a human voice can be heard are various. Atmospheric currents unquestionably have something to do with it. Then there are local circumstances which favor or disfavor the hearing of sounds at great distances. However, the distance at which the ear can distinguish sound depends both on the intensity of the sound, the medium through which it is transmitted and other causes. In the polar regions Sir John Franklin said he "conversed with one at a distance of more than a mile." Sound has greater force in water. Colladon, by experiments made in the Lake Geneva, estimated that a bell submerged in the sea might be heard at a distance of more than sixty miles.

Franklin also says that he heard the striking together of two stones in the water half a mile away. The report of a cannon travels very far, because it communicates a vibration to the soil. The commander of Florence was heard beyond Leghorn, about fifty-six miles off, and that of Genoa 100 miles off. In Timbuctoo, the cannon of Bagoue was heard at Timbuck, a village 148 miles off. When the English landed in Egypt the firing was distinctly heard 180 miles off. In 1809 the booming of the cannon in Heligoland reached Hanover, a distance of 157 miles. The greatest distance at which artificially produced sounds are known to have been heard was in Dec. 4, 1832, when the explosion of Antwerp was heard in the Erzeebirge mountains, 370 miles distant. The noise produced by an intense eruption of Mount Cotopaxi, in South America, in 1744, was heard at a distance of 600 miles.

Origin of Language.

The subject of the origin of language, more than any other perhaps, has been fertile of speculation and attended with less satisfactory results than any other topic. The latest positively insist that the Hebrew tongue is the primitive language and was the one spoken by Adam and Eve. The Arabic, however, disputes the point of antiquity with the Hebrew.

Of all the languages, except the Hebrew, the Syriac has had the greatest number of advocates, especially among eastern authors. Many maintain that the language spoken by Adam is lost and that the Hebrew, Chaldee and Arabic are only dialects of the original tongue. Georgius Pollinarius, in 1537 in Louvain, argued that Dutch was the language of Paradise. Andre Kemp maintained that God spoke to Adam in Swedish, Adam answered in Danish and Eve began in French (very like satire), while the Persians believe three languages to have been spoken in Paradise: Arabic, the most persuasive, by the serpent; Persian, the most poetic, by Adam and Eve, and Turkish, the most threatening, by the angel Gabriel. Erno cisius Basque as the language spoken by Adam, and others would make the Polynesian the most primitive tongue of mankind.

Darwin says what must be admitted throws no more light on this subject than is in the fancies already named: "With respect to the origin of articulate speech, after having read on the one side the highly interesting works of Wedgwood, Farrar and Professor Schleicher, and the celebrated lectures of Professor Max Muller on the other side, I cannot doubt that language owes its origin to the imitation and modification, aided by signs and gestures, of various natural sounds, the voices of other animals and man's own instinctive cries."

The Harvest Moon.

The "harvest moon" is the full moon near the autumnal equinox, Sept. 22. It usually occurs in September, though in 1892 it fell on Oct. 1. The peculiarity of this moon is that during the time that she is full, and a few days before and after, in all about a week, there is less difference between the time of her rising on any two successive nights than when she is full in any other month in the year. By this means an immediate supply of light is obtained after sunset during the cultivation of these harvest moons which is beneficial to the husbandman. In order to gain an insight into this phenomenon, it must be borne in mind that the moon is always opposite to the sun when she is full; that she is full in the signs Pisces and Aries, these being the signs opposite to Virgo and Libra, which are the sun's place in September and October. Thus, although whenever the moon enters these two signs and she does so twelve times in a year), the same circumstances take place with regard to the time of her rising, yet it is not observed on these other occasions, just because she is not full at the time. The reason of there being little difference in the time at which she rises on several consecutive nights is that at these periods her orbit is nearly parallel with the horizon.

Antiquity of Electricity.

Thales, a Greek philosopher, who lived 600 years before Christ, is said to have known the electrical properties of rubber and amber. Otto von Guericke, in 1647, constructed the first electrical machine. Franklin, in 1749, killed a turkey by electricity, and roasted it as an electrical feat before a fire kindled by the electric spark. Perhaps this was the earliest actual use of electricity. As long ago as 1767 electric shocks were sent over short distances. Retsen, in 1794, by using thirty-six wires, one for each letter or character, sent messages over small distances. Morse simplified the telegraph, using only one wire, instead of from twenty-five to thirty-six wires. His first public message was "What hath God wrought!" This was on May 24, 1844. Two days later the Democratic convention in Baltimore nominated James K. Polk for president and Silas Wright for vice president. Mr. Vail, Morse's assistant, telegraphed the news to Morse in the Capitol. Morse told Wright, but the convention was astonished to get a dispatch from him declining the nomination. The convention wouldn't believe it, and sent a committee to Washington to get reliable information. This was double loss the first news telegram sent.

Women as Doctors.

Women are entering the medical profession in quite large numbers. The medical colleges where women are admitted as regular students are, as far as ascertained, are: The Woman's college of Philadelphia, Women's college of New York infirmary, Woman's college of Chicago, and the Woman's college of Baltimore. Also, the following on the list of educational: Cornell University of Michigan, University of California, University of Syracuse, we think the University of Vermont, the Howard University of Washington, Cleveland Medical college, and Rocky Mountain university, Denver, Colo.

London Parks.

The area of the London parks, properly so called, is about 2,620 acres, and includes Battersea, Finsbury, Greenwich, Hyde, Kilburn, Regent's, St. James', Southwark, West, Victoria and Victoria parks. Besides these there are in the immediate neighborhood Greenwich, Kensington, Westminster and Richmond parks, with an area of about 6,000 acres, and open spaces in the shape of various heaths and commons. The parks, commons and open spaces under the metropolitan board of works contain 1,895½ acres.

ALL AROUND THE HOUSE.

New and Taking Articles That Adorn Parlor and Boudoir.

Quite novel are "tea cup" brackets. These are intended to be hung sufficiently low on the wall for cups to be placed on the shelf provided. They are rather long and oblong in form; at the top is a shelf for ornaments, with a railed edge; just below this is a panel painted in oils. The cup shelf is fixed at a convenient distance beneath, then the bracket narrows and a small mirror with beveled edge and shelf in front to hold a vase terminates the entity of affair.

Altogether new and taking is a design for a little work table of white enameled wood. The top is composed of two flaps that open outward and disclose a firm, square work bag with compartments for scissors, thimble, needlebook, and so on. The outside of the bag is draped with Indian silk finished off with pompons; when the flaps are closed it makes a convenient occasional table, and the top is to be tastefully painted with groups of flowers.

An infinite variety of small articles are now mounted upon easels, so that they will stand upon a table and display themselves easily for inspection. One of the latest fancies is to mount a small wooden palette on which is first covered with plush. Into the front of this are screwed a few tiny brass hooks, so disposed as to be convenient for holding old miniatures, ancient seals, medals, or similar curiosities of small size.

Flower pots and large flower bowls for parlor or boudoir are often draped with silk. The pot is placed upon a square or circular piece of silk, which is raised to the top of the flower pot, and there held in place by a gathering thread, carried round, firmly drawn up and fastened off. A pretty cover is made of any colored satin, veiled with lattice work of briers; and where they cross are set miniature roses, so that the whole cover is strewn with soft pink petals.

Tasteful Window Drapery.

Much of the good effect of a room depends upon the taste displayed in the shades and draping of window hangings and portieres. A handsome style of window drapery illustrated by Decorator and Furnisher is here shown.

WINDOW DRAPERY IN BLUE AND GOLD.

First curtain in gold silk gauze, decorated with a band of plush in Japanese blue, with a design of gold gauze. Second curtain, one part of Japanese blue plush, the other of gold gauze; knobs of Japanese blue satin. This arrangement, with its exquisite materials and artistic coloring, is extremely regaling. The design, however, may be copied, as to its graceful draping, with charming and equally graceful results in simpler fabrics.

A Culinary Convenience.

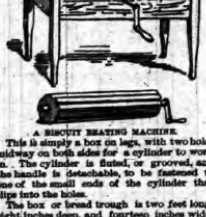
The operation of making what are called biscuit in the south, and "beaten biscuit" or "cracker dough," in the north, is greatly facilitated by the use of one of the little biscuit beating machines that come for the purpose. When the ready made article is not to be procured, it is easy to have a substitute made by any carpenter with the aid of the following design and dimensions, contributed to Good Housekeeping by a correspondent.



A BISCUIT BEATING MACHINE.

This is simply a box on legs, with two holes midway on both sides for a cylinder to work in. The cylinder is fluted, or grooved, and has a crank handle at each end. The cylinder is of the small ends of the cylinder that slips into the holes.

The box or bread trough is two feet long, eight inches deep and fourteen inches wide. The cylinder should be about fourteen inches long and eight or nine inches in circumference.

In using it, you mix the dough in a tray bowl, then put it in the dough trough at A, turn the crank C with the right hand, and with the other forward the grooved cylinder with the other. The dough will pass under the cylinder, or roller, D, to B; then reverse the crank, and the dough will return to A. Continue this operation until the dough is light, eating smooth to the touch, and will peel in thin flakes.

Candied Fruits.

Make a thick syrup with a teacupful of water to a pound of sugar, and in this boil peaches, pears, plums, apricots, cherries or other fruits; quince must be boiled tender. Take the fruit remain two days in the syrup, then drain it out, sprinkle sugar over each piece and dry in the sun or a moderately warm oven.

Spanish Cream.

Beat the yolks of three eggs with half a cupful of powdered sugar; heat half an ounce of isinglass with a quart and a half of milk; when it is hot and melted add slowly into the yolks; allow it to boil up again and stir in the beaten whites of the eggs, pour into molds and let it cool.

Peach Pudding.

Fill the pudding dish with alternate layers of crumbs, dotted with butter, and sliced and pressed peaches, having crumbs on top. Pour over custard made of one pint of milk, the yolks of two eggs and two tablespoonfuls of sugar. Steam, and serve with any good sauce.

Cup Cake.

One cup of butter, two cups of sugar, three cups of flour, four eggs, two-thirds of a cup of milk and one teaspoonful of baking powder.

Grape Fruit Sherbet.

Use the strained juices of the fruit, mixed with an equal quantity of syrup made from white sugar; freeze it like any water ice.

CHAPTE ROXIV.

A Further Supplement to an act entitled "An act providing for sewerage in and by adjoining cities, towns and townships," approved the twenty-first day of April, one thousand eight hundred and eighty-seven.

1. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That the fourth section of an act entitled "An act providing for sewerage in and by adjoining cities, towns and townships," approved April twenty-first, one thousand eight hundred and eighty-seven, be and the same is hereby amended so as to read as follows:

4. And be it enacted, That the said council or township committee of any town or township and the proper municipality of such adjoining municipalities, in any matter for contract or agreement provided for by the first section of this act, may appoint one disinterested commissioner, who, after first making oath or affirmation, in writing, that he will faithfully execute the powers and discharge the duties vested and imposed upon them honestly and faithfully and to the best of their ability, and understanding, shall appoint an additional disinterested commissioner, who shall not be a person who resides in the county but shall be a non-resident of each town or township and of each of the adjoining municipality, who shall make the same oath or affirmation as to whom requested to act by the other commissioners, all of which oaths or affirmations aforesaid shall be filed in the office of the clerk of the county in which the said municipalities are situated; the compensation of each of the said commissioners shall not exceed five hundred dollars for services rendered, of them under the provisions of this act, and the compensation shall be apportioned in equal amounts between or among the municipalities, and said commissioners shall draw an order on the collecting officer of each town or township and the municipality in favor of the chairman of the said commissioners, which order shall be a charge against the municipality on which it is drawn, and is to be paid by the first day of April in the year next ensuing after the appointment of said committee to pay to each of said commissioners the compensation herein specified.

2 And be it enacted, That the fifth section of the same act to which this is an act is hereby amended so as to read as follows:

5. And be it enacted, That after filing the oaths prescribed in the next preceding section the commissioners shall consider all the territory in each municipality, and may employ one or more surveyors to determine the area in each having no sewerage system, which such commissioners may deem required into the same outlet or main sewer, and shall make a map showing such drainage area, divided into lots and parcel of land, and showing also the size, route and outlet of a main or outlet sewer, and such other matters as they may deem proper; they shall also prepare plans of the work required to be done thereon, and shall make or estimate or the probable total cost and expense of constructing the same, and shall ascertain and determine the probable assessment which will be levied or imposed upon each lot or parcel of land for the payment of the area specially benefited by the construction of such sewer, the proportion of the total amount of the cost and expense of construction which such municipality shall pay, and the time or times when during the progress of the work; and the amount to be advanced by each municipality shall be in proportion as near as may be to the estimated benefits therein shall bear to the aggregate of the same benefits in the whole area, for doing in such proceedings, and without unnecessary delay they shall report and file the proper authorities of such municipalities, and in such proceedings duplicates of their reports, plans, estimates, maps, and such duplicates shall remain open to public examination and inspection in the office of the clerk of the county in which they may be filed until the time for presenting objections thereto, as hereinafter provided, shall have expired; notice of the filing of such reports, plans, estimates and maps may be published by the clerk, of each municipality, in the official newspapers thereof, for four weeks successively, and by the clerk of the county, a like notice shall also describe the boundaries of the drainage area or of such parts thereof as may be thereby, and shall designate the place or places in which such reports, plans, estimates and such reports, plans, estimates and maps may be seen and examined, and shall specify the time within which objections may be made in writing to such reports to the construction of such proposed sewer, which time shall be fixed at a day at which time shall not be less than forty days from the date of the first publication of such notice; all written objections to the construction of such sewer shall be filed in the office of the clerk of the municipality which includes the drainage area in which the land of the objector is situated, at any time prior to the expiration of the time specified in the notice, the printed copies of such notice in at least twenty conspicuous places in the village and each school district shall at least fifteen days prior to the expiration of the time specified in the notice, be printed copies of such notice in at least twenty conspicuous places in the village and each school district shall at least fifteen days prior to the expiration of the time specified in the notice, be printed copies of such notice in at least twenty conspicuous places in the village and each school district shall,

LAWS OF NEW JERSEY.

[BY AUTHORITY.]

CHAPTER CXXVIII.

An act to authorize cities of this state to elect a mayor for the term of two years.

1. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That in all cities of this state, in which the mayor shall be elected by the voters thereof, such mayor shall hereafter be elected for the term of two years, to commence on the day fixed by law for the commencement of the term.

2. And be it enacted, That all acts and parts of acts inconsistent herewith are hereby repealed.

3. And be it enacted, That this act shall be a public act, and shall take effect immediately.

Approved April 6, 1889.

CHAPTER CXXIX.

An Act to authorize cities in this state located on or near the ocean and rivers within or near the ocean and rivers within certain counties in this state to establish a bulkhead front, to by and upon streets and drives, and to construct public works for the reclaiming of the beach or ocean front, to grade and other-wise improve the same, to provide the funds necessary therefor, and to regulate the use thereof.

1. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That it shall be lawful for the mayor and council or other governing body in the cities of this state located on or near the ocean, and embracing within their limits the beach or ocean front thereof, to pass an ordinance or ordinances duly passed for that purpose, to establish a bulkhead front along those streets and drives, and construct public works on the beach or ocean front thereof, in such manner to grade or otherwise improve the same, whether such streets or public walk shall be laid out or constructed wholly or partly between high and low water mark, or wholly between high and low water mark, or wholly on the beach or ocean front thereof.

2. And be it enacted, That where, in any ordinance passed by the said mayor and council or other governing body for the purpose aforesaid, designating therein the street or streets, or public walk, or drive, or walks, which is the intention of such city to lay out, open and construct, and the boundaries of the improvement intended to be made, and which ordinance or ordinances shall be published in two newspapers of said city, if there shall be more than a third resident, and before the passage thereof there shall be given at least ten days' notice of such city any new or hereafter may be published in such city, or if there be no such city, or other principal law officer of such city, on behalf of such city, to make application to the circuit court in the county where such city is situate, for the appointment of three disinterested freeholders of said county, to determine which the opening, laying out, constructing or improving any such street or walk or drive will occasion; all such damages shall include the value of the land taken, as well as the damage to the residue of the property of the owner or owners of such land, by reason of such taking; and thereupon such application will be heard, shall be given, as the court may direct, to the owner or owners of such property, or to the agent of such owner or owners, upon satisfactory evidence of such notice having been given, the said court shall, without unnecessary delay, appoint three disinterested commissioners, who shall be different from the commissioners before appointed, to which the application is made; when so appointed they shall proceed to view the premises, and after their appointment take and subscribe an oath before some person duly qualified to administer oaths, faithfully and impartially to execute the duties imposed upon them as such commissioners, and shall proceed with all convenient speed to the execution of their duties, in respect of the lands, tenements, refused to be given, or of the owner or owners unknown, or of the vacancy to be filled in case of the refusal to act or may or be, on application as aforesaid.

3. And be it enacted, That the said commissioners so appointed shall immediately after they are qualified as hereby directed, give public notice of their appointment, and of the said city in which the public laws and legal notices are required to be published, of the time and place of their meeting, at least ten days before the said meeting; and the commissioners shall meet at the time and place which the application is made; when so appointed they shall have power to examine witnesses on oath, to be sworn by any officer authorized by them, to enter upon and view the premises, and may adjourn from time to time; and they shall make a report of their estimate and assessment of the damages and benefits as aforesaid, and the same shall be in writing, and shall be signed by the said commissioners, or any two of them, and delivered to the said city, or other officer, or to the agent of such city, at least ten days before the said meeting; at least ten days before the said meeting; and the said commissioners shall, at the time and place of hearing any objections that may be made to assessments, and after hearing any such matter which may be alleged against the same, the said commissioners shall have power to confirm the said report, or refer the same back to the commissioners for their further information, or to new commissioners to be appointed by the said court to reconsider the matter, as the said court shall direct; the commissioners to whom the said report shall be so referred shall return the same report, or a new report, as the case may be, to be made by them in the premises, to the said court, and upon such report being made to and the same on being so returned, shall be confirmed or set aside referred for the said court, as to the said court shall seem right and just; and the said court shall from time to time until a report shall be made or returned which shall be confirmed by the said court shall confirm; and such report, when so confirmed, shall be conclusive as to the amount to be paid as well upon the said city as the owners of any land or interest in land taken for the purpose, and said court shall thereupon cause a certified copy of the said report to be made, and the said court confirming the said report; and upon the production of such certified copy of the said report, the said city shall thereupon order and cause the said assessment so to be made to be paid to the persons awarded to be paid as herein provided; and the said city may thereupon enter upon the lands and premises described in such report, upon the payment of damages and assessments for benefits as aforesaid, or upon the payment of the money into court for the use of the persons entitled thereto, as hereinafter provided, or may make separate reports thereof, as may be deemed most advisable by them.

4. And be it enacted, That whenever any estimate and assessment shall be made, and duly noticed, and certified as aforesaid, it shall be the duty of the common council or other governing body of such city, in which the said lands are situate, to levy a sufficient amount of money to pay the damages so estimated and assessed to the owners of land taken or other persons entitled to the same, and to collect and receive the benefits same from the treasurer of such city, or in default thereof, may have an action against such city to recover the same, in the court having jurisdiction thereof; and the lands and real estate so assessed shall be bound for the said deposit, become the property of such city for the use and benefit of the owner or owners thereof, and such city shall be entitled to the possession thereof immediately, and the conveyance of benefits having been received and certified as aforesaid, order and direct the collector or collectors of such city to make an abstract of such assessments, and to enter the same in a book to be kept for that purpose, and to give notice thereof, either personally or by publication in one or more newspapers published in the said city, or in the newspapers published in the said city publishing the official notices thereof, stating the amount assessed upon the several lots of streets and lands comprised in such assessment, and requiring the payment of the said assessment to be made to the treasurer of such city, or to the other proper officer authorized to receive the same, within sixty days after the first publication of said notice; and all such assessments for benefits shall be a first and paramount lien and charge upon the lands and real estate upon which the same are imposed, and may be collected by the said city after providing, to collect the amount of the assessment so made; it shall be the duty of the said commissioners, in reporting their said report to annex thereto proper maps showing thereon the lands and premises affected by the assessments awarded thereto, and the names of the owners thereof, so far as the same can be ascertained, and where they cannot be ascertained, such award shall be made to the owners as "owners unknown," and a general description of the location of the lands assessed for benefits, with the amounts of such assessments, and to whom awarded, and the names of the persons who are the owners of such lands so assessed, if known or ascertained, and when they cannot be ascertained they shall be designated as "owners unknown."

5. And be it enacted, That if the award or damages is made to any person who is not rightfully entitled to the same by reason of the same be found therein, or is a lunatic or idiot, or under age, or for any other like reason is incapacitated to receive the same or will not accept the same when tendered, that the city treasurer shall make a note of the fact, and the city shall file the same with the city clerk, and the commissioners of appeal hereinafter provided for, and the said city, shall, after inquiry into the facts of the case direct the amount of such city for the use of the person or persons to whom the same may be due, and the payment of such award to the person or persons entitled to receive the same, and such payment shall be paid to the person or persons entitled to receive the same, and such payment shall be paid to the person or persons entitled to receive the same, and such payment shall be exempt from the time that a lawful demand shall be made therefor and payment therefor refused, and the city treasurer or the said city treasurer shall make application to the circuit court of the county wherein such city is situate, and the said court shall make inquiry on such application, and make such order and regulations for the investment and distribution of the said moneys as may be just and proper for the protection of the rights of all parties, and the said court may make such rules and regulations for the practice or procedure thereunder, as shall be deemed expedient.

6. And be it enacted, That all assessments for costs, damages or expenses which shall be incurred in the opening, laying out or construction of any street, public walk or drive or for the improvement thereof made under the authority of this act, or any other act amendatory thereof, or supplemental to the same, and commissioners upon all the owners of land and real estate in such city or other persons entitled thereto, in the manner hereby or may be to the advantage such shall be assessed by the said commissioners, and such assessment shall exceed the amount of damages awarded, such excess shall be assessed upon and paid by such city.

7. And be it enacted, That in order to provide for the payment of the costs, damages and expenses which may be incurred in making and completing any such improvement, it shall be lawful for the common council or other governing body of such city, in the name of said city, to issue its bonds in any sum not exceeding in the aggregate one hundred thousand dollars, to be designated "city improvement bonds," and to dispose of the same for any period not exceeding twenty years from the date thereof, and at such rate of interest as they may see proper, and the same may be sold at not less than par, and the proceeds thereof shall be applied to the payment of the costs, damages and expenses of such improvement, and to no other purpose; and the said bonds shall be signed by the mayor of said city, and countersigned by the city clerk, and sealed with the corporate seal of said city, and shall be duly executed for the purpose of said bonds, and shall be lawful for said city, in addition to the power to issue bonds hereinbefore granted, to issue temporary loans or certificates of indebtedness, from time to time, to an amount not to exceed in the aggregate the sum of twenty thousand dollars, for the purpose of paying the interest on

MITTINGS.

—Days of 1889 past, 299; days to come, 106

—The farmers are cutting corn in some sections of the country.

—Now is the time to train the trees before the sap runs to the roots.

—The Primrose and West minstrels will appear at Music Hall to-night.

—The Paterson Fire Department will hold its annual parade to-morrow.

—The prospect of a good crop of buckwheat cakes is most encouraging.

—Mr. Richard A. Ross is the newly appointed postmaster at Bloomington, N. J.

—The Primrose and West minstrel troupe paraded the streets of this city at noon to-day.

—The third installment of the Laws of New Jersey passed by the last Legislature, is published to-day.

—Business men and others in need of any kind of printing will find it to their interest to favor THE NEWS.

—The City Common Council will hold a meeting to-night to consider the bids to erect a water works system in Plainfield.

—Now's the time for rod's pitter patter can be heard throughout the land, and as soon the festive schoolboy usually prefers to stand.

—The Stars and Washington's (colored) will play a game of ball on the Crescents grounds next Thursday afternoon at half-past three o'clock.

—A plaster of common soap and brown sugar applied to a wound made by a pin or other poisonous articles will draw out the poison.

—The best way to cook a reed bird is to split a sweet potato, tuck the bird inside, stick it in the oven. All the juice of the bird is sopped up and held by the potato.

—The members of the Women's Christian Temperance Union of this city are cordially invited to attend the county convention of the W. C. T. U. at Roselle to-morrow.

—The regular business meeting of the Woman's Temperance Aid Society will be held Tuesday afternoon at four o'clock in Reform Hall. A full attendance is desired.

—Joseph English, the temperance orator, will be in Morristown for a week commencing September 18th, and will hold meetings under a tent to be erected in a convenient place.

—Every young man in the city is reminded of the young men's meeting at the Y. M. C. A. rooms, at eight o'clock, to-night. Spirited singing and live talks from young men may be expected.

—Black and fox squirrels may be killed in this State during the last four months of the year, but there is a penalty of $20 for each gray squirrel killed, except between Nov. 1st and Dec. 15th.

—The Gospel meetings held every Sunday in Reform Hall at 4 p. m., under the auspices of the Woman's Temperance Aid Society, are full of interest. Good spirited music under the leadership of Mr. J. D. Moon, add greatly to the success of the meetings.

—No man can tell what he can do until he gets himself in a corner. A young man was recently arrested for stealing an umbrella and he confessed that he stolen an average of 500 per year for three years. On one occasion he stole thirty in twenty four hours.—Elizabeth Journal.

—An Episcopal church is to be founded at New Providence through the efforts of the Rev. Mr. Reilly, of Scotch Plains. Bishop Scarborough has endorsed the idea and headed the subscription list with a contribution of $100. Dr. Bessinger has agreed to give the land necessary.—Madison Eagle.

—It is the busy men who keep the world moving. It is the busy men who sustain society, and the busy men, who are the projectors of progress and improvements. The lazy is already full of trouble. He is never content with himself. He never succeeds. He has fault to find with everyone but himself.

North Plainfield's Republican Primary.

The primary meeting held Saturday evening in Spencer's Hall, was called to order by Assessor Brokaw. Justice James Hardy was made chairman and Mr. R. R. Fairchild secretary. Mr. Brokaw and Borough Counsel Charles Reid were elected the delegates to the State convention at Trenton, to-morrow, to nominate a candidate for Governor.

There are two polling districts in the borough.

Both delegates reside in the first district, the second being without a delegate. The neglect to select one of the delegates from the second district was probably due to oversight.

Training Class Conference To-Night.

An opportunity will be afforded at the Y. M. C. A. rooms this evening, at nine o'clock, for young men who may wish either to join the Workers' Training classes of the Association, or to obtain information in regard to the conduct of such classes. Sunday-school superintendents and teachers, are especially invited.

DRUNK AND DISORDERLIES.

Four Persons were Captured by the Police Saturday.

Police Grant arrested a man named Frame for being drunk and disorderly at the depot Saturday night. Yesterday morning Judge Stillman fined him $3.

Thomas Judd, was found drunk at the Grant avenue station by Policeman Flanagan Saturday night. He paid a two dollar fine imposed by Judge Stillman yesterday morning.

James McCabe was helplessly drunk at the Grant avenue station late Saturday night. Policeman Flanagan arrested him, and yesterday morning Judge Stillman imposed a two-dollar fine.

Miles Sweeney was drunk and disorderly on Park avenue Saturday night. Policeman Giese arrested him. As the officer was locking him up in a cell at the station house Sweeney hit him a blow between the eyes which almost stunned him. Yesterday morning he paid Judge Stillman $15 for the fun he had.

Mrs. Ellis's Work.

The ladies of the Plainfield Women's Christian Temperance Union have been encouraged and enthused by the presence and earnest words of Mrs. J. T. Ellis.

During the week that Mrs. Ellis was with us she addressed three evening meetings, including and beginning with the anniversary exercises held in the First Presbyterian church Thursday, Sept. 5th.

Three delightful prior meetings were held in private houses, invitations having been sent to between five and six hundred ladies. Music and light refreshments added to the attractiveness and sociability of these gatherings, and all present were interested in and touched by the inspired words of the speaker.

Many were enlightened as to the magnitude and breadth of the work which this band of two hundred and fifty thousand women is striving to do; many were impressed with the horrors of intemperance and the prevalence of the evil among women in high life. All felt anew the responsibilities of motherhood.

Mrs. Ellis is not a stranger in our city, and the good work she has done here will not be forgotten.

John McFadden Loses His Leg By a Spree.

John McFadden, a married man aged about forty years, and residing at Dunellen, laid down on the railroad track near the Grant avenue station Saturday evening, while intoxicated and went to sleep. At about midnight a freight train came that way and left foot, severing it and mutilating his leg in a horrible manner. He was taken to the Muhlenberg hospital and Doctors Boone and Endicott amputated the limb above the knee. The man is very weak from the loss of blood and it is doubtful if he will recover.

Mr. Fadden was employed as a laborer on the railroad track.

Mad Dog at Westfield.

William Stitt, shot a dog on Elmer street, Westfield, yesterday, which had all the symptoms of the rabies. The animal ran around the streets of the village snapping at whomsoever came near it, and it was not long before it was shot.

It is thought that several other dogs have been bitten by the animal and they will be closely watched.

Another Runaway.

A team of horses left standing in Fairchild's alley at about half-past two o'clock Saturday afternoon, became frightened and ran away. They succeeded in completely wrecking the two front wheels of the wagon before they were caught on East Front street.

PERSONAL.

Mayor Male is home again from Saratoga Springs.

Mr. R. F. M. Chase, of "Ridgewood" returned last evening from a two months tour of Europe.

Miss Kittie Conklin of Jamaica L. I. is the guest of her cousin Miss Ida M. Lorton, of 38 West 5th street.

MR. SANDFORD'S TRIP.

A THREE THOUSAND MILE TRIP OVER THE CANADIAN-PACIFIC.

A Graphic Story from the Northwest Country.—In the Rockies.—Notes on the Route.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE NEWS:—I left Plainfield a few months ago to travel. I reached Montreal a few days after and remained until evening. I left Montreal at 6:30 p. m. and started on my long journey across the continent. All night we ran through Ontario, reaching Ottawa, the capital of the Dominion about midnight. The government buildings are very handsome, and the city has a population of about 40,000. At daylight the next morning we reached Pembroke. This is the most important town of this section of the country. It controls the trade of the lumbering districts of the north. From here on until we reach North Bay we pass town after town, and saw-mill after saw-mill, which have been built in the clearing. Along the line many beautiful lakes, trout streams are constantly in sight, and game seems to be plentiful. As you approach Lake Nipissing, the country becomes very wild. This body of water is a splendid sheet forty miles long by ten wide. North Bay, the principal town on its border, is a thriving place of 1,150 people, and the resort shops of the road are here. It is the sportsman's headquarters for this region. From North Bay to Heron Bay on Lake Superior the scenery is very interesting and the country wild and rugged. Lumbering is the principal business, although agriculture is getting a foot-hold. The land belongs to the government and is open to settlers in lots of 80 acres. The towns we passed through are brisk and flourishing, and game abounds on all sides. At Sudbury there are the most extensive copper and nickle deposits in the world. They are rapidly being worked, and the country is being opened up by railroads. The population is about 600. Sudbury, Cartier, Chapleau and White river are divisional points and branch lines start from these places. They all have round houses and small repair shops, and each place has a population of about 500. Fine cattle are shipped from them. The scenery along Lake Superior is grand. Bold promontories, rock cuttings and deep bays and inlets are constantly in sight, and the numerous curves give you a view of the lake for miles. We arrived at Port Arthur the terminus of the Eastern Division at 5:15 p. m. Its population is 3,500. It is on Thunder Bay, an important arm of Lake Superior. It is the chief Canadian port on the lake, and a line of vessels start from there. The twenty-four hour system of time starts from here. Fort William, near here has a population of 1,400. It is 100 years old, and was one of the Hudson Bay Company's trading posts, but is now engaged in commerce. Large grain elevators, one of which is about the largest in the world, are here. Great quantities of grain and lumber are handled. The ground is covered with snow, and the forests on all sides make it lonely looking enough. We next pass lakes, rivers and waterfalls interspersed with bold cliffs, and the scenery becomes wilder as we advance. At 4:10 the next morning we arrived at Rat Portage, a town of about 700 population. It is on the Lake of the Woods, a fine body of water studded with islands. Here we took on our dining car and enjoyed a good meal. The way stations along the route give very poor accommodations, but as it was early in the season they were excusable. We reached Winnepeg, the capital of the Province of Manitoba, in time for breakfast. In 1871 its population was about 100, and it was called Fort Garry. It now has a population of 25,000. It is a fine city, with wide streets and nice public buildings. The capitol and the monument erected to the soldiers of the Louis Riel rebellion are especially handsome. It has street cars, electric lights, hospitals, flour mills, grain elevators and many manufactories. The chief workshops on the road between Montreal and the Pacific coast are here. The train yard has twenty miles of side-tracks. Railway lines start from here in all directions and connect with the great lines of the United States. After stopping several hours we resumed our journey. We followed the Assiniboine river for 150 miles and passed many farms and ranches. We entered the great prairies, and are gradually getting higher above sea level. Portage la prairie, altitude 800 feet, is an important town of 3,000 inhabitants. It is one of the principal grain markets of the province, and is quite a manufacturing place. After passing many little towns we reach Brandon. This is a divisional point, and the largest grain market in Manitoba. It is only six years old, yet has fine streets and buildings. Many of these towns are only a year or two old, yet have a population of 2,000 and do a brisk business. Building is going on rapidly. Beyond Brandon we passed through a rolling prairie, which was dotted with farms. Forty miles beyond Virden the land is held by speculators, and farms are far apart. At Pleasing we entered the province of Assiniboia. All night we passed through a gradually rising prairie. All this land is held by speculators, who have experimental farms several miles apart. At Stockholm we passed the Bell Farm. This farm covers 100 square miles. The buildings of the laborers form a little village, and furrows are plowed for miles in length. Fifty teams plow at a time, and everything is done with great regularity. We passed by several Indian reservations, and Indians were quite often in sight. Regina, the capital of the province, has a population of 836. The Executive Council of the Northwest territories, embracing the provinces of Assiniboia, Alberta, Saskatchewan and Athabasca met here; and the Lieutenant-Governor who governs them lives here. The headquarters of the mounted police are also here. Between Winnepeg and the rockies 100 mounted police are stationed to keep the Indians quiet. Every station has a couple of them stationed there, while the large towns have barracks. Indian encampments are seen, and at the different stations we passed, Indians were on the platform with buffalo horns for sale. At some stations buffalo skulls were piled by the hundred in a heap. Many of the passengers got souvenirs, such as teeth, etc. These mounted police all have to break their own horses, and are picked men, five feet ten inches in height, and weighing 170 pounds. Some of them are three hundred miles from the railroad and have not been in a town for eleven years. Moose Jaw, population of 800; Swift Current, population 300; and Medicine Hat, population 700; are important towns with repair shops, etc. Branch lines start from them. We are here 2,500 feet above the level of the sea, and constantly going higher. Not a tree is in sight, and great salt lakes, covered with wild fowl, are often seen. The passengers amused themselves shooting their pistols at antelopes and wolves. Cattle ranches are in every direction and herds of fine horses are constantly in sight. At Langevin a gas well was burning which at night was a pretty sight. At Sheppard the peaks of the rockies may be seen 130 miles away. Prairie fires are raging all around us and make a beautiful sight. Now we reach Calgary, altitude 3,388 feet above the sea. It has a population of 2,400, and is the most important town between Brandon and Vancouver. It is at the foot of the Rockies and the views from here are fine. At day-break in the morning of the sixth day out we entered the great pass of the Rockies. Immense peaks tower on all sides and follow each other in rapid succession, the pinnacles capped with snow. A roaring torrent follows us for miles and falls hundreds of feet from the peaks into the stream below. The pass at this point is from two to four miles wide. All the towns are engaged in lumbering, and the rivers are crowded with logs. Indian lumbermen can be seen going to work, singing their rude songs. For miles both sides of the mountain are one mass of charred timber. Forests fires have done their work of destruction. At 5:40 a. m. we were 4,380 feet above the level of the sea. Stone peaks were in sight with their glaciers glistening in the sunlight. Every turn of the pass brings in sight some new beauty. Lady MacDonald and Mt. Cascade are the highest peaks at this point and are many thousands feet high. The celebrated Hot Springs of Banff are near here. Great coal mines run all through here and are rapidly being worked. Just beyond Bariff peaks can be seen towering 10,000 feet above sea level. I will not attempt to give the names of the numerous peaks, whose shapes vary greatly. We here dropped the dining car and got our meals at the elegant mountain hotels the company own. We arrived at Stephen, the station on the summit of the Rocky Mountains 5,296 feet above the sea level, at 7:50 a.m. A few miles ahead is the chief peak of this region, named after the late president of the Canadian Pacific road, Sir George Stephen. Mt. Stephen and Hector reach far above the clouds and are indescribably grand. We now follow the Kicking-Horse river, a fierce turbulent torrent. The scenery is getting to be terrible. The two lines of walls and precipices seem almost to touch and the river washes through 3000 feet below us. You can almost throw a stone across the pass. Each moment the scenery becomes grander until we are almost dumbfounded and our exclamations of delight are loud and deep. One of the highest mountains in view is 10,000 feet.

Mt. Stephen's glacier is 800 feet thick and one mass of solid ice. It rises a mile and a half above us, and the waves of Cathedral Mount are worn here by. But it is almost impossible to describe this scenery. Here's Palliser, altitude 9,250 feet above sea level. We are now going down with the vertical walls rise thousands of feet above us on each side. The roaring waters of the river sounds like a hundred and is deafening. At noon we reached Donald, the terminus of the Western Division, and we are 3,446 miles from Montreal. Donald is splendidly located on the Columbia river, and is a new town. Gold mines are near-by and a smelting shop here. We have passed the Rockies, but the Selkirks, a far grander range, loom up in the distance. We have totally left behind us the scenery ahead. We follow creek after creek, and torrent after torrent, which madly rush by us. Slight glacier peaks come suddenly into sight as we round one of the numerous curves. It is so grand that it is called the Surprise. We now approach Mt. Hermit and Mt. MacDonald. These two peaks look as if in an earthquake had parted them. The road runs between them. Their base is only a stone's throw away. They are composed of solid rock, and are both crowned with glaciers and everlasting snow. If the scenery in the Rockies was grand that of the Selkirks is indescribable. The peaks are higher and their shapes more fantastic. Rogers pass, named after Col. Rogers, its discoverer, is 4,300 feet above the sea and is guarded by lofty pinnacles of snow. Selkirk summit, the top of the pass, is 4,300 feet above sea level. A mile beyond is the Glacier House, a hotel there. It is in sight of the great glacier. Sir Donald rises a mile and a half above it and is within a half mile of the hotel. Several of these peaks are over twelve thousand feet high. Grizzly mountain is near by. The bears are so numerous that they have named the peak after them. Game, such as mountain sheep, goats and bears, are also numerous. Fine scenery also abounds with trout. It is a sportsman's paradise. The great glacier of the Selkirks is the largest in the world, and larger than all those in Switzerland combined. At this point is a most remarkable curve. From a log it is the shape of the letter S and gives you a splendid view of the numerous peaks. We are on the road and rapidly nearing the sea. Albert Canyon is guarded by steep walls hundreds of feet in height and the scenery is far below. At one point the stream runs 300 feet below through a gap only 20 feet wide. The waves leap up and fall back into the air as the stream rushes through. All night we pass through canyon after canyon, each more grander than the other. From the tops of the cliffs streams of water rush from the snow to the valley beneath. Forest fires are constantly raging and destroy much valuable timber. We passed one lake 50 miles long, which reminded one of the Hudson river on a little village, and farms are here. It was called, I believe, Lake Shuswaun. The canyons of the Fraser and the Thompson river are grand, words fail to find description. Gold and silver mines are numerous. All kinds of deer are abundant, and pheasants and hares are crowded with flocks. Numerous Indian villages and graveyards were passed, as were also many camps of Chinese who work on the road. A wagon-road along the sides of the canyon was built many years ago. It is four hundred miles long and cost several millions of dollars. It must have required great engineering skill to build it. The road beds of the Canadian Pacific cost thousands of dollars—there are many miles of them and they are good and strong. At one point in the road there were two spans building a short distance. Quicksands would destroy the work as fast as it was completed. The road is splendidly built, and is one of the greatest engineering feats of the age. The employees are courteous, and all trains are run on time. You don't change cars once from Montreal to Vancouver. I won't attempt to describe any more scenery, as it would take too long and I couldn't do it justice. It is far grander than anything which were pretty high. There is only one road crossing the continent that can in any way compare with it, and that is the Denver and Rio Grande. I have talked with parties who have traveled on the other lines and they say their scenery is tame compared with that of the Canadian. It is hard to find more grandeur and sublimity in the world, but we must see it to appreciate it. Mr. Seward once traveled over this line on his tour of the country, and was enraptured with it. After passing grand views in endless succession we reached New Westminster Junction at noon. Massive brick yards are located here and ship brick to Victoria and Seattle. We reached Vancouver, British Columbia, at two o'clock. This is the last station of the road, and is about 3,000 miles from Montreal. The trip takes six days and six nights, but any one is well repaid for the long journey. Vancouver has a population of 5,500. It was destroyed by fire a few years ago, but is now entirely rebuilt. Vessels run from here to Victoria, Vancouver Island and Seattle.

"WHO SHE IS!"

That Unnatural Plainfield Widow Signing Herself X. Y. Z.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE NEWS:—A lady of position, manager of the W. C. T. U., one ever ready to do a kind act, and to help or respond to the call of benevolence, seeing the advertisement in last Sunday's World, answered it in behalf of a mother, who had struggled until nature was almost exhausted, by hard and honest toil, to provide for her offspring, working as night cook in a hotel, in a laundry, and lastly in private families. She, after each succession, consented to the absolute surrender of what was dearer to her than life, provided the right opportunity was presented.

The address of the lady was given where particulars might have been inquired into, but it not been more to the interest of the local sensation sheet to culminate the good intentions of one in no way personally interested in the child. I hope this may secure the interested some one to the adoption of the child. All communications addressed to X. Y. Z., care of EVENING NEWS, will receive prompt attention.

HUMANITY.

Plainfield, Sept. 13th, 1889.

The Press item referred to was an unwarranted reflection on the virtue and character generally of the "people of refinement and education" in Plainfield, who, if the paper was to be believed, were wantons. How grossly asinine it was may be inforred by the above communication.

Woodcock in New Jersey.

The New York Sun, in an article on fall shooting, says: "The most interesting of the woodcock state. Climate and soil are their alike favorable to these birds. They are found there in greater abundance and in better condition than in any other part. If the dry weather which now prevails continues through September, or, Mr. Ira Hedden the season opens, the birds will concentrate within narrow feeding limits. A famous ground for woodcock in New Jersey is what is called the Big Piece, a large tract of excellent territory on the Passaic river near Caldwell. English snipe are also found in large number. On the mountains near Hackettstown are many spring holes. These are favorite spots for woodcock. The shooting there is peculiarly interesting, as most of it is done from the road. Many a fine woodcock flushed near one of these spring holes will make the sportsman hustle to get the drop on him. The month he is a lively bird. Musconetcong valley is another admirable territory, also the Sussaunna plains and Schooley's mountain. These shooting grounds are noted as being superior to any others in the state."

Phonograph and the Letter S.

Thomas A. Edison, in a recent talk about his phonograph, said: "For seven months I worked from eighteen to twenty hours a day upon the single word 'specia.' I would say to the instrument 'specia,' and it would always say 'pecia,' and I couldn't make it say anything else. Sometimes I was near to going crazy. But I stuck to it until I succeeded, and now you can reach a thousand words of a newspaper at the rate of 150 words a minute, and the instrument will repeat them to you with perfect precision. You can imagine the one-millionth part of an inch in depth, and are completely invisible, even with the aid of microscopes.

Edison has promised the Paris Academy of Science to construct a special phonograph with a cylinder two feet in diameter cylinder to register and preserve the tones of the voices of each member of the society.

MORNING NEWS.

PLAINFIELD EVENING NEWS
AND NEWSPAPER OF PLAINFIELD AND VICINITY, IS PUBLISHED AT 4:30 O'CLOCK EVERY AFTERNOON, AT NO. 11 SOMERSET STREET,

E. W. MORRISON, EDITOR AND PROPRIETOR.

IT IS DELIVERED BY CARRIERS TO ALL PARTS OF THE CITY AT TEN CENTS A WEEK, OR, IF PAID IN ADVANCE, AT $5.00 PER YEAR.

Some one says the City of Paris should be called the drummers' ship because she is so fast referring probably to her speed.

Napoleon said at St. Helena: "Before this century closes not a cannon will be fired in the world without the permission of the United States."

Now, once more the city boarder is waked by the rattle of the milk carts and roar of the beer and ice wagons in the early morn. The farmer's wife has taken down the hammocks and stuffed away the old straw hats in the garret till next year. Summer is ended.

Washington says Grant's remains ought to be deposited there. Galena wants his bones; so does New York actually has them, and says they shall never be moved, so help her. Possession is nine points of the law. But if New York wants to keep the tomb of Grant, it will be only common decency for her to erect to him a fitting monument.

The New York Herald sent Stanley out on his first great expedition, the Scripps Newspaper League sent a deputation of American working people to the World's fair at Paris this summer, and a newspaper, The New York Times, broke up the old Tweed ring. But The New York Sun has on hand a task more difficult than any of these. It has undertaken to regulate the grammar of the whole American continent.

The Future War Vessel.

The latest Italian war ship is one in which particular attention has been given to matter of rapid firing. Her name is the Piemonte, and her guns are comparatively light, having no higher caliber than six inches. But so rapidly can they be discharged that they are said to be able to fire twice the weight of shot and shell that the huge ironclads with their heavy guns can. Lord Armstrong says that the battle ship of the future will not be the gigantic ironclad, but the lighter ship like the Piemonte, a vessel without side armor, which can easily maneuver, move high speed and have a large stowage for fuel. In connection with the rapid firing guns, artillerists are now experimenting to find high explosives.

Electric Death.

It is little short of disgraceful the way certain newspapers are hounding Brown, the electrician who prepared the machine that will or will not take the life of Kemmler, the condemned murderer, in New York. The state law says capital punishment shall be inflicted by electricity, but lawyers and newspapers are trying to stop the execution on one ground and another. Some have gone so far as to say there is no certainty that electricity will kill at all.

Well, heaven'shas been conducting executions by electricity now for a good many years, and there has never been complaint that the lightning bolts failed to do their work thoroughly. But many able persons seem to have forgotten this. The way they have abused and barried the electrician would be enough to drive an ordinary man out of his mind, and bewilder him till he could not tell white from black. In common decency, why not let the case go on and the thing have a fair test, especially as the law calls for electrocide?

Good-by, Ice Man.

If report be true, a Pittsburg man has achieved the greatest triumph of our generation, nothing less than a victory over the ice man. It will be the plumber's turn next, may be. Henry J. Moreland has perfected an invention whereby air can quickly be cooled to a very low temperature and made to cool everything else in the vicinity. He employs it to cool drinking water on railway trains.

The principle is the same one applied by the manufacturers of artificial ice, except that Mr. Moreland employs common air instead of ammoniacal gas. Advantage is taken of the fact that the compression of gas or vapor produces heat, and its expansion cold. If ether or alcohol be poured upon the hand its evaporation will cause a feeling of coldness.

Mr. Moreland's apparatus consists of a double water cooler, with a space between the two covers. In this space a vacuum is produced by an air pump. Connected with the cooler is a pipe terminating in two funnels, leading beneath the car. The funnels face the front of the car. The motion of the train compresses the air in the pipe. The apparatus is so made as to condense the air and then expand it in the vacuum about the cooler. In the process a very low temperature is produced in the space about the inner cooler, which is also imparted to the water within it. The air finally passes out by a pipe above the cooler in the top of the car.

The condensed air cools just as solidified water, which is ice, cools. The inventor expects to utilize his apparatus for refrigerator cars also, thus doing away with the bulky ice packing. The idea, with modifications, can be adapted to buildings and private dwellings.

LIONIZING JOHN BURNS.

He Is the Idol of the Successful Strikers.

CELEBRATING THEIR VICTORY.

A Monster Jollification in Hyde Park.

Burns the Hero of the Hour—He Says Laboring "Men Will Now Carry the War Into Africa."

LONDON, Sept. 16.—The workmen of London held a monster demonstration at Hyde park in the afternoon to celebrate the victory of the dock laborers in finally securing from the dock directors almost every concession for which they contended. All the heroic struggle of the past month. John Burns was, of course, the chief speaker, and when he arose to address the audience from one of the numerous stands which had been erected in different parts of the park he was greeted with deafening cheers, and so great was the enthusiasm of those present that for fully five minutes Mr. Burns was compelled to stand, hat in hand, bowing to the right and to the left of him in acknowledgment of the increasing ovation, but unable to utter a syllable for the deafening shouts which rent the air.

Burns' Prophetic Speech.

When from sheer exhaustion the men desisted and a measure of quiet was restored, Burns delivered a thoughtful and carefully prepared speech, showing more than ordinary thought and study. He declared that the strike now so happily concluded was only a preliminary skirmish with which was opened the great battle yet to come. A federation of labor would forthwith be organized throughout England, and when this work was once completed the war would be carried into Africa. The thunder of the whole civilized world, he said, were due to the generous contributors to the strikers relief fund, and the victory of the men was in no small measure due to their timely aid. Every penny of the fund, he said, would be accounted for by the East End unions, under whose direction it has been distributed.

Burns and His Wife Cheered.

Burns and his wife while walking on the Strand were recognized, and to escape the attentions which were at once showered upon them by the crowd, which knew the hero, they were compelled to seek refuge on the top of a well filled omnibus. In this way they escaped the immediate proximity of the throngs of admirers, but many followed the 'bus for several squares, sending up cheers for Burns and his plucky little wife.

There Is Still Some Growling.

There is still some subdued growling among the men because the strike committee consented to defer the date of the advance of their wages until Nov. 4, but it is heard chiefly among those whose mode of living has been materially improved by idleness and their share of the relief fund. The more respectable of the laborers appear to be quite satisfied with the solution reached. The dock directors claim that they have now 4,000 men at work at the docks, and under the terms of the compromise these men are to be retained.

A meeting has been arranged for to-night at which the lord mayor, Cardinal Manning, Mr. Burns and Mr. Tillett will be the speakers.

Crispi Congratulated on His Escape.

ROME, Sept. 16.—Prime Minister Crispi has received 2,000 telegrams congratulating him upon his escape from serious injury at the hands of the fanatic who attempted his life with a stone. Sig. Crispi, though still suffering considerable pain, is able to attend to the affairs of his office without interruption. Almost all the leading statesmen of Europe are Prince Bismarck, Lord Salisbury, Mr. Gladstone and Count Kalnoky. After throwing the first stone the assailant, Caporale, joined a party in the carriage and struck Sig. Crispi on the chin with another stone, which was very sharp and made a deep cut. He also cut a gash in the jawbone and struck the prime minister on the ear, causing blood to flow. A priest who was near by ran up and seized Caporale and prevented his escape.

Royalty Will Bear the Photograph.

BERLIN, Sept. 16.—Mr. Edison has gone to Heidelberg for a brief stay. He will return here before the close of the week to exhibit his phonograph to Emperor William, Prince Bismarck and Count von Moltke.

A Suicide in Midocean.

LIVERPOOL, Sept. 16.—A steerage passenger named Vuchinich, a native of Austria, committed suicide in midocean last Monday by jumping overboard.

Young Doty's Suspicious Death.

NEW YORK, Sept. 16.—Frederick Doty, aged 18 years, was brought to the New York hospital early in the morning in an unconscious condition, and died before he could be taken into the hospital. Three young men who came with him stated that Doty had injured his head by falling on a curb stone. All of the young men had been drinking, and there seems to be some mystery connected with the case. An autopsy showed that Doty's death was caused by a fall or a blow. His companions were taken in charge by the police, but afterward released. The deceased was a son of John P. Doty, dealer in rubber goods at No. 68 Park row, who is now in Chicago at the Tremont house.

Two Deaths for Love.

CALIFORNIA, Mo., Sept. 16.—Luther Wallace called at the Central hotel in this city and asked to see Miss Lulu Smith, a domestic who has been connected with the hotel for two weeks. Wallace followed him in her room, and immediately two pistol shots resounded through the house. Both were found with bullet holes through their heads. The girl died instantly. Wallace is still alive, but cannot recover. A love affair is supposed to be at the bottom of the tragedy.

Jumper Peynaud Came to Grief.

MONTREAL, Sept. 16.—Peynaud, the jumper, who has made several daring leaps at Rockaway Beach, L. I., was severely injured here. He jumped from a tower 150 feet high into a net held by several men. Their hold of the safety blanket was not secure and the jumper struck the ground, sustaining several fractures and bruises.

An Express Clerk's Peculation.

CAIRO, Ills., Sept. 16.—The accounts of T. W. B. Williams, collector in the joint offices of the Adams, Southern and American Express offices here, show an embezzlement of $900. Williams made an attempt at suicide by taking laudanum.

A Schooner Wrecked.

CHATHAM, Mass., Sept. 16.—The three masted schooner Phineas W. Sprague, of Thomaston, Me., from Philadelphia for Boston with coal, was wrecked on Pollock Rip. The crew were saved by Capt. Gould's life saving crew.

THE FASTEST AFLOAT.

That Is What Capt. Schley Calls the New Cruiser Baltimore.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 16.—The new steel cruiser Baltimore, which sailed from Cramp's shipyard Wednesday and proceeded down the Delaware to the breakwater, has returned after a trip of which her commander, Capt. Schley, says: "The trip was entirely successful. The engines worked admirably. The vessel went eighty or ninety miles out, and in a perfectly beautiful sea. I can be perfectly confident in saying that she is the fastest man-of-war afloat."

Another officer said that the Baltimore's anchors were not dropped until Friday, the weather being too rough for a test. Friday morning a preliminary trial was had, and Saturday she went for her regular four hours official trial, under command of Capt. Joseph Steel. She made for three hours an average of 20 3-10 knots an hour, in a pretty good sea. This is allowing for all errors in calculation, log line, etc., and it is said, that she is the fastest vessel of any ship of her tonnage afloat, and the fastest man-of-war of any country. The run was straight inland, and her commander had to stop. It is also stated that she will probably go more than 10,000 horse power. The contract called for only 9,000 horse power. It will be two or three weeks before the calculations of the government officials will be completed and made public.

TO FIGHT ENGLISH BEER.

A Big American Brewers' Trust Will be Formed with $100,000,000 Capital.

MILWAUKEE, Sept. 16.—The American brewers have projected a gigantic syndicate or pool to protect themselves against the encroachments of the English syndicate. Mr. Charles Merkel, of New York, vice president of the Kraus-Merkel Malting company, is now in this city attending a meeting of the directors of that company. Mr. Merkel's business brings him into intimate relations with the brewers. In an interview he said:

"There will be formed a gigantic company that will buy up or control the more important breweries of the country. Its capital stock will be $100,000,000. The brewers of St. Louis, Chicago and Milwaukee to this end and are ready to join the combine. The important brewing centers—New York, Milwaukee, Cincinnati, St. Louis, Chicago, Boston and Philadelphia—will be united and brought into the scheme."

Capt. Frederick Pabst, president of the Pabst Brewing company; August Wilhelm, the well known banker, Captain Blatz and other brewers of this city have expressed themselves in favor of the projected combine.

Medina's Serious Fire.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Sept. 16.—A Medina, N. Y., special says that the most destructive fire that has visited that village in several years started in the oven of the pail manufacturing establishment of C. M. Tice & Sons on Main street at about 5:30 a. m., and was not subdued until property valued at $30,000 had been destroyed. A new building recently erected by Mr. Tice and used by him as an evaporator caught fire from the flames and was burned to the ground. Ives & Sons' loss will be $9,000. The building was occupied by Miss Wyman and Fuller and was valued at $5,000; insured for $1,000. S. C. Bowen's loss is $10,000; partly insured.

Barns Burned at Le Roy.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Sept. 16.—A Herald dispatch from Le Roy, N. Y., says: At about 9:30 p. m. fire broke out in the barns on the Le Roy Bishop farm, north of Le Roy. The flames started in the north barn and quickly communicated to the other buildings. Nothing could be done to stop the progress of the fire, and the barns, which contained about 1,200 bushels of wheat, 300 bushels of oats, 100 bushels of barley and a quantity of hay and clover, were, with their contents, entirely consumed. The farming implements were also saved. The loss is nearly covered by insurance."

Beef Combines Threatening Ruin.

CRESTON, Ia., Sept. 16.—W. G. Black, a prominent stock man and farmer of Lincoln township, has failed for a large amount. A number of mortgages for $8,333 and two chattel mortgages for $4,000 were filed by the First National bank of Creston, which is also assignee. Liabilities and assets are yet unknown. The large stock dealers in this locality are complaining of close times, and say the beef combines are threatening them all with ruin by suppressing competition and fixing their own prices for beef cattle.

Punxsutawney's Strike Successful.

BROOKVILLE, Pa., Sept. 16.—The strike in the Punxsutawney section has been settled. The men get everything they ask for. This will no doubt have the effect of settling the strike on the Reynoldsville road, as Superintendent Robertson said last night that if the men were granted elsewhere the Northwest company would not be behind anybody in giving the same advance. The men will refrain from attempting to influencing Reynoldsville and the other sections to follow during the week. The early victory is a surprise to everybody.

Bad Wheeling Weather.

NEW YORK, Sept. 16.—The bicycle run to Newark by the members of the State league was postponed until to-day, owing to the unfavorable weather. A few of the wheelmen started on the trip in the morning, but the majority contented themselves with short rides through the streets. The start was made at their headquarters at the Grand Union hotel.

Cardinal Gibbons Was Present.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 16.—The corner stone of the new St. Peter's church was laid with imposing ceremonies. Cardinal Gibbons officiated and delivered an address to a large audience. He made special reference to the laying of the stone was one of the largest Catholic processions ever seen in this city.

An Exposition Building on Fire.

ST. JOSEPH, Mo., Sept. 16.—The main building of the new Era exposition is on fire. The place is too far away for the fire department to reach it. At 3 o'clock this morning the fire is still raging with a probability of going on for several hours. The probable loss will be from $30,000 to $45,000.

Mrs. Levi P. Morton Back From Europe.

NEW YORK, Sept. 16.—Mrs. Levi P. Morton has arrived from Europe on La Bourgogne from Havre. She was accompanied by her daughter, and was met at the pier by Mr. Morton. The party entered a close carriage and were driven to the house of the vice president.

Maj. Warner Still Undecided.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 16.—Maj. Warner has not yet decided whether he will accept the position of commissioner of pensions. Private Secretary Halford will go to Deer Park on Tuesday, and will probably confer with him on the great law Maj. Warner's answer.

A Murderer Captured.

FREDERICKSBURG, Va., Sept. 16.—Charles Pendleton, who murdered his father-in-law, Col. W. H. B. Goodwin on Friday evening, has been captured by his brother's house, about four miles from the scene of the murder.

THROUGH THE WHIRLPOOL

Plucky Campbell Enters It in an Open Boat,

AND LIVES TO TELL THE STORY.

Hurled from the Boat Just as It Entered the Vortex of Foaming Water.

A Spaniel Dog Accompanied Him—Both Are Safe on Land.

NIAGARA FALLS, N. Y., Sept. 16.—Walter G. Campbell, despite the predictions of all who knew anything about the whirlpool, has passed through and lives to tell the story. During the morning he bought an old clinker boat, which was taken down the to a point some distance above the Maid of the Mist landing and hidden behind a rock. Early in the morning, fearing arrest, he went down the road to the landing and straight ahead, and the boat coming to a stop. It is also stated that she will probably go more than 10,000 horse power. The contract called for only 9,000 horse power. It will be two or three weeks before the calculations of the government officials will be completed and made public.

Off for the Whirlpool.

At 2:30 o'clock in the afternoon a newspaper was dropped from the suspension bridge as a signal for him to start. In an instant the boat shoved out from shore with several people in it. A landing was made at the head of the Maid of the Mist landing, and all but Campbell stepped out. Miss Spaniel dog. At 3 o'clock Campbell pulled away from the landing, heading obliquely for the Canadian shore. Standing up he drew in the oars, laying one in the boat and using the other as a paddle to straighten the course of the boat, and passed under the Cantilever and suspension bridge at 3:25, forming a picture never to be forgotten by those who witnessed it in breathless silence.

The Dog Buried Overboard.

As he drew near the first rapids he dropped the paddle, crouched down in the boat and grasped the sides. The first pitch was passed over, the boat going out of sight for an instant, but when seen again Campbell was still hanging to the boat. Opposite the first elevator below the bridge is another pitch, when the dog was thrown out and could be seen swimming ahead of the boat, which was still right side up, but full of water, and Campbell still hanging on. Opposite Buttery's elevator the boat was thrown clear of the water and Campbell was out of it struggling in the rushing water.

Into the Whirlpool He Went.

At 3:37 he was seen to enter the whirlpool, but whether dead or alive those on shore could not tell. He was seen to float almost directly across toward the north shore, and it was thought he would make a landing.

He came near enough for those on shore to see that he was alive, but not close enough that help could be rendered. Here he caught an upper current and was carried back. For some time the water in the pool has been very low and a large quantity of driftwood was floating around, and into this Campbell was carried. It was a dangerous place, for most of the drift was heavy sticks, and he stood in great danger of being killed. For a moment he could be seen struggling for life. Then he extricated himself from the driftwood and struck out manfully for the shore and calling for help.

Safe Ashore Again.

He reached the shore at the upper end of the pool on the Canada side and landed at 3:40. Willing hands reached down to pull him out, his father being among those present. With the exception of a few bruises and some nervousness Campbell escaped none the worse for his trip and he was able to walk to the foot of the incline, some little distance away, where he was driven to clamber out on the Canadian shore, while a remnant of the boat could be seen floating around the center of the pool, bottom up.

He Will Never Do It Again.

"Tell the people," said Campbell, "that I have accomplished the greatest feat on record. I did not lose my head only for an instant, and that was just as I entered the whirlpool. I remember distinctly when I left the boat." When asked if he would repeat the trip Campbell replied: "No, sir. You could give me New York state and then not all the others on top and I would not go again. I am going home now."

A School Teacher's Disappearance.

BROOKLYN, Sept. 16.—Miss Virginia Wagner, aged 24, a school teacher, has been missing since July 2, when she left her boarding house and was supposed by her acquaintances to have gone to her father's home, Jersey City, to spend the school vacation. This supposition caused delay in making her disappearance known, and her parents later made inquiries privately and refrained from notifying the police on account of a desire to avoid publicity. Detectives are now, however, at work on the case. Miss Wagner was tall and handsome, and a fine musician. Her father is agent of the United States Express company at Paterson. The young lady was of her own choice and had few male acquaintances. There is no clew to the reason for her disappearance, nor to her present whereabouts.

A Swindler Exposed.

BROOKLYN, Sept. 16.—The police warn the public against a fictitious firm styled Horace Walters & Son, 73 Arch street, Brooklyn, who have swindled a number of western merchants. The swindlers send orders for goods and refer dealers to the above named firm, who, when inquiry is made as to the standing of the person sending the order, reply favorably. The goods thus obtained are never paid for. There is no such firm as Horace Walters & Son and no such place as 73 Arch street in this city.

One Killed and Several Injured.

KINGSTON, N. Y., Sept. 16.—By the explosion of a blast which had been prematurely fired at Brigham's cement works, on Rondout creek, near here, a man named Moore was killed and the superintendent of the works and two other men were severely, if not fatally, wounded.

Visiting Old Battlefields.

GETTYSBURG, Sept. 16.—One hundred and twenty members of the Sixteenth Connecticut infantry arrived here on a special excursion train. They will inspect the battlefield and then leave for Antietam. The party is from Hartford, New Haven and New Britain.

No News of the Ambrose Snow.

NEW YORK, Sept. 16.—The fear is increasing that the pilot boat Ambrose Snow, No. 11, has been lost, as nothing has been heard of her since last Saturday, when a pilot left her to bring a vessel into this port. The Snow had two pilots on board.

Fourth Class Postmasters Appointed.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 16.—The following named fourth class postmasters have been appointed: New Jersey—Colesville, Joseph H. Cole. Pennsylvania—St. Nicholas, Robert Littlebates.

THE NEWS IN BRIEF.

Fresh Tips from the Wires Carefully Culled.

M. Corvillain, the proprietor of the cartridge factory, the explosion of which caused such a frightful series of disasters in this city, and his engineer have been arrested.

The United States steamship Iroquois, which has recently been repaired at Mare Island navy yard, San Francisco, has sailed for Honolulu.

Arrangements have been made for a fight between Jem Smith and Slavin, the Australian champion, for $2,000. Smith will also box with Jackson, the negro pugilist, ten rounds, for $1,000.

Charles Rheinhorz, a member of Seidl's orchestra, shot and killed himself at Bath Beach.

Charles Fruits, 35 years old, an engineer employed on Ruppert's brewery, New York, was killed by being caught in the machinery in the icehouse.

Edward F. Miller, 30 years old, a guest at the Hamilton hotel, New York, fell down a flight of stairs and was instantly killed.

Willard Jones, a druggist, of Clayton, Ind., has fatally stabbed Pastor Smith, of the Baptist church. The clergyman had publicly denounced the druggists of the town for selling liquor.

A committee of manufacturers at Pittsburg has recommended the concession of the 5 per cent. increase demanded by the western plate glass workers. If accepted a strike of 5,000 men will be ended.

GRANT, SHERMAN AND SHERIDAN.

Their Portraits Will be Unveiled at the United States Military Academy.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 16.—The portraits of Gens. Grant, Sherman and Sheridan, which were painted by direction of Mr. George W. Childs for the United States Military academy, will be formally presented to that institution Oct. 3. Gen. Horace Porter will represent Mr. Childs on the occasion, and will deliver an appropriate address in presenting the portraits. Gen. John M. Wilson, superintendent of the academy, will receive them. Corps of cadets will parade and take part in the ceremonies, which will be held in Grant hall during the afternoon. It is expected that the secretary of war, Gens. Schofield, Howard, Kelton and others prominent in military circles here will be present at the presentation ceremonies.

These portraits were to have been presented last June, but the presentation was postponed upon the request of the board of visitors to the academy. Gen. Lew Wallace, who was president, was selected to make the presentation address, but that gentleman, on account of pressing engagements, was compelled to decline. Thereupon Mr. Childs selected Gen. Horace Porter, whose association with Gen. Grant and whose personal knowledge of Sherman and Sheridan make the selection very proper and fitting.

Testing the Chicago.

NEWPORT, R. I., Sept. 16.—The United States cruiser Chicago, which has been here for a month waiting for the board and for favorable weather for her trials, had her first trial Saturday and Monday under Commodore Walker and other members of the board were on board. She was tested first on forty-six revolutions and made a speed of eleven knots, with natural draught, making fourteen knots. Then she blew out a stop cock in the engine room, and in consequence fell behind and was not tested. The accident was repaired in a few hours. Her fastest speed will be seventy-five revolutions, and she is expected to make seventeen knots. The remaining evolutions were favorable. Capt. Robertson and members of the board are satisfied with the record. The Chicago will make her final trials on Monday, and sail on Tuesday if possible.

Mormons Wrecked.

LYNCHBURG, Va., Sept. 16.—A Mormon emigrant train of fifteen cars on the Norfolk railroad was wrecked about four miles below this city. The wreck was caused by a small bridge giving way after the engine and tender had passed over it. The water in the creek was very high, caused by the heaviest rain almost ever known in this section. The emigrants numbered 160. Two cars plunged into the creek, and strange to say no one was killed and but fifteen or twenty were hurt, none seriously. The first car that went down turned completely over and in it were the New York state and then, and all the others on top and it would not go again. I am going home now."

Not Ready for Burial Yet.

BUFFALO, Sept. 16.—William Dingmens, of Wilson, in Niagara county, apparently died Thursday night of a low fever. The body was prepared for the grave, and the usual preparations were observed, except about her bed and discussed the advisability of sending messengers to notify her friends of her death. In the midst of their talk the supposed corpse arose and asked for a messenger. Her relatives ran from the room, but returning, found her not only alive, but in a fair way to complete recovery. She explained that, though in a trance, she had not been from the first realized all that had gone on around her.

Three Weeks Gone and No Cronin Jury.

CHICAGO, Sept. 16.—The third week of the Cronin trial has come to an end. Judge McConnell announces that the fourteenth veniremen has been secured, and that twenty-seven venire men have been examined. All have been excused except Culver, the real estate dealer, and Farmer Pearson. Culver is a Scotchman, and Pearson will doubtless be excused by the state. Thus far the state has used twenty-four and the defense fifty-two of their peremptory challenges.

Murderer McKeown Pardoned.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Sept. 16.—A Seneca Falls dispatch says that Editor Stowell, of The Reveille, has received from Governor Hill a communication of the sentence of John McKeown, who was convicted in 1882 to ten years in Auburn prison for manslaughter, having caused the death of Mrs. Moreland. McKeown has served four years, ten months and twenty days. The communication was received through the efforts of a number of prominent citizens of Seneca Falls. McKeown has been released.

$75,000 Fire in Chicago.

CHICAGO, Sept. 16.—A spark from an electric light wire in Marshall, Field & Co.'s booths in the exposition building, and before the flames were subdued damage to the extent of $75,000 was caused. The following firms also suffered losses: Marshall, Field & Co., M. B. Hayne & Co., Schlesinger & Mayer, Gossage & Co., Mandel Bros., D. B. Fisk & Co., Chapin & Tuttle, the Henry Dibble company and C. & W. E. Partridge.

Gone with Depositors' Money.

TEXARKANA, Ark., Sept. 16.—Professor J. Wise, one of the oldest and wealthiest citizens of Texarkana, late president and manager of the Texarkana Savings bank, is missing with $37,000 of other people's money. He was a man of scrupulous habits, and his escapade causes the greatest surprise.

MANY FIREMEN KILLED.

Fatal Conflagration in a Big Louisville Store.

SIX WERE CRUSHED BY WALLS.

Bamberger, Bloom & Co.'s Wholesale Dry Goods House the Scene—The Loss Will Nearly Reach $1,000,000—Mangled Bodies Recovered.

LOUISVILLE, Sept. 16.—Bamberger, Bloom & Co.'s wholesale dry goods and notion house, one of the finest buildings in this city, has been completely destroyed by fire. The loss will already reach nearly $1,000,000 and the fire is still raging.

Six Firemen Reported Killed.

During the hottest part of the conflagration a wall fell and a thrill of horror passed through the crowd, as it was passed from mouth to mouth that six firemen had been caught by the wall as it fell and were buried in the debris.

Nothing Could Stay the Flames.

The building fronts on Main street, between Sixth and Seventh. The alarm was struck at 11:10 o'clock, and in ten minutes flames were bursting from the windows on the third floor. Five minutes later part of the roof went in. The fire department was out in full force promptly, and ten minutes after the first alarm half a dozen streams were playing on the burning building, but it was soon clear that nothing could save it, and the hose were then turned upon the Louisville hotel, two doors away. That building was smoking, and it was a very hard hour's fight to make its safety reasonably sure.

Servants Rescued from Upper Floors.

The guests of the Louisville as well as of Southern hotel, on the corner of the block, poured out. A number, mostly frightened servants, were taken from the second and third stories in the rear by means of ladders. The crowd about the scene was of eighteen, which gathered in half an hour to the number 10,000.

Losses and Insurance.

The fire originated in Bamberger, Bloom & Co.'s cellar, and Mr. Bamberger, Jr., who turned in the alarm, saw the whole cellar was aglow when he discovered it. An explosion occurred soon after, and a fireman just around the corner was knocked over by it, but not hurt. A conservative estimate of the loss on stock is $750,000. The insurance is heavy and will about cover the loss. The building was a double brick story, owned by the firm and valued at $75,000.

Mangled Bodies Recovered.

The fire is slowly eating both ways, and may reach Seventh street on the west, destroying the following smaller places:

W. C. Caye & Co., wholesale shoes; Louis Grauman & Co., wholesale shoes, and probably Bamberger, Bloom & Co.'s retail department store. Bamberger & Co., wholesale hats, is burned out, and also Baer's saloon. Two of the firemen killed are Stacklighter and Monohan. Capt. Ed. Kane is also supposed to be one of the men in the ruins.

Four firemen were certainly caught by falling walls and killed, and about two more are probably buried in the ruins. They were working close up in the rear when the walls fell, and they were crushed beneath. Four have been taken out dreadfully mangled.

THE WAR CLOUD.

The Russian Bear's Ambition Threatens the Peace of Europe.

BALTIMORE, Sept. 16.—Fred Raine, lately consul general at Berlin, has just arrived from Europe. In speaking of affairs in Europe Mr. Raine said: "I think a war is not imminent, but believe that the smallest spark may at any moment cause a disastrous conflagration. The Conservatives of France and Germany do not believe, as they say, that Russia's ambition and pan-slavistic agitation may lead to it at any moment. Mr. Raine entertains the opinion that France and Germany should be friends instead of enemies, as he considers Russia and the semi-barbarian elements under the sceptre of the czar the greatest standing menace to peace. With the Russians war means the ascendancy of autocratic ideas, the death knell of republicanism and constitutional government. The thinking people of Russia are opposed to the objects of Russia, and show but little inclination to encourage the cry of revenge against Germany, rather believing that sooner or later something will turn up to establish an entente cordiale between Germany and France.

Mr. Raine fears that the immense war preparations of all Europe, and the tremendous cost of armament and consequent taxation, may lead to exhaustion and an appeal to arms, precipitating war against the wishes of all true friends of progress and civilization.

Charge Against a Soldiers' Home.

LOS ANGELES, Cala., Sept. 16.—The Grand Army committee appointed to investigate charges against the management of the branch National Soldiers' Home at Santa Monica have reported, and the report has been adopted, that the meat furnished the inmates is not up to the specifications; that proper delicacies are not furnished invalids; that civilians are employed where inmates could do as well; that the civilians are better fed than the soldiers, and inmates; that the quartermaster sergeant and commissary sergeant are utterly incompetent, and that Governor Preichel is responsible for this conditionof affairs. Charges will be made to the National board of directors against the officials referred to.

Swedes Celebrate at Jamestown.

JAMESTOWN, N. Y., Sept. 16.—The 250th anniversary of the landing of the Swedes in America has just been celebrated in good style in this city. Manufactories were closed, the streets were filled with strangers, all the business houses were elaborately decorated, every steamboat brought a crowd and the day was given up to the celebrants. Conspicuous among the decorations were many large Swedish flags with their blue, orange, red and white. Addresses were made by Lieutenant Governor Jones, Mayor Price, of Jamestown, Editor Gardner, Editor of The Wart Nya Hem, and Senator Allen, of Warren county. All classes of citizens united to make the celebration a success.

Carried Out to Die on the Street.

NEW YORK, Sept. 16.—Isaac Green, 44 years old, a Russian shoemaker who lived at 120 Attorney street, was taken sick in the saloon of William McAvoy, 25 Ludlow street. To avoid trouble under the excise law Michael Crennan, the bartender, and John Hogan carried the sick man out on the sidewalk and dropped him on a stoop, where he died half an hour later. Crennan and Hogan were arrested.

He Killed His Brother.

PITTSBURG, Sept. 16.—In a dispute over a game of cards John Franchiskello stabbed and killed his brother Michael Franchiskello. The murderer escaped and has not been arrested.

Miss Blaine's Rumored Engagement.

AUGUSTA, Me., Sept. 16.—There is every reason to believe that the rumor of Miss Margaret Blaine's betrothal to the famous musical composer, Mr. Walter J. Damrosch, of New York, is genuine, and that after the marriage of Emmons Blaine with Miss McCormick, and when the Blaines have returned to Washington, the engagement will be formally announced. The friends of the engagement was a surprise here, where little or nothing is known of the affairs of the Blaine family now that they are away, even among the few relatives of Mrs. Blaine.

Hatfield-McCoy Murderers Sentenced.

WILLIAMSON, Ky., Sept. 16.—At the trial of Pilant and Doll Mayhorn, two of the notorious Hatfield gang, they were convicted of the murder of the McCoy brothers and sentenced to imprisonment for life. They claimed that they were urged to the deed by old Anse Hatfield. Ellison Mounts was found guilty of the murder of Elfoes McCoy and sentenced to be hanged Dec. 3.

Shot by a Jealous Lover.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Sept. 16.—Abraham Rosenbaum, 32 years of age, of No. 400 North Clinton street, at 9 p. m. this evening shot Miss Minnie Coleman, at her home at No. 55 Delevan street. He afterwards gave himself up and is now in custody. Miss Coleman is dangerously injured and may not recover. Jealousy was the cause of the shooting.

Brodie's Latest Jump.

CLEVELAND, Sept. 16.—Steve Brodie, the bridge jumper, dropped from a cable at Beyerico's park, a local summer resort, into a pond, in the afternoon. The fall was about 100 feet. There was nothing particularly dangerous in the feat. Brodie was uninjured.

THE TALE OF A TOURIST.

He Wasn't So Very Particular, but He Had to Draw the Line.

"Have you anything to give a poor man, lady?"

The voice was that of a wan, haggard and dilapidated mendicant. Hat in hand, with bowed head and humble mien, he stood in the presence of the young housewife. The wind blew through his scanty, unkempt hair, and his toes looked mournfully out through the embarrassment he showed in a watch, grew some way that would have drawn a sigh of sympathy from a wax figure of Jessie James or melted the heart of a bridge tender.

"Have you walked far this morning?" she asked.

"Yes, mum," replied the jaded pilgrim. "I have hoofed it for about ten or eleven mile."

"Are you hungry?"

"Powerful gaunt in the stomach, like."

The tender hearted young woman meditated a few moments.

"I have nothing but a soup bone and some cold tripe to offer you," she said, "but you are welcome to them."

The tourist shook his head sadly.

"Obliged to you, mum," he responded in a hollow voice, "but I'm a vegetarian. Hain't got no ham and eggs, I reckon?"

"I am sorry to say I have not. But stay!" she exclaimed as the forlorn applicant for charity turned to go. "Wouldn't you like something in the way of clothing, my poor man?"

"Yes'm," he replied, gratefully. "If you've got any old clothes about the house I'd be glad to get 'em."

With a light step and a heart full of happiness at the prospect of being able to do good to a suffering fellow creature she left him and returned presently with a small bundle.

"Here is payment I heard my husband say he should not wear again," said the young wife. "It is perfectly clean and just as good as new."

"May I ask what it is, mum?"

"It is a flannel shirt."

"Been washed?"

"Oh, certainly—three or four times."

The battered tramp jammed his hat on his head and went slowly down the steps.

"Madam," he said, with a hopeless, just-as-I-expected intonation in his rich southwestern Missouri voice, "that is the 364th flannel shirt that's been stuck at me since I left East St. Louis, and I've got a pocket full of 'em."

As the hot sun came out from behind a cloud and beamed down pitilessly on the dusty highway the weary wanderer took from its bundle a jagged hunk of tobacco, looked at it in a hesitating and uncertain way, put it in his pocket, and started across the street in the direction of a house from which there seemed to emanate, as in vers, a suggestion of fried pork.—Chicago Tribune.

Some Other Game.

A man with his left arm in a sling was telling a passenger on a Fort street car what ailed him and how it happened. Said he:

"My boy Henry likes to go hunting, used so last Sunday. I takes my gun and goes out by der Norris road mit him to kill some squirrels. Footy soon we vhas separated, und I goes along by a thicket und Henry shoots me mid his shotgun."

"Accidental, of course?"

"Of course. He sees me creeping along, and takes me for a wolf."

"A wolf! Why, there isn't a wolf within five hundred miles of Detroit."

"Dot vhas so, but Henry doan' know it until we comes back home. He feels werry bad about it. Henry vhas a good boy, und next time he doan' make sooch a mistake—he shoots me for a woodchuck."—Detroit Free Press.

How He Won a Breakfast.

Tramp—Please, ma'am, will you give a poor man a breakfast?

Matron—Not a bite; I don't encourage idleness. Get out, or I'll set the dog on you.

Tramp (continuing)—Please, ma'am, a friend of mine told me you gave him a piece of cake once, and 'twas the best cake he ever ate, and he thinks you're the best cook he ever——

Matron—Come right in, poor man. Mary Jane, get a good breakfast ready for this poor creature.—Yankee Blade.

Not Watched.

"I'm a jeweler's clerk."

"Ah, that's a fine diamond you've got, sir."

"First water."

"And a lovely ring!"

"Worth a cool hundred."

"What time is it?"

"I don't carry a watch."

"Don't? Why, it strikes me you'd ought to be watched!"—Chicago Ledger.

A New Crop.

Three Fingered Mike—Ah, there, Reddy, been away, hain't yer?

Jim the Penman—Yep; been to Kansas.

Three Fingered Mike—Kansas—were yer farmin'?

Jim the Penman—Naw, not much—raised a few checks though.—Light.

Miseries of Managers.

Stage Manager — Great Snakes! Stop! Don't move that scene yet.

Supe—It's most time.

"Don't touch it. Juliet is there dead in the tomb. If you move that canvas it will let in a draught, and she'll sneeze."—New York Weekly.

Unreasonable.

"There's going to be a ball."

"How do you know?"

"Sees the snow flakes dancing?"

"Yes."

"Well, won't there soon be a snowball?"—Chicago Ledger.

A Misunderstanding.

Mistress—You are so stupid. I told you to pay attention when the milk boiled over.

Servant—And I did, mum. It was a quarter past 8, mum, by the clock when it boiled over.—Texas Siftings.

A Case of Necessity.

The Man of the House—What's the matter; did you pull the bell?

Visitor—Sorry to disturb you, pard, but my pal forgot ter bring along de jimmy an' keys, an' we couldn't git in widout wakin' you.—Life.

JAMES FENIMORE COOPER.

CENTENNIAL OF THE BIRTH OF THE GREAT AMERICAN NOVELIST.

His Works Were Full of Power and Have Had Many Unworthy Imitators—etts Latter Days Were Not Altogether Pleasant. "Cooper's Indians" Are Proverbial.

One hundred years ago, on Sept. 15, 1789, and a few months after the inauguration of the first president of the United States, a child came into the world whose work it was to be to perpetuate in fiction the characteristics of those who then composed the new nation.

The Indian population at that time furnished a field for stories of adventure, and by the time the child came to middle life the Revolutionary war had come to be sufficiently distant for the extraction of its romance. James Fenimore Cooper was destined to be the historical novelist to picture this period. Perhaps more lately, while the broken national circle of states was reforming, after the spring of 1830, a child was born to perpetuate these troublous times in story. If so, he is to this period what Cooper was to the close of the last century. The two men would be born and picture across a century apart, each constituting a great epoch in the nation's history.

On his father's side Cooper's ancestors came from the home of Shakespeare, Stratford-on-Avon. They emigrated to America more than a hundred years before Cooper was born, and made extensive purchases of land in New Jersey and Pennsylvania. Just before Cooper's advent his father came into possession of several thousand acres of land in New York state lying along the headwaters of the Susquehanna. On this tract, in 1786, he laid out the site of Cooperstown, on the shore of Otsego lake.

JAS. FENIMORE COOPER.

This spot, so beautiful today, must have possessed a singular fascination when the surrounding hills and mountains looked not even on a village. In sunlight, in moonlight and in storm they kept the same impassive silence. How the summer tourist may ramble through the valleys or skim over the lake unmindful of danger. Then at any moment the frontiersman might be startled by a painted savage face staring at him from behind the bushes. But around him were beautiful undulations, sloping gradually; blue outlines of mountains against the sky; the bosom of the lake; and all was wild and silent and uncultivated.

In 1790 the family removed from New Jersey to this wilderness, and for six years lived in a log house, but when Cooper was 7 years of age his father built a manor house which he called Otsego Hall, for many years the most imposing in Central New York. Yet when it was built it stood on the frontiers. Pioneers had only begun to push out through the Mohawk valley, then the only available route to the further west. In this early boyhood he was used to looking upon Indians when they came in for barter. Their proximity doubtless caused occasional anxiety, and the youthful mind must have been excited by stories of their depredations, or warfare among their different tribes, or even reports of intended hostilities against the white settlers. His mind naturally was charged with their traditions, and he became familiar with the Indian from personal contact. The chiefs of the Six Nations, who were still powerful, were more fortunate in having their portraits go down to posterity than they suspected. The urchin they saw playing about, or staring at them when they came to Otsego Hall, was to make their stories live long after their names were to be buried in oblivion.

But Cooper left this natural state early. At 13 he went to Yale college. He had been tutored by an English rector, and found after preparing for recitations plenty of time for mischief. The result was that after three years at college he was expelled, though his father took sides with him against the faculty, and waged a war of words in his son's behalf. Then the youngster became a midshipman in the navy. But before he could aspire to this dignity he was obliged to make a voyage. He shipped before the mast, sailed to London, thence to Gibraltar, and then up his return was commissioned, and ordered to report at New York. While in the navy he married a Miss De Lancey, and, in deference to her wishes, in 1811 resigned his commission and lived at his wife's home in Westchester county, N. Y.

COOPER'S MONUMENT.

When Cooper was about 30 years old he was one day reading an English novel to his wife, and casually remarked that he believed he could write a better novel himself. His wife encouraged him to try, and he wrote his first story. It was called "Precaution," and was published anonymously in 1820. The book was a picture of English life, with which the author was unfamiliar, but it was well enough received to encourage him to write another.

Cooper's friends urged him to try a familiar theme. Westchester county had been debatable ground during the Revolution, and the De Lanceys—a Tory family—had been identified with stirring scenes there. The novelist laid the scene of this next novel in this region and called it "The Spy." When it was written and published the author was living in New York. It at once attracted attention, and Cooper found himself a literary lion.

COOPER'S HOME.

The next ten years of Cooper's life were the years of his greatest literary success. During this time the famous "Leather Stocking Tales" appeared, and at once became very popular. Of late years they appeared the author was living in New York. It at once attracted attention, and Cooper found himself a literary lion

CITY COMMON COUNCIL.

THE WATER-WORKS QUESTION THOROUGHLY DISCUSSED.

The Property Owners to be Given a Chance to Express Their Views at the Next Meeting.—Other Business.

It was 8:20 o'clock last evening when President Dumont's gavel descended and he called the adjourned meeting of the Plainfield Common Council to order, and in response to roll-call Councilmen Dunham, Erickson, Gallup, Marsh, Moffett, Myers, Newhall, Jenkins and Squires answered present. Councilman Watson was absent.

The minutes of the three previous meetings were read and approved.

A communication from the manager of the Plainfield Electric Light Company, calling the attention of the Council to the fact that some malicious person was in the habit of breaking electric light globes and asking Council to make some provision to protect the property, was read and referred to the Committee on Police.

A communication from the owner of the Olympia bowling alley requesting permission to erect a two story frame building on Sycamore street, was read and referred to the Committee on Fire and Buildings.

The tax duplicates for the year 1889 were presented by the collector and referred to the Committee on Finance.

Mr. Myers, the Street Committee presented a petition from the Hall Electric Pump Company requesting permission to string electric wires for pumping purposes.

He then introduced an ordinance which granted permission to the Hall Electric Pump Company to string the necessary wires on streets specified. It was passed on its first reading and the first section was lost on its second reading.

Mr. Marsh then moved that the ordinance lay on the table. So ordered.

Mr. Marshall from the Committee on Water, Printing and Stationary reported. He said that although several obstacles had been placed in the way of the committee they were nevertheless prepared to report on the water-works question at the present meeting.

The Committee then reported that they had carefully examined the various bids presented and had selected the one which they thought was the most favorable. The bid selected agreed to do all the city could ask, and it would be unfortunate to let it pass without acceptance. It agreed to put in as many fire hydrants as was wanted, and guaranteed that they would have the pressure to throw a stream 100 feet high. The company also agreed to erect stand pipes with a capacity of 500,000 gallons of water, which would be an ample supply for any fire. 3,000 tons of pipe would be laid, ranging in size from 12 to 4 inches; but the committee recommended that it range from 16 to 6 inches; there is no requirement as to the total number of fire hydrants; the company agree to furnish water for churches and municipal purposes free of charge. The prices for private consumers will be $6 for the average house. The company will lay additional pipes wherever directed at the rate of $15 per 30 feet. The committee recommend that the bids of Charles K. Moore and Edward A. Lovell be accepted and that the company be instructed to lay 3000 tons of 16, 14, 12, 8 and 6 inch pipes.

Mr. Newhall then offered the following resolution:

Resolved, that the report of the Committee be received and approved and that the clerk be instructed to return all checks to the other bidders; that the agreement be referred back to the company for such modifications as was deemed advisable.

Mr. Marsh—"Does the bid recommended by the committee conform with the specifications."

Mr. Newhall.—"Not one of the proposals offered conform in every particular to the specifications, but the committee think the proposition of Lovell & Moore conforms sufficiently to warrant its acceptance, subject to corrections as provided in specifications."

Mr. Marsh.—"I am in favor of the proposition if it conforms with the specifications, but before the Council takes final action on the matter they ought to know what arrangements have been made as to an engineer. I do not think the Council ought to take action to-night. It is an important matter and should be carefully considered. It is a question whether we ought to introduce water without sewerage. Some of the largest taxpayers think it unwise; and I favor giving the property owners a chance to be heard. We have only this one bid before us and we can submit a very favorable contract to the people, and I move that further consideration of the contract be deferred until September 30th, and that the tax-payers be notified to be present and express their views."

Mr. Erickson—"I see no objection to passing the resolution; it gives the committee a chance to prepare a contract."

Mr. Dumont favored delaying action on the water-works question until a franchise for sewerage could be granted, but did not deem it advisable to establish a sewerage system under existing laws. He favored giving the people a chance to express themselves in the matter.

Mr. Moffett concurred with Mr. Dumont's views.

The resolution was amended to read "and that a copy of the contract be filed with the city clerk and that ten days notice shall be given". It was then passed.

Mr. Erickson moved that 500 copies of the contract be printed for distribution. So ordered.

The same gentleman also moved that the committee be authorized incur such expense as they deemed necessary to draw up a contract.

Mr. Marsh amended the motion by inserting the words "providing it shall not exceed $200", and it was carried.

Mr. Dunham presented a communication designating the polling places for the coming elections together with the names of the Election Board. They are as follows:

First Ward — Hoagland's express office. Election Board—Robert A. Mosher, Judge; Chas Bird, Clerk; and George W. Moore and John J. Kenny, Inspectors.

Second Ward—The Crescent Rink. Election Board—John H. Doane, Judge; E. H. Anthony, Clerk; and John Johnston and John Mortimer, Inspectors.

Third Ward — Sharp's carriage factory. Election Board—B. F. Carrell, Judge; O. B. Leonard, Clerk; and J. Oakley Hodges and James Mullen, Inspectors.

Fourth Ward, First District—Alert Hose Co.'s house. Election Board.—J. S. Higgins, Judge; J. C. Randall, Clerk; and E. W. Titsworth and V. B. Evans, Inspectors.

Fourth Ward, Second District—The Fritts building, corner Muhlenberg place and South avenue. Election Board — J. S. Martin, Judge; R. H. Loughlin, Clerk; and Robert Mitchell and Michael R. Flynn, Inspectors.

A letter from Mr. Daft stated that it was impossible for him to make application for a street railway franchise at the present meeting, but he would do so at the October meeting.

On motion the Council went into a Committee of the whole to consider the Collector's tax duplicate. Mr. Dunham occupied the chair.

Mr. Myers from the Finance Committee reported that the Committee of the whole had examined the books and found them correct and moved that they be accepted. So ordered.

The Collector was instructed to preface an index of the tax books as approved by Council.

The Finance Committee was instructed to procure books for the entry of delinquent taxes.

The Council adjourned at 11:05 o'clock.

Union County W. C. T. U.

The annual convention of the Union County Woman's Christian Temperance union, is in session in the Baptist Church, at Roselle today.

The morning session convened at 10 o'clock, and the order of exercis s were as follows: Devotional,led by Mrs. J. W. Yates; roll call and reading of the minutes; annual report of the corresponding secretary and treasurer; an address by the president, Mrs. M. D. Tomlinson, election of officers, and collection.

There were also prayers and a meeting of the executive committee at 1 o'clock. The programme for the afternoon session included Bible reading, minutes of the executive committee report of the various superintendents, question box, miscellaneous business, collection and adjournment. In the evening Mr. L. A. Maynard, of New York, will address the meeting.

JOTTINGS.

—"Peeping Tom" is now said to be in New Brunswick.

—The county Convention of the Women's Christian Temperance Union is taking place to-day at Roselle.

—According to the census, Hunterdon county stands as the best agricultural county in the United States.

—A horse attached to a buckboard wagon ran away on Front street this morning but was caught before doing any damage.

—The case of John and Wm. Sullivan, for and alleged assault upon Wm. Ross, several weeks ago, was yesterday discontinued in the City Court.

—The Primrose & West Minstrels exhibited to a good-sized audience in Music Hall last night, who appeared to greatly enjoy the entertainment.

—Furriers say that beaver is to be one of the very fashionable furs next Winter. It is a becoming fur, and very amenable as a trimming for gowns and wraps.

—The sociable which was to have been held at the Washington Valley chapel last week, but was postponed on account of the weather, will be held Thursday evening.

—The people of the United States use annually about 2,000,000,000 postage stamps. For these stamps the public pay into the treasury of the Post Office Department about $40,000,000.

—A communication from a North Plainfield citizen directs the attention of the Borough Council to the condition of Grand view avenue and Grant street. He says they are almost impassible.

—The Democratic newspapers are now treating Prohibition with marked respect, not because they love prohibition, but because a vote for a prohibition candidate generally means one vote less for the Republican candidate for office.

—During a severe rain we noticed that a number of carriages and hacks changed their color from a dense black to a dull blue. On inquiring of a carriage maker the cause of this he said that it was in consequence of the inferior quality of varnish used on them.

—It is worth knowing that vaseline has a wonderful effect on fine leather, and it is fast taking the place of all compounds manufactured for softening the shoes. Take a pair of shoes that become stiff and uncomfortable by constant wear in the rain, and apply a coat of vaseline, rubbing it in well with a cloth. In a short time the leather becomes as soft and pliable as when it is taken from the shelves of the shoe dealer.

THE OCEAN'S FURY.

MR. SCHERMERHORN'S GRAPHIC DESCRIPTION OF THE LATE STORM.

Seventy-Two Hours Storm-Bound at Sea Isle, N. J.

Mr. C. Howard Schermerhorn, of Philadelphia, who has been staying with his family during the Summer at his cottage at Ocean City, from which he goes to and fro to his business in Philadelphia, in a letter to his uncle, Mr. C. H. Schermerhorn, manager of the Western Union Telegraph office here, says in speaking of the awful storm of last week, in which he, with the other passengers on the train, was caught and hemmed in by the ocean at Sea Isle, while on his way to business. "We were hemmed in, and witnessed some terrible scenes. The ocean and bay met in front of the hotel. The water being almost waist deep on the side walk—the wind was terrific, and houses were going down all around us. The people at the hotel were panic stricken. This continued all Monday afternoon and night. On Tuesday night we did not know but that everything would be washed away, houses, people and all. On that dreadful night to quiet the fears of the people, at just about eleven o'clock, I gathered them all into the hotel parlors and I gave them some recitations. The meeting closed with a religious talk and prayer. Never was there such an entertainment before. The sea washing around the base of the structure swaying the buildings, and the terrible uncertainty as to the future. I reached Ocean City Friday morning after being hemmed in at Sea Isle 72 hours, by footing it across the broken track and meadows. Ocean City stood the storm bravely and did not suffer as much real damage. Some improperly constructed buildings on the beach front went down. The board walk, about two miles long, is gone entirely. My boat house on Great Egg harbor on the ice of the island is off its foundations, and the large doors are torn off. It will be removed farther inland and repaired. My boats are somewhat damaged. My cottage suffered no damage beyond the paper being spoiled in the parlors by the rain beating in. The water from the surf ran up as far as my cottage. (Mr. Schermerhorn's cottage is at least 300 feet from the high tide mark.) My wife was alone with the babies at the house, and she stood it out like a heroine. I am proud of her. She is made of good timber.

We are all glad the storm was no worse. It was the worst in a long time along the coast, and we are glad we escaped so fortunately. The reason for it was that the island is very high, for which those thereon are thankful. I have written very hastily and disconnectedly but just now it is the best I can do."

* * *

Mr. Schermerhorn it will be remembered gave recitations recently at Reform Hall with Mrs. Davis, of Dunellen, and Miss Ketchum, for the benefit of the Hall.

* * *

Mr. and Mrs. Schermerhorn, of Plainfield, who had been visiting at Mr. Schermerhorn's cottage at Ocean Beach had but just returned home when the storm came, which Mr. Schermerhorn writes about.

PERSONAL.

Dr. Wells will return to his Central avenue home Monday from his Summer outing.

Mr. and Mrs. Seely Bilsall, of East Fifth street, have returned from Lake Hopatcong.

Miss Nettie Whitlock, of Manning avenue, North Plainfield, is confined to the house by illness.

The funeral of the late Mrs. Peter Hoagland took place yesterday afternoon from the First Baptist church.

Miss M. A. Murphy, has returned to her home on Central avenue from a two weeks sojourn at Glenside.

Miss Maggie Dowd, of West Third street, has returned from a visit to her sister Mrs. Fitzgerald, at Buffalo, N. J.

The condition of John McFadden, whose leg was cut off by the cars Saturday night, is somewhat improved to-day.

Mr. A. D. Madison and family, of Grandview avenue, are at Lakewood, Westchester county, New York for two weeks.

Messrs. George and William Van Slyck, of this city, are about to enter the Mt. Pleasant Military College at Sing Sing, N. Y.

An evening sociable was held at the residence of Mr. J Stephany on Summit avenue last evening. The music was furnished by Prof. O'Reilley.

Mrs. M. Whittaker, has returned to her home on Grove street after an absence of four months visiting friends in Douglas and Winnepeg, Manitoba.

Josephine Worts, an eleven months old baby, whose parents reside at No. 11 Grandview avenue, North Plainfield, took the first prize ($2) at the baby show at the Oswego county fair, held at Oswego, N. Y., a few days ago. There were thirty-one competitors.

Ladies' Training Class.

The (Ladies' Workers' Training Class for Bible study will resume its sessions on Friday, Sept. 27th, at four o'clock, in the Y. M. C. A. rooms on East Front street. A short preliminary meeting for organization, etc., will be held on Friday, Sept. 20th, at 4:30 o'clock, to which all are invited. It is hoped that many christian ladies will avail themselves of this class during the coming season. The method and plans of study will be found very helpful to all who are engaged in Christian work of any kind, and, while entirely distinct from the Sunday school lessons, the study will be of advantage to the Sunday school teachers and advanced scholars.

No Bridge Over Green Brook.

The Middlesex county Board of Freeholders met at the bridge over Green Brook near Dunellen on Saturday, and after a survey decided not to rebuild the structure at present, because it will answer until the Board has more money at its disposal. The Board was taken from Dunellen to the scene of their deliberations and brought back by Freeholder Irs B. Tice, of Perth Amboy, the Lehigh Valley Railroad, with which he is connected, furnishing all accomodations.

PLAINFIELD'S BEER DRINKING.

The Problem Which is Puzzling People Here and Elsewhere.

Plainfield is a prohibition town, yet statistics show that more beer is drunk under no license than there before. In August, 1887, it required 18 barrels of beer per day to supply the town; in 1888 it required over 18 barrels. In August, 1889, under no-license, the consumption averages 22 barrels a day, an increase of nearly 25 per cent.

The foregoing is taken from The Philadelphia Record is probably copied from some Democratic newspaper in this State, which has not printed the truth. We call upon The News and The Central Times of Plainfield to say whether the facts as set forth above is based upon anything substantial or not. The statement concerning the sales in 1887 and 1888 may be true, but the statement concerning the present sales we believe to be totally false.—Unionist Gazette.

We regret that we cannot declare as our esteemed Somerville contemporary desires, and,save,and all friends of temperance we suppose, would like to believe. Feeling that from the fewer number of arrests, and the lesser amount of drunkenness to be seen on our streets, that our no-license system was having a good effect we sought to demonstrate it beyond all question to make a point for the temperance cause, never dreaming that the result would come out as it did. We obtained from the beer book-keeper at the freight office, a man highly respected, and an employe of the railroad company for the past seventeen years, a statement from the books at the office of the amount of beer brought into Plainfield, for one week in 1889, and the corresponding one in 1888 and 1887, by the day, for comparison. The substance only of the statement was published for brevity sake, and is correct as given above, If the books of the freight office are correct, and we have no reason to doubt them. But as the correctness of the statement is questioned, very naturally, as we would question its correctness, upon our own observation, about town, we give below the figures in detail as furnished to us:

| | | | |
|---|---|---|---|
| 1889. | Monday | 1-6 barrels. | 166 |
| | Tuesday | 1-6 " | 166 |
| | Wednesday | 1-6 " | 166 |
| | Thursday | 1-6 " | 166 |
| | Friday | 1-6 " | 166 |
| | Saturday | 1-6 " | 166 |
| | Sunday | | |
| 1888. | Monday | Half barrel. | 167 |
| | Tuesday | 1-6 barrels. | 166 |
| | Wednesday | 1-6 " | 166 |
| | Thursday | 1-6 " | 166 |
| | Friday | 1-6 " | 166 |
| | Saturday | Half barrel. | 167 |
| | Sunday | | |
| 1887. | Monday | 1-6 barrels. | 166 |
| | Tuesday | 1-6 " | 166 |
| | Wednesday | 1-6 " | 166 |
| | Thursday | 1-6 " | 166 |
| | Friday | 1-6 " | 166 |
| | Saturday | Half barrel. | 167 |
| | Sunday | | |
| | | Totals. | 1,495 |

Amount of beer received in Plainfield for the week ending August 6th.

By reducing the foregoing to barrels, the result as given in the quoted paragraph will be obtained, that is, that it required about 18 barrels of beer per day to supply Plainfield in 1887, under license, and 22 barrels or nearly 25 per cent. more per day, in 1889, under no-license.

Of course this was for a week taken at random. Other corresponding weeks may give results which will justify different conclusions, but that is improbable.

At first we were unable to explain the matter to favor our wishes that no-license reduced the liquor traffic. With these figures before us we could not. We are not sure that we can even give a satisfactory explanation now.

Our Chief of Police in answer to our inquiries informs us that the number of arrests under no-license is insignificant compared to the number under license, and any one will admit that there is comparatively any drunkenness to be seen on our streets.

But there must be some way to explain the matter. As the new factory—the Pond Tool Works—we are informed there are many men from England where beer is drunk at meals and nothing thought of it. Possibly they may follow the same habit here, and, if they do, that would probably explain the increased consumption. It is only a surmise, which nothing in the appearance of the men would justify so far as we can observe.

It is a significant fact that within the same period of the increased consumption of beer, there has been a corresponding increase in the amount of beef required; to supply Plainfield, as shown by the figures we published a few days ago, an increase of over twenty-five per cent. Certainly our population has not increased twenty-five per cent. in one year. Englishmen are fond of beef, as much as they are of beer, and whether the increased use of beef and beer are due to the same cause can only be surmised.

The saloon closed, offers no temptation to the young men, whose habits for good or ill are just forming. The open saloon does. The old topers will get their beer whether the saloons are open or closed, and it is doubtful if license or no-license makes any difference in those whose habits are already formed. But it is important to the friends of temperance to find that the drink habit is apparently increasing. We all want to save our young men from that road to ruin.

Let us hope that it is not true—

That they drink more beer at drank before. And those who drank now drink the more.

The facts seem to demonstrate that without public sentiment to back the prohibitory measures, they do not prohibit, and they also exemplify the wisdom of the high-license legislation law enacted by the Republicans, in 1887, in the interest of the people, and repealed by the Democrats in 1888 in the interest of the saloons.

LATEST NEWS BY WIRE.

GENERAL GRUBB FOR GOVERNOR.

He was Nominated on the Second Ballot.

TRENTON, N. J., Sept. 17th. (Special.)—The delegates arrived this morning and organized. Mr. Wm. T. West, of Roselle, was elected Chairman, and Assemblyman Voorhees, of Elizabeth, was made secretary of the Union county delegation; and Hon. Wm. H. Long, of Somerville, was chosen chairman, and Lewis H. Schenck, of Newton, was made secretary of the Somerset delegation.

The vote at the various canvasses shows E. B. Grubb, of Burlington, has about 900 of the 360 delegates.

The Convention met at 12 o'clock opening with prayer by Rev. Dr. Wight. Joseph Gaskill, of Mt. Holly, was made temporary chairman and after roll call and the selection of the Committee,recess was taken for dinner.

Judge J. Frank Pott, of Newark, was chosen permanent chairman, and it looks now as if Mr. Grubb will be the candidate for Governor.

The resolutions are likely to cause some trouble on the local option question. Essex insisting that in as much as the Republicans have been defeated for trying to give the people their own way in this matter the party had better hold itself in readiness to do whatever the people wished for the public good without attempting to force any disastrous measures.

The correct figures on the first ballot are Grubb, 354; Kean, 150; Halsey, 89; McGowen, 79. Total, 599.

LATER—4:40 p. m.

TRENTON, N. J., Sept. 17th. (Special)—General Grubb was nominated as the Republican candidate on the second ballot. Great enthusiasm prevails

NEW JERSEY NUGGETS.

Live News Notes From Various Parts of the State.

The Newark public schools opened yesterday with the largest attendence ever known, every school showing an increase.

It was understood last night that the Middlesex County Grand Jury had found indictments against the officials of the Raritan River Railroad and a prominent brick manufacturer as accessories to the killing of George Gessinger during the Bayreville riot of May 8th last, when the railroad company attempted to lay tracks on the lands of Noah and Edwin Furman.

Half-Rates to the National Capitol via Pennsylvania Railroad.

Apart from a Presidential inauguration no more brilliant event has ever occurred in Washington than the tri-annial conclave of Knights Templar from October 8th to 11th, 1889. Every three years this event attracts the attention of the country to some city, but for once in the world's history cities have enjoyed the honor. Washington is now the favored point, and it may well be said that no city in the world is better adapted to such a purpose. Wide avenues, hedged by handsome buildings, form a background for a grand spectacular display, that cannot be surpassed in America. It will be a gala week in the Capitol, and thousands of people will go to witness it.

In order that every inducement may be offered the Masonic Fraternity, Railroad Comps. will reduce its rates to Washington on this occasion by one-half. This company will sell excursion tickets to Washington from all ticket stations on its lines, October 8th, 9th, 10th and 11th, valid for return until October 31st, 1889, at one fare for the round trip.

On the return trip a stop-off, within the limit will be allowed at Baltimore, Wilmington, Philadelphia, Trenton, Harrisburg, Williamsport, Elmira, Emporium, and Corry, according to the route of travel.

Agents will furnish specific rates on application.

Voodooism in America.

Stories of terrible negro rites that almost chill the blood do not come from Hayti alone. It has been found that Voodooism in all its strength is as profoundly rooted in the United States as in the West Indies. In New Orleans they know it well. In New York it has been known to exist for years. Few would have believed, however, that there was a full fledged Voodoo temple in Boston itself, but such is the fact.

A Herald reporter disguised his object and managed to gain the confidence of an ancient aunty who smuggled him into the Voodoo meeting in Boston. If he had been detected his life would not have been worth a moment's purchase.

The negroes gathered snakes, lizards, red ants, spiders and other loathsome creatures, the more repulsive the better, and made a horrid stock broth of them by boiling them in a pot at midnight to strains of weird music and wild incantations. The incantations were in a dialect known only to the Voodoo negroes, and this dialect is in use in Hayti, Africa and the United States. The music, the stench from the pot and the incantations work the negroes to a pitch of wild frenzy.

Voodoo himself is a great snake. If worshiped and sacrificed to, he is believed to grant to his devotees revenge for all injuries and cures for ills. If one is annoyed by the spell of an enemy who has pat snakes and lizards into the patient's vitals, and Voodoo can clear them out. So implicitly is all this believed in, even by tolerably intelligent negroes, that a Voodoo curse frequently kills. In every city of the Union traces of Voodooism crop out, and in most of them the heathenish practices are resorted to. A curious feature of The Herald's exposure was that a number of native Boston people of color held a meeting and reputated Voodooism root and branch, and declared that it was only practiced by the negroes not born and bred in that city. This is deliciously Bostonese.

Mole San Nicolas.

This promontory on the northwest corner of Hayti is wanted by the United States as a coaling station for use in war. There is no question of buying it outright, but of leasing it from the Hayti an government, if one could only exist long enough to come to negotiations. Between the Mole San Nicolas and Cuba is a channel called the Windward passage. If the United States could settle down firmly in possession of the mole it could command the passage and make things very interesting for Spain in case of war.

It is said that the possession of Mole San Nicolas is the hitch that causes delay in the sending of a minister to Hayti. The mole is a point that it is also said the secretary of state has set his heart on obtaining. The common people of Hayti are unalterably opposed to their getting it, even though the United States might offer to support a government that would cede it to them. If obtained at last, it will be a triumph for American diplomacy.

Colonizing Vermont.

In Vermont there is a state commissioner whose duty it is to secure a desirable class of immigrants for this old New England commonwealth. In the twenty years preceding 1880, the population of Vermont increased less than 9,000. Farms have been abandoned, never by a thousand by the migration westward of the original Yankee families. The land commissioner makes the statement in a circular to the public that there are in the state at present 200,000 acres of farming lands that have been abandoned. They cannot be considered to be worn out, for lands all about them still afford a comfortable living to agriculturists. In consequence of this abandonment, what are claimed to be "good lands," have declined to this amount. It is proposed to fix a uniform price of $5 an acre, and invite Swedes and other proper colonists to take up the deserted farms. In one neighborhood lands have already been secured on which to colonize fifty families.

Already the ancient observer tells us there is going to be a long, cold winter. He has said the same thing every fall since the memory of man. This time he says the fruit skins are very thick and tough, and the corn husks are heavier than usual and straw is tougher, and he knows this means a hard winter, because he knows it. Now let him try the goose bone.

Mr. Charles Dudley Warner finds it a discouraging feature of the great northwest that the people there do not buy books or support book stores. Perhaps they are waiting till the sale of trashy and foolish novels is over, before they start in. In that case their taste is to be commended.

Japanese daughters come cheap. Not long since the 13-year-old daughter of Mr. Kai Kuru, of New York, was stolen from him, and he offered a reward of $25 for her. Then, rather than not get her back, he generously increased it to $60.

ALL EYES ARE ON WARNER

He Has Probably Declined the Commissionership.

AN ALLEGED PLACE FOR TANNER.

It Is Said He Will be Recorder of Deeds for the District of Columbia, Which Office Pays $15,000 Per Year—Washington Gossip.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 17.—There is good reason for believing that Maj. Warner has declined the offer of the commissionership of pensions made by the president some days ago. When Maj. Warner came here several days since in response to a summons from Secretary Noble he said that he could hardly accept the place, but that he would take the matter under serious advisement. His law partner, Mr. Dean, was summoned here, and he remained in conference with Maj. Warner for two days. Maj. Warner, it is understood, has come to the conclusion that he could not afford to accept the position. It is now among the possibilities that Judge Rea, of Minnesota, or Gen. Fairchild, of Wisconsin, past commanders-in-chief of the Grand Army of the Republic, will be selected to succeed Commissioner Tanner.

He Has Probably Declined.

Maj. Warner arrived in Washington in the afternoon from Deer Park and will remain in the city for several days. While he refuses to confirm or deny the report that he has declined to accept the position of commissioner of pensions, there is no doubt that he has declined it.

The Baltimore's Great Showing.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 17.—The secretary of the navy has received a telegram from Philadelphia confirming the change indicated, reports that the trial of the cruiser Baltimore was a success. The telegram is as follows:

"The trial of the Baltimore has been satisfactorily completed. The engine power is in excess of the requirement, and the average speed per hour for four hours was nineteen and seven-tenths; maximum speed for one hour, twenty and two-tenths knots. Complete reports cannot be furnished for some days. KIRKLAND.

"President of the Trial Board."

It is believed that the Baltimore developed 10,000 horse power, an excess of 1,000 horse power over the contract requirement. Trials with cruisers of the Chili and Argentine navies, a premium of $100,000. The Philadelphia, a sister ship of the Baltimore, and built by the same firm, will receive $50,000 for every quarter knot of speed developed over nineteen knots. Secretary Tracy has sent the following dispatch to his immediate predecessor in office, Secretary Whitney, at Lenox, Mass.: "Permit me to congratulate you on the magnificent performance of the Baltimore."

Lightning Mail Juggles.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 17.—General Superintendent Bell, of the railway mail service, has received the report of the recent case examinations of railway mail clerks connected with the Fifth division, with headquarters at Cincinnati, O., for the month of August. The result shows that 1,000 marks made an average higher than 99 per cent., while ten of the 114 did not make an error. One clerk correctly distributed 3,088 cards, indiscriminately dubbed in from the mail of the state of Illinois, in two hours and ten minutes. Of the whole number of clerks examined twenty-eight were recently appointed and are serving probationary terms. Those tested by examinations are held from time to time and are confined to those who ask for an examination, with a view to the service, and with a few exceptions those who are below the average in efficiency. The examination of the latter is compulsory.

Tanner to be Recorder of Deeds.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 17.—Commissioner Tanner, accompanied by Albert Daggett, of Brooklyn, called on Secretary Tracy and had a long conference. It is understood that Gen. Tracy was importuned to use his influence with the president to appoint Mr. Tanner recorder of deeds for the District of Columbia. The three were closeted together for more than an hour and at the end of that time Mr. Tanner and Mr. Daggett went to the treasury. The latter department will secure the recordership, which pays nearly $15,000 per year in fees.

Gallant Seamen Save a Life.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 17. -A case of gallantry on the part of the seamen of the receiving ship Wabash at Boston has been brought to the attention of the navy department by Capt. Carpenter, the commander of that vessel. He reports that William Heaney, seaman; William L. Goodrich, coal hoaver, and John Doyle, private marine, jumped overboard on the 13th inst. and by their prompt and energetic actions saved the life of a drowning man. The navy department will secure the recordership, which pays nearly $15,000 per year in fees.

Dispatcher Kramer Held Responsible.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 17.—The coroner's jury investigating the collision near the navy yard tunnel, on the Baltimore and Potomac railroad, which resulted in the death of Engineer Jamieson, have found a verdict to the effect that the collision and Jamieson's death were due to the negligence of R. H. Kramer, the telegraph operator. Kramer was held for the action of the grand jury.

The Wauregan Failure.

PROVIDENCE, Sept. 17.—Four copies of the modified form of agreement to be signed by the creditors of the Wauregan and Nottingham mills companies have been submitted to as many banks here for discussion, amendment and approval. The modified form throws out all the features in the one submitted at the meeting on Monday, Sept. 9th, day, which were there so strenuously objected to, and entirely divorces the private obligations of Edward F. Taft from those of the two corporations.

A Trunk Robbed of $1,000.

RANDOLPH, N. Y., Sept. 17.—Mrs. Freeman, aged 70, was living with her son, Martin Freeman, on his farm in the town of Napoli, board two men going up stairs in the house. Supposing one to be Mr. Freeman, she thought nothing of it. On investigation she found a trunk open and $1,000 missing, mostly in gold, of $20 and $10 pieces. The thieves overlooked a $500 bag of gold and other money in the trunk amounting to $1,000.

A Stage Stopped by a Highwayman.

SACRAMENTO, Cal., Sept. 17.—The stage between Forest Hill and Auburn was stopped by a masked man who demanded the Wells, Fargo & Co. treasure box. This box was given him and he escaped with it. It is not known how much it contained.

Free Text Books for New Haven Schools.

NEW HAVEN, Sept. 17.—The school board election resulted in the choice of a majority for the free text book candidates by majorities of from 1,300 to 2,100.

ODD FELLOWS' GREAT DAY.

Thousands of the Order at Columbus, O. Interesting Annual Reports.

COLUMBUS, O., Sept. 17.—The first of the hours of reported festive interests a brilliant scene, with its decorations, in all colors of the rainbow, and ready for America's great event in Odd Fellowship. No less than 5,000 members have arrived, and the trains are coming in on every road loaded down with Odd Fellows. Sixty thousand visitors are expected. The city is one vast sea of decorations and the scene in front of headquarters, the G. A. R. grand encampment of a year ago.

The Sovereign Grand Lodge of I. O. O. F. met in the house of representatives with the following grand officers present: John C. Underwood, grand sire, Columbus; Charles M. Bishop, deputy grand sire, Raleigh, N. C.; Theodore A. Ross, grand secretary, Columbus; Isaac A. Sheppard, grand treasurer, Philadelphia; Allen Jencks, assistant grand secretary, Columbus; Rev. W. Lincoln, past grand chaplain, Hopkinsville, Ky.; John E. H. Albin, grand marshal, Concord, N. H.; John N. Perkins, grand guardian, Chelsea, Mass.; W. H. Trader, grand sentinel, Washington, D. C.

In the morning the grand body was received at the board of trade rooms, where the welcome addresses were delivered by Governor Campbell and Mayor Bowers, which responses were made by Grand Master J. L. McKinney, of the Ohio Grand lodge, and by Grand Sire Underwood.

The Sovereign Grand Lodge then went into session, and the grand sire made his report. This shows that the annual increase of membership is larger for several millenniums than that reported for a similar period during the last fifteen years.

The report from the adjutant-generals files, up to Sept. 1, shows that there are 47 patriarchs militant departments, 546 component cantons, 3 band cantons; that 3,165 chevaliers have been made; that there are 19,228 cantons mounted, and 1,937 cantons of military outfit and other assets of cantons is $782,328.88.

The report of Grand Secretary Ross, for the United States, shows that the aggregate membership of the subordinate lodges, not separate from benefits and charities, for the year 1888, and the amount of invested funds Dec. 31, 1888, as follows: Grand Lodges—Total number of members, 1,073,276; total funds, $14,606,283.39. Grand Encampments —Total current expenses, $119,053.11; invested funds, $1,072,080.79. Number of grand encampments, 54; grand encampments, 45; subordinate lodges, 8,534, an increase of 336 over 1887; subordinate encampments, 2,091; increase, 43; Rebekah degree lodges, 1,766, increase, 56; Rebekah degree lodges, 56,125, increase, 2,781; encampment initiations, 11,515, increase, 563; lodge members, 583,552, increase, 27,830; encampment members, 106,972, increase, 5,284; Rebekah degree lodge members, 96,436, increase, 16,871.

Daily by the same firm, will receive $50,000 for every quarter knot of speed developed over nineteen knots. Secretary Tracy has sent the following dispatch to his immediate predecessor in office, Secretary Whitney, at Lenox, Mass.: "Permit me to congratulate you on the magnificent performance of the Baltimore."

ELMIRA'S BIG FAIR.

Governors Hill and Beaver Will be There During the Week.

ELMIRA, N. Y., Sept. 17.—On account of the unfavorable weather the attendance at the opening of the great interstate fair was rather light. The prospects for a large attendance during the week are good. The exhibits already in place are far ahead of any previous state fair. The formal opening of the art hall and the Roman races were the features of today. On Wednesday Governor Hill will be present at the exhibition of the "Last Days of Pompeii" in the evening.

On Thursday, in addition to the races, Dunn, Hall, Paul and other broadjumpers will give exhibitions.

Friday will be governors' day, and Governors Hill, of New York, and Beaver, of Pennsylvania, with their staffs, will attend the fair.

The $30,000 stake races will occur next week.

Brown, Steese & Co's Assets.

BOSTON, Sept. 17.—Somewhat sensational rumors were heard here as to the magnitude of the deficits of Brown, Steese & Co., and the failure of the examining committee to find the assets corresponding to the figures appearing raised on the notes of the firm. President Lewis, of the Manufacturers' bank, who is a member of the committee engaged in the examination of the concern, said: "I don't see any advantage in publishing the affairs piecemeal, because if parties should think they find any such complexion of affairs as has been stated, they would be quickly changed by something discovered later on. I don't say that any such deficiency has been as yet discovered. I only claim that it is premature to say that there is anything wrong. It has been reached thus far. The affairs are very complicated, and it will be three or four days before we can act on the report of the expert accountant. The assets of the firm's notes for which it was said that offsets could not be found was $1,700,000.

The Shot Was Unexpectedly Fatal.

LANARK, Ont., Sept. 17.—Six young men out on a spree entered the house of Margaret Robinson on the outskirts of the village and on the approach of the police fled. They aged about 16 years. Her cries aroused Thomas Cameron and his son, living near by, who came to her assistance and ordered the men away. They put out the light and Cameron, afraid to enter, fired several shots with the intention of frightening the men off. They left the house and it is not known that any of the shots had taken effect until Saturday, when the body of Wm. Watson, one of the men, was found dead fifty yards from the place. An inquest is being held.

Down On Gowanus Canal.

BROOKLYN, Sept. 17.—The commissioner on the Gowanus canal, in this city, have reported to the mayor and board of health that the canal a nuisance, dangerous to health and traffic, and filling it up. The cost of the work, including the indemnifying of the property owners deriving benefits from the canal, is estimated at $10,000,000. The only alternative considered possible is to establish sufficient control over the canal, deepen it and alter its form by new bridges, etc., at a total cost of $785,000, but this is not recommended.

Malietoa Reigns Once More in Samoa.

AUCKLAND, Sept. 17.—The latest advices from Samoa are that Malietoa was quietly restored to power, and that he and Mataafa have gone to Manua. On the 20th inst. it is said they will remain until the decisions of the Berlin conference have been confirmed. The German consul at Apia notified Tamasese that Germany has decided to withdraw from support to any party on the island.

Fatally Stabbed.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Sept. 17.—A special from Mexico, Oswego county, says that about midnight Saturday Capt. Boyd, proprietor of the Boyd house, and a man named Hayes of Lake Ontario, quarreled and Capt. Boyd stabbed Hayes thirteen times about the head and body. Hayes will die.

ROYALTY'S RUDE REBUFF

Hatzfeldt Will Not Marry Miss Huntington.

HER DOWRY DOES NOT SUIT HIM.

Millionaire C. P. Huntington Concludes Not to Pay the Prince's Debts, Much to That Gentleman's Discomfiture—The Match is Off—The Prince's Record.

PARIS, Sept. 17.—The projected match between Prince Hatzfeldt and the adopted daughter of Mr. C. P. Huntington has been definitely broken off. After a thorough investigation of the matter, the Pacific railroad magnate has concluded that he will not pay the prince's enormous debts, which, he believes, should be settled by the prince's father and mother, who are perfectly able to do so if they wished. Mr. Huntington declared to the prince that he would only allow his adopted daughter, Clara, a modest income, to be paid quarterly, and that it would be stopped altogether if there were any attempt made to discount its payments in advance. Prince Hatzfeldt indignantly refuses to accept any such terms and is very angry.

Mr. Huntington's Good Sense.

The gist of the comment in American circles at Paris is to the effect that Mr. Huntington has given evidence of much good sense by his decision. It is asserted that he learned during his trip through Germany that Prince Hatzfeldt was not an honorable man, and that there were several very unsavory reasons why he could not live in his native country. On learning Mr. Huntington's intention to withdraw, the military suitor and fiance underwent a considerable and altogether refreshing modification, and, indeed, the only person whose feelings of affection have suffered to-day is Miss Huntington herself, who is still exceedingly anxious to acquire the prince's badly tarnished coronet and heart. However, she will have to console herself with $1,750,000. Prince Hatzfeldt barred, the horde of other impecunious bearers of foreign titles will find a fair field.

The Black Sheep of the Family.

A report of the engagement of Miss Clara Huntington to Prince Francis of Hatzfeldt-Wildenburg was cabled to America Aug. 19. Miss Huntington was at that time at Aix-les-Bains with Mrs. John Sherwood, with whom she had been traveling about in Spain. She had met Prince Hatzfeldt at the house of ex-Minister Morton at Paris, and he had followed her to Aix. The prince was born in 1855, and has figured prominently in several gambling scandals of a most disreputable kind. One of these, which occurred a couple of years ago, made much noise at the time and led to the prince's temporary eclipse. No longer either in diplomatic or military services, to both of which he formerly belonged, he is the black sheep of a family which is famous on the continent for the number of its duelists and scandals. His debts are asserted to be over $1,000,000.

MACHINERY HALL BURNED.

St. Joseph's Big $400,000 Fire—One Life Was Lost.

ST. JOSEPH, Mo., Sept. 17.—The big fire here destroyed Machinery hall only. No damage was done to the corn palace, amphitheatre or other building, and the exposition will proceed without interruption until the close. The exhibit covers forty-six acres, and Machinery hall was the container of the industrial features, including the St. Joseph steel palace car, represents but a small feature of the whole. One life was lost—that of Capt. Foster, of Leon, Ia., who was employed in the cereal department.

The famous Lafayette carriage was saved mostly by the prompt efforts of the Apaches and cowboys, who distinguished themselves repeatedly during the night, and particularly by the efforts to save Capt. Foster. The steel palace car, built by the Pullman Co., of Chicago, and the United States, was badly scorched, but stood the fury of the flames. A meeting of the board of trade was held in the afternoon, at which time action was taken to rebuild Machinery hall at once. The loss is estimated at $400,000. Preparations are being made for a grand reception to Secretary Jeremiah Rusk and his party to-morrow.

The Teemer-Gaudaur Dispute.

BOSTON, Sept. 17.—Mr. John L. Sullivan, the backer of Jake Gaudaur, has arrived here. In an interview he said: "I do not propose to have anything to do with Teemer in the boat race. The offer of Mr. Ashton, the decision of the referee that Gaudaur should row the McKeesport race over was rather peculiar, but he had to choose between a stakeholder and a referee. Ashton, and so I can't blame him much. On the night of the race I felt reasonably sure from what he told me that the race would be given to Gaudaur. I do not charge the referee with being dishonest—he seemed to be a well meaning fellow—but he failed from the wrong point to decide against Teemer. On the evening of the race Teemer's principal backer acknowledged to me that Gaudaur had won fairly and squarely. Hamm was on the course to keep it clear, and Teemer agreed that he should be permitted to do so."

The Pittston Poisoner in Court.

WILKESBARRE, Pa., Sept. 17.—The case of Mary Glynn, of Pittston, was called in the criminal court. She is accused of poisoning her husband, Patrick, and her daughter, Scranton, and also being implicated in poisoning her father-in-law and her mother-in-law some months ago. It is alleged that the three victims were murdered by Mrs. Glynn and her husband, Edward, in order that they might obtain the insurance placed upon their lives. The prisoner pleaded not guilty. The case was continued until next week.

3,000 Foresters Enjoy Themselves.

NEW YORK, Sept. 17.—The Ancient Order of Foresters had a parade in Harlem in the afternoon, about 3,000 men taking part in the parade. After marching through the principal streets of Harlem the line was halted at the Manhattan Harlem park, where a picnic was indulged in for the remainder of the day and evening. Among the visiting members present were conclaves from Newport, R. I.; Boston, Washington and Jersey City.

Rumored Indictment for Murder.

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J., Sept. 17.—It is rumored here that Gen. Ripley, president of the Raritan River railroad, the directors, W. Hendrickson, agent; Thomas Hussey, contractor, and William Fisher, the brickmaker, of Sayreville, have been indicted for murder on account of the riot at Sayreville last spring by which a man was killed.

The Giants Again Lead.

NEW YORK, Sept. 17.—The result of the day's games, Boston's losing to Philadelphia and New York winning off Washington, placed New York again at the head for the championship. New York and Chicago have now 71 games and lost 40, as against Boston's 71 and 41.

NAGLE FREE AT LAST.

Released on $5,000 Bail—National Jurisdiction Declared Supreme.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 17.—Judge Sawyer, in the United States circuit court, has rendered a decision in the habeas corpus case of Deputy Marshal Nagle, and ordered that Nagle be discharged from custody. A bill of exceptions filed by counsel for the state was allowed by the court, and pending an appeal to the United States supreme court Nagle was ordered released on his own recognizance, with bonds fixed at $5,000. Justice Field was present when the decision was rendered. A large number of people were in attendance in the court room by the announcement that the case was to be decided. The decision is a long one, and includes a careful review of the events leading up to the shooting. On the subject of jurisdiction it says: "There is no conflict of authority. The state in such cases is subordinate, and the National government paramount."

Judge Sawyer says the United States marshal has the same powers as to keeping the peace in any manner wherein the sovereignty of the United States is involved as the sheriff has where county affairs are concerned. The use of state police was impracticable. The powers of the sheriff ended at the borders of his county. The jurisdiction given the president the power and duty of seeing that the laws are faithfully executed. "After mature consideration we conclude that the petitioner was committed by the petitioner while acting in the discharge of the duty imposed upon him by the constitution and laws of the United States."

Commenting on the statements that Nagle was too hasty, Judge Sawyer says Nagle, on the scene of action, observing Terry's actions, clearly justified in acting on the part of the party to determine when the supreme moment for action had come. And if he honestly acted with reasonable judgment and without malice, Judge Field says, even if he erred. The judge further says that the facts developed in the case show that Nagle had acted aright. The homicide was, in our opinion, clearly justifiable in law, and in the forum of sound practical sense was commendable."

THE TRIAL OF IVES.

Clerk Woodruff Gives Some Damaging Testimony Against the Young Financier.

NEW YORK, Sept. 17.—In the Ives' trial Ives' clerk, Edward W. Woodruff, testified that Ives had told him that as the company had controlled a majority of the stock the officers of the company had everthing in their own hands, and that no trouble could come to them through the over issue of the stock. Subsequently Ives had told the witness 2,300 "new" shares for purpose of cancelling old stock. Two thousand shares of this lot of new stock were not recorded because there was not sufficient stock for cancellation. Ives had erased the signature of Mr. Zimmerman from some of the certificates in order to deceive Mr. Zimmerman was the registrar of the American Exchange National bank where the stock was registered according to custom.

Ives had said to witness: "We must not let Burns get on to this, or we'll get up a tree."

About Aug. 25 Mr. Burns called at Ives' office and asked to see the old certificates, for which request he had been notified and registered. Witness and Ives managed to temporarily reassure Mr. Burns, and that night Ives and Woodruff sat up late and prepared what these latter termed "bogus" stock with certificates. This work was completed at 11 o'clock at night. As fast as the bogus certificates were finished they were hurried over to Mr. Burns' house to the coru palace, amphitheatre or other building, and the exposition will proceed without interruption until the close. The exhibit covers forty-six acres, and Machinery hall was the container of the industrial features, including the St. Joseph steel palace car, represents but a small feature of the whole. One life was lost—that of Capt. Foster, of Leon, Ia., who was employed in the cereal department.

EVA DOUBLY INDICTED.

She Must Answer for Conspiracy and Arson.

HAMILTON HAS DESERTED HER.

And Will Take No Part Whatever in Her Defense—Joshua Mann and Mrs. T. Anna Swinton Also Indicted in New York.

NEW YORK, Sept. 17.—Indictments have been found by the grand jury of the county of general sessions against Joshua J. Mann, Mrs. T. Anna Swinton and Mrs. Eva Hamilton, who are charged with conspiracy to defraud Robert Ray Hamilton, and with grand larceny in the second degree. The indictments, Mann and Swinton, were arraigned and pleaded not guilty. They were remanded to the Tombs, no day having been fixed for their trial.

The New York Charge.

The defendants are charged in the indictment with falsely presenting the baby in the case, and also with obtaining from Mr. Hamilton $5,000. Judge Martine signed two bench warrants, which were ordered to be sent to May's Landing, N. J., where Mrs. Eva Hamilton is awaiting her trial for felonious assault upon Mary Donnelly, the nurse, should she be acquitted on this charge she will be rearrested on the above warrant.

Also Indicted in New Jersey.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Sept. 17.—Robert Ray Hamilton came down to May's Landing, accompanied by young Richard Vollmer, whom he sent to Atlantic City about three weeks ago for his personal effects. The September term of court, which has been delayed for a week because of the illness of the sheriff, was opened promptly at 10 o'clock, with Judge Reed, of the supreme bench, presiding. With him were Lay Judges Corbrey, Small and Bywater.

The grand jury found twenty-three indictments. Among the number was that of Mrs. Evangeline Hamilton, who was indicted for an atrocious assault upon Miss Ann Donnelly. Capt. Perry, her counsel, is prepared to make a vigorous defense on behalf of the woman, although his hopes of remuneration are very slight.

Hamilton Will Not Help Eva.

Hamilton said that he was not here in the interest of Mrs. Hamilton and would take no part whatever in her defense. He had freed himself from her absolutely, he said, and meant to remain that way. She should suffer the penalty of her crime and it would be useless for her to imply cause to May's Landing to fulfill a promise he had made to Judge Irving and not because he had any dread of forfeiting his $600 ball.

Nurse Donnelly Tells Her Story.

The only witness who appeared before the grand jury was Policeman William Biddle, who was called into the Noll cottage to arrest Mrs. Hamilton. He had with him the clothes worn by Nurse Donnelly and Mrs. Hamilton on the day of the stabbing, and they showed knife cuts in several places. A number of witnesses appeared before the grand jury, including those of Mrs. Rupp, Nurse Donnelly, Mrs. Swinton, and one made by Mr. Hamilton.

No Thought for Eva.

Mrs. Rupp, young Vollmer and Mr. Hamilton spent considerable time both morning and afternoon on the court house lawn in earnest conversation. They did not enter the court house at all during the day. Mrs. Rupp looked uneasy and restless and tried to avoid the scrutiny of the many people who were present to attend the opening of court. Hamilton chatted familiarly with his acquaintances and didn't seem to give a thought to the woman who was confined to her bed with nervous prostration in the attic room of Sheriff Johnson's house.

KILLED IN A COLLISION.

Two Locomotives Crash Into Each Other at Tioga Junction.

TIOGA JUNCTION, Pa., Sept. 17.—A passenger train from Elmira running south on the New York, Lake Erie and Western railroad, Tioga branch, and composed of seven coaches, ran into a Fall Brook engine at this station, causing a frightful wreck and killing or injuring about twenty-five persons. The train was descending a heavy grade and, owing to the slippery track and the refusal of the air brakes to work, the engineer was unable to stop the train at the station. It rushed on and crashed into one of the Fall Brook "Jumbo" engines. Both locomotives were completely demolished.

The engineer and fireman jumped for their lives, and escaped with slight injuries. The smoker and three passenger cars were smashed into fine kindling wood and caught fire. With great difficulty some of the passengers were rescued from the burning wreck. The flames lit up the heavens for miles around, and people came from all parts to render what aid they could to the injured.

The names of the dead are Eugene Daighue, a newsboy, and Harry Oliver, of Union, N. Y.

The wounded are Ed Bostwick, Lawrenceville, ankle sprained, hands scalded; William Walker, Lanes, Bradford county, Pa., badly scalded and scalp wounded; William Jones, Peckahly, Scranton, Pa., traveling for F. W. Fritz, scalded; John Samepool, Lamb's Creek, Pa., nose broken and injured on head; George McNagin, Elmira, N. Y., scalded, back injured; Mrs. G. N. Wright, Spokane Falls, Wy. T., left leg broken; J. H. Judd, Blossburg, conductor, wounds on head, left shoulder broken; Charles Hoffman, Elmira, N. Y., left leg broken; Mrs. Wallace Pryor, Lawrenceville, slight contusion; Miss Estella Pryor, head slightly injured; Geneline Pryor, ling, Lawrenceville, slightly injured; Alfred Seeley, Trowbridge, contusions; Herbert Campbell, Mansfield, Pa., scalded.

Gen. Faulkner's Trial.

BUFFALO, Sept. 17.—The United States district court has convened in this city for what promises to be one of the longest and most important criminal trials in some time. The principal case is that of Gen. Faulkner, charged with conspiracy to break the Dansville bank. The trial of the case has just commenced. There are between forty-five and fifty men subpœnaed on the part of the government, among them Roswell P. Flower, President Woodward and Cashier Donald, of the Marine bank of New York; Vice President Wright and Cashier Hickok, of the National Park bank of New York.

A Buffalo Girl Elopes.

BUFFALO, Sept. 17.—Annie Sweet, aged 22, has disappeared from her home at No. 18 Chippewa street, and her mother claims that Bert H. Halstead, who came from Detroit two years ago to engage in the piano business with C. H. Upby, is responsible for her flight. Miss Sweet left home saying she was going shopping, but did not return. The girl's mother says Halstead has a wife and children in New York, and that the latter is the Halstead has her daughter in hiding somewhere in the city.

THE ARIZONA KICKER.

Some Every Day Happenings in Editorial Life.

The last issue of The Arizona Kicker contains the following:

Mr. Morgan—During the past week Maj. O'Connor, Judge Pegram and the Hon. Tacony Jones, shining lights of this neighborhood and leading members of society, have been called on by eastern detectives and returned to their several homes toward sunrise to be tried for various crimes. While we are sorry to see our population depleted, we know that justice must be done. The only wonder is that so few were called for. We are certain that at least twenty-five of our leading citizens break into a cold sweat every time a stranger strikes the town.

No Rebate.—We desire to state in the most explicit manner that no rebate will be allowed to any of our subscribers who may be obliged to leave town for the benefit of the community, or who may be hung and buried for the same reason. In several late instances friends of such subscribers have called on us and asked to cash up for the unexpired term, but we have invariably refused. Subscriptions to The Kicker run for one year. We contract to deliver the paper for that time. If the subscriber is arrested, driven off or hung, it is no fault of ours. Please bear this in mind and save yourselves trouble.

Hz Misery.—Our esteemed contemporary down the avenue didn't like the way we showed him up last week, and on Monday he borrowed a revolver from Sam Adams as long as he leg and lay in ambush for us at the corner of Apache and Cactus avenue. As we appeared, on our way to the postoffice, he opened fire, and six shots were fired at us at a distance of no more than ten feet. Not one of them came within a foot of us, but the shooter did manage to wound a 2000 mule belonging to Lew Baker, and to kill a $20 dog belonging to Judge Stoker. When he was through shooting we knocked him down and hammered him until he hollered. We understand that he has settled with the others for $150 and that he thinks of leaving town. He'd better. If he ever had any standing here he's lost it now for sure. A man who holds a gun in both hands and shuts his eyes to shoot is of no account in this district. The coyotes wouldn't even bark at him.—Detroit Free Press.

An Unexpected Call.

The curtain had risen on the last act of the play, and the diabolical plot of the villain was about to be exposed in all its hideousness.

Suddenly there was a commotion near the entrance, and a voice called out breathlessly:

"Is Dr. Kallowmell in the audience?"

With the grave, preoccupied manner of a man on whose skill the life of some fellow creature might depend, the doctor arose from his seat near the stage and passed slowly down the aisle.

"What is it?" he asked.

"Doctor," said the breathless man, as he drew from his breast pocket a package of folded documents, "I'm Spotcash & Co.'s new collector. Would it be convenient for you to settle that little bill this evening?"—Chicago Tribune.

Either Would Do.

Young Man (somewhat agitated)—I have called, Mr. Means, to ask permission to pay my addresses to your daughter, Miss Ruth.

Banker Means—My daughter Ruth, Mr. Pefunctor? Why, she is engaged to Mr. Swackhammer.

Young Man (still agitated, but reflecting that all is not yet lost)—Did you think I said Miss Ruth, Mr. Means? I said Miss Gwendolen. The—similarity of the names probably caused you to misunderstand me.—Chicago Tribune.

Confessions of an Autograph Fiend.

First Autograph Fiend—I don't see how you got autographs from all those great poets.

Second Autograph Fiend—Easy enough. I would write some "Sweet Singer of Michigan" sort of verses and print them in our local paper under the name of the poet I wanted to strike. Then I'd write to him, asking if it was true that they were written by him. I'd get a red hot letter in reply every time.—New York Weekly.

Destructiveness.

"See that boy?"

"Yes."

"Very destructive."

"How so?"

"Wears a suit of clothes out the first day he gets them."

"Impossible!"

"Well, he does. He wouldn't go naked, would he?"—Chicago Ledger.

Low by Contrast.

"Did you go up the Eiffel tower?" asked a gentleman of a friend who had just returned from Paris.

"Oh, yes."

"Did it seem that it was so high?"

"No, it did not seem very high to me; but then you know I had just paid my hotel bill."—Chicago Liar.

Linguistic.

Controller Matthews was glancing through a treatise on Volapuk at a book store the other day when an acquaintance asked him:

"Do you read Volapuk?"

"Oh, yes; with perfect ease," answered the controller, "when it has been translated into English."—Washington Post.

He Had Investigated.

Calino is about to get married.

"My dear, do you swore?" his sweetheart asked him the other day.

"Never, my sweet!"

"But how do you know?"

"I once kept awake all night to make sure."—Le Figaro.

What Poets Have to Bear.

Poet's Wife—What are you thinking so deeply about, Algernon?

Poet—I am trying to get a head for this poem.

P. W.—Let the editor put a head on it. You attend to its feet.—Boston Courier.

He Had None.

"I never speak to my inferiors," said Reginald de Brokaugh, haughtily.

"No," replied Smith, "I don't believe you ever do. Did you ever meet any?"—Manley's Weekly.

She Had It on Authority.

"Miss Grace is a beauty, isn't she?"

"Yes; and she knows it, too?"

"What makes you think that?"

"Because I told her so myself."—Lowell Citizen.

Couldn't Feel Her.

Lover tenderly—I love the very ground you tread on.

Heiress—I thought it was the farm you were after.—Life.

A Wail from Boston.

Enough paper has been spoiled with bad jokes about Boston beans to bake all the beans that are used in Boston in a year.—Boston Journal.

LINES TO MY MOTHER.

You, we miss you as the flowers
Miss the gentle fall of rain,
Or as we would miss the note
Of the song bird's sweet refrain.

In the evening's purple twilight,
At the golden noonday hour,
There is ever something lacking
In their splendor and their power.

Even your tiny pet canary,
And your parrot, gorgeous green,
By their silence note your absence,
And would welcome you, I ween

With a burst of song and chatter
That will prove how glad they be
That the long hours of your absence
Have at last passed away.

And as first fair buds of springtime
Smile upon our welcome sight,
Or as we hail with pleasure
After dark dawns rosy light,

So with joy we hail thy coming,
Oh, thou queen of heart and home,
Deep our love and great our welcome
Light our joy as ocean's foam.

—Maley Bainbridge Crist in Cincinnati Enquirer.

THAT BLESSED HAMMOCK.

How One Woman Rested While She Worked and Never Got Cross.

Did you ever try a dose of hammock? It is the best medicine that can be found for one who is "all tired out," and it has also the added attraction of being very pleasant to take.

After all that is said, nowadays, in regard to being much in the open air, and for all the learned doctors' recommendations of it as a remedy so detrimental to their future financial prospects, I fear many of my sisters think themselves "too busy" to indulge in this inexpensive luxury. But have you ever given this matter a fair trial? I realize fully how little leisure a woman who tries to do her duty in caring for children and home can spare for a genuine rest, even when a little is needed than no rest at all, for it at least breaks the otherwise continuous strain on the nervous system.

You must sit down for your sewing and mending, so why not betake yourself to your hammock, conveniently hung in the shade of the nearest tree? When it is possible, a few minutes' time or a few minutes in which you can at any rate try to think of nothing but resting, will be a great help in keeping you in better health. Husband and children will enjoy you when you are bright and strong much more than when you are tired and—well, is not tired sometimes synonymous with cross or fretful? Suppose you keep for a few weeks a list of the critical, complaining or despondent remarks you make during that time. Even the best of people, we must acknowledge, sometimes "lose their self control." When did the thoughts find utterance? When you were feeling bright and fresh, with no hint of weariness or headache about you? Or was not the "power behind the throne" in that case rather some bodily failing?

You could keep your work basket, books and paper near your hammock on pleasant days all ready to take up during the recess in the open air. And I am sure that when the summer is over you will not regret the hours spent there.

It is far better for baby to be enjoying the green outside world with you than barricaded in the stifling room out of the way of harm or mischief, as she often is.

Change of position, the lying down instead of standing or sitting, is a rest in itself, and most helpful when one wishes to gain health rapidly.

This is not a patent medicine. It is a tried old remedy, than which no much advertised "cure" can show more unimpeachable of astonishing but beneficial results.

I have in mind as I write a friend who had vainly sought relief from that too prevalent complaint, nervous prostration. By the advice of her family physician she took up this outdoor living, and now it has no more earnest advocate than she. Her hammock was swung at a convenient height for her window, and for one entire summer she spent the greatest part of every pleasant day there. All her sewing, mending, reading, writing, eating and resting was done while sitting or lying in her hammock under the trees. "I thought at first I couldn't be so lazy as it seemed to me then," says my friend now, "But I gained so rapidly and I just wish every tired woman in the world could try that blessed hammock."—Jean Halifax in Ladies' Home Journal.

Mustard Poultices.

Adults as well as children have generally an insurmountable dislike of that excellent remedial agent, a mustard poultice. It stips, certainly, but if in acute pain the counter irritation is always soothing in effect. In cases of sudden and severe ache throat the application of a mustard plaster is often most beneficial. It need not be kept on until there is great redness of the skin; certainly not until it blisters. If properly made, is more agreeable by reason of the absence of the pain caused by mustard. But it is, perhaps, less efficacious than the more direct application to nerves, and after the use of linseed in poultice form extreme care must be taken to prevent cold. I am told mustard mixed with the white of an egg will not raise a blister, but I cannot vouch for the truth of this. It is a pity so few women comparatively know how to make properly a poultice of either linseed or mustard. The flour should be newly ground, or it loses half its desirable qualities. Then how few know that the bowl for mixing and the spoon must be hot, the water actually at the expedition is an indispensable condition; that the muslin in which the poultice is incased must be previously warmed, and if the patient be in another part of the house that a hot soup plate with another hot plate over should be used to keep the linseed hot in transit! Half the comfort and help to be derived from the poultice is lost if it be applied in a tepid condition. A piece of oilskin and several folds of flannel placed above will serve to keep the plaster from losing heat.—Philadelphia Press.

Germany's Royal Children.

The young emperor of Germany, William II, is more liberal than his father 3 years old. He is the crown prince and the heir to the throne. He will some day be emperor of Germany. He is a fine, sturdy little fellow.

Germany is a very military country, and Emperor William is such a thorough soldier that strict military discipline is the order of the day in the nurseries of his little people.

As soon as they are old enough to walk they boys are dressed in baby uniforms, and the young crown prince looks quite like a little soldier.

When their father visits them in their own quarters (as I suppose I ought to call such a very military nursery), the crown prince commands its smaller brothers to "fall in."

Then Prince Albert, who is a little more than two years old, and Prince Eitel Fritz, who is nearly more than babies, "fall in." Little Prince Albert is such a mite that he is not able to keep himself upright for long, and he soon falls away to his nurse's side. But the crown prince and Prince Frederick stand stiff and straight like real soldiers till their father returns their salute in proper fashion.

When the little crown prince was 4 years old, he was given a barbecue to himself instead of, as usually is the case with all the others. He was very pleased, and said, "Oh, this is nice; how I need not be with the children any more."—Our Little Men and Women.

MEN OF LETTERS.

The Grand Duke Constantine, wrote to the czar, has recently published a book of poems.

Richard le Gallienne is a promising young English poet whose work in the vein of Keats is attracting attention.

William O'Brien, the Irish leader, spent his time in prison in writing a novel which he calls "When We Were Boys."

Pierre Loti, the novelist, is a lieutenant in the French navy, and writes all of his books from notes made in his diary while on his travels.

Edward S. Van Zile, the successful young novelist, is a slender, olive skinned man with dark eyes and hair, and a thoughtful countenance.

Leander Richardson, the editor of The New York Dramatic News, has had something like a Mark Twain development in journalism.

William Sharp, author of the latest London sensation, "Children of To-morrow," may be fairly said to stand at the head of the present romantic revival in England.

Mr. Robert Fancillon, the novelist, is a well built man of some fifty summers, with a fair head streaked with gray, clear blue eyes, and a somewhat nervous manner.

Andrew Lang has a most marvelous power of mental concentration in his work, and always writes in his dining room undisturbed by the family conversation around him.

Zola began life as a poor and obscure lad, employed at $30 a month in the book store of the famous publisher, Hachette, and from this he has risen to be the Chatelain de Medan, as he is called.

George Augustus Sala, at a recent authors' dinner, said that Douglas Jerrold's publisher, learning of his death, regretfully remarked, "I am sorry to hear he's dead, for there still were pickings on his bones."

Alsdoe is the title of a new Latin magazine of essays, stories, poems and sketches, begun in Italy and edited by the editor of Ulrichs, a brilliant young scholar who distinguished himself at Munich.

John Ruskin refers to John Strange Winter, the author of "Bootle's Baby," as "the author to whom we owe the most finished and faithful rendering ever yet given of the character of the British soldier."

Arthur C. Grissom, a clever young western writer, whose work has appeared in The Youth's Companion, Detroit Free Press and other journals, is only 20 years old, and is president of the Western Authors and Artists' club.

Francois Coppee, the French poet, who is a heavy cigarette smoker, says, "I never had any reason to attribute my indifferent health to tobacco, which I regard as a stimulant to work and to dreaming, and for the poet these two words are synonymous."

WOMAN'S WEAR.

The Connemara is the favorite autumn wrap for misses and little girls.

All the softer, repped silk fabrics are now classed under the general head of bengaline.

Several new and pretty shades of lilac and violet colorings are shown for house dresses.

Two small reeds give the necessary contour to the dress skirt. They are never set high in the back.

The latest whim in hair dressing is to use at least six double pronged pins of as many distinct designs.

Mahogany silks, brocaded with copper colored flowers, are striped with wide bands of mahogany velvet.

Armure, faille francaise and brocades appear among the early importations of silks for the coming season.

The extreme simplicity of style modeled on the directoire pattern will be popular during the coming fall season.

Black and white just now is the combination most desirable to make and worn by matron and maid alike.

Cantenaire is the name used to describe a line of red which ranges from a brilliant poppy hue to a dark, dull tint.

A stylish Hungarian cloak, reaching from neck to skirt hem, is made of black bengaline, and lined with black and white checked silk.

Furriers say that beaver is to be one of the very fashionable furs next winter. It is a becoming fur and very desirable as a trimming for gowns and wraps.

Russian models in cloaks are very elegant and will prove a favorite, as do all Russian models, for they always possess the effect of grace combined with comfort.

Very few, if any, of the newer designs in bonnets or hats have any decided novelty in shape. The trimmings alone give an autumn character to the new head gear.

Pretty soft crepe de chine vests, with a jabot of plaiting down the front, are just now quite a la mode to wear with black costumes. They may be found ready made in all colors.

Drop trimmings of all kinds will be worn on wraps and costumes as a graceful finish. The drops of the newer models are metal threads interwoven in the silk, giving a rich and pretty effect.

Among the charming models for a young girl's outfit is one of taffeta silk in creamy white, over which is an overdress of dotted Swiss muslin, on which are tiny rose buds in pink. A simple band of black velvet keeps the frill waist in place and hangs in long bows and ends at the side.

ROYAL FLUSHES.

It is stated that King Leopold of Belgium contemplates a trip to the Congo.

The two young daughters of the Prince of Wales are contributors to magazines.

The emperor of China had a court astrologer beheaded for making a false prediction.

The widowed Crown Princess Stephanie is about to receive the golden rose this year from the pope.

The two favorite pursuits of Princess Beatrice are riding and trying over new music in the form of hymns.

The wedding trousseau of the empress of China filled 600 boxes, each of which took two men to carry. The emperor's two other wives were able to pack their apparel into 360 boxes.

Prince Albert Victor, eldest son of the Prince of Wales, will soon begin housekeeping for himself in the apartments in St. James' palace which have remained for forty years by the late Duchess of Cambridge. All the rooms are now being redecorated for the new occupant.

The czar has a new traveling train. The saloons are covered with iron cuirasses and then come eight inches of cork instead of the steel plates with which the carriages of the old train were protected. All the rooms communicate by a covered passage, and are exactly the same in outward appearance, so that no outsider may be able to discover in which carriage the czar is traveling.

PERSONAL GOSSIP.

Mr. Gladstone declares himself to weigh 168 pounds.

The pope has a tall cat of pearly white tooth well preserved.

Whenever Edison appears at the Paris exposition the mad plays "Yankee Doodle."

Mr. Selah Chamberlain, of Cleveland, gave his beautiful niece $10,000 as a wedding present.

President Carnot's habit of talking in a loud voice is said to be due to his wife's deafness.

Dr. Nansen, the Arctic explorer, is engaged to be married to Miss Eva Sars, a well known Norwegian singer.

John Templeton, of Adams county, Pa., 76 years of age, has a jackknife that he has carried since he was 16 years old.

Samuel Crook, of Williams college, has won one of the Cobden club silver medals for proficiency in political economy.

"M. Joseph Dugnid, ex-president of W. K. Vanderbilt's kitchen," is the title a New York paper gives to Mr. Vanderbilt's ex-cook.

The Marquis Ginari, of Florence, has bought the island of Monte Cristo, made so celebrated through Dumas' novel.

George W. Childs owns many of the papers of Andrew Johnson. Among them is the account book which he kept when he was a tailor.

Henry E. Abbey's running expenses in his new ventures for this season, not to mention his new theatre in Boston, will be about $10,000 per day.

Mr. Henry M. Flagler is going to add to the luxuries of his Florida winter hotels a mighty baseball ground, with special surgical and medical facilities for umpires.

David N. Bisbely, a graduate of Dartmouth college in the class of '90, has received the appointment of instructor in English of the American college at Aintab, Turkey.

Dr. Waddington, the late dean of Durham, was a great epicure and one of the best judges of wine in Europe. After his death in 1869 his cellar realized a very large sum.

Dr. George F. Shrady, of New York, spends most of his spare time at his farm on the Hudson river near Kingston, where he trims trees and looks after a herd of Jersey and Holstein cattle.

Professor Armenius Vambery, the Hungarian traveler, is a short, thick set man, with face worn and frame bent with travel and exposure, slightly lame, with keen, dark eyes, a frank manner and perfect command of English.

Secretary of State Saulsbury, of Delaware, is a striking man in appearance, nearly six feet in height, with sharp, piercing eyes and a manner which is extremely attractive. He has just issued a new volume of Delaware's laws, the eighteenth since the state was founded.

Vice President Morton's new home in Washington contains thirty-two exquisitely decorated rooms. The suite of rooms on the first floor far exceeds in beauty the White House parlors. There is a large new dining hall, which will be used as a ballroom on state occasions.

"Gen." Booth, in opening a new Salvation hall in Liverpool, defied any one to point out any authorized doing of the Salvation Army not justified from the Bible. They had 2,700 societies and 6,000 officers, for the most part self supported, and the annual income was not less than $4,000,000.

Mr. George Gilbert Aime Murray, who has been chosen to succeed Professor Jebb in the Greek chair at Glasgow university, is a young Oxford fellow of only 24. He is an ardent Home Ruler and Liberal, a non-sectarian, a poet among the early importations of silks for the coming season. and in his undergraduate days was a frequent speaker at the Oxford union.

Dr. Seward Webb, one of the Vanderbilt clan, and who recently started with his family for an 18,000 mile pleasure trip, traveled with every luxury and convenience in his train of four saloon cars. The nursery car was one only stocked with toys for the children, but had swings, rocking horses and other juvenile toys, and the bath room tank held 500 gallons of hot and cold water.

DAUGHTERS OF EVE.

Mrs. Maybrick's mother says she doesn't propose to leave England until her daughter is set free.

The daughters of Julian Hawthorne are named Hildegarde, Gwendolen, Gladys, Beatrice and Imogen.

Mme. Carnot, wife of the French president, is of medium height, with olive complexion and red brown hair.

A Mrs. Fanny Vertun claims that she holds the title deeds for the entire ground on which Minneapolis is built and has begun suit for possession.

Miss Joanna Baker, who has been appointed to the chair of Greek at Simpson college, in Iowa, began the study of the language at the age of 4 years.

Mrs. Kendal tells us in her new book of "Recollections" that, having married an actor, she vowed that she would never play love scenes with any one but her husband.

Mrs. Charles B. Pope, of Chicago, will give a library to the town of Danville, Vt., to replace the one destroyed by fire last May. Her husband, now dead, was a native of Danville.

Sarah Holland, a woman evangelist, preaching among the negroes in Brownwood, Ga., distributed a load of watermelons free at the meetings. The crowds that go to hear her preach are enormous.

The Duchess of Marlborough won the first and last spring meeting for Blenheim spaniel, Norwich Lady, at Kidlington (Oxfordshire) dog show, near the ducal palace. The breed originated in the palace and is kept up there.

Lady Macartney, wife of Sir Halliday Macartney, secretary of legation to the sultan, London, was recently fined $25 for ill treating her female servants. She was in the habit of tearing out handfuls of their hair whenever they displeased her by delays.

Josie Holmes, formerly private secretary of Vice President Harper of the Fidelity bank, Cincinnati, is now a clerk in the census bureau at Washington and has recently been promoted. The other feminine clerks are in a state of mind over the discovery.

Lady Dilke is one of the most accomplished women in England. It is said to be a perfect treat to sit by her at dinner, she is so bright, elegant and clever, and at the same time so kind and sympathetic. She possesses in an eminent degree what the French call savoir vivre.

Both Ellen Terry and her young son, who has now definitely adopted the stage as a profession, will appear in the revival of "The Dead Heart" at the Lyceum in London. Mr. Irving's visit to Boston promptly was for the purpose of making studies for the rendering of this play.

Mrs. J. W. Congdon, of St. Paul, while walking on the railroad track, was struck by a rapidly moving train, hurled into the air and over a barbed wire fence into a vacant lot. She was not seriously hurt, and after giving the engineer a piece of her mind she started out across the lot at a rapid gait.

Fine and Needless.

Stuffed rats and mice are said to be one of the fashions as ornaments in bonnets and hats for 1890.

Never wash a jelly bag, strainer cloth, pudding bag or dumpling sets with soap. The next thing that is put into or passed through these things will surely taste of the flavoring of attar.

The widowed Crown Princess Stephanie is to receive the golden rose from the pope.

Overdressed women abound at seaside hotels. None of the finery is of the most extraordinary description, and it may well be wondered where it comes from—Paris, New York or the southern part of Africa. And yet the overdressed woman is never happy!

"Birch bark" lawn parties are the latest in Maine. The invitations are written on birch bark, and the refreshments served from plates of the same material.

It is absolutely essential that every maid of honor employed in the British royal family should be a good horsewoman and correct reader of music at sight.

A room with a low ceiling will seem higher if the window curtains hang to the floor. Lambrequins may be used to extend the curtains to the ceiling, and thus carry out the effect.

The two favorite pursuits of Princess Beatrice are riding and trying over new music in the form of hymns.

Make all kitchen aprons of seersucker, and so avoid quite an item in the weekly ironing, as it requires none. If work dresses are made of the same goods they need ironing only when fitted.

According to a London society paper luncheon is to take the place of the dinner as a social function, and fashionable people, recurring to the habits of their forefathers, will take their heartiest meal in the middle of the day.

To raise the pile of plush or velvet, dampen on the wrong side with clean, cold water, then hold tight across the face of a hot iron, and rub up the crushed spot with a clean, stiff brush.

Learn to Be Housekeepers.

Begin with your own possessions, girls. Reform your upper bureau drawer; relieve your closet page of their accumulation of garments out of date; in a month or two—the intervals a clear and careful order in the midst of which you can daily move, and learn to keep it so that it will be a part of your toilet to dress your person and its arrangements while you dress yourself, leaving the draperies you take off as lightly and artistically hung, or as delicately folded and placed, as the shirts you keep carefully to wear, or the ribbon and lace you put with a soft neatness about your throat. Cherish your instincts of taste and fitness in every little thing you have about you. This will not make you "fussy." It is the other thing that does that, the not knowing, except by fidgety experiment, what is harmony and the intangible grace of relation.

Take upon yourself gradually, for the sake of getting them in hand in like manner, if for no other need, all the cares that belong to your corner of your home. Have your little wash cloths and your sponges for bits of cleaning; your furniture brush, and your leather duster, and your light little broom, and see that you clean your bottle of sweet oil and spirits of turpentine and piece of flannel to preserve the polish, or restore the glow where the wood grows dim or gets scratched. Find out, by following your surely growing sense of thoroughness and niceness, the best and readiest ways of keeping all fresh and bright. Invent your own processes if they will come to you. When you make yourself wholly mistress of what you can learn and do in your own apartments, so that it is easier and more natural for you to do it than let it alone, then you have learned to keep a whole house so far as its cleanly ordering is concerned.—St. Nicholas.

A Bit of Childish Strategy.

Somebody who writes sagely about children and their affairs says: "Children are naturally self centered." Of course we all know that. Here is an instance: A small girl of the "Listener's" acquaintance had a visit from two of her young friends, each some what larger than herself, the other day. Both the visitors brought their dolls, and it was proposed that they make common property of all their playthings, including the dolls, and go in for a general good time. The plan was accepted by the youngsters and all went merrily. By and by the small hostess, returning to the nursery in household who had originally proposed the arrangement of matters under which they were proceeding so amicably, said, in her most engaging and honeyed manner:

"Don't you think that the biggest little girl ought to have the biggest doll here?"

As the biggest doll was known to be the biggest girl, the question was taken as a proof of rare self denial on the little girl's part. So the lady said:

"Yes, my dear, that would be very wise."

"And the next biggest girl the next biggest doll?"

"Yes."

"And the 'ittiest girl the 'ittiest doll?"

"Yes."

The child ran away and reported the new arrangements to the other children; and it wasn't until later, when the pent up feeling of one of the little girls found its way to tears, that it was discovered that the "ittiest doll" was a superb French arrangement, which opened and closed its eyes, and wore a costume got up in perfect recklessness of expense. The "ittiest girl's" self denial was a rare bit of strategy.—Boston Transcript.

For Use and Ornament.

The fashionable woman of our time is without pockets and she is forced to other means of transporting the indispensable movables, such as handkerchief, fan, visiting cards, keys, etc. This renders the bag problem one of no little importance, and happy the she whose nimble mind leads to the invention of something above the commonplace in the way of bags, of which there are many pretty kinds. Many of these are composed of netted silk of such open mesh and of such appearing brocaded silk. But it is the all-over-the-bead bag that is more strictly practical looking. The housewife, with an overwhelming sense of the fitness of things, has a bewildering array of bags from which to select, the family rag bag, made of heavy unbleached muslin, that hangs in the sewing room, to the splendid satin, embroidered receptacle that is purposely out of sight under the dressing table wall, and that contains a square of sheer drawn linen, called by courtesy a dust rag. The esthetic bag in the vast collection, however, is the one filled with orris root or violet sachet powder, and hung with broad ribbon bows over the backs of drawing room chairs, the soft fragrance impregnating the atmosphere delightfully.—Detroit Free Press.

Barache is another affection of childhood. Common remedies are useless. Those suffering in the ear a piece of cotton batting moistened with sweet oil and laudanum. A flannel bag of salt or camomile flowers, made very hot and secured over the ear most affected at bedtime, will often do much good. If the pain comes from neuralgia a salt bag filled with oats and heated and tied over the ear affected is almost always a sure cure. In my own personal experience I have never known the latter to fail in curing a bad spell of neuralgia in head or face.

HOW MANKIND DEFERS FROM DAY TO DAY THE BEST IT CAN DO, AND THE MOST BEAUTIFUL THINGS IT KNOWS, WITHOUT THINKING THAT EVERY DAY MAY BE THE LAST ONE, AND THAT LOST TIME IS LOST ETERNITY!—Max Muller.

JOTTINGS.

—Days of 1889 past, 261; days to come, 104.

—Bonnets will be smaller than ever this fall.

—Dotted veils are said to be very injurious to the eyes.

—The rain yesterday caused a good deal of fast driving—for shelter.

—The State Firemen's Convention will be held at Long Branch, one week from to-day.

—The enrollment of the North Plainfield public school is 378, and not 513 as first reported.

—Mechanical drawing classes will be reorganized at the Y. M. C. A. rooms early in October.

—Within two weeks the price of apples has raised from $1.50 to $3 per barrel, on account of the small crop.

—Somerset street near Front was a miniature lake yesterday, caused by the heavy and sudden downpour of rain in which many persons were caught without a protecting waterproof or umbrella.

—Since the New York papers have given Abbett the title of the Napoleon, the Republicans of New Jersey have accepted it, and gleefully give notice that this election will be his Waterloo.—Elizabeth Journal.

—Somebody with a taste for figures has made the calculation that in the year 1900 the United States will have a population of 1,000,000,000. This paragraph should be cut out and preserved for reference at that time.

—The New's route boys, found it exceedingly difficult in getting around some portions of their routes last evening. Under the Park avenue bridge, for instance, the water was over the knees of the boys who go in that direction, and they had to wade. Customers who may have been missed will be supplied to-night.

—If the Board of Health, etc., doesn't attend to the sewers left open in the chasm in Somerset street some one will be bringing a damage suit. The stench emanating therefrom yesterday afternoon was horrible. All doors and windows in the vicinity were hastily closed to exclude it. It was probably caused by the washing down through the pipes of filth from some out-house or some such, sending that emptied into the sewer.

—The Trenton Enquirer, at the risk of having its ears pulled, hazards the following: "The number of young girls, young ladies in every other sense of the word, who will carry on a rapid flirtation with any man who happens to please their fancy is shamefully large. This sort of thing is going on all the time—on the streets in restaurants, candy stores, theatres, and horse cars. Girls who have the opportunity to meet every one they ought to know by a proper introduction in society are by no means excluded from the list. They hold their sex fascinating a fool—they usually end by being both the fascinated and the fool."

—Mr. Powers, of Somerset street, North Plainfield, while driving past THE NEWS office at about six o'clock Tuesday afternoon, had a narrow escape from what might have been a serious accident. He was carting a load of hay along, and as he drove over a spring in the mud up the slight incline, formed by the temporary bridge across the race, it in some way got its fore legs across the shafts and becoming frightened was tearing with his load into the gutter. By the prompt action and help of some bystanders Mr. Powers escaped damage, either to himself or wagon. It was necessary to unharness the horse to get the shafts from under him.

—Common Council has spent the best part of a year discussing the question of waterworks, while Plainfield, with its driven wells sunk to the proper depth, has the purest water to be found anywhere in the State. Instead of bothering so much about getting water which we are in no pressing need of, and which is urged only by outsiders, or those in their employ among us, starting a profitable contract and franchise, it would be more sensible to provide means to get rid of the water, which overflows our main thoroughfares every time there is a rain storm, because the sewer to carry it off is not half as large as it ought to be. Instead of an insignificant 12x24 inch pipe, there ought to be one at least 24x48 inches; and there is pressing need that something should be done without delay.

ANOTHER FRESHET.

CAUSED BY THE EXTRAORDINARY FALL OF RAIN.

Somerset Street Stone Bridge Collapsed—Wilson's Dam Gives Way—Other Damage.

The triple-arch stone bridge over Green Brook, at Somerset street, damaged by the extraordinary flood of Friday, July 31st, which also caused the dams and bridges above Somerset street to give away, succumbed to the storm of last evening. The stream has been filling as the result of the heavy rains of a week past, and last evening the waters came rushing from the mountains in an irresistible torrent.

About eight o'clock two wagons passed over the bridge. Ten minutes later the force of the torrent raised the most southerly arch at a point in the middle of the street, and instantly the arch collapsed, and left a hole about twelve feet in diameter. The seething waters soon tore away the balance of the arch to the southerly sidewalk. The northerly sidewalk was swept away by the previous flood.

Chief Carey was promptly on hand and took steps to guard against loss of life. A large crowd of people had already gathered at the scene. Policemen were stationed at the bridge to warn people against crossing, and ropes were stretched across the street in front of the bridge to prevent the crowd being used. The thoroughfare is one of the most frequented in the city. Even while the precautions were being taken, the sidewalk sank into the torrent and was swept away. The chasm was made wider and deeper during the night by the rushing waters, and also tore away a portion of the second arch.

Planks have been laid across the sidewalk so that people may pass in safety, but Somerset street is impassible for wagons.

The waters subsided to-day, and the wreck of the Somerset street bridge was an especial attraction to crowds all day.

Notes of the Flood.

An electric light has been placed over the gap on Somerset street.

A temporary guard fence has been erected across Somerset street near the washout.

The water at the Notch was nearly as high as it was at the time of the previous flood.

A small bridge over Green brook, on Grove street, was carried away by the high water.

Even if we have not water-works we most certainly have the works of water in Plainfield.

Crowds of people to-day viewed the gap in Somerset street, the work of last night's freshet.

Suits against the Somerset and Union county Boards of Freeholders are threatened by property-owners.

Green Brook overflowed its banks, and the waters damaged property in the vicinity, but not to a serious extent.

The railroad tracks at the Fanwood depot were under water to the depth of several inches. Travel was not delayed.

A portion of Wilson's dam at the Notch gave away last night and the water flooded the roads and fields in that vicinity.

Green brook road, Grove and Duer streets, were flooded and the fences, gardens and road beds were damaged to a considerable extent.

A large tree in the rear of Neighbors' boarding-house was uprooted by the water last evening.

It was Wilson's, not Coddington's dam, that gave away last night. A report was current on the streets this morning that it was the latter.

A portion of the foundation was torn from under a dwelling house on Grove street owned by a widow of the late John Hand by the waters.

The families who occupy the dwelling-house at the rear of Frinch's carriage factory were compelled to vacate as the water in the first story was from three to four feet high.

Persons who claim to know, say that if the Board of Freeholders had had the debris taken from under the bridge after the last freshet the disaster last evening would have been averted.

Mr. P. M. French has been having the dam at Tice's Lake repaired in a very substantial manner. The flood came before the cement had time to set, and a large hole was washed out of the wall.

Some of the fences about the extensive and beautiful "Tunkaw", by which name Col. John F. Wilson's grounds are known were swept away. This is the most serious damage reported to us from that section.

Cedar brook also overflowed its banks about midnight, and residents in that vicinity say that the water in the street was as deep as at any time during the great flood of last July above referred to, but no serious damage is reported.

"Ma,"—said the small boy—"kin I go swimmin' up to de brook?" "Why, so, my boy. Why walk so far! Isn't there swimming all around now? Go out and bring me the boat, I want to go down town, and you can swim around in the yard till I return.

The residents of Grove street are indignant at the condition of that thoroughfare. They say that after every heavy storm the sidewalks are covered with water and are impassable. The sewers in the vicinity of the bridge are clogged with grass and dirt, and are unable to carry off the surface water.

Tenth street and Putman avenue were again submerged and the cellars of the buildings there, were filled with water as they were during the flood two months ago. The property owners in that section, say Cedar brook is not large enough to carry off the surplus water in case of a heavy storm.

After the first flood two months ago the sidewalk and a portion of the road at the corner of Somerset street and Greenbrook road, which had been washed away, was filled up with several loads of crushed stone. This morning, after the heavy rains of yesterday, it is as bare as ever. All the stone and earth have been washed away, forming a large and dangerous hole for unsuspecting pedestrians and drivers.

In conversation with a News reporter this morning Freeholder Jones said that work on the Somerset street bridge would be started as soon as possible, as the contract had already advertised for bids. He said the reason the matter had not been attended to before was because the committee wanted to build the Water street bridge first, so that North Plainfield could be as easily reached from the eastern end of the city.

The water under all the railroad bridges was several feet deep, the Union and Central avenues, near the railroad were flooded for the first time in several years. Liberty street, between Front street and Orchard place, resembled a small river, and a resident of that thoroughfare was rowing around in a boat. The cellars were filled with water and the stock of the merchants were considerably damaged.

Thomas Melville, a laborer, who was assisting in removing the debris from the broken arch on Somerset street at about eleven o'clock this morning, had his left hand badly bruised by a falling stone between two planks. Dr. Rushmore dressed the wounds. On examination he found that although the hand was badly swollen and cut, no bones were broken. James Connoly another laborer had a narrow escaped from being crushed about the body at the same time.

The News has endeavored to get the matter closely, say that the water under the Grove street and Washington street bridges, was much higher last night than at any time during the previous flood. The bridges trembled some, as the waters rushed through them, rising in the floor-joists and tearing the earth away at the anchorage, and it was feared that they would give away. A report was spread during the night that it was dangerous to cross these bridges, but this had no unnecessary alarm. The Grove and Washington street bridges are the only ones left by which convenience can get over to North Plainfield, the four or five other bridges having gone down with the July flood. It is therefore, exceedingly important that these bridges hold.

The Freeholders of Union and Somerset counties are roundly denounced for the delay in repairing the damages of the July flood. The Freeholders say they are not to blame, as they are securing bids as rapidly as possible to get the work done. Still, it is nearly two months since the flood, and it must be admitted that people have good reason to complain. Many favor abolishing the Boards of Freeholders of Union and Somerset counties altogether, under the new law, and substituting three commissioners, who would at once put the expense to the taxpayers go about the work like business men, and not waste two months doing what ought to be done in a week—get bids. With proper energy two months ought to have been sufficient to have had all the obstructions removed such as the Somerset street low arch stone bridge, and had the bridges all rebuilt so that such a little rise of water would not harm them. It is hoped that the meeting will not receive prompt attention.

PERSONAL.

Mrs. Robinson, of New York, is visiting her mother, Mrs. Goodman, of New street.

Mr. C. B. Corwin and family of East Ninth street are home again from their Summer outing.

Warren Church, of Craig place, North Plainfield is slowly recovering from his recent serious illness.

Mr. William A. Coddington, the popular assistant in Judge Stillman's law office, is home again from Boston where he went in the interest of the Montague heirs. His trip was very enjoyable as well as successful.

Mr. Wm. H. Moore, the manager of Plainfield Electric Light Company, yesterday exchanged his property on West Second street for the property at the corner of Madison avenue and Second street, owned by Mr Charles Clifton.

Ex-Councilman John H. Cuthbert after remaining a widower several years was married two weeks ago yesterday at Oil city, Pa., to Mrs. Mary R. Moorehead, eldest daughter of Mr. J. J. Brondhead. Yesterday his wife died suddenly at Toledo, Ohio, from heart disease. The death notice appears elsewhere. Mr. Cuthbert is exceedingly popular in Plainfield, and he has the sympathy of a large circle of friends in this, his second affliction Mr. Mrs. Cuthbert were on their honeymoon at the time of her demise.

W. C. T. U. County Convention.

The fifth annual convention of the Women's Christian Temperance Union, of Union county, was held at the Baptist church in Roselle yesterday. The Secretary's report showed that the membership was about 700. The officers were elected as follows: President M. D. Tomlinson, of Plainfield; corresponding Secretary, Mrs. T. B. Abel, of Elizabeth; recording Secretary, Miss Thomas Greaves, of Westfield; Treasurer, Mrs. C. F. Nixon, of Summit. A meeting was held last night. The union is in a flourishing condition.

Picnic-Pneumonia in Elizabeth

An increase in cases of pleuro-pneumonia among horses and cattle is reported at Elizabeth, and the veterinary surgeons are fearful of an epidemic if prompt steps are not taken to check the spread of the disease.

TO ELECT GEN. GRUBB.

THE REPUBLICAN PLATFORM.

Adopted at the State Convention at Trenton, Tuesday Sept 17, 1889.—A Platform on Which all good Citizens can Unite.

The Republican party of New Jersey, in representative convention, declares that:

The platform of the National Republican Convention of 1888, the platform of 1889, and endorsed by the people of the country by the election of General Benjamin Harrison to the Presidency, and by our State election of 1889 has our unqualified reaffirmance. We congratulate the State and the country that the people agencies and successful Administration brought into power under its principles. President Harrison has our full confidence and unqualified support of the Republicans of this State.

The outcome upon which we are entering is one of honor and high principle.

We declare ourselves pledged to local self-government, in township, city and county. We are in harmony with that provision of the State constitution which declares "the Legislature shall not pass special acts conferring upon any corporation, association or individual the rights, privileges, immunities or franchises of which powers only officers can be vested, but shall pass general laws under which the same may be acquired and exercised."

The provisions of this section have been flagrantly violated by the last Legislature. The Legislature of 1889 has been the most corrupt in the history of the State in the character of its majority.

It was partisan, it was arrogant, it was powerful, and it was reckless. Its numerous repealers, its enactments for the redistricting of the State, its new charters for municipalities, its laws relating to the internal affairs of towns and counties", the spirit of which provided for the creation of new offices only after deals and promises of appointment made between the legislative and executive departments, rising in the floor-joists and tearing the earth away at the anchorage, and it was feared that they would give away. A report was spread during the night that it was dangerous to cross these bridges, but this had no unnecessary alarm. ## UNION COUNTY FREEHOLDERS.

The Last Road Contract Signed Yesterday.

The Union County Board of Chosen Freeholders met at Elizabeth Monday afternoon especially to hear an appeal from John A. Stevens in the matter of the opening of the township committee of Cranford, in reference to waste gates at Vreeland's mills.

When the members came together a communication was read from Judge P. H. Gilchrist, showing that the gates were in two townships, and asking for a postponement of the hearing.

On motion of Mr. VanSciven the matter was postponed until the next regular meeting.

The only other resolution was by Mr. Bovard authorizing the committee on county road bonds to advertise a request for the purchase of bonds to the highest bidder, provided is be for the best interest of the county.

The resolution was adopted.

Director Hubbard stated that all the contracts for the county roads had been signed except for the Kinney road or St. Georges avenue, and that under agreement the signing would be done Tuesday. The work will begin on the several improvements immediately.

The New State Committee.

The new Republican State Committee appointed at the convention in Trenton yesterday are as follows:

First Congress district, David Baird, of Camden, and George Steelman, of Salem; Second district, William H. Skirm, of Mercer, and Robert C. Hutchinson, of Burlington; Third district, E. H. Martin, of Middlesex, and R. M. Woods, of Union; Fourth district, Richard Reading, of Hunterdon, and Frank Swayze, of Sussex; Fifth district, George W. Jenkins, of Morris, and J. R. Miller, of Bergen; Sixth, William Steinsby, and R. W. Hine, of Passaic; Seventh district, Thomas James C. Young, of Hudson. The members at large will be appointed in the course of a few days.

City Court.

Thomas King was before Judge Stillman charged with creating a disturbance on Cottage place a short time ago. Judge Stillman discharged him for want of sufficient evidence.

John Harrison and John Grady, both of Elizabethport, were arrested last night for disorderly conduct. This morning Judge Stillman gave them the choice of paying a ten dollar fine each or spending ten days in the county jail. They chose the latter.

Lantern Bicycle Parade.

The lantern parade under the auspices of the Atlantic wheelmen will take place in Newark on Oct. 10. It is expected that 300 wheelmen will be in line, as visitors are expected from Jersey City, Brooklyn, Westfield, Plainfield, Elizabeth, Rutherford and Orange, besides the unattached wheelmen of Newark. A banquet will be in order after the parade.

Joseph Lippa, a workman employed at Shorley's stone-crusher, Newark, was arrested yesterday on a charge of murder in the first degree. The statement is made to a fellow-workman that the Italian who was found murdered in Harrison was killed in a cellar in Canal street.

In the Special Sessions yesterday Barton Corbin, of Newark, who stole $2,700 in money and $700 worth of jewelry from Mrs. Louisa Krueger, of No. 40 Orchard street, pleaded guilty and was sentenced to eighteen months in the penitentiary.

Died.

(MORNING NEWS.)
PLAINFIELD EVENING NEWS
AND
NEWSPAPER OF PLAINFIELD AND VICINITY, IS PUBLISHED AT 4:30 O'CLOCK EVERY AFTERNOON, AT NO. 21 SOMERSET STREET,
BY W. MORNING'S, EDITOR AND PROPRIETOR.
IS DELIVERED BY CARRIERS TO ALL PARTS OF THIS CITY AT TEN CENTS A WEEK; OR, IF PAID IN ADVANCE, AT $5.00 PER YEAR.

What irrigation will do for the arid lands of the west is well shown in the case of Pasadena, Cal. Fifteen years ago the land where the city now stands sold for $7 an acre. It was irrigated and orchards planted upon the soil. Seven years after being supplied with water the land sold for from $500 to $1,000 an acre for fruit raising. The spot that had been a desert suddenly became the most fertile and delightful part of the whole state.

There has been in China at least one American missionary who gained the full confidence of the natives. This was Rev. S. Cassett, an independent missionary, who died, lately at Pekin. He devoted his life to the poorest classes of the Chinese. He took care of the sick and homeless, visited the prisons and buried the dead. So well known and loved was he that he traveled all over China and the east without money, and wherever he went food and lodging were freely given him. He ate only fruit and rice or millet and drank water. What had the world to offer to a man like that? He sought only to help the poor in all ways he could. The natives revered him, and bestowed on him the name that meant the highest praise they could give to any one. They called him the Christian Buddha.

Destroying Mosquitoes.

Dr. Henry C. McCook has taken up the question started by Dr. Lamborn and discusses the extermination of mosquitoes. He believes the number of these pests can be lessened by the assiduous propagation of their two natural enemies, the dragon fly and the spider. He says an intelligent city gentleman once asked him:

"What is a dragon fly?"

He showed his friend a specimen, when the gentleman exclaimed: "Oh, that's a devil's darning needle." He was correct. That is to say, a devil's darning needle is a dragon fly. Very often a long, thin legged specimen of the family will be found caught between the window panes in mosquito time, where he has been hunting his prey, and slipped into prison unawares. Don't kill him, but treat him with all respect.

Dr. McCook also speaks very highly of the spider as a mosquito eater. He says the number of insects of all kinds and sizes destroyed by spiders simply passes calculation. In one of New Jersey's favorite mosquito haunts he once discovered thirty-eight of these nocturnal blood suckers in one spider web. The doctor informs housekeepers that the spider comes not into our houses to harm us, but to help us—comes to rid us of flies and mosquitoes. If we must brush away her web, we need not destroy the spider herself. "If people would decrease the number of consumptives let them encourage the multiplication of spiders." So the ladies can take their choice which they like best, mosquitoes or spiders.

Suggestions for 1892.

Senator Joseph R. Hawley, president of our centennial world's fair committee in 1876, contributes to The North American Review a paper full of valuable suggestions on expositions in general. He says that the sixteen years that have elapsed from 1876 to 1892 will make it useful and pleasant for the United States again to measure progress with other nations.

In 1876 our population was 45,000,000. In 1892 we shall have 69,000,000 or 70,000,000. We shall have increased in population nearly 50 per cent., and more than that in wealth and power. The senator recalls the enormous progress England has made in the industrial and decorative arts since the first world's fair at the Crystal palace, in 1851. England then saw her deficiencies and immediately went to work and remedied them. This is what world's expositions do for all nations. In all of them the United States has shown her superiority in machinery.

New York is the place for the 1892 exposition, the senator thinks. No other city is large enough or accessible enough. In reference to making the exposition permanent he uses this Hawleyesque sentence:

There is always a temptation to play with the change at the rocket after it has performed its function.

Congress should extend to other nations an official invitation to join us. It should also appoint a business commission to superintend the exposition. No side shows at an extra charge were permitted in 1876, and exhibitors were not charged for space. For our next exposition government should appropriate a reasonable though generous sum.

Gen. Hawley closes with this fine quotation from Whittier's ode in 1876:

Thou who hast here in concord fanned
The flame lit at another land,
Beneath our western skies fulfill
The Orient's mission of good will,
And, freighted with Love's golden fleece,
Send back the Argonauts of peace.

Oh! make Thou us, through centuries long,
In peace secure, in justice strong;
Around our gift of freedom draw
The safeguards of Thy righteous law,
And, cast in some diviner mold,
Let the new cycle shame the old!

GEN. GRUBB NOMINATED.

He Will Lead the New Jersey Republicans

AT THE COMING STATE ELECTION.

Proceedings of the Republican Convention at Trenton—A Synopsis of the Platform That Was Adopted—How the Temperance Plank Reads.

TRENTON, N. J., Sept. 18.—The Republican state convention opened here at noon at the Taylor Opera house. The convention was called to order by Garret A. Hobart, and after electing a temporary organization adjourned until 1 p. m. Upon reassembling the committee on permanent organization reported as follows:

Chairman—J. Frankfort, of Essex.

Secretary—J. Herbert Potts, of Hudson.

Assistant Secretaries—Lewis T. Parker, of Gloucester; Capt. A. F. Bradshaw, of Ocean; John H. Cook, of Monmouth; John S. Cox, of Hunterdon; C. Meek, of Monmouth; Ed. S. Black, of Essex, and J. P. Landain, of Hudson.

The Nominations Proposed.

The counties were then called for nominations for governor, and Burlington named, through Capt. Kirkbride, Gen. E. B. Grubb. Mercer named Frank A. MacGowan; Essex, George A. Halsey; Union, John Kean, Jr.

Gen. Grubb Nominated.

On the ballot being taken no choice. Grubb received 204 votes, Kean 169, MacGowan, 79, Halsey 90, Brower 1. The names of MacGowan and Kean were then withdrawn, and E. Burd Grubb was on the second ballot unanimously nominated for governor.

"BLACKLEGS" ATTACKED.

The London Dock Strikers Drive Them Out of the Docks.

LONDON, Sept. 18.—The advice of the leaders of the strike to the dock laborers to observe all the provisions of the agreement under which they returned to work appears to have been quite effectual. Early in the morning the men assembled at the docks and generally went to work peaceably with the "blacklegs." Very few men assembled outside the docks, and they were quiet. There were, however, a number of disturbances.

The strikers and "blacklegs" on the southwest India dock became involved in a dispute, and the men who had been on strike drove the "blacklegs" out of the docks and police interfered and quelled the disturbance. The strikers then withdrew and the "blacklegs" resumed work.

When the striking workmen were about to resume work at the Albert dock they found a number of "blacklegs" employed on the dock. The strikers made an attack on the "blacklegs" and chased them from shed to shed. Several of the "blacklegs" received injuries which necessitated their removal to the hospital. The men who took the vacant places were discharged. The directors of the dock companies threaten a general lockout if the men do not live up to the terms of the agreement that their representatives have signed.

They Saw Many Sailors Drowned.

LYNN, Mass., Sept. 18.—The steamer Centipede, Capt. Thomas Hanlon, from Boston for Lynn with coal, has arrived here. From the 8th to the 14th inst. she lay inside the Delaware breakwater, held by the violence of the gale. She destroyed the spiders simply passes calculation. In one of New Jersey's favorite mosquito haunts he once discovered thirty-eight of these nocturnal blood suckers in one spider web. The doctor informs housekeepers that the spider comes not into our houses to harm us, but to help us—comes to rid us of flies and mosquitoes. If we must brush away her web, we need not destroy the spider herself. "If people would decrease the number of consumptives let them encourage the multiplication of spiders." ### SCOTTISH RITE MASONS.

They Hold Their Annual Conclave in New York City.

NEW YORK, Sept. 18.—The supreme council of the Scottish rite for the northern Masonic jurisdiction of the United States held their annual conclave in Scottish Rite hall, at Twenty-ninth street and Madison avenue. Ex-Judge Henry L. Palmer, of Milwaukee, Wis., is the supreme commander; Charles L. Woodbury, of Boston, was grand lieutenant commander; Samuel C. Lawrence, of Boston, was grand minister of state; T. McClenahan, of Philadelphia, was grand of ceremonies, and Clinton Page, of Binghamton, N. Y., grand secretary. Many prominent Masons from the various states were present.

The session was opened in the thirty-third degree, none but those having that degree being allowed in the hall. After the formal opening labor was suspended in the thirty-third degree and fully opened in the thirty-second degree. Those having acquired that degree were then admitted. Grand Commander Parvin Paulding delivered his annual address. The annual report of the grand secretary showed a large increase of members. After the day's session the members sat down to a banquet.

Robbed in Broad Daylight.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Sept. 18.—The Journal's Anoka, Minn., special says: "A daring highway robbery in broad daylight was committed on the streets of this city. An old German was walking with John Kirby and John Fisher when they grabbed him by the throat and relieved him of $1,000. A lumber waymen then ran, but were captured after several shots had been fired. Fisher escaped on the road to Minneapolis. A Northern Pacific train and was put off at Ashland Junction because he would not pay his fare. Then he fired several shots at the train, breaking windows, but hitting no one. Officers are in pursuit."

A Prize Fighter Dies in the Ring.

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 18.—Thomas Jackson, a well known prize fighting man of this city, and Ed Ahern, a clever light weight pugilist, engaged in a prize fight in Daly's sporting resort in this city. Eleven rounds were fought, and at the end of the eleventh round Jackson was led fainting to his chair. The fighting was desperate. Jackson died a few minutes after being taken to his chair and before medical attention could be secured. Ahern was arrested.

The Engineer Was Killed.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Sept. 18.—A local freight train on the Auburn branch of the New York Central ran into two freight cars on a dead side track at Brighton. The caboose and four cars were demolished. Engineer MacGregor was killed. His body has not yet been recovered. It is supposed to be under the engine. The indications are that the engineer and fireman were asleep when they approached the switch.

Eva Fiesto Not Guilty by Proxy.

MONTREAL, Que., Sept. 18.—On the opening of court Capt. Perry, counsel for Mrs. Eva Hamilton, asked and obtained the consent of the presiding judge and prosecutor of the plea to be put in place of not guilty on behalf of his client. The reason assigned was the continued illness of Mrs. Hamilton, who is confined to her bed with an attack of nervous prostration.

The Cruiser Chicago's Record.

NEWPORT, R. I., Sept. 18.—The cruiser Chicago has finished her speed trials. At sixty-nine revolutions she averaged 15 5-10 knots an hour for four miles. At seventy revolutions she made a rate of 16 5-100 knots for one mile. The weather conditions were pronounced unfavorable, the wind being strong and the sea choppy. The record is satisfactory under the circumstances.

A CONFESSED PERJURER.

Witness Woodruff Admits That He Lied.

ON THE RACK IN THE IVES CASE.

He Admits That He Committed Perjury on Several Occasions—How He Became a Partner in the Ives Concern and Was Afterwards Put Out.

NEW YORK, Sept. 18.—Nervous and with a frightened look, as if expecting a terrible ordeal, Woodruff, the star witness of the Ives-Stevens combination, took his place on the witness stand. His appearance was not calculated to prejudice the jury in his favor. Woodruff's cross-examination by the defense elicited nearly all of his earlier history already published. He was born about five in 1884 the latter told him he was a banker, and Woodruff entered the employ of his former fellow clerk. Ives told him he was a partner in the concern, and would get 15 per cent. of the profits. This testimony caused Mr. Ives to smile. The witness continued:

Put Out of the Firm.

"I never got any of the profits. There were no arrangements made as to my liabilities. I was told afterward that I was out of the firm and was again a clerk. The profits were not divided to him, but it was not continuous. Mr. Ives took George A. Stayner with him, and I became a clerk again. He afterward took Thomas C. Dorsus as partner. I was not a partner when Mr. Stayner was in the firm, because Mr. Ives said Mr. Stayner objected to me. But Mr. Stayner has since told me that it was not so."

Arrested with Ives and Stayner.

After the noon recess Mr. Jerome began again his cross-examination of Woodruff. Witness stated that four months before the assignment he had made out a new transfer book which he destroyed by his own hand until four or five days after his arrest in February last, when he turned it over to Mr. Parker.

He was arrested with Ives and Stayner on Feb. 21, 1889, charged with larceny in the first degree in stealing bonds and fraudulently using stock of the C., H. and D. railroad.

He Confessed to Perjury.

Mr. Brooks questioned Woodruff's memory about his testimony in the suit of Albert Netter against Christopher Meyer, H. S. Ives and George H. Stayner, but could only say that he said, "I don't know." After reading his testimony, Mr. Brooks asked the witness if he had not testified knowing he was committing deliberate perjury.

"I did," was the cool answer. The apparent unconcern of the witness created a sensation in the court. Lawyer Brooke improved the opportunity and made the witness admit three cases of perjury. The witness continued, admitting the falsity of his former testimony. As he went on to list his coolness. Lawyer Brooke left Woodruff into several traps before he let him go.

Rescued by Summer Boarders.

NEW YORK, Sept. 18.—The steamer Vermonia, with 1,000 passengers from this city, went ashore on Long Beach. All on board were saved. Mr. and Mrs. Sheldon and their two children, passengers on the vessel, were floating about in a boat, when it capsized in the surf, but they were rescued by summer boarders at the beach, who plunged in and brought them ashore. Mrs. Sheldon, with her little daughter, distinguished herself by saving a 3-year-old child in this way. The vessel will probably be a total loss.

Dedicating Monuments at Gettysburg.

GETTYSBURG, Pa., Sept. 18.—The New York state monument on Oak Ridge was dedicated with appropriate ceremonies this afternoon. A heavy rain. Judge Gildersleeve delivered the oration for the One Hundred and Fiftieth infantry, and Benson J. Lossing and others made addresses. Capt. Porter Farley, of Rochester, was the orator for the One Hundred and Fortieth infantry; Lieut. Col. John Wilson for the principal speaker for the Forty-third infantry, and Capt. J. A. Reynolds addressed the survivors of Battery L, First artillery. The monuments are all of granite and well executed.

Three Were Killed in the Wreck.

ATLANTA, Ga., Sept. 18.—The freight train wreck on the Central road, near Hancock, was one of the worst smash ups ever seen in Georgia. It was evidently the work of a train wrecker. Three men—Engineer John Jordan, Fireman Bob Mattlin and Brakeman R. M. Parker—were killed. A passenger train was due at the point where the accident occurred twenty minutes later.

A Railroad Sold for $2,000,000.

OTTAWA, Ont., Sept. 18.—The shareholders of the Northwest Central railway have sold all their interests in the railway to an English syndicate for £2,000,000. The charter of the line covers the right of way of 450 miles of what is described as a very rich country, reaching out toward Peace River valley.

Three Times Tried, But Finally Acquitted.

KANSAS CITY, Sept. 18.—Alice Dyke, on trial for the third time for the murder of John Hamilton two years ago, has been acquitted. The first trial resulted in conviction and a sentence of fifteen years in the penitentiary. The second jury could not arrive at a verdict. The prisoner claims the deed was done in self defense.

The World's Fair.

NEW YORK, Sept. 18.—The executive committee of the world's fair finance committee have a plan under consideration which will probably be adopted and announced at the meeting of the finance committee next Tuesday. The committee on site will, it is understood, announce their selection Friday afternoon.

A Chief of Police Killed.

WILKESBARRE, Pa., Sept. 17.—William Watkins, chief of police of Parsons, a mining town three miles from here, while on watch for burglars, fell asleep on the edge of the Delaware and Hudson depot at Parsons, and was instantly killed by a fast freight train.

A Wife Poisoner Dead.

JOLIET, Ills., Sept. 18.—Lorenz King, the Chicago wife poisoner, died in jail here of consumption. He was serving an eighteen years' sentence for poisoning his third wife. It is thought he confessed his first crime also. He died without making a confession.

A Warning from the Ripper.

LONDON, Sept. 18.—A letter signed "Jack the Ripper" has been received at a news agency in this city, in which the writer states that in about a week another murder will be added to the list of Whitechapel horrors.

Sugar Goes Up in Smoke.

BORDEAUX, Sept. 16.—The Bontin sugar refinery was burned Saturday. There were 300,000 kilogrammes of sugar in stock and the damage amounts to $250,000.

RUIN OF THE WATERS.

A Dam Breaks at Hibernia—A Cloudburst in Delaware.

WEST CHESTER, Pa., July 18.—The breast of the large dam belonging to the Kennedee Iron company, of Wilmington, Del., located at Hibernia, this county, burst, and a tremendous amount of water rushed down the Brandywine, overflowing the banks and and sweeping everything before it. The large bridge which crosses the Brandywine just below the dam was swept away, and several frame buildings were carried down to Coatesville. Several of the streets of Coatesville are four feet under water.

The people living along the stream were warned by the sound of the rushing waters and escaped to the hills. So far as heard from no lives have been lost. The flood has made the Brandywine impassable. The bottom meadows are covered to a depth of eight and ten feet. The break was caused by a heavy fall of rain.

Floods in Delaware and Pennsylvania.

WILMINGTON, Del., Sept. 18.—A cloudburst in upper New Castle county, Pa., and heavy rains have done great damage. The railroad bridges on the Wilmington and Northern railroad above Coatesville, Pa., are all, or nearly all, destroyed, and more expected to follow. No trains have been able to get over Reading, Pa., from this city, and none have arrived here. Several extensive washouts have also been made, and those localities will have to be repaired before the cars can run.

On the Landenburgh branch of the Baltimore and Ohio railroad, near Brandywine Springs, a big washout made it necessary to transfer passengers. The heavy rains will increase the damage already done to crops in this section.

A FIENDISH NEGRO.

He Keeps a White Girl Prisoner for Over a Year.

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 18.—Louise Shoemaker, a pretty blonde girl of 15, disappeared from her parents' home about a year ago, and no trace of her could be found until Sergt. Keany, hearing that a white girl was kept prisoner in the rear of a barber shop on Felicite street by Gus Reed, a negro, went to the place and broke open the door, which was locked. As he entered the rear room he saw the frail form of Miss Shoemaker disappear behind a pile of clothing garment. Her face was pale as death, and her eyes shone with insane fear as she rushed toward the sergeant, and clinging frantically to him cried piteously: "Save me! Save me!"

Keany with difficulty persuaded her that she was now in friendly hands, and the half crazy girl became quiet. Lieutenant Reed was summoned, clothing procured and the girl properly cared for. She states that Reed had kept her locked up for over a year, subjecting her to constant outrage. Reed was soon arrested and locked up. The girl is much emaciated and apparently half starved.

Odd Fellows at Columbus.

COLUMBUS, O., Sept. 18.—The Sovereign Grand lodge met at 9:30 a. m. and remained in secret session until 2:30 p. m. The important business transacted was the discussion and action on the proposed constitutional amendment providing that any person 18 years of age shall be eligible to membership in the order of Odd Fellows. The amendment was lost by a large majority.

At 8 o'clock the Daughters of Rebekah were into national convention, which was called to order by Past Grand Sire Nicholson, who addressed the meeting and introduced Mrs. Lizzie Phillips, of Cincinnati, president of the Ohio state organization of the Daughters of Rebekah, who delivered the address of welcome to the delegates.

The Congress of American Nations.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 18.—W. C. Curtis has returned to the city from Bar Harbor to get Secretary Blaine's approval of the programme of the congress of American nations. Mr. Blaine, he says, is looking better than he has seen him in many years. He is not as fleshy as he was, but his color is healthy and his eyes bright. He is active and in the best of spirits. Mr. Blaine will be in Washington on the 25th inst., when the invitations to delegates to the congress of American nations will hold a meeting here on the 1st of October, and on the 2d the congress will convene.

Mr. Keesport's Great Flood.

MCKEESPORT, Pa., Sept. 18.—The heaviest rainfall in years has turned the streets into rivers. Cellars and first floors and many public and private buildings are flooded. Two houses were overturned, while a number in process of erection were badly damaged. Several of the streets are impassable. The tracks of the Pittsburg, Virginia, Pittsburg, Virginia and Charleston and Belle Vernon railroads were washed out and in several places obstructed by heavy landslides. So far as learned no lives were lost.

Yale's Numerous Freshmen.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Sept. 18.—The freshmen class of Yale numbers 364 this city, and most of its members are engaged in passing conditions, although the faculty state that the class came to the examination unusually well prepared. In the academic department the class is the largest which ever entered Yale, and will number fully 220. In the scientific department there is also a very large class, 140 having passed the examinations.

They Wish to Work But Eight Hours.

PETTSLO, Pa., Sept. 18.—The 200 employes of the Philadelphia smelter have struck for a continuance of eight hour instead of twelve hour shifts. The managers claim that when the eight hour plan was introduced last June it was with the understanding that the twelve hour shift would be resumed Sept. 15.

Killed with Tar and Feathers.

OWEN SOUND, Ont., Sept. 18.—The trial of Samuel Tripp, Daggett and McFatten, for causing the death by tarring and feathering the steamer Baltic, by an application of tar and feathers, on Aug. 26, has begun here. The evidence so far substantiates the story of the outrage as given in those dispatches at the time.

One of Sullivan's Bondsmen Dead.

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 18.—The Times-Democrat's Purvis (Miss.) special announces the sudden death there by apoplexy of Robert T. Scarborough, a prominent planter and bondsman for Sullivan, Kilrain and Renaud. Scarborough's death will necessitate the making of a new bond in each case.

Pennsylvania Firemen in Convention.

CARLISLE, Pa., Sept. 18.—The tenth annual state firemen's convention met in this city. The convention was called to order by President McAllister, of Bradford. Three hundred delegates are in attendance. Eighty companies will constitute the parade on Thursday.

A Fatal Gas Explosion.

SHAMOKIN, Pa., Sept. 18.—Alfred Crow and John Tocas were fatally and John Murphy and William Calvin seriously burned by an explosion of gas in the Nelson shaft. The explosion was caused by the carelessness of Tocas.

SUICIDE IN A CHIMNEY.

Horrible Death of a Policeman's Insane Widow.

SHE WAS MISSING ELEVEN DAYS

And Was Found by a Chimney Sweep.

The Woman Feared Imaginary Creditors and Hid to Avoid Arrest—Crazed by Her Husband's Death.

NEW YORK, Sept. 18.—Mrs. Mary Ann Kenny, a beautiful woman of 35 years, who, grief stricken at the death of her husband, became demented, sought death in the most terrible manner. She lowered herself down the chimney of her house and there awaited death. Whether she died under the slow torture of starvation in her narrow tomb or was mercifully suffocated is not known. The body when found had been entombed in the chimney for eleven days. Policeman James Kenny married Miss Malley, an English girl, Dec. 1, 1883. She was a beautiful brunette of small stature and pleasant disposition. Deeply devoted to her husband, her married life was one of great happiness, dimmed only by the loss of their only child, who died when 1 year old, three years ago. A year ago Kenny contracted a cold, which quickly developed into consumption, from which he died.

Searching for Her Dead Husband.

Mrs. Kenny was inconsolable in her grief and her mind began to give way. She believed that her husband was still alive and would return to her. Her brother Daniel and sister Jane lived with her on the top floor of the four story tenement house 173 Cherry street. Every time she heard a footstep on the stairs she would run to the door and look anxiously out. Then she would rush back and say that it was not he, but was another policeman who had come to arrest her.

"If I owe $15,000," she would moan, "and they intend to arrest me. I hope they will not take me to the Oak street station, because Jane is there. He loves me still, and he would be disgraced if I should be locked up there. Oh, why don't he come to me? I could explain it to him."

Patrolling Her Husband's Beat.

At other times she would patrol her late husband's beat in front of the street ferry looking for him. Her pretty face was well known to the people in that neighborhood. They sympathized with her and treated her kindly. She asked them if they had seen her husband, and they would try to persuade her to go home. Night and day she would wander along the docks hoping to find her dead husband.

Her Strange Disappearance.

At 2 p. m. Sept. 7 she sent a servant on an errand, and when the girl returned Mrs. Kenny had disappeared. She was not found for her in the hospitals and prisons in this city, Brooklyn and Jersey City in the belief that she had been picked up while wandering about

LIGHT AND AIRY.

Giddy Gladys.

She's pretty, quite, in her way;
You would think she could never be wrong,
Whatever she happened to say.
Her manner always is strong.
Our acquaintance has been rather long—
I've clerked her six months in a day.
She's fond of me, and, to tell the truth,
You would think the court never be wrong.

Her manner is sunny and pure,
And when I take leave she gives me a smile.
She knows not unwilling to flirt.
But says "No" when you ask for a kiss.
Such eccentric refusals as this
Make a lover inclined to feel hurt.
Her manner is sunny and pure,
And she sometimes talks things quite naive.

So I've canceled her name from the list
Of the maidens I might take to wife.
I am sure she will never be missed,
For she'd make me unhappy for life.
Since her tongue is as sharp as a knife,
And she feigns she dislikes to be kissed,
I've canceled her name from the list
Of the maidens I might take to wife.
—Somerville Journal.

Some Gleams of Reason Left.

The desperate adventurer had taken his place in the barrel that was to carry him safely through the raging whirlpool or dash against the rocks and toss in splintered fragments on the foaming waters beneath whose treacherous surface his mangled body should find the fishes.

"Are you ready for the closing of the manhole?" inquired a bystander.

"Sir!" he exclaimed in a deep voice, as he rose up in his barrel and looked about him with an expression written in every line of his pale face, "I may be mad for the folly of it, he continued, "as the newspapers say I am, but if this should be my last trip I'm not such a silly-bedad-dinged fool as to want to be found with these things on my body!"

Taking from his pocket a small box he threw it away, crouched down in his narrow quarters again, and in a few minutes his barrel like craft was tossing about in the angry maelstrom.

What had he thrown away, do you ask? Only a package of cigarettes.—Chicago Tribune.

Disappointed.

Softly fell the rays electric
From the lamp before the door,
Casting, through the climbing ivy,
Shades upon the floor.

Well I knew she would be waiting
In her best new summer gown,
With the sweet flowers in her corsage
I had ordered sent up-town.

Flowers that could not well be purer
Than the bread on which they lay,
And I'd walked and saved the car fare
So as to buy 'em many a day.

Lightly up the steps I bounded,
Thinking of what girl so fair:
How my heart within me sounded
When I saw her sitting there.

Some soft woman's garment knitting,
The flowers upon her bosom chaste.
But ah! another man was sitting
With his arm around her waist!
—Buffalo Express.

He Did Not Like Its Source.

A London bishop had gone down into the country to visit a charitable institution, into which poor lads had been drafted from the east end of London, and, in addressing them, he congratulated them on the delights of their new residence. The boys looked unaccountably gloomy and downcast, and the bishop kindly asked:

"Are you not comfortable? Have you any complaints to make?"

At last the leader raised his hand.

"The milk, my lord."

"Why, what on earth do you mean? The milk here is tenfold better than you ever had in London!"

"No, indeed, it ain't!" cried the boy. "In London I always buys our milk out of a nice clean shop, and here—why, here they squeezes it out of a beastly cow!"—Tid-Bits.

The End of Vacation.

Now breezes fresh our faces fan,
And glows less fierce the solar glare,
And flies are less audacious than
They were.

The heated term at last is o'er;
And 'neath fair Luna's silvery light
In hammocks maidens swing no more
At night.

The summer girl has left the shore,
Her ardor for flirtation cools,
For she's engaged: the dude no more
She fools.
—Boston Courier.

The Change It Makes.

Merchant Tailor—Good morning, Mr. Truepay. What can I do for you this morning?

Mr. Truepay—I want a suit of clothes.

"Yes, sir. Kin, the tape and book, please."

"Oh, I don't want a suit to measure, I want a ready made suit."

"Eh! Ready made!"

"Yes, a cheap one."

"Certainly, certainly. Right this way, please. I hadn't heard of your marriage."—New York Weekly.

Who Can Tell?

Not long ago a Mr. Six was married to a Miss Dunbar, and a genius asks this question:

It used to be when folks were wed
"Three two are one," the parson said,
But see how Hymen, full of tricks,
Has made two one, yet made them six.
Nay, and two and one as well,
Are both a dozen! Who can tell?
How will we reckon by and by
What six is six we multiply?
How'er it be, great, gracious heavens,
They ne'er may be at six and sevens!
—Pittsburg Bulletin.

A Trifle Mixed.

Maj. Jones—See here, Rory, you've brought me up one button boot and one lace boot. How is that?

Rory is fresh importation—"Faith an' they's a mistake somewhere, sor. Shall I thry a bit do ye know where it is. Shure an'the other pair down shtairs is in the same fix.—Life.

The Condemned Man's Wish.

"To think that I must leave the world
Reviled by every tongue,"
The convict said, "I deeply dread
This thing of being hung.

"I'd like to live my boyhood days
In harmless games to cope,
To play baseball, but, most of all,
I'd like to skip the rope."
—Washington Critic.

A Reasonable Inference.

Johnny Cumso—Wot Solomon a baseball umpire, pa?

Mr. Cumso—No, Johnny; what made you ask that?

Johnny—I heard the minister say something about the judgment of Solomon.—Drake's Magazine.

Twas Ever Thus.

How milder is the solar ray,
The atmosphere's no longer blue,
And no one says 'tis so to-day,
But, in this hot season for you?

But man is unto trouble born,
And every season has its ills:
The dame who left the ice at noon
Also is sending in his bills.
—Boston Courier.

For twenty-eight years Joe McKinsey, of Silver Creek, Mich., has owned two mares which were half sisters and were matched just alike. Last Thursday they were both killed by the same stroke of lightning, and after their twenty-eight years of service together rested in the same grave.

A story comes from White House, N. J., to the effect that one Weil, living there, while feeling a sick cow last November, lost a valuable gold ring. He thought the animal swallowed it. Last week the cow was slaughtered and the ring found, none the worse for having been in the quadruped's possession for over eight months.

A cat owned and raised by Mrs. Dr. Canning, of Irvington, Ga., is one half rabbit. Its head, front feet and front section of its body is like an ordinary house cat, while its hind part resembles that of a rabbit, its tail being short and perfect, and when it sits in public will sit in the same position as would a full blooded rabbit. Is it admissable to remark right here, Rats?

A 15-year-old boy named Slavin had an exciting experience in the woods half a mile from the railroad and two miles from Scapoose station, says The Portland Oregonian. He was hiding behind a fence trying to stalk a deer when a panther leaped from a tree and came at him. He fired his Winchester at the animal, and dropping it, took to his heels. His returned with his brothers in an hour and found the animal dying. It measured seven and a half feet.

Pedestrians on Eighth street, Philadelphia, were amused by the sagacity of a dog the other day. The animal was protecting a kitten when suddenly his muzzle fell to the sidewalk. He stopped, looked at it, and after a few attempts again got his head in the cage. But just as he started on his trot it fell off a second time. This was repeated four times. Then the dog, apparently realizing that it was beyond him to fasten the muzzle, took it between his teeth and ran on, his looks indicating the pride he felt in mastering the difficulty.

THE LATEST IN JEWELS.

Just now rings with sunk settings predominate.

Plain onyx hobs are earrings of a simple but fascinating nature.

Rings with pearls in diamond shaped settings are much in demand.

Hammered gold sleeve buttons with turquois clovers are of a neat character.

Lovers of the grotesque will favor a silver circus clown done up as a vinaigrette.

Dull gold diminutive barrels, with diamond hoops, form very attractive scarf pins.

A pleasing style of hair pin top is a dull gold ball pierced by a bar with opal studs.

The unpretentious character of pearl necklaces constitutes three-fourths of their charm.

A knife edge wishbone, set with diamonds and rubies alternately, is a charming addition to brooches.

Conspicuous among gents' lockets is a representation in gold of a tree stump, which opens at the side.

Two interlocked loops of gold, across which runs a row of diamonds, composes the neatest of hair pin heads.

An exceedingly cunning idea in queen chain pendants is a moonstone infant's head under a bonnet of gold wire.

A semicircle of sapphires above an enamel and diamond forget-me-not is an attractive scarf pin of late issue.

A fancifully designed hair pin top is an upright coil of rope in gold, with a vertical row of emeralds sunk into it.

A moonstone owl upon a background of gold mounted in a circular gold frame is a brooch oddity recently seen.

White enamel neckties encompassed by diamond scarf ring, are among the quaint productions in scarf pin tops.

A dainty conception in lace pins is a filigree gold star with diamond center, set between two crescents pointing inward.

A gold queen chain pendant that simulates an open book, bound around by a narrow ribbon of rubies, may without fear be styled unique.—Jeweler's Review.

GASTRONOMICAL TID-BITS.

Tartest fruits make the firmest jelly.

The corn is acknowledged now by everybody.

Tomatoes set upon the liver. Asparagus purges the blood.

Fruits playing on the corn ear is best performed in privacy.

The daintiest of all the Florida fruits is the rose apple or Jamboosde.

Old port does not require the care in decanting that claret does.

Quince jelly requires a quarter of a pound less sugar to the pint of juice than other fruits.

Celery acts as a sedative on the nervous system, and is a cure for rheumatism and neuralgia.

The common dandelion, used as greens, has a direct effect upon the kidneys, and so has spinach.

The culinary jugglers can now employ their art to transform English sparrows into roed birds on toast.

The annual statement of the watermelon industry in South Carolina shows that the area planted was 8,000 acres.

Ambrosia is made by filling a deep glass dish with alternate layers of pineapple, oranges, bananas and peaches, with plenty of powdered sugar sprinkled over each layer.

IRISH SUPERSTITIONS.

The phithogues are all charms of an evil nature.

Candle ends used as wakes are highly prized for scalds and burns.

A cat is never taken from one house to another when removing.

A round stower or cattle ruin unfrequented by jackdaws is certainly haunted.

Many fully believe the banshee to be the spirit of some former member of the family.

It is a rare sight on a May morning the milk is likely to be charmed from the cows.

It is very unlucky to meet in the early morning a barking dog or a barefooted woman.

If an osprey be shot along any coast all the herring and mackerel will immediately disappear.

When the starling does not follow the grazing cattle some witch charm has been put upon them.

When a corpse retains animal heat overlong, another member of the family is to die within the year.

Garments and other articles which have come in contact with the dead are very efficacious in charms.

If the stacks are not circled each night by the noiseless barn owl, a blight will fall upon next season's crops.

The magpie, as with the ancient Greeks, is the repository of the soul of an evil minded man or unchaste woman.

The tongue of one who has licked a lizard ever after has the power to extract the sting from scalds and burns.

The dead are believed to have the bitterest experiences if buried at any distance from their homes while living.

The sedge warbler, known more popularly as the "Irish nightingale," is the object of a most tender superstition.

The comet-a-bower or "death coach" seems to stand in something the same relation to the peasantry as the banshee.

The last one buried in a church yard is believed to do all manner of menial service for those having been previously buried.

Every twelfth night the dead walk. They all, too, upon every tile of the house, waiting to be freed from purgatory by prayer.

The Hinet pours forth the most melancholy song of all Irish birds, and I have seen honest hearted peasants affected by it to tears.

When the nest of the thrush or mavis is built unusually high in the thorn bush, this betokens a great calamity to a neighborhood.

Great numbers of jays or mixed thrushes, feeding upon the berries of the hawthorn, betoken the approach of a very cold winter.

Every donkey in Ireland is supposed to fall on its knees at midnight of Christmas eve, and bray three times in honor of its ancient noble use.

Over in Connamara to this day a funeral procession on its way to church will halt at some distance away and cast together a huge pile of stones.

One of the oddest of all Irish superstitions is the belief that if you chase and catch a butterfly you imprison the wandering soul of your grandmother.

Any child born on Whit Sunday or the day after is doomed to an unnatural death, and it is invariably named after some particular saint to ward off the curse.

Any three idle strokes of a stick in the ashes or a spade or other farm tool in the soil making a figure resembling a cross is certain to portend death in one's family.

The waxwing, the beautiful Incendiara avis of Pliny, whose breeding haunts have never yet been discovered by man, are the torches of the bean dabs for business.

When abroad at night one never turns at the sound of footsteps behind. For these are often those of the dead hungering for human companionship, and their glance is fatal.

The placement of a horseshoe to the good use of the cast. They secure favoring winds by burying it in the sands of the seashore, with its head opposite the desired direction.

When a "pishoge curly" or hen crow is found in the solitude of a mountain glens away from human habitations, it assuredly possesses the wandering soul of an impenitent sinner.

Persons who enter into a compact with Satan can raise wind and storms by calling him up, and these disturbances cannot be stilled save by the death of a black cock, a black dog or an unchristened child.

When water ousels appear in the spring time in unusual numbers in any unfrequented locality that is a sign of abundance of fresh water fish, but also a token of the approach of malignant fevers.

SOME USEFUL HINTS.

Ceilings that have been smoked with a kerosene lamp should be washed off with soda water.

Silver may be kept bright for months by being placed in an air tight case with a good sized piece of camphor.

Strong muriatic acid applied with a cloth, and the spot washed thoroughly with water, is recommended to remove ink stains from boards.

When flat irons become rusty, black them with drive polish and rub well with a dry cloth. The yolk of an egg to wipe them over with has also been recommended.

Lemon juice is a good thing for removing tan. It is also excellent for taking stains from the hands, and applied to the hands at night will keep them soft and white.

When ready to serve a jelly or cream that has been set in a mold, set the mold in tepid water, for wrap a warm cloth about the mold for a moment. This will loosen the jelly.

To raise the pile of plush or velvet, dampen on the wrong side with clean, cold water, then hold right across the face of a hot iron, and rub the crushed spot with a clean, stiff brush.

Make all kitchen aprons of seersucker, and so avoid quite oft item in the weekly ironing, as it requires none. If work dresses are made of the same goods they need ironing only when lined.

Never wash a jelly bag, strainer cloth, pudding bag, or dampling nets with soap. The next thing that is put into or passed through these things will surely taste of the flavoring of alkali.

The French water ices are sometimes made with a strip of sugar and water boiled until it forms a fine thread between the thumb and forefinger. This syrup contains four times as much sugar as water.

To make a fruit sauce that is nice for many puddings, reduce one cupful of berries to a pulp by pressing them through a fine sieve; add to them one cupful of sugar boiled to a cream with one cupful of butter; add the fruit juice, and beat in the beaten white of an egg. This sauce should be served directly it is made.

THE CURIOSITY SHOP.

A Singular Town Containing the Names of Thirty Hanted Cities.

This poem, called "Buried Cities," is an oddity. The names of the cities referred to are attached:

No paler book than Father Charles and some no richer when receiving.

Since monks in sandcastle air or cloister walls were seen

The names of fatal war and peace dear sons fall

But he is gone, and at our side, severed nearer still than all

As ice cold hazel was his dear cream or downy

The best of homely hostess beths, drove not that chill from

We used to have nice dishes cooked to tempt his appetite.

And many a charmed hands' nice cake, his palate to invite.

But all in vain. His feeble shape kindred to death appeared.

Beyond comparison he failed, his eye grew wild and leered

After his ability to stop his strength and lose he got, [illegible]

'Twas not advancing age; no, all his years had been

Bent one dark hair from off his brow, or with maturing gray.

Spreading his tonsured crown, sore his thick and curly

But memory bleeds to think how suddenly he died

His neck when we fell on. "Do not this thing," he cried

"To duty constant, I no pleasure ever loved;

Can I from poor mortal thus a soul assist be proved?"

His spirit, loth to quit, oft flickered ere it fled.

At last his pulse met send, and Father Charles was dead.

He had a monster funeral, the queen's town clerk ensued.

Ordered the bells to toll, and all over the town

They rang, both old and new; burger and magistrate

Came crowding when in sat St. John's his body lay in state,

With shiny buried cities upon his reverend pate.

Governmental Statistics.

Some interesting statistics may be gathered from the last statistical abstract of the United States. It appears that the revenue of the government declined in 1898 to $6.33 per capita of population. The expenditures of the government, not including payment of the national debt per capita, amounted to $4.47 per capita. The national debt per capita amounted to $17.71, and the interest thereon to 65 cents. The duties collected on imports amounted to $2.07 per capita. The average ad valorem rates of duty on all imports in 1898 amounted to 30 per cent., and the average ad valorem rates on all dutiable imports amounted to 45.03 per cent. The per capita estimates above given are based upon an estimate of a population of 69,015,000 made by the late actuary of the treasury department. This estimate is in all probability too large, and the figure for population would of course require a slight reduction in the per capita estimates. The statistics regarding savings banks cover a period of five years, and show a steady growth in the number of deposits and in the aggregate amount of deposits, with but a slight change in the average amount due each depositor. In 1897 the aggregate deposits amounted to $1,364,196,850, the number of depositors amounted to 3,838,291, and the average amount due each depositor was found to be the sum of $355.41.

Hold Your Breath.

Every cubic inch of air contains no less than 21 trillions of molecules, and every molecule is in motion at the rate of thousands of millions of them every second. Each is so small that 300 would not extend across the width of the smallest line the most powerful microscope can show us. Magnify these one trillion diameters, and each atom is the size of our globe, each molecule is a planetary system, and each air bubble from the fringe around the water in a goblet is a wonderful galaxy. Magnified 10,000 trillion diameters the air bubble would have the dimensions of our entire stellar system, but would contain 50,000 billions of stars instead of the 20 millions our best telescopes can show us. If the atoms had inhabitants, with our sensations quickened and shortened 1,000 billion times so as correspond to our own diminutiveness, each atom would be a world, each molecule a solar system, and the revolutions of the atoms would give days and years. The atom dweller would see no more of the air bubble than we see of our stellar universe, for, though the air bubble's molecules average 80 million collisions every second, themselves and the motions of particles of the living beings might exist before a perceptible alteration of their starry firmament could be recorded. In not one world in a score, our solar system a molecule in a stellar bubble of an unknown and mightier creation!—Current Literature.

The Winans Cigar Ship.

A wrought iron cigar ship was built at the Isle of Dogs, on the Thames, in England, and launched on Monday, Feb. 13, 1865. As the novel shaped vessel glided from the ways to the river Mrs. William L. Winans pronounced the name "Ross Winans," the designer of the vessel. "It was," said The London Times, "built as the private yacht of an American gentleman, who has designed everything connected with the ship." Mr. Hepworth was the builder. The extreme length of the vessel over all was 256 feet, and her greatest width was 16 feet diameter, at the center. She had three cylinder engines (high pressure), with a screw at each end which was 6 feet in diameter greater than the greatest diameter of the ship—20 feet. When launched the vessel carried the flags of England, American and Russia on the fore mast, and the Imperial Yacht club of St. Petersburg, "to which she is destined to belong."

Peace Jubilees.

In the "Peace Jubilee" of 1869, which began June 15 and lasted five days, there was a chorus of 10,871 persons and an orchestra of 1,000 pieces. The bell in the first used Ross second violin, and 300 men pounded 50 anvils. The second jubilee began June 17, 1872, and lasted until July 4. There was a chorus of 20,000 voices and an orchestra of 1,000 pieces. Franz Abt conducted and so did Johann Strauss; the bands of the Grenadier Guards from London, of the Kaiser Franz Grenadiers of Berlin and of the Garde Republicaine of Paris were present, as well as the Emperor of Germany's cornet quartet. The auditorium held about 25,000 persons.

The Milk in the Rubber Tree.

By a new process, the rubber in the milk collected from the india rubber tree is now coagulated instantaneously. The operation is so simple that any native can carry it out at the foot of the tree which he has been bleeding; and thus, instead of carrying large cans of milk of great weight, and entailing great loss on the way, he simply carries in the sack solid rubber, which, on his arrival at camp, can at once be prepared for the market and shipped.

MACINTYRE—MANNING.

A Pretty Wedding in Plainfield Last Evening.

The residence of Mr. L. L. Manning, of West Seventh street, last evening was the scene of a remarkably pretty home wedding, the Rev. Dr. Yerkes officiating. The contracting parties were Miss Catrie, only daughter of Mr. Manning, and Mr. F. B. MacIntyre. The bridal party entered the parlors to the sweet strains of Lohengrin, being led by the ushers, Mr. Charles Russell, of New Brunswick, and Messrs. Warren Burt, and Frank Seymour, of Plainfield. Mr. Henry Manning, of New Brunswick, acted as "best man", and Miss Rowley, of East Orange, was the maid of honor. The bride, a striking brunette, and one of the most popular of Plainfield's many admired young ladies, wore a handsome gown of ivory white faille trimmed with pearl and silver, and duchess lace. The long sweeping tulle veil, which was caught up with orange blossoms, added much grace to the elegant costume. She carried a large bouquet of white rosebuds tied with white ribbon, the ends of which reached to the floor. The maid of honor, also a blonde of East Orange, an attractive and vivacious society young lady of that place, was sweetly and simply attired in white crepe de chene, with a circular cut neck, trimmed with thread lace. She carried a bouquet of pink roses. The presents were numerous and costly, including a silver gold-lined berry dish and spoon, and handsome Mexican onyx clock from the employees of the Tide Water Oil Company with which Mr. MacIntyre is connected; also handsome gifts from members of the firm. One of the pleasing features of the evening was the presence of Mr. and Mrs. Miller, of Bay City, Mich., who acted as groomsman and bridesmaid at the wedding of Mr. and Mrs. Manning, the parents of the bride.

The guests include—Mr. and Mrs. Brown, Mr. and Mrs. Stelle, Mr. M. Ferguson, Mr. Robert Schenk, Mr. and Mrs. Warren, Mr. and Mrs. Benson, Mr. and Mrs. Baisley, Mr. and Mrs. Smith, Mr. George Nolan, Mr. and Mrs. Purdis, Mrs. and Miss Ogden, all of New York; Mr. and Mrs. Mecein Thomas, of Brooklyn; Mr. and Mrs. Dalrymple, of Elizabeth; Mr. and Mrs. Hooker, of Mt. Pocono; Miss McDowell, of Stelton; Mr. Charles Fowler, jr., of East Orange; Mr. and Mrs. A. V. Manning, Mr. and Mrs. John W. Manning, Mr. Jos. M. Manning, Mr. Cadwell Manning, of Trenton; Editor and Mrs. W. B. R. Mason, Miss Sheppard, Mr. L. S. & F. H. Cook, and Mr. Runyon Field, of Bound Brook; Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Burt; Mr. Robert Rushmore and Miss Maltby, Miss Laura Baker, Miss Minnie Wilson, Miss Edith Herold, Mrs. Catherine Sebring, Mr. and Mrs. Lambert Sebring and family, Mr. and Mrs. C. P. Sebring, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Sebring, Mr. and Mrs. Lawson, Mr. and Mrs. Joel Manning, The Misses Manning, Dr. A. Manning, Miss Hetfield, Mr. and Mrs. Jermiah Manning, Mrs. Ranson, Miss Kittie Manning, Mr. and Mrs. Manning and family, Mrs. Catherine Randolph, Mr. Howard Randolph, Mr. and Mr. J. C. Manning, Mr. Manning Vermuele, Mrs. Wm. Sandford, Miss Sandford, Mr. Joel Randolph, Mrs. Sarah Manning and family, Mr. and Mrs. J. B. MacIntyre, Mr. George MacIntyre, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Manning, Mr. and Mrs. Lambert Heyniger the Misses Heyniger, Mr. and Mrs. Wrechers, Miss VanDeventer, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Green, Mr. and Mrs. Seymore Smith, Mr. Frank Baynon, Miss Florence Pierson, and Miss Thorne, of Plainfield.

THEY HELD IT JUST THE SAME.

Yesterday's Storm Does Not Prevent a Clam-Bake.

For some time past several Front street merchants have had a clam-bake arranged. The event was set down for yesterday. When they awoke from their slumbers yesterday morning and looked at the dark clouds and downpouring rain they were discouraged. They met and held a consultation. They were mad at the elements. A happy thought finally struck one of the five and he jumped as though struck by a flash of lightning and exclaimed, "We'll hold it in spite of the rain. Clean up in my barn." The arrangements were finally completed and the party proceeded to a barn on the banks of Green brook and with the water rushing past and the rain pouring down enjoyed their baked clams, corn, blue-fish, etc., and the young man who suggested the feast was voted a trump.

PERSONAL.

Mr. Charles J. Wilson, of Grove street is visiting at Harrisburg, Pa., for a few weeks.

Mr. T. J. McGann, formerly of Somerset street, has removed to No. 14 Linden avenue.

Miss Mamie E. Canfield and Mr. John W. Kerr, of this city, were united in marriage by the Rev. J. B. Cleaver last evening.

The Plainfield Cornet Band last evening serenaded Mr. and Mrs. John W. Kerr at the residence of Mr. Frederick Canfield on West Sixth street.

Private lessons will be given in Latin, French, Mathematics and all English studies by Miss Barton, of North Front street. Read her educational card in another column.

The Benefit of Advertising.

The following advertisement appeared in yesterday's issue of The News;

LOST, strayed or stolen—A beautiful Sun. Last seen in the heavens about two weeks ago, when it disappeared in the storm. Any information as to its whereabouts left at THE NEWS office will be duly appreciated by the people without regard to race, creed or previous condition of servitude, and no questions asked.

This morning the sun was restored to us bright and early. So use talking; there is nothing like advertising in The News.

The Lights Went Out.

On account of the blowing out of two of the globes on the tower on the electric light building the business houses of Plainfield were left in darkness for awhile last night. The accident was remedied as speedily as possible.

—It is surprising to see the amount of debris which was taken from under the arch-bridge on Somerset street yesterday.

DOINGS OF THE FREEHOLDERS.

Two Bridges to be Built—One in Each County.

A committee of the Somerset county board of Freeholders met accommittee of the Union county board at Scotch Plains, Friday, to award a contract for a new iron bridge, over Green Brook, on Union avenue.

A committee, consisting of Messrs. Vreeland, Everett, Haver, Wyckoff and Staats, of the Somerset county board met at the bridge on the South Somerville road, near Mr. Hopkpatk's place, Saturday afternoon. They agreed to build a new bridge of 40-feet span.

The board met yesterday at the site of proposed bridge over Peters Brook and then took a drive to view the northern approaches and connections of the same. In the afternoon they convened in the Court House. All the members were present.

Mr. Wyckoff moved that a new bridge be built.

Mr. Staats offered, as an amendment, that the board sanction action of former committee recommending that a bridge be built after the approaches are put in good condition.

Mr. Hosell said the report of that committee had already been accepted. It was supposed such action was final, but a pressure has been brought to bear on the board, causing further action.

The report of the committee was read. Mr. Jones said, that for one, he was willing to grant a bridge as soon as the road is put in a passable condition. It is not in such condition now.

An informal consultation followed, after which J. V. Vorhees, Esq., asked to be heard. He said there was urgency in the matter, for the reason that the land on this side, belonging to the Potts estate, is now offered for the road. If that lot gets into other people's hands there may be difficulty in procuring a right of way. Speculators intend to dispose of the lot, if the board do not deem a bridge necessary.

Mr. Voorhees then cited the advantages that would accrue from having a bridge there. He asked that the bridge be authorized and said he would pledge himself that the grading would be done.

A. V. D. B. Voseller said the land had been dedicated for the road and accepted by the Town Committee, and therefore it was a public highway now.

Wm. Rose said he had been authorized by the Committee to form up the road, and that it would be done as soon as the weather permits. The bridge is needed to do the grading. The dirt from this side is required to fill up on the other side.

The Somerset and the county would need the earth on this side for docking.

T. J. Hoffman, Esq., argued in favor of the bridge.

Mr. Wyckoff's motion, seconded by Mr. Kirch, was then called up and Mr. Haver moved to amend, that if the Commissioners or Engineer of the Board of Freeholders, intend in 15 days, committee be authorized to build the bridge. The amendment was adopted and the motion as amended passed. The committee consists of Messrs. Wyckoff, Jones, Hosnell, Conkling and Everett.

ABOUT FLOOD DAMAGES.

The Reason for the Delay Over Getting New Bridges.

While some have been blaming the Freeholders for the delay in repairing the bridges, these officials have it seems been doing all in their power to get the work done. The damages to bridges and roads have been made a very much business for the rolling mills that the owners refuse to take any orders, unless they can have an indefinite time to fill them. Never in the history of this country has so much damage been caused by rains, beginning with the great destruction in the Conemaugh Valley, which included Johnstown.

Freeholder Vanderbeek is quoted as saying that it is the intention to put a very good bridge over Somerset street even if there is some delay. It is probable that it will be a girder bridge. That at Grove street is a truss bridge.

The girder bridge will, if adopted, have brick arches between the girders, to increase its strength, and be covered by concrete to make the same as the roadway in the street.

Freeholder Vanderbeek is now at bridges with wooden flooring. The girder bridge is more costly, but it makes a better bridge.

The Freeholders expect to have a temporary bridge across Somerset street by Saturday night.

Concert at Netherwood Hotel.

The testimonial concert at the Hotel Netherwood, tendered by the guests to the musicians, was a success. Each number of the program received hearty applause. The immense parlors of the Hotel were brilliantly lighted, and the beautiful faces and costumes of the ladies present greatly enhanced the beauty of the scene. The leader of the orchestra, Prof. Stoelzer, received hearty commendation for the excellent music rendered.

After the concert the guests enjoyed dancing until a late hour. A dance composed by Prof. Stoelzer and dedicated to the ladies at the Hotel, and named "Netherwood Polka", was received with great enthusiasm.

Prof. Stoelzer received from the benefit over $100 and a handsome cover for the Viola d'amore, one of the sweet-toned instruments he is master of.

It was greatly regretted that Miss Mears was not able to add to the pleasure of the concert by her singing. Those present greatly enjoyed this the last of the season's pleasures, hope to be passed at the Hotel Netherwood.

A PARTICIPATOR.

A Horse Paralyzed by Lightning.

A horse belonging to Mr. Michael Higgins, of 1 Sycamore street, was struck and paralyzed by lightning in front of the residence of Mr. Ferguson, on West Front street, during the thunder storm about five o'clock Wednesday afternoon. The silver plating on portions of the harness as well as that on the tip of one of the shafts was burned off by the fluid. Mr. Higgins's son, who had charge of the rig at the time, was slightly shocked. When the animal fell it broke one of the shafts of the park phaeton to which it was attached.

UNION COUNTY COURTS.

William Oache Sentenced to Five Years in State Prison.

The Union county Court of Special Sessions convened in Elizabeth at 10 o'clock yesterday morning, Judge McCormick, Hyer and Wiley were on the bench.

The attendance of spectators was small although legal men throughout the county was well represented, the Lattimer will case having been called for that day, but on motion of ex-Chancellor Runyon argument was deferred for another week, opposing counsel prosecution no objection

On motion of Prosecutor Wilson the following named prisoners were arraigned, allowed to plead and sentenced.

William Oache, the man who was arrested by Constable Hand, of Scotch Plains for breaking and entering the store of Lyman Walpole, of that place and who was sent to the Union county jail by Justice Nash to await the action of the Grand Jury, was yesterday arraigned and pleaded guilty. Judge McCormick sentenced him to five years in State Prison. Oache, who is a man at least 60 years old, acknowledged to the court that he had already served a term of 10 months in State Prison.

Peter Grimes, a young man aged 21 years, pleaded guilty to simple assault on an officer and was committed for 30 days. The original charge against him was assault and battery. Grimes is one of the young men who, it is said, knows something about the barn burning at Roselle.

George and Frank Conger, sons of Mrs. Theodore Conger, of Rahway, aged about 8 and 10 years respectively, were arraigned before the court as incorrigible boys whom their mother could not control, and a request was made that they be sent to the Reform school. Mrs. Conger was sworn and testified that she found it impossible to keep them under control.

Some time ago George and Frank were arrested in company with several others of about their age, for stealing a number of pen-knives from a store, but were afterward discharged with the understanding that the charge would be held against them. This morning the eldest explained to the court how the said robbery had been committed, and smilingly acknowledged that he and his brother took an active part in it. The court said that it felt convinced that this was a case in which it should interfere and requested the prosecutor to make out the necessary papers committing them to the Reform school and that the court would sign them. Court then adjourned.

Weather Crop Bulletin.

The weather bulletin for last week stated: "The week has been characterized by one of the most severe storms which has visited this state for more than thirty years, destroying many lives and thousands of dollars worth of property. The rain fall for the week is greatly in excess of the average, the total measurements ranging from 3.80 inches at Moorestown to 8.64 inches at Egg Harbor City. The fruit crop (pears, peaches and apples) has small prospects, suffered much; the high winds have left the trees almost bare of fruit. Corn, both in shock and growing, has been greatly damaged, and fears from rot are entertained. The truck crop generally has been injuriously affected by the heavy rains. High winds and almost a total absence of sunshine. Fall plowing and seeding have been entirely suspended, and owing to the very wet condition of the ground, it will be several days before work can be resumed. During the week the temperature has been about normal at nearly all stations. Below are the rainfall reports:

Union county—Potatoes mostly dug; corn about half in shock; the severe storm has put a stop to all work; corn uncut, all prostrated; all fruit blown off the trees; truck very much damaged; rain fall, 4.34; one clear day during the week.

—The ladies training class, conducted by Mr. E. L. Suffern will be re-organized at the Y. M. C. A. rooms to-morrow at 4.30 o'clock. All ladies welcome.

—A boat is now going around, offering to clean cesspools in connection. He cleans them, and as he uses acid for the purpose he rains them at the same time.—Somerville Messenger.

LATEST NEWS BY WIRE.

THE SITE SELECTED.

The World's Fair to be Held on Manhattan Island.

NEW YORK, September 19th.—(Special)—A site of the World's Fair has been selected by the Committee appointed for this purpose. It is on Manhattan Island.

The permanent buildings may be located on the plateau on the northwest corner of Central Park, near Eighth avenue at One Hundred and Tenth street.

The northernmost portion of Central Park above Ninety-sixth street will be used.

The lands north of the Park from One Hundred and Fifteenth street, from Fifth avenue to Morningside Park, will be also taken.

Riverside Park, Morningside Park and the Bloomingdale and Leake & Watts properties form the remainder of the site.

It is also proposed to connect all the parks, as in London. This would take in Mount Morris Park, which would not be used for Fair purposes, however.

The Hamilton Trial.

MAY'S LANDING, Sept. 19th. (Special.)—The trial of Mrs. Robert Ray Hamilton for assaulting her wet-nurse, Mary Donnelly, was continued in the Atlantic County Court House to-day. Both Prosecutor Cole and Counsellor Perry had presented their case to the jury at noon, and a recess was taken. Immediately after recess the judge charged the twelve men on which Mrs. Hamilton's fate depends.

In his plea the Prosecutor insisted on a conviction on the indictment.

It is not thought that the prisoner will be convicted. A disagreement of the jury is looked for.

LATER.

The jury at 3:15 o'clock this afternoon came in with a verdict of guilty.

Sold for $5,000,000.

CINCINNATI, Sept. 19th. (Special.)—The Cincinnati, Washington and Baltimore Railroad was sold to-day at 11:30 o'clock for $5,000,000 to Mr. E. R. Bacon, as representing the bond and stock companies of this country and England. The road was sold under a mortgage.

Notes from the County Seat.

Work on the Linden Park race track is being rapidly pushed forward, and in two weeks the grandstand will be completed. The stables will be ready by October 10, and the track will be open for racing Oct. 12.

The Baltimore and Ohio Railroad Company recently launched at Elizabethport a big boat, 207 feet long, with a capacity of 1,000 tons, for the conveyance of cars across from St. George to New York until a bridge can be finished. This is the second boat launched by the company, which is building a fleet of transports at its Elizabethport shipyard.

The Connolly Motor Company is going to build a factory at Elizabeth for the manufacture of its motors. It has secured a location for the buildings on Fourth avenue and will at once begin their erection. Connection with the railroad will be made by a branch track through Fourth street. The factory building will front on the Elizabeth river.

Lincoln's Southern Policy.

The Magazine of American History publishes a very interesting paper by Robert Stiles, on President Lincoln's plan for the restoration to the Union of the southern states at the close of the war. Mr. Stiles first corrects some errors that have crept into Admiral Porter's picturesque "Incidents of the Civil War." Admiral Porter is nothing if not picturesque.

President Lincoln's idea of the restoration policy to be pursued towards the southern states is to be gathered from what he said and did with reference to Virginia. April 4, after the capture of Richmond, Lincoln went up the James river to that city on the gunboat Malvern. On board the steamer Judge J. A. Campbell, a distinguished citizen of Virginia, visited him to see what terms could be obtained for his state. In a long and friendly conversation, the president gave Judge Campbell a paper, wherein he had noted the indispensable conditions on which he thought the states might be readmitted to the Union without fuss or delay. The conditions were:

As to peace, I have said before, and now repeat, three things are indispensable: The restoration of the national authority throughout all the states.

No recoding by the executive of the United States on the slavery question from the position assumed thereon in the late annual message to congress, and in preceding documents.

No cessation of hostilities short of an end of hostilities and the disbanding of all forces hostile to the government.

Then he told Judge Campbell he had been meditating a practical plan. It was for the Confederate legislature of Virginia to come together and vote to restore Virginia to the Union and disband her Confederate soldiers. The idea pleased his kindly soul. He said: "I want the very legislature that has been sitting up yonder." He remarked of Governor "Extra Billy" Smith, head of the defunct Confederate state government: "I want that old game cock back here."

Lincoln's plan was only too gladly agreed to by Judge Campbell. Gen. Weitzel was present during the conversation. Campbell returned to Richmond and Lincoln to City Point and Washington. Campbell issued a call to the legislature, which was published in The Richmond Whig April 12 and 13. But in Washington Secretary Stanton disapproved utterly of Lincoln's easy way of restoring the Union. It would never do, he and others said, to restore the government through the medium of rebel organizations. The terms for the return to the Union should be dictated by the Federal government alone, when and how it pleased.

At length the president was forced to recede from his favorite policy. April 18 Gen. Ord, then commanding the Union force at Richmond, issued an order prohibiting the assembling of the legislature according to the call.

April 14 Lincoln was assassinated, and the late Confederate States were thereafter reconstructed instead of being restored.

Russian Tree Planting.

Members of the Forestry association and others interested in re-clothing our treeless regions with green may take a lesson from the Russians in Central Asia. There a district once world famous for its fertility is now a tract of shifting sands. Through this tract the Russian engineers are building the Transcaspian railway, and along the track they construct they are planting trees. One growth, a heavy, knotty beiewood, the saxaul, grows in these deserts, and its heavy roots hold the sand. Great plantations of this are being set out, with the expectation that at length its growth will gather soil which will support other and finer vegetation. Saxaul furnishes the chief fuel of the country, but the natives are now being induced to use petroleum refuse and let the trees stand. In time it is expected this desert will be again a rich and well timbered soil.

If you want to be rich go into the baking powder business; that is, if you can get a market for your wares. The American people buy $25,000,000 worth of baking powder every year, which costs the manufacturers less than a third of that. The department of agriculture at Washington has analyzed a large number of leading powders. They are valuable in proportion as they give off a large proportion of carbonic acid gas, and leave as little alkaline residue as possible. The question of whether baking powder is bad for the health the department leaves to the doctors, but we learn incidentally that it is not so very bad unless it contains alum, which enters into its composition too often.

SELF DEFENSE THE PLEA

Mrs. Hamilton Claims the Nurse Attacked Her.

EVA'S VERSION OF THE ASSAULT.

Robert Ray Hamilton on the Stand—He Wholly Ignores His Wife and Hesitates by Refers to Her as "the Defendant."

Other Interesting Testimony.

MAY'S LANDING, N. J., Sept. 19.—The large crowd in the little court house in which Mrs. Hamilton is to be tried contained a great number of women, many of them elegantly dressed ladies from Philadelphia and Atlantic City. Hamilton was not in court at the opening, but his double friend Vollmer was present. The defendant sat up the greater part of the night in the dimly lighted attic. She smoked cigarettes almost continuously and frequently resorted to her favorite drug, morphine. At 10:54 o'clock Prosecutor of Pleas Thompson stepped forward and said in a low voice:

"I move the case of the state against Mrs. Hamilton."

The swinging doors were pushed aside and the prisoner, wan and weary looking and attired in the same long directoire cloak she wore on the day she started for May's Landing, stepped slowly up the aisle accompanied by her counsel, Mrs. Rupp, of the Noll cottages, and Mary Ann Donnelly, the wounded woman. They all took seats within the rail. Mrs. Hamilton sitting close beside Mr. Perry, Prosecutor Thompson being on her right.

Hamilton Ignored in His Wife.

Contrary to general expectation Mr. Hamilton came into court after the prisoner entered and coolly sat down beside Mrs. Rupp, within easy reach of his wife, whom he seemed to entirely ignore. Counsel Perry proceeded to question the jurymen called, and within a very short time the full quota were seated in the jury box. The first question Mrs. Hamilton broke into sobs repeatedly and showed great agitation. Her cheeks were pale and sunken and she wore an expression of great despondency.

Hamilton Takes the Stand.

After the prosecuting attorney had rested the alleged assault upon Nurse Donnelly that lady took the stand and testified that on the morning of the assault she was called to Mrs. Hamilton's room to look a trunk. She found that Mr. and Mrs. Hamilton had been quarreling, and that Mr. Hamilton's shirt had been cut from his body. Mr. Hamilton asked her to go for a policeman, which she did, but was unable to find one. Upon returning to the house she was seized by the throat by Mrs. Hamilton, who cried her a vile name. She then grappled with Mrs. Hamilton and demanded that she retract the epithet. Mrs. Hamilton then threw a bottle at her. The arrival of Mr. Hamilton interfered and grappled with his wife, who broke away and stabbed her (the nurse).

The witness identified the knife with which the stabbing took place.

Mrs. Hamilton's Tongue.

The afternoon session began at 2 o'clock. Nurse Donnelly resumed her place on the stand. She said that Mrs. Hamilton took out of her trunk the knife with which the cutting was done, where she had packed it. When Mrs. Hamilton called her a vile name Mr. Hamilton told her to revoke Mrs. Hamilton. Nurse Donnelly left the house to see the Swinton party, and on her return she found Mr. Hamilton's trousers had been cut on the right leg and the vest cut all down the back. The knife and garments both were offered in evidence. On cross examination by Mr. Perry Mrs. Donnelly said she was not a nurse and a married woman; had seen her husband, who lives in New York, on the 27th of May. She had not lived with him for years, as he drank and was fond of quarreling. She testified that Mrs. Hamilton had a quarrelsome disposition and had discharged her on a previous occasion, but had begged her to come back. She said Mrs. Hamilton's tongue "would not kill, but do a deal of damage."

Mr. Hamilton Testifies.

Mr. Hamilton's testimony went to show particularly that the nurse was very abusive toward Mrs. Hamilton. The rent in his coat he explained by the fact that early in the day on which the stabbing occurred they had a family quarrel, and his torn night shirt was also attributed to this cause. The nurse was very aggressive. A parasol was also broken by Mrs. Hamilton. He wanted a greater sum of money than he was willing to allow her on separation. The knife with which the cutting was done was bought in Norway in 1874.

He Called Her "the Defendant."

The witness never referred to Mrs. Hamilton while on the stand as his wife, but always as the defendant. He showed him bruises and scratches inflicted by the nurse.

Dr. D. B. Ingersoll, of May's Landing, testified to having examined Mrs. Hamilton when she was brought to jail and found the bruises and scratches.

Mrs. Rupp stated that she heard Mrs. Hamilton say, "Ray Hamilton, you will have me to the gallows yet."

Eva Explains the Stabbing.

Mrs. Hamilton testified that her husband upheld the nurse, and that the nurse was very abusive to her. The nurse had told her she would cut her heart out if discharged. She threw her on the bed and placed her knee upon the witness' stomach, and then the knife. Mr. Hamilton, who was in bed, was used by her in self defense. She stated that she first met Mr. Hamilton four or five years ago at Mrs. Brown's in New York, being accompanied by Mrs. Rupp and Mrs. Brown was a married woman and lived with her husband. She afterward met Mr. Hamilton on the street, and finally he called before her. Neither of her parents were living, and she had money left her by her father. She said she was no relation to Mrs. Swinton, but met her in a boarding house at No. 10 East Twenty-fifth street. She also met "Josh" Mann there. She was married last January to Mr. Hamilton, but declined answering if she had been married before, or was the mother of Baby Beatrice, for fear of being criminated.

Both sides then rested, and Judge Reed stated that the arguments would be made and the case given to the jury later.

John Crosse College Dedicated.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Sept. 19.—The John Crosse Memorial college was formally given the gift of the late John Crosse to Syracuse university, has been dedicated. Addresses were made by Professor J. G. Riggs, D.D., of Auburn Theological seminary, and the Rev. J. M. Buckley, LL.D., of New York. The building cost about $500,000 and is considered one of the finest college buildings in the country.

A Postal Clerk Arrested.

BOSTON, Sept. 19.—John E. Damon, a clerk in the Boston and Albany railway postoffice, running between here and Springfield, has been arrested, charged with embezzling letters entrusted to his charge. He was arraigned before Commissioner Hallett and held in $2,000 for the October term.

ODD FELLOWS PARADE.

Twenty Thousand in Line—Grand Sire Underwood's Position Changed.

COLUMBUS, O., Sept. 19.—The grand parade of the I. O. O. F. and Patriarchs Militant was two and a half hours in passing, and the number of men in line far exceeded 20,000, being divided into three divisions, with a large military array, among whom were the Montgomery (Ala.) Grays, the Loyal Legion (Ga.), Underwood's Rough Riders (Miss.), the grandest demonstration in numbers and eclat this order ever held in America. The only event to mar the day occurred about noon, when Grand Sire John B. Underwood met with a very painful accident, and only escaped death by a miracle. He and his staff were riding along the street when the grand sire's horse stopped and fell. He fell under his horse, and while in this position another horse, ridden by a member of the staff, struck him about the head with his hoofs. It was at first supposed that his injuries were fatal, but, though severely hurt, he persisted in taking part in the parade, and at night was on duty the same as ever.

A military reception was given the general in the senate chamber, after which the ceremonies of "Decoration of Chivalry" took place at city hall, followed by a grand ball in honor of Grand Sire Underwood and the Sovereign Grand lodge.

The Daughters of Rebekah perfected a national permanent organization. The following officers were elected: President, Mrs. M. E. Rea, of Missouri; vice president, Louisa B. Hull, of Indiana; secretary, Julia A. Burroughs, of Massachusetts; treasurer, Mrs. C. J. Kemble, of Kentucky; warden, Mrs. M. L. Fifer, of Montana; conductor, Nellie Anton, of Ohio; guardians, Miss Ernie Page, of Washington, D. C., and Mrs. Elizabeth Mary, of Michigan.

LOST ON THE LEO.

Nine Men Drowned by the Sinking of a Steam Yacht.

CLEVELAND, Sept. 19.—That the steam yacht Leo, which sailed from Lorain for this port Sunday, was lost in a storm is certain. The nine men on board all perished. Two bodies that have washed ashore, they were the battered remains of Con P. Ritter and R. D. Lawler, the latter a well known young lawyer.

In Lorain there is sorrow and desolation, for the Leo's passengers were prominent men. The little town has sent out a large number of men to add in the weary watch. Wreckage, even yachts, about forty-five feet long. She was last seen about a half a mile from shore at 7:30 Sunday night.

The Faulkner Trial.

BUFFALO, Sept. 19.—When court reconvened in the Faulkner trial Judge Cox denied an application for an adjournment of the case, and ordered the clerk to empanel a jury. Mr. Stanchfield took an exception. Williams, the witness whom the defense is so anxious to have testify, was associated at one time with the wrecked bank, and the defense desire to prove that he never signed his name to the reports to the government; was never a director of the bank. Williams may be responsible for the wrecking of the institution. This testimony, it is understood, will serve to impeach or contradict the testimony of Cashier Sprague. It is the prosecution's chief witness against Gen. Faulkner.

Freshmen Mustered In.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Sept. 19.—Yale's 98, the incoming freshmen class, was formally mustered into the ranks by the sophomores, who, 250 strong, met the freshmen on the campus in front of Durfee hall after a hard struggle hustled the new comers all over the lot. After the rush was over a large ring was formed and impromptu wrestling matches took place in order to get the coats off the backs of the honors. About a dozen freshmen were successfully "shirted," but no one was seriously injured. A heavy rain put a sudden stop to the sport.

Reunion of Abolitionists.

BOSTON, Sept. 19.—A reunion of old time abolitionists to be held in Tremont temple Sept. 23 promises to be a very interesting affair. Frederick Douglass, Parker Pillsbury, Col. Higginson, Oliver Johnson and other prominent anti-slavery leaders will be present. Gen. Benjamin F. Butler is expected to deliver an address on "Contrabands." A feature of the meeting will be the inauguration of a plan to raise $200,000 with which to build a free public hall to commemorate the virtues and achievements of Wendell Phillips.

Welsh Presbyterians Meet.

WILKESBARRE, Pa., Sept. 19.—Ministers from Scranton, Pittston, Plymouth, West Nanticoke, New York, Iowa and Minnesota are here to attend the tenth convention of the Welsh Presbyterian churches of the United States. The sessions and the sermons were opened with public service. Sermons were preached by Rev. John A. Jones, of Oshkosh, Wis., and Rev. Richard Humphrey, of Lodi, Ohio. The session will be continued for several days.

New York's Site for the Fair.

NEW YORK, Sept. 19.—The world's fair site committee are understood to favor the selection of the 455 acres including the northern part of Central park from Ninetieth to One Hundred and Fifty-fifth street, and extending north of the park between Fifth and Eighth avenues, all of Morningside park, part of the Bloomingdale lands and all or part of Riverside park.

A Minister Arrested for Slander.

COLUMBUS, O., Sept. 19.—A special from Springfield says: The Rev. A. Rosell, of Red, R. C. Black, pastor of the Church of Christ, arrested on the charge of slandering Mrs. Rosell's wife. Black is a member of Black's congregation, and has been the cause of considerable trouble in the church. Black has been released on bail.

Arrested While Making a Prayer.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Sept. 19.—Rev. S. H. Crouch, a Methodist minister of this city, who had been holding a revival meeting for several hundred dollars, was arrested while making a prayer at a camp meeting about ten miles east of here. He was brought to this city and placed in jail.

Six Days Without Water.

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 19.—The steamer Statesman, from Liverpool, reached here the captain and eleven men of the bark Nidaros, which was disabled in a hurricane Sept. 11. The crew had been six days without water and in danger of starvation when taken off the wreck.

Gen. McClellan's Mother Dead.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 19.—Mrs. Elizabeth S. McClellan, widow of Dr. George McClellan and mother of Gen. George B. McClellan and Dr. John H. B. McClellan, the distinguished surgeon, died at the residence of her niece, Miss Rebecca Coxe, at Drifton, aged 90 years.

Pennsylvania's Board of Pardons.

HARRISBURG, Sept. 19.—The board of pardons considered several cases. It is reported that the applications of Edward Slattery and Edward Coyle, murders, of Allegheny county, have been rejected, but no action will be announced for several days.

TEN THOUSAND DROWNED

Frightful Loss of Life by Floods in Japan.

JOHNSTOWN'S HORROR EQUALED.

Villages and Hamlets Swept Away by the Raging Waters—Rivers Dammed by Mountains of Earth—Fifty Unfortunates Were Buried Alive.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 19.—Japanese newspapers received here by the steamship Gaelic place the total number of persons drowned in the floods of Aug. 20, in the city of Wakayamo and in the districts of Miyeken or Higashi-Muro, Nishi-Muro and Hidaka, at 10,000, and the number of persons receiving relief at 10,424.

Hamlets Covered by Raging Waters.

The River Kinokuni swelled from thirteen to eighteen feet above its normal level, and the embankments of the river Yoshino burst in several places. Immediately the village and about forty-eight other hamlets were covered by the raging waters.

Fifty Persons Buried Alive.

On the morning of Aug. 19 an enormous mass of earth fell from the mountain near the village of Tenshoden and stopped the course of the river of the same name, which being already swollen greatly, submerged the village and drowned nearly all the inhabitants. A number of the villagers belonging to Tenjido, took refuge in their temple, which was on high ground, but when the building collapsed about fifty persons were buried alive.

THE IVES CASE.

The Prosecution Unexpectedly Rests the Case—It Is Ives' Turn Now.

NEW YORK, Sept. 19.—In the prosecution of the Ives case Henry D. McGowan, of the firm of Hilmers, McGowan & Co., 18 Wall street, testified in regard to several loans of $50,000 and $100,000, respectively, which Ives got through him, putting up collateral for the first loan 2,500 shares of the common stock of the Cincinnati, Hamilton and Dayton railroad. The defense then tried to show that the witness was heavily indebted to Russell Sage, and that at that gentleman's suggestion he went to Cincinnati to testify against Ives.

Warren L. Sampson, a clerk in the employ of Drexel, Morgan & Co., testified to receiving the common stock of the Cincinnati, Hamilton and Dayton railroad as security for the loan advanced for $50,000.

Edward Burns, cashier of the American Exchange bank, was the next witness. Burns testified that in 1886 he was assistant cashier of the American Exchange bank. He then had charge of the registration of securities. Previous to April 14, 1887, he said, it had not been the custom of the bank to place a mark of cancelation on the old stock for which new certificates were issued and registered. The bank since that time has canceled all the old certificates before issuing new ones. During the latter part of April, 1887, witness stated that he spoke to Ives about the old certificates for which the bank had issued new ones. Ives replied that he would get them as soon as he could.

The next time Burns saw Ives he was at his office, April 30. Ives endeavored to get him put without off by saying that it would be an almost endless job to get the old certificates together. Witness insisted, however, saying that he would stay in the bank all night, if necessary, in order to get the stock. He then returned to the bank. Shortly after batches of old stock began to arrive. Ives continued to do short hand work, and all the certificates were then in witness' hands. Witness said he compared the old stock with certificates previously issued, and found them to be the same.

The usual noonday recess was here taken and when the court reconvened at 2:15 p. m. District Attorney Fellows announced that the prosecution rested its case.

Messrs. Brooke, Fullerton and Wilson, for the defense, then conferred for some ten minutes, upon the expiration of which Law Reporter Smythe stated that he would be advised by the court to acquit the defendant. Rec order Smythe denied the motion, saying that he would leave the case to the jury.

To Help the Illinois Miners.

WILKESBARRE, Pa., Sept. 19.—The fourth annual convention of the National Trade District of Miners and Mine Laborers of the United States began here. An aggregate membership of 22,000 is represented. National President Wilson, Vice President John B. Ray, of Coalmont, Pa., read his annual report, showing the useful work of the organization. The eight hour question and a reduction in the charges for powder will be the principal work for action by the convention. Steps will be taken to aid the striking Illinois miners. There will be a monster mass meeting at Nanticoke next Sunday. Mr. Powderly was at the convention today.

Four Cronin Jurors at Least.

CHICAGO, Sept. 19.—Four jurors have finally been secured to pass judgment on the five men now on trial for the murder of Dr. Cronin. They took the formal oath at 2:32 p. m. and ten minutes later were escorted from the jury box into Judge McConnell's private room, where they will be kept under the surveillance of a bailiff until their oath of office shall have been found. The names of the jurors are John Culver, Charles Hicks, James Pearson and Frank Hall. All four are Americans. The state has now used forty and the defense sixty challenges.

He Fatally Scalded His Daughter.

NEW YORK, Sept. 19.—While intoxicated Owen Heffernan, of No. 407 East Eighth street, dragged his daughter, Mary, by her hair to the stove, where he poured boiling water over the poor girl, scalding her face and neck and chest, inflicting injuries that the doctors at Bellevue hospital do not think she can recover.

The New 3,000 Ton Cruisers.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 19.—Secretary Tracy has made a decision that will have an important bearing on the future building of war vessels for the United States navy. He has decided to have the two 3,000 ton steel cruisers provided for by the last congress constructed at the New York and Norfolk navy yards.

He Carried a Famous Flag of Truce.

BUFFALO, Sept. 19.—Forty members of the Twenty-eighth New York battery met in reunion here. An address was delivered by Charles F. Eaton, of Pawpaw, Mich., who has the honor of having carried the flag of truce when Joe Johnson surrendered to Sherman. Officers were elected and a banquet was given.

Christians Still Persecuted.

LONDON, Sept. 19.—Reports from Crete show that the arrests of Christians by the Mussulman officials still continue, despite the assurances of Turkey that the abuse should be corrected.

Curiers in Convention.

ALBANY, Sept. 19.—The twenty-third annual convention of the Grand National Curling club of America convened at the armory of Company B. Fifteen rinks are present from all parts of the United States and Canada. Secretary Foute read his annual report, reviewing the numerous games played throughout the country during the season and concluded as follows: "There is an epidemic of betting and gambling sweeping over this fair land in connection with outdoor sports which I believe every one should strictly guard against and keep our record clear and clean as curlers and honorable men."

A Train Wrecked by Boys.

CONCORD, N. H., Sept. 19.—The southbound White Mountain express, a heavily loaded and very fast train, jumped some obstruction on the track between Penacook and Boscawen this morning, while running at a high rate of speed, and was wrecked, but no one was seriously injured. The obstruction was two rails placed across the track by boys.

The Window Glass Wage Trouble.

PITTSBURG, Sept. 19.—The window glass wag trouble has not been settled, and some manufacturers have commenced putting in fires many days. There is a great deal of dissatisfaction, which may lead to the dissolution of the manufacturers' association, which has existed for many years. Pittsburg manufacturers have an advantage over western glassmen, who are compelled to use coal as fuel. Some of the Pittsburg manufacturers will not pay $50 per month per pot for gas, while others pay nothing, as they own their own wells. The latter class, it is claimed, are the ones who urged a settlement.

The Army of the Cumberland's Meeting.

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., Sept. 19.—The society of the Army of the Cumberland met at the Grand Opera House this evening. The funds on hand were found to be sufficient for another year, and on Gen. Fullerton's motion the money collected at this meeting of the society for the year will be used for erection of a monument to the memory of Gen. Thomas. One of the veterans, G. D. Greer, of Princeton, Ills., was accidentally killed on Lookout Mountain today. Mr. Powderly was present at the convention today.

HE GOT THE "AD."

An Editor's Heavy Head of Hair Secured Him an Advertisement.

Opie P. Read, the editor of The Arkansaw Traveler, is a very big man with a tremendously heavy head of long, black, unkempt hair. One day he was passing the office of a well known hair restorative establishment on State street, Chicago. His publisher, Mr. Beckham, was with him and remarked:

"We could get a big advertisement out of this establishment."

Opie looked in and said a family of country people inside.

"I'll get it for you right now," said he, and he walked.

The countryman had just taken off his hat and was showing the manager how bald he was and asked if he thought the hair would ever grow on his head. Opie walked up to the manager and putting out his hand, warmly said:

"My dear sir, I have come a long way to thank you in person and to show you what your restorative has done for me."

Here he took off his old, black slouch hat and shook out his long and wonderfully thick, fine hair.

"There, sir," said he gratefully, "look at that. Four months ago, you remember, I was as bald as that electric lamp up there."

The manager was a little dazed. This was rather more than even he could swallow.

"What did you do for it?" put in the interested countryman.

"Used this restorer—four dozen bottles of it—according to directions."

The upshot of it was the countryman took two dozen bottles of it and went his way.

"There," said Opie to his partner, "now you talk business with this man, and I guess you'll get a pretty good advertisement out of him."

When the manager learned who Opie was he said:

"You can put me down for the biggest ad. in your paper and send in your bill when you please."—Washington Post.

He Got a Loan.

The other evening a citizen who stood at the corner of Woodward and Jefferson avenues was asked by a stranger for a nickel to pay car fare up Michigan avenue.

"You look able to walk," was the reply.

"So I am; but I'm in a great hurry."

"It strikes me as pretty cheeky for a tramp to beg money to ride on when his legs are all right."

"My dear man, this is an exceptional case. I was up that avenue today and met a citizen who pitied my forlorn condition. He didn't have any boodle with him just then, but promised to give me fifty cents if I would meet him at the corner of Fifteenth street at 9 o'clock. It is now 8:30. I can't make it on foot. If I don't get a nickel I am gone up for that half. Please look at the case with a business eye and favor me with the loan."

He was favored, and he got on the front end of the car so as to get there seventeen feet ahead of the rear platform.—Detroit Free Press.

The Transformation Marriage Effects.

"Marriage," said Jinson, "makes quite a transformation in a girl. When she is single she is one person; when she gets married she and her husband are one person; therefore she is then only half of one person, see?"

"Oh, you're away off," said Stimson. "When she is single she is of course one person, as you say, but when she's married she becomes more than one person."

"How do you make that out?"

"When she's single she's Miss, but when she's married she's Mrs."—Boston Courier.

Slightly at Sea.

Old Gent—I don't want to settle here unless they have a good school in the place.

Pat—Be jabbers, sor, it's a foine school, but divil a bit do I think they'd take sich an ould bird as you.—Munsey's Weekly.

He Never Finished.

"Isn't it strange, darling," he said, as they were parting at the front door, "when I go to ask you for a kiss I never get married?"

I will be at pa—par, you see, and when I come to live here and occupy the room over him, I will be above par, and when"—but then there was a whiz, a bang, an unsharpened thud, and the young man was below par by six stone steps, and as the old man retreated to his bed he knowingly murmured: "They ain't all dead yet."—Charleston World.

No Cause for Complaint.

Irate Patron—Waiter, waiter; confound it! I've been waiting at this table for fifteen minutes, and you haven't paid the slightest attention to me!

Waiter—Look here, boss, don't git cross! I'se only waitin' at dis yere table fo fifteen month's myself, an' you've hadn't nobber paid me nuffin at all. Yet I ain't nobber kicked!—Light.

The Shock Was Too Great.

Travers (to office boy)—Johnny, did you take that cheque down to my tailor's?

Johnny—Yes, sir.

Travers—What did he do when you gave it to him?

Johnny—He fainted!—Clothier and Furnisher.

Feared for Him.

"I have," cried the rampaging orator, "in my tongue a rapier with which to kill all fools."

"Take it away from him!" yelled a man in the hall. "He's going to commit suicide!"—Lawrence Republican.

Too Much for Him.

Slicker—Did you hear what was the matter with Chappie De Twotf?

Bocker—Nervous prostration caused by grab exertion, I believe, sir. He tried to shave's Sunday paper home alone.—Life.

He Didn't Settle Either.

Tom—What's the matter, old fellow?

Jack—In love.

"Why are you so glum then—doesn't your fair one smile upon you?"

"No, she laughs at me."—Yankee Blade.

Breaking the Monotony.

Clerk—Sir, I need a change. I want a day off.

Employer—Help would it do to take a day out?—Epoch.

WOMAN AND HOME.

INTERESTING REVIEW OF THE PROGRESS MADE BY WOMEN.

The Inestimable Importance of Color—Responsibilities of Mothers—The Dress of Literary Women—A Prophecy on Housekeeping of the Future.

Never since civilization took its first feeble steps, way-ward yet ever on-ward, have women occupied the favorable position which they do at present—favorable for the highest moral development, and favorable for the race.

In the earlier, the purely savage state, they were perhaps as much, the equal of the males as the Bloomer and cigar-and-navy period, science insinuates that they were something more. Be all that as it may, civilization had to take an apparent step backward and downward, in order to get to the next step, where one another and a better sort of equality. As the more beautiful among them were sought, pampering and indulgence made them tender and weaker doubtless, till they lost equality and became dependents. With that they were easily made the spoil of war, the capture from the hostile tents, slaves, whether kindly or ignominiously treated, and with hardly more chance of deepening their natures or enlarging their souls than they might have had were she the unremembered fifth the true one—the fifth which teaches that they have no souls. There was but one way then to any happiness or comfort for them, but one way to win any heart's desire for themselves or their children, and that was through the good will of the chief, the master, the lord, or that of his favorite, and that good will had to be obtained at any cost. Helpless and weak, timid as helplessness makes one, their only arts were love and cunning, and where one of these would not answer it had to be supplemented by the other.

If the manner of it could be forgiven for justice, the cunning was not needed; but that even probably not too frequently the case. Through all the subsequent bondage, ever one lurging and struggling, women have not entirely succeeded in ridding themselves of the whole of the effect of this stage of their existence in the race, and slyness and subtlety are traits against which many of them—but, thank heaven! not all—have yet to struggle. Civilization had gone very far indeed before women left the condition of subjection. Only in a few and altogether admirable instances were they free from it even so late as the time of the best Greek civilization. It was a nominal freedom that they had in Rome, where one wife was the rule, but where the freedom of divorce was a nullifying and destroying offset. It was in the Hebrew life that women first received any due share of appreciation at a time when the harem, or the seraana, or its equivalent was nearly everywhere else the rule. There one wife took precedence and was considered.

The poetical and sacred character of womanhood had been recognized in Miriam, in Deborah, in Anna; and in the custom of the one wife the initial point of the real family had started. But civilization seems to work, like leaven, through the whole lump, and not in separate parcels; for just as we have at the time of the European renaissance, without any known communication, a renaissance of the same sort in the islands of the farthest east, so the custom of having but one wife, promulgated as it was in Rome and in many other places, as if by common consent. Woman then with the Germans were a sort of priestess, duly ruled in a way as strongly as if by force. Expeditions were undertaken at their will, were abandoned if they forbade, and their blessing was striven for.

But great as the advance had by this time become, greater yet was the advance that chivalry and the spirit of the crusades effected. There had doubtless been individual love and worship before; but now it was general, so to speak; no one beautiful woman was so much to be reverenced as womankind itself. This half poetical, half religious reverence, when it was the whole sex, was not so ennobling to women as to men themselves; it did men vastly more good than it did the feeble women mewed in dogma and receiving an atom of worship, which was very ennobling to the worshiper, and once lifted to the plane where he could see the real worth of woman, not to speak of the real and every advantage that she has since gained has been given to her by the man who might have withheld it.

It was, then, among the people of a pure and great religion, where a moral law existed of the straightest sort, that woman first rose from the mere dust, respecting herself as she received respect, feeling her first dignity of aspiration. And it was under the development of this same religion in its loveliest and loftiest life that she became the object of tender regard, of worship, and of a love, that the world was opened to her to use according to her powers, and in the lines marked out by her own nature, its imitation bore is humiliation down.

It is under the reign of Christianity that woman has come to her full opportunity and has taken her place beside man; it is under the benignant law of the Nazarene whose first recorded word after the stone had been rolled from the sepulcher was "woman," that she can go forward still, and in moving take with her her own sacredness. It is in under this dispensation that it has come to be understood that

> The woman's cause is man's; they rise or sink
> Together, dwarfed or godlike, bond or free:
> For she that out of Lethe scales with man
> The slimy steps of nature, falls not lower
> Than man, nor will man ever reach a point
> He cleaves to. Last or first, in either lot,
> Slave of the lord, or head of all the world,
> Woman is still his other half and hope,
> His fellow, his sister, and his wife.

Importance of Colors.

Did you ever think what a mighty part color has to play in this world of ours? Try to picture to your mind's eye for a week a world devoid of color. Dismal and barren and dreary everything would be! How incomplete, with nowhere to turn for weary eyes for relief!

Some one has said: "Color is to the eye what music is to the ear—charming and soothing. Beautiful is it when it flashes forth from gems; delightful, too, when it blends in the delicate combinations of a picture. Why, then, should it not be potent for good or evil in a lady's dress? All art, all genius recognizes its power. Nature herself and our glorious roof—Wonderfully true, indeed. Color plays a part in woman's kingdom next to nothing else. It lies within her power to beautify or disfigure with it, and so much can be done with it if she will only use her power aright.

There are times and places for all colors; and the little niceties of perception as to just when and where a color should be worn, are what a woman should strive to cultivate to the utmost. How well the ladies of Philadelphia know the use of the full-dyed effect of color, when she cunningly fashioned her rival in beauty to sit upon that trade-mark of genius—a blue pea—while she herself was attired in virginal white. Carefully and well had she learned her lesson in the great school of color, and deftly she applied it.

One late afternoon this summer I saw a young girl, in a red boating dress, run down across a lonely sand beach and stand looking out over the sea. An artist, seeing her, caught up his brush in frantic haste and made a sketch of her. "It's too good to be lost, that bit of color," he said; "the deep line of the sea, the gray-sky and the creamy sand, with just that one bright figure, full of life, to relieve it—it's great!" And so it was.

Leigh Hunt said: "I never see an old woman wearing a scarlet cloak in wet weather without feeling that she has a taste for color, and when a woman puts on a bright gown and walks abroad knowingly, with a background of comparatively colorless landscape about her, she is an artist and knows how to make an effect."

The wardrobe of a woman of tact and taste differs according to the place where she takes her habitat. She will have one distinctively unfit for the days by the great, free, breezy ocean, where there are long stretches of colorless sand and sea and sheer gray cliffs rising somber and naked against the sky, and still another to be worn in the dreamy, voluptuous inland or mountain districts, where the meadows are rich and yellow and the whole land is full of warmth and color.—Marie Jonnesaglin Boston Globe.

Mother's Responsibilities.

Few mothers reflect that the family is largely a reflection of the good wives, says The Rural New Yorker. What sort of men make the best husbands? Those who as boys had the best mothers. The boy who will confide his mother's speech or counsel, who will find fault with her coffee, or bread, will do the same with the woman who may be so unfortunate as to give her life's happiness into his hands. A selfish man may be drawn out of his selfishness through a few weeks' courtship, but wait until the wear and worry of married life come on, and he will inevitably settle back into it. Love seldom radically changes a nature. Only the grace of God can do that, and it takes more grace, I often think, than many people get hold of. "The best husbands I ever met," says the author of "John Halifax," "came out of a family where the mother, a most heroic and self-denying woman, had down to the latest law, 'Girls first' and in any authority, but first to be thought of in protection and tenderness. Consequently the chivalrous care which those lads were taught to show to their mothers naturally extended itself to all women. They grew up true gentlemen—gentlemen, generous, unassuming, courteous of speech, and kind of heart."

It was while reading the above that it occurred to me how truly the mother molds and forms the future husband. It is a fearful responsibility, I grant you, sisters, but the reward is a glorious one. If you teach your sons to yield generously to their sisters, to shield and protect them manfully and lovingly, not only do they make better husbands, but the sisters who have been so cared for will look for the same courtesy, chivalry and tenderness in the men they marry, and will be satisfied with nothing less.

Right here I want to give a quotation from Shakespeare which occurs to me. There isn't any special connection or sequence in it, except that mothers would do well to have their daughters commit to memory this single passage, if no other, from the world's greatest poet. It speaks for itself, and comment is unnecessary:

> "And while thou livest, dear Kate, take a fellow of plain and uncolored constancy, for he performs most do the right, because he hath not the gift to woo in other places; for these fellows of infinite tongue, that can rhyme themselves into ladies' favors, they do always reason themselves out again. What! a speaker is but a prater; a rhyme is but a ballad. A good leg will fall; a straight back will stoop; a black beard will turn white; a curled pate will grow bald; a fall eye will wax hollow; but a good heart, Kate, is the sun and moon, or rather the sun and not the moon; for it shines bright and never changes, but keeps its course truly."

Literary Women and Dress.

The old theory that literary women must be long haired, unkempt in appearance and eccentric in dress, is rapidly giving way to a more sensible one. There isn't as great social obligations than her sister who preceded her, and she must dress accordingly. Eccentricities in dress, even with the most exalted, are not to be generally overlooked as in the past. And a glance at the costumes at a literary reception of a coterie of literary women shows the present standard. Grace has succeeded, and merely characterized the literary woman has given way to the more dignified train. Grace has succeeded awkwardness in toilets as in manners. Mrs. Ward Howe, Mary Mapes Dodge, Marion Harland, Jenny June, Harriet Prescott Spofford, Margaret Sangster, Mrs. Lew Wallace, Anna Katherine Green—these and many more of our literary women are both modern and aristocratic in their dress. Elaborate toilets are not a necessity with the modern authoress, but the severe, on the other hand, with an exception or two, is not considered. It is an order this dispensation that it has come to be understood that

A Successful Woman's Club.

The Alexandra is the most exclusive of London's women clubs. It is also the most successful. No individual of the other sex above the age of 21 is admitted beyond the door mat. Husbands, fathers and brothers are all ruthlessly excluded from within its sacred precincts. It furnishes an admirable center for shopping operations, and for lunches, teas, etc. It possesses the advantages of bedrooms, let at the most reasonable rate, so that girls and young married women can spend a night in town without having to trouble mamma to chaperons or maids. Women friends, of course, may be admitted into the club, and servants and trades people interviewed. It is named for the Princess of Wales, and no one who has not been presented to the queen is eligible to membership.—London Letter.

Honors Won by a Bright English Girl.

Miss Mary Louise Worley is the daughter of a medical man residing in London. No doubt a good deal of her success is due to Miss Worley began to look to college as the natural field for the future development of her powers. She did not, in the first instance, aim at Oxford or Cambridge, but directed her attention by preference toward the examinations of London university. Strong evidence was afforded from the outset that the young student would do full justice to the admirable intellectual training she had received.

In that exacting and difficult examination, the London matriculation, Miss Worley not only passed, and passed well, but on the list, and as an inevitable result she was immediately awarded an exhibition and the Gilchrist scholarship. Not content with the honors that London could bestow upon her, a year later, viz., in 1884, she tried for and won a scholarship at Girton college, Cambridge. This energetic young lady not pursuing an old academic groove, in 1886 she graduated in classical honors at London university, and did the same thing at Cambridge in 1888. To be practically bachelor of arts in two universities would have satisfied the ambition of most persons, but not so with Miss Worley.

There still remained for her a most laudable delight. To become a London master of arts was the last and greatest victory, for Miss Worley passed the examination as brilliantly that she took the first place, and at the close of the year was awarded the classics silver medal. Miss Worley has resolved to devote her exceptional talents to the profession of teaching.—London Queen.

The Game of Messenger.

The party are seated in line, or round the side of the room, and some one previously appointed to be leader, with the words, "My master sends me to you, madam," or "sir," as the case may be, directed to any individual he may select at his option. "What for?" is the natural enquiry. "To ask if it is quite well with this the messenger commences to perform some antic which the lady or gentleman must instinctively imitate, or stage fright from side to side, or taps with one foot incessantly on the floor. The person whose duty it is to obey commands his neighbor to the right or to the left to "do as I do," also, and so on until it has gone round; it is in doubt when the messenger leaves the room, re-entering with fresh injunctions. While the messenger is in the room he must see the master's will carried out, and no one must stop the movement without suffering a forfeit. The messenger should be some one ingenious in making the antics ludicrous and yet keep within modest bounds, and the game will not fail to produce shouts of laughter.

Another game of much the same character, is known by the cipher, "Thus says the grand seignor." The chief difference is that the first player is stationed in the center of the room and prefaces his movements, which the others must all follow, by the above words. If he varies the command by framing it, "So says the grand seignor," the party must remain still and declines to follow his examples. Any one who laughs or fails to join with "So," or does not follow him when he commences with "Thus," has to pay a forfeit.—Detroit Free Press.

Housekeeping of the Future.

In cities and villages the kitchen and cooking stove and hired girl are all to be banished from the home. Cooking, baking, soap making, starch making, laundry work, coffee browning, yeast making, butter making—all are gone. Send after them—or rather say that organized industry already has begun to take along with these—the remaining work of cooking and cleaning. This state of things is coming as sure as fate; and when it comes the difference will be so great that generations yet unborn shall rise up to bless the workings of this beneficent law.

The city of the future will not build houses in squares, giving to every house an individual kitchen and prison like back yard. It will rather build them all around an open square, and the part now disfigured with the kitchen will be given up to a handsome and sitting room or nursery, opening into a great, green space, where children shall play in safety, and through which the free air or heaven shall flow into the house surrounding it. In every square will be found a scientifically constructed building containing a laundry and a great kitchen, supplied with every modern appliance for baking and scientific cookery, and also for sending into every dining room any desired quantity or variety of food. The individuality of the home and the home table will be preserved, and the kitchen slavish woman and "hired girl" will be banished.—Mrs. Helen E. Starrett in Forum.

Pressing Flowers.

A botanical press is the first thing necessary, which may be made by almost any one. Procure two boards one inch thick, each 9 by 18 inches; fasten a piece one inch thick and an inch and a half wide across the end of each to prevent them from splitting or warping. Bore a hole through the slats, lizard and all, so that it will come in the middle of the slat, first laying the smooth faces together so that the holes will meet. Procure two bolts which will work easily in the holes, and the press is complete. If you can get a blacksmith to make some with handles on freely running burrs they will be the best. Blotting paper is best to absorb moisture, but if it be not convenient newspaper will do. Place four thicknesses of newspaper next the under board, then place your specimen between two sheets of paper. Place it on the first sheet, then another four, and so on, as many as you like. Change the absorbing papers as often as once in forty-eight hours. Do not remove the specimens for at least two days, and then it will cleave off of itself. Better to let it remain until you are ready to mount it. Specimens should be kept under light pressure after they are dry. About 175 pounds is necessary to press. House plants and flowers will retain their natural color much better than others. If the plant is wilted when put to press it will very quickly turn black. —E. E. B. in Springfield Homestead.

Co-Education.

At a banquet of the University of Texas, which is co-educational in all its departments, S. B. Maxey, ex-United States senator, said:

To the female students I beg to say that co-education of the sexes is no longer an experiment. It is a proved success. The just relations between the sexes are better understood than ever before in the world's history. Woman, without loosening her hold on that knightly respect and courtesy with which she has always been treated in our favored land, has proven herself intellectually a formidable competitor of that sex which in the very olden, distant time proclaimed man to be the lord of humankind. Here, as elsewhere, she has proven her right and ability to compete for honors. "The moral influence of co-education is great and beneficial to both sexes. The attention paid to female education during this present century, and especially in the last half of it, is a high evidence of advancing civilization. I glory in the civilization which educates the girl equally with the boy and gives employment to the women equally with the men in all stations for which by nature and education she is fitted.—Chicago Inter Ocean.

Feminine Sharpshooters.

On Saturday several ladies belonging to the Fort Pickering Rifle Club engaged in a shooting contest at the Jackson Mineral park gallery. A prize of a silver handled parasol was offered to the lady making the best score out of a possible seventy-two.

Several of the ladies displayed considerable skill with the rifle, and the match was watched with much interest, as it was something new in the way of local sport. Mrs. Neal proved to be the best shot and was awarded the prize.

The following is the score: Mrs. Neal, 58; Miss Scott, 28; Miss Jones, 30; Miss Johnston, 29; Miss Rose Blume, 15.—Memphis Avalanche.

To Tell Eggs Are Fresh.

Hold the egg to the light and look through it. Fresh eggs are more transparent in the center—old eggs at the ends.

Or, dissolve a tablespoonful of salt in a quart of water. Good eggs will sink, indifferent ones will swim and bad eggs float in this solution.

Or, shake the eggs gently at your ear. If you hear a gurgle or tiind the egg is bad.—Good Housekeeping.

WHAT SHALL WE WEAR?

PRACTICAL INFORMATION IN RELATION TO AUTUMN STYLES.

The Surprise Costume for Travelers by Rail or by Steamer—A New Style in Hats Dressing—Dresses for the Little People.

The costume shown in this cut has been appropriately called "The Surprise," and it is a most convenient arrangement, as the wearer can travel by rail or steamer in what looks like an ordinary traveling dress, and then, by turning back, looks the perfect riders, an extremely dressy robe is disclosed.

THE SURPRISE COSTUME.

The first figure shows the Surprise costume closed. It is of rich black silk, in redingote style, trimmed with silver thread and passementerie. The second figure shows the same costume open, the basket turned back, forming revers and disclosing a bodice both of rich silver gray satin, embroidered in handsome moresque pattern, with silver thread and passementerie. The skirt is also caught back and shows a front as suite.

New York Styles for Children.

At 2 years of age the waist of the dress may simulate a guimpe at top, being gathered at the neck just above the armholes, then sewed to a plain round low necked waist, or one tucked and having deep yoke; a little fall of embroidery drops around where the false guimpe is added, and the belt is of insertion. Girls of 3 years have real guimpe waists to wear under low necked round waists, made entirely of hemstitched tucks, the short puffed sleeves and low neck trimmed with a ruffle that is hemstitched, and edged with narrow Valenciennes lace. A sash of the nainsook hemstitched across the ends is sewed in the side seams and tied behind in a large bow with ends. For little girls of 4 the solid red and India silks are worn in blue or pale rose, or white with feather stitched tucks, and may be with separate guimpes or also high in the neck.

To distinguish boy babies, thicker cambric dresses are pleated from neck to waist, but plain on the sides, in continuous breadths except where the front is cut off at the waist line and tucked like a shirt bosom; the skirt is then gathered to the edge, and a separate belt is set around all the waist except just in front. The back of the waist has a box plait down the middle concealing the buttons which fasten it, and narrow side plaits below it. The little turned over collar is pointed in front, and so are the cuffs and belt, is feather stitched with blue, red or white. Pique frocks are similarly made for these little fellows, says Harper's Bazar, authority for the foregoing.

Cloaks and Mantles.

The new cloaks and mantles are, many of them, according to The Cloak Review, made with long hanging sleeves sewn down as far as the waist into the seam immediately behind the arm, and may be straight and in one with the fronts. Others have long sleeves, or rather coverings for the arms, made of a wide slip of material about half a yard wide, pulled slightly into the armhole, and attached at the back as far as the waist. Others of the long mantles have double or even triple sleeves.

Much passementerie of a very rich kind is lavished on the mantles. Curious combinations of colored beads, jet beads and colored silk or metallic cord are indulged in largely. They are applied both to black and colors, and not only is the ornamentation of a composite order, but tissues of two or three different sorts are used for the mantle itself. There are small mantles of velvet and lace, the velvet portion quite short with dolman sleeves, or in the shape of a Figaro vest, with sleeves cut off at the elbow, under which sleeves are applied to both long and lace fronts. Sometimes cloth is mixed with velvet, the latter being used for the pointed plastron at the back and the front continued into long square or pointed ends. Small mantles for early autumn are made in shot silk and trimmed with lace.

A New Style in Hair Dressing.

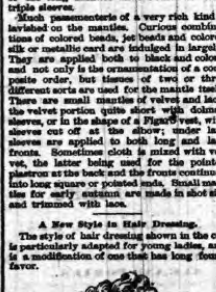
The style of hair dressing shown in the cut is particularly adapted for young ladies, and is a modification of one that has long found favor.



THE CATOGAN LOOP.

In order that the catogan may look thick, all the hair is sometimes combed to the back to form it, and the front hair is an addition. In other cases the front hair is all, or part of it, the natural growth. The catogan is tied with ribbon to match the dress.

Fashion Notes.

Black silk stockings and black kid shoes are for ladies learning to walk.

Dark purplish red shades, such as dahlia and rosewood, are largely imported in rich silks and ribbons, and in velvets for dresses and bonnets.

Solid colors prevail among the new wool fabrics for fall wear, a special feature being the trimming that accompanies each dress pattern.

REPUBLICAN TICKET.

FOR GOVERNOR
EDWARD BURD GRUBB,
OF BURLINGTON.

IN MATTERS OF "CONSCIENCE FIRST THOUGHTS ARE BEST; IN MATTERS OF PRUDENCE LAST THOUGHTS ARE BEST.—Robert Hall.

JOTTINGS.

—Days of 1889 past, 265; days to come, 102.

—The time for social gatherings is at hand.

—The Republicans all over the State are jubilant.

—A German named Fred Richter, has been missing from Sterlin guinea Sept. 9th.

—Station agents on the Central road, will put on their new uniforms this week.

—The Ninth New Jersey Volunteers will hold their annual re-union at Toms River next Tuesday.

—A meeting in the interest of the electric street railway will be held this evening over the City National Bank.

—Dr. Edward McGlynn the ex-communicated Catholic priest, will lecture in Armory Hall, Somerville on November 19th.

—The game of ball between the Stars and Washingtons announced for yesterday has been deferred until next Thursday afternoon.

—The Union and Somerset County Board of Freeholders have called for proposals for a bridge over Green brook at Somerset street.

—The Select Division of the Sons of Temperance of Newark, will entertain the Howell Divison, of this city, next Wednesday evening.

—The Board of Directors of the Dime Savings Bank held their quarterly meeting last night. Routine business only was transacted.

—A communication sent to THE NEWS to-day states that Wyckoff R. Cottrell, of this city recently fell heir to $30,000 by the death of an uncle.

—Gospel Temperance meeting will be resumed in Hope Chapel to-night. Several interesting features will be introduced. All are welcome.

—"Hier wird Deutsche gesprochen"—is on a sign in the Park avenue market, corner of Park avenue and Second street. Its meaning can be found out by inquiring there.

—A man who is subject to fits created considerable excitement on Park avenue at about half-past eight o'clock last evening. He was locked up in the station house and upon recovering was released.

—The annual parade of the Hackensack Fire Department took place last Wednesday. Visitors from Hoboken, Fort Lee, Plainfield and Carlstadt were entertained by the Bergen County fire laddies. After a parade that was reviewed by the Improvement Commissioners, a sumptuous dinner was given to the guests at the National Hotel.

—The Union Association has provided 250 lockers in their new building, every one of which is engaged in advance. They have room for adding a few more but not enough for the inclination is that they will be utterly unable to meet the demand of the young men. They will dedicate their building sometime in October.—Excange

—Sneak thieves have been annoying the residents of East Somerville. Last Saturday night Dr. J. H. Thomas's house was entered and the Sunday's dinner confiscated. On Sunday W. C. Voglar's cellar was also despoiled of some of its palatable contents. Jailer Wilson's cellar at the Court House has also had a visit from them.

—The recent wet weather has done local, suitable damage to the peach crop in New Jersey. The late varieties, from which the highest prices are realized, have been so much bruised by coming in contact with each other, owing to the high winds, that they have rotted and fallen from the trees. In Hunterdon County alone the loss will reach $100,000. Some orchards have lost a thousand baskets each.—Newark Evening News.

—At about one o'clock on Tuesday morning a disastrous railroad wreck occurred at High Bridge on the Central Railroad. An east bound coal train ran into the rear of another, and scattered the cars and engines on both tracks. A little while later, a west-bound train ran into the wreck, and made matters still worse. The west-bound track was cleared by the wrecking crews, at about seven o'clock, so that no delay to passenger traffic was occasioned.

PERSONAL.

Mr. Henry Liddle, of West Front street is visiting friends in Rochester.

Miss Ethel Brown Gray, of First place, left Plainfield to-day to enter Vassar College, at Poughkeepsie, N. Y.

Mrs. Eugene Leine, of East Second street, returned last evening from a two months' visit to her mother at Chicago, Ill.

The family of Mr. A. T. VanZant, have returned to their home on Crescent avenues from an extended visit to Ocean Grove.

Mr. John Harding, who for a number of years has been located at Chicago, Ill., is visiting his parents on South Second street.

Josiah Dunham, of Dunellen and Ross Amos, of Mecklenburg, Va., both colored, were last evening united in marriage by the Rev. John Cary, of Manning avenue, North Plainfield.

Concerning Gen. Schwenk, the owner of the Holly Grove farm on Park avenue, the United States Official Army Register says: He is on record to be a most excellent one. Under the initial S, we find the following: "SCHWENK, SAMUEL K., born in Pennsylvania; appointed from Pennsylvania, First Lieutenant, 96th Penn Volunteers, Sept. 9, 1861; promoted Captain, Nov. 1, 1862; mustered out Oct. 13, 1864; promote1 Major 50th Penn. Veteran Volunteers, Feb. 25, 1865; promoted Lieutenant Colonel Volunteers, by brevet, March 25, 1865, for conspicuous gallantry before Petersburg, and in the assault on Fort Stedman, Va.; promoted Colonel Division of Colonel 50th Penn. Veteran Volunteers, May 18, 1865; promoted Colonel of Volunteers by brevet and Brigadier General of Volunteers by brevet, July 24th, 1865, for meritorious service during the war; mustered out July 26, 1866; appointed from Pennsylvania, First Lieutenant, 6th Infantry July 28, 1866; accepted Dec. 26, 1866; promoted Captain by brevet March 2d, 1867, "for gallant and meritorious service in battle of Spottsylvania C. H.;" promoted Major by brevet, March 2d, 1867, "for gallant and meritorious service in the battle of Ny River, Va.;" promoted Lieutenant Colonel by brevet, March 2d, 1867, "for gallant and meritorious service at the battle of Cold Harbor, Va.;" promoted Captain 41st Infantry, Dec. 15th, 1867; unassigned Nov. 11th, 1869; assigned to 8th Cavalry, Jan. 1st, 1871; retired May 17th, 1875, "for disability resulting from wounds received in line of duty. [Act of Aug. 3d, 1861, sections 16 and 17.]

Wednesday evening the Plainfield Cornet Band serenaded Gen. Nagley, at his residence on Seventh street, to welcome him back from Europe. The general had retired, and was for once in his life, at least, surprised. He quickly arose, donned his apparel, and appeared at the window, where he thanked the band, complimenting them on their playing, and made a few pleasant remarks about the city, and the people, and instated upon making the band in return a present of $20. Mrs. Nagley also appeared at the generous request and was presented with a bouquet. We find the following about the General in Appleton's Encyclopedia of American Biography, at our Job Male Library: "Nagley, James S., soldier, born in East Liberty, Allegheny county, Pa., Dec. 20th, 1836. He graduated at Western University, enlisted as a private in the 1st Pennsylvania regiment in 1846, and served in most of the important engagements during the Mexican War, at the conclusion of which becoming a farmer and horticulturist. He raised a brigade of three months' volunteers at the beginning of the Civil War, was commissioned Brigadier-General of volunteers in April, 1861, served in Alabama and Tennessee with the Army of the Ohio, and at the battle of Lavergne, Oct. 7th, 1862, was in command, defeating the Confederate general, Richard H. Anderson, and Gen. Nathan B. Forrest. He was promoted Major-General for gallantry at Stone River, Nov. 29th, 1862, and at the battle of Chickamauga, Sept. 19th and 20th, 1863, held Owen's Gap. He settled in Pittsburg, Pa., after the war and represented that city in Congress from 1869 to 1875, two terms continuously, and again from 1885 to 1887, being elected as a Republican. He then removed to New York city." As we stated a few days ago, he has purchased the Rehill Potts property on Seventh street, and after greatly improving it has made it his permanent residence. He has become since the Appleton biography was issued, President of the Mexican Pacific Railway and President of the Mexican Investment Company, and still retains his old love for flowers, formed over forty years ago, when he made horticulture a special study. He has had the femmes about his premises for years, and we should suggest an unneighborly spirit, and that if Plainfield had no femmes about its many beautiful parks it would make the city one great park, and thereby greatly enhance its beauty greatly, if not make it the most beautiful city of the size in the universe.

THE REFORM CLUB MEETING.

President French's Resignation Unanimously Accepted.

The Plainfield Reform Club held its regular weekly meeting in Reform Hall last evening.

After the transaction of minor business the resignation of President French was again brought up.

The club was asked if the president's resignation should be accepted? After considerable discussion a motion to accept finally prevailed.

The Vice President then appointed Messrs. Cleaver, Reynolds and Vanderbeek as a committee, to draft suitable resolutions thanking Mr. French for his unselfish efforts in behalf of the Club and expressing the regret of the members at his refusal to withdraw his resignation. The committee were also to present a copy of the same to the ex-President, and have them put on the club minutes.

The chairman was also instructed to fill the vacancy on the Executive Committee, caused by the resignation of Mr. French. He promptly re-appointed Mr. French. The appointment was applauded.

After a number of the members had made brief addresses the meeting adjourned.

The Balance of the Johnstown Fund Still Here.

Of the $4,057,98, contributed by the people of Plainfield, for the relief of the Johnstown sufferers, $464.39 still remain in possession of Councilman J. K. Myers, as the treasurer. He is awaiting directions. The money is deposited at the City National Bank. Mayor Male has been authorized to forward THE NEWS portion of the fund in one draft with the balance, and will probably do so without further delay. It is to be regretted that the money has been withheld so long, while the people of Johnstown and vicinity are in so much need. Another appeal has been sent out by Mrs. Barton of the Red Cross Society, which will be issued in the first edition entering relief under the personal supervision of that noble woman, and it is thought that it would be well to forward the balance here to her instead of to Gov. Beaver, so that it will help to relieve the most pressing cases of distress, which she is in a better position to know of. Whatever is done ought to be done without further delay.

The Democratic State Committee.

The new Democratic State Committee has been appointed by districts, for which they are:

First District—Jacob Kinsel, Cumberland County.

Second District—John H. Scudder, Mercer County.

Third District—Manning Freeman, Middlesex county.

Fourth District—Joseph W. Ballantine, Somerset County.

Fifth District—John Hinchliffe, Passaic County.

Sixth District—James Smith, jr., Essex county.

Seventh District—E. A. Stevens, Hudson county.

At Large—Allen L. McDermott, Hudson, Gottfried Krueger, Essex; John Hone, jr., Monmouth; Benjamin F. Lee, Mercer; Daniel F. Swan, Gloucester.

The committee will meet at Taylor's Hotel, Jersey City, at 11 o'clock on Friday morning.

Thought He Was an Evil Spirit.

An amusing story reaches us from Galicia in Austria, the traveler, who on his tour stopped at a Galician village, was taken by the peasants, who had never seen a bicycle before, for the "Evil One", and great consternation prevailed amongst these primitive people lest the unwelcome visitor should bring down misfortune on the inhabitants. A deputation of the village people, headed by the Mayor, betook themselves to the priest to ask his aid in driving the devil out of their midst, "for," said the wise men, "now he has taken up his abode here, we shall have no rain, and our crops will be ruined." The priest then went to see what could be done, and the result was that the following Sunday the congregation were regaled by their spiritual head, with a description of the construction and object of a bicycle, instead of the usual sermon. This happened in the year of our Lord 1889.—Bicycle News.

Mechanical Drawing.

Classes in Mechanical Drawing will be organized at the Y. M. C. A. rooms Tuesday evening, Oct. 1st. Mr. A. J. Gaynes Civil Engineer will with consent assistance again teach these classes which have been so eminently successful in past years. The classes of last Spring will have an opportunity for continuing their study, and a new class will be organized for the benefit of those who may not be competent to do the more advanced work. The membership fee, $2, entitles to the above and other privileges of the association.

Cut a Deep Gash in His Hand.

Last evening George Van Laurea, a colored resident of Somerville, employed at Mr. Wilson Blodgood, of Prospect avenue, Nothe wood, while engaged in opening a can of pressed beef at the home of his employer cut a deep gash in his left hand with the lid of the can. Reshman James Farley took him to Dr. Hedges, who dressed the wound. Four stitches were taken in the hand. The wound is a very painful one.

Caught at Last at Illegal Liquor Selling.

Michael F. Watson, who keeps a cigar store and grocery, at 225 South Second street, opposite the Court House, was arrested last night by Chief Carey this afternoon on four charges of illegal liquor selling, and placed under $300 bail on each charge. He was endeavoring to secure bail as we go to press.

An 11,000 Pound Sale.

The new 11,000 pound Herring safe recently purchased by the Dime Saving Institution arrived to-day and is being placed in position in the bank building. It required two teams to draw it from the depot.

GENERAL GRUBB.

A Brief Sketch of His Life.

Gen. Edward Burd Grubb, the Republican candidate for governor, is the son of Edward Burd Grubb, a noted iron manufacturer and sailor. The son was born November 13, 1841, at Burlington, where his family had lived for many years, and received a grammar school education and finished in the local college. On May 4, 1861, he enlisted in response to President Lincoln's call for troops and was appointed second lieutenant. He participated in the first Bull Run, and when Gen. Kearny took command of the First New Jersey Brigade, Mr. Grubb was made first lieutenant, company D, Third regiment. He was appointed to duty on Col. Taylor's brigade staff. After the battles of Gaines' Mills and White Oak Creek, Lieut. Grubb became attached to Gen. Torbett's staff and distinguished himself at the battle of Crampton's Pass. In November, 1862, he was promoted to be major of the Fifteenth New Jersey, and soon after was promoted to be lieutenant colonel. At Fredericksburg, Chancellorsville and in other battles, Col. Grubb was distinctive. Early in 1863, the term of service of his regiment expired, and for a short time Colonel Grubb was in command of the recruiting camp at Beverly, N. J. He then raised the Thirty-fourth and Thirty-seventh Regiments, New Jersey Volunteers, and in 1864 was at the front again with General Grant. In March, 1865, he was made brevet brigadier-general for meritorious service before Petersburg. After having been mustered out in 1865, General Grubb entered active business, and upon the death of his father in 1887 took charge of his large iron interests in New Jersey and Pennsylvania, living at Burlington.

He has been a member of the Burlington Common Council in 1873 and held other places of trust. He was with M. de Lesseps when the latter made the first trip through the Suez Canal. He was the author of an interesting account of that event in Lippincott's Magazine. General Grubb has been, and is, active yachtsman, having carried off two of the Bennett cups, and has been identified with many social interests. He has been for years commandant of the famous Philadelphia City Troops, and commanded the New Jersey battalion in the Yorktown centennial, the battalion winning the national prize. He now lives at Beverly, N. J., his home, Edgewater Park, being one of the handsomest on the river. He was married in 1863 to Elizabeth Wadsworth, daughter of the Rev. Courtlands Van Rensselaer, son of "the last Patroon." In 1888 he was chosen State commander of the New Jersey Grand Army of the Republic, but declined re-election last spring.

The Courageous Republican Platform.

[From the New York Tribune Sept. 19th.]

The platform of the temperance question is at last a clear, courageous and at the same time practical and sensible. It does not propose, as some fanatics do, to make no effort for temperance except one, which must therefore be empty and fruitless. It does not give good citizens the alternative: "Our way or no way; take our laws and methods or the saloon shall rule." The Republicans declare that they are ready for the most thorough measure that will be sustained by the people. Only ignorance or mendacity can construe this declaration as an evasion, for with explicit clearness the Republican platform says: "The Republican party of New Jersey stands committed by its platforms and legislative enactments to the most thorough measure that will be sustained by the people." What that measure shall be, can best be determined by the professed friends of temperance pease to help the Democratic party and the saloons.

Frederick Wardle in a New Role

Fred. Wardle is a favorite here, especially when he appears in heroic roles. The audience that greeted him in his new play, "The Mountebank", was not only large, but highly appreciative. The play is one of those heroic affairs that appeals to the feelings rather than to the intelligence of an audience. It is full of climaxes and provokes a great deal of applause. The scenery and stage settings are handsome in it, yet it is entertaining and affords the leading people fine opportunities for doing some clever acting. Mr. Wardle appears to good advantage in the leading role, while Mr. Stuart, Mr. Read, Mr. Clarke and Miss Chester had fine characters and quite satisfactory in their parts or less difficult roles. The company is large and seems to have been selected with care. Manager Wills was congratulated on all sides for the excellence of the stage setting.—Pittsburg Commercial Gazette.

NEW JERSEY NUGGETS.

Live News Notes from Various Parts of the State.

The twenth-fifth annual convention of the Middlesex County Sunday-school Association was held at the Dayton Presbyterian church yesterday. The Rev. P. T. Pockman was elected president, and William Edgar, Secretary and treasurer.

The contest between the Pennsylvania, Poughkeepsie and Boston and the Somerset Railroad Companies, which has come under the attention of Chancellor McGill at Jersey City for some time, was amicably settled yesterday. The Pennsylvania, Poughkeepsie and Boston Company are to be allowed to cross the Somerset company's tracks at the grade crossing at Saxpere, a small town in Somerset County.

Colonel Peyton Douglas, of 1,710 North Broad street, Philadelphia, was locked up yesterday afternoon, in Newton, charged with swindling a number of servant girls. The prisoner is a peddler, who visited and sold for a dollar, and which was supposed to make a man fall in love with the girl who could induce him to take it. A young woman made a complaint against the peddler, who was held for trial.

Johannes Olsen, a sailor on the steamship Oskaloosa, of the Scandinavian line, had difficulty yesterday with Heinrich Landsam, the first officer, and the latter ordered him put in irons. Subsequently the two met on the quarter deck and the sailor, who resisted vigorously, Boatswain Dubois went to Mr. Rose's assistance, when Olsen became frenzied and while playing out a sailor's knife, slashed about him right and left, stabbing Dubois three times in the back and Fritz M. Landsam and a boy who happened to be within reach. The wounds are not dangerous. Chancellor was found unconscious and taken to the First Precinct Police station at Jersey City.

An Old Time Pugilist.

Yesterday morning Constables Soper and Read lodged in the Middlesex county jail at New Brunswick, from Metuchen, Orville Gardner, charged with breach of the peace. The object is to have inquiry made as to his sanity, he having recently been so violently demonstrative as to cause Overseer Mitchell, matron of the Home for the Aged Homeless, in fear of her life.

Gardner was in his younger days a pugilist of considerable notoriety and fought some very hard battles, being known in sporting circles as "Awful Gardner." Many years ago he reformed, got religious and engaged in missionary work in New York, where he lived a very exemplary life.

Becoming old and feeble he was with his wife admitted to the Home for the Aged, where he has recently developed decided evidences of insanity so violent as to be very dangerous. Although he is over 70 years of age he is still quite a vigorous man.

W. L. FORCE, Postmaster,

—The new method of disposing of the bodies of the dead is called "The sanitary" method. It consists of placing the bodies in stone crypts, through which currents of dry air are passed continually, until at length the moisture of the remains is entirely evaporated and the bodies remain whole, perfect in feature and form, and undisfigured forever. The method is at present in its formation, and it does not bury "out of sight forever." It may be that this method will preserve human bodies more perfectly than even the old mummies of Egypt. It is endorsed by many of the most eminent sanitarians.—Elizabeth Journal.

PLAINFIELD EVENING NEWS
NEWSPAPER OF PLAINFIELD AND VICINITY, IS PUBLISHED AT 4:30 O'CLOCK EVERY AFTERNOON, AT NO. 21 SOMERSET STREET.

S. W. MORRISON, EDITOR AND PROPRIETOR.

IS DELIVERED BY CARRIERS TO ALL PARTS OF THE CITY AT TEN CENTS A WEEK, 25c. IF PAID IN ADVANCE, AT $5.00 PER YEAR.

To congress: Next time you meet, whether in October or December, talk less and do more.

It is unfortunate that Gen. Grant could not have left behind him dead bodies enough to go around to all the places that are contending for his bones.

Let us rejoice, without distinction of race, sex or previous condition of servitude. The oyster season is going to be the richest and fattest one in seven years, and the months without an R are already well behind us.

There is nobody alive who can put more wisdom into a few words than Gen. Sherman can. This is one thing that he told the Grand Army boys at Milwaukee: "Keep young as long as you can, and do not go into a soldiers' home if you can help it."

Our Railroads.

The United States now possesses nearly half the railway mileage of the world. At the end of 1888 we had 156,082 miles of railroad. The only pity about it is that these miles are not all paying ones they ought to be. Too many parallel roads have been built for the purpose of exacting blackmail from a rival, for that is what the construction of one road parallel to another too often means.

Our railroads, directly and indirectly, give sustenance to one-eighth of the whole population of the country. For sixty years the average increase in lines built has been 2,500 miles a year. Last year the net earnings of the roads fell off 10 per cent. The showing will be better this year. Finally, here are the biggest figures of all: The funded debt of all our railway lines is $4,186,943,116.

Monument to Isabella.

A movement has been inaugurated by the women of Illinois which is so altogether praiseworthy that the wonder is somebody did not propose it long ago, Catharine V. Waite, Dr. Julia Holmes Smith and Dr. Fanny Dickinson are a committee incorporated to procure subscriptions and superintend the construction of a monument to Isabella, the pious and clever queen who sold her jewels to fit out the ships in which Columbus sailed to discover America. Dull fomine Hettil women is probably the only person in all Europe who had brains enough to appreciate the value of Columbus' ideas, they say. Therefore, good Queen Isabella of Spain shall have in this country, which is so kind to women, a beautiful monument to be unveiled in 1892. It seems peculiarly graceful and fitting that women should build the statue. Let the movement be made a national one and take in all the women of America.

The Great London Strike.

A month ago the laborers on the London docks knocked off work and refused to resume it unless they were paid twelve cents an hour. They had been working for ten cents an hour at the hardest labor men could take hold of.

The movement of the dock men resulted in the greatest labor strike of modern times. Other workingmen of kindred trades joined the dock men, in London and elsewhere, till there were altogether 150,000 laborers idle. This involved the going hungry of more than half a million people, unless they had outside aid. This they had for weeks from trades organizations and friends, and it cost $10,000 a day to feed them.

The list of the laborers was so hard, and the strike was kept within bounds of law and order to such a degree, that the sympathies of everybody except the dock owners were with the men. Their good behavior was owing to their own common sense and the consummate wisdom and power of their leader, John Burns. He is 35 years old, a man of magnificent physique and strength, an engineer by trade, and a born leader of men, as he has shown. It is to be noted that the first blood in the great strike was shed by policemen themselves. They fired on and mortally wounded a striker who, with his mates, was preventing outsiders from taking up their work.

The London docks are the largest and most famous in the world. It is said that $100,000,000 have been expended on them. The oldest dates back to 1805. There are some eight or ten of the principal ones, the largest being the immense Royal docks. It has three miles of water way and a solid mile of iron warehouses. To build it required the labor of 3,000 men from 1875 till the summer of 1880, when the dock was formally opened with splendid ceremonies. Railway cars pass over it and load and unload at the steamers' sides.

The influence of the great strike was felt everywhere. It affected all countries. Commerce was paralyzed, looms were stopped for lack of cotton, and shops shut down for want of coal. The price of sugar, coal and many other commodities at once advanced. Six thousand tons of meat and millions of pounds of fruit lay rotting in the Thames at one time. So intimately are mankind bound together that 30,000 men can thus affect the whole world.

QUEBEC'S HORROR.

A Great Landslide Descends on Thirty Tenements.

SCORES OF PEOPLE CRUSHED.

Seven Dead Bodies Taken from the Ruins,

And Fifty More Unfortunates Are Reported Buried Beneath the Debris.

Tons of Rock Slip Down from Quebec's Historic Citadel with Frightful Results—Five Adds to the Horror of the Scene—The Military, Police and Fire Department All Working Like Beavers at the Debris—Pitiful Cries for Assistance.

QUEBEC, Sept. 20.—A landslide occurred from the face of Cape Diamond, below the citadel, at 7:30 p. m., crushing the houses beneath it and imprisoning the inmates below. The debris was piled to a height in some cases of twenty to thirty feet over the house which were standing below.

Warnings Disregarded.

The extent of the disaster is likely, from present indications, to fall but little short of that which occurred on nearly the same spot on May 21, 1841, when eight buildings were destroyed and thirty-two persons killed. In 1853 several others were killed half a mile further up the street by a similar avalanche of rock; still the warnings were disregarded and people continued to build and to take up their habitations immediately below the overhanging masses of rock that juts out from the front of the cape and in the narrow street that bears the name of Quebec's founder and that occupies all the space that remains between the cliff and river, save the wharves.

A Terrible Landslide.

Two fearful rains and flood succeeding a month of dry weather filled the crevices of the soil immediately below and beyond the southern extremity of Dufferin terrace, and at 7:30 this enormous mass was detached from the cliff and hurled as with the noise of many thunders, slowly and majestically at first, but rapidly increasing in momentum through its slide of a couple of hundred feet, over the retaining wall, pushing half a dozen houses out of its way and crushing most of them beneath its weight as though they had been so many paper boxes.

Paralyzed by Fear.

Some of those who saw the slide were standing at the doors of their houses, and were too paralyzed with fear to move. Others ran to a place of safety, among them John Berrigan, Patrick Meehan and Patrick O'Neill.

Debris Thirty Feet High.

The debris of rock filled up the narrow street to a depth of some thirty feet and cut off all communication between the portions of the city north and south of it. On the wharves behind where the houses had stood, scattered timbers and the earth and rock that partly covered them were mingled with huge piles of stone that left little passageway between them and the river.

Police, Firemen and Military at Work.

The river policemen, whose station is close by, and the city police from Champlain market were among the first to rush to the relief of the imprisoned, the wounded and the dying sufferers. As soon as an idea was obtained of the extent of the disaster the whole force of municipal police was turned out to render assistance, and Chief Colonel Vohl applied to H Battery at the citadel for assistance. A strong force of the military, under Command of Maj. Wilson, turned out to aid in the removal of the debris.

Fire Adds to the Horror.

Fire broke out almost immediately in some of the ruins, but the brigade, when summoned, soon extinguished the flames and set to work to assist in the search for the dead and dying. So far as can be ascertained amid the existing confusion the house destroyed contained over thirty tenements, bearing the numbers from 129 to 150.

Frantic Cries for Help.

It was at once evident that considerable loss of life must have occurred, for some of the buildings were completely buried beneath a fearful mass of rock and earth, though willing workers set out to remove this debris. The first assistance was naturally given to the imprisoned living, some of whom could be seen pinned by rocks or broken timbers, while the frantic cries for help could often be heard of others who were buried out of sight.

Fifty Persons Still Buried.

The dead bodies that were recovered up to this time were those of Thomas Farrell and his two children, one child of Jeanne Bedlet, two children of Stephen Burke, and Mrs. Bergan's. It is supposed that at least fifty persons are yet under the ruins. Cries of rocks are falling, and it is feared the whole border forming the highest point of Quebec will give way.

Ramblers to Leave the League.

BUFFALO, Sept. 20.—The delegates from the Rambler Bicycle club, of this city, have returned from the meeting of the Atlantic division of the L. A. W. at Brooklyn very indignant. They say they were entitled to one delegate to the national assembly and were so promised, but Brooklyn and New York by a clever subterfuge, got two-thirds of the delegates and the Ramblers got left. It is quite probable that the Ramblers' club will leave the L. A. W. in a body. The Rambler's annual contribution to the league amounts to about $300.

Brooklyn Not to Enter the League.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 20.—President Byrne says the Brooklyns have taken no steps toward admission to the league. Their relations with the association had been agreeable until recently, and were not yet so disagreeable as to lead them to seek a change. He regretted the causes of irritation to be amicably removed.

A Hotel Man Decamps.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Sept. 20.—Felix Doherty, the former proprietor of the Windsor hotel, has decamped, leaving creditors in the lurch to the amount of $1,500. Doherty is said to have made no move on the strength of a rumor that he had fallen heir to the estate of a rich uncle and to have raised money on the paper.

A Heavy Gale at Highland Light.

HIGHLAND LIGHT, Mass., Sept. 20.—A heavy northwest gale, with rain, has prevailed since yesterday, fishing boats have had a bad time. One life was lost at Truro and there were many narrow escapes.

ELMIRA'S BIG FAIR.

Duncan C. Ross Knocks Sergt. Walsh from the Saddle.

ELMIRA, N. Y., Sept. 20.—The weather for the fourth day of the interstate fair was not quite pleasant as the previous days, except that there was less rain. A chilly northwest wind prevailed during the day, but 10,000 people were on the grounds. In the trotting there was a broadcloth contest between Duncan C. Ross, Capt. Daly and Sergt. Walsh. This contest proved to be more of a fight in earnest than was anticipated. Ross received a cut in his left arm, and immediately made a stroke at Walsh's head. Walsh was knocked from his horse insensible and remained unconscious for several minutes. He was carried to his hotel in a very weak condition, but has recovered considerably, and is out of danger.

Governor Hill, of New York, Governor Beaver and Lieutenant Governor Davies, of Pennsylvania, are the guests of the fair association today.

Henry Villard Criticised.

NEW YORK, Sept. 20.—At the regular meeting of the Northern Pacific railroad directors there was some criticism of Henry Villard's action in publishing a request for proxies and defining the objects to which the funds to be raised by the proposed $100,000,000 mortgage are to be applied. Mr. Villard disclaimed any disrespect for the board and said he would withdraw the publication. The directors then adjourned for several minutes for the purpose of considering the purposes of the new bonds. These differ considerably from those named by Mr. Villard. For instance only $60,000,000 are to be used in purchase of bonds, and the amount set aside for dividends on preferred stock is left open for the consideration of a special committee. In fact, the whole question whether the preferred stockholders will get anything. The directors said after adjournment that it would require complete unity in the board to obtain the required three-fourths' vote of the preferred stockholders in favor of the new mortgage.

Man and Wife Shot Dead.

WYMSON, Ont., Sept. 20.—About 11 a. m. a man and woman were found dead in Dougall's nursery, where they had been seen entering at 9 o'clock. Each had a bullet wound through the heart and the man had a gaping bullet hole in his forehead from which the blood was oozing. Papers found on George H. showed him to be Silas Desmore, of Rushville, Ind., and the woman was probably his wife. A revolver with two chambers empty was found near the bodies. The body of George was in the vicinity as if some one had taken hold of it with both hands and pulled it convulsively, but no other traces of a struggle of any sort were found. Apparently the dead people contained only three cents in money and a few unimportant papers. The man was supposedly 37 and the woman about 30 years old.

Women Will Vote in Wyoming.

CHEYENNE, Wy. T., Sept. 20.—The Statehood convention adopted as part of the constitution a woman's chapter. Female citizens are to vote. The usual qualifications are requirements that all electors shall be able to read English, shall be full fledged citizens, and have had six months' residence in Wyoming. Much opposition was opposed vigorously by a couple of corporation attorneys. Ballots to contain the names of all candidates will be issued by state officers. The provision will disfranchise a number of colored miners, who have for years voted in bulk.

Spain Preparing for War.

MADRID, Sept. 20.—The Spanish government has ordered a fleet of war vessels to Morocco to demand the release of the captain, four sailors and one passenger of the Spanish vessel captured by natives off the coast of Morocco. It is said the fleet carries that 10,000 men be held in readiness to embark for Morocco at a moment's notice. Although no action has been taken, it is still hoped that the captives may be peacefully surrendered.

Governor Beaver Refused.

WILLIAMSPORT, Pa., Sept. 20.—Governor Beaver has declined to appoint a representative from the West Branch valley on the State Fiood commission to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Judge Cummins for the reason that the labors of the commission are very nearly finished, and that the state will therefore receive no more financial help from the balance of money now at the disposition of the commission.

O'Brien Men Dropped.

NEW YORK, Sept. 20.—The Republican county committee's committee to reorganize the Eighth Assembly district in place of J. O'Brien's district, have stricken from the rolls the names of about 1,000 O'Brien men, including "Silver Dollar" Smith, Alderman Martin Engel, George J. Kraus and the other "workers." The O'Brien men laugh at the committee's action, and say it is a case of the tail trying to wag the dog, as there are only about 300 names left on the roll.

Yacht Racing at Newport.

NEWPORT, R. I., Sept. 20.—The first two of the special yacht races were sailed here. There was plenty of wind and the conditions were excellent. The Titania won the $350 Morgan cup. There was no second prize, as there were not four entries. The Gorilla won the $150 Morgan cup, the Papoose getting second prize.

Another Body from the Lee.

CLEVELAND, Sept. 20.—The body of S. E. Knight, another of the passengers on the lee yacht Leo, which left Lorain for Cleveland on Sunday afternoon, and which was wrecked by the explosion of her boiler, was washed ashore about noon. Four bodies have now been recovered. Five are still missing.

California Means to Visit Washington.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 20.—About 200 members of the Golden Gate commandery, Knights Templar, will leave here on a special train Sept. 30 to attend the triennial conclave in Washington. The members of the California commandery leave Oct. 1, and the Oakland commandery go about the same time.

Their Matrimonial Scheme Failed.

WILLIAMSPORT, Pa., Sept. 20.—Seymour Hitchcock, the Mandville man who, with his wife, confessed to a scheme to swindle western farmers by a tempting matrimonial bait, has been convicted here in the United States court of using of the mails to defraud. His wife was acquitted.

Blind Favors the Triple Alliance.

ROME, Sept. 20.—Karl Blind, the well known Socialist, has written a letter to Signor Bovio in which he declares that the maintenance of the triple alliance is absolutely necessary for the peace of Europe, and constitutes the real safeguard of Italian unity.

Sixteen Years for Thirteen Cents.

NEW YORK, Sept. 20.—Henry Fitzgerald, who was convicted in the general sessions of robbing a man of thirteen cents and robbed him of thirteen cents, was sentenced to sixteen years' imprisonment at hard labor.

TWO YEARS FOR ASSAULT

Mrs. Hamilton Found Guilty by the Jury.

HOW SHE BORE THE SENTENCE

The Judge's Charge to the Jury Said to Have Been Absolutely Fair—Hamilton Was Not in Court When Sentence Was Pronounced.

MAY'S LANDING, N. J., Sept. 20.—At the opening of the Hamilton case the court room was crowded, but the large assemblage of spectators were doomed to disappointment. Hamilton sent down word that she desired to waive an appearance, as she was too badly prostrated from the effects of the previous day's excitement to appear. The reaction from the effects of the large amount of opium which she had taken to sustain her during the ordeal had set in, and she was a nervous wreck. Another notice able thing was the absence of all the actors who have hitherto played so important a part in this domestic drama, as neither Mr. Hamilton, Edward Vollmer, Mrs. Rapp, the proprietress of Noll cottage, or Miss Donnelly put in an appearance. Not one of this quartet are in May's Landing, and the female curiosity seekers looked and gazed in vain.

Capt. Perry's Argument.

The jury being in their seats, court was promptly opened, and Capt. Perry began his argument. He said he hoped the jurors would frame their verdict according to the testimony, independent of newspaper reports or other influences. He closely reviewed the testimony which had been given, and showed very clearly that Mary Ann Donnelly, the nurse, was the first aggressor and that she forced Mrs. Hamilton to pick up the knife in self defense. She had threatened to kill her mistress, she was hot tempered and frenzied with brandy, and she assailed Mrs. Hamilton with murderous intent.

Prosecutor's Address.

Prosecutor Thompson began his argument, in which he dwelt upon the testimony given the day before, especially that of Mrs. Hamilton, and could not see where any doubt could be entertained as to the cause of the cutting. He stated that it was an atrocious assault and could not be changed to a lesser degree. The testimony of all the witnesses of the direct cutting open to the jury and appealed to them to consider that and not the former relations of the nurse or the family quarrels between the wife.

The Judge's Charge.

The afternoon session began at 1:30 o'clock, and Judge Reed charged the jury. The judge explicitly informed them that this was not a quarrel between two passionate women but a deadly fight, that they were to decide whether she had acted in self defense or what she had used her weapon for a deadly purpose. It is for you to decide from the testimony given whether Mrs. Hamilton was justified in using the knife or not. Give her the benefit of any reasonable doubt.

The charge lasted one-quarter of an hour, and at 2 o'clock the jury retired to the upper chamber under the charge of Constable Bowen. At 3:30 o'clock Mrs. Hamilton was found guilty, the maximum penalty of the offense under the crimes act of New Jersey was ten years in state prison or $1,000 fine, or both, at the discretion of the court.

The Charge Against the Defendant.

When the court adjourned the morning session at 11:30 it was generally believed that the jury would be out but a short time, acquittal, or there would be a disagreement, but when Judge Reed delivered his charge to the jury it was decidedly against the prisoner, and it was thought that it would have had its effect. At 3 p. m., just one hour after going out, the jury filed into the court room again, and every one scanned their faces as if to learn the fate of the unfortunate woman.

Guilty as Indicted.

The judge ordered the prisoner to be brought into court. She was dressed in a neat dark suit and dark hat, and was nervously pulling on a pair of gloves when she entered. She looked pale and careworn. After being seated the clerk asked the jury if they had arrived at a decision. Immediately everything was quiet, and Foreman Reeves replied: "We have. We find the prisoner guilty as indicted."

How Eva Received the Sentence.

Mrs. Hamilton was whispering to her counsel at the time, and as she heard the verdict announced, stared and gasped, but in a second recovered herself and gave no other sign of emotion. The jury was polled, and each responded in his name as called. Judge Reed waited a few moments, as if to give the prisoner's counsel time to make a motion for a new trial, but no such motion being made, the judge, in a cold, hard voice, said:

"Evangeline Hamilton, stand up," and thereupon sentenced the prisoner to two years in the penitentiary. In pronouncing sentence Judge Reed said to the prisoner: "You have been convicted of atrocious assault, but we have taken into consideration the condition of the nurse, and we give you a lenient sentence of two years in the state prison."

How the Jury First Stood.

It was learned after court was dismissed that the jury stood eleven for conviction and one for acquittal on the first ballot. Charles Whippy, of Atlantic City, was the one in favor of acquittal. He was subsequently won to agree with the others, however, and thus ends the celebrated Hamilton case.

A Big Suit Against the Erie.

NEW YORK, Sept. 20.—A suit has been begun in this city against the Erie railroad by Messrs. Andrews, Langdon & Co., the amount claimed being $1,000,000. Messrs. Langdon & Co. are the largest shippers of anthracite coal on the Erie railroad, charge that owing to the unjust discrimination by the Erie road in favor of the Delaware and Hudson Canal company, the Hillside Coal and Iron company and the Pennsylvania Coal company, their business in common with other individual coal producers on the Erie has suffered considerably.

The Suit Over Howard J. Settled.

ELMIRA, N. Y., Sept. 20.—The celebrated suit over Howard J. Jay, who was found insane by Benjamin Troop, of Scranton, Pa., the defendant, paid $10,000 in cash to Benjamin Herrick, and the suit, which has been pending in the United States courts, is to be withdrawn. The case has been running for seven or eight years, and the costs amount to nearly $15,000. It has been a famous case among horsemen.

Thanking Confederate Veterans.

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., Sept. 20.—Gen. Rosecrans was re-elected president of the Society of the Army of the Cumberland. Toledo, O., will be the next place of meeting and Sept. 17 and 18, 1890, the time. The question of monument to Gens. Thomas and Sheridan was considered. The Confederate veterans were thanked for courtesies.

THE NEWS IN BRIEF.

From Ties from the Wire Carefully Culled.

L. A. D. Russell, Providence, has been awarded $250 in a suit against the Pennsylvania railroad for being ejected from a train for refusing to pay ten cents in addition to the regular fare.

Robert C. Patterson, first lieutenant and quartermaster of the fourteenth Pennsylvania regiment, in a letter to Col. Waites, inspector of rifle practice, charges the New York officials at the Creedmoor contest with attempting to win the trophy by unfair means.

John Allen and R. H. Pratt, of New York, have ridden to San Francisco on horseback.

The residence of Mrs. A. Lenbower, near Deer Park, Md., was destroyed by fire during her absence, and her two children, aged 3 and 6 years, were burned to death.

A GIDDY SAMOAN PRINCESS.

She Leaves a Dime Museum to Elope with a Chicago Widower.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Sept. 20.—Monday morning a company of natives of the Samoan islands opened an engagement at the Dime museum. The party consisted of a chief, one woman and one child. The woman was comely looking, about 22 or 23 years of age, and claimed to be related to King Malietoa of the Samoan islands. She gave out that she was a princess of the royal line and that her name was Silantie.

At the time the king was deposed by the German consul at Apia the princess had to be educated. There she remained until about three weeks ago, when she was engaged by an agent to go with some other natives on an exhibition tour through the country. Soon afterward she opened in Chicago. While there an American by the name of J. S. Cotterell fell violently in love with her, followed her to this city and proposed marriage to her. The couple are supposed to have gone to San Francisco, as the princess has been desirous of returning to her native land since Malietoa's resumption of authority.

Doings of the Old Fellows.

COLUMBUS, O., Sept. 20.—The Sovereign Grand Lodge of Odd Fellows devoted the day's session to discussing the changing of memorial day for subordinate lodges from Oct. 9 to the second Friday in June. [illegible] member from Kansas introduced a resolution reducing the age of [illegible] from 21 to 18, which will bring the [illegible] up in the Grand next year. The Ora. lodge for the first time recognized Patriarchs Militant, and complimented Grand Patriarch Underwood on the appearance of the members. The prize drills of the Patriarchs Militant took place at the state fair ground later. The Daughters of Rebekah completed their constitution and their organization will hereafter be known as the Sovereign Convention of the Daughters of Rebekah, I. O. O. F.

Grateful Philadelphians.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 20.—A number of citizens held a conference at the mayor's office and decided to present to the new government cruiser Philadelphia a comprehensive library for the use of those who may be assigned to duty on the cruiser. The proposed gift is to show the appreciation of the citizens of having the vessel named after the city. Mayor Fitler appointed the following named gentlemen, among others, on the finance committee: George W. Childs, A. J. Drexel, Joseph Wharton, Thomas Dolan, Henry Lewis, Hamilton Disston, William M. Singerly, Austin Corbin, George B. Roberts and C. A. Griscom. Mayor Fitler is chairman.

Killed by a Fire Escape.

ALBANY, Sept. 20.—John Toohey, an employe on the capitol, who resides at 196 Canal street, met with instant death while testing a fire escape invented by Mr. Fowler, now facing the capitol yard. It had been placed in position and then tested by Arnold Wyman, agent of the O. R. Barber Fire Escape company. After Wyman had come down successfully from the fourth story Toohey attempted to do the same. He came down to the second floor with some difficulty, when the rope, which had been cut nearly in two by sharp capstones, parted, and he fell forty feet, striking on his head. Toohey leaves a widow and five children.

Fatal Interference with a Fight.

LANCASTER, Pa., Sept. 20.—Edward Gisler, a shoemaker of Bareville, was found unconscious on the public highway below Millport, suffering from injuries which resulted later in his death. Gisler had been a witness of a quarrel early in the evening, and, passing a remark on it, was attacked by the parties assaulted. He left and started for home, but never reached there. No arrests have been made.

Bought by the Reading Company.

READING, Pa., Sept. 20.—The two anthracite blast furnaces of the Keystone Furnace company, which recently failed, have been sold to the Reading Iron company for $100, subject to a mortgage of $175,000. This gives the Reading Iron company control of four furnaces, leaving but two outside. In two weeks all four furnaces will be in blast.

HIS FIGHT FOR FREEDOM.

Financier Henry S. Ives Commences His Defense.

A DISAGREEMENT LOOKED FOR.

Lawyer Brooke's Address to the Jury.

Ex-Governor Hoadly Takes the Stand for the Defense—Stayner and Other Witnesses Testify in the Famous Case.

NEW YORK, Sept. 20.—In the Ives case, the testimony offered for the young financier was remarkably strong, and the opinion was freely offered that a disagreement is likely to result. The proceedings began at 11 a. m., when Lawyer Charles W. Brooke opened for the defense. He said:

Lawyer Brooke's Speech.

"It is proper that in opening I should inform you concerning the issue of information that counsel for the defense. You have been sworn to try a single issue, and such will the court instruct. Only the fraudulent issue is of the slightest importance.

"The question is whether Henry S. Ives did, upon the testimony, on the 19th of June, 1886, with intent to defraud, issue, without being authorized so to do, 6,000 shares of stock of the Cincinnati, Hamilton and Dayton road. Now you will bear in mind that all depends upon E. Wilson Woodruff. If you disbelieve his testimony you would have to render a verdict of acquittal."

Edgar M. Johnson's Testimony.

The defense then brought forward as their first witness Edgar M. Johnson, ex-Governor Hoadly's law partner. He is an old acquaintance of Mr. Woodruff, of the C. H. and D. road. In June, 1886, he testified, his firm became counsel for that railroad. He described the litigation which resulted in the Ives trust, by which Ives gained control of the railroad.

He said that Ives' share of the stock gave him control of about 27,000 or 28,000 votes. A large number of certificates were transferred Ives against him, and when the latter got control of the road Short expected to be removed. At Johnson's request Ives made Short president, and Johnson and Hoadly secretary. Soon after this Short said to Johnson: "By the way, now that you are general counsel of the road, I want to know what I shall do? I have issued many certificates ahead. What shall I do? I don't want to destroy or cantilate them." Witness assured Short that it was all right; that the certificates were proper. Ives would never do anything wrong.

Ex-Governor Hoadly Testifies.

Ex-Governor George Hoadly was the next witness called. He said that short told him that he had signed a number of certificates ahead, and feared he would get into trouble in consequence.

"Mr. Short has testified that he had asked your advice whether he should not sign certificates ahead in blank for Stayner?"

"No, sir. He never asked my advice on any such subject," said Hoadly.

George H. Stayner told of the meeting between Ives, Woodruff and his father on the evening when the initials of Millionaire Mayer E. Sanders were forged. He was not present in his presence during his stay, except during one minute and a quarter. His father almost created a scene in ordering Ives out of the house, saying that he did not favor such a man in his daughter's society.

CLEVELAND ON THE TARIFF.

His Advice to Timid Democrats—"Party Honesty is Party Expediency."

NEW YORK, Sept. 20.—A reporter for The Commercial Advertiser having asked ex-President Cleveland for his opinion on the action of several recent Democratic state conventions in dodging the tariff reform plank of the last national Democratic convention, Mr. Cleveland expressed himself as much pleased with these evidences that the attitude of the Democratic party on this question was still courageous, consistent and [illegible]. He thought that the careful ex[illegible] of the tariff question by the people [illegible] to the triumph of the Dem[illegible]y's view of the subject.

PLAINFIELD EVENING NEWS
NEWSPAPER OF PLAINFIELD AND VICINITY, IS PUBLISHED AT 4:30 O'CLOCK EVERY AFTERNOON, AT NO. 21 SOMERSET STREET.

S. W. MORRISON, EDITOR AND PROPRIETOR.

IS DELIVERED BY CARRIERS TO ALL PARTS OF THE CITY AT TEN CENTS A WEEK, 25c. IF PAID IN ADVANCE, AT $5.00 PER YEAR.

To congress: Next time you meet, whether in October or December, talk less and do more.

It is unfortunate that Gen. Grant could not have left behind him dead bodies enough to go around to all the places that are contending for his bones.

Let us rejoice, without distinction of race, sex or previous condition of servitude. The oyster season is going to be the richest and fattest one in seven years, and the months without an R are already well behind us.

There is nobody alive who can put more wisdom into a few words than Gen. Sherman can. This is one thing that he told the Grand Army boys at Milwaukee: "Keep young as long as you can, and do not go into a soldiers' home if you can help it."

Our Railroads.

The United States now possesses nearly half the railway mileage of the world. At the end of 1888 we had 156,082 miles of railroad. The only pity about it is that these miles are not all paying ones they ought to be. Too many parallel roads have been built for the purpose of exacting blackmail from a rival, for that is what the construction of one road parallel to another too often means.

Our railroads, directly and indirectly, give sustenance to one-eighth of the whole population of the country. For sixty years the average increase in lines built has been 2,500 miles a year. Last year the net earnings of the roads fell off 10 per cent. The showing will be better this year. Finally, here are the biggest figures of all: The funded debt of all our railway lines is $4,186,943,116.

Monument to Isabella.

A movement has been inaugurated by the women of Illinois which is so altogether praiseworthy that the wonder is somebody did not propose it long ago, Catharine V. Waite, Dr. Julia Holmes Smith and Dr. Fanny Dickinson are a committee incorporated to procure subscriptions and superintend the construction of a monument to Isabella, the pious and clever queen who sold her jewels to fit out the ships in which Columbus sailed to discover America. Dull fomine Hettil women is probably the only person in all Europe who had brains enough to appreciate the value of Columbus' ideas, they say. Therefore, good Queen Isabella of Spain shall have in this country, which is so kind to women, a beautiful monument to be unveiled in 1892. It seems peculiarly graceful and fitting that women should build the statue. Let the movement be made a national one and take in all the women of America.

The Great London Strike.

A month ago the laborers on the London docks knocked off work and refused to resume it unless they were paid twelve cents an hour. They had been working for ten cents an hour at the hardest labor men could take hold of.

The movement of the dock men resulted in the greatest labor strike of modern times. Other workingmen of kindred trades joined the dock men, in London and elsewhere, till there were altogether 150,000 laborers idle. This involved the going hungry of more than half a million people, unless they had outside aid. This they had for weeks from trades organizations and friends, and it cost $10,000 a day to feed them.

The list of the laborers was so hard, and the strike was kept within bounds of law and order to such a degree, that the sympathies of everybody except the dock owners were with the men. Their good behavior was owing to their own common sense and the consummate wisdom and power of their leader, John Burns. He is 35 years old, a man of magnificent physique and strength, an engineer by trade, and a born leader of men, as he has shown. It is to be noted that the first blood in the great strike was shed by policemen themselves. They fired on and mortally wounded a striker who, with his mates, was preventing outsiders from taking up their work.

The London docks are the largest and most famous in the world. It is said that $100,000,000 have been expended on them. The oldest dates back to 1805. There are some eight or ten of the principal ones, the largest being the immense Royal docks. It has three miles of water way and a solid mile of iron warehouses. To build it required the labor of 3,000 men from 1875 till the summer of 1880, when the dock was formally opened with splendid ceremonies. Railway cars pass over it and load and unload at the steamers' sides.

The influence of the great strike was felt everywhere. It affected all countries. Commerce was paralyzed, looms were stopped for lack of cotton, and shops shut down for want of coal. The price of sugar, coal and many other commodities at once advanced. Six thousand tons of meat and millions of pounds of fruit lay rotting in the Thames at one time. So intimately are mankind bound together that 30,000 men can thus affect the whole world.

QUEBEC'S HORROR.

A Great Landslide Descends on Thirty Tenements.

SCORES OF PEOPLE CRUSHED.

Seven Dead Bodies Taken from the Ruins,

And Fifty More Unfortunates Are Reported Buried Beneath the Debris.

Tons of Rock Slip Down from Quebec's Historic Citadel with Frightful Results—Five Adds to the Horror of the Scene—The Military, Police and Fire Department All Working Like Beavers at the Debris—Pitiful Cries for Assistance.

QUEBEC, Sept. 20.—A landslide occurred from the face of Cape Diamond, below the citadel, at 7:30 p. m., crushing the houses beneath it and imprisoning the inmates below. The debris was piled to a height in some cases of twenty to thirty feet over the house which were standing below.

Warnings Disregarded.

The extent of the disaster is likely, from present indications, to fall but little short of that which occurred on nearly the same spot on May 21, 1841, when eight buildings were destroyed and thirty-two persons killed. In 1853 several others were killed half a mile further up the street by a similar avalanche of rock; still the warnings were disregarded and people continued to build and to take up their habitations immediately below the overhanging masses of rock that juts out from the front of the cape and in the narrow street that bears the name of Quebec's founder and that occupies all the space that remains between the cliff and river, save the wharves.

A Terrible Landslide.

Two fearful rains and flood succeeding a month of dry weather filled the crevices of the soil immediately below and beyond the southern extremity of Dufferin terrace, and at 7:30 this enormous mass was detached from the cliff and hurled as with the noise of many thunders, slowly and majestically at first, but rapidly increasing in momentum through its slide of a couple of hundred feet, over the retaining wall, pushing half a dozen houses out of its way and crushing most of them beneath its weight as though they had been so many paper boxes.

Paralyzed by Fear.

Some of those who saw the slide were standing at the doors of their houses, and were too paralyzed with fear to move. Others ran to a place of safety, among them John Berrigan, Patrick Meehan and Patrick O'Neill.

Debris Thirty Feet High.

The debris of rock filled up the narrow street to a depth of some thirty feet and cut off all communication between the portions of the city north and south of it. On the wharves behind where the houses had stood, scattered timbers and the earth and rock that partly covered them were mingled with huge piles of stone that left little passageway between them and the river.

Police, Firemen and Military at Work.

The river policemen, whose station is close by, and the city police from Champlain market were among the first to rush to the relief of the imprisoned, the wounded and the dying sufferers. As soon as an idea was obtained of the extent of the disaster the whole force of municipal police was turned out to render assistance, and Chief Colonel Vohl applied to H Battery at the citadel for assistance. A strong force of the military, under Command of Maj. Wilson, turned out to aid in the removal of the debris.

Fire Adds to the Horror.

Fire broke out almost immediately in some of the ruins, but the brigade, when summoned, soon extinguished the flames and set to work to assist in the search for the dead and dying. So far as can be ascertained amid the existing confusion the house destroyed contained over thirty tenements, bearing the numbers from 129 to 150.

Frantic Cries for Help.

It was at once evident that considerable loss of life must have occurred, for some of the buildings were completely buried beneath a fearful mass of rock and earth, though willing workers set out to remove this debris. The first assistance was naturally given to the imprisoned living, some of whom could be seen pinned by rocks or broken timbers, while the frantic cries for help could often be heard of others who were buried out of sight.

Fifty Persons Still Buried.

The dead bodies that were recovered up to this time were those of Thomas Farrell and his two children, one child of Jeanne Bedlet, two children of Stephen Burke, and Mrs. Bergan's. It is supposed that at least fifty persons are yet under the ruins. Cries of rocks are falling, and it is feared the whole border forming the highest point of Quebec will give way.

Ramblers to Leave the League.

BUFFALO, Sept. 20.—The delegates from the Rambler Bicycle club, of this city, have returned from the meeting of the Atlantic division of the L. A. W. at Brooklyn very indignant. They say they were entitled to one delegate to the national assembly and were so promised, but Brooklyn and New York by a clever subterfuge, got two-thirds of the delegates and the Ramblers got left. It is quite probable that the Ramblers' club will leave the L. A. W. in a body. The Rambler's annual contribution to the league amounts to about $300.

Brooklyn Not to Enter the League.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 20.—President Byrne says the Brooklyns have taken no steps toward admission to the league. Their relations with the association had been agreeable until recently, and were not yet so disagreeable as to lead them to seek a change. He regretted the causes of irritation to be amicably removed.

A Hotel Man Decamps.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Sept. 20.—Felix Doherty, the former proprietor of the Windsor hotel, has decamped, leaving creditors in the lurch to the amount of $1,500. Doherty is said to have made no move on the strength of a rumor that he had fallen heir to the estate of a rich uncle and to have raised money on the paper.

A Heavy Gale at Highland Light.

HIGHLAND LIGHT, Mass., Sept. 20.—A heavy northwest gale, with rain, has prevailed since yesterday, fishing boats have had a bad time. One life was lost at Truro and there were many narrow escapes.

ELMIRA'S BIG FAIR.

Duncan C. Ross Knocks Sergt. Walsh from the Saddle.

ELMIRA, N. Y., Sept. 20.—The weather for the fourth day of the interstate fair was not quite pleasant as the previous days, except that there was less rain. A chilly northwest wind prevailed during the day, but 10,000 people were on the grounds. In the trotting there was a broadcloth contest between Duncan C. Ross, Capt. Daly and Sergt. Walsh. This contest proved to be more of a fight in earnest than was anticipated. Ross received a cut in his left arm, and immediately made a stroke at Walsh's head. Walsh was knocked from his horse insensible and remained unconscious for several minutes. He was carried to his hotel in a very weak condition, but has recovered considerably, and is out of danger.

Governor Hill, of New York, Governor Beaver and Lieutenant Governor Davies, of Pennsylvania, are the guests of the fair association today.

Henry Villard Criticised.

NEW YORK, Sept. 20.—At the regular meeting of the Northern Pacific railroad directors there was some criticism of Henry Villard's action in publishing a request for proxies and defining the objects to which the funds to be raised by the proposed $100,000,000 mortgage are to be applied. Mr. Villard disclaimed any disrespect for the board and said he would withdraw the publication. The directors then adjourned for several minutes for the purpose of considering the purposes of the new bonds. These differ considerably from those named by Mr. Villard. For instance only $60,000,000 are to be used in purchase of bonds, and the amount set aside for dividends on preferred stock is left open for the consideration of a special committee. In fact, the whole question whether the preferred stockholders will get anything. The directors said after adjournment that it would require complete unity in the board to obtain the required three-fourths' vote of the preferred stockholders in favor of the new mortgage.

Man and Wife Shot Dead.

WYMSON, Ont., Sept. 20.—About 11 a. m. a man and woman were found dead in Dougall's nursery, where they had been seen entering at 9 o'clock. Each had a bullet wound through the heart and the man had a gaping bullet hole in his forehead from which the blood was oozing. Papers found on George H. showed him to be Silas Desmore, of Rushville, Ind., and the woman was probably his wife. A revolver with two chambers empty was found near the bodies. The body of George was in the vicinity as if some one had taken hold of it with both hands and pulled it convulsively, but no other traces of a struggle of any sort were found. Apparently the dead people contained only three cents in money and a few unimportant papers. The man was supposedly 37 and the woman about 30 years old.

Women Will Vote in Wyoming.

CHEYENNE, Wy. T., Sept. 20.—The Statehood convention adopted as part of the constitution a woman's chapter. Female citizens are to vote. The usual qualifications are requirements that all electors shall be able to read English, shall be full fledged citizens, and have had six months' residence in Wyoming. Much opposition was opposed vigorously by a couple of corporation attorneys. Ballots to contain the names of all candidates will be issued by state officers. The provision will disfranchise a number of colored miners, who have for years voted in bulk.

Spain Preparing for War.

MADRID, Sept. 20.—The Spanish government has ordered a fleet of war vessels to Morocco to demand the release of the captain, four sailors and one passenger of the Spanish vessel captured by natives off the coast of Morocco. It is said the fleet carries that 10,000 men be held in readiness to embark for Morocco at a moment's notice. Although no action has been taken, it is still hoped that the captives may be peacefully surrendered.

Governor Beaver Refused.

WILLIAMSPORT, Pa., Sept. 20.—Governor Beaver has declined to appoint a representative from the West Branch valley on the State Fiood commission to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Judge Cummins for the reason that the labors of the commission are very nearly finished, and that the state will therefore receive no more financial help from the balance of money now at the disposition of the commission.

O'Brien Men Dropped.

NEW YORK, Sept. 20.—The Republican county committee's committee to reorganize the Eighth Assembly district in place of J. O'Brien's district, have stricken from the rolls the names of about 1,000 O'Brien men, including "Silver Dollar" Smith, Alderman Martin Engel, George J. Kraus and the other "workers." The O'Brien men laugh at the committee's action, and say it is a case of the tail trying to wag the dog, as there are only about 300 names left on the roll.

Yacht Racing at Newport.

NEWPORT, R. I., Sept. 20.—The first two of the special yacht races were sailed here. There was plenty of wind and the conditions were excellent. The Titania won the $350 Morgan cup. There was no second prize, as there were not four entries. The Gorilla won the $150 Morgan cup, the Papoose getting second prize.

Another Body from the Lee.

CLEVELAND, Sept. 20.—The body of S. E. Knight, another of the passengers on the lee yacht Leo, which left Lorain for Cleveland on Sunday afternoon, and which was wrecked by the explosion of her boiler, was washed ashore about noon. Four bodies have now been recovered. Five are still missing.

California Means to Visit Washington.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 20.—About 200 members of the Golden Gate commandery, Knights Templar, will leave here on a special train Sept. 30 to attend the triennial conclave in Washington. The members of the California commandery leave Oct. 1, and the Oakland commandery go about the same time.

Their Matrimonial Scheme Failed.

WILLIAMSPORT, Pa., Sept. 20.—Seymour Hitchcock, the Mandville man who, with his wife, confessed to a scheme to swindle western farmers by a tempting matrimonial bait, has been convicted here in the United States court of using of the mails to defraud. His wife was acquitted.

Blind Favors the Triple Alliance.

ROME, Sept. 20.—Karl Blind, the well known Socialist, has written a letter to Signor Bovio in which he declares that the maintenance of the triple alliance is absolutely necessary for the peace of Europe, and constitutes the real safeguard of Italian unity.

Sixteen Years for Thirteen Cents.

NEW YORK, Sept. 20.—Henry Fitzgerald, who was convicted in the general sessions of robbing a man of thirteen cents and robbed him of thirteen cents, was sentenced to sixteen years' imprisonment at hard labor.

TWO YEARS FOR ASSAULT

Mrs. Hamilton Found Guilty by the Jury.

HOW SHE BORE THE SENTENCE

The Judge's Charge to the Jury Said to Have Been Absolutely Fair—Hamilton Was Not in Court When Sentence Was Pronounced.

MAY'S LANDING, N. J., Sept. 20.—At the opening of the Hamilton case the court room was crowded, but the large assemblage of spectators were doomed to disappointment. Hamilton sent down word that she desired to waive an appearance, as she was too badly prostrated from the effects of the previous day's excitement to appear. The reaction from the effects of the large amount of opium which she had taken to sustain her during the ordeal had set in, and she was a nervous wreck. Another notice able thing was the absence of all the actors who have hitherto played so important a part in this domestic drama, as neither Mr. Hamilton, Edward Vollmer, Mrs. Rapp, the proprietress of Noll cottage, or Miss Donnelly put in an appearance. Not one of this quartet are in May's Landing, and the female curiosity seekers looked and gazed in vain.

Capt. Perry's Argument.

The jury being in their seats, court was promptly opened, and Capt. Perry began his argument. He said he hoped the jurors would frame their verdict according to the testimony, independent of newspaper reports or other influences. He closely reviewed the testimony which had been given, and showed very clearly that Mary Ann Donnelly, the nurse, was the first aggressor and that she forced Mrs. Hamilton to pick up the knife in self defense. She had threatened to kill her mistress, she was hot tempered and frenzied with brandy, and she assailed Mrs. Hamilton with murderous intent.

Prosecutor's Address.

Prosecutor Thompson began his argument, in which he dwelt upon the testimony given the day before, especially that of Mrs. Hamilton, and could not see where any doubt could be entertained as to the cause of the cutting. He stated that it was an atrocious assault and could not be changed to a lesser degree. The testimony of all the witnesses of the direct cutting open to the jury and appealed to them to consider that and not the former relations of the nurse or the family quarrels between the wife.

The Judge's Charge.

The afternoon session began at 1:30 o'clock, and Judge Reed charged the jury. The judge explicitly informed them that this was not a quarrel between two passionate women but a deadly fight, that they were to decide whether she had acted in self defense or what she had used her weapon for a deadly purpose. It is for you to decide from the testimony given whether Mrs. Hamilton was justified in using the knife or not. Give her the benefit of any reasonable doubt.

The charge lasted one-quarter of an hour, and at 2 o'clock the jury retired to the upper chamber under the charge of Constable Bowen. At 3:30 o'clock Mrs. Hamilton was found guilty, the maximum penalty of the offense under the crimes act of New Jersey was ten years in state prison or $1,000 fine, or both, at the discretion of the court.

The Charge Against the Defendant.

When the court adjourned the morning session at 11:30 it was generally believed that the jury would be out but a short time, acquittal, or there would be a disagreement, but when Judge Reed delivered his charge to the jury it was decidedly against the prisoner, and it was thought that it would have had its effect. At 3 p. m., just one hour after going out, the jury filed into the court room again, and every one scanned their faces as if to learn the fate of the unfortunate woman.

Guilty as Indicted.

The judge ordered the prisoner to be brought into court. She was dressed in a neat dark suit and dark hat, and was nervously pulling on a pair of gloves when she entered. She looked pale and careworn. After being seated the clerk asked the jury if they had arrived at a decision. Immediately everything was quiet, and Foreman Reeves replied: "We have. We find the prisoner guilty as indicted."

How Eva Received the Sentence.

Mrs. Hamilton was whispering to her counsel at the time, and as she heard the verdict announced, stared and gasped, but in a second recovered herself and gave no other sign of emotion. The jury was polled, and each responded in his name as called. Judge Reed waited a few moments, as if to give the prisoner's counsel time to make a motion for a new trial, but no such motion being made, the judge, in a cold, hard voice, said:

"Evangeline Hamilton, stand up," and thereupon sentenced the prisoner to two years in the penitentiary. In pronouncing sentence Judge Reed said to the prisoner: "You have been convicted of atrocious assault, but we have taken into consideration the condition of the nurse, and we give you a lenient sentence of two years in the state prison."

How the Jury First Stood.

It was learned after court was dismissed that the jury stood eleven for conviction and one for acquittal on the first ballot. Charles Whippy, of Atlantic City, was the one in favor of acquittal. He was subsequently won to agree with the others, however, and thus ends the celebrated Hamilton case.

A Big Suit Against the Erie.

NEW YORK, Sept. 20.—A suit has been begun in this city against the Erie railroad by Messrs. Andrews, Langdon & Co., the amount claimed being $1,000,000. Messrs. Langdon & Co. are the largest shippers of anthracite coal on the Erie railroad, charge that owing to the unjust discrimination by the Erie road in favor of the Delaware and Hudson Canal company, the Hillside Coal and Iron company and the Pennsylvania Coal company, their business in common with other individual coal producers on the Erie has suffered considerably.

The Suit Over Howard J. Settled.

ELMIRA, N. Y., Sept. 20.—The celebrated suit over Howard J. Jay, who was found insane by Benjamin Troop, of Scranton, Pa., the defendant, paid $10,000 in cash to Benjamin Herrick, and the suit, which has been pending in the United States courts, is to be withdrawn. The case has been running for seven or eight years, and the costs amount to nearly $15,000. It has been a famous case among horsemen.

Thanking Confederate Veterans.

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., Sept. 20.—Gen. Rosecrans was re-elected president of the Society of the Army of the Cumberland. Toledo, O., will be the next place of meeting and Sept. 17 and 18, 1890, the time. The question of monument to Gens. Thomas and Sheridan was considered. The Confederate veterans were thanked for courtesies.

A GIDDY SAMOAN PRINCESS.

She Leaves a Dime Museum to Elope with a Chicago Widower.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Sept. 20.—Monday morning a company of natives of the Samoan islands opened an engagement at the Dime museum. The party consisted of a chief, one woman and one child. The woman was comely looking, about 22 or 23 years of age, and claimed to be related to King Malietoa of the Samoan islands. She gave out that she was a princess of the royal line and that her name was Silantie.

At the time the king was deposed by the German consul at Apia the princess had to be educated. There she remained until about three weeks ago, when she was engaged by an agent to go with some other natives on an exhibition tour through the country. Soon afterward she opened in Chicago. While there an American by the name of J. S. Cotterell fell violently in love with her, followed her to this city and proposed marriage to her. The couple are supposed to have gone to San Francisco, as the princess has been desirous of returning to her native land since Malietoa's resumption of authority.

Doings of the Old Fellows.

COLUMBUS, O., Sept. 20.—The Sovereign Grand Lodge of Odd Fellows devoted the day's session to discussing the changing of memorial day for subordinate lodges from Oct. 9 to the second Friday in June. [illegible] member from Kansas introduced a resolution reducing the age of [illegible] from 21 to 18, which will bring the [illegible] up in the Grand next year. The Ora. lodge for the first time recognized Patriarchs Militant, and complimented Grand Patriarch Underwood on the appearance of the members. The prize drills of the Patriarchs Militant took place at the state fair ground later. The Daughters of Rebekah completed their constitution and their organization will hereafter be known as the Sovereign Convention of the Daughters of Rebekah, I. O. O. F.

Grateful Philadelphians.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 20.—A number of citizens held a conference at the mayor's office and decided to present to the new government cruiser Philadelphia a comprehensive library for the use of those who may be assigned to duty on the cruiser. The proposed gift is to show the appreciation of the citizens of having the vessel named after the city. Mayor Fitler appointed the following named gentlemen, among others, on the finance committee: George W. Childs, A. J. Drexel, Joseph Wharton, Thomas Dolan, Henry Lewis, Hamilton Disston, William M. Singerly, Austin Corbin, George B. Roberts and C. A. Griscom. Mayor Fitler is chairman.

Killed by a Fire Escape.

ALBANY, Sept. 20.—John Toohey, an employe on the capitol, who resides at 196 Canal street, met with instant death while testing a fire escape invented by Mr. Fowler, now facing the capitol yard. It had been placed in position and then tested by Arnold Wyman, agent of the O. R. Barber Fire Escape company. After Wyman had come down successfully from the fourth story Toohey attempted to do the same. He came down to the second floor with some difficulty, when the rope, which had been cut nearly in two by sharp capstones, parted, and he fell forty feet, striking on his head. Toohey leaves a widow and five children.

Fatal Interference with a Fight.

LANCASTER, Pa., Sept. 20.—Edward Gisler, a shoemaker of Bareville, was found unconscious on the public highway below Millport, suffering from injuries which resulted later in his death. Gisler had been a witness of a quarrel early in the evening, and, passing a remark on it, was attacked by the parties assaulted. He left and started for home, but never reached there. No arrests have been made.

Bought by the Reading Company.

READING, Pa., Sept. 20.—The two anthracite blast furnaces of the Keystone Furnace company, which recently failed, have been sold to the Reading Iron company for $100, subject to a mortgage of $175,000. This gives the Reading Iron company control of four furnaces, leaving but two outside. In two weeks all four furnaces will be in blast.

HIS FIGHT FOR FREEDOM.

Financier Henry S. Ives Commences His Defense.

A DISAGREEMENT LOOKED FOR.

Lawyer Brooke's Address to the Jury.

Ex-Governor Hoadly Takes the Stand for the Defense—Stayner and Other Witnesses Testify in the Famous Case.

NEW YORK, Sept. 20.—In the Ives case, the testimony offered for the young financier was remarkably strong, and the opinion was freely offered that a disagreement is likely to result. The proceedings began at 11 a. m., when Lawyer Charles W. Brooke opened for the defense. He said:

Lawyer Brooke's Speech.

"It is proper that in opening I should inform you concerning the issue of information that counsel for the defense. You have been sworn to try a single issue, and such will the court instruct. Only the fraudulent issue is of the slightest importance.

"The question is whether Henry S. Ives did, upon the testimony, on the 19th of June, 1886, with intent to defraud, issue, without being authorized so to do, 6,000 shares of stock of the Cincinnati, Hamilton and Dayton road. Now you will bear in mind that all depends upon E. Wilson Woodruff. If you disbelieve his testimony you would have to render a verdict of acquittal."

Edgar M. Johnson's Testimony.

The defense then brought forward as their first witness Edgar M. Johnson, ex-Governor Hoadly's law partner. He is an old acquaintance of Mr. Woodruff, of the C. H. and D. road. In June, 1886, he testified, his firm became counsel for that railroad. He described the litigation which resulted in the Ives trust, by which Ives gained control of the railroad.

He said that Ives' share of the stock gave him control of about 27,000 or 28,000 votes. A large number of certificates were transferred Ives against him, and when the latter got control of the road Short expected to be removed. At Johnson's request Ives made Short president, and Johnson and Hoadly secretary. Soon after this Short said to Johnson: "By the way, now that you are general counsel of the road, I want to know what I shall do? I have issued many certificates ahead. What shall I do? I don't want to destroy or cantilate them." Witness assured Short that it was all right; that the certificates were proper. Ives would never do anything wrong.

Ex-Governor Hoadly Testifies.

Ex-Governor George Hoadly was the next witness called. He said that short told him that he had signed a number of certificates ahead, and feared he would get into trouble in consequence.

"Mr. Short has testified that he had asked your advice whether he should not sign certificates ahead in blank for Stayner?"

"No, sir. He never asked my advice on any such subject," said Hoadly.

George H. Stayner told of the meeting between Ives, Woodruff and his father on the evening when the initials of Millionaire Mayer E. Sanders were forged. He was not present in his presence during his stay, except during one minute and a quarter. His father almost created a scene in ordering Ives out of the house, saying that he did not favor such a man in his daughter's society.

CLEVELAND ON THE TARIFF.

His Advice to Timid Democrats—"Party Honesty is Party Expediency."

NEW YORK, Sept. 20.—A reporter for The Commercial Advertiser having asked ex-President Cleveland for his opinion on the action of several recent Democratic state conventions in dodging the tariff reform plank of the last national Democratic convention, Mr. Cleveland expressed himself as much pleased with these evidences that the attitude of the Democratic party on this question was still courageous, consistent and [illegible]. ## JOTTINGS.

—Days of 1889 past, 264; days to come, 101.

—To-day and to-night are of equal length.

—The Thanksgiving turkey is now tenderly cared for.

—A Picnics and straw hats have gone where the "woodbine twineth".

—Frederick Warde, the tragedian, will be at the Music Hall Tuesday night.

—Whole cloves, scattered through a trunk or packing box, will keep out moths.

—VanEmburgh & White have something new to say that will interest the ladies.

—The sun is evidently not master. The clouds have the supremacy pretty nearly all the time.

—It isn't wise to laugh at the ignorance of others. There are some things that even you don't know.

—A number of colored people of this city enjoyed a full dress ice table in T. A. B. Hall Thursday night.

—Out of every 100 men, statisticians say, only three are successful. Are you one of the three? If not, why?

—James Jones, a beakeman on the gravel train, had his right hand mashed Thursday while coupling cars at Dunellen.

—It is expected that a number of the Plainfield firemen will attend the parade of the Bayonne fire department on the 24 inst.

—The Exempt Firemen's Association of this city are arranging for their annual fair which is to be held some time in October.

—The plans for the new railroad station at Bonnet Island completed. In this new building will be something like the Plainfield station.

—Special attention is called to Werner's timely announcement in another column, in the line of clothing, hats, neckwear and men's furnishing goods.

—Messrs. Reed & O'Connor, of Plainfield, are digging a well for Henry Mallet on Mountain avenue, Scotch Plains. They expect to go to the depth of 125 feet.

—Mrs. Matilda G. Stryker (nee Tingley) of Plainfield, has been granted a divorce from Wm. H. Stryker, who is ordered to pay her $4 a week alimony and $50 counsel fee.

—R. H. Platt and John Allen, of New York, who passed through Plainfield about four months ago on a tramp on route to California, have reached the Golden Gate. From there they will go to Australia.

—An umbrella with a detachable handle is made for gentlemen with short memories. Every time the umbrella is laid down the handle is taken off and put in the pocket of the owner. No one would get off a car leaving an umbrella without a handle.—Newark Journal.

—It is estimated that there are at the present time at least 5,000 building associations in the United States, with a membership of 600,000. Pennsylvania has about 900; Ohio 900; Illinois 600; New York 300; Indiana 325; New Jersey 175; Kentucky 150; and some will be found in every State and Territory.

—It is an Ohio man who now makes a curious discovery. He says if you go out to find a flock of chickens and keep them waiting they will first flock about you and then begin a circuit around you from right to left, and that no amount of countermarching or manœuvring will confuse or turn them in another direction.

—Every growing, ambitious town is composed of three elements—those who work patriotically, vigorously and intelligently for its advancement, those who are a dead weight against its progress, and those who take a curious delight in discouraging the efforts of others by ridicule, by a persistent denial that any progress can or has been accomplished, and by boasting of every other town besides their own. The first three are called citizens; but the fourth really something worse, for their opposition does not arise simply from despondency, but from that inevitable spirit which will neither act itself nor suffer others to act.

THE STREET RAILWAY MEETING.

Mr. Daft Explaining his System.

In consequence of the storm there was a very small attendance at the Electric Railway meeting last night. Mr. Daft availed himself of the opportunity afforded to explain to those present a few of the peculiar and valuable features of the system proposed for Plainfield. Electric street railways are so much superior to all other street railway systems that no explanation seemed necessary. Electric railways are being adopted in preference to the leading cities in this country and Europe. Mr. Daft has undoubtedly the best of electric systems, and those meetings are intended to demonstrate that fact, although, as stated, the seems unnecessary, since no one appears to question either the claim that Plainfield will have the best, or that Mr. Daft's storage system is the best. He has demonstrated the practical advantages of his cars by operating them here, and the Daft Electric Railways in successful operation for years in several leading cities, including San Francisco and Baltimore, have removed all doubt as to their reliability, if any ever existed. When Mr. Daft gives his word that the system he proposes for Plainfield embodies the latest and best improvements, and the products of his genius are so well endorsed, the people don't ask for any more explanation, but wish to see the work on the new road in operation before cold weather sets in. Common Council stands ready to give Mr. Daft the franchise, and the people are virtually unanimous in favor of his railway. There is no question but that it will be well supported, and we do not understand why there is so much delay.

KICKED BY A HORSE.

Fourteen-Year-Old Lulu Foddie Painfully Injured.

Lulu Foddie, a fourteen-year-old girl residing at Westfield, met with a painful accident yesterday morning about 11 o'clock. She was out driving with her grandfather Mr. Stitt, and while standing on Broad street, behind the horse, which was hitched too close to the wagon, struck its head against the window, causing the latter to break. Before the little girl could get out of the way, she was struck in the face by one of the animal's feet and an ugly gash inflicted. Dr. Chandler who was immediately called took five stitches in the wound.

PERSONAL.

The Rev. Cornelius Schenck and wife have returned from their European trip.

Mr. S. P. Tallman, of Dunellen, was this week granted a patent on a stock car.

Mr. J. N. Jenkins, of 1088 Sixth street, has with him his brother-in-law, who is engaged moving a large house. He writes that it rains continually there and that he expects to be absent for several months.

The Rev. K. P. Ketchen, pastor of the First Presbyterian church is home again from Beach Haven and will occupy the pulpit to-morrow. He has spent the time there very pleasant there this week and that traces of the late tempest are now gone.

Their Visit Postponed.

The private cavalry company, which was to have gone into camp on the grounds of the Gentleman's Driving Park on Park avenue yesterday, have on account of the inclemency of the weather deferred their visit to Plainfield until Oct. 4th. They will then spend the whole week in this city. It is expected that Gov. Green, of New Jersey, and Gov. Hill, of New York, will review them on the 5th. Mr. John A. Holly, of this city, is an officer in the company.

Watson Furnished $500 Bail.

Michael F. Watson, the man who was arrested yesterday afternoon by Chief Tunis J. Carey, on four charges of selling liquor illegally, was released from jail this afternoon, bailed by his father-in-law, James McFadden, of West Fourth street. Watson will be tried on the first charge Monday afternoon at two o'clock.

Falling Leaves.

We notice that many shade trees about town have commenced shedding their leaves. It is said that the leaves are falling much earlier than usual, and the extremely wet weather during the season is thought to be accountable for it.

WESTFIELD WHISPERS.

Interesting Items Concerning Plainfield's Neighbors.

[From The Union County Standard.]

A. B. Allen and daughter, of Toms River, will take up their residence in Westfield on or about the 1st of October.

The railroad company has lately improved the park at the depot on the South side, by laying iron pipe and opening ditches, thereby preventing water from standing in or about the park.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Ward celebrated the second anniversary of their wedding Wednesday evening, when the new house could be seen. Many friends were present and the gifts were both numerous, beautiful and costly.

The annual business meeting of the Baptist church was held Wednesday evening. The reports of the various committees were presented and nothing to show for the present condition of the church's affairs. The financial report was decidedly encouraging. The officers elected for the ensuing year are as follows: C. P. Conant, T. H. Love, A. P. Grant, J. Rowland, J. R. Gardner, C. H. Frederick and A. J. Miller.

Fanwood Items.

Mr. Sarah I. Kyte has returned from Asbury Park.

Mrs. A. B. Anderson is back from Pennsylvania.

The lady of Fanwood held a drive whist party at Mrs. G. K. Moore's Thursday evening.

W. S. Schmidt, of the Central New Jersey Land company, spent the Sunday with Col. G. K. Moore.

Preparations are being made to lay the water pipe under the railroad tracks at Fanwood in accordance of the contract of the road.

There is some more high water in the mountain streams. Heavy rain falls eight days out of the last ten, in this vicinity, succeeding the rain.

At the club Saturday evening, the members engaged in a bowling contest. Miss Herbert Smith and A. P. Seymour having the best scores, carried home the beautiful prizes.

—Summer ends astronomically to-day.

—We publish to-day the fourth installment of the laws of New Jersey passed by the last Legislature.

How to Stop a Runaway.

A policeman who has distinguished himself in stopping runaway horses, gives the following points so as to accomplish that end with the greatest success: "When you see a runaway coming do not try to check him by a rush to the opposite direction or the side of the street. Remember that you will be in the collision; but, instead, prepare yourself for a short run with the horse. Measure with your eye the distance, start for the run while he is yet some way off, perhaps ten feet, in case of fair to medium runaways (a little more for a bad one), and run in a straight line, for a really frightened horse is half blind and would not veer for a steam engine. He will go straight ahead until he smashes into something. So do not get close to the line on which he is heading, and as he passes you seize the reins near the saddle. Gather the reins firmly, and then, leaning backward as you run, give them a powerful jerk. You may run a little longer yourself, but as you give this jerk, half sliding on your feet. The strong jerk on the bit tells the horse that he again has control, and he will stop in a final stragle. A step or two forward after the first yank, do it again. The first thing the frightened animal will do when given by a determined man. Keep a firm pull on the reins until you grasp the bit by a hundred feet he will be pacified."—Somerville Unionist-Gazette.

—Jack Frost will soon make his annual call.

—It is not necessary to be a base ballist to catch a cold.

—Contractor Mabon has commenced the work of improving the country road from Elizabeth to Springfield. The grading began Thursday at the Elizabeth city line on Morris avenue, a large force of Italians being employed.

—The Central Railroad are receiving about ninety carloads of new steel rails, which will be used in repairing tracks. Forty carloads were received at Bvona Tuesday. The fourth track is almost completed to Bound Brook and trains will be running over the entire distance in a short time.

—Hon. John Kean received the most votes, exceeding Gen. Grubb. He is one of the most popular young men in New Jersey, and his speech at the Convention on Tuesday, endorsing Gen. Grubb's nomination, was full of fight. He is the coming man in New Jersey politics.—Monmouth Inquirer.

—New Fall and Winter goods of all kinds in the line of Edsall's new advertisement. He says on account of his very large stock and extremely low prices at which he is selling he is anticipating the largest business he has ever done in this city. Buy goods at home and encourage the enterprising homes in our city.

—There were 190 failures in the United States reported to Bradstreet's during the week, against 180 in the proceeding week and 178, 145, 156 and 146 in the corresponding weeks of 1888, 1887, 1886 and 1885 respectively. The total number of failures in the United States January 1st to date is 8,126, against 7,180 in 1888.

COMMUNICATIONS FROM THE PEOPLE

A FORMER PLAINFIELDER OUT WEST.

Rev. Shogwell's Interesting Letter of His Trip Throughout the Western States.

DENVER, Colorado, Aug. 27th, 1889.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE NEWS:—Remembering a promise made my Plainfield friends shortly before my departure West, to write you of my travels, I will now make good that promise, by giving you an account of my trip here. After leaving North Jersey, my first point to stop was at my parents, at the old homestead, in western New York. It is situated in the Genesee Valley, which takes its name from the river that flows some 100 miles through it. It is a valley rich in farming and grazing land. After a pleasant sojourn of a few days, among my old friends and early associates, whom I had not seen for some years, I left for Detroit, Michigan, to visit a brother, who is engaged with the Detroit White Lead Company. I staid there ten days and the time was passed very pleasantly. Detroit is situated on one of the most beautiful streams of water in the country, the Detroit river. And for its attractiveness, its beautiful and shady streets, the fine buildings and its many public parks are the delight of the city, and of all who visit it. It has no superior city in the land. In looking over the city from the top of the City Hall, it has the appearance of a vast forest, so great is the number of shade trees along its streets. I was sorry to leave so desirable and pleasant a place, but, as I was anxious to proceed on my journey, I left for Ohio, to visit another brother at Paulding, who is engaged in the practice of law at that place. I saw I shall tire your patience with too many particulars, and, therefore, will pass Lorain on my trip. At Chicago, I stopped off one day, and made the best use of my time and strength. I visited the Board of Trade, went up to the top of the "Tacoma" building, thirteen stories high, very appropriately called the needle, from its one base and sharp point below and city. I also went to Lincoln Park. It is a delightful resort. Next I visited the Zoological Garden and many of the other interesting features there. The Park is situated on the shore of Lake Michigan, and Kansas City I stopped off another day, and traveled a good deal on the cable cars, of which line of railway it is said to have the greatest number of miles of any city in the world, or at least in our own country. Kansas City, like Rome, is built on the "seven hills," and many more I should judge. It is located on the bluffs along the Missouri river, and its streets are very much broken. In going from the Union depot to the business portion of the city one goes up an inclined railway, over a bluff, some two hundred feet high. The city is full of "Boom, and Saloons". I never saw so many places were intoxicants were sold. On some streets it seemed that every other place was a dram-shop. They tell me "it is owing to Prohibition Kansas, that there are so many saloons in the city." Whiskey comes from Kansas some over the line to fill up. What I afterwards heard and saw in Kansas leads me to believe, that such was not altogether the fact. They could get plenty right at home, and need not take the trouble to go out of the State. In southern Kansas at Wichita, and vicinity, I stopped over a time. Wichita is suffering from the "boom" it had some two years ago. A party then told me of a building that two years ago rented for fifty dollars and now brings only ten dollars per month. It is of course easy to see the trouble. But I can see on every side the result of the "boom". Electric lights and street railways, extending for miles out on the prairie, where there is scarcely a house. Streets for miles laid out in city lots growing up with weeds and tall grass. The city is enjoying a healthy growth. Its vast surroundings of rich and fertile country will insure a steady growth alone. The city, proper, contains many fine streets, and large business blocks. The crops of all kinds in southern Kansas, and in fact throughout the State, are looking well this year and will give to the joy of the farmers. I never saw such a growth of corn, and other grains. To use the western expression "the ground fairly groans under its heavy load." I measured oat stalks there, five feet in height which showed what Kansas is capable of doing with a favorable season.—After leaving the State of Kansas, I went by the Santa Fe Railroad, which follows the Arkansas river, for some two hundred miles. In Eastern Colorado, the country is mostly an arid waste, and is principally covered by a very scanty growth of what is called "Buffalo grass," which scarcely covers the burning sand beneath. Sage brush and wild cactus are also very plentiful. Along the river, cotton wood grows, but out on the prairie, such a tree is to be seen, unless planted by man. Great heards of cattle with now boys attending them are frequently seen. One thing I was impressed with was, how fat the cattle all looked. And it is what one would hardly expect, from the looks of the country. "The prairie dog" is said to be very nutritious. I should say it must be by the looks of the cattle, as it is all they have to feed upon. There is not much done at farming. Occasionally, here and there, small tracts of land are under cultivation. They are watered by irrigating ditches from the streams from the Arkansas river. These ditches are built so as to surround a section of land, which is flooded at times as needed. We passed through a number of small, and unattractive places. Many of them were merely head quarters for cattle men. After one passes over fifty miles, he knows the whole two hundred miles of Eastern Colorado. There is such a sameness in this prairie country. I stopped over at Pueblo, for a few days. This is a city of some 25,000 inhabitants, and is the "Pittsburg" of Colorado. But one of the warmest places I was ever in. One day on the street, while there, the thermometer registered 110° in the shade. The business portion and principal part of the city lies in a hollow. A range of foot hills to the East and the "Rocky Mountains" (so far as named) on the West, shut in the city. The "Range" is the most desirable residence portion. On it are many beautiful homes now being erected. The distance from Pueblo, to Denver, by rail, is 120 miles. The railroad is through a fine country. Denver is the same distance, and the city is known as the "Queen of the Plains." I spent a very close time, while there, on business.

Gleanings from Our Exchanges on Political Topics.

No voter who is a friend of mankind should hesitate in his support of General Grubb, and if he receives the votes of all who conscientiously believe him to be the better man for the place, he will be triumphantly elected Governor.—West Jersey Press.

* * *

Just as Gen. Grubb was nominated, Tuesday and the acclaim made the welkin ring in the hall, a responsive clap of thunder showed that heaven's artillery sympathized in the exultation and rattled the act.—Camden Post.

* * *

Since Marcus L. Ward was nominated for Governor of New Jersey and elected twenty-five years ago there has not been held a Republican convention so fully representing the combined intelligence and earnestness of the party.—Atlantic City Journal.

* * *

In the nomination of General E. Burd Grubb for Governor the convention gave the party a candidate for governor every man who desires honest, competent and intelligent administration can vote. General Grubb will suit all elements of the party, and while he possesses every positive quality, he has also every desirable negative one. He will have a peculiar and powerful strength with the soldiers, the vote he will poll in South Jersey will be a lively surprise. This is not a nomination made to be beaten. Every feature of the convention showed the earnest purpose of the party to make a winning fight this year, and if that same earnestness is shown by the State and local organizations there will be no doubt of success. The Republicans have the advantage in all but the prestige of victory. They have the superior candidate, representing the better interests of the people and the State.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

There are two brewers on the new Democratic State Committee. This was to be expected when one considers that the leader of the party is the counsel for the saloon keepers. —Ex.

Electric Light in Plainfield.

A short time since an electrical expert visited our city and after examining the electrical work in several residences and other buildings, remarked that in his opinion the electric light wiring here which has been done by the Electric Construction and Supply Company was, although not through and complete of any the best ever had the privilege of inspecting and that, considering the very complete electric light station placed here by the Westinghouse Electric Company, he thought that Plainfield might be congratulated upon so fortunate a combination of enterprises—things so fortunately infrequent in most places outside large cities. The reasons for this fortunate combination of enterprises are not difficult to see; first the Westinghouse Company fully accomplished their object in attempting to make a first class electric station in every respect; and, secondly, the Electric Construction and Supply Co., Mr. F. S. Kinnan, Vice President and General Manager, has, no doubt, through his personal influence and interest in this locality, caused the installation of the commendably fine system of electrical workmanship referred to by our recent visitor, and we hope the promotion of Mr. Kinnan to the presidency of the Electric Construction and Supply Co., which has recently occurred, will increase his ability and disposition to continue his commendable efforts.

In commenting on the celebration of the defense of Fort McHenry at Baltimore seventy-five years ago, The New York Sun calls attention to the talk heard in those days that it would be just as easy for the British to sail up Chesapeake bay and burn Washington and attack Baltimore now as it was in 1814.

About Dressed Beef.

There are some mysteries that bid fair to go down through the centuries unsolved. To the mystery of the Man in the Iron Mask we may now add the mystery of American dressed beef.

Cattle raisers testify before the senate committee that is investigating the question that there is no longer any money in rearing cattle. The dressed beef syndicate buy the animals at their own figures, and these figures are 45 per cent. lower than they were eight years ago, so low, in fact, that disgusted ranchmen are going out of the cow business. Beef eaters, on the other hand, swear one and all that they pay just as much for beef now as they did eight years ago. Does the dressed beef syndicate get the profit? They declare with tears in their eyes that they do not. There isn't any profit in the business, and nobody gets any money. Who then does get it? Probably it is the end.

Congressman Sullivan.

The world's champion has declared it to be his doubled and twisted determination to give up prize fighting, and go in for politics strong. He will enter the ring for congress in Boston this fall, he says, and he knows he has friends enough there to elect him, which is probably the case.

He seems, however, to be quite unmindful of his position temporarily in the Mississippi state prison. Perhaps he will have to put off his congressional career for two years, taking that in after serving his time in the other place, making, as it were, a triumphal march from the penitentiary to the house of representatives. Doubtless there have been men in congress who ought to have been in the penitentiary both before and after their terms at the Capitol.

But what a royal sight it would be to see the champion in the national house. The honorable gentlemen would have to be on their manners from the word go, and there wouldn't be any foolishness in the immediate vicinity of the member from Boston. John would keep them straight. In justice to the champion it is to be remarked that he has always felt the germ of growing greatness within him. He said:

"I'm going to quit my business. My mother never liked it. She always meant for me to be a priest."

John has thus compromised between priest and prizefighter, it will be seen, and has consented to be a congressman. But the greatest lark of all would be to see John in one of those states of tremendous unconsciousness into which he occasionally lapses, walk to the other end of the hall and "clean out" the United States senate. There would be nothing for a senator to dodge behind except one of his own manuscript speeches. He might lay John out cold by hitting him with a copy of The Congressional Record.

Among the champion's reasons for believing himself a suitable person to aid in swaying the national destinies are the following:

In the first place I have always supported the party and have always voted for it. I am sound as far as my politics record is concerned, and I feel that I deserve the support of the party on that score.

Any man who doubts my popularity with the American people has only got to travel about with me to get rid of that notion.

Some of the ridiculous propagation is Mr. They don't know what they are talking about. My business is, and always has been, ever since I was a boy, to contend with my fellow physical culture.

There isn't a self respecting American, no matter what tomfool ideas he may have about boxing in general, who does not feel patriotic pride at the thought that I was born American, a downright man of his, can lick any man on the face of the earth.

If I make a promise, I keep it. I have always looked after my friends, and no one can accuse me of not acting fairly by him. A Sunday school teacher can't say more than that.

But what I feel to be more important than all else is the work which I have done to keep up the reputation of American manhood abroad.

A man who can quiet a crowd in Madison Square Garden as I have done can make his presence felt in congress or any where else on earth.

Once he is in our national council, who knows what may follow! Is not the presidency a possibility to every American boy? We beg to offer the Hon. Mr. Sullivan assurances of our distinguished consideration.

GLADSTONE OPPOSES IT.

No Denominational Education for Ireland.

MARQUIS LONDONDERRY'S SPEECH

He Thinks Twenty Years of Coercion Will Subdue Ireland—An Eminent Physician Thinks Jack the Ripper Is a Woman Other Old World News.

LONDON, Sept. 21.—A gentleman whose relations with Mr. Gladstone are of the closest and who is at present visiting the Grand Old Man at Hawarden, writes from there to say that Mr. Gladstone is determined to offer at the coming session of parliament the most uncompromising opposition to the scheme of denominational education for Ireland outlined by Mr. Balfour in the closing hours of the last session, and generally known as the Irish university proposal. While prepared to oppose any measure of this sort, Mr. Gladstone does not expect to precipitate a rupture with the Nationalists. These, he is satisfied will be anything but united in support of Mr. Balfour's scheme, and whatever differences may develop on this subject, it is certain that the interests of the great bulk of the Liberal party and those of the Irish Home Rulers are too closely identified to admit of any serious quarrel.

Parnell and Gladstone in Harmony.

Before leaving England on his trip to Paris recently Mr. Labouchere had a long interview with Mr. Parnell, in which the relations between the Liberals and the Home Rulers were discussed, and in the course of which the Gladstonian university proposal received its share of attention. The two statesmen parted the best of friends and with a thorough understanding on all subjects concerning which differences might have been expected to arise. The Paris correspondent at Hawarden ridicules the suggestion that the Parnellites will support the Salisbury government, or that any understanding whatever exists between Mr. Parnell and Mr. Balfour.

Mr. Gladstone says that he regards Secretary Balfour's Irish university endowment scheme as a lightning conductor, intended to divert the storm which would otherwise fall upon the Parnell commission.

Twenty Years of Coercion.

The marquis of Londonderry, recently lord lieutenant of Ireland, made a speech at Stockton, in which he expressed the belief that twenty years of coercion would pacify Ireland.

The Strikers Received $200,000.

The reports of the East End unions, in whose charge was given the distribution of the funds contributed in aid of the striking dock laborers, are published. These show that the total contributions to the strikers amounted to the respectable total of £40,000.

Given the Freedom of Dublin.

DUBLIN, Sept. 21.—Amid great enthusiasm the freedom of the city was conferred upon Hon. James Stansfield and Lady Sandhurst. Lord Mayor Sexton, in making the presentation spoke in high terms of the visitors' services for Ireland, and said this was the first instance in modern times of the freedom of the city having been given to a woman. Mr. Stansfield, in reply, said that the British democracy would bring about home rule for Ireland at an early day.

Rome Rejoicing.

ROME, Sept. 21.—Rome is en fete and the people are celebrating the nineteenth anniversary of the occupation of the city by the troops of Victor Emanuel. Large bodies of troops are massed near the breach in the Porta Pia made by the Italian artillery in 1870. The streets are filled with immense crowds, and processions of patriotic societies, civic and military organizations with banners flying and bands of music in their train are marching to and fro. The city is gaily decorated.

He Thinks the Ripper Is a Woman.

LONDON, Sept. 21.—Lawson Tait, the eminent gynecologist, expresses the opinion that the murderer Whitechapel fiend and the Batterseа were all committed by the same criminal. The guilty person, he thinks, is a woman and a lunatic. According to this view the murderer is probably a daughter house and is subject to epileptic fits.

Nine of the Crew Drowned.

LIVERPOOL, Sept. 21.—The steamer Florence, en route from Garston on the Mersey, near this city, to Belfast, has foundered. Nine of her crew were drowned.

Odd Fellows' Work at Johnstown.

COLUMBUS, O., Sept. 21.—The Sovereign Grand Lodge of I. O. O. F. has completed its session, and Topeka, Kan., was selected as the place of meeting on the second Monday in September, 1890. The interesting feature of the morning's session was the address of Past Grand Sire J. B. Nicholson, of Philadelphia, who had charge of the distribution of the funds in behalf of the Johnstown flood sufferers. He said the Odd Fellows sent as an order $62,314.69 to that stricken town. The Daughters of Rebekah convention closed, to meet at Topeka, Kan., at the same time as the Grand lodge. The Stokes medal, won by the seamanship of the lost drilled canton, was awarded Capt. Gunder, of Canton Marion, who wore it during the past year.

Scratches on Leconey's Body.

CAMDEN, N. J., Sept. 21.—The examination of the body of Chalkley Leconey, under arrest upon suspicion of having murdered his niece, Annie, developed scratches on the back and breast. The coroner is collecting and as if made with finger nails in a struggle. There are no new developments in the case.

He Fell from the Boston's Mast.

NEW YORK, Sept. 21.—Frederick H. Stokes, Jr., aged 25, a sailor on board the United States cruiser Boston, died on board ship from the effects of injuries sustained in falling from the mast a few days ago. The body will be removed to his late residence in Philadelphia.

The Hillman Murder Trial.

WOODBURY, N. J., Sept. 21.—In the trial of Hillman for the murder of Zideman, the peddler, Dr. Forman testified to finding blood on the clothes of Hillman, the alleged murderer, and in which it is supposed he conveyed the body of his victim to the pond into which it was thrown.

The Telescope Man Dead.

BOSTON, Sept. 21.—Mr. J. Mackenzie Axe, known to most New Englanders as the "telescope man" of Boston common, is dead. He was a native of York, Pa. He lived alone, and an examination of his effects will be made by the authorities.

A Pensioner of 1813 Dead.

CONTOCOOK, N. H., Sept. 21.—Mrs. Catherine Burbank, aged nearly 91 years, a pensioner of the war of 1812, and probably the last one in this vicinity, is dead. She was the widow of Jonathan Burbank.

WARM TIMES IN COURT.

Recorder Smythe and Ives' Counsel Have a Lively Tilt.

NEW YORK, Sept. 21.—In the Ives' trial Lawyer Brooks said an important witness whom he expected to be present was absent because of a conspiracy which prevented him from reaching the city. This witness was James H. Wilson, a porter, by whom it would be proven that Woodruff lied when he said he took the transfer books and other documents from the office of Secretary of State in Brooklyn. The porter had himself taken the books to Ives' office on Nassau street. Because of Wilson's absence Counselor Brooks asked for a continuance.

Col. Fellows objected to the postponement. He said no one had interfered with the coming of the witness. It was a trick. "I say that neither Julius Ives nor any other living man has interfered with the coming of any witness," he thundered. The colonel was going on with flashing eyes and quivering lips, mounting to the white of rhetoric when Counselor Brooks asked: "Are you addressing the court or jury?"

"He is addressing me, Mr. Brooks," said the recorder, lofty. He denied the motion to adjourn until Saturday, but adjourned over until Monday to give the defendant every opportunity, relying on the statement made by the counsel that the witness would be here Saturday.

"Counsel made no such statement," said Mr. Brooks shortly.

"If you cannot shut, sir, I will commit you," said Recorder Smyth sharply.

"But"—

"Sit down this moment, sir!" and the recorder became red with anger.

"Your honor can bid me be seated," said the counselor in slow, measured tones, "but your honor cannot threaten me."

"Sit down, sir!" The recorder patiently long enough to your interruptions. I postpone until Monday at 11 o'clock."

After adjournment it seemed once as if Col. Fellows and Mr. Brooks might come to blows, so warm was the argument. Ives' counsel allege a conspiracy to ruin their client, with the trustees of the Meyer estate at the head.

YORK STATE POLITICS.

Republican District Conventions at Various Points—Political Future.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Sept. 21.—The First assembly district Republican convention nominated H. G. White for member of assembly. He is a cousin of Andrew D. White, president of Cornell university. The Second assembly district nominated ex-Mayor Willis B. Burns, of Syracuse, for assembly.

WATERTOWN, N. Y., Sept. 21.—The Second district Republican convention for Jefferson county chose S. Makepeace, E. B. Bulkley, F. D. Pierce, F. L. Sanborn, V. L. Hubbard and E. Mary Hodgetts for the state convention, and instructed them to vote for A. C. Coxe as judge of the court of appeals. Isaac Mitchell, a farmer of Stone Mills, was nominated for assembly on the thirty-third ballot.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Sept. 21.—Hon. John Van Voorhis, of this city, is being mentioned prominently for the nomination by the Republican state convention for attorney general. Mr. Voorhis is now in the White House cabinet, but his friends here say that he is a candidate for no subordinate office.

NEW YORK, Sept 21.—Republican primaries were held last night to choose delegates to the state convention. They were mostly unopposed, but in the Seventh assembly district the expelled O'Brien men caused some disturbance by attempts to vote. Some anti-O'Brien men were assaulted as they went to the polling place. The O'Brien faction also started an opposition poll, and had a great many more votes than the "regulars."

THE BLUE AND GRAY.

Close of the Grand Soldiers' Reunion at Chattanooga, Tenn.

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., Sept. 21.—The review of the Army of the Cumberland closes the grand reunion of the blue and the gray on the edge of the famous battlefield of Chickamauga. Fully 25,000 people were on the grounds. The Blue and the Gray were together and the past was forgotten. Governor Gordon, of Georgia, delivered a feeling address of welcome, which was responded to by Gen. Rosecrans. After the address the Patterson were all committed by the same criminal. The guilty person, he thinks, is a woman and a lunatic. According to this view the murderer is probably a daughter house and is subject to epileptic fits.

Nine of the Crew Drowned.

LIVERPOOL, Sept. 21.—The steamer Florence, en route from Garston on the Mersey, near this city, to Belfast, has foundered. Nine of her crew were drowned.

IT MAY STILL BE WARNER

Harrison Determined to Make Him Commissioner.

A CONFERENCE AT DEER PARK

Both the President and Secretary Noble Still Anxious for Maj. Warner to Succeed Tanner in the Pension Office—Other Washington News.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 21.—There is a chance that Maj. Warner will be Commissioner Tanner's successor. An enormous pressure is being brought to bear upon him, and although he is as much averse to accepting the place as he was last Monday, his objection may be overborne, and it is possible that today his commission will be signed by the president, with his knowledge and consent. Maj. Warner has gone to Deer Park, accompanied by Secretary Noble. The secretary of the interior is determined that Maj. Warner shall accept the position. Thursday night he received from the president information that he would not be fully satisfied with any other man as commissioner of pensions, and he wished to see Maj. Warner with a view to pressing him again to accept the position. Maj. Warner called at the interior department on his way to the Baltimore and Ohio railroad station, where he expected to take the 11:20 a. m. train for Chicago, on his way to Kansas City.

Again Asked to Accept.

Secretary Noble laid before him the president's views in the matter, and asked him if he would go to Deer Park with him (Noble). Maj. Warner consented to go in the afternoon and he and the secretary were passed over on the 3 o'clock train. When Maj. Warner left the city he said to a close friend that he would not say that he would not accept the appointment under any conditions but he was as firmly averse to accepting it as he had been before. He did not know what arguments the president had to advance, and he did not think it would be fair to announce an unalterable determination in advance of their interview.

It is not believed now that Maj. Merrill will be appointed. It is considered more likely that Gen. Powell, of Illinois, or Gen. Brown, of Ohio, will get the appointment in event Warner finally concludes not to take it.

At Deer Park.

DEER PARK, Sept. 21.—Secretary Noble and Maj. Warner arrived here from Washington and went at once to President Harrison's cottage.

Merrill Does Not Wish the Place.

LAWRENCE, Mass., Sept. 21.—In an interview Maj. Merrill expressed indignation at the reported interview published in The Morning Globe and other papers. He denies that the position of commissioner of pensions has been tendered to him. Maj. Merrill says the reporter must have partially overheard a private conversation and made up the main portion of the statement from his own imagination. The major reiterates that he does not want the place, preferring to stay where he is.

Mr. Daggett's Certificate.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 21.—The Star publishes the following:

"BROOKLYN, Sept. 20.

"To the Editor of The Evening Star:

"I have never said, nor is it true, the Commissioner Tanner was promised the recordership or any other office before he consented to resign. On the contrary, I have said, and it is true, that he resigned unasked and, of course, without promise of future political office. ALBERT DAGGETT."

The Three Americas' Exposition.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 21.—At a meeting of the three Americas' exposition executive committee it was decided to hold a convention of the national board of directors, composed of governors, mayors, committees of boards of trade, officers of state grange and others, at the city of Washington on Oct. 22. Secretary Jackson was instructed to send out the invitations.

More Life Savers Asked For.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 21.—Superintendent Kimball of the life saving service has made a recommendation in his report to the secretary of the treasury for an increase of the life saving crews on the Atlantic coast. The secretary approves the recommendation.

Sheridan Shook Assaulted.

NEW YORK, Sept. 21.—Sheridan Shook, the well known politician, hotel man and former theatrical manager, was assaulted in the Morton house by Thomas Patten, a printer, last night. Mr. Shook's face was cut on the neck and face by Mr. Patten's fists. He was taken unawares while seated, and could not at first defend himself. He finally grappled with Patten and floored him. The men were then separated. Mr. Shook has since remained in his room, though it is said he is not seriously injured. The trouble grew out of the failure of certain proposed legislation at Albany last winter which Mr. Shook was pushing and in which Mr. Patten was interested.

Illegal Voters in Trouble.

BROOKLYN, Sept. 21.—The nine men arrested at the Twentieth ward Republican primary on Thursday night for illegal voting were arraigned in court here. Three pleaded not guilty and were released on bail. Six pleaded guilty and were remanded to jail to await sentence. It is claimed that the men were hired by one faction to vote illegally for another faction, in order to bring discredit on the latter.

The Site for the Fair Chosen.

NEW YORK, Sept. 21.—The site for the world's fair, 1892, was selected by the building committee during the afternoon. It embraces that plot of land from Ninety-seventh street to One Hundred and Twenty-seventh street, and from Fourth avenue to the North river. Riverside and Riverside parks are included in this area, but that portion of Central park above the reservoir will not be used unless it is found to be absolutely necessary. Mr. Russell Sage was elected vice chairman of the committee.

The Killing Was Accidental.

NEW BEDFORD, Mass., Sept. 21.—Mrs. Lopez, mother of the boy Hasirique, who was killed by his playfellow De Barrios at Wareham, arrived here. She says that from the statements given by companions of the two boys the killing was accidental. Her son and De Barrios, she states, were at play and dancing to music at the time of the accident, and Hasirique, coming up behind De Barrios, pulled him backward. The latter had an open knife in his hand, and in the fall young Lopez received the point in his neck.

A British Warship Wrecked.

HALIFAX, N. S., Sept. 21.—The British warship Lily has been wrecked on the Labrador coast. Nine men were lost. The survivors are being brought here by the warship Emerald.

THE NEWS IN BRIEF.

Fresh Tips from the Wires Carefully Culled.

Three bodies of victims of the great storm have been found near Bridgeton, N. J. One of them is that of Capt. David F. Risley, of the wrecked schooner J. & L. Byron.

The coroner's jury in New York has decided to hold Christian Doyle to answer for the murder of Frederick Gowans, whom he shot to his office on the 15th inst.

The survivors of the One Hundred and Thirty-eighth Pennsylvania regiment met in Norristown for their eleventh reunion and decided the monument to Col. Matthew R. McClennan in Montgomery square.

Michael Rowe has been appointed post master at Irondale, N. Y., a fourth class office.

Blackman Brothers' sawmill and sash factory at Snohomish, Wy. T., have been burned. Loss $150,000; no insurance.

The Italian government has just given orders for the manufacture of 30,000,000 improved cartridges, all the works at Capua are running night and day.

Archbishop Walsh is having an immense palace built for him in Dublin.

William Pate, an old resident of Cedar Falls, Ia., set fire to his house and then shot and killed himself. The house was saved.

Joseph Thomas Raymond, alias Thomas Brown, was hanged at Moorhead, Minn., for the murder of Deputy Sheriff Ellis.

Police Officer Hughes, of Portland, Me., was stabbed five times by an Italian whom he had arrested. In defense he drew his revolver and struck the assailant in the head. The officer escaped with slight injuries.

MRS. HAMILTON RESIGNED.

She Solaces Herself with Cigarettes—Her Counsel Censured.

MAY'S LANDING, N. J., Sept. 21.—Mrs. Hamilton was quiet during the day and seemed to be thinking much of her situation. She spent the morning smoking cigarettes and reading newspapers. Since her conviction she has been told by the few intimate friends who have been up to see her that her counsel made a mistake in placing her on the witness stand and affording the prosecution an opportunity to attack her private character, and bring out things regarding her past life.

It is the common belief of lawyers that has it not been for the statement made by Mrs. Hamilton on the stand—namely, that Mr. Hamilton stood between her and the nurse when she did the stabbing, there would have been a motion for a new trial. The jury, if not an acquittal. It maintaines by Mrs. Hamilton's friends that she is no penniless, but has at least $2,700 in bank, besides considerable valuable jewelry. Mrs. Hamilton will probably be conveyed to the state prison in Trenton on Monday morning.

Jumped from a Runaway Train.

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., Sept. 21.—A car of the electric railroad, while going up Missionary ridge, slipped on the side of the hill, the track being covered with dew. The car was heavily loaded with the passengers at the bidding of the conductor, jumped off. The parties injured were all visitors in attendance at the reunion of Wheeler's brigade. The following is list of the injured: Mrs. Mary Adams, Casey, Ills., injured internally, probably fatal; Mrs. M. J. Garrison, Casey, Ills., badly injured; Mrs. Wiley, Casey, Ills., injured internally, badly; William Munford, Casey, Ills., head badly cut; Mrs. A. C. Addison, Casey, Ills., seriously bruised. Eight others suffered slight injuries.

A Well Known Knight Dead.

BROOKLYN, Sept. 21.—John G. Saville formerly a prominent Knight of Labor, died in St. Mary's hospital of a complication of diseases. He was 39 years old. He was general auditor of the Knights of Labor in 1886, and later was secretary of the executive board of D. A. 75, L., in New York. He led several successful car strikes in New York and Brooklyn in 1886. He ran for city auditor in 1887, and while the assembly on the labor ticket, but was defeated. He leaves a widow and four children.

A Victory for the Bell Company.

INDIANAPOLIS, Sept. 21.—Judge Woods, of the United States district court, has granted an injunction in favor of the American Bell Telephone company against Cassius Alley restraining him from the use of telephones which Alley and others have had in operation in Northern Indiana. It is also held that they were an infringement upon the Bell patents. Alley and his partners were ordered to surrender to the court all the telephone instruments in their possession.

White Caps at Norwalk.

NORWALK, Conn., Sept. 21.—The front door of the residence of Mrs. Pierpont, a well known townsman, was embellished with large posters, warning him to leave politics or leave town. Crosses, crows bones and other white cap devices served to lend force to the warning. There is no clew to the identity of the guilty parties.

Their Sentences Aggregate 80 Years.

SEATTLE, Wy. T., Sept. 21.—Chief Justice Hanford has sentenced Charles Clark, James Davis and Barney Martin to terms in the penitentiary aggregating eighty years for assault with intent to kill, robbery and burglary. They are desperate characters and recently nearly killed their jailor in an attempt to escape.

Gold at Irvington.

NEWARK, N. J., Sept. 21.—The discovery of a gold vein on Clinton avenue, Irvington, by some workmen who were digging a tunnel there has caused considerable excitement. Several pieces of the ore have been assayed by Colonel Ford, of Orange, and the report has shown that the ore contains $30 worth to a ton, and will scarcely pay to be named.

A Mail Carrier Arrested.

KING GEORGE, Va., Sept. 21.—Virgil Staples, 16 years of age, mail carrier between Port Conway and King George court house was arrested for robbing the mail. Deputy United States Marshal Taylor, of Alexandria, made the arrest. Staples was caught by means of a decoy letter.

Williams Not Guilty.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Sept. 21.—The trial of A. C. Williams, charged with forging the name of Millard Fillmore Jarvis, of Jersey Bostonian, to a check for $500 some months ago, has resulted in a verdict of not guilty. The case attracted considerable attention at the time.

Killed with a Carving Knife.

NEW YORK, Sept. 21.—During a fight between Peter Reynolds and Lawrence Donohue, in the house No. 341 East Thirty-fifth street, about 11:30 p. m., Donohue stabbed Reynolds with a carving knife, killing him instantly. The murdered man was 49 years old and Donohue 38.

Accidentally Shot Himself.

MIDDLETOWN, N. Y., Sept. 21.—Montgomery W. Whitlock, of Brooklyn, was accidentally killed at his country residence near here by the explosion of his gun, while he was hunting. He leaves a wife and several children.

TWENTY-EIGHT CRUSHED

Later Particulars of the Quebec Catastrophe.

THOUSANDS OF TONS FELL DOWN.

Different Sections of the City Cut Off—Rescue of a Brave Little Heroine—Between Eighty and One Hundred People Were Injured.

QUEBEC, Sept. 21.—A sad and dreary day to the watchers and workers at the scene of the landslide was this, and little, indeed, of comfort did the result of the search among the debris bring to the surviving victims of the catastrophe.

Loss of the Death Roll.

The death roll now numbers twenty-eight persons, and it is thought that it will reach forty. The dead are: Thomas Allen, Mrs Thomas Allen, Charles Allan, Mrs. Charles Allan, Miss Esther Allan, Henry Black, Will him Black, Mrs. Brickell, Mrs. Stephen Burke and two children, Michael Daly, James Edwards, I. Edwards, Thomas Farrell and three children, Norah Kennedy Mrs. R. H. Leahy, Miss Lane, Mrs. McCann, O. S. Neville, Thomas Nolan, Charles Pois Mrs. Reedy, Alphonse Tredeau, Napoleon Trotean and H. Wright.

Clearing Away the Debris.

With the break of day was started afresh the work of removing the debris of the demolished houses, and willing hands desirously wielded picks, axes and shovels obtained for them by the city engineer.

Through the mass of the broken timbers bricks, mortar and metal of the demolished houses was a difficult and dangerous task, so hemmed in are the ruins and rocks, with which they are mingled, between the cliff on the one side and immense piles of coal on the other, piled up to the very top which line the rear front. There is no communication whatever between those portions of the city lying east and west of the ruins, for Champlain street, which winds along the base of Cape Diamond, beneath the citadel, and is the only thoroughfare for which there is space between the ruins and the cliff, is much more formidably barricaded today against commerce and traffic than it was against the brave Montgomery on the fatal December night in 1775 when he led his daring assault upon a British battery in this same little street.

Thousands of Tons of Rock Fell.

It is estimated that not less than 10,000,000 cubic feet of rock fell over the roadway of Champlain street in immense blocks, some of them as large as a two story house and weighing hundreds if not thousands of tons. The hollow space upon the side of the cape from which the avalanche fell is left as smooth and straight as the side of a house, indicating the existence for a long time previously of a deep and practically unbroken fissure.

More Avalanches Feared.

The space that was occupied by the fatal rock was some 100 feet in length, 200 feet in breadth and 100 feet in depth. There are now very dangerous looking fissures in the rock adjacent to the space whence the avalanche fell, and the rear wall or back of the citadel and of Dufferin terrace have visibly enlarged, and the slide has carried away with it a portion of the rock upon which the foundation of one corner of the famed terrace is built.

The removal of the rock from the street will be a gigantic work, and it is expected to occupy from six to nine months. Most of the blocks will require blasting, and that to a very considerable extent.

A Little Heroine Rescued.

Those who aided in the rescue of Mrs. Black's niece tell the touching tale of the young and slender girl of some 17 years struggled for life and liberty. Though, it is said, she suffers from a broken leg and wrist and is otherwise bruised, she told those who were endeavoring to extricate her that she was working hard with both hands, notwithstanding her terribly mangled condition.

Two Children Rescued by Firemen.

Ada Black, the 8-year-old daughter of Henry Black, was rescued, only slightly injured, about 7 o'clock. At 8 o'clock the child was found not only alive, but apparently without a scratch, lying in close proximity to her dead mother. The child is but 3 months old. Her parents were married less than two years ago. A man named Kemp was taken from the ruins alive but badly injured.

Fifteen in the Hospital.

There are now fifteen sufferers from the catastrophe in the Marine hospital and a number have been taken to private residences.

How the Victims Met Death.

Mrs. McCann, one of the victims, was paying a visit to some friends. When found her position was as if she was about tying the strings of her bonnet.

Mrs. Burke, one of the victims, met a most cruel death. When found she was lying under a tombstone, terribly strained. At 4 o'clock the crushed bodies of Mrs. James Bradley and one of her children were taken from the ruins of their home. The body of Miss Martin Ready was also taken from the debris. Still another sad incident came to notice in the rescuing of Mr. Farrell at the time of the calamity. He had his babe in his arms. Both were found lifeless.

One Injured.

The inquest will be held on Monday. The Roman Catholic dead will be buried Sunday morning at 10. Altogether between eighty and one hundred people are injured in one way or another.

No Chemicals,
W. BAKER & CO.'S
Breakfast
Cocoa
Is Absolutely Pure,
and it is Soluble.

To increase the solubility of the powdered cocoa, various expedients are employed, most of them being based upon the action of some alkali, potash, soda or even ammonia. Cocoa thus prepared by one of these chemical processes, can usually be recognised at once by the distinct alkaline reaction of the infusion in water.

W. Baker & Co.'s Breakfast Cocoa is manufactured from the first stage to the last by perfect mechanical processes, no chemical being used in its preparation. By one of the most ingenious combinations of machinery the process of grinding the cocoa nibs is so conducted that a delicate flavor of cocoa is secured without the sacrifice of the nutritive and beautiful red color which is characteristic of an absolutely pure and unadulterated cocoa.

LADIES' WHIST.

List

Four ladies playing whist.
"Is it my lead?" asks the first.
"Well, of all hands, I've the worst."
"Ever user of Lundy's knows
That's the best lead I have."
Number three says, with red nose,
"Then I'll take it, you bet!"
While above the noise is uproar.
Comes the chorus from All four,
"What's the trump?"

"Mrs. Gray, is that your son?"
"Oh, say, have you seen the lion
Selling cow at Brown and Dent's?"
"I forgot that she trumps hearts."
"And the most exquisite shades!
Gracious! haven't you a spade?"
"Is it my play? What was led?"
"Is you know your own old friend
Only four cents?—John Smith's best"—
Just here chime in all the rest,
"What's the trump?"

"this I think's the leading spade.
O-h! I thought that jack was played."
"Well, that makes two points for you.
One for us, did you say, Sue?"
"How can that be? Did you trump?"
"Have you heard about that bump Mollie's boy had on his head?"
"Isn't that a lovely spread?"
"Did I take that trick? Dear me!
Here strike in the other three,
"What's the trump?"

"How much better we all play
Than we did." "Well, I should say!"
"Once I couldn't keep my mind
On the game; but now I find
It as easy as can be."
"Is it your deal? Let me see—
Ko; the cards belong to you."
"I remember how that Sue
Led the king, and that the nine—
Did you say the lead was mine?
What's the trump?"
—Louise Phillips in Judge.

"Why Do Summer Roses Fade?"

Mr. Winterman—Ah, Miss Somers, there is a light along the sky which heralds the coming of the melancholy days! Indeed they are already here for me, since the hotel closes to-morrow and you will be going back to town. However, I shall soon be returning there myself. I have been your unfailing partner, Miss Somers, in so many of the season's pleasures that—but I trust you will give me an opportunity to continue our acquaintance. May I not count on seeing you before long?

Miss Somers—Oh certainly, Mr. Winterman. Papa says we shall come here again summer after next when the big hotel is built, so you will know where to find me, you see.—Munsey's Weekly.

An Enthusiastic Hearer.

"Who shall set bounds to the inventive genius of free America?" shouted the impassioned orator, as he waved his arms aloft and grew purple in the face. "I tell you, my countrymen, the time is coming when men will navigate the air like birds, when electricity shall be harnessed to do our plowing and reaping, when it will cost only a quarter of a dollar to travel across the continent, when shoes will be made of indestructible paper for five cents a pair"

"Horrah! hurrah!" exclaimed a grizzled looking man in the audience, the father of sixteen children, rising to his feet and swinging his hat wildly above his head.—Chicago Tribune.

What It Is Coming To.

Attorney—How! you formed or expressed any opinion as to the guilt or innocence of the accused in this case?

Man Drawn as a Juror—No, sir. But I have sometimes thought"—

Attorney (rising indignantly)—Your honor, this man acknowledges that he sometimes thinks. It is hardly necessary to say that we shall challenge him as a juror in this case.—Chicago Tribune.

Then She Relented.

"Now, George," said the Chicago girl tenderly, "I love you, but I can't marry a poor man. There are no fies on me."

"I wouldn't surprise me if there were, though," replied George. "Flies are fond of sugar."

"George, I am yours!"—Epoch.

Too Many of Them.

A woman returning to Paris from the middle of France was asked how she liked the Pyrenees.

"I hardly know," she replied, "the country was so mountainous I could hardly see them."—Texas Siftings.

Precocious Youth.

Tommy—I knew you was coming, Mr. Bald.

Mr. Bald—How did you know, Tommy.

Tommy—'Cause Clara always makes her cheeks red when you're coming.—Yankee Blade.

Easily Avoided.

Old Gentleman (passing through hall)—I don't want to see you kiss my daughter again, young man. Do you hear?

Young Man (in parlor)—I do, sir. I'll close the door the next time.—New York Sun.

Well Grounded Fear.

At the theatre: Miss Chic—Oh, I am sure I don't look nice at all.

Miss Au Fay—Why?

Miss Chic—Because I am so comfortable.—Lawrence American.

Her Name Should Be Minerva.

Mistress—Bridget, did you order the liver for breakfast?

Bridget—No, mum. The livery stable was closed, mum.—Lowell Citizen.

Ode to a Tailor.

In Worthy worth we never knew—
We judged you merely by your clothes.
But at this grave man stops to think
How much to those he really owes —Life.

A Neat Exchange.

Coal Dealer—How's trade?
Lumber—Fine. It's a coal day when I get left.—Life.

PHYSIOLOGY AND HYGIENE.

Fruit as a Food—Its Salutary Effects in Various Disorders.

The silverware of eating fruit at the beginning of a meal are explained by Dr. Ferdinand Berger in Medical Classics as follows: It proceeds in that order suggested manifest in the delicate lining membrane of the alimentary organs, forming a welcome precursor to the more substantial articles; many of which require protracted energy for their elaborations into nutriment. At the same time it is to some extent a safeguard against the overfeeding which comes from reserving the fruit till the stomach is already overloaded with other food.

Fruits should be ripe when eaten on an empty stomach, and for their laxative effect should be eaten before anything else. In this way constipation may, which many individuals, be obviated, especially when the quantity of other articles of the meal is within reasonable limits. Dr. Berger adds that in addition to fruits, lessen the daily meal from the use of corn bread, cracked wheat, oatmeal, bread of unbolted flour, and such vegetables as green corn, tomatoes and celery. Persons troubled with intestinal indigestion, to a moderate extent, may overcome it by the daily use of a few almonds and raisins, about six of each. Hemorrhoidal tendency to constipation of the portal vein, or to constipation, is much benefited by the grape cure, or a diet of fruits and succulent vegetables.

Fruit consists essentially of two parts, viz.; the juices and the cellular structures in which the juices are contained; and it is necessary to add that, whilst the juices may be readily transformed, the cells are not easily digested and, when possible, are thrown away. This is seen in such fruits as the orange and apple when not of good quality or not ripe. In such fruits as the strawberry, the pineapple, the grape, and even the banana, the cellular wall is very thin, and this is easily broken up, so that its presence is not perceptible, and the digestion of it cannot be difficult. As a general statement, it may be stated of any fruit that the variety which yields the richest juices in the greatest quantity, whilst the cellular framework is the least perceptible on mastication, is the most preferred and the most digestible.

A gentle diarrhea, brought on by eating ripe fruit in summer, has frequently a salutary effect. According to the old aphorism quoted, acid and astringent fruit, being rather a medicine than food, is less hurtful to the healthy and to children than is commonly imagined. Instead of its producing, as some imagine, in inflammatory disorders, it is of the greatest service. Persons of a thick and languid blood cannot eat anything more conducive to health than fruit, as it possesses the property of attenuating and putting such blood in motion. Fruit diminishes the acidity of the urine. By virtue of this result, the employment of fruit is considered to prove advantageous in gout and other cases where the urine shows a tendency to throw down a deposit of lithic acid.

Sulphur Fumigation.

Sulphur fumigation as a preventive of infectious diseases has been of late urgently recommended by physicians and boards of health. Dr. Squibb, of Brooklyn, now calls attention to an important fact unknown to the laity and which should be emphasized in any directions for the use of sulphur fumes, that is, that in the absence of moisture the penetrating power of sulphurous acid gas is only slight, and for this reason there should be an abundance of the moisture of the sick apartment in which the sulphur is burned.

Medical News suggests that water be kept boiling in the room in which sulphur is generated. Dr. Squibb also affirms the relative uselessness of chlorine gas as a disinfectant in the absence of aqueous vapor.

Ammonia a Refreshing Tonic.

It is told in Annals of Hygiene that nothing so quickly restores tone to exhausted nerves and strength to a weary body as a bath containing a few drops of aqua ammonia to each pail of water. It makes the flesh firm and smooth as marble, and renders the body pure and free from all odor

SOCIAL ETIQUETTE.

The Women of Yore and Punctuality—Visiting Cards for Children and Wife.

A wise man once said that tact is better than genius. Very desirable in a man, it is almost essential in a woman; but it is a heaven born quality, and hardly acquired by those who have it not. You know at once by instinct when you are in a house managed by a woman who has a real talent for being the presiding genius of a home; there is a delicious atmosphere of repose, no hurry, no bustle, she always has leisure to attend to everything and everybody, be the house ever so large or the family ever so numerous. You are sure of a welcome when you arrive; but she is by no means one of those people who encourage visitors at all hours, leaving no time for work or repose. She considers it not fit living in a town like running in and out of her neighbors' houses, and has no taste for gossip. But you never hear her complain she is overcome with work, or that the servants are so troublesome, the children so tiresome, or the tradespeople so unsatisfactory. No; she has method and economy of organization—all goes on wheels, and her visitors are not wearied by long accounts of the cook's misdemeanors or the children's delinquencies.

There is tidiness without primness—everything pretty, neat and comfortable; her poorer neighbors are well looked after, comforted, advised and helped in their hours of need. Punctuality is strictly enforced; indeed, without it, comfort—nay, even happiness—is well nigh impossible. Do not we all know establishments where the vagrant hours of the hours for meals prevail and we reluctantly shorten our walk or drive, put down an interesting book, or close the piano regretfully, knowing that the luncheon hour has arrived, or the dressing bell for dinner has rung, only, alas! to find no one down but ourselves, the viands rapidly cooling, while we might very well have enjoyed ourselves for quite half an hour longer, had we only known. In the morning, tired perhaps, after a long journey, we would gladly repose an hour longer, having been told the breakfast is at 9, we get up, and again are the first arrivals in the dining room, whilst the mistress forth its displeasure, the tea comes queerly in fast, rather cold and bitter, and the eatables decidedly chilly. The domestic machinery is thus put out of order and guests and family suffer from the lack in their habits one of two qualities very essential to good form.

Visiting Cards.

A single card, engraved "Mr. and Mrs. Blank," is used by a lady during the first year of married life, and she leaves it even when calling alone. After that date the joint card is employed only for congratulations, condolences, and as a P. P. C. card, but the wife leaves a separate card for her husband on all formal occasions, such as the first call of the season and after a dinner invitation.

A high English authority announces that as regards boots there is a decided disposition to return to the long boot for the street, English like a man's. An excellent boot of this class has a low heel and patent leather golosh.

SCIENCE AND PARTICULARS.

SUBJECTS THAT AFFORD USEFUL INFORMATION AND RECREATION.

Miscellaneous Experiments with Friction—Electricity That Is Aired, Without Special Apparatus, Pleasure and Instruction.

Attraction and Repulsion.

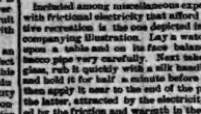
Included among miscellaneous experiments with frictional electricity that afford instruction and recreation is the one depicted in the accompanying illustration. Lay a watch down upon a table and on its face balance a tobacco pipe very carefully. Next take a wine glass, rub it quickly with a silk handkerchief and hold it for half a minute before the fire, then apply it near to the end of the pipe, and the latter, attracted by the electricity evolved by the friction and warmth in the former, will immediately follow it, and by carrying the glass around, always in front of the pipe, this will continue to revolve, motion, the pivot being the center or pivot on which it acts.



EXPERIMENT WITH FRICTIONAL ELECTRICITY.

Another experiment in this same direction may be readily conducted as follows: Warm a glass tube, rub it with a warm flannel, and then bring a downy feather near it. On the first moment of contact the feather will adhere to the glass, but soon after will fly rapidly from it, and you may drive it about the room by holding the glass between it and the surrounding objects. This will, however, come in contact with anything not under the influence of electricity, it will instantly fly back to the glass.

A stick of warm sealing wax rubbed against a warm piece of flannel or cloth acquires the property of attracting light substances, such as small pieces of paper, lint, etc., if instantly applied at the distance of about an inch.

Confectioner's Colors.

No confectioner will admit that he uses anything but the yolks of eggs to gain the beautiful yellow of some of his handiwork; but according to Druggist Circular is used and is not only innocuous but healthful. Green is generally a color looked upon with suspicion, suggesting thoughts of arsenic. Spinach is the thing now most extensively used in the trade, sap green having been ruled out of court. Druggists might prepare and profitably sell a green color for confectioners by beating one pound of spinach into a stone mortar and afterwards rubbing it through a fine sieve. One pound of fine sugar is then to be incorporated with it. The quantities to be used for coloring will depend entirely on the shade of green required. A chocolate color may be produced by essence of coffee, and burnt onions are the best thing for making gravies. The color imparting power of saffron is known to everybody, but the flavor it also imparts is not often required.

Relations of the Color Sensations.

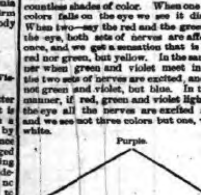
It is thought that when we see a red light certain nerves in the eye are affected, and convey a peculiar sensation to the brain that we call red. These nerves are sensitive to red light, but are not sensitive to any other light, except in a moderate degree. Another set of nerves in the eye are peculiarly sensitive to green light, and still another set are affected by violet light. Hence the sensations produced by these colors are called the three elementary color sensations, and from the combinations of these sometimes come countless shades of color. When one of these colors falls on the eye we see it distinctly. When two—say the red and the green—meet the eye, both sets of nerves are affected at once, and we get a sensation that is neither red nor green, but yellow. In the same manner when green and violet meet in the eye the two sets of nerves are excited, and we see not green and violet, but blue. In the same manner, if red, green and violet light enters the eye all the nerves are excited at once, and we see not three colors but one, which is white.



A COLOR DIAGRAM.

The accompanying diagram was originally employed by Alfred M. Mayer and Charles Barnard in their work on "Light," with a view to assisting the reader in remarking the relation the color sensations bear to each other. The red and green combine to make yellow, the green and violet to make blue, and all three mingled together give us white. We may also combine red and violet light and get purple light.

A Substitute for Glass.

The new substitute for glass adopted in some of the public buildings of London has several advantages claimed for it, glancy being one of them. Photographic views explains that the basis of the material is a web of fine iron wire, with warp and weft threads about one-twelfth of an inch apart, this being inclosed like a fly in amber, in a sheet of translucent varnish, of which the base is linseed oil. It is almost as transparent as glass, and of a pleasing tint of color, varying in shade from very light golden to pale brown

Science Gleanings.

It is stated that the birth rate of Ireland is less than that of any European country but France, Russia standing at the head of the list.

Investigations by Gazalier and L'Hote seem to prove that the proportion of gluten in wheat may be increased by cultivation, and that it depends on the proportion of nitrogen to phosphoric acid used in the manure.

The use of cigarettes is rapidly on the decline, states American Analyst, which says: "Cigar smoking and pipe smoking are bad enough and pernicious enough, but cigarette smoking is absolutely suicidal."

Drs. Henocque and Frolet, in a communication also made to the Biological society of Paris state that the extraction of a tooth may be rendered painless by spraying the neighborhood of the external ear with ether.

ALL AROUND THE HOUSE.

Cuffs, Collars and Shirts "Done Up" to the White, Stiff and Shining.

Husbands, fathers and brothers need no longer help to support John Chinaman or his great commonpany, the steam laundry, but, according to a writer in Good Housekeeping, any revel in linen that is stiff and lustrous if their woshen kind will adopt for the hone laundry instructions which are substantially as follows:

The starch for cuffs, collars and shirts, which are supposed to be snowy white, is made much thicker than ordinary, so that when it is cold you can stick it with a knife. For four shirts, a dozen collars and as many pairs of cuffs, put to boil in a clean sauce pan with copper bottom, one and a half quarts of clear water; have ready a cupful of fine glass starch dissolved in cold water, and when the water on the stove is galloping (for it must "dance" as well as "sing"), pour in the melted starch, stirring well, and carefully till it is translucent. It must be quite thick, and if one cupful an cup's vary) is not enough, dissolve more and add, being careful which it be to let it burn. Fill another tin boiler, if not sufficient, and it is ready to strain in a three cornered cheese cloth bag, which you will find better than thicker goods. Now add a teaspoonful of kerosene and a few drops of bluing.

The starch made and the clothes ready, you may now proceed to business. Don't try in a hurry, for want time for starching in the starching will be made up in the ironing. As soon as the starch is sufficiently cool to bear your hand take a shirt which has not come from the final water, rubber up the bosom, sleeves in the starch, rub it well and vigorously till the starch has entered every fold of the bosom, lining and all; don't wring or squeeze, but draw it through your fingers well, slipping off all superfluous starch, treat band and wristbands the same, hang up until boms dry. Proceed to do the same to the collars and cuffs, not forgetting that success in the ironing depends wholly upon how much you rub the starch in. Before hanging them of the starch, endeavor to smooth out all wrinkles while wet, and when dry they will rattle like paper

If the ironing does not take place until the next day, put your linen away carefully out of the dust, but do not sprinkle. A half hour before you are ready to iron by wringing out of cold water very dry a clean white cotton rag twice the size of a towel, lay the collars and cuffs on it, with a fold of the rag between each article, roll up smoothly and tight. On the shirt bosoms lay a similar rag, only smaller, enough to cover the starched parts, roll as before and put away for thirty minutes. Heat on the fire three polishing irons, which are oblong in shape with rounded corners. The ones I have have a corrugated surface which aids much in obtaining that lustre so envied in well laundried linen.

When the time is up, take one article as a time, lay on a clean white ironing board. See that your hands are immaculate and your irons clean; rub the latter on brown paper and a bit of beswax, then on a clean rag. If your polisher is at the right heat, it will only take a few firm rubs up and down the article to make you feel proud of your collars and cuffs. The shirt bosoms are drawn out smoothly on a bosom board, after ironing the sleeves and tail, also the neck and wrist bands. Now grasp the bosom firmly in your hand and slide, as it were, your iron up the middle, sending all wrinkles to the sides instead of the top or bottom. Press firmly, and iron carefully around the neckband, so that it will stand, put a pin in it to preserve its shape, fold, and your work is done. Don't be discouraged by your first failure, bearing in mind that the ironing is the least part of the work, and that success depends upon white clothes and thorough starching.

A Desirable Sofa Cushion.

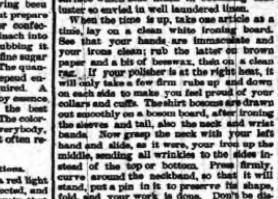
The sofa cushion shown in the cut has the merit of being both handsome and serviceable. The embroidery is carried out on gray cloth, framed by a narrow band of red plush. A satin of the same shade being used for lining.



SOFA CUSHION.

The designs are worked for the flowers and leaves with strawberry and olive colored split floseils of various shades in basket and point floseils of each. Touch bronze powder introduced here and there. The outlines, stems and tendrils are worked with gold cord sewn down with silk.

Exodus of the Musquito.

The latest safeguard to prevent the lively musquito from getting in his work in the homestead is to take a grassy cinder a piece about one-third the size of a hen's egg and evaporate it by placing it in a tin vessel and holding it over a lamp, taking care that it does not ignite. The smoke will soon fill the room and expel the musquitoes, and it is claimed that they will not return, even though the windows should be left open all night.

To Distinguish a Good Melon.

A large dealer in watermelons gives these directions for telling a good melon: "Lay the melon on its back, belly up. You can tell the belly, because it is white, or of lighter color than the rest of the melon. Scratch the skin of the belly with your finger nail. If the skin is tender and the melon is yet firm to the pressure of the finger, so that you can with difficulty pierce it with your nail, it is probably a good melon.

Pretty Fancies for Serving Desserts.

Corn husks filled with moss rolls padding represent another of the ingenious devices with which fashionable caterers surprise and please exacting patrons, while halves of orange peel filled with orange sherbet, ice, forms a fancy more suited to the domestic facilities of thrifty housekeepers. Bricks of ice cream continue to be the favorite mode of frozen dessert.

Almond Patties.

Line patty pans with pastry; fill with a mixture of whites of three eggs, a quarter of a pound of powdered sugar, juice of half a lemon, and half a pound of blanched and chopped almonds. Bake in a moderate oven.

Pickled Plums.

One peck of plums, seven pounds of sugar, one pint of good vinegar and spices to taste. Boil till well cooked.

A Parisian Novelty in Gloves.

The latest novelty in gloves consists of long suede muquetaires, the left hand glove of which has a dainty silver rimmed purse inserted in the palm. A semi-circular incision is made in the palm of the glove to which the metal opening is attached; inside there is a kid lined pocket, which would hold a good deal; it is quite safe, not cumbersome and most convenient.

An Ancient Doll.

The doll is of ancient origin. In one of two stone sarcophagi found at Rome, in the Prati di Castello, the skeleton of a girl was found, along with a wooden doll with jointed arms and legs.

THE CURIOSITY SHOP.

Burial Rites of an African King—His Wives Buried with Him.

The king of Ekoi, an African king—his name, as is customary in that part of the country, the traders from West Calabar went up to pay their respects to the new monarch. The traders were aware that for a short time after the old king's death the "Iu Iu" rites are performed, and they thought that these were over. The deceased monarch's name was Imphy, and to the horror of the English traders the "Iu Iu" ceremonies were at their highest when they entered Shoe town. The rites had been in operation for about two months, and already about forty people had been slain to appease the "Iu Iu" gods. The old king was then lying in a grave which had been dug for him. The hole was a large one and deep. Lying in the same grave were nine of the king's youngest wives, and their deaths had been brought about in the most cruel manner. Each of the poor creatures had both her wrists and ankles broken, so that they could neither walk nor crawl.

In addition to the terrifying fact that the existing pain, the unfortunate creatures were placed at the bottom of the grave, seven of them lying side by side. The body of the king was then laid on them in a transverse direction. The two remaining women were laid down by the side of the king, lying exactly like the monarch's body. Pipe (pot or water was given to the poor creatures, the grave was filled in, and it is said that death did not, as a rule, take place for four or five days. Four men were stationed round the grave, armed with clubs, ready to knock down with these any of the unfortunate women who, notwithstanding their maimed condition, were able to crawl to the side of the gravel. In other parts of the town further human sacrifices were taking place, dispensed from various trees were the bodies of several placed side by side on the grass. Night had come on, and by the flickering light of lanterns the faces of all appeared awful and unearthly in their excitement and dread.

Visible Stars.

The total number of stars one can see will depend very largely upon the clearness of the atmosphere and the keenness of the eye. There are in the whole celestial sphere about 6,000 stars visible to an ordinarily good eye. Of these, however, we can never see more than a fraction at any one time, because a half of the number are always below the horizon. If we could see a star in the horizon as easily as in the zenith, a half of the whole number, or 3,000, would be visible on any clear night. But stars near the horizon are seen through so great a thickness of atmosphere as greatly to obscure their light, and only the brightest ones can there be seen. As a result of this observation, it is not likely that more than 2,000 stars can ever be taken in at a single view by any ordinary eye. About 2,000 other stars are to near the South pole that they never rise in our latitudes. Hence, out of 6,000 supposed to be visible, only 4,000 ever come within the range of our vision, unless we make a journey toward the southern pole.

As telescopic power is increased we still find stars of fainter and fainter light. But the number cannot go on increasing forever in the same ratio as with the brighter magnitudes, because if it did the whole sky would be a blaze of starlight. If telescopes with powers far exceeding our present ones were made, they would no doubt show new stars of the twentieth and twenty-first, etc., magnitudes. But it is highly probable that the number of such successive orders of stars would not increase in the same ratio as is observed in the eighth, ninth and tenth magnitudes, for example. The enormous labor of estimating the number of stars of such classes will long prevent the accumulation of statistics on this question; but this much is certain, that in special regions of the sky, which have been searchingly examined by various telescopes of successively increasing apertures, the number of new stars found is by no means in proportion to the increased instrumental power.

Loan Associations.

It is estimated that there are about 4,000 co-operative savings and loan associations in the United States, that their accumulations of property represent $40,000,000, and that the amount which will be paid to them this year in the form of dues alone will exceed $65,000,000. These associations in their earlier days in Philadelphia were called building clubs, and later they have been known under the name of building and loan associations. Under any name they mean essentially one and the same thing, which is the forming of corporations in which the members shall loan money to one another on certain fixed terms, and by means of which laboring men, for the most part in our towns and cities, may be able to add to the shares which they have purchased in this association, together with the dues and also such sums as are equal to what they have already invested in them, and apply it to the building or buying of homes for themselves. During the last thirty years these associations have increased in all parts of the country. The first one was organized in Philadelphia in 1831; the second was formed in 1845, and from 1845 to 1860 about fifty were created in Philadelphia alone.

Extracting Perfume.

The method in which the most delicate perfumes are obtained from flowers is not of the most esthetic nature. The flower petals are spread over glasses which have previously been covered with a quarter inch layer of fat. The glasses are then shut tightly into wooden frames, and before long the fat absorbs all the perfume. The next process is to cut up the fragrant fat into small pieces and put these into alcohol. The perfume at once deserts its oily protector and unites with the alcohol. It is then fit for market. One thousand pounds of flowers which grow in Europe are odoriferous. Altogether there are 4,000 kinds, and of these the commonest are the white rose, which fragrance is to cut up the fragrant fat into 1,194 kinds, one-fifth of which are fragrant. There are 951 kinds of yellow flowers, 72 of which are odoriferous; of the 893 red kinds, 94; of the 554 blue kinds, 21; of the 406 violet blue kinds, 15. Of the 240 kinds with combined colors, 28 are fragrant.

Senior and Junior.

The use of "Jr." is simply to denote the younger of two persons in the case of uncles or grandfathers residing in the same community it would be a convenience for all concerned [where the name is the same] to have the nephews or grandsons use "Jr.," while the older persons used "Sr." for senior. The significance of 1, 2 and 3 is simply to denote different persons of the same name. In congress, where two or more members of the same name appear on the list, the name of the state each comes from is printed within parentheses. Where there are more than two of the same name as a family 1, 2 and 3 are sometimes used.

Carney Bros., which was lost in the ruins of Tuesday, July 30, after having fallen in the gulch in front of the store; it would seem almost impossible for such a large furnace to be carried such a distance but perhaps it had a clue that Dodsworth was shivering from frigid air and thought it would take the chances of having Janitor Mattox fire it up and show the public what a powerful heater it was.

JOTTINGS.

—Days of 1889 past, 266; days to come, 99

—The temporary bridge on Somerset street over Green brook has been completed.

—The fourth reunion of the Ninth N. J. Vols., will be held at Toms River to-morrow.

—The Reception Committee of the Y. M. C. A. will hold an important meeting this evening at 9 o'clock.

—The melancholy days of Autumn, which the poet pronounces "the saddest of the year", are slowly approaching.

—One stage of Fall seek wear for gentlemen is a one-sided scarf which has the appearance of a double-breasted coat.

—It is rumored that a young couple of this city were married under an electric light on Madison avenue last night.

—The quail and rabbit season is from the last day of October to the 15th day of December, according to the game law passed last Winter.

—Already the crop of buckwheat cakes is being gathered. Sausages will soon follow. The first installment being in demand for the agricultural fairs.

—The work and arches of the Somerset street bridge will be sold by the Board of Freeholders to-morrow, afternoon at two o'clock at Force's Hotel.

—"Grace Miller", a horse owned by Mr. Batterman of this city and driven by Charles Brower won the second money in a race at the Waverly fair Saturday.

—The Postmaster General last week appointed the following New Jersey postmasters: Richard A. Ross, Bloomsington; Richard A. Pellett, Papakating.

—The voter in New Jersey who believes in restricting the liquor traffic can vote only for the Republican candidates, they being the only ones who can enact restrictive laws.

—There will be a temperance meeting of the Woman's Christian Aid Society on Tuesday afternoon at four o'clock in Reform Hall. It is hoped that every member will be present.

—The delegates at the Republican Convention found their expenses very light last Tuesday as they brought their Grubb with them. It was rather a Keen way of doing business.

—The Autumnal equinox was with us a week too soon, this year. According to various opinions that means a severe winter, a green Christmas, a long warmth, frost twenty feet deep and a failure of the coming ice crop.—Madison Eagle.

—To inherit a fortune, is sometimes a misfortune to a young man. To have no necessity of struggling for a living, may keep a man from living a life worth living. A well known American is reported to have been asked, recently, for a sketch of his biography, and he is said to have answered frankly that he had been, and done nothing worth knowing.

—Frederick Warde met with an enthusiastic reception at the Opera House last evening. His new play, "The Mountebank," is likely to become one of his most popular pieces. It possesses elements of comedy, but abounds in strong dramatic passages for the star. In fact, the latter almost monopolizes the stage during the three hours required for the performance of the drama. His support, with the exception of Miss Rose, have little opportunity of exhibiting their talents, but appear to be capable. Mr. William Stuart, the young Pittsburg actor, did his part gracefully and well, as he always does. Mr. Warde has lots of hard work and performs it conscientiously. He essays comedy with considerable success, though he sometimes gives the impression of straining for effect, with the natural result appearing exaggerated in posture and speech. He received a recall at the end of each act and was frequently warmly applauded. Miss Rose was natural and forceful, and quite as effectively lachrymose as need be. Wilfred Clarke, as the Queen's fool, Charley, the comedian, had a comic role, which he played very creditably.—Pittsburg Press. Mr. Warde will appear at the Plainfield Music Hall in the same play to-morrow evening.

A DRUNKEN ROWDY.

Charles McCann While Intoxicated Assaults His Parents.

Saturday night Charles McCann, a young man about twenty-one years old, who resides on West Third street, filled up with "Jersey lightning", went to the home of his parents and commenced breaking up house-keeping. He started in by assaulting his father and mother, and ended by breaking up the furniture and household utensils. Before he had succeeded in demolishing everything in the house, he was driven to the woods. Following McCne arrived upon the scene and secured the young ruffian to the station house.

This morning he was arraigned before City Judge Stillman, charged with being drunk and disorderly and was sent to the county jail for thirty days.

The Sullivan Case Adjourned.

The case of Joseph Sullivan, charged with selling liquor illegally, which was to have come up this morning, has been adjourned over until October 21st.

The case was adjourned on account of two of the principal witnesses absenting themselves. A few minutes after adjournment William Ross, one of the witnesses, walked into the court room and Chief of Police Carey had him committed to jail in default of $200 bail to appear when wanted.

James O'Neill, another witness, was on complaint of Chief Carey arrested and fined $30, for his non-appearance. The Chief is determined to see that persons receiving subpoenas shall heed them, and appear when called.

Episcopal Convention.

The Archdeaconry of New Brunswick will hold its quarterly convocation on the 26th of September at St. Peter's church, Perth Amboy. The Archdeaconry comprises all the Episcopal churches of that part of the State between Elizabeth and Trenton, and has charge of all the missionary work of that region. About forty delegates are expected at this meeting. The services will consist of the Holy Communion, with sermon by the Rev. J. M. Harding, of Trenton, at 10:30 a. m., business meeting in the afternoon, and missionary meeting with addresses by Bishop Scarborough and others at 7:30 in the evening. The music at these services will be rendered by the choir of St. Peter's church.

The Jewish New Year.

The Jewish New Year will be celebrated with the usual religious services on the 26th and 27th of this month. Most of the stores of members of the congregations will be closed on the 27th. The Day of Atonement will begin at sundown on Oct. 4, and close at sundown on the 5th. It will be observed as a fast day, neither water nor food passing the lips of males above the age of thirteen years. The Feast of the Tabernacles, which commemorates the Jews dwelling in tents during their journey through the desert, will begin on Oct. 10, and continue eight days. The first two will be full, the next four half, and the last two full holidays.

A Small Fire.

A house belonging to Mr. F. Stren, of "Bull Frog City", took fire from a stove at about seven o'clock this morning. The flames were extinguished before the borough fire department arrived. The damage was slight.

ST. MARY'S FAIR.

A Number of Useful Articles to Be Disposed Of.

The fair for the benefit of St. Mary's Parochial school is now open in the school hall. Many useful and ornamental articles are disposed of every night. Saturday night the tailless donkey afforded considerable amusement. A goat was won by John Carney. A lamb is to be drawn for this week. There are three tables. The one to the left as you enter is the Stores' table and is in charge of Mrs. Slevin, Mrs. Hardpending, Mrs. Gross and Mrs. Thompson, the ladies are assisted by the members of the Catholic Young Men's Literary Union.

The Nobility's table is on the right and is in charge of Miss May Flynn, Miss May Flynn, Miss Ellen Barry, the Misses Maggie and Kitty Carney and Miss Ellen Sheehan. The members of the Emeralds assist at this table. The Rosary Society's table is situated in the southwest corner of the hall. Mrs. Wm. Moore, Miss Maggie Flynn, Miss Mary Loftus, the Misses Allis and Kittie Quinn, Miss Jollie Fields, Miss Kittie McCann and Miss Josie Moore are in charge. The members of St. Mary's T. A. B. Society assist the ladies in charge. Several contests are to be pulled off. A gold watch, a diamond ring and a Secretary's desk are the prizes offered. The gold watch contest will be decided Wednesday evening at half-past nine o'clock.

The W. C. T. U. Meeting.

An unusually large Gospel temperance meeting was held in the rooms of the Woman's Christian T-mperance Union at four o'clock yesterday afternoon. Great enthusiasm prevailed and special interest was manifested in the coming Fall and Winter work. About fifty persons took part.

A Prisoner's Attempted Escape.

Thomas Flannery, a prisoner in the Union county jail, at Elizabeth, while allowed to walk in the yard Saturday evening, suddenly bolted from the place and darted up Washington avenue. Turnkey Rapp, who saw the prisoner dash for liberty, followed in hot pursuit and finally captured the fugitive.

Watson's Case Also Adjourned.

Michael F. Watson's trial for selling liquor without a license, which was to have come up for trial to-day, was adjourned over for one week, the defendant's lawyer, Fred C. Marsh, of Elizabeth, being unable to be present today, owing to an important business engagement.

An Exciting Runaway.

A horse belonging to Mr. George Schlereth, of Chatham street, North Plainfield ran away on the Crescents ball grounds Saturday afternoon and created considerable excitement. Several persons who were in the wagon were thrown out. The vehicle was overturned but not broken. Captain Bowes, eventually caught the frightened animal. A boy named Bertie Glenzier was slightly injured.

—The State Republican League of New Jersey now embraces 205 clubs. Wilbur F. Mott, the president, expresses an earnestness in the coming campaign, and the clubs are to be marshalled into line for the success of the Republican ticket. A call has been issued for the second annual convention, which will be held in Elizabeth, October 15th.

OBITUARY.

State Geologist George H. Cook.

George H. Cook, L. L. D., Ph. D., State Geologist and vice-president of Rutgers College died at New Brunswick, suddenly, yesterday afternoon, of heart failure. Dr. Cook was taken ill yesterday noon in the college laboratory, but his illness was not considered at all serious, and his death was totally unexpected. He was born at Bessemer, N. J., in 1817. In 1836 he became a civil engineer, and his first work was in laying out the line for the Morris and Essex Railroad. He also surveyed the line for the Catskill and Delaware Railroad. He was not, however, satisfied with his attainments, and entered the Troy Polytechnic Institute, graduating in 1839. He afterward became a teacher in the institute, and in 1840 he was made "senior professor", equivalent in office to that of president elsewhere. He afterward became professor of mathematics and natural physiology in the Albany Academy. In 1851 he became principal of the academy and held the office two years, leaving to be elected to the chair of chemistry and natural philosophy in Rutgers College. The next year he was made assistant geologist of New Jersey, which position he held for three years. The office of State Geologist had been allowed to lapse for several years, but a paper read by Dr. Cook before the Legislature in 1864 led to its reorganization and his appointment as its head. His work as State Geologist has been varied and of great importance. The topographical maps of the State which have been published under his supervision have been adjudged to be among the best of any published by the different States. The last of the series was recently issued, and Dr. Cook was at the time of his death engaged on his final report. Two volumes had been prepared and are now in print. In 1864 the Legislature of New Jersey made Dr. Cook a commissioner, and Dr. Cook, while retaining his professorship, became vice-president of the College.

He was the organizer of the State Board of Agriculture, and for along time he was also its secretary. He became in 1866 Chief Director of the New Jersey State Weather Service He was long president of the New Brunswick Board of Water Commissioners. He was also a member of the State Board of Health, and held many minor offices in the State. He received also his work elsewhere. In 1852 he was sent to Europe by the State of New York to make investigations that might aid in developing the Onondaga salt springs. He went again to Europe in 1870 to study certain geological phases, and in 1878 he was a delegate to the International Geological Congress held at Paris in connection with the French Exposition. He was a member of the American Association for the Advancement of Science, and the author of many papers and addresses. He received the degree of Doctor of Philosophy from the University of New York, and the degree of Doctor of Laws from Union College.

Dr. Cook's wife, one son and one daughter survive him.

Palpitation of the Heart.

A French physician announces that distressing or excessive palpitation of the heart can always be arrested by bending double, the head down and the hands hanging, so as to produce a temporary congestion of the upper parts of the body. In many instances of nervous or anæmic palpitation, the heart immediately resumes its natural function. If the movements of respiration are arrested during this action, the effect is still more rapid.

—The season is now at hand when hunters of all ages get their guns and go forth to beg the shy and secluded game. It is not important, therefore, to advise the sportsman not to blow down the muzzle of his gun, not to play fully point an "unloaded" weapon at a friend, and to take care that when he aims at a mark it be not a human being transformed by the leaves and shadows of the woods into the semblance of a deer. Eternal vigilance is the price of safety on the part of gunners.—Somerset Democrat.

Sealed Proposals.

Sealed proposals, accompanied with plans and specifications, will be received by the undersigned Committee of the Board of Council Freeholders of the counties of Union and Somerset at 2:30 p. m. on TUESDAY, SEPT. 24, 1889, at Force's Hotel, Plainfield, N. J., for one leaning-and low truss iron bridge over Green brook on Somerset street, Plainfield, said bridge to be forty-five (45) feet between abutments at right angles, and thirty-two (32) feet clear roadway between the sidewalks of eight (8) feet each, the whole width of the street being (60) feet. The length of said bridge is 15 degs. 36 from a right angle.

The structure to sustain 100 lbs. per superficial foot on floor, and be eight feet of bridge, with a factor of four for safety.

Also, at the same time and place, proposals will be received for a girder bridge of the same strength and dimensions.

Plans and specifications for the said girder bridge may be seen at the office of the engineer of F. A. Dunham, C. E., No. 7 Park avenue. Contractors will bid for either brick or iron abutments, as they prefer.

The Committee will choose which of above bridges they will accept on the day of delivery bid will be opened, and no proposals will be received by said Committee for the masonry of any bridge, unless proposals for the same may be seen and examined at the aforesaid engineer's office.

The Committee reserve the right to reject any or all proposals for either of the above.

Will sell at same time and place the clean-ing out of the same, wood and anchor of the Somerset street bridge.

SOUTH PLAINFIELD CHOSEN.

For the Route at the New Railroad.

Some time ago it was given out that the Lehigh Valley Railroad had completed arrangements, with but one exception, to run their new line from Bound Brook through North Plainfield, and thence along the base of the mountain through Newark, in the best of their ability. Now they work, avoiding the necessity of building bridges, and securing a much direct route. They had only to complete arrangements with the Delaware and Lackawanna Railroad Company, to cover their route. It seemed at that time as if a favorable arrangement would be made. Since then the aspect has changed, and the Lehigh Company a week ago began work on another route, one of the several staked out some time ago. The road bed at Roselle is being raised so that the Lehigh Valley can bridge, and thus run their line over the Central Railroad tracks.

The line leaves Bound Brook, and runs through to South Plainfield, then dividing, one branch going to South Amboy and the other through Roselle Park using the double bed through Newark to Jersey City, where the Lehigh Valley has some 300 acres of water front, between the Pennsylvania and the Central, and Philadelphia and Reading depots. The Lehigh Company is to erect a depot of its own. This puts an end to the probabilities of a route through North Plainfield.

Y. P. S. C. E. State Convention.

The State Convention of the New Jersey Young People's Society of Christian Endeavor, to be held at the Tabernacle in Jersey City, Oct. 3d, will undoubtedly be the largest and most earnest gathering of young people's laws, ever held in New Jersey. The Hudson County Local Union Executive Committee is making the necessary arrangements, and every possible comfort will be provided for the visiting delegations. The names of the leading Christian Endeavor speakers will be secured.

Special to Young Men.

Mr. Milton A. Craft, who leaves the city to-morrow for the seminary at Alexandria, Va., will conduct the young men's meeting at the Y.M.C.A. rooms this evening at 8 o'clock. A meeting of peculiar interest may be expected. Topic: "Following Christ"; John 12:21. Every man is invited to be present and to join heartily in the singing.

Gleanings from our Exchanges on Political Topics.

General Grubb, in the honestly expressed opinion of the Trenton Emporium, possesses more elements of strength than any gentleman named in the Convention, and himself and his party will make a strong fight for success. The Emporium, itself a pretty good Democratic paper, advises the Democrats not to rest on their oars with confidence in the election of their candidate for Governor.—Camden Courier.

* * *

The Republican Convention on Tuesday dominated Gen. E. Burd Grubb for Governor. He was a gallant soldier during the war, and is a wealthy and honorable man.—Salem Sunbeam.

* * *

The Democrats are feebly trying to make the point that General Grubb is more of a Philadelphian than a Jerseyman. Well we understand this matter in Jersey. We know that Gen. Grubb was born in New Jersey, and has been a citizen of New Jersey all his life. He is a good deal better Jerseyman than the New York lawyer who tried but failed to secure membership in the New York Bar Association.—Trenton Gazette.

NEW JERSEY NUGGETS.

Live News Notes from Various Parts of the State.

—The Cassaintore Volks-fest, which had been postponed twice on account of the weather, will be continued to-day and to-morrow, in Caledonian Park, Jersey City. Great crowds are expected.

—It was reported last evening that Mayor Haynes of Newark had signed the water contract of the Lehigh Valley Company. This is the scheme which proposes to supply water to Newark, Jersey City, and neighboring places from the Boonton supply, the Passaic watershed.

—Martin Healy, a driver on the Elizabeth street railway, by his presence of mind saved the lives of several passengers on Saturday night. He car, which had ten persons in it, was caught by a freight train on the East Jersey street crossing of the Long Branch Railroad shortly after nine o'clock, the time when duty it is to guard the crossing having gone by. Healy, when he saw the train coming upon him, clapped on the brake and by a desperate effort, dragged the horse to one side. The animal only received a glancing blow on the side.

"The Twelfth Mass."

[From The Detroit Journal.]

"Hurrah! hurrah!" shouted a veteran as the orchestra at the sangerfest began to play a selection.

"You must be quiet," said one of the ushers rushing up to him.

"Not much I mustn't" said the veteran, "not when that is played. I used to belong to that regiment, and I'll shout for the boys as long as the Almighty gives me breath."

"Your regiment; what do you mean?" asked the usher, delighted at the crowd waited to hear the result of the disturbance.

"That's what I mean," said the veteran, patting his finger on the programme. "There it is. Twelfth Mass. That's my regiment. The old Twelfth Massachusetts. We fought from Bull Run to Fort Fisher, North Carolina."

It was only when he was convinced that it was a piece of church music that he would consent to be quieted.

Is Old Age a Necessity?

The repeating cycles of history seem to be bringing the world again into the ancient beliefs in alchemy, the elixir of life and the fountain of eternal youth. Certainly many persons now again seriously advocate the doctrine that one may prolong youth and life almost at will. Following this line of thought, Mr. C. A. Stephens has written a very elaborate work called "Living Matter: Its Cycle of Growth and Decline in Animal Organisms."

Mr. Stephens thinks that old age is not a necessity. He believes if science only knew how to eliminate the dead and clogging matter from man's body, vitality would assert itself as powerfully and pleasurably as in youth, almost indefinitely.

He takes the ground of the unity of living matter, to which matter some scientists give the name of biogen.

The same life principle remains always, ever springing into elastic activity, perpetually renewing itself. But like the waters of a spring, at last it becomes choked and seeks another outlet. When the dead matter enveloping it becomes too great for it to make its way through, then it simply withdraws itself and goes elsewhere. That is what death is.

For one thing, people generally eat twice as much as they ought to, messes of all kinds. That is one way in which the life principle is clogged in process of years. Then they do not take robust physical exercise, but settle down as middle age approaches and allow bony deposits to form about their joints and stiffen them. The older people become, the more pains they should take to keep themselves physically active. The brain processes of anxiety and evil passion of all kinds use up the cell tissues and clog the nervous system, and that is another cause of death, so called. Mr. Stephens firmly believes that a way will be found to rid the race of the accumulation of "formed matter" in our bodies.

The Wheat Trade.

It is a fact that the foreign demand for American wheat is slowly but surely lessening. This is owing chiefly to competition from other countries, especially Russia. With the building of the great railway across the empire eastward from St. Petersburg to the Pacific ocean, Russia will be able to pour wheat into the markets of Europe by the thousand car loads. This transcontinental railway will be finished in three years at most.

The Millstone says that the United States must make up its mind that the only shape in which it will shortly be profitable to ship our wheat abroad will be flour. But in that case the United States must also make up its mind to produce a better article of flour. Our lightning milling machinery turns wheat into flour faster than any other, but the slower processes in use in Europe make a sweeter, more nutritious flour. This is recognized in the Old World.

Chinese Journalism.

The progress of journalistic enterprise is nowhere more fully illustrated than in the following clippings from a Chinese newspaper. The triumphant newspaper correspondent and interviewer has invaded even China, Melican fashion. The almond eyed correspondent says of our ladies:

When women go to court they regard a bare ankle as a mark of respect, and an ordinary occasion when they meet their parents they must supply their feet to the judge and left shoulder to the elder with a smacking sound, which is accordingly strange.

Is it possible the inhabitants of the celestial kingdom don't know about kissing? What poor creatures they are!

Here is more:

Women who are shortsighted will mount spectacles in public; even young girls in their teens will do the same, and so walk along the streets, and it is not at all strange.

If a man does not smoke or drink he is universally respected, and it is considered meritorious. As regards women, most of them drink, but exceedingly few smoke.

London has set the example of founding clubs to which both men and women belong, and they are said to be delightful. Of these the newest clubs at Albemarle is a prominent one. Women can go there alone to dinner, which is some thing new for London. Besides a first class restaurant the Albemarle has an excellent library and pleasant parlors. Why do we not have some clubs for both men and women in America? The church social comes nearest to it, perhaps.

Senator Wade Hampton remarks in reference to the negro question: "No country was ever made or can be made for the occupation of two races distinct from each other in color, habits and traditions. One of the races must migrate, or one of the two must be exterminated, or the two must amalgamate."

Mississippi is a state in which penitentiary convicts are hired out by contract. What an edifying spectacle it will be to see the great John L. Sullivan hired out to a farmer and driving a mule, or wheeling dirt on a railroad embankment. It's enough to bring tears to the eyes to think of it.

THE FRENCH ELECTIONS.

Boulangists Are Thus Far in the Lead.

THEY PLAY A CLEVER TRUMP CARD

The Parisian Military Is Under Arms and Fully Prepared to Preserve Order.

Boulangists Roughly Dispersed—Great Excitement in the Metropolis of France.

PARIS, Sept. 22.—Paris has been in a turmoil today such as only Paris excited can furnish. The city is emblazoned throughout with posters. Every status, every column, every monument, every wall is covered with circulars that vie with each other in brilliancy of color and grandeur of lettering. The Boulangists played one of their spectacular trump cards during the night. When daylight broke upon Paris the entire city was covered with brilliant posters picturing Gen. Boulanger upon his celebrated black charger charging upon a whole army and covering it with gore and glory, while below ran the words:

A Boulangist Trump Card.

"ELECTORS—If you wish to vote for the slaughterers of the Parisians, for the devourers of the soldiers of the Commune, give your vote to the candidate of the government."

"VOICE OF THE NATIONAL PARTY."

The Boulangists at the sight of this picture went mad with enthusiasm, and indeed it was the party of the brave general that made the most noise all day.

Regiments on Guard.

In Montmartre, where the popular here stood for election, and in Belleville, where his fellow exile, Rochefort, was a candidate, regiments of troops were on duty on guard from the time the polls opened until they closed, and sternly checked all demonstrations that seemed to tend toward an outbreak. When the polls closed at 6 o'clock there was comparative quiet, while Paris, which does not forget its dinner under any circumstances, went home to regale itself. But two hours later all the people were in the streets.

Pandemonium Reigned.

When the returns began to come in, and it was announced that Boulanger and Rochefort had been elected, there was pandemonium. Twenty thousand people had gathered in the Place del Opera, where Thes Prosse, the leading Boulangist organ, was issuing bulletins, and these went mad with enthusiasm. "Vive Boulanger! Vive Boulanger!" roared every throat. Hats went up in the air, a few who dared to his were cut upon and beaten, and finally the "Boulanger March" was started by thousands of voices, and the great mob, fired by the music, started up the thoroughfare.

Squelched by Soldiers.

At this moment down the Avenue des Capucines came a regiment of the mounted Republican guard, several hundred strong, followed by a force of infantry. With most brutal violence men, women and children were driven into the side streets, and the Place del Opera and the Boulevard des Italiens were occupied by the military. The crowd fled then to the Place de la Fourth of September, and the military dispersed it as far as the Bourse and took possession of that thoroughfare as well. It was evident from this measure that the government was fully prepared to take the sternest course for the preservation of order, and when the rumor reached the people in the streets that the votes of Boulanger, Rochefort and Dillon would not be counted there was an ominous murmur. However, the military was in possession of every vantage point, and even if there had been any leaders an outbreak would have been impossible.

The Boulangists to Be Ignored.

Rochefort received a majority over the five candidates in his arrondissement, but it falls a plurality to elect. It is not expected that the government will take any cognizance of the vote for either Boulanger or Rochefort, for the Boulangists have a very small following. Paris is under guard, and it is evident that she is not going to be taken by surprise again in case of an uprising.

The Latest Returns.

Great joy was occasioned by the news which reached the Boulevard after 1 o'clock from the west of France to the effect that Jules Ferry had been defeated in the Georges, for which he had been returned for twelve years. Both these interesting items, however, are not as reliable as Boulangists would wish them to be.

Out of 570 electoral districts results have been sent in from seventy only, and out of these in thirty cases new elections will have to be held. In the remaining forty districts which have been heard from, and in which definite results have been reached, the Boulangist and Conservative candidates are for the most part in close contact. Brittany elects Count Dillon, the partner in exile of Boulanger and Rochefort, Angoulême returns Deroulede, the president of the Patriot league, Lagniche and Laisant, the trio of Boulangist journalists, are returned in the Paris delegation. In fact none of the well known members of the Revisionist and Boulangist parties have been beaten, but in spite of Naquet, Rochefort and Edouard Herve, all running in Paris, there will have to be another ballot.

A Severe Struggle Predicted.

LONDON, Sept. 23.—The Standard's Paris dispatch says that the prevalent impression is that the government is worsted, and there will be a severe struggle in the second ballots.

To Shut Out Canadian Laborers.

BUFFALO, Sept. 23.—At a meeting of the local assembly of the Central Labor union the question of Canadian laborers coming here in this city came up and was discussed at some length. It was claimed that every morning a large number of Canadians came over the river to this city, and they receive for from 50 to 75 cents a day less than the American laborer and also worked an hour longer each day. The names of some sixteen of these men were given. Unless some other way of getting rid of them could be found the ferry every day had been furnished the United States district attorney by the committee but nothing had been done in the matter. The Canadians continue to come over here to work and were by their competition causing great injury to the laboring men of this city. The sentiment of the meeting was in favor of the committee and a motion to appoint a committee to seek advice in regard to the alien laborers was carried with a rush.

Athletics Accused of Fraud.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 23.—After the game at the baseball grounds this afternoon, Manager Barnie, of the Baltimores, accused the Athletic officials of passing people through a side gate, receiving their money and making no return for it. The Athletic people admit that 36 or 40 were passed in that way, but deny that they had any intention to defraud.

To Succeed Commander Harrington.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Sept. 23.—Commander Henry Howe has requested at the naval academy to succeed Commander Harrington as commandant of naval cadets.

IN STATU QUO.

Maj. Warner Still Undecided—The Objection to Gen. Gibson.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 23.—The reports which have been put in circulation in the last two days in relation to the president's choice of this or that man for the position of pension commissioner have been based on desire or imagination. Since Maj. Warner, the secretary of the interior and the president had their conference the matter has been as much undecided as on the day that Commissioner Tanner sent in his resignation. One name which was considered at this conference in a very favorable way was one that has been by very little mentioned in the public discussion of the Tanner succession. It was that of Gen. W. H. Gibson, of Tiffin, O. Gen. Gibson is one of the most popular men in Ohio, and his appointment at this time would help the Republican party materially in the coming campaign in that state. But unfortunately Gen. Gibson was author of the law which only two years ago at the time that his brother-in-law assembled some of the funds of the state, and he endeavored to shield the criminal. The people of Ohio of every politics hold that Gen. Gibson in high esteem, and there would be no criticism of his appointment in the state, but there is no doubt that his appointment would arouse a storm of adverse criticism in other parts of the country, and so the choice, which at one time during the conference seemed almost certain, was not made. The president still holds that Maj. Warner will accept, but his friends do not think that he will.

New Cannon for the Army.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 23.—The ordnance bureau of the war department has opened bids for supplying 9,000 pounds of tinned steel wire of rectangular cross section, and 21,000 pounds of steel wire of square section for wrapping guns. The wire for which the bids were invited is intended for use in making the 8-inch rifle. It was to do that morning and went back to the house. Chalkley is said at the department that one, at least, of the bids was reasonable enough in price to warrant a purchase of the wire if of good quality. To determine this point the department will immediately test the sample submitted. When the material is procured the ordnance bureau will again advertise for proposals for building the barrel and machinery for winding the tube with wire to be supplied by the government. No proposals were received in answer to the first advertisement, and it is believed that a few more will attend a re-advertisement. If it should not, however, the ordnance bureau will itself undertake to build the guns, which, it is asserted by the inventor, will be fully as efficient and much cheaper of construction than the standard built up steel gun.

Rutgers' President Dead.

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J., Sept. 23.—Dr. George H. Cook, state geologist and vice president of Rutgers college, died suddenly Sunday of heart failure, in his 70th year. He was born in Hanover, N. J., and became a civil engineer at the age of 19. He graduated from the Troy Polytechnic school, of which institution he was afterward instructor and afterward, in 1842, its president. He was afterward president of the Dilworth academy, and in 1852 was made professor of chemistry and natural philosophy at Rutgers college. In 1854 he was appointed assistant state geologist, succeeding ten years later to the head of that department, and to the vice-presidency of Rutgers. He was also director of the State Scientific school, a delegate to the International Geological congress in London in 1878, a governor, and the degree of LL.D. from Union college and was made doctor of philosophy by the New York university. He leaves a wife and two grown children.

Boston Favors the New League.

BOSTON, Sept. 23.—The Globe says in regard to the proposed co-operative baseball scheme to be inaugurated by the Brotherhood of Baseball players that the success in this city depends upon Mr. Billy Morrill, who has been acting as agent for the projectors of the scheme, has found plenty of support and backing, and has gone so far as to select grounds for the new park. Mr. Morrill will be financially interested in the new club. Among the other stockholders will be George Wright, Gen. Dixwell and Julian Hart. George Wright is enthusiastic over the proposed scheme, and says it has progressed so far that knowledge of the facts cannot injure its success.

Counterfeiters Routed.

TOLONO, Ills., Sept. 23.—A gang of counterfeiters has been broken up at Sidney. Ohio this time, city officers there having been accused by his son of being the leader of the gang, has escaped, but Pendy and Klasinger, two others of the gang, are in jail at Urbana, and Randall, a negro, is locked up at Springfield. Constable Bane, of Homer, was fined $98 by Justice Clark for arresting and attempting to remove without a warrant Pendy and Klasinger. He had made a partial confession of his father's guilt.

The Company Censured.

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., Sept. 23.—The coroner's jury after investigating the cause of the death of Mrs. Adams, of Casey, Ills., one of the victims of the recent railroad disaster, rendered a verdict charging the railroad company with criminal carelessness. Engineer Mills, is expected to die, and William Mumford, of Princeton, Ind., is in a critical condition.

Killed on the Ball Field.

NEW YORK, Sept. 23.—Thomas J. Godfrey, a member of the Staten Island Athletic club, was killed in a game of baseball on the club grounds at West Brighton. Godfrey was at the bat and was hit by a pitched ball. He was taken into the club house unconscious, and died shortly of concussion of the brain. Godfrey was 26 years of age and unmarried.

Wyoming's Convention.

CHEYENNE, Wy., Sept. 23.—A chapter on irrigation, vesting the ownership of water in the state and recognizing the right of prior appropriators was adopted by the constitutional convention last night. Another chapter and a proposition creating a state board, which shall settle differences between employer and employe, were presented.

An Old Engineer's Death.

HARTFORD, Sept. 23.—John H. Morse, the engineer who on Friday night fell on a knife which he had point uppermost in his own pocket, is dead. He was 50 years of age, and leaves a wife and three children. He had been an engineer on the New York, New Haven and Hartford road since 1853.

Across the Continent.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 23.—John Allen and P. B. Flatt, who left New York on May 14 for a bicycle across the continent, reached here safely this afternoon. They made the trip in 130 days, the actual riding time being 117 days.

Thirty-five Negroes Cremated.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 23.—The shanties of John Lynch, a negro, on 23rd and Girard avenue, was burned and thirty-five horses perished. Loss, $6,000.

HOW MISS LECONEY DIED.

Hired Man Murray Makes an Alleged Confession.

"MURRAY, I'VE KILLED ANNIE."

Are the Words He Says Leconey Uttered as He Stood Over the Bleeding Body of His Niece—They Quarreled About the Property.

CAMDEN, N. J., Sept. 23.—The negro, Murray, Chalkley Leconey's hired man, has told the story of Annie Leconey's death. If his confession is true, and Prosecutor Joslin says it is amply fortified by corroborative evidence, Leconey's path to the scaffold will be short. The theory held by the prosecutor from the first has been that Leconey was the murderer, but the efforts of the detectives to fasten the crime upon him have been met and defeated at nearly every turn. Realizing that his greatest danger lay in Murray's weakness, Leconey has clung to him like a burr, kept him constantly in sight and guarding his conversation with every one who came to ask about the murder.

How It Was Told to the Head Men.

It was not until Leconey started for the west with the body of his victim that opportunity came to work on Murray. Then he was arrested. For a few days he kept to his previous stories, insisting that he and Leconey went to the attic with the body of the murdered girl. Finally his nerve gave way and he told how the dreadful deed was done.

"On the morning of the murder I was out to the barn after breakfast and waited there for some fifteen minutes. I did not know what I was to do that morning and went back to the house. Chalkley Leconey opened the door, looked out and then shut it. I walked in. Annie was on the floor with her throat cut and the uncle held a bloody carving knife.

"Murray, I've Killed Annie!"

"He said: 'Murray, I've killed Annie. We quarreled and she took the knife off the table. I snatched it away from her. I didn't mean to do it, but she came at me to strike me and I ran the knife into her. My God, what shall I do? I believe I die.'

"They had quarreled about the property all the time we were eating breakfast.

Blood on All His Clothing.

"Leconey had on the same clothes he wore every day, with a cotton shirt and pair of slippers. He went up stairs and brought back some of the money which was in the chest. He gave it to me and made me promise not to tell. Then he went out and washed at the pump and washed his shirt and pantaloons in the pond. Annie's blood was on all his clothes. The tracks in the pond are mine. Then we both went to the citrus field."

His Alleged Attempt to Fly.

Detectives were on hand at the arresting Leconey at the time of his departure for Ohio, for they had become alarmed by his evident nervousness. At the depot he was seen talking to a closely veiled woman who was not known to them, and a few minutes later he had disappeared.

He was found just as the train was about to leave trying to get through the gate at the north end of the depot, where only local passengers enter. The detective who was watching him sent word to Mr. Jenkins that he was afraid Leconey would slip away, but the prosecutor held to his plan and let him go. It is supposed the woman is the house keeper with whom Leconey is said to have been intimate, and that they had planned to join fortunes.

Spokane's Alleged Boodlers.

PORTLAND, Ore., Sept. 23.—A Spokane Falls' special says the trial of the alleged "boodlers" in connection with the citizens relief fund is in progress. The first of the indictments to be put upon trial is that of D. D. Waters, a member of the city council, and also commissary general of the National guard of Washington territory. The chief clerk of the relief committee testified that he had permitted Waters to take a load of provisions to his residence upon his representations that he was unable to purchase elsewhere, and could pay for them. With Adjutant General Graham's orders. Waters had instructed him to go around the back way and not to let any one see him deliver the goods. For hauling Waters had presented him with two pairs of blankets which had been taken from the relief tent.

No Trace of Hurley's Bank Robbers.

HURLEY, Wis., Sept. 23.—No clew has as yet been discovered regarding the robbery of the bank. A key ring was found pinned to the Iron Exchange bank on Friday night. Holbrick, a driver of Davis' Dray line, picked up a bag containing $700 in silver in the morning near where Cashier Mygatts' coat and hat were found. He turned the money over to the officers. It is part of the cash taken from the bank, and is supposed to have been a handicap to the robbers on account of its weight. Officers are watching every nook and corner of the town night and day, but so far as known not the slightest trace of the robbers has been found.

Women Escape from an Asylum.

CLEVELAND, O., Sept. 23.—Two inmates of the Northern Ohio lunatic asylum eluded the vigilance of their attendants and escaped from the institution. Both are from Warren, O., one being the young wife of Probate Judge Gilbert, and the other Mrs. Mikesell, the wife of a prominent business man. They are friends and escaped together. Mrs. Gilbert is a very attractive woman and highly educated. She escaped by the use of a ladder made by means of a key made of a comb. It is thought that the women are in Canada.

Mr. St. John Spoke.

NEW YORK, Sept. 23.—Ex-Governor John P. St. John, of Kansas, addressed the American Temperance union at Chickering hall this afternoon. He is the newly elected grand chief templar of the national temperance grand lodge formerly to the recent convention of liquor dealers held in this state and to the alliance of politics with the rum power. Dr. J. K. Funk and Joseph A. Bogardus also addressed the meeting.

She Will Take Douglass to Hayti.

BALTIMORE, Sept. 23.—The "many-o'-war" Quinpee has sailed from this port for Norfolk, where she will repair and coal and then sail for Hayti with Frederick Douglass, the new United States minister to that country, on board.

From Prince to Chicago by Wheel.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 23.—Thomas Roe, the Chicago bicyclist, started from the Palace hotel at noon on his journey by wheel to Chicago, where he expects to arrive in fifty days.

Wilkie Collins Dying.

LONDON, Sept. 23.—Wilkie Collins is still in a very low condition, and grave doubts are entertained by his medical advisers as to his living the night the day.

QUEBEC'S DEAD.

Funeral Services Over Twenty-one of the Landslide's Victims.

QUEBEC, Sept. 23.—The funeral of the victims of the recent terrible landslide took place Sunday. Sixty laborers, about 100 strong, headed by Premier Mackenzie, led the procession. Then followed the police force bearing the costly flowers presented by the city council. Then came fifteen hearses containing the bodies of twenty-one of the victims.

The funeral services took place at St. Patrick's church. Father Hayden, assisted by Father Welsh, officiated at the obsequies. After the services the procession proceeded to Woodfield cemetery, where the twenty-one bodies were deposited in vaults prior to final interment.

Some 200 men are actively working at the debris, and some more corpses are expected to be found shortly. The anxiety and unsuspense in which the inhabitants of the city were plunged by the catastrophe has not yet subsided, nor will it until all traces of the wreckage have disappeared and the overhanging walls made secure.

THE NEWS IN BRIEF.

The National Woman's Evangelical Missionary society has adjourned at Reading, Pa., after choosing Rochester, Ind., as the next place of meeting.

An Oyster War Imminent.

BALTIMORE, Sept. 23.—The oyster gathering citizens of Accomac, Virginia accuse oysterers of a wanton violation of the oyster laws governing the Potomac river. The Virginians claim that their acts are sanctioned by treaty, which is a compact now in force formed between Virginia and Maryland, which gave both states equal rights on the Potomac regarding oyster catching. Each state claims to have laws for the protection of the oyster beds. The laws are alike and apply to the citizens of both states. Dredging in the Potomac is prohibited between April 1st and Nov. 1. Now Virginians are taking their oysters at the mouth of the Potomac, the state of Virginia, they claim, having granted permits for that purpose. The oystermen in Maryland are excited over it, and say they are determined that the state of Maryland shall hold Virginia to a strict observance of the law.

Died of Cold and Exposure.

NEW YORK, Sept. 23.—Mary Mullins, 23 years old, entered a station house early in the morning with a dead babe in her arms, and told a sad story of destitution and suffering. She had been married about three months ago to look for work in the country, and since then she has not heard from him. Mrs. Mullins went to live with her mother-in-law, who would slip away, but the prosecutor held to his plan and let him go. It is supposed the woman is the house keeper with whom Leconey is said to have been intimate, and that they had planned to join fortunes.

A Rich Man's Child Begging.

NEW YORK, Sept. 23.—Jennie Hatfield, 6 years old, has been arrested by an agent of the Children's society, charged with begging in the street. She is the daughter of John Hatfield, a millionaire, who left this city and is now a bookmaker in Chicago. Hatfield left his wife some time ago, taking with him the oldest girl, claiming that she was his only child. Mrs. Hatfield is so poor that she had to send her child out to beg. Jennie was committed to the care of the Children's society. Hatfield is said to be worth $1,000,000. He has two other children of Mrs. Hatfield's in their charge.

Conductor and Engineer Censured.

HARTFORD, Vt., Sept. 23.—The state board of railroad commissioners have made their report in the matter of the collision on the Central Vermont railroad, which occurred Aug. 20 last. This report is to the effect that the collision was the result of the grossest and most inexcusable carelessness on the part of Conductor Hall and Engineer Chilson, of the freight train, which ran into the special passenger train, of which they had due notice. Four persons were killed by the collision and Hall and Chilson were themselves badly injured.

Austria's Smokeless Powder.

LONDON, Sept. 23.—The new smokeless powder invented by an Austrian officer, which has just been successfully tested by the Austro-Hungarian government, is said to exceed in carrying power the similar powder adopted by the German army, but to be slightly less "smokeless." The fact is that neither powder is entirely without smoke, but the Austrian powder is so nearly so as to be practically perfect.

A Louisville Whisky Failure.

LOUISVILLE, Sept. 23.—John B. McIlvaine & Son, consisting of the John B. McIlvaine estate, and J. Banks McIlvaine, have assigned for the benefit of their creditors. The firm has been in existence here in the whisky business for twenty-five years. They are surety for Mattingly & Sons for $100,000, and can pay about sixty-five cents on the dollar.

A Long Strike Over.

LANCASTER, Pa., Sept. 23.—The long strike at the Columbia rolling mills has been formally declared off at a meeting of the Amalgamated association. The strike has lasted nearly seven months, and most of the strikers' places have been filled, with non-union men.

Eight Rounds to a Finish.

PITTSBURG, Sept. 23.—At an early hour Billy Bissell and Jack Ryan, of this city, fought eight rounds to a finish at a place a short distance from Wilkinsburg, a suburb of this city. Bissell was knocked out in the eighth round. The victor weighed 165 and Ryan 143 pounds. The purse was $150.

To Break the Cotton Corner.

LONDON, Sept. 23.—The Lancashire cotton manufacturers propose to close down for a week in order to break the corner now existing in cotton. The Operatives' association has agreed to this proposal.

Two Killed on the Crossing.

WOODBINE, L. I., Sept. 23.—William Dow most stepped in front of a Long Island train Sunday night and was horribly mangled. James Sandelbach was killed Saturday evening on the same crossing.

HOPKINS' TRIPLE CRIME.

He Shoots His Wife, Her Mother and Himself.

HE KILLED BOTH HIS VICTIMS.

A Domestic Tragedy at Phillipsburg, Pa.—The Critique of a Single Day—Dead in an Opium Joint—A Strange Brooklyn Crime.

BELLEFONTE, Pa., Sept. 23.—Word was sent to District Attorney J. C. Meyer, of this place, that at 10 a. m. Sealey Hopkins, of Phillipsburg, had shot his wife, and mother-in-law, and then tried to kill himself, but was unsuccessful. From facts elicited it appears that the family did not live happily together and some time ago had parted, but lately have been living together again. Hopkins, when intoxicated, provoked a quarrel with his wife, and, becoming violently excited, procured a revolver and shot her dead. He then went up stairs and shot his wife's mother dead, after which he proceeded to an adjoining livery stable, where he shot himself twice in the head, but neither shot will prove very serious. He was placed under arrest immediately by the sheriff of the county, Dr. Bright being present. He will be brought to Bellefonte at once and placed in jail to await trial at the November term of court.

A medical examination of the man was made and he was pronounced entirely sane.

Jealousy Was the Cause.

Jealousy was the fatal unfaithfulness of his wife are believed to have been the reasons that incited Hopkins to the crime. When arrested a letter was found upon his person addressed to his wife with the thought that his attempt at suicide would be successful. In it he charges two citizens of Phillipsburg with being criminally intimate with his wife, and says that if he can get bail he will get out of town in order not to interfere with his rivals in his wife's affections.

The letter also contains the request that all his debts be paid by Hopkins, No. 37 Stone street, Rochester, N. Y.

Hopkins was arrested on the previous day for an assault and battery on his wife committed a week ago, and was committed to jail in default of bail. For some unknown reason the constable failed to take him to jail, but gave him his liberty.

Murdered by Hoodlums.

PEORIA, Ills., Sept. 23.—A gang of Lower Peoria hoodlums, who, under the leadership of James Mackey, have for months back been a terror to citizens, have brought their criminal career to a climax by the murder of an inoffensive old man named Corven. For refusing to purchase drinks for the gang they were knocked down by a blow of the fist and kicked until the state of insensibility and died from the injuries. Three members of the gang—Kerns, Haggerty and Hamilton—are under arrest, while the entire police force are searching the suburbs for the fourth member, Mackey.

A Strange Brooklyn Murder.

BROOKLYN, Sept. 23.—Michael Hallers, a painter, aged 38, died at the Brooklyn Homeopathic hospital from the effects of a bite received during a fight with Henry Detterman on Sept. 8. The two men had quarreled over some borrowed money, and while scuffling Detterman got Hallers' thumb in his mouth and bit it nearly off with his teeth. Hallers paid but little attention to the injury until a few days ago, when he went to the hospital for treatment. Blood poisoning had set in, however, and the physicians say the bite made above his hip. Detterman has been arrested.

A Divorced Wife Shoots Herself.

CLEVELAND, Sept. 23.—Miss Luella G. Bezena, the divorced wife of Henry Kennaman, a molder of the Cleveland fire department, probably fatally shot herself here. Mrs. Kennaman is a dressmaker, and Bezena is employed and asked for him, but was not permitted to see him. She sat down, and drawing a revolver shot herself in the left side of the breast. Physicians say from the nature of the wound that it was probably accidental. It is thought she came with the intention of shooting Kennaman.

Murdered and Thrown Into the River.

PROVIDENCE, Sept. 23.—The body of Philip Lannan, a carpenter, aged 38, who had been missing since Wednesday, was found in the river, bearing cuts and bruises. Lannon was doubtless robbed and murdered, and the indications are that more than one person took part in the crime. He was over six feet tall and of powerful build. He probably became intoxicated and was killed in a brawl, the body being carried to the river for concealment.

BURDETTE'S PHILOSOPHY.

REMEMBRANT RESENTFUL.

An honest Indiana, who had been among the cities men long enough to learn how to answer his fellow men, within the pale of the law, opened a saloon in Terre Haute. Opposite his door, on a high wooden flagstaff, he hung a sign, big as your hat, the first night, which read, "Superfluous notice to thieves, you walk." And all night long those thieves walked, and every policeman on the force escaped a bullet because the policeman who listened heeded a tree box over the way.

SORROW—WELL OUT AFTER 'EM.

A teacher of a cooking school out in Pittsburg made an unsuccessful attempt to commit suicide last Thursday. At dinner, the stings and lashings of an evening's conscience, goading a mind hardened with the guilt of human suffering, must be something terrible.

SINKING AWAY FROM TEMPTATION.

First Citizen—There comes [illegible]; let's go across the street and turn down the alley before he sees us. Second Citizen—Why, I thought you were great friends! First Citizen—So we are, now; but he has a new story about his 9-year-old boy. [Exeunt omnes, on the dead run.]—Burdette in Brooklyn Eagle.

It Makes a Difference.

"Isn't that a shame!" he exclaimed as he halted between the circus parks and pointed from one to the other.

"What?"

"Why, the way the grass is burned up. It's curious how the city neglects its own property. Some one ought to be ashamed of himself."

"Yes. You own a place up the avenue?"

"I do?"

"I was past there the other day, and I noticed that you hadn't a live spear of grass left. It has all burned out for the want of a few feet of hose and a little attention. It's curious how some people neglect their own property."

"Ahem!"

"Good morning!"—Detroit Free Press.

He Misunderstood.

The Young Woman on top platform of Eiffel tower)—Doesn't it seem strange to you, Mr. Spoonamore, that so little oscillation is noticeable up here?

The Young Man (eagerly)—Not at all, Miss Ethel. I have no doubt there is a great deal of it indulged in up here, but it can't be seen from below. The elevation is too great. And now, Miss Ethel, you will, I am sure—you will pardon—

The Young Woman (arresting his forward movement by a freezing look)—I said oscillation, Mr. Spoonamore—not osculation. (After a depressing silence)—I think, Mr. Spoonamore, it is time for us to descend.—Chicago Tribune.

Had Got Back.

Collector—Is Mr. Slowpay in?

Landlady—No, sir.

"I called five weeks ago, and you said he had gone to Long Branch for a month. Hasn't he got back yet?"

"Yes, sir; he's back."

"Then where is he?"

"In the poor house."—New York Weekly.

She Knew.

Omaha Papa—So you are going to marry, are you, my son? I presume the young lady you are to wed knows all about housework and knows after the wants of a family!

Omaha Youth—Well, you just bet she does. I wish you could see a cotton batting dog she made last week, and some butterflies she painted on velvet.—Omaha World.

The Modern Annie Laurie.

"Her brow was like the snow drift,
Her neck was like the swan,
And her face it was the fairest
That ever the sun shone on."
But she went to the beach for bathing,
And her fair complexion's spoiled!
Her cheeks are tanned and her nose is red
As a lobster when its boiled.
—Boston Courier.

Crushed.

Mr. Bankhurk (at the close of the game)—What do you think of me as ball player, Miss Minnie?

Miss Minnie—I think you'd make a splendid swimmer.

Mr. Bankhurk—A swimmer! Why so?

Miss Minnie—You strike out so beautifully, you know.—New York Sun.

"Of Two Evils, Choose the Lesser."

Mrs. Lumkins—Jasina, I am going to the dentist's to get a tooth pulled out. You mind the baby while I'm gone.

Mr. L.—Jumping for his hat—Say, you mind the baby, and I'll go and get a tooth pulled, you know.—New York Sun.

Social Triumphs.

Miss Gotham—Does Mary Minkum, who went to school with me, move in the best society in Chicago?

Mrs. Lakeside (of Chicago)—Dear me, yes. All of her husband's have been pork packers.—New York Weekly.

A Prize Catch.

Mrs. Prudent—But do you think he's a good catch?

Miss Eager—Well, I should rather think he is! He's the captain of a baseball club and gets $5,000 a season for standing behind the bat.—Life.

A Thing to Have Left Unsaid.

Miss Northcote (who has been beaten at tennis)—I am afraid I don't take defeat gracefully.

Mr. Longshot—Oh, yes, you always do.—Burlington Free Press.

Bright Boy.

"Indignant Guest after climbing six flights of stairs)—Why, the clerk promised me a room on the second floor.

Bell Boy—Yes, sir, second floor from the top.—Hotel Mail.

His Rough Diamond.

The Bride—Oh, mamma, how can I—how can I leave you?

Mrs. Fellowes—Rachael d' Courcy Biddell, you must remember that if Bellamy asks for four pieces of punkin pie at dinner, she's been used to it an's got to hev it. Take her off now afore I blubber.—Judge.

Social Amenity.

Clara (patronizingly)—It's a good job that person in society is not, as bard, to look when Deborah—Pyeed Piper don't remember and find it hard to do so.—Dunbar's Magazine.

An Advantage Gone.

Ed—I have a pain in my ear.

Ted—Ah! Been talking to yourself.—Brooklyn.

THE LIME BLOSSOM AFTER RAIN.

Here by the rectory garden's old, red wall
The limes and chestnuts side by side grow tall.
And stickily, green, from spear against the sky,
The lime-buds and scents bound to the passer by.

And every spring and summer, pink and gold,
They greet the new year, as it were the old,
Chasing their draperies with welcome words
Round every bole and mingling their birds.

But yester eve we walked the curving way
And drank the still heat of the summer day.
When only winged things could stir the air
As though the sleepy world had known they were!

And where with paler green the lime trees spread,
The humming bees were swinging overhead,
Or clinching, some by scent, the lime-sprays,
A moving cloud of black and golden days.

* * * * * * *

And yet, this night more sweetly beats the breast
Their fragrant burden from the fresh upheaved
Of rain drops musically to the ground!

Oh! sweet the lime breath pours when still the scent
Is heavy-laden with the summer rain!

I stand and hold the beauty of the scene—
The branching nut and quince's deeper green;
Lime blossom swaying in the glistening light—
The sparkling leaves of the wet chestnut bright.

Strange thoughts arise and stay the unwilling gloom:
The gentleness of strength—that these should bloom!
The young leaf folding blossom—and I see
The gold haired children clinging round her knee!
* * * * * *
Then, sudden, first the voices of the choir
From the dark church beyond, and my desire
Falls, subdued forever, with the sobbing crowd
The rain drops murmur to the thirsty ground.

—George Holmes in The Spectator.

GIRLS SKILLED WITH THE GUN.

Two City Brunettes Shooting Woodcock on the Wing on the Pocono Slope.

Two handsome and dashing city brunettes, at one of the hotels on the Pocono slope, near here, became voluntary heroines in a little rural sensation that interested many of the other guests. One afternoon while the girls were shooting at targets in the grounds, gentlemen spectators were startled by the sudden brace of woodcock that he had just shot in front of a resident sportsman's setter, and the splash of the pheasants that had one of the girls to declare that she could shoot a woodcock on the wing if he could. Anyhow, she was going to try it, she said, before another week passed away, and the other maidens laughed at her.

That night she found out where the owner of the setter lived, and the next day she rode away, mounted on him, got him to give her a lot of information about woodcock shooting, took notes of what he told her and borrowed his dog for the following Thursday. From him she also learned that the birds were pretty plentiful in the corn fields down in the Paradise valley, two or three miles from where she was staying, and that it would probably be better for her to try her skill there than in a rough locality. When she got back to the hotel she told four girls and two gentlemen what she was going to do on Thursday, and she began right away to fix up a fit up hunting costume for herself.

Delightful weather favored the plucky maiden, and there was a good deal of a stir around the hotel right after breakfast on the morning in question. Her four girl friends dinsled into a seatless lumber wagon filled with clean straw, and were full of jollification and excitement over the event. Then the rosy cheeked bird shooter tripped out with a double barreled shotgun across her arm and the eager setter at her heels. She wore a neat checked skirt that came to the tops of her boots, a red jersey and a belcher hat. The rest of her outfit being composed of a cartridge belt and a game bag. The two gentlemen helped her to a snug place among the other beauties in the mass of straw, and then they got in the wagon themselves and started for the valley. Each of the four girls had a field glass, and as the wagon rumbled down the ravine and past the farmhouses all of them tried to talk at once. It was a jolly party, but the coolest person in it was she with the gun.

Near the corner of a large corn field the team was blocked, and the girls got out and stood by the fence. Nervous fingers quickly took the glasses from their cases and brought them to bear on the waving corn, and then the team was let down and the handsome huntress and her eager dog entered the field. It was easy for the others to keep track of the red jersey between the rows, and the quartet of beauties looked through their glasses and giggled.

The well trained setter began to beat about at once, while the cool and determined young woman held her gun at the ready and had directed her to, and kept her bright, dark eyes wide open for a rise. After a little while there was a scurry of whirring wings, a flash of gray feathers in the sunlight above the corn tassels, a crack, a puff of smoke and the red jersey was motionless for a moment. Most of the city sportswomen at the darling brunette had hit the bird, and in a jiffy one of the girls sang out in a musical voice from the fence:

"Try again, dear; you may have better luck next time," and then they all laughed.

For a minute or so the huntress kept still, but when she spoke it was to the point. Her soprano voice didn't tremble a particle as she sang out:

"Of course, I'll try again, but don't be in too big a fret about it, please! See here!" and she held a dead woodcock far enough above the corn tops for them all to see it.

The girls didn't laugh then, but one of them said to the others:

"She knew what she was about, didn't she?" And they all agreed.

Then the red jersey went out of sight, and for an hour none of them got a glimpse of it. But the others heard the fair shooter's gun crack half a dozen times, and after awhile she emerged from the field with five birds in her game bag.

"I've shown your girls that I can shoot birds on the wing, and now I'm ready to go back to the hotel," she said, as she caressed the sleek animal that had driven up the woodcock and fetched the last one of the five.

On the return trip one of the girls exclaimed:

"Well, I don't care! I've hit the target just as often as you have, and if you can shoot birds on the wing I can."

"Who cares if you have hit the target? I guess you'll find that hitting a bird on the wing is quite a different thing. Just you try it, and see how cheap you'll feel when the bird gets away," was what the huntress said in reply.

But the other maiden did try it on the following week, and she didn't give up until she had shot three woodcock in front of the same dog. Both girls have been out shooting three or four times since then, and their skill with the shotgun made them very popular among the crowd of boarders up there.—Swiftwater (Pa.) Cor. New York Sun.

Mrs. Harriet Beecher Stowe once visited Edinburgh, where she was invited to dinner by William Chambers, the dull but pompous publisher of Chambers' Journal, of which he was extensively vain. Mrs. Stowe ingeniously mentioned that she believed he published a journal of some kind, but she really forgot its name. Mr. Chambers was speechless with astonishment.

ECONOMY IN SHOPPING.

PLAN THE CAMPAIGN THOROUGHLY BEFORE LEAVING HOME.

Avoid the Enticement Styles—Hints Concerning the Selection of Goods and Patterns—How to Profit by the Special Prices Offered on "Bargain Days."

There are a few fundamental principles to be observed in shopping which every woman ought to know, for every woman is a shopper, to a greater or less degree. She should know, for instance, and know exactly, how much money it is proper and prudent to spend for a certain article. To be sure, she is under no moral obligation to spend the sum she has set aside for that particular purpose if she has the good fortune to find it can be bought cheaper; but, the limit being decided upon, she should have the good sense and moral courage not to exceed it. In all probability that figure is based deliberately upon what returns to other needs, and if they are disregarded in one purchase another will have to be dispensed with or its appropriation will be unfilled.

It is a weakness of which no woman should be guilty to allow herself to be talked into the purchase of goods which are beyond her means by the persuasive powers of another, or object it is to sell the goods. A sensible woman will flee temptation at the first warning. She will not even look at goods she cannot afford to buy; for, even if she knows she will not purchase, she also knows that the constant between the rash fabrics and those humble ones she has to take will, unconsciously, produce dissatisfaction.

KNOW WHAT YOU WANT.

Another very important point for the economical shopper, be her purse plethoric or slender, is to know exactly what she needs and exactly how much material she requires. To enter a store, see something that suits, and then make a rapid mental calculation, assisted by an appeal to the salesman, is a wretched method for the woman who has to shop with care, who did not suggest more than an ample pattern. On the paper patterns that are in such vogue, and are so excellent in themselves, the quantity set down is usually more than enough, and an economical cutter can always do with less. The liberal quantity scheduled on the pattern allows for inexperience and unskillfulness on the part of the amateur dressmaker.

The only really accurate and economical way is to measure the pattern after purchase and it, and upon the place top or dining room table arrange and rearrange the parts, doveplanning and taking every possible advantage of peculiar shaped pieces until the smallest quantity is reached, always, of course, bearing in mind that a larger quantity of materials with a positive right and wrong side or plaided goods will be required than of plain goods. Many ladies who have no need of such economy, from simply a financial point of view, encourage and practice it on principle, which is laying a really excellent foundation for the saving is of too great consequence to need recommendation.

In selecting material for a dress many things should be taken into consideration. It must be "within the limit" it should be becoming; it certainly should be in style; it ought to be durable; it is often desirable to look forward to the time when "turned" will be in order; and it is also very often desirable that it should at some future day dye well. It must not crinkle when used, or wrinkle when damp; it should not "crock" or shrink or fade. Therefore, in buying a dress the economical woman will select the real standard materials: fine linens of cloth and the like, passing by the beautiful and less serviceable "novelties" where fashions come and go.

For women who pursue an outdoor occupation a very different style of toilet is required than for the lady of leisure at home, but neither need be or should be anything but suitable and economical.

POINTS ON "BARGAIN DAYS."

Our merchants are, at certain times, in the habit of having what they call "bargain days," that is, days upon which they sell certain lines of goods at reduced prices. These days, in first class establishments, are good days to the economical buyer, as are also the sales of remnants and fragments of stock which it is desirable to be rid of before filling the counters with newer goods.

Your choice among the thousands of remnants offered you will be a matter of wise judgment, cheap though they are, and you should not be more tempted to buy them merely because they are cheap than you were earlier in the season. If you cannot see how and when and where you will make use of them, they will be dear to you at any price. But the point having been thoroughly established that the clean, stylish following of evanescent style is totally incompatible with economy, the wise woman and prudent buyer will call upon her good judgment and refined taste in the matter of these remnants and select those that are quiet and unconspicuous in color and pattern, assured that by so doing she will not fall of being ladylike and in good style.

There are standard styles that have never been out of fashion, but because each season brings its own trivial variation in the tone of a color, the definitional width of a stripe or size of a dot, there is a depreciation of salable value in the experienced eyes of the dealer, while to any one else the value is just as great.

In fact, the most economical and convenient time for making up all common dresses is at a season when more elaborate sewing is not on hand. Therefore in buying now for next season it will be safe to select any of the simpler styles of goods, and thus be sure to be in "style" when the season comes around again. Narrow stripes, fine checks, small dots are all unremarkable and, not coming within range of arbitrary fashions, are never out of date, and no one need be ashamed of wearing them.

The habit of making a list every season of the things absolutely needed, with their probable cost, will assist an economical shopper very much in making her purchases and dispose her to shun showy, so called bargains, unless she sees one that will supply some item on her list or can wisely and profitably be substituted for something therein.—New York Star.

Sally Would Take Her Rest.

Said a homely, bent little man pathetically, when speaking of the mother of his children, who had done her life work: "It comforts me powerfully to know that Sally would have a little down every afternoon an' sleep a bit. Some folks tho's 'twas a dretful lazy habit, and 'twas no wonder we didn't get rich faster, but she suited me just as she was. Sally was comfortable sort of a woman to have around, never frettin' at a feller or findin' him when things didn't go right. When feelin' troubled she'd often say, 'Father, I believe I'll lie down and rest for a few minutes,' an' then back she'd come spry and chipper as a canary bird. Sally didn't drive and scold, but she wasn't lazy, an' she taught all the youngsters to do their part. I don't see that drivin' women gets on one mite its better than she did. It does comfort me to know Sally would take her rest."—Exchange.

Hints to Housekeepers.

The most successful method of destroying black ants that infest a house is to sprinkle down their haunts, which will be found near the house somewhere. Set it on fire, and cover over all a wet pad or old blanket. In this way a complete colony may be wiped out.

In pasting down carpets if care is exercised in thoroughly drying the floors before-hand, the moths will not be so liable to bother in the house.

When making frosting in warm weather set the whites of eggs on ice for a short time before using.

No matter how large the pool of oil, any carpet or woolen stuff can be cleaned by applying buckwheat plentifully and faithfully, brushing it into a dust pan after a short time, and putting on fresh until the oil has all disappeared.

Every mother knows how difficult it is to clean the baby's finger nails. By folding some tissue paper into a sharp point, and then using it as nail brush, or attach one of the baby to something else, this simple task can be easily performed. The paper is so soft that it does not hurt the tender flesh, yet it is sufficiently firm to remove every particle of dirt.

Lard may be made perfectly sweet by boiling a parel potato in it.

After heating an egg thoroughly in a bowl, add a cup of cold water and use enough of this to wet your coffee when making. Keep it in a cool place and so waste no more egg by drying.

Willow furniture should be scrubbed well with salt and water, applied with a salt brush, to clean it. Dry it thoroughly.

Dusty and generally stained white lace may be made bright again by using damp salt.

Placing a piece of zinc on the live coals in a stove or grate is an easy way to clean a sooty chimney.

A large proportion of the "currant jelly" sold to hotel keepers and bakers is said to be manufactured from glutten and acids, colored with cochineal and sweetened with glucose. It can be bought for about four cents a pound, and "answers the purpose" as well as the more costly genuine jelly, the latter is not in great demand.

*Because all should be kept for use in air-*tight, closed vessels. A large quantity is best kept in a well corked can, provided with a faucet an inch or two from the bottom, so that the oil can be drawn off as required without disturbing the sediment which usually collects on the bottom of the vessel. The oil for daily use should be kept in a small can, kept corked at the neck and spout. If either cork be left out for a day or two, the oil will burn dull and cake on the wick, especially if the kerosene is kept in a warm place.

If the eggs you have to use for frosting are not quite as fresh as you could desire, a pinch of salt will make them beat stiffly.—Boston Budget.

A woman with a doctor's degree has become a veterinary surgeon in Paris.

There is a lady in Milwaukee who is the mother of nine children. None of them was named Donald. It was for the boys' sake simply called by their nicknames and their numbers. "One," "Two," etc. When they were 12 years old each one chose his own name and was baptized.

Miss Ethel M. McKenzie, daughter of Sir Morell McKenzie, has taken up journalism as a profession or a pastime. She has been playing the role of correspondent to American newspapers.

The women of Berlin use daily 302 kilos of face powder, 114 kilos of rouge, 85¼ of coloring matter for eyebrows, 50 of lip pomade, 30½ of glycerine and 13 of cold creams. A kilo or kilogram is equal to 2 1-6 pounds.

The desire manifested by the fair sex for miniature paintings and as brooches amounts to almost a craze. These paintings are imported, and leading manufacturers claim that they have difficulty in mounting them fast enough to supply the demand.

One of the most successful women doctors in London is Mrs. Scharlieb, who was the first woman to write "M. D. Lond." after her name. Mrs. Scharlieb studied medicine and began the practice of it in Madras, but her health gave way under the Indian climate. She removed to London, where she made a success of her profession.

Miss Kate Field, so far from regretting her want of personal beauty, has a sublime contempt for a woman whose only recommendation is a pretty face. Certainly the most brilliant women have not been the most beautiful—Madame De Staël, Lady Morgan, George Eliot, for instance.

Several women are members of the Louisville (Ky.) Board of Trade by virtue of their partnership in business with men. But as least one woman has been a member in her own right. She is Mrs. William Bowders, and formerly conducted a fish and game business in that city. The directors of the Louisville Commercial club are considering the advisability of admitting women to that organization, and the chances for a favorable report are good.

Dressing for Photographs.

Did any one ever look over an old fashion plate without wondering how any one could bring herself to wear some of the garments there depicted, or take up a photograph album without similar reflections on some of the styles of hair dressing, etc., of not so many years ago? If one could always remember to apply the results of these studies when sitting for a photograph, the verdict of the future would be more satisfactory to the owners of the pictures. While there are some styles that always look well, whether worn by the best models or not, there are others that lend the prestige of being in the very height of fashion to pass at all. Ladies who dress for fancy dress balls or tableaux understand this in regard to the modes and styles of the past, and this would be a better looking world if all understood it for everyday apparel. But whatever the ordinary dress may be, it is astonishing the difference it will make when in an atmosphere—so to speak—of similar ones; but this is not the case with the picture.—Lewiston Journal.

A Remedy for Prickly Heat.

I have just discovered that if any person subjects to prickly heat in summer will bathe the places in a weak solution of saleratus water, and dry them with a soft cloth, and afterwards powder them with a powder made of equal parts of fuller's earth and rice flour, they will have perfect ease. It should be done night and morning in the hot weather, or, and if a mosquito bites you, don't try any bitter remedy, but simply apply a little cold cream, which somehow overcomes the poison and irritation when nothing else will. I have seen children that were nearly wild with the irritation of many mosquito bites relieved in a moment by the application of cold cream.—Olive Harper in Home Leaf.

YOUNG FOLKS' COLUMN.

INSTRUCTIVE AND PLEASANT READING FOR BOYS AND GIRLS.

Miss Florence Nightingale and Her Favorite Home in England—A Small Boy Tells in Rhyme All About His First and Last Cigar.

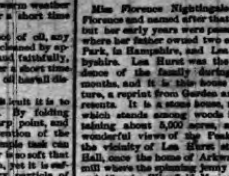
Miss Florence Nightingale was born in Florence and named after that beautiful city, but her early years were passed in England, where her father owned two estates, Embley Park, in Hampshire, and Lea Hurst, in Derbyshire. Lea Hurst was the favorite residence of the family during the summer months, and it is the house which our picture, a reprint from Garden and Forest, represents. It is a stone house, not very large, which stands among woods in a place containing about 5,000 acres, and commands wonderful views of the Peak country in the vicinity of Lea Hurst stands Wilsley Hall, once the home of Arkwright, with the mill where the spinning jenny was first used, and likewise Wingfield Manor, where Mary Queen of Scots was imprisoned for nine years.



FLORENCE NIGHTINGALE'S HOME AT LEA HURST.

The house at Lea Hurst is in the Elizabethan style of architecture. The interest of the building lies, first, in its associations with a very famous and admirable woman, and then in its typical charm as an example of an English country house of a modest kind, tastefully surrounded by luxuriant plantation.

Miss Nightingale, although a lady of fine education and brilliant accomplishments, early exhibited an intense devotion to the alleviation of suffering. Her untiring devotion to the wounded soldiers of the Crimean war has made her name known throughout the civilized world.

The Two Orioles.

The story of the two orioles is thus told in Examiner: They were born in a nest in the elm tree; but one day, when a rude wind shook it, they tumbled out and fell on the turf below; unhurt. Tom picked them up, and, putting them into a cage which he made, hung it in the piazza and gave them seeds and water. But the old birds were worried about their babies. They came and perched on the cage and flew about it, chattering to them and singing a little. By and by they flew off and came back with fat worms and fed to feed them. They did this day after day till the birdlings grew plump and big. I suppose the mother bird felt sad to leave them when it came time for her to go south, though they had grown up in a cage now.

Tom made a little wall of their drinking cup. He sunk it in the bottom of the cage and built a little curb about it. Then he taught Fluffy to lift the water up, whenever he wanted a drink, by means of a little toy pail which he had fastened to a tiny wall crane. It took him a long time to learn this lesson. Downy was not so finely educated, and perhaps he did not like to hear Fluffy praised for drawing water in his pail, or perhaps he found it hard to reach the pail himself and take small sips. But he was thirsty and the water was low; but he began to pick up the small stones among the sand which Tom had strewed on the bottom of the cage and drop them carefully into the little well, one by one, till it was filled up. Which do you think was the smarter bird?

My First and Last Cigar.

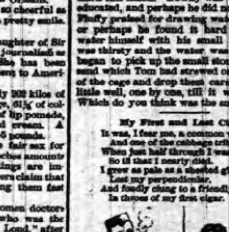
It was, I fear me, a common weed,
And one of the cabbage tribe;
When just half through it I felt decreed
So ill that I nearly died.
I grew as pale as a shrouded ghost,
And fondly clung to a friendly post
In throes of my first cigar.



HE THOUGHT IT WOULDN'T MAKE HIM SICK.

"You can't be a man," quoth Cousin Fred.
"Till you smoke like a chimney tall;"
"If I do I'll be sick," I said,
"Shall never grow up at all."
The pangs I've suffered, and all in vain,
The like I've never known by far:
I am wiser now, and myself again
'Twas my first (and my last) cigar.

—Golden Days.

Set and Sit.

Discriminate between set and sit. To set means to put, to place, to plant, to fix. To sit means to rest on the haunches, to remain in a state of repose, to perch as a bird, etc. We set apart, set aside, set about and set down some articles, or (in writing). We sit on a chair, on a horse. We sit up and sit down. We set a hen, and a hen sits on eggs. Without similar reflections on some of the distinctions between these words, etc., "as cruse as a shilling mot setting hen."

What the Winds Bring.

Which is the wind that brings the cold?
The north wind, Freddy, and all the snow
And the sheep will scamper into the fold
When the north begins to blow

Which is the wind that brings the rain?
The east wind, Jenny, for so I know
That cows come shivering up the lane
When the east begins to blow

Which is the wind that brings the flowers?
The west wind, Mary; and soft and low
The birdies sing in the orchard bowers
When the west begins to blow

—Edmund Clarence Stedman.

Commencement Sermons.

Originally commencement day was the opening day of the new college year; hence the sermon which still survives, though "commencement" is celebrated at the end of the college year. When commencement was commencement, colleges were managed as religious bodies, so that divine services were naturally observed. At that time, too, all our colleges were managed by evangelical churches, so that the sermon was the principal part of the service. We can give no other origin for the sermon. The Dudley sermon at Harvard was preached in 1722 by the Rev. Peter Clark; we presume it was a commencement sermon.

JOTTINGS.

—Days of 1889 past, 267; days to come, 98.

—After this month fall business will open lively to those who advertise.

—Front street between Park and Madison avenue is being spread with crushed stone.

—In England, check reins on horses are now entirely out of use, being forbidden by law.

—Howell Division Sons of Temperance of this city will be entertained at Newark tomorrow evening.

—A brutal dog fight occurred on Park avenue yesterday afternoon. One of the canines lost its ear in the melee.

—Patrick Fitzgerald of Piscataway town. ship was yesterday granted a saloon license by the Middlesex county court.

—The first cold wave of the season is now on. Don't let it catch you napping, or you may lay in the foundation for a bad Winter.

—It is calculated that 50,000 American visited Europe this Summer. If they each spent $500 abroad they will have left $40,000,000 in Europe.

—Mr. Edward McCue, of West Fourth street won the parlor lamp at St. Mary's Fair last night, and the Russian leather satchel was won by Miss Kate Harrington.

—The high winds and pleasant sun of yesterday had the effect of considerably drying up the roads about the city and county, and made them more presentable.

—For one thing all interested will be thankful. The gubernatorial canvass will be short And so will it.e the ticket, a circumstance that will please the election officers all around.

—The latest luxury in railroad travel is an incandescent lamp at the head of each berth in a sleeper, so arranged that a passenger can lie abed and read if he does not feel like sleep

—A better way to begin a little in advance of the style may be it will not be long before the silk hat will be worn in this country as it is in England—at all times and by all males above knee high.

—A morning house costume announced as a favorite by a fashion magazine gives a girl a clerical appearance. It is of black, with a large soft white collar and loose bishop sleeves of the same white material.

—Classes in mechanical drawing will be organized at the Y. M. C. A. Rooms Tuesday, Oct. 1st. Mr. A. J. Gavett, with competent assistance, will instruct these classes. The membership fee ($2) entitles to this and other privileges of the Association.

—Fred Warde opened his engagement at the Grand Opera House last night in his new version of an old standard play, "Bolphegor", which he calls "The Mountebank". It is needless to say that he was excellent in the tragic passages. He has shown his power in such work so often that he has an acknowledged place among the best tragedians of our day. It was in the earlier portion of "The Mountebank", however, that Mr. Warde proved how accomplished he was as a comedian as well as a tragedian. There is a marked strain of domestic feeling throughout the earlier scenes of "The Mountebank", wherein Mr. Warde seemed to be thoroughly at home. The story is a simple one. A strolling player, Belphegor, is married to a woman who, unknown to him, is his superior in station. Her wealthy relatives plot against his domestic happiness and take away his wife. Then manhood overcomes the mischievious of the unscrupulous friends and the curtain falls upon a reunited family. The character is best in that heroic mold which suits the tragedian so well. The company were all strong, and did careful and meritorious work. — Pittsburg Press. Mr. Warde and his company will appear in Music Hall to-night.

PERSONAL.

Mr. Charles White has returned to this city from Chatham, where he has been summering.

Free Classes in Vocal Music.

Young men and boys who desire instruction in singing and reading music are invited by the Young Men's Christian Association to join classes to meet weekly at their rooms. These classes will be under the direction of Mr. E. O. Embury who has had large experience in the cultivation of the voice and who will spare no pains in making the instruction thorough, useful, and a source of pleasure and satisfaction to the pupils. The first Class Monday at 9 p. m. Boys class Friday at 4:45 p. m. The former class will be organized Monday next Sept. 30th at 9 p. m. and the latter Friday Sept. 27th at 4:45 p. m. Full information will be given and names enrolled at the Y. M. C. A. rooms.

A Song Writer In a Pulpit.

Rev. Dr. Robert Lowry, of Plainfield, author of "Shall we gather at the river?" and a large number of the finest Sunday-school hymns, occupied the desk of the Central Baptist church, Elizabeth, Sunday morning and evening, in the absence of the pastor, Rev. E. T. Tomlinson, Ph. D., who was called to the upper part of New York State last week by the illness of one of his children. Dr. Lowry has preached in this church on a previous occasion. His sermons were very vigorous, and were listened to with much interest. At the evening service Mr. Fred. W. Coyne sang a solo, "Son of my soul".—Elizabeth Journal.

The Republican Campaign.

Work for the Republicans of New Jersey during the campaign will be laid out by their several local committees; and the Republican Clubs organized with the State League will look after the details of the borders. A State Convention of the League, to be held in Elizabeth, October 15th, will consider ways and means to promote the interests of the party. There are 265 of the organizations in the State. A viewment's committee will suggest which of these possibilities for usefulness. These clubs need not wait for their annual convention; they can go to work at once; but the convention will impart new fervor to the Republican canvass.

McCann Paid a $15 Fine.

Charles McCann, who was yesterday given the choice of paying a fifteen dollars fine or spending thirty days in the county jail for drunk and disorderly conduct, last night paid the fine and was released from custody. McCann is the young man who so brutally assaulted his parents Saturday night at their home on West Third street, but at they did not make a complaint he could not be held only on the charge of drunk and disorderly.

Milk Inspectors in Town.

Two of the State milk inspectors raided the milk dealers of Plainfield this morning and with their lactometer ascertained the quality of milk served to customers. Where the milk was found up to the standard the inspectors took samples with them, together with the name of the dealer, but they say as a rule the milk examined averaged very good.

Cut the Grass.

This is a good time to cut your grass very short for the Winter, says the gardener. The shorter you cut it in the Fall, the finer will be your lawn next Spring. When allowed to remain in the Fall, the long grass can not be eradicated until late in the next Summer and then only by constant raking.

Sullivan Again Arrested.

On complaint of Chief of Police Tunis J. Carey, Joseph Sullivan was again arrested yesterday afternoon, charged with violating the internal revenue laws by selling liquor without a license. He was held in the sum of $200 bail for trial.

Firemen to Meet.

The Convention of the State Firemen's Relief Association will convene at Long Branch to-morrow. The delegates from this city are: Chief Engineer T. O. Doane, Edward Mosher, Edward C. Morse and Horace J. Sherwin.

THE FIRST REG. K. OF P. PARADES.

After a Parade the Knights Enjoy a Banquet and Ball.

Knights of Pythias of the Uniformed Rank went to Trenton yesterday morning on almost every train. It is the custom of the order to give a parade once a year in one of the large cities of the State. Nearly every city in the State had been visited, and the Board of Officers this year selected Trenton for the festivities.

The headquarters yesterday were at the Hotel Cleveland, where Adjutant H. J. Thole was in charge, and recorded the Divisions as they arrived.

Shortly after three o'clock the line began to form on Clinton avenue. At the right were Col. Wilson, of the Major General's staff; Col. Maugill, of New York; Assistant Inspector General, and Past Surgeon General Bowlsby. Following these were Col. Geo. W. Povey, of Newark, the officer in command, with the following staff officers: Lieut. Col. George H. Phillips, of Plainfield; Major George Kidder, of Jersey City; Adjutant H. J. Thole, of Newark; Quartermaster John C. VanDyke, of Plainfield, Surgeon John F. Hager, and Sergeant Major Elmer E. Margerum.

The first division was headed by Winkler's Seventh Regiment Band, and was composed of the following Divisions and the Uniformed Rank: Palestine, Jersey City, Capt. Gustav Steup; Unity, Elizabeth, Capt George H. Rhodes; Black Prince, Newark, Capt. G. M. Stimis; Friendship, New Brunswick, Capt. John H. Street; Red Cross, South Amboy, Capt. R. R. Parker; Monmouth, Red Bank, Capt. J. A. Worthley, Jr.; Excelsior, Trenton, Capt. William C. Mamer; Crescent, Plainfield, Capt. H. J. Martin. Two hundred and fourteen men were in this division.

The second division was composed of subordinate lodges numbering 300 men, and was led by Wilkes Post Band. The following lodges were represented: Spartacus, No. 10; Hamilton, No. 91; Trenton, No. 60; Pythias, No. 61; Delaware Falls, of Pennsylvania, Olympia, No. 32, of Bordentown.

Between the two divisions the following notables of the order rode in carriages:

Grand Chancellor, Arnold B. Race; G. V. C., DeWitt C. Bolton; G. P., John Ulrich; C. K. of R., Eugene V. Lorton; C. M. of Ex., C. W. Williams; G. M. of A., C. W. Kilbourne; G. I. G., W. L. Hayhurst; G. O. G., William Malcolm, and Supreme Representatives, Joseph Miller and James R. Rutan.

At the conclusion of the parade a banquet was partaken of at Masonic Temple, prepared for the Knights by Excelsior Division of Trenton. R. F. Margerum was Chairman of the Committee of Arrangements. Last evening a grand ball was given at the temple in their honor.

Three Burglars In the Tolls.

The police authorities of Elizabeth have in custody three burglars who robbed Benjamin Darby's house last week. Capt. Daly, of the Third Precinct of Newark, on Sunday night arrested in this city James Healy, who escaped when his confederates were captured by swimming across a creek near Waverly. Healy was taken to Elizabeth, yesterday and, after his picture was taken for the rogues gallery, was committed to jail. His chums, who had betrayed his name to the police, it turns out, had themselves given a false name when arrested, but they have since been identified as James H. Doolan and Charles Honecker. The latter's parents live in Plainfield. Honecker is only about eighteen years old. Mr. Darby has made two charges against the burglars, who have been committed for trial. They are believed to be part of the gang which recently robbed Lawyer James Engelke's house.

Laid off for the Season

The tan-colored shoe and the spectacular blaze are gradually disappearing as the warmth of Summer departs—cow-wise, as it were. Into the cool shades of innocuous desuetude, along with the flannel shirt and the seashore bathing-suit. They have fulfilled their destiny for the season, and their depiction in the pulsing away until another Summer in the pulsing away until another Summer in the pulsing away until another Summer

If the owners of the 80,000 barrels of oil lost in the Antwerp fire belong to a great petroleum combination the loss will not fall so heavily on them. Other members of the combine will chip in, here a little and there a little, and make it up to them.

The quaint old Moravian church in Pennsylvania has an annual day of prayer for married couples. Very right. If anybody ever did need prayer it is married people in these days of divorce and bogus babies. Let us pray that they may be good tempered and unselfish towards each other, and always tell each other the truth. Let us pray that they may always continue to be as polite to each other as they were during their courtship. Amen!

The Wicked Flea.

A very uncomfortable and troublesome epidemic of a most peculiar nature has broken out in several of our large cities. It is an epidemic of fleas. None know whence they come, and they do not go away at all, but stay and drive people crazy. Washington, Philadelphia and New York have had their turn, and now the wicked flea has attacked Boston. The idea of Boston capering and dancing about under such an undignified infliction is calculated to upset the solemnity of Saturn himself. It is said that the little creature with the penetrating proboscis and legs so strong that he can jump a thousand times his own length is in the very air of the cities named, so numerous is he. But let other towns not laugh overmuch. Their turn may yet come. Let the inhabitants thereof flee.

The Sun's Total Eclipse.

Some time in October a United States man-of-war will leave New York on the peaceful expedition of carrying to Africa the photographers, astronomers and other scientific gentlemen who are to take observations of the total eclipse of the sun Dec. 22. It is hoped the new cruiser Baltimore will be available for this purpose.

Operations taken during this eclipse will be among the most painstaking and important ever made of the sun's face, if the weather permit. Attempts will be especially made to solve the mysteries of the corona, which is the strange luminous appearance observable around the dark body of the moon during the sun's total eclipse. Apparatus for this observation has been specially designed by Professor F. H. Bigelow. Many and powerful photographs will be made by the instantaneous process. It is even said that with the increased facilities something must be added to our little, very little, knowledge of the constitution and nature of the sun.

As yet, no government but the United States has prepared to send official observers of the eclipse, though many private parties will go to Africa to witness it. Our vessel will land at St. Paul de Loando, capital and seaport of the Portuguese province of Angola, 250 miles south of the Congo river. The expedition will then proceed with their instruments sixty miles inland, in a southeasterly direction, to Maxima, where they will be in the middle path of the eclipse. One of the instruments is a telescope lent by Harvard university, specially constructed for noting the eclipse of last New Year's day in California.

The Fir Trees of Washington State.

Washington, the new state of Washington, claims to have 30,000,000 acres of timber land of almost incalculable value. Around Puget sound is a forest the description of which makes eastern eyes bulge out with wonder.

The staple Washington lumber is composed of red and yellow fir of extraordinary strength of fiber. Already it is shipped to many parts of the world. Spars for the ships built in the yards of the Clyde, in Scotland, are sent from Puget sound. Bridges, to be used across streams in Ohio, in Michigan and Indiana, and elsewhere, are built in Portland, the parts numbered, packed and sent to their respective states, to be set up where they belong. The gigantic fir trees of Washington are often between 300 and 400 feet high, a single one sometimes furnishing 100,000 feet of lumber. To eastern eyes the stumps left standing look very strange. They are from five to fifteen feet high. Why all this good timber is left in the stump only a Washington wood chopper knows.

A lumberman told a correspondent of The St. Louis Globe-Democrat that in the forest fires in that region enough timber had been burned this season to pay half the national debt, and yet its loss had made no apparent impression on the stupendous fir woods of Puget sound.

In Germany or Italy this invaluable forest would be taken care of. In this country it will not be. We shall have one, twenty, perhaps thirty, years of reckless, crazy woodchopping, then denuded lands, floods, gullies, droughts, fatal disasters, and the people of Washington state wishing they had ever their old 25-foot stumps back.

BOULANGER IS BEATEN.

Charges of Fraud Against His Opponents.

VOTES WERE BURNED, 'TIS SAID.

The Government Alleged to Have Used Desperate Means to Prevent the Election of the Soldier of Fortune Who Threatens the Republic's Safety.

PARIS, Sept. 24.—Returns from 560 divisions show the election of 234 Republicans and 159 Opposition members. In 177 divisions supplementary ballots will be necessary. The new chamber will probably comprise 320 Republicans and 201 members of the Opposition. The Temps says that the complexion of the new chamber will be much the same as that of the old one. Many new men are returned, however, and a fresh element is added to parliamentary ranks. The result ought to be a source of victory to give to its political action a consistency heretofore lacking. The Liberte says that there will be no such change in the balance of power in the chamber as would have any serious influence upon the future of the republic. The result of the election produced a favorable impression on the Bourse.

The Boulangist Vote in Paris.

The Boulangist vote in Paris was 192,000, against 244,070 last January. The Temps says that voting papers for Boulanger and Rochefort were burned. The matter will be referred to the chamber. Counting the papers alleged to have been destroyed, the Boulangists polled 300,000 votes in the Seine department, against 220,000 for their opponents, but the Republicans show a majority of 97,000 compared with that of January.

Will Boulanger be Recognized?

The revising committee sits on Thursday to decide whether Boulanger shall be declared elected for Montmartre or a reballot ordered.

M. Jules Ferry was defeated by a close vote. His brother, Albert, was elected in an adjacent district. M. Clovis-Hugues is defeated.

M. Blowitz, of The London Times, says the chamber will annul the election of Boulanger by a sweeping majority.

Elected, but Counted Out.

LONDON, Sept. 24.—The general belief in Paris is that Henri Rochefort was elected in Montmartre districts and counted out. The fact that his election by a good majority was at first conceded by the government's representatives, and that there was considerable delay in changing the announcement to one of defeat, gives color to charges that are being freely made to the effect that the ballots were manipulated by the government's agents. The general result of the elections shows that there was no need for the government to resort to such desperate measures as are alleged, for Boulanger did not develop enough strength throughout the country to seriously endanger the continued existence of the present government.

Alleged Extraordinary Circumstances.

Those who believe fraud was committed, however, point out that at the time the votes for Montmartre were counted the returns had not been received from the precincts in sufficient numbers to show how matters were going. The government was alarmed at the strength shown by Boulanger in this particular district, and fearing that it had lost the general feeling of the country, they determined to at least deprive the Boulangists of the personal leadership of their idol. It is even hinted that those who make this serious charge include not only Boulangists, but men of all shades of political opinion.

A Small Majority for the Government.

The result of the election is considered as satisfactory by the government as they have any reason to hope for. Four members of the ministry are re-elected—a substantial approval of the government's general policy. Fewer ballots are required in more than one-third of the districts, and the Republicans expect to win in a majority of these. From present indications the government will come out finally with a small but safe majority.

Roosevelt Is Not a Candidate.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 24.—Civil Service Commissioner Roosevelt has returned from his vacation, which he spent in Idaho bear and deer hunting. He said in regard to the newspaper talk about his being a candidate for the senate from North Dakota that there was nothing in it, and that he first he heard of it was when he came east. "I may be what in New York is called a 'summer candidate,'" he said. "A 'summer candidate' is one who is run in the newspapers and is always elected by his friends, but when the real election comes and a ballot is required in more than one-third of the districts, and the Republicans expect to win in a majority of these. From present indications the government will come out finally with a small but safe majority.

He Fatally Stabbed His Sister.

NEW BEDFORD, Mass., Sept. 24.—While Frank Rosebrook, aged 17 years, was playing with an old clock in the residence of his father in this city, his sister Mary kicked the clock. Frank stabbed his sister in the right leg with the jagged blade of an old knife, severing the femoral artery. The girl will probably die. The boy was arrested. While being conveyed to the station house he tried to break away from the officers with the avowed intention of drowning himself in the bay.

Glens Falls Democrats.

GLENS FALLS, N. Y., Sept. 24.—The Warren county Democratic convention was held at Warrensburg. The following named gentlemen were chosen as delegates to the state convention: Henry Griffing, Jeremiah T. Flynn and G. H. Aldrich. The following were chosen as delegates to the senatorial convention: Louis M. Brown, S. D. Kendrick and John H. Cunningham. Henry Griffing was elected chairman of the county committee.

Probable Murder at Elmira.

ELMIRA, N. Y., Sept. 24.—A young man named Maxwell Straub, of Reading, Pa., who was arrested here on Friday last charged with intoxication, died in jail. Physicians who examined the body decided that he was given a dose of a drug of some kind, and it is now believed that the young man was drugged and robbed. The coroner is investigating the case.

Sullivan Disappoints an Audience.

BROOKLYN, Sept. 24.—A large crowd gathered at the Clermont avenue rink, where John L. Sullivan was expected to give a sparring exhibition. The doors were not opened, however, and Sullivan did not appear. Chief Johnson, who had arranged the affair, could not explain Sullivan's absence. There was much disappointment manifested.

Flower's Gift to the Poor.

NEW YORK, Sept. 24.—Roswell P. Flower has given $25,000 to the world's fair committee. There is still a great deal of discussion as to whether the gift will help many poor of Central park. The site committee meets again Wednesday.

ANOTHER LANDSLIDE FEARED.

Nine Hundred Houses at Quebec Must be Deserted at Once.

QUEBEC, Sept. 24.—Denis Berrigan, son of Thomas Berrigan, who died on Saturday, is also dead. His back was broken. The widow of Mrs. McKinnon, who was visiting a friend at the time of the slide and was rescued in the ruins, is found nothing yet exact. Almost sixty men employed by the city are now working at the debris with steam engines and derricks. The work progresses slowly.

The following bodies are supposed to be located where other men are working: Michael Bradley's two children, Thomas Pemberton, Joe Fortin, Mrs. O'Kiern, Mrs. Langlois and child, Richard Mayburg, wife and son; Henry Black, John Henry and wife, an old woman visiting the Henrys, and two sailors, names unknown.

The work is well acquainted with the locality, however, say that the number missing is greater than fifteen. The ladies of Thomas Nolan and wife were found locked in each other's arms.

Maj. Mayne, of the Royal engineers, and several other engineers are making an examination of the fissure and the adjoining rocks. A newly discovered crack runs 200 feet under the southeast end of the Dufferin terrace, and divides it in two wedge like sections. It has widened to about 18 inches in a few inches to about five feet, and is the prime factor of the dreaded second avalanche. The engineers express the opinion that the houses in Champlain and Dufferin streets on the whole length of the street numbering about 900, should be deserted at once. The continual chemical dissolution of the face of the rock threatens that a second and greater catastrophe may soon be recorded if means are not taken to remove the occupants of the houses in the dangerous locality.

A DESTRUCTIVE CLOUDBURST.

Jacksonville, Fla., Deluged and Damaged by Water.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Sept. 24.—A cloudburst caused great damaged in this city during the afternoon. It has been raining hard all day, and at 5:30 o'clock a small black cloud was seen blowing rapidly toward the city from the southwest. The wind increased to almost a hurricane, and when directly over the city a burst of rain fell that equaled deluge of water descended, its volume being greatest in the territory bounded by Newman, Forsythe and Laura streets and the St. John's river. In less than an hour these streets in this locality were flooded with water, the sewers being wholly inadequate to the task of carrying it off. The street pavements was mostly at depths of from two to three feet, and these blocks were washed out, and in some instances carried nearly to the river. Bay street, from Pine to Hogan, a distance of about six blocks, and is impassable. Many stores were flooded, and unpaved streets have been put in many places so as to be temporarily useable. The damage will reach several thousand dollars. The signal service sergeant here reports the rainfall the greatest on record here for a like duration of time. He will be set to work repairing the streets at once.

Rochester People Swindled.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Sept. 24.—A man calling himself Dr. Dr. Lewis Burrington, aged 60 he engaged by Bellevue hospital of New York, to travel about the country to perform difficult operations upon patients said to be "No Thoroughfare," which was adapted to the stage with the aid of William Fetcher, the well-known comedian actor, and Dick Speaks dreamily and affectionately of Collins in one of his inimitable prefaces.

His Best Known Novels.

Collins' first novel was "Antonia," which was followed rapidly by "Basil," in 1852; "Hide and Seek," "The Dark Secret," "The Woman in White," "No Name," "Armadale," "The Moonstone," "Man and Wife," and a perfect host of other things, great and small.

Despite the activity of his pen, which was the most prolific since that of the author of Simon Cruce, Mr. Collins was a royal entertainer at his immense bachelor's hall at Gloucester, where he had sumptuous service from an "old and noiseless housekeeper" to the artiest and nattiest of "buttons."

Collins' work was noted for the novelty and wonder of its plots. The man was short with a stout figured a massive head, brilliant eyes and a face expressive of strength and kindliness. Of late years the sturdy form was bent and stooping, and Mr. Collins limped along with the support of a stout walking stick.

A GREAT NOVELIST DEAD

Wilkie Collins, Dickens' Friend, Passes Away.

PARALYSIS ENDED HIS CAREER.

The Manner of Mysterious Plot Making Was 65 Years of Age—Life of the Author of "The Woman in White" and Other Great Novels.

LONDON, Sept. 24.—Wilkie Collins, the world famed novelist, died at 10:35 a. m. yesterday morning. He was 65 years of age, and his death was caused by paralysis of the heart, accelerated by acute bronchitis. His physician, Dr. Carr Beard; his solicitor, Mr. Bartley, and his adopted daughter, whom Mr. Bartley married only three days ago, were by his bedside when life became extinct.

Wilkie Collins, the Author of "The Woman in White" and Other Great Novels.

LONDON, Sept. 24.—Wilkie Collins, the world famed novelist, died at 10:35 a. m. yesterday morning. His physician, Dr. Carr Beard; his solicitor, Mr. Bartley, and his adopted daughter, whom Mr. Bartley married only three days ago, were by his bedside when life became extinct.

Long Spending of the Pad.

The great author suffered more than usual Sunday and seemed to feel that the end was approaching. He slept fitfully during the night, but as the first faint rays of dawning day stole into his bedchamber he asked that the final chapters of his last novel, "Blind Love," be read to him. A. P. Watt, his literary amanuensis, did as he desired. Using the last of his vitality in the effort, he dictated some few changes and alterations in the conclusion of the story, and then sank back on his pillow ready to go. While he was writing, the copy, finished and perfect from the master mind, was on its way to the printers, there to be put in type for the eyes of countless thousands.

The Story of His Illness.

Wilkie Collins was stricken with paralysis on Sunday, the 20th of June, while chatting with some friends at his mansion in Gloucester place, north of Hyde park. He was never married. Some years ago he adopted Miss Caroline Graves, a milliner by trade, the other day, and she will inherit the greater part of his immense fortune. His two executors are Dr. Beard and Mr. Bartley.

A Sketch of the Novelist.

William Wilkie Collins was the son of William Collins, of the Royal academy, and was born in London June 8, 1824. He was married after his father and after David Wilkie, a Scotch painter and dear friend of the elder Collins. After his school days Collins studied for the bar, and was admitted to practice, but in two in Italy. He took not kindly to his father's profession, and ceased his commercial trade for four years with a tea merchant. But this was uncongenial, and he entered Lincoln inn as a law student. The life was dry and Wilkie Collins scribbled more than he studied, and in 1848 he ambitiously essayed a biography of his father. He became the

AN EMBEZZLER'S FATE

Detected by a Habit of Touching His Nose.

CLEVER WORK BY A DETECTIVE.

Apprehension of Simon Baruch, Accused of Stealing $150,000 from the Austrian Government, and for Whose Arrest a Large Reward Is Offered.

NEW YORK, Sept. 24.—A Spanish Hebrew, who had a habit of laying the forefinger of his right hand on his nose in a knowing way, and then the forefinger of his left hand, landed here on Aug. 8 on the steamer Hammonia. His complexion was dark; he had a slight mustache; was about 34 years old and well dressed. This was all the description about a clever young man had of the knowing young man. But the clever man went to Hoboken and laid his hand on the knowing one's collar and took him to Ludlow Street jail, where he is now confined on a charge of having embezzled from the Austrian government 600 guilders, and having run away with 300,000 guilders in all, or about $150,000.

A Large Reward Offered.

A week ago the commissioner at Bomlen, Austria, telegraphed to the Austrian consul here that Simon Baruch was wanted in Bomlen for a large embezzlement. The above description was furnished, and a reward of 10 per cent. of the amount stolen was offered for Baruch's arrest. Further information was to the effect that Baruch was formerly in the employ of Morris on July 15, and was supposed to have come to the United States. Deputy United States Marshal Fred Bernhard was detailed on the case. He went to Hoboken, but not finding him in this city, and searched the hotels at Hoboken narrowly.

His Nose Trick Gave Him Away.

On Saturday he received a letter from Baruch on the register of Meyer's hotel. Bernard watched for the man, and presently he saw a dark man lay his forefinger on his nose in a knowing manner, and then the forefinger of his left hand. The deputy saw that he had his man and hastily procured a warrant for his arrest from United States Marshal Hitchcock.

Capture of the Thief.

On his return to Hoboken that day Bernard found Baruch had changed his hotel and also his clothing, going to Beach's hotel. Bernard was a little puzzled at the change in apparel, but the knowing forefingers soon went to work. Bernard took Baruch by the lapel of the coat, led him into the hotel, and slipped handcuffs on Baruch's wrists. Bernard took his prisoner to his room in the hotel.

The Plunder Discovered.

There was a search made in the room, and in that Bernard discovered some French government bonds, equal in value to about 204,000 guilders, and about 22,000 francs in cash. Baruch had practically all along been an American citizen, and that his arrest was therefore, an outrage. His plea of being a citizen of this country played a curious part in his misfortune. It seems that he had a brother who had furnished to the Austrian government army supplies, and who had been sentenced two years ago to a five-years' term of imprisonment for swindling the government. Simon took the power of attorney from his convict brother, and in that way gathered his brother's funds, fled to Paris, where the exposition "like a lord," and then came here.

On his arrival in this country he took out his naturalization papers and thought himself safe.

He Can be Extradited.

The Austrian consul telegraphed to Austria to learn how much government money Baruch was accused of having taken. The reply was that he was embezzled $40,000 guilders from the government. Baruch can, therefore, be extradited.

Musicians at Worcester.

WORCESTER, Mass., Sept. 24.—The thirty-second annual festival of the Worcester County Musical association opened with three public concerts, the first concert of which will be given this evening. At the rehearsals Mme. Katherine Von Arnheim, William Lyle Wilson and Myron W. Whitney will be soloists in Mendelssohn's "St. Paul," and Mme. Corinne Moore-Lawson, Whitney Mockridge and Dr. B. Merrill Hopkinson in Sullivan's "Golden Legend." Sixty musicians from the Boston Symphony orchestra are in attendance, and the chorus is 500 strong. Carl Zerrahn, as in former years, is in charge of the music, and is the associate conductor. The artists to appear during the week include Clara Poole, Clementina De Vere, Lillian Carll Smith, D. M. Babcock, Fred Harrison, Adolf Aus der Ohe and those above mentioned. The principal works to be performed are "St. Paul," Mendelsohn; "The Golden Legend," Sullivan; "The Crusaders," Parker; "The Song of Victory." The hotels are rapidly filling up, and between 3,000 and 4,000 people will probably be in attendance.

Fatal Wreck at Ithaca.

ITHACA, N. Y., Sept. 24.—The Delaware, Lackawanna and Western train due here at 5:40 last night was wrecked as it was ascending the heavy grade by which the road reaches this city. A Woman Tries to Sue a Railway Freight Agent Who Probably Dodged Her.

"Look at that, will you?" exclaimed a woman as she pointed to her trunk in the baggage room of the Third street depot the other day.

"Ma'am," was the humble answer of the agent.

"When I saw that trunk aboard at Rochester yesterday it was a brand new trunk and all right. Look at it now!"

"In a skocking, mum."

"The strap broken, one hinge busted, two of the rollers gone and the lid split!"

"I see, mum."

"Do you suppose I'll stand that?" she exclaimed, elevating her voice until the echoes pealed slivers off the rafters. "Do you think you can ruin that trunk over to me without paying damages?"

"No, mum."

"You've got hold of the wrong woman if you think you can! I want damages—damages, sir! Do you hear?"

"I do, mum."

"I put my damages at $15. That is for the trunk alone. The damage to my feelings I put at $100. I ought to say $200, but I'll let it go at $100. Who shall I sue?"

"The president, mum. Come in at 4 o'clock."

"Very well, I'll be here. If you see him tell him I'm coming. Tell him I don't want no ifs nor ands about it, but cash down."

"Yes, mum."

"And if he tries to dodge me I'll sue for a thousand dollars, and have my husband come on here and lick the whole caravan! Some folks can be walked on and buried in the mud, but I'm not one of the sort. Just leave that trunk where it is until I call, and you mention to the president that a wooden who is no spring pullet will be here at 4 o'clock to get damages or pull hair."—Detroit Free Press.

"George," remarked Mrs. Jackhigh to her husband, who is this Sam Taylor I heard you and Maj. Johnson talking about? Is he a good waiter?"

"A good waiter, my dear! What do you mean?"

"Why, I heard you tell the major that down at the club the other night Sam Johnson came in with a tray full and dropped his pile, and I thought that he must have been very careless."

And then George gazed out of the window with a far away look in his eyes.—Life.

Clearly Incompetent.

"I will ask you, Mr. Saltroom," began the attorney, "to state whether you know of any reason why you can not serve as a competent juror in this case."

"I know of—ah—ah-kit-chew!—kit-chew!—no reason why I—h-chee!—cannot, sir," replied the man.

"Your honor," exclaimed the lawyer, sharply, "this man is evidently subject to hay fever, which is notoriously an ailment that affects only intellectual persons. I challenge him for cause."—Chicago Tribune.

Idyllic Idleness.

Lady of the House—Why don't you go to work? I don't see what you are there can be in your sort of life, with nothing whatever in view.

Tramp—You're mistaken, madam. I have had something in view since the early spring—a work of the imagination, so to speak.

"Indeed! And what is that?"

"A summer idyl, as it were."—Detroit Free Press.

Love's Young Dream.

She—When we are married, darling, what pet name shall I call you?

He—Call me Birdy, simply Birdy, that is all.—Life.

A Lucky Fellow.

Tom speaking of a friend, lately deceased—Poor Brownson possessed a great many good traits of character, didn't he?

Joe—Yes, he did; and besides that, he was one of the luckiest men I ever knew. He got his life insured against accident and was killed the very next day. How is that for luck?—Yankee Blade.

A College Man.

Little Emma—I just asked Mr. Sheepskin when the battle of Lake Erie was fought, and he couldn't tell me.

Father—You ought not to expect him to, Emma; he has just graduated from an American college, and, of course, knows nothing of American history.—Yankee Blade.

Ill Winds.

Mrs. F.—They must have some very heavy winds in Boston.

Mr. F.—Indeed they do.

Mrs. F.—There is an item in the paper about a safe being blown open there.—Life.

The Old Man Makes a Swap.
I've swopped ther ole gray mare, Liser,
Jid gi'n ther cash ther boot.
Twixt her 'n' ther yeller pony mule, Liser,
Ther'll jest my fancy suit.
What! Harry I swopped hoss, Liser?
Wall, wife, that's pow'ful strange
I 'lowed yer'd tired er her, Liser,
'Jid like me wanted a change!

We've tried her in ther buggy, eh,
Yer hates to lose her mare?
Wal, wife, it's curus how wimmin
'Jl her each feelin's 'fect.
When I comes ter tradin' 'nd swoppin',
They're allus at a loss;
Wimmin ain't meant for bizness
When it comes ter tradin' or hoss.

Now don't begin ter cry, Liser,
'Jid go on in that foot way
Ter tole new ter be saddle'n—
Ther ole mare is gone ter stay!
Now just sort o' reconsider,
Before you'll low I was right
In gittin' rid o' ther critter
With neck or tender in sight.

What's that yer say?—Whoa!—Liser?
Whoa! yer infernal—Whoa!!!
* * * * * * *
Good Lor! Was that an earthquake
Er elevated train?
Nay, how I reckon, Liser,
'Twas that ole 'mule' fair wife,
I've got ter kickin' enough—
That's worse'n kickin' hoss.

Talk about yer swopped hosses!
G'in each mule's side ter ther,
Ter think that kickin' varmint
Could be worked on sich an—
Ther's noble wuss ter'n mine, Liser,
But sence I bring's fer mind,
I forgot ter tell him, Liser,
How ole mare 'ud kick!

PERSONAL GOSSIP.

Lord Granville is the finest of story tellers.

Ex-Secretary Bayard is accomplished in the art of self defense.

Mr. John R. Mills spent his vacation this year entirely in salmon fishing, in which he is an expert.

Sir Henry Parkes, the premier of New South Wales, intends, it is said, to introduce a bill enfranchising the female sex in that colony.

The Duke of Connaught, now in command of the English troops at Bombay, will visit the United States next spring on his way to England.

Premier Crispi, of Italy, sent his check for a thousand francs for the Columbus monument fund, which the Italians in New York city are raising.

Mr. Edwards, United States consul at Berlin, is a queer fellow. He is actually charged by the Germans with being too closely devoted to his duties.

Professor Edward G. Coy, the new principal of Phillips Exeter academy, who is a graduate of Yale college, is over six feet tall of athletic build, and of fine personal appearance.

It is reported that the Italian government will expel Kossuth from Italy on a demand from Germany, because in an address to the Hungarians he protested against Premier Tirza's tirade against France.

Stuart Robson, the comedian, began his career as a page in congress. He was forty-six days in serving at the time when such men as Webster, Clay and Calhoun were in congress, and he has many interesting reminiscences to tell of those distinguished men.

Dr. Schliemann, says an Athens correspondent of The Chicago Herald, is infatuated with old Greece, and he wants nothing not Grecian about him. His servants have Greek names, and he never changes them though he has had different.

Father Ryan, of Kalamazoo, is one of the most expert electricians in the United States. In one corner of his room he has a small arrangement that it chastens its master when he presses the button—an electric button concealed about his desk.

Lord Mulgrave, eldest son of the Marquis of Normanby, is about to visit America. He is a man of strongly religious ideas and has serious thoughts of entering a commission in the Salvation Army. He frequently conducts missions in the London slums.

Spurgeon is a great Bible scholar, and the Bible to him is his very existence. He never makes any preparation for a sermon. It is his habit to choose some text on Saturday evening to be used on the morrow. Thirty minutes, and no longer, he devotes to looking up references.

Mr. Neville, the great London baker, was offered and refused $4,000,000 for his business shortly before his death. In early life he failed and had his accounts settled by the bankruptcy court. Later, when his second venture had made him rich, he paid all his old creditors the balance of their claims in full, with interest.

Col. North, the "nitrate king," is building what will be one of the most splendid homes in England. One of its features will be a picture gallery a hundred feet long by forty broad. It will be a lofty vestibule to be filled with sculpture, and at the other a marble musicians' gallery, supported by columns of Mexican onyx. The walls are nearly forty feet high.

Cardinal Manning is a slight, graceful, delicate, gracious, dignified man. Like all intelligent Englishmen, he is deeply interested in the United States, which he regards as the future home of the greatest number of English speaking people. His home is a plain brick house, the chief attraction of which is a magnificent library. He is the most abstemious of men, dining on a potato and an egg.

The late privy councilor, Ludwig von Moltke, a younger brother of the famous Field Marshal, was a man of simple and unobtrusive habits, exceedingly kind hearted, and a passionate lover of music. His days were passed in relieving the poor and serving in the wards. He was for one time a distinguished officer in the Danish service, but resigned his commission after the Schleswig-Holstein war.

WHAT A WOMAN CAN DO.

She can say "no" in such a low voice that it means "yes."

She can do more in a minute than a man can do in an hour, and do it better.

She can talk at once and get along first rate, and no two men can do that.

She can sharpen a lead pencil if you give her plenty of time and plenty of pencils.

She can throw a stone in such a curve that would be a fortune to a baseball pitcher.

She can safely stick fifty pins in her dress while he is getting one under his thumb nail.

She can go to church and afterward tell you what every woman in the congregation had on.

She can dance all night in a pair of shoes two sizes too small for her and enjoy every minute of the time.

She can come to a conclusion without the slightest trouble of reasoning on it, and no sane man can do that.

She can appreciate a kiss from her husband seventy-five years after the marriage ceremony is performed.

She can walk half the night with a colicky baby in her arms without once expressing the desire of murdering the infant.

She is cool as a cucumber in half a dozen tight dresses and skirts, while a man will sweat and fume and grovel in one loose shirt.

She can listen to seven sermons and preach to the woman she hates, while two men would be punching each other's heads before they had exchanged ten words.

She can drive a man crazy for twenty-four hours, and then beg him to forgive her in two seconds by simply tickling him under the chin, and prove does not live that mortal son of Adam's misery who has de ta.

ROYAL FLUSHES.

The queen of Greece is fond of American literature. She adores the works of Hawthorne.

The czar, knowing the poverty of his father-in-law, pays all the expenses of the family gathering at Fredensborg.

The king and queen of Greece have seven children, the youngest a year old. The Princess Alexandra is a very pretty girl of 19. All the children speak French, English, Greek and Russian.

The German emperor has been "graciously pleased" to present Lord Salisbury with his imperial portrait. The gift is expressly designed "as a proof of his majesty's respect and admiration."

The king of the Belgians is fond of giving dinner parties, but the guests who like an after-dinner nap sometimes complain that he will stand up and speak for an hour, during which etiquette compels them to keep on their feet.

SAMUEL SULLIVAN COX.

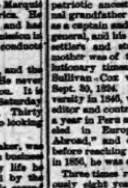
AN EXTREMELY VARIED AND FAIRLY SUCCESSFUL CAREER.

He Was Only Incidentally a Humorist, but Always a Practical and Hard Working Legislator—A Quotation of a Century in Congress—1857 to 1889.

Now that Congressman Samuel Sullivan Cox has passed to his eternal rest, the American people can fairly realize the good work he has done as a statesman. It is true; but he was far more. He was virtually the creator of the life saving service on the coast, and secured the establishment of the signal service by congress. He devised and superintended the best practicable system of taking the census; he drafted and had passed several laws of great value to New York city, and during the civil war he was employed among the very few men who opposed the general policy of the administration, and yet was never for one moment suspected of disloyalty or failure in devotion to the Union and constitution. His own statement of his position in those exciting times has been accepted by most of all parties, and is found in his book "Eight Years in Congress." In 1885, and ran as follows:

"I represented you truly when I warned and worked from 1856 to 1860 against the pernicious policy of the north and south. I supported every measure which was constitutional to suppress the rebellion. At the same time I have fully discharged the conscientious duty of opposition to the use of the means committed to it by a devoted people. Believing that a proper use of such means would bring peace and union, and believing that no peace is permanent unless it were wedded to the Union in love and contentment, I have omitted no opportunity to forward these objects. This I have done in the darkest hours of the rebellion. For doing it your confidence has not been diminished, but increased."

It may be added that though many believe he lost in many of his votes, all concede his honesty and patriotism. He was, indeed, of patriotic ancestry on both sides. His paternal grandfather entered Washington's army as a captain and left the rank of brigadier general, and his father was one of the pioneer settlers and statesmen of Ohio, while his mother was of the Sullivan family of Revolutionary fame. Of Irish descent, Samuel Sullivan Cox was born at Zanesville, O., Sept. 30, 1824. He graduated at Brown university in 1846, worked long and earnestly as editor and contributor to a local paper, spent a year in Paris as secretary of legation, traveled in Europe, wrote "The Buckeye Abroad," and did many other good things before reaching the age of 32, at which age, in 1856, he was elected to congress.



SAMUEL SULLIVAN COX.

Three times re-elected, he served continuously eight years; then, having missed two terms, he re-entered congress, this time from the Ninth district of New York. He had taken up his residence in the city in 1865. In 1870 he was re-elected; in 1872 he was beaten for congressman at large. The next election he came in again, and was re elected and again till his years of service lacked but little of a quarter of a century. Of his return to congress Hon. James G. Blaine in his history says:

"It was not possible for Mr. Cox to keep out of the political field. His talent for the stump, his ready wit, and above all his good nature and good sense, commended him to the New York Democracy. He has been a model of industry. In all the pressure of congressional life, to the duties of which he has given assiduous attention, he has devoted much time to literature and has published several original and entertaining books."

The first of these books, "The Buckeye Abroad," last often returned to plague the author. In its pages he expressed without reserve and with all the fervor of youth his immature ideas on Catholicism, Ireland, forskin trade and many other subjects, on which, it is scarcely necessary to add, his opinion was changed by longer observation. Nevertheless these were his expressions in type, and they have many times been quoted, both in congress and the campaign press.

The work which Mr. Cox did in congress was of the most practical nature. He was always the friend of the letter carriers, and would only secured them better pay, introduced a bill which gave them vacations, but he worked hard and long to lessen their hours of labor, to which effort he finally succeeded. His law for the inspection of foreign vessels has done much to lessen the dangers of the sea, and the bill he introduced for the protection of immigrants put an end to many scandalous abuses.

A number of resolutions about the protection and release of American citizens abroad, including the vindication of German, Irish and Hebrew citizenship and religious toleration fill his honorable record. Mr. Cox tried twice to pass a bill for the protection of coast wreckers, which, as both times he defeated in the senate. For many years he was regent of the Smithsonian institution. He moved to take the Thurman bill forfeiting lands given to the Pacific railroads from the table and passed it in the house after one day's debate. He made the only speech against the back pay bill and returned the money paid to him.

Mr. Cox served as a member of the committee of foreign affairs, for which he was eminently qualified by his experience in diplomacy, his extensive travels in foreign lands and his close study and research. His mind was retentive and vigorous. When in 1858 he was elected to the speaker of the house of representatives it was asserted that no other man was better adapted for the position than Mr. Cox, because of his perfect familiarity with the daily practice of the house. As speaker pro tem. he proved himself an excellent parliamentarian, bearing himself with dignity and a measure of force little to be expected from so light a form.

Even Congressman Blaine regretted that Mr. Cox was to leave Washington for Constantinople. He had been so long in the house that they could not bear the idea of parting with him. He was appointed in March, 1885, and soon after he took his departure from New York for the scene of his new labors in the East. The selection was a most cordial recognition, and it is certain that he made a most favorable impression upon the Turkish court. He cleared up many diplomatic tangles, and the relations of the United States and Turkey were never more friendly. At length Mr. Cox wearied of the Orient, resigned, came home and easily resumed his place in congress. "I yearned for the society of my gentlemen," he said in one of his speeches after his return, and the good natured laugh which followed showed that the yearning was mutual. His greatest success was to come. Almost alone he extracted his party from an absurd position in regard to the admission of the new states, and won so many friends that his tour through Montana, Washington and the Dakotas was a continued ovation.

From December, 1885, to March, 1889, save about six years, he was continuously in congress, and only Judge Kelley and Hon. Reuben Davis, of Mississippi, outranked him in consecutive service. His nickname of "Sunset Cox" may have been given in consequence of his initials, "S. S.," but its first application was in a newspaper publication in his home, The Statesman, of Columbus, O., May 19, 1858, of a sophistical description of a sunset, beginning as follows:

A SUNSET ON SUNSET.

What a commonplace sunset was that of last night! How glorious the storm, and how splendid the setting of the sun! We do not remember to have seen the like on one occasion before. The scene opened in the west, with a whole horizon full of a golden and purple haze, which, as the sun sank, became more and more vivid, revealing strange forms of peerless fancy and alabaster beauty, and glories surpassing the wildest imagery of Milton and the splendid use of Wordsworth's splendid verse to his "Excursion:"

> The appearance instantaneously disclosed
> Was of a mighty city, boldly say
> A wilderness of buildings, stretching far
> And wide with battlement and spire and tower,
> And sidelong terrace, citadel and fane;
> Fabrics which, wanting shape to mortal eye,
> Shone visible, each to each, and all to heaven.

Was there ever more splendor without end!

Mr. Cox's first speech in congress attracted much attention, and his address late in 1862, when he described a brother congressman as "Ichabod Burnell," of Bull Run hanging to the tail of a stampeded steer, "like Anchises borne from burning Troy on the shoulders of Æneas," is said to have taught him how to speak. In the same session he scanned up the Missouri controversy of the time in such an admirable and humorous style that it was at once accepted as classic in the house. The speech in which he told how Fremont's greatness "was blasted by the consuming torrent of 'Blair's Rhetoric'"—that being the title of a popular school book of the time. One of his best speeches was on the fisheries and fish commission, in which he said:

Mr. Speaker, there never was an interest in this country so armed for by the representatives as that of fish. Our first efforts, at least in New England, began with fish. When our ancestors—I refer to the Pilgrim Fathers—I was educated when our ancestors went to King James for a charter to go across the seas and colonize Massachusetts, the king asked the Puritans:

"What is your object? What do you intend?"

Their answer was: "To worship God and catch fish." [Laughter.]

Then the King rejoined: "I give you the charter. Pure God! It is the apostles' own calling." [Renewed laughter.]

Why, sir, even in the early churches of New England the early and pious Puritans used to sing:

> Ye monsters of the bubbling deep,
> Your Maker's name upraise;
> Up from the main, ye whales, and creep,
> And sing your tails always.

[Laughter and applause.]

And so in early New England the cows and cars of fish was commensurate with courage, liberty and sanctity. In later times New England has often rendered congressional enactments giving free salt for her fish, while the miserable tax in Chicago cannot get it on the free list by a decision [Laughter.] Cox always has always had a kindly word for the fishermen. For many decades it gave bounties at so much per ton. Of late years it has given up so much of its rights since the bounty ceased. They are a power in numbers and influence. They supply food for the people. They are constantly engaged in their hardy and hazardous occupation. Their calling is accounted at the greatest time with marvellous fecundity. [Laughter.] But wherever they are, and wherever they adventure, they should be cared for by the government as they are by the States.

The main object of this bill, sir, is not to assist the fishermen so much as the consumers of fish. It is God's law that fish must be caught that food harvests may grow in all the waters of this land. I trust there will be nothing done here to impair the usefulness of this bill. The fact that this bill takes no money out of the treasury, that no further objection will be made to its passage; that the president may be able to select a good, practical man of science and energy, whether he be a Democrat or not, to occupy so honorable a position. I tell not more but that there may be found some good, scientific Democrats in this country to administer this office. [Laughter.] All the science is not monopolized by the Republican party. There may be a Democrat discovered with the qualities of a good scientific fisherman. The president will find him. The president himself is somewhat of an expert in that line. [Laughter.]

The last fish question written by Mr. Cox referred to an engagement to lecture on the Yellowstone country before the Steckler association of New York city; it was to Julius Harburger, president of the association:

NEW YORK, Sept. 6, 1885.

DEAR FRIEND—After your work is done to-night come around to my house and rest. I am sick and sick with a malarial fever, and have been since we fixed our lecture. I have tried several times, etc., to leave the city, but I am held fast. Perhaps I may fail. Come and let me talk it over. It will be a great disappointment to me if I can't get up in time. Yours, S. S. COX.

Four evenings later, at 9:30 p. m., the very time he should have been before the club, he breathed his last. The immediate cause of his death was his wife, who was his second cousin, was Miss Beebee, of Muskingum, O., an heiress and a very intellectual woman. They had no children.

The little son of Michael Fennell, a bricklayer of Troy, N.Y., lost his power of speech two weeks ago. The physicians were mystified. While talking to the child's cousin of his playmates called his tongue and gave it a sudden jerk, and the boy is now talking to make up for lost time.

Mr. J. L. Hamilton, M. R. C. S., of Folkestone, England, says, in reference to some statements about poisonous mackerel, that fishermen have a saying that while mackerel is the best, then green, but that the red variety is the poisonous. In Guadaloupe there is a red boned mackerel used as a rat poison.

A fox hunting club was recently organized in Milwaukee, and at their first meet the officers of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals seized the fox, a dishonest gentleman stole the hounds and an irate farmer had the members of the club arrested for trespassing on his property. The club is now disbanded.

Lewis Purdy, postmaster at Shrub Oak, Westchester county, N. Y., was appointed by President William Henry Harrison in March, 1841, and has served continuously from that time. Though now in his 85th year, he is vigorous, his memory and vision are clear, and he still receives and distributes the mail twice a day, as he has for long years.

William Johnson, a Westchester, N. Y., painter of considerable corpulency, has been engaged in renovating the Williston school house, and recently he sat down at one of the desks to eat his noonday meal. When he finished he found himself so tightly wedged that he could not get up, and he would have been held a prisoner but that he had his employer within reach, and with the aid of this he took the chair and desk apart.

A signal service officer thus describes the view as seen through a telescope on Pike's Peak, Colo.: "I can see the boarders at Colorado Springs, twenty miles away, the men sitting in their shirt sleeves, sipping iced drinks to keep cool, the ladies walking about in white summer robes. I lower the glass. The view men' eyes is gone. Great trees, animal life, men and women fade away like creatures of a dream, and I am the only living thing in a world of eternal snow and ice and silence."

Wm. C. Smith, mason and builder, in repairing the damage done to the arch of the race under the Stillman Music Hall, discovered the large hot-air furnace of Messrs. Carney Bros., which was lost in the ruins of Tuesday, July 30, after having fallen in the gulch in front of the store; it would seem almost impossible for such a large furnace to be carried such a distance but perhaps it had a clue that Dockstader was shivering from fright and thought it would take the chances of having Janitor Maddox fire it up and scare the public what a powerful heater it was.

Keeney's store, on the west side of Park avenue and Front street. The set will be sold at the fair which is now being held for the benefit of the school. The contest for the gold watch will be decided this evening.

Union County Freeholders.

A joint meeting of the Bridge Committee from the Union and Somerset county Board of Freeholders was held at Force's Hotel yesterday afternoon. The meeting was called to order at about half-past two o'clock and continued until nearly six. It was held for the purpose of receiving bids and awarding the contract for a new bridge on Somerset street over Green brook, to replace the temporary structure now in use. A large number of bids were received, but the one of the New Jersey Steel and Iron Company was the lowest on the iron work of the bridge, and that of Thos. S. Webster, on the railing. After considerable discussion the Committee decided to defer action on the bids submitted yesterday and call for new ones from the two companies above named. The contract for the mason work was awarded to Mr. William Richardson.

Charges Against the VanPelt Home.

Charges against the management of the VanPelt Home for the Aged at Metuchen were made yesterday at New Brunswick, at the hearing of Cavilla Gardner, the reformed prize fighter. Mrs. Van Pelt, the head of the home, had accused him of threatening her, and he said the charge was made to force him out of the home, Mrs. Van Pelt having been paid in advance to keep him till his death or as long as he should remain. Mrs. Robinson, an old inmate of the home, said that inmates were often confined in cells and fed with bread and water, and that they were greatly abused by Mrs. Van Pelt. A. A. McMore, a former inmate, said he and his wife had been so cruelly treated that they were obliged to leave. Mrs. Van Pelt denies the accusations.

Wetumpka Lodge Entertained.

Mr. F. F. Haffner, last night at his home in Dunellen, entertained the members of Wetumpka Lodge No. 5,401 Knights of Honor, of this city. The reception was given in honor of Mr. H. T. Wetzel of Jackson avenue, North Plainfield, in appreciation of his noble work in the order. The members spent a very pleasant evening.

Coming to Plainfield.

The Young Men's Catholic association of Morristown had arranged for the annual excursion to Newark, but concluded to visit Plainfield on or about Oct. 15, in connection with the association in Elizabeth. Instead, associations in Paterson and Newark will probably join with them.

A DIVORCE GRANTED TO MRS. ANTHONY.

A Wronged Wife Released After a Two Years' Struggle.

Mrs. Edgar Anthony, of Park avenue a few days ago secured a divorce from her husband, a New York lawyer, who a few years ago was welcomed in Plainfield society, generally, before his true character became known. It will be remembered that he became infatuated with a young heiress from Alloway, not then of age, whom he met while summering at the Catskills some two years ago, and not content with conducting a liaison with her, actually brought her to his beautiful home on Seventh street, turning it into a sort of a harem. His wife, for the sake of their child, drove and to avoid public scandal, endeavored to bring her husband to his senses, the anguish nearly killing her. Upon discovery, Anthony and his paramour, the heiress, disappeared. Trying to reclaim her husband, to whom she, indeed, had been a devoted wife, she had been devoted, Mrs. Anthony visited the girl's guardians. They became enraged. The girl's kindred endeavored to reason with her, but this proving of no avail, legal proceedings were had whereby she was allowed only the use of the income on a portion of the principal, enough to keep her from starving. This was to prevent either her or her paramour profitting by the will. It is also said that one of her near relatives died of a broken heart on account of the girl's conduct.

Finally Mrs. Anthony had detectives ferret out the hiding place of the girl and Mr. Anthony. Soon after the girl with her new born babe was arrested and lodged in Ludlow street jail, on Mrs. Anthony's charge of adultery. Upon the promise she made to abandon Anthony the case was not pressed against her, and she was released on nominal bail, after being kept in the jail several days. She again renewed her relations with Mrs. Anthony's husband. He kept out of New Jersey for fear of arrest.

Mrs. Anthony had many friends in Plainfield, and she finally decided to heed their advice and engaged Craig A. Marsh to take the necessary legal steps to sever the matrimonial bonds. Mr. Marsh saw by Mrs. Anthony's affection for her husband, that she would even yet forgive him, if he would turn from his evil ways. He visited his brother-lawyer in the latter's New York office to reason with him, and only when satisfied that reasoning was wasted on him, began for Mrs. Anthony proceedings for the divorce, which was granted a few days ago. Mrs. Anthony will continue to reside in Plainfield and will resume her maiden name, feeling now but loathing and contempt for the man, to whom she but a few years ago, a happy bride, gave her hand and heart, and upon whom she lavished the affection of one of the truest and most devoted of wives. It is reported that Anthony, tiring of his paramour, is now paying attention as a single man to a young lady in New York of wealth and position who does not know his true character.

BITS OF BASE-BALL NEWS.

Information of Interest to Lovers of the Game.

A five-inning game of base ball was played yesterday afternoon on the grounds of the Plainfield Bowling Club, between the Seniors, and Juniors of the Plainfield High School, in which the latter were defeated by a score of 12 to 11. In the fifth inning the score stood 11 to 7 in favor of the Juniors, but before the inning was finished the game was won by the Seniors, by some good and timely hits by Sutphen, Petrie, Simmonds, Nichwich, Randolph, a bant by Peterson and a base on balls by Cornell.

The following players composed the teams:

Seniors — Petrie, c.; Randolph, p.; Simmonds, 1b.; Nighswich, 2b.; J. Sutphen, s.s.; A. Holmes, 3b.; Peterson, r.f.; Cornell, c.f.; Laing, l.f.

Juniors—Freeman, c.; Rockwell, p.; Newman, 1b.; Grant, 2b.; Daboll, s.s.; Kilmer, 3b.; Vars, r.f.; Jenkins, c.f. Saltman, l.f.

The scorer writes "the features of the game were the falling of little bat wet rain and the umpiring of the Junior team fighting mosquitoes."

The game was called in the fifth inning on account of the storm.

Providing the weather will permit the Giants of Washington, N. J., and the Stars of this city (colored) will play a game on the grounds of the Plainfield Bowling Club to-morrow afternoon at half-past three o'clock.

The Jewish New Year.

The festival of "Rosh Hashanah", or New Year, begins this evening, and will be religiously observed by the Hebrews of this city and throughout the world.

The coming year, in the Jewish calendar, is 5650. "Rosh Hashanah" is one of the most important of all the Jewish holidays, and on that day the Jews abstain from work and enter upon a season of jubilation and prayer. Services are held at the synagogues, which are tastefully decorated. Special services will be held at the synagogues to-day, and the rabbis will deliver appropriate sermons. One of the features of the service is the blowing of the "shofar", or ram's horn.

Saturday, Oct. 5th, is Yom Kippur, or the Day of Atonement. This day is spent by the Hebrews in fasting and prayer, and services are held in the synagogues.

Dropped its Pilot.

Yesterday morning, as a locomotive of the Philadelphia and Reading Railroad was passing the Union depot, on the Central Railroad at Elizabeth, it dropped its pilot and tore up a large portion of the platform before the engineer could succeed in bringing it to a standstill. Many who witnessed the occurrence expected to see the engine leave the track.

PERSONAL.

Policeman Gloss and a few friends spent yesterday afternoon along the banks of the Raritan river fishing, and returned last evening with a nice mess of fish.

Mr. Seymore G. Smith, of Central avenue was elected Vice President of the New Jersey State Sportsmen's Association, at a meeting held at Newark, Monday evening.

DEFYING THE LAW AND CHIEF CAREY.

The Significance of the Arrest of Michael Watson.

Chief Carey did some clever work for the arrest, a few days ago, of Michael Watson for illegal liquor selling near the Pond Tool Works. Watson had formerly been employed in the foundry of the Works, and was president of the Moulders' Union. Then he gave up working at his trade, opened a sort of cigar store near the Works, and began selling liquor illegally. Women in the neighborhood, whose husbands or fathers, brothers or sweethearts, had been enticed into the place, and returned home to their families drunk, causing them sorrow, appealed to Chief Carey.

It was reported that Watson had defiantly declared that the Chief wasn't smart enough to catch him, and this coming to the Chief's ears only made him all the more determined to make a complete case against Watson. While he was planning to entrap Watson, the latter married a daughter of John McFadden, of Dunellen. Mr. McFadden is a married man about forty years old, with a family. Watson invited McFadden to his house to celebrate his sister's wedding. McFadden went, and toward morning he and another who had been invited were somewhat intoxicated. Poor McFadden and his friend were too drunk to get home. They both fell on the railroad track, overcome, and fell asleep. A train approached and crushed McFadden's leg so that it was necessary to amputate it at the hospital, finally Mrs. Anthony had sent for a priest for life, slowly recovering, his life having been at first despaired of.

Meanwhile Watson continued selling, totally unaware of the net being spread about him. Chief Carey one night a week ago last Monday secretly watching his secretaium pipe. Along towards midnight he and a visitor left the office together, got into a wagon, drove through the darkest streets until near Watson's. Then the assistant, as directed, took off his coat, rolled up his sleeves, and with a bundle under each arm of beer, pretending he was a neighbor and would return the case next day. It was placed in the wagon, a bottle opened and tasted, to comply with the legal requirements of proof, and the verdict of both men was that the beer was awful swill to give away. They drove back, and the case was duly marked and sealed.

Meanwhile the Chief had secured other evidence, showing that Watson was not only selling illegally, but was also selling to minors. He had secured evidence enough for three distinct charges, but arrested Watson a few days afterward on four of the strongest.

Watson gave bail, and secured an adjournment until next Thursday. These adjournments are old tricks of the runsellers when caught violating the law. They use the interval in order to inject as many prejudices as they can off by threats. The Chief is up to the trick, and it is one of the worst difficulties he has to contend with. Even when he secures a conviction the case is appealed to the county courts, which the runsellers claim to own, regardless of the will of the people. The Chief, therefore, is careful to make no arrests without overwhelming evidence. More especially since even Plainfield's Common Council, for some inexcusable reason, refuse to protect the officers of the law against lies or threats. Not a single opportunity of evidence against violators of the law. Will the usual trick has been resorted to. One of the witnesses, scared by threats, has disappeared. The others, however, have not yet become scared, but are likely, by advice of the Chief, to secure the arrest and postponement of those who have been threatening them.

The constitution of the Moulders' Union forbids runsellers being admitted to membership, and since Watson has become a liquor dealer, the moulders, who are generally of temperate habits, have promptly expelled him, and the Chief is determined to see that he will be placed where he may do no further injury to the families in his locality, for awhile at least.

A NOTORIOUS CRIMINAL.

The Career of Harry Forrester, the Plainfield Burglar.

Harry Forrester, who was recently arrested in this city for burglary and is now waiting trial, in the county jail at Elizabeth, seems to have a bad record. He was identified by the Newark police as Charles Banwood, alias Price, alias Cornell, alias Tourie, a well known burglar who was convicted in 1886 on four charges of breaking and entering and sent to the Caldwell penitentiary for eighteen months. He has two wives in Newark and one in Plainfield. When in Caldwell penitentiary he and another prisoner named Stroupe tunneled off the bars of their cell and attempted to overpower a keeper. Stroupe was sent to state prison for two years for this offense, and Banwood received a like sentence, but for some unaccountable reason he never served it.

The Republican State Committee Organize.

The Republican State Committee has organized by the election of Garret A. Hobart, Chairman; John T. Foster, Secretary, and John T. Toffey, Treasurer. Judge J. Frank Fort and ex-Senator Cattell were elected Vice Presidents. An Executive Committee consisting of one member from each Congressional district was appointed. Headquarters will be established in Jersey City and Trenton, and a vigorous campaign will be begun at once.

Sample Workers Training Class

Sunday school superintendents, teachers, and all Christian young men are most cordially invited and especially urged to visit the Y. M. C. A. rooms Monday evening next, when Training Class methods will be explained. Mr. W. D. Murray will teach a sample class at nine o'clock, immediately at the close of the young men's gospel service.

Indians in Town.

A band of Indians, comprising five men, one squaw and a pappoos attracted considerable attention on Front street yesterday afternoon. They were followed by a large crowd of children. They are engaged at Scotch Plains.

AN ELOPEMENT.

John Kilpatrick and a Married Woman Disappear, Leaving Behind the Bride of an Hour.

On Monday, the bride of John Kilpatrick started for Philadelphia to have him and the woman he disappeared with a few weeks ago arrested. John, prior to August 6th, last, was employed as a machinist in the Pond Tool Works, and boarded near by with a woman who was known as Mrs. Egan. She claimed to have been married to a man named Egan. He had been employed in Force's hotel. Mrs. Egan, so she called herself, claimed that she was Egan's wife, and that he was the father of her child. This disappearance, it was said, was to avoid arrest for refusing to marry her or provide for the child. That was several years ago. Mrs. Egan engaged for awhile about town as a servant, and finally started a boarding house near the Pond Tool Works, soon after the works got started.

Kilpatrick was one of Mrs. Egan's boarders. He began wooing Miss Katie Whelan of West Front street. After several months he sought her hand in marriage, and, being accepted, they were married privately on the evening of Tuesday, August 6th last, by the Rev. T. Logan Murphy, the rector of the Holy Cross Episcopal church, at the rectory. It is a customary where couples do not produce the marriage fee, as is the case occasionally, to withhold the marriage certificate. It was withheld in the case of Kilpatrick and the certificate, withheld it is supposed for the usual reason. He called for it alone.

After leaving the minister's the night before he took his bride to her home, bade her good night at the gate, and arranged to meet her the next evening. He did not keep the appointment. She thought nothing strange of the matter until several days had elapsed, and having no tidings of him she became alarmed, and sought for him at the works where he had been employed, and at the boarding house. The bride's home had been discontinued a few days after Katie's marriage, and her husband and the boarding mistress had disappeared.

The story told was that when Kilpatrick had returned from the ministers and announced his marriage to his boarding mistress, she had threatened to have him arrested for betrayal under breach of promise, and that to avoid this he fled next day to Philadelphia after drawing his pay at the Pond Tool Works and getting the marriage certificate referred to.

A day after his disappearance he sent a letter to Mrs. Egan to follow him. She, it appears, could not read, and took the letter to a neighbor to read it to her. It was from the neighbor that the bride got the clue to her recreant spouse. Then the bride got a duplicate certificate of her marriage from the Rev. Mr. Murphy.

Members of the W. C. T. U. interested themselves in her behalf, and gave her letters with which she went to Philadelphia, and was taken care of by the W. C. T. U. of that city, while she was searching for her husband to have him and Mrs Egan arrested. She found them, but owing to some technicality, she, being unfamiliar with the law, was unable to get the Kilpatrick's arrested.

She returned to Plainfield, remained a few weeks adviding with counsel, and last Monday started back, as stated, to Philadelphia, determined to have Kilpatrick and the woman arrested for the wrong done her, and have her marriage annulled.

Since the elopement, Egan whom the boarding mistress claimed as stated, has after an absence of several years returned to Plainfield.

Passengers Escape Great Peril.

A shifting-engine on the Jersey Central Railroad came within an ace of demolishing a horse-car filled with passengers yesterday morning at Elizabethport. The car contained Singer employees going to work. The locomotive swept on it from around a curve, and the affrighted passengers began to jump from the car. The locomotive grazed the rear platform of the car. One young man in his haste to get off fell and rolled directly in front of the engine, which struck him in the back, bruising him considerably. Albert Zimmerman was also nearly run over. Intense excitement prevailed for a few moments. There were no serious injuries. The car, in the rush, go on duty until half an hour later than the accident occurred.

Don'ts the Saloons Rule our Courts.

The citizens of North Plainfield have protested year after year against the courts granting licenses to Charles Gressler, of Somerset street. Indictments have been found against him, but he seems to have some mysterious influence over the courts, for he escapes punishment, and in spite of the record against him and the protests of respectable citizens is likely to secure a license. His application was before the court yesterday, but was with difficulty laid over until to-day.

NEW JERSEY NUGGETS.

Live News Notes from Various Parts of the State.

Nicholas N. Demarest, Sheriff of Bergen county, shot himself in the head, and was killed by the Orange county express at the crossing at Rutherford at 5:30 p. m. yesterday.

William Wagner, age fifty-five, a baker, of North Berlen, committed suicide Monday night by shooting himself through the head in the rear of his store on the Weavertown Road. He was unable to get work.

One of the largest bass ever caught in Inland waters was landed yesterday from Lake Hopatcong, by Mrs. Howard F. Frothingham. The bass weighed seven and one-half pounds, and was caught by the Mrs. Frothingham caught in her latest fishing excursion.

The Newark Yacht Club has consumated the purchase of land on Newark Bay, near Bergen Point, on which the Club-house will be erected and the headquarters of the club transferred there to save the long and tedious journey up the Passaic River.

Under Sheriff McPhillips, of Jersey City, went to Hoboken yesterday afternoon and levied on the money which Simon Baruch had deposited in Mr. Daub's Hotel. He will hold it subject to the order of the court. Action was Fallenbush, the American Consul, claiming that it was part of his purchase. The amount is said to be $138,000.

LATEST NEWS BY WIRE.

COURT OF SPECIAL SESSIONS.

Three Burglars Sentenced at Elizabeth To-Day.

ELIZABETH, N. J., Sept. 25th. (Special.)—The court of Special Sessions convened here to-day. The three burglars, James Healey, James H. Doolan and Charles Hornicke, who were arrested for breaking and entering the residence of Mr. Benjamin Darling in this city about a week ago, were arraigned and pleaded guilty; Judge McCormick sentenced Doolan and Hoseeker each to ten years in State Prison and Healey to eight years.

Henecker formerly resided with his parents in Plainfield, but some years ago the family removed to Newark, where they have since been living. The boy who is about eighteen years old was always very wild. When living here the family occupied a small house (which also been torn down) in the rear of Mr. Poer's residence on West Front street.

The Ives' Jury Disagree.

NEW YORK, Sept. 25th. (Special.)—The jury in the Ives case disagreed this afternoon and were discharged.

The jury stood 10 to 2 for conviction.

"THE MOUNTEBANK" LAST NIGHT.

Frederick Warde Received a Perfect Ovation.—Demanding a Speech.

The Dramatic News, in a recent issue, stated that Frederick Warde, who appeared in "The Mountebank" at Music Hall last evening, was the greatest actor on the American stage, and the most unsuccessful one, financially. We know nothing about the truth of the latter allseriion, but believe the former is very near the truth. We have been chary about extended criticisms of performances. There are so few nowadays worth the space that we have reluctantly yielded even a line to them. They catch and amuse enough of the public and thereby pay the managers. To show our appreciation of Mr. Warde it is necessary only to state that in the five years since Music Hall was opened he is the only actor to whom we devoted a column of space. This was two years ago on the occasion of his former appearance here. Then he produced "Virginius". And such a performance! Those who braved the storm to-night will, we predict, be soon number of the public and thereby pay the managers. PLAINFIELD EVENING NEWS.
THE NEWSPAPER OF PLAINFIELD AND VICINITY, IS PUBLISHED AT 5:30 O'CLOCK EVERY AFTERNOON, AT NO. 11 SOMERSET STREET.

E. W. NORRISH, EDITOR AND PROPRIETOR.

IT IS DELIVERED BY CARRIERS TO ALL PARTS OF THE CITY AT TEN CENTS A WEEK, OR, IF PAID IN ADVANCE, AT $5.00 PER YEAR.

On one thing both Republicans and Democrats of Ohio are to be congratulated. It is announced that the campaign this fall, but as it will be, is to be entirely free from offensive personalities. It is a good idea, especially in Ohio.

Border warfare, drought, grasshoppers and potato bugs in times past did their best to give Kansas a bad name. But Kansas, nevertheless, marched on as gloriously as the soul of her own John Brown. This year she will have for sale thirty-three million bushels of wheat and a quarter billion bushels of corn.

In one case, at least, gas and electric illumination have met and made friends. In Cincinnati the gas company itself is putting in an electric plant to accommodate such of its customers as desire that kind of lighting. When electric illumination can be utilized perfectly for private houses, leaving gas for fuel, then civilization will be approaching perfection. The gas can be manufactured where the natural product cannot be obtained. This is what our cities will certainly come to. Then, no smoke, no ashes and no rattling coal carts.

Lodging Houses and Crime.

Police Inspector Byrnes, of New York, says plainly in The North American Review that city lodging houses are done in right successes of crime. He refers especially to the class which charge from five to twenty-five cents for a night's lodging. In these resorts drunkards, thieves, murderers and various kinds of criminals have their haunts. If a poor boy comes from the country to find work, he naturally drifts into one of these places. He makes the acquaintance of desperate criminals. They take him in hand, lead him through the lore of their dark training school and in a little time graduate an honest boy into a full fledged housebreaker or sneak thief.

But where shall an honest man with only twenty-five cents in his pocket go for a night's lodging? Inspector Byrnes does not say. He only says these lodging houses should be held under strict surveillance.

It is a question for civilization to answer. One thing is clear already. These cheap, very cheap, lodging houses pay or they would not continue to increase in number as they are doing. Now, if they pay as low resorts, they will certainly pay as decent ones. If the churches, if benevolent associations, if any kind with "a heart at leisure from itself to go out to suffering," as Rev. Mr. Chapman puts it—if such as these would interest themselves sufficiently they might transform these "nurseries of crime" into training schools of civilization.

New American Industries.

It seems likely that at length the United States will be able to export coal. By way of beginning a coal line has been established between Florida and Cuba. The fleet for this purpose is not formidable as yet, consisting only of an ocean tug with half a dozen steel barges, an English steamer and two or three American sailing vessels. But enough fuel has already been shipped from the Alabama mines through Pensacola to the West Indies, to show that the trade can be profitably carried on. The Louisville and Nashville railroad are therefore building a coal dock at Pensacola, and it is expected that this trade will reach 400,000 tons of coal annually. Thus there will be an outside market for American coal, one more industry giving employment to several hundred or a thousand men and a prospect that fewer mines will be obliged to shut down part of the year on account of over production.

A fresh impetus has also been given to the sugar culture in Texas. Hitherto comparatively little attention has been paid to cane culture in this great and growing state. But the possibilities in that direction have been brought before the public in an unexpected way. Maj. Goree, manager of the state penitentiary, casting about for some employment that would occupy his convicts and at the same time not interfere with the labor of free men, set them to work on sugar plantations. He reports that he has not only paid all their expenses thereby, but has made on each convict employed a profit of $200 for the year.

If convicts can do as much, what might not free labor produce in turning part of the fertile plains of Texas into sugar plantations? If Texas could yield in sugar a tenth part of what she does in cotton, she could annually burst any sugar trust that might be formed in civilization. Sugar cane grows where cotton does in many localities.

Wonderful reports come of the vast and rapidly enlarging fruit culture in California. The present year the crop will be worth $34,000,000. Of this $3,000,000 are in raisins and citrons, which, comparatively a few years ago, it was not thought could be produced in America. The whole product drawn from farming in its various forms in California this year will amount to $185,000,000. Not a bad country to live in, this of ours.

IN THE POLITICAL WORLD

The Republican State Convention at Saratoga.

KEYSTONE REPUBLICANS MEET

Officers Chosen for the Ensuing Year by the Pennsylvania and New York Republican Leagues — Other Business Transacted—Political Notes.

SARATOGA, N. Y., Sept. 25.—The Republican state convention bids fair to be harmonious and of brief duration. Ex-Senator Miller arrived to attend the convention and it is alleged that he will not even visit Saratoga during the session. Among the well known men here are Congressman Ketchum, Chairman John N. Knapp, ex-Congressman J. E. Payne, of Auburn; Senators McMillan, Powell, Yedder and Worth. Chester N. Cole, D. G. Warren, Congressmen Faldlw, Farquahar and Dutcher, Gen. N. M. Curtis, Secretary C. S. Smith, Clarence Meade, Dwight Lawrence, O. E. Jones, Sheridan Shook, John F. Plummer, Col. H. V. D. Crager, Judges Smith and Patterson, John J. Hall, Maj. W. H. Bright, Treasurer David Cromwell, of Westchester; Hon. Mahlen Chance, Col. E. A. McAlpine, J. S. Whipple, Judge Lambert, Hon. Harvey Hurd, Hon. John Van Vorhees, Hon. W. C. Stevens, Hon. Charles Stanton, James Denison, ex-Attorney General Hamilton Ward and ex-Congressman George West.

Platt Hopes for Harmony.

Ex-Senator Platt was warmly greeted after his arrival and was soon in earnest conversation with the leaders.

To a representative of the United Press Mr. Platt said that he expected entire harmony to prevail in the convention.

John J. O'Brien's Circular.

Friends of John J. O'Brien have issued a circular to "Delegates to the Republican Convention" bearing the caption, "Was John J. O'Brien Loyal?" The circular contains tables of figures contrasting the vote in the Eighth with that in the Twenty-first district, and claims that Mr. Harrison and Runner were slaughtered in the Twenty-first district." The concluding paragraph of the circular is as follows:

"Will you vote to brand John J. O'Brien? Will you brand 5,004 Republicans as traitors to their party? Will you throw away the work of O'Brien and the Eighth. We ask you to examine the record and do justice by admitting John J. O'Brien and his delegation."

The Republican State League.

At the meeting of the Republican State league a number of resolutions were passed, eulogizing President Harrison's administration were adopted, and it was moved and seconded that the next annual convention of the State league be held between the dates of July 1 and Sept. 1. The motion, after discussion, was referred to the executive committee. On motion of Mr. Williams, of Kings, the executive committee was instructed to fix the annual dues for the future at $5. Mr. James W. Hawes, of New York county, and R. R. Redford, of Erie, were unanimously elected delegates at large to the national convention to be held at Nashville in 1890.

The Officers Elected.

The convention next proceeded with the election of officers. A. McAlpine, of West Chester, was unanimously elected president; vice-presidents, W. H. Bright, of Utica; R. H. McNaughton, of Troy; Charles Stanton, of Glens Falls; secretary, W. R. Pierson, of Saratoga; treasurer, George Kenneth, of Kings.

The following telegram was received just before adjournment:

"The Republican league of Pennsylvania in session at Pittsburg, to her sister league of New York, send greetings and congratulations for the good work achieved by the Empire state. EDWIN L. STEWART,
"President Pennsylvania State League."

Pennsylvania Republicans Meet.

PITTSBURG, Sept. 25.—At the Republican League convention William P. Leeds, of Philadelphia, and Edwin S. Stuart, of Pittsburg, were chosen delegates-at-large to represent the State league in the national convention in Nashville, Tenn., next year. Business was suspended to listen to the report of the committee on resolutions. The report reaffirms and ratifies the platforms adopted by the last state and national conventions of the Republican party; indorses the administration of President Harrison; that it is the duty of the Republican party to use every endeavor to protect the southern negroes in the enjoyment of civil and political rights, and calls upon the president and congress of the United States to take the necessary action to secure their constitutional rights; denounces the action of the Democratic authority in the state of West Virginia as necessarily subversive of free government; indorses Hon. H. K. Boyer, Republican candidate for state treasurer, and endorses the administration of Governor Beaver.

Representatives of the state clubs (two from each congressional district) to the national convention in Nashville were then elected.

The Officers Chosen.

The choice of officers of the league for the ensuing year resulted in the re-election of Edwin S. Stewart, of Philadelphia, as president; A. J. Logan, of Pittsburg, was elected first vice president; J. B. Rhea, Lancaster second vice president; H. C. Dowding, Erie, third vice president. William Thornton was re-elected treasurer and R. H. Libbi say recording secretary. Philadelphia was selected as the place for the next meeting. Gen. Hastings and Hon. John Dalzell spoke.

The Bay State's Convention.

BOSTON, Sept. 25.—The hotels are crowded with delegates to the Republican state convention today. There is great uncertainty as to the nominees for the offices of governor and lieutenant governor. The friends of Brackett, however, claim that they will be able to nominate him for governor on the first ballot. Crapo also has a large following and feel confident of success. The name of Hon. W. H. Haile will also be placed in nomination. The race for the nomination for lieutenant governor will be between George W. Schonler, of Brookfield; Myron P. Walker, of Belchertown, and Francis Jewett, of Lowell. For secretary of state, it is thought, there will be but little opposition to the renomination of Secretary Pierce.

Allegany County Democrats.

BELMONT, N. Y., Sept. 25.—The Democratic county convention has elected the following delegates to the state convention: H. W. Rumsey, of Belmont; Hon. C. A. Parsons, of Wellsville; Stephen N. Bennett, of Cassaway. Delegates to the senatorial convention: Peleg Thomas, of Alfred; D. H. Hosley, of Almond; Elias Reynolds, of Belmont; W. C. Mosher, of Wellsville. Delegates to judicial convention: F. Harding, of Hume; Frank M. Todd, of Cuba.

Oneida County Democrats.

UTICA, N. Y., Sept. 25.—The Democrats of the first assembly district of Oneida county nominated John K. Seigrist, of Utica, for member of assembly by a vote of 1,000 to six hours, during which 121 ballots were taken. There were three candidates in the field, and the contest between them was a stubborn one.

Mississippi's State Contest.

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 25.—The Times-Democrat's Jackson (Miss.) special says delegates to the Republican state convention are arriving, and the prospects are that it will be largely attended. Chalmers will probably be nominated for governor.

AFTER ANOTHER SUSPECT.

The Police in the Cronin Case on the Trail of a Philadelphia Man.

CHICAGO, Sept. 25.—The Times says the police are after a Philadelphian who came to Chicago early in February and left on the day following Dr. Cronin's disappearance. His alleged name in that city is not given—he are William Bergen and William Nolan. He is said to have taken the leading part in the great crime and was the chosen confidant of one of the conspirators.

"We are collecting evidence against the man daily," said a prominent Irishman, "and expect to have enough to convict not only Nolan, but the head of the conspiracy. That Nolan is not his name; it is an alias. We know his real name, but for reasons which you will readily understand it is best not to divulge it just now. He is well known in Irish circles, and has done much dirty work for certain parties who not long ago were high in the councils of the Clan-na-Gael and the Land League. That money in large amounts was given that man. Part of this we have already traced."

BURIED FOR 108 HOURS.

Joe Kemp, Aged 78, Survives a Terrible Ordeal at Quebec.

QUEBEC, Sept. 25.—At 9 a. m. the laborers working on the ruins of the landslide heard a slight moan under a heap of wreckage. Digging vigorously, they soon reached the body of Joe Kemp, aged 78. He was able to speak, after having been buried for 108 hours. Stimulants were administered, and Kemp, who is 72 years old, will probably recover.

The body of Mrs. O'Dowd was found a short time after Kemp, badly mutilated. She was 72 years old. She was rocking a cradle and Lucinda Jacques was sitting, an avalanche of rocks came down, and was knocked out through the window and killed. When found, her knitting needle was still fast in her hand. Her bodies are looked for soon.

The coroner's inquest into the cause of death of the forty-eight victims known to be killed has begun.

Military Instruction at Yale.

NEW HAVEN, Sept. 25.—The war department has detailed Lieut. Charles A. L. Totten, Fourth artillery, to report to this university, where he will be stationed for the next three years to instruct the students in the scientific department in military engineering. This action of the war department is one of the scientific professors said that the scope of the course would depend entirely upon the students themselves. It was not intended that they should pledged military school, with the incidental routine drills, etc., but the lieutenant would instruct in drilling if desired. It was thought desirable, however, enough enough to study military tactics, and the matter was laid before the Washington officials with the above result. The faculty feel greatly elated over the matter, as previous years Yale has been able to secure Lieut. Totten's services only for occasional lectures.

Imprisoned 185 Days in Panama.

PANAMA, Sept. 25.—Mr. P. V. Luster, of Tennessee, has been released from imprisonment in this city after having been confined 185 days awaiting trial for having killed a Mexican named Cevallos, in the northern part of the department of Panama. It was proved by evidence that Cevallos had determined to kill Mr. Luster, and had followed the latter about for that purpose. The evidence was conclusively in favor of the accused. Mr. Luster's many prominent friends declared that Cevallos was known to be a dangerous man.

Musicians in Session.

WORCESTER, Mass., Sept. 25.—At the first concert of the Worcester festival Mendelssohn's oratorio of "Elijah" was produced with great success. William Ludwig led in solo honors, the other soloists being Katherine Van Arnheim, Lillian Carll Smith and George J. Parker. Mr. Ludwig and Miss Van Arnheim achieved a notable success in their duet. Brilliant chorus work characterized the entire performance. Miss Anna Smith, the Norwegian nightingale, sang at the organ rehearsal. She was warmly received.

Sheriff Demarest's Awful Fate.

PATERSON, N. J., Sept. 25.—Nicholas C. Demarest, sheriff of Bergen county and one of the best known politicians in northern New Jersey, was struck by an Erie express train at Ridgewood at 5 p. m. and literally ground to pieces. His team of horses escaped without a scratch, but the buggy was demolished. Mr. Demarest was attempting to cross in front of the train, and it is claimed he disregarded the flagman's warning.

The Cigarmakers' Convention.

NEW YORK, Sept. 25.—The entire afternoon session was devoted to the discussion of the question of revenue tax. The convention favored the abolishment of the revenue tax on cigars. The meeting adjourned at 5 o'clock without having decided the question, although most of the speakers favored the continuance of the tax.

A Cashier in Canada.

WHEELING, W. Va., Sept. 25.—In the circuit court, when the name of Harry Seybold the clerk who embezzled $20,000 from the Bank of Wheeling, was called there was no response. The prosecuting attorney was instructed to proceed against Seybold's father, who is on his bond for only $4,000. Seybold is said to be in Canada.

Ex-Surgeon General Beale Dead.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Sept. 25.—Ex-Surgeon General Joseph Beale, of the United States navy, is dead at his home in this city. He entered the navy as an assistant surgeon in 1857. He was made surgeon general of the navy in 1873 and placed on the retired list in 1876.

A Water Main Bursts.

NEW YORK, Sept. 25.—A water main burst at One Hundred and Seventy-seventh street, west of the Harlem railroad, raising up the street and flooding the tracks of the railroad. The railroad company built a wooden bridge at that point in is great danger of being carried away.

FIVE PERSONS KILLED.

A Fatal Railroad Accident at Chicago.

THE ENGINEER WAS AT FAULT.

A Freight Train Crashes Into a Suburban Passenger Train on a Crossing—Five People Killed Outright and Four More Seriously Injured.

CHICAGO, Sept. 25.—A frightful disaster to a suburban passenger train occurred in the southern outskirts of the city. The Chicago, Rock Island and Pacific train No. 47, which left the main depot at 5:35 p. m. for Blue Island, was crashed into by a freight train at the Lake Shore and Panhandle crossings near Eighty-seventh street, Englewood. Five persons were killed and four seriously injured.

The Killed and Injured.

The following is a list of the killed: Mrs. Brown, Frederick Huebner, Mrs. Kelley, J. McKinzie and an unknown woman. All those killed lived on Washington Heights.

The injured are: Parlor Harden, Washington Heights; Gus Mulcahy, No. 76 Wallace street, fatally; Miss A. K. Steele and Anton Shuberg.

How the Accident Occurred.

The passenger train was at a standstill, one coach projecting over the crossing. Into this coach, containing about sixty persons, plunged the freight train, traveling rapidly at right angles to the Rock Island train. The wreck of the passenger coach was instant and complete. How many persons were killed and injured it was impossible at the moment to learn. The first estimates made during the confusion that followed the collision put the number of deaths at twelve to fifteen. But as the debris was cleared away bodies had been taken out of the debris, and the number of victims was still a matter of guesswork.

The Engineer Was at Fault.

Most of the people in the ill starred coach were, it is known, residents of the suburban towns of Washington Heights and Morgan Park. The accident was clearly due to the carelessness of the engineer.

A Thrilling Moment.

The 6:18 suburban train on the Rock Island road leaves daily at Eighty-seventh street for Washington Heights. Just then, a moment later is caught up by the dummy engine and hauled over the main line to Washington Heights. This car was left at this point as usual when a moment later the passengers were horrified to see in the rear of them and bearing down on them at the rate of twelve miles an hour a heavy freight train of the same road. There was no time for flight. The engineer had reversed his engine, but the effect was hardly perceptible, and with almost undiminished speed the huge engine plowed into the car. The train plowed into the passenger coach until only the locomotive was entirely hidden in the wreck.

A Penknife That Did Alleged Murder.

HARTFORD, Conn., Sept. 25.—In the trial of W. J. Snyder for the murder of John Galvin by striking Galvin on the head with a penknife, Dr. J. S. Carter testified that such a wound as it is claimed caused Galvin's death could not be inflicted with a knife in the hands of an ordinary strong man. He was handed a penknife and a skull and invited to illustrate the truth of his testimony. He struck the skull with the knife, penetrating the skull, causing much the same kind of a wound as the state claims was inflicted upon Galvin. The practical contradiction by the witness of his own theory caused quite a sensation. The claim of the defense is that death resulted from injuries inflicted during the operation of trephining the skull. The trial is still on.

Johnstown's New Directory.

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., Sept. 25.—The new directory, compiled by C. B. Clark, has been placed in the hands of the public. The proof sheets for the directory were ready when the flood swept the valley, and on every page can be seen the finger marks of death. Stars and daggers are distributed all over the work before many of them, the former to denote the evidence that Cevallos had determined to kill Mr. Luster, and had followed the latter about for that purpose. The evidence was conclusively in favor of the accused. Mr. Luster's many prominent residents declared that Cevallos was known to be a dangerous man.

Musicians in Session.

WORCESTER, Mass., Sept. 25.—At the first concert of the Worcester festival Mendelssohn's oratorio of "Elijah" was produced with great success. Louisiana's Bond Scandal.

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 25.—Ex-Cashier Stoddart has produced a copy of a letter written by him Jan. 19, 1888, from Baton Rouge to State Treasurer Burke, in which he stated that thirty coupons of the Levee bonds destroyed state bonds had been presented for payment. The numbers of the coupons were given in the letter. Mr. Stoddart says that Maj. Burke telephoned him next day from New Orleans: "Have seen the party and have arranged." Mr. Stoddart showed the coupons to Receiving Clerk Campbell, who registered and enrolled them in accordance with the treasurer's office in view of such irregularity. Maj. Burke promised him that no remarks in the office, during the latter's term was nearly out. If Mr. Stoddart's statement is accurate it indicates a knowledge of the coupon matter on Maj. Burke's part long before he retired from the office of treasurer.

Lewis Bros. & Co.'s Offer.

NEW YORK, Sept. 25.—Lewis Bros. & Co., dry goods commission merchants, who failed some time ago, offer to pay 57½ cents on the dollar. This is 7½ cents more than was expected. All creditors will accept. Some have accepted the offer. The Manville Manufacturing company, of Providence, which was involved in the Lewis failure, have also arranged satisfactorily with their creditors on a basis of 50 cents cash and 50 cents deferred. The Dunnell Manufacturing company, of Providence, have it is said, also made similar arrangements.

The Czar Has Another Escape.

LONDON, Sept. 25.—On the occasion of the czar's departure for Copenhagen, a sheet of dynamite exploded in the railway station at Peterhof, killing a signal man and wounding several other persons. The explosion occurred just previous to the czar's arrival at the station from the Peterhof palace, and was probably premature. The persons who placed the chest in the station did so with the intention of exploding it on the arrival of the majesty should be near it. The government has tried to suppress the facts.

A PRETTY HORSE THIEF.

Romantic Career of Miss Etta Robinson.

HOW SHE STOLE HORSES FOR FUN.

A Beautiful West Virginia Girl Who Is on Trial for Very Eccentric Conduct—Her Clever Escape from Jail in Male Attire. Again Captured.

PARKERSBURG, W. Va., Sept. 25.—There is now in progress here the trial of a 17-year-old girl named Etta Robinson, who is accused of horse stealing. Six months ago Etta was visiting her brother in the adjoining county of Putnam, who is a farm hand employed by Thomas Headly, a wealthy real estate owner. One morning Etta was missing, and also a fine horse belonging to Nathan McCoy. After a search for some days the horse was found in the girl's possession near the Ohio river.

Causes of the Glut.

While her partners were debating what to do with her Etta dashed into the Ohio, still on horseback, and endeavored to swim across. She was captured, and while being returned to jail told how she had traveled fifty miles alone through a strange country one night. She was placed in jail, but broke out and returned to her brother, when McCoy took pity on her youth and refused to prosecute her.

Her Second Offense.

A short time after a horse belonging to a farmer named Shultz was missing just when the low country in the Kanawha valley was all flooded. The horse was tracked to the edge of the water, and next day both Etta and the horse were found in a hollow. The girl was arrested while on the back of the horse, horseback. She slept out at night, living on what she could steal. For the second time her youth protected her, and she was not prosecuted.

Three Times and Out.

Six weeks later she stole a horse from Lewis Loxley. She was pursued across the Ohio, captured and brought to the Putnam county jail. She remained there several weeks, in which time her winning ways won her the confidence of the jailer, who allowed her many privileges.

Two weeks ago he awoke to find the fair maid had gone, having cleverly made her escape by cutting through an old wall. It was afterward learned that she had stolen a suit of men's clothes, and, taking the stable boy, had stolen a fine horse in the jailer's possession, and fled the country. She was finally captured with the horse near her old home. During her escapades she had lived on berries, corn or anything else she could find, and wandered through the wildest territory.

She Steals for Fun.

This young adventuress does not steal from any other motive than simply the love of excitement. She is a fine appearing youth and apparent innocence. Her education and manners have not been neglected, and she is neat in her attire. Her youth and beauty have created a deep feeling of sympathy in her favor and some of the most prominent citizens of Putnam county are interesting themselves to secure her release.

Married at the Pistol's Point.

WEST POINT, Va., Sept. 25.—The grand jury of King William county has indicted the Rev. Mr. Ball, a minister residing in F. Barham and compelling him to marry Mr. Ball's daughter. It is charged that the two Balls went to Barham's room and threatened to shoot him unless he came with her forquietly and married Miss Ball; that they took him to Washington, Miss Ball joining them at Richmond, and that at Washington the marriage took place. Barham reported the matter to his father, who lives in New Kent county, and then returned to West Point alone. Mr. Ball was arrested Saturday and bound over to keep the peace for six months.

The Blaine-Damrosch Engagement.

BOSTON, Sept. 24.—A special to The Journal from Augusta says: "Your correspondent is able to report with certainty concerning the rumor of Miss Margaret Blaine's engagement, just given publicity. Miss Blaine and Walter J. Damrosch are engaged, and the lady, who is now visiting her sister, Mrs. Hattis, stopped over in town a few hours on their way to attend Emmons' wedding, freely accepted the congratulations of her friends and relatives here. The engagement will be formally announced immediately after the wedding.

Florida's Tornado.

JACKSONVILLE, Sept. 23.—At West Jacksonville four houses were blown down and many others torn to pieces. Swinton Grove, Panama Park, Scotland, Mayport, New Berlin and several small settlements on the St. John's river have been damaged and three blown down. The Island Hill hospital, made memorable by the epidemic of 1888, the main building of which was blown down, and the whole scene is one of ruin. The total damage by the storm throughout the whole area will aggregate fully $40,000.

The Great Preserver.

Miss Tolerson—And to think that after all these thousands of years there should be so much water in the sea! One would suppose it would have dried up long ago.

Miss Knowpack—Yes, there is. But then, you know, it has been of such use to it, and pays the way so well, preserves things in wonderful.—New York Sun.

A Well Connected Beetle.

Miss Plantagenet De Vere—That man's attentions to me are most offensive, and he has the reputation of being a fortune hunter. Do you suppose it is papa's wealth that allures him?

Miss Dolly Flicker (thoughtfully)—Why, what else can it be?—Life.

Light on a Mystery.

One often wonders why such a large number of idlers always surround every excavation or new building in the central part of the city, but an explanation given by one yesterday sheds some light on the mystery. A man who sat on a block of stone carefully watching the work on the nine story building attracted the attention of one of the bosses, who said:

"I have seen you around here most of the time for the last two months."

"Yaher."

"Are you drawing wages?"

"Oh, no."

"Is it a relative of yours who is building?"

"No."

"Going to rent it when finished?"

"No."

"Getting points in architecture?"

"No."

"Well, then, what brings you here?"

"Well, I'll tell you. It struck me that you were not making that front door wide enough by an inch and a half, and I've been sitting around to see whether I was wrong or you meant to change it."

"That door is all right, sir, and won't be changed."

"Is it? Then there's no longer any need of my presence, and I'll move up street and see if they carry the walls of that new store up plumb."—Detroit Free Press.

He Didn't.

"Bob," said a stranger to a bootblack on Larned street, "didn't you black my shoes yesterday?"

"I guess I did."

"Right over in that doorway?"

"Oh, yes."

"Well, when I paid you didn't I give you five $5 gold pieces in mistake for pennies?"

"Not much you didn't."

"Do honest now?"

"I am honest. D'ye suppose that if I'd got my hands on $25 I'd be here now? Not much! I'd be fixing for the plains on a palace car, with a revolver on each hip and a lasso over my right shoulder, and by to-morrow you'd see in the papers that I'd run across old Sitting Bull and made him so tired that anybody could pull his nose. Made a mistake! You bet you didn't!"—Detroit Free Press.

The Husband's Letter.

Yes, I'm filling, dearest, filling
(As you kindly bade me do)
In the weary time I'm waiting
Till I can go on to you.

I am filling in the interstices
With what meed of joy I may,
And I hope your days are pleasant,
And I beg that you will stay.

I am doing pretty well, dear,
And you mustn't mind the lack
That is everywhere around me.
Yours unshakably, Jack.

Come right in, here: I'm all ready;
Here, your desk—I'll clear three, there.
(Just now, dear, you'd find me filling
To a very lofty pair.)
—Arlettie Anderson in Detroit Free Press.

The Healthy Season.

Jimson—Well, we are getting along to the healthy season.

Jamson—The healthy season? What do you mean by that?

Jim—Well, you see, the baseball season will soon be over, and when it is over not one half—not one quarter—of the relatives of office boys and clerks will die as died during the time it lasted.—Boston Courier.

Honesty Pays.

Clerk—Could you let me off today, sir?

Employer—Going to a funeral?

C.—No, sir. I'm going fishing in the forenoon and to the ball game in the afternoon.

E.—All right. You can go. And here's ten dollars to enjoy yourself with.—Boston Courier.

Repartee.

Mr. De Dude—Aw—me good fellah, me elegah's gone out. Have you a match faw me?

Uncle Si—Wal, I dunno. It 'ud be hard to find a match for ye, but I've a jackass in the barn, mebbe he'll do.—Munsey's Weekly.

Mixed Pickles.

Customer (in cheap restaurant)—Waiter, bring me a nipkin, please.

Waiter—All in me eye at present, cap, but that chap with the heavy mustache eating soup over there will be through with hissoon.—Hotel Mail.

Intelligence Not Wanted.

Attorney—What is your occupation?

Man summoned as juror—I am employed in an intelligence office.

All the attorneys at once—Your honor, we challenge this juror for cause.—Chicago Tribune.

Very Verdant.

Hiram—I thought to that if I lay down in the grass you couldn't find me.

City Cousin (who had been hunting for him)—I did find it hard to distinguish you. The grass is so green.—Drake's Magazine.

Slang in Learning's Temple.

Johnny Bitherz—Who was it hit the teacher in the eye?

Tommy Tumbler—Don't give it away. It was a little private snap of my own.—Judge.

LIGHT AND AIRY.

Good-by to the Summer Girl.
What have you to remember?
What have I to forget?
Laughter, jests and trifling
With dewdrops wet.

Whisper of vows to betrothed,
Whisper of sin in jest,
When the lilies' breathing fragrance
Died sweetly on your breast?

There's nothing to remember,
There's nothing to forget,
But laughter, jests and trifling,
And yes and yes and yes.

—Exchange.

A Disappointment.

Vincent to brother, who was visiting him at school—Why, didn't you bring me some thing good to eat?

Harold—I forgot all about it when I was leaving home.

"Humph! when ma comes she always brings me a lot of sweet things. I was sick for three or four days after her last visit."—Grip

An Easy Method.

"I am told Miss Throssy makes a great deal of money from her voice."

"Yes, about twelve hundred dollars."

"Why, she can't sing."

"I know it, but you see her mother keeps a fashionable boarding house, and the guests got up a purse to persuade her not to try."—Harper's Bazar

Better Times Ahead.

There will be peace
For suffering bald heads by and by;
For frost will solve
And quickly thaw
The frisky, festive Swedish fly.

—Washington Post.

Of One Mind.

Self Made Man—I can't see any sense in wasting so much valuable time on dead languages.

College Student—Neither can I. Uncle Wiggins married to win the Latin prize, he hasn't been worth a cent in the boat srew.—New York Weekly

A Hard Request.

Little Elsie going with the remainder of her family is dining at the Veneers)—After dinner, Mr Veneer, will you show me the skeleton?

Mr. Veneer—What skeleton, my dear?

"Why, the one ma says you have in the closet."—Tips.

Life's Phases.

Henrietta's gone to Vassar, gum, gum, gum!
Louise is at the skating school, hum, hum, hum!
Tom is in the motor patch, mum, mum, mum!
Bill is in the barroom, rum, rum, rum!
Father's at the office, gum, gum, gum, hum!
Kate and Ned are all spoil, yum, yum, yum!

—Exchange.

The Jig Was Up.

Mrs. Proudfoot—I have at last consented to my daughter's marriage with George. You know he saved her from drowning while bathing.

Little Tommy speaking up—Sister told me it was a put up job.—Epoch.

That Charitable Man.

I look upon all men as brothers,
They're what I am told;
I never look for faults in others,
I've got too many of my own.

—Boston Courier.

Cheese to Recover.

"Smithers is going to marry that rich Miss Bunker—a million dollars, they say."

"Hooray!"

"I am surprised to hear you rejoice. I thought you disliked him."

"I do; but he owes me a hundred dollars."—Harper's Bazar.

A Question of Meter and Eyesight.

Miss Rose—How do you like the new poet, Miss Ermengarde?

Mr. Youngblunt—Well, to tell the truth, I can't wear her face.

Miss Rose—Well, if you can't, you must be blind.—Harper's Bazar.

The Way of the World.

"I'm all broke up," he sadly sighed,
As he returned to town.
"A love affair?" "No," he replied,
"A hammock let me down."

—Harper's Bazar

Preparing for the Inevitable.

Bookkeeper dooking up from his paper—Mr. Silvermas, there are to be four weddings in town next week.

Mr. Silvermas—Eh! Four! John, order two gross of pickle forks at once.—Jewelers' Weekly.

Disasters Never Come Singly.

"So, then, my poor woman, your husband had to have his leg taken off?"

"Yes, sir; but it is not him I'm sorry for, only a week ago I bought him a new pair of shoes. Now, what am I to do with the odd one?"—Il Caffaro.

Put 'Em Away.

Now put away the yachting clothes,
The flannel shirt and shoes,
And then the yachtsman's sunburned nose
To heal will have a chance.

—Boston Courier.

A Man of Family.

Prudley—I hear you've been getting married.

Tooker—Yes.

Prudley—Whom did you marry?

Tooker—Milly Jones, her mother, her stepfather and two maiden aunts.—Harper's Bazar.

News from the Deep.

Triton at home on a visit—Well, father, what is the news?

Neptune—Nothing much, except that a large number of the fishes have struck for the adoption of a uniform scale.—New York Sun.

The Schools Are Open.

Now the birch rod's pious pastor
Can be heard throughout the land,
And the festive schoolboy
Usually prefers to stand.

—St. Joseph (Mo.) News.

Nothing to Bother About.

The Emperor of Russia (to his prime minister)—I hear that the Germans have got a smokeless powder.

The Prime Minister—Ah, sir, that is only an invention of the enemy.—New York Sun.

Circumstantial Evidence.

Ted—I hear the Italian count detected the landlord swindling him.

Ned—Yes, he put a laundry item on his bill.—Epoch.

Wanted—Good Pasturage.

Willie—Would you be willing to share my lot in life, dear?

Jillie—What is the size of the lot?—Town Topics.

An Epitaph.

Little Johnny Day has here,
He neither cries nor frets;
He says he'd preached too much for pay,
So he died for nothing.

—Boston Courier.

DAUGHTERS OF EVE.

Mrs. Cleveland recently shot a deer in the Adirondacks.

Gerster sang recently in Berlin, and the critics write that her voice was in very good condition.

Sarah Bernhardt has become infatuated with the phonograph and will own one as soon as possible.

Miss Florence Bayard, daughter of the ex-secretary, is the champion lady tennis player of Delaware and of the District of Columbia.

Among the latest recruits to current journalism is Miss Helen Gladstone. Her articles will deal with subjects of special interest to women.

The daintiest baby trousseau is being prepared for Mrs. Joseph Chamberlain, nee Endicott. Many of the garments are trimmed with genuine Irish lace.

The wife of Gen. Boulanger still lives in the deepest seclusion in Versailles. Her acquaintances are usually careful not to mention her husband's name in her presence.

Mrs. Henry Sedgwick, a sister of the chief secretary for Ireland, has established a successful and really good work in connection with the higher education of women.

Mrs. Norton, an American lady who knows the nation well, has prepared a small volume with the title "In and Around Berlin," which will shortly be published by A. C. McClurg & Co., Chicago.

At Madison, Wis., Miss Kate L. Pier, of Milwaukee, recently made an argument before the supreme court. She is the first woman lawyer in that state who ever did such a thing.

Caroline Ellen Wright, 72 years of age, walked recently from Trenton, N. J., to New Brunswick, in the same state, a distance of twenty-six miles. From there she took the train to New York, and from New York she walked to Jamaica, L. I., a distance of four miles.

Marcella Sembrich, next to Patti the most accomplished singer in the Italian school, has yielded to the pressure of German music and is studying the Lieder. She is "Lieberin" in the impersonation of song singing at Berlin.

Mrs. Kendal explains why she and her husband have always acted together by the statement that it was because of a vow made to her father. Mrs. Kendal's father, when his daughter wanted to marry an actor, insisted that they should always act together.

Miss Henrietta Lander made her first appearance before a Philadelphia audience recently at the Chestnut Street theatre as Ethel Sorruro in "A Possible Case" and was very well received. Miss Lander possesses youth and beauty and her friends predict for her a brilliant future.

The notorious Sarah Althea Hill is about 5 feet 6 inches in height, extremely well made and is still graceful, lithe and slender. She has a pale olive countenance, with delicate features and a pair of starry brown eyes, and her thick, wavy brown hair has never been cut in a bang, but is brushed loosely back and ripples around her brow and ears. Her eyebrows are very black and arched, and her eyelids white and drooping.

PRESIDENTS AT PLAY.

The great Washington loved fox hunting next to his country.

James Madison, though a Virginian, was not a horseman from choice.

Gen. Zachary Taylor, Franklin Pierce and James Buchanan were fond of riding.

President Arthur was a great fisherman. He tied his own flies and planned his own trips.

John Quincy Adams divided state cares with angling for sea bassen the coast of Massachusetts.

President Jefferson was a noted fox hunter, and during youthful days was fond of riding to country races.

President Cleveland is the most famous fisherman that ever occupied the White House. His favorite style of fishing is from a boat.

James Monroe was an ardent huntsman, and the daily ride again became the chief recreation of the master of the White House.

In his youth Andrew Jackson was a famous wrestler and boxer, but from '29 to '36 of his presidential term he had no time for play.

John Adams was not given to sports. His 69 years of life had been spent chiefly in his study and with his books. He was a stilted horseman, as all men were of his time.

Gen. Grant had one hobby, and that was the horse. A light, easy running road wagon and a span of fleet trotters gave the soldier president the keenest pleasure of his civilian life.

Gen. Garfield loved everything that was manly in sport. His great raw boned and muscular figure fitted him to excel in such enjoyments, but it is not known that he gave himself up to them during his long residence in Washington.

It has been Gen. Harrison's habit to take a jaunt into the northern part of Bockerbon once a year, usually in the fall, and try his luck with quail, wild turkeys and prairie chickens. In these excursions his son-in-law is one of his usual companions.

During the administration of Gen. Hayes the presidential recreation generally took the form of a decorous drive in the afternoon behind a pair of well groomed, sleek and lazy colts. The end the usual egg rolling race down the White House lawn at Easter time by the Washington children formed the only sports that history records.

FASHIONS FOR MEN.

In puff scarfs there are many beautiful silks in various shapes.

The plain white linen shirt will be the correct thing this season as formerly.

A very fashionable scarf will be the "Ascot," which is meant to tie in a large puff.

Link cuffs will be worn during the coming season. These should be ironed flat, and not rolled as stiff cuffs are.

White enamel buttons for shirt and cuffs are still the style, and no gems of any sort are permissible on the shirt bosom.

In shapes the new style will include many handsome knots, two and one-half inch four in-hands, bows, windsors, puffs and flats.

Black ties may be worn at the theatre and at dancing parties, but never on any festive occasion when ladies are present.

In hosiery the new styles present some attractive novelties, which include a new effect in gray stripes, a new spaced stripe and many other similar designs.

A very small tack scarf, which is a revival of a style made in 1872, promises to be very popular. It comes in solid colors only, and has already met with great favor.

In handkerchiefs the new fall dress silks have self borders, while the linens have neat centers and borders, in which there are many pretty effects.—New York Mail and Express.

How strong a current is used to send a message over an Atlantic cable? Thirty cells of battery only. Equal to thirty volts.

SOME ODD SUGGESTIONS.

Never endanger your life for money.

Think three times before you speak once.

Think over every day's business at night.

Never keep all your money in one channel.

Never be persuaded beyond your own judgment.

Never buy a small piece with a fine building on it.

Trust no man further than you are compelled to.

Never deposit money unless you take a receipt for it.

There is nothing in this world but death that is certain.

Weigh all you buy and all you sell if possible; count it.

Never buy inferior articles of any kind to make money on.

If you ever loan money to any person take security if you can get it.

Four per cent. when certain is better than 5 per cent. when uncertain.

Buy goods on time only in small quantities, whether wholesale or retail.

Be certain to give your children an English education at any cost if you can.

Never sell the products of the farm you work to any man on time at any price.

Never buy property adjoining either a church or a school house if you can avoid it.

Never employ a clerk at any price; be content with what business you can do yourself.

Search the Bible to find the bottom of the cheerful human heart and say your prayers at night.

Never buy white, sporety, cowardly land at any price expecting to make money by cultivating it.

Never buy land of any person without first having a good lawyer investigate and pronounce the title clear.

Never work in wells or at any other work that endangers your life, it matters not how much you can make.

Never loan money to your neighbors, for if you should have to sue them they would be no longer neighbors.

Be sure to go and ask all the parties that join the land you are buying to show you the corners of the land they own.

Never court any girl unless you intend to marry her. There is danger in fooling young girls. Never give them any advantages in a letter.

Never let any man know anything about your business, except when you may have some difference and need to advise with a lawyer.

If you loan money to a firm be sure to take each of the firm's name to the note, then no one of the firm can slip out and say that the money never came into the firm.

If you have land for sale have it fenced to the cardinal points, so it will take the fewest rails possible to fence the ground. That keeps your land in a square shape.

If you ever sell goods or groceries be sure to get a house on the square, and on the inside corner if you can, and live on the same lot and in the building that you do business in.

You may sell to irresponsible men anything that you have, but never buy claims, notes, &c., from men that are irresponsible, unless you investigate and find that the parties have no offsets against them.—Franklin (Ky.) Favorite.

PHOTOGRAPHIC NOTES.

A properly printed blue print will have a rusty blue tone, the whites remaining of a faded green tint.

The photographic convention of Great Britain for 1893 is fixed to be held in Chester as a locality near to and easy of access by Liverpool and Birkenhead photographers, and as an admirable center for attractive excursions.

Blue prints are becoming more popular every day. Scrap books are filled with them, while many pictures are framed. They are highly artistic, and often more correct than the silver prints, as before that process takes place the negative is often retouched.

Mr. B. Grant, in the island of St. Helena, has utilized the magnesium flash light for the reproduction of the flowers of a species of cactus which blooms only in the night. The experiments of Mr. Grant were made on the cereus triangularis, very common in St. Helena.

In his address before the Boston convention Mr. J. F. Ryder made the following prediction: "I may say the time is near when the wire which now conveys the electric force will also carry the photographic image from the camera of its birth to distant points, and it shall be possible for a sitting made in Cleveland to be transmitted by wire to Boston.

A very good and safe light for the development of negatives, it is said, can be obtained in this manner: A sheet of yellow paper is pinned to the wall or other suitable support. A lantern, an ordinary bull's eye or any other having white glass in it, is placed with the back toward the yellow paper, and a piece of white cardboard is put in front of it, so that the light falling on the cardboard will be reflected on the yellow paper and from thence on the negative.

JOSH BILLINGS' PHILOSOPHY.

Face all things! Even adversity is polite tew a man's face.

Pleasure is like a horsest—generally ends with a sting.

Dry goods are worshiped in this world more than the Lord is.

The devil owes most of his success tew the fackt that he is always on hand.

A learned phool is one who has read everything, and simply swallowed it.

There is no good substitute for wisdum, but silence is the best that has been discovered yet.

Laziness is a good deal like money—the more a man has ov it, the more he seems tew want.

There is no such thing as inheriting virtew; money and titles and fever sores kan be inherited.

Life is like a mountain—after climbing up one side and sliding down the other, put up the sled.

The most dangerous characters in the world are those who live in the suburbs of virtew—they are rotten tew.

Confidence is a big thing; it makes a horsest respectable, and the want ov it is just what makes the ast displsed.

If I had a boy whose hair wouldn't part in the middle, I should bedew that hair with a parent's tear, and then giv up the boy.

Counseling with fear is the way cowards are made; counseling with hope is the way heroes are made; counseling with faith is the way Christians are made.

When a man proves a literary failure, he generally sets up for a critick, and, like the fox in the fable, who cut lost his brush in a trap, lasts use a nick long tail without hesitating after it.—New York Weekly.

THE WORLD OF LETTERS.

Lord Tennyson asserts that his coming volume of poems will be his farewell contribution to literature.

Max O'Rell has taken a turn at criticising the weather, treating them much the same way that he did the English, the Scotch and the Americans.

Herbert Spencer has been engaged on an autobiography during his sojourn in Wiesbaden. Now that his health is improved he will return to London and resume work on his synthetic philosophy.

A memorial is to be erected at Canterbury to Christopher Marlowe, the Elizabethan poet, from one of whose dramas Goethe built up his tragedy of "Faust." Among the subscribers to the memorial are George W. Childs, H. H. Furness and James Russell Lowell.

Col. Hay is a methodic literary worker, sitting down to his desk at 9 and working steadily until 12, when he knocks off for the day. He is a good looking man of average height, with dark iron gray mustache and keen brown eyes, and he is always well and faultlessly dressed, though there is nothing "dudish" in his appearance.

There can be no question that "A Fair Californian," by Olive Harper, now in its sixteenth edition, is one of the most extraordinary tales which has appeared for a long time. Mrs. Harper is well known as a society in New York city, and she is no wonder, of it is that she has found the time to turn out such a marvelous tale with so much other literary work as she has to do.

Edward Bellamy writes to The Nationalist that his "Looking Backward" was at first a mere literary fantasy, a fairy tale of social felicity. Originally the data of the story was about A. D. 2000, and the scene was of an ideal world instead of, as finally, a nation. After many reastings the story became the vehicle of a definite scheme of industrial reorganization, the scheme having worked itself out in the mind of Mr. Bellamy while he was trying to fashion his fairy romance.

Charles Dudley Warner thus explains in the September Harper how the name Editor's Drawer originated: "The name, Drawer, was not adopted by chance. It is a spontaneous and altogether sincere institution, and was at its birth. Mr. Fletcher Harper, Sr., used to keep all the funny and characteristic anecdotes sent to the publishers from all parts of the country in a drawer devoted to that purpose, and selections were made from this collection for each monthly issue. Hence the title Editor's Drawer."

Octave Thanet writes as follows of the series of "Great French Writers" published by A. C. McClurg & Co.: "Each succeeding volume of the series emphasizes the good fortune of the publishers in their translator. A really extraordinary lucidity of mind, which allows each writer to show, through the medium of translation, all his own individual peculiarities of treatment and style, is in this case joined to a felicity of rendering the spirit of style, which is unequaled by any other of our translators today."

ELECTRIC NOTES.

How many telephones are in use in the United States? About 300,000.

What is the average cost per mile of a transatlantic submarine cable? About $1,000.

What was vessel has the most complete electrical plant? United States man-of-war Chicago.

How many persons in the United States are engaged in business depending solely on electricity? Estimated, 250,000.

REPUBLICAN TICKET.

FOR GOVERNOR
EDWARD BURD GRUBB,
OF BURLINGTON.

HEAVEN'S BEST AID IS WASTED UPON MEN WHO TO THEMSELVES ARE FALSE.
—Wordsworth.

JOTTINGS.

—Days of 1889 past, 268; days to come, 97.

—Very few peaches or tomatoes are now seen in the market.

—We have heard no complaints about the failure of the rain crop.

—The season is now at hand when a trip to the mountains is a real pleasure.

—There are only eight prisoners confined in the Somerset County jail at Somerville.

—A surplused chair will soon be added to the Church of Our Saviour at Nethers wood.

—The professional tramp is now gravitating toward the jail of his choice for the Winter.

—The second annual re-union of the New Jersey Brigade is taking place at Elizabeth to-day.

—Mr. Springman calls attention in another column to the baths he has had put in his place lately.

—No mine of business now fails to have printed stationery. It costs very little more than blank paper.

—Justice Kenner married Anastasio Spalmaceni and Rosa Zaviott (Italians) of Bound Brook on Saturday.

—Four prisoners attempted to escape from the Middlesex county jail at New Brunswick yesterday, but were caught before they succeeded.

—No one is considered a cycler in New Jersey now unless he is able to ride up the famous Eagle Rock Mountain on his machine.—The Athlete.

—A number of Plainfielders attended a masquerade sociable at Mt. Bethel Tuesday evening. The music was furnished by O'Reilly's orchestra.

—Within a few years I have attended the funerals of two boys less than ten years old, who have died from the effects of cigarette smoking.—Dr. Farrar.

—From the large number of marriages that are now taking place the cry by cranks that marriage is a failure does not seem to convince many that such is the fact.

—Yesterday morning Policeman Lynch was called upon to remove a drunken man who had chosen a headstone in Manning's marble yard for his bed. The officer removed him.

—The "Y's" will resume their meetings Tuesday, Oct. 1st, at four o'clock. A devotional meeting will then be held at 39 East Fifth street, to which all members and others interested in the work are most earnestly invited.

—The Women's Home Missionary Society of the Crescent Avenue church, will hold its first meeting for sewing, Friday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock, at the residence of Mrs. Newhall, 20 East Seventh street. All the ladies of the congregation are invited.

—The ways of a Board of Freeholders are not strewn with violets. See the growls from Plainfield, from Bound Brook and elsewhere, because they don't build bridges fast enough and because they build them too fast.—Somerville Messenger.

—The freeholders of Union and Somerset counties are having Green brook straightened, where its course was diverted, between Grove street and Washington avenue, to protect the bridge abutments and property in the vicinity, injured by the recent floods.

A New Corporation.

The Blue Flame Manufacturing Co. is the name of a new industry to be soon started in North Plainfield, New York, Boston and Chicago, with works at the former place. Stoves, heaters, lamps, etc., for the burning of coal, petroleum, gas and other fuels are to be the products. Capital stock is set at $500,000 in the articles of incorporation filed with the County Clerk on Monday. The Corporators are E. T. Lynch, jr., C. F. Birdseye, H. T. Bragg, E. C. Lloyd, C. H. Burns, W. M. Thatcher and W. G. Parsons.

THE PLAINFIELD CRESCENT LEAGUE.

Articles of Incorporation Filed Yesterday With the County Clerk.

The Plainfield Bowling Club held a meeting last evening and on a suggestion of the Committee on Corporation, changed the name of the club. It will hereafter be known as the Plainfield Crescent League.

Seven trustees were appointed as follows: Dr. J. C. Fritts, Seymour G. Smith, Frederick Slater, Charles Barnett, Charles Leggett, R. M. Stelle and ex-Judge Ulrich. Ex-Judge Ulrich resigned from the Board of Trustees in favor of Mr. A. W. Watkins, jr. Mr. Charles Reed, for the committee on Corporation, to-day drafted articles of Incorporation, and ex-Judge Ulrich filed them with the County Clerk at Elizabeth.

Hon. John Ulrich and Messrs. Charles Reed and Fred Slater were appointed a committee of three to draft a new constitution and by laws.

The League numbers about ninety members and about twenty four were present last evening. Subscriptions were called for and those present subscribed $415.

The initiation fee will probably be raised to $10.

Bowling Contests.

The Plainfield Bowling club will be represented by a team in the games to be played for the championship of Union county. The Elizabeth Bowling Club and the Fastime, Nameless and Monday Night clubs, of Westfield, will compete. The following order of contests has been arranged:

On Nov. 11th, Plainfield vs. Fastime, at Plainfield; Nov. 25th, Monday Night vs. Plainfield, at Westfield; Nov. 30th, Elizabeth vs. Plainfield, at Elizabeth; Dec. 2nd, Plainfield vs. Nameless, at Plainfield; Dec. 19, Monday Night vs. Plainfield, at Plainfield; Jan. 9th, Nameless vs. Plainfield, at Westfield; Jan 18th, Elizabeth vs. Plainfield, at Plainfield; Feb. 6th, Fastime vs. Plainfield, at Westfield.

State Geologist Cook Buried.

The funeral of Dr. George H. Cook, State Geologist, and Vice-President of Rutgers College, were held yesterday, at New Brunswick. The college was closed to allow the students to attend. The Rev. Dr. M. H. Hutton, Dr. Cook's pastor, conducted a private service at the house, only the members of the family being present. The students then met at the funeral procession, and escorted it to Kirkpatrick Chapel, where the clerical members of the faculty conducted a brief service. The public service was held in the Second Reformed church.

A September Bath.

Shortly after one o'clock yesterday afternoon Mr. George Mehl, sr., and his son were engaged in repairing the spiles under the temporary bridge on Somerset street over Green brook, when the plank on which they were standing slipped and they were precipitated into the brook. Both sustained injury, but they were thoroughly drenched.

$731.50 for a Watch.

The gold watch contest at St. Mary's fair was decided last evening, and the time-piece was awarded to Miss Agnes Kelley. The amounts turned in by the various contestants are as follows: Miss Agnes Kelley, $339.95; Miss Katie Sweirs, $151.35; Miss Hannah Maloney, $128.10; Mrs May Flynn, $115.10.

Somerville Fair.

The 25th Annual Fair, of the Somerset county Agricultural Society, will be held on their grounds in Somerville on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, commencing at 12:30 p. m. each day. On the line of the Central R. R. of N. J., one hour's ride from New York.

The Lattimer Will Case Again Postponed.

At the request of ex-Chancellor Runyon, the hearing in the Lattimer will case, which was to have come up before the Court of Special Session at Elizabeth yesterday, was postponed for another week.

PERSONAL.

Policeman Glass is having a neat Queen Anne cottage built on Orange street.

Mr. D. D. Rogers has returned to his home at Dayton, Florida after a pleasant visit in Plainfield.

Miss Angie Feytel entertained a select party of friends at her home on Jackson avenue, Tuesday evening.

After a two years absence at Rock Creek, Wyoming, Mr. Frank Hubbard, son of Assessor Hubbard, has returned to his home on West Fifth street, Plainfield.

Cards are out announcing the approaching marriage of Mr. Harry Hardon and Miss Lillie Barton, both of Westfield. The ceremony is to take place October 9th.

The New York Sun of to-day published a cut of Mr. Charles Smith, of West Front street, one of the contestants in a shooting match held at Marion, N. J., yesterday.

Mrs. W. F. Adams, Mrs. D. W. Fond and Mr. H. B. Wells, were elected delegates to the National Unitarian Conference, which will meet in Philadelphia in the month of May.

A "Donkey Party" and other parlor games afforded considerable amusement to a select party of friends at the residence of the Misses Schwartz on West Front street last evening.

At the conclusion of the performance of "Montebank" in Music Hall Tuesday evening, a number of Bound Brook people entertained Mr. Frederick Warde at a supper at Laing's Hotel.

A letter from Miss Lina Pfluge, the German woman who was demented while in Plainfield a few weeks ago, and in whom Chief Carey interested himself in order to secure her passage back to Germany, announces her safe arrival at her home in Spandau.

Mr. Horace E. Kimberly, of West Front street, and Miss Augusta Keller, of Grove street, North Plainfield, were married at the residence of the bride's parents last evening at eight o'clock. A reception followed the wedding, at which a number of invited guests were present. During the evening the Plainfield Cornet Band serenaded the happy couple.

Burial of an Old Resident.

The funeral of Mrs. A. D. Button took place at her late residence, 14 LaGrande avenue, yesterday afternoon at 1:30. Mr. J. August Dix, of Hillsdale, who for many years has had charge of Grace church at Linden, conducted the service—the beautiful burial service of the Episcopal church—in a touching and solemn manner, and at the close read a little poem that had been very dear to Mrs. Button and that seemed to be to family and friends most consoling and appropriate to the occasion. It is entitled

"THE END OF THE WAY."

My life is a weariesome journey,
I'm sick of the dust and the heat,
The rays of the sun pierce me through,
The briars are wounding my feet;
But the city to which I am journeying
Will more than my trials repay,
All the toils of the road will be nothing
When I get to the end of the way.

There are so many hills to climb upward,
I often am longing to rest,
But He who appoints me my pathway
Knows what is needful and best;
I know he will help me bear whatever
That my strength shall be as my day;
And the toils of the road will seem nothing
When I get to the end of the way.

He loves me too well to forsake me,
Or give me one trial too much;
All His people have been dearly purchased,
And Satan can never claim such.
By-and-by I shall see Him and praise Him,
In the city of unending day;
And the toils of the road will seem nothing
When I get to the end of the way.

Though now I am footsore and weary,
I shall rest when I'm safely at home;
I know I shall meet all the faithful;
For the Saviour himself hath said; come.
Calling the toilers there for the kingdom
There are cordials for those who are faint;
There are robes that are whiter and purer
Than earth's purest linen can paint.
Thus I'll try to press hopefully onward,
Thinking often through each weary day,
The toils of the road will seem nothing
When I get to the end of the way.

During the services Miss Alice Holmes, of Plainfield; Mr. Joseph Ross, of Elizabeth; and Mr. Frederick Ely, of Brooklyn, sang one of Mrs. Button's favorite hymns, "Nearer My God to Thee", she sang it herself the night before she died, and at the end another, "The Sweet By and By". Loving hands filled the room where she lay with the bright flowers she loved best, and she rested in their midst, as though just fallen asleep in perfect peace.

The interment was at Evergreen Cemetery, Elizabeth. The services at the grave were brief on account of the storm.

A New Clothing Store.

Mr. James Taylor, formerly of Passaic, where he did a large clothing business, has in order to get into a larger city, located in Plainfield, as per his advertisement in another column. At his store, No. 108 West Front street, he has an entire new stock of Fall and Winter clothing, hats, and furnishing goods of all the latest styles, and asks for a share of the patronage in this line. With such excellent stores, no one desiring to see Plainfield continue so prosperous as hitherto, need hesitate to patronize home in the clothing line, or in any other line. In prices and styles our merchants do all that can be reasonably expected, and deserve hearty encouragement. Mr. Taylor proposes to keep pace with the town.

The Anthony Divorce.

The facts given in yesterday's NEWS regarding the suits brought by Mrs. Anthony were obtained from an outside source. We are informed by Mrs. Anthony's counsel that his client has never proposed to resume her maiden name, and that instead of having abandoned the suit against Miss Ballou for damages, an adequate settlement was secured by obtaining an assignment of a portion of the legacy left her by her grandfather.

The Court also awarded to the complainant the custody of her daughter and granted alimony and counsel fee.

No Use Here for Free Traders.

During the Presidential campaign we said that The New York Graphic was kept afloat by funds from the National Democratic Committee in the interests of Free Trade. Since the Free Traders failed to carry the election and were hurled from power by an indignant people, the paper has had a very time of it, and finally succumbed a few days ago, and has been followed by The Belford Magazine, the leading Free Trade magazine of the country. Verily the F. T.'s are in the consumne.

Malicious Mischief.

At the last meeting of the city Common Council, Manager Moore, of the Plainfield Electric Light Company, complained that some malicious person or persons had of late been in the habit of destroying the globes on the street lights and asked the authorities to protect the company's property.

The matter was referred to the Police Committee and they will undoubtedly make it warm for any person caught breaking the lamps.

Another New Safe.

A large six and a quarter ton safe was received at the freight house in this city yesterday afternoon from the Hall Safe Company, Bridgeport. It was consigned to the City National Bank in this city. It required three teams of horses and a large truck to convey the safe from the depot to its destination. A large crowd of people stood in the rain all the afternoon and watched the truckmen unload the huge casting.

Divisions at Newark.

A delegation of the Howell and Plainfield Divisions, Sons of Temperance, went to New Ark last evening and were entertained by the members of Schopt Division, No. 337, of that city. Recitations and readings were features of the evening's program. Refreshments were served in abundance. At a late hour the visitors returned to their homes in this city.

SOMERSET COUNTY COURTS.

Judge Magie Instructed the Grand Jury in Reference to Liquor Selling.

The September term of the Somerset County Court opened at Somerville Tuesday, Judge Magie presiding and Judges Bartine, Jamison and Tomlyen on the bench.

The list of Grand Jurors was called as follows:

Jacob Klotz foreman, Robert B. Nevius, Erastus Randall, Geo. S. VanArsdale, James Doty, John Compton, Calvin D. Smith, John W. Kuhl, Wm. S. Dolliver, John Purcell, Wm. N. Adair, Ellis Bertle, Milton Labaw, John V. Voght, Asher Hingley, Jacob S. Randolph, Isaac A. Brokaw, George A. Wolf, John S. Bennett, John N. VanKandt, Lewis Blackford, Lewis M. French, Wm. H. Rodgers, W. Howard Toms.

The following did not answer: James Doty (excused), John Compton, Ellis Bertle and Jacob S. Randolph. The Grand Jurors were sworn, and Constables David Moffett and Stephen VanFleet were designated to wait upon them.

Judge Magie in charging the jury said "the Court has been requested to state the law in regard to the sale of intoxicating liquors in this State. Persons are liable to indictment under it as follows: Anyone who sells less than a quart without a license; anyone who sells in quantities from a quart to five gallons without a license; anyone having a retail license and selling from a quart to five gallons; anyone having a wholesale license and selling less than a quart; anyone having a license to sell from a quart to five gallons who allows the liquor to be drunk on the premises where sold; anyone licensed or not, who sells any liquor on Sunday; anyone who sells any liquor in any place of business, grocery store or mercantile place, other than a restaurant; and anyone, tavern or saloon keeper or dealer, who for five times in six months has sold or given any liquor to any boy or girl under 18 years of age. Druggists may sell for medicinal use on prescription only, not to be used or drank on the premises. No other special instructions were given.

The Grand Jury then retired, and the Court announced that the Supreme Court, for the purpose of giving added time to the Court of Errors and Appeals, had changed the dates for holding a number of the circuits. The only change made in the county is as regards the December term, which is changed from the third to the fourth Tuesday.

The following licenses were granted:

James Dillaney, saloon, Raritan.

Sylvanus A. Codington, inn, North Branch.

Bloomfield Jackson, inn, Martinsville.

James B. Apgar, inn, Peapack.

Fees—James H. Apgar, $175; the others, $150 each.

Applications of Charles Greider, North Plainfield, for bottler's license, was withheld for the present. A remonstrance was filed against granting license to Hugh M. and George H. Hill, of Neshanic, and the matter was set for a hearing next Monday.

LEHIGH VALLEY'S PLANS.

A Short Cut from Waverly Over Newark Bay Contemplated.

A dispatch from Trenton announces that the latest project of the Lehigh Valley Railroad company is the Waverly and New York railroad, of which the grading is completed from Waverly to a point near Newark bay. The greatest obstacles are said to begin there, near the lower end of the clove hills by the government, and nearly opposite Elizabeth. A light trestle work is contemplated across the flats to the channel, but it may be filled in later to the end of the dyke.

The draw will be one of the largest in the United States, at right angles to the channel. The bridge will strike Greenville at a point where very little cutting will be required, and will pass to the shore of New York bay, where the Pennsylvania Railroad company is said to have acquired 5,000 feet of water front. Only two curves will be necessary after leaving Waverly.

The road, which is built by the Lehigh Valley company, it is understood that it will be operated jointly by the Lehigh and Pennsylvania roads.

NEW JERSEY NUGGETS.

Live News Notes from Various Parts of the State.

The Jersey City Board of Education has decided to ask the Board of Street and Water Commissioners to erect two new public schools, one on the 6th and the other in the 8th District.

The Republican State Committee has secured offices in the Fuller Building, at Montgomery and Hudson streets, Jersey City, for headquarters. The Democratic State Committee has established headquarters in Taylor's Hotel.

The Jersey City Board of Aldermen has granted permission to the Jersey City and Bergen Railroad Company to lay a double track for their cars. The kind of motor to be used has not been decided upon, but it will probably be the storage system. In the lower and thickly populated portion of the city, and the overhead system where steep hills are to be climbed.

Lawrence Burns, of Jersey City, who was at one time acting as secretary of the Irish Land League, with headquarters in Dublin, has been appointed Commissioner of Deeds for New York, with offices in Newark, and Antonio Carlo got into a fight in Cairo's yard in Jersey City, and Carlo struck Antonio a dinner-pail at Cairo. It struck his daughter, age two, on the head, inflicting a painful wound and making her unconscious. The child died Monday night. It is said that her death resulted from unobtrusive croup.

The deacons and trustees of the South Baptist church, Jersey City, adopted upon a report recommending that the pastoral relations of the Rev. Dr. English be dissolved. Some of the members of the committee has, it is understood, offered to extend to the pastor a vote of confidence provided his resignation is forthcoming before the church takes action. A meeting will be held to-morrow night to act upon the report. The only difficulty that exists is the dissatisfaction of some of the members with the pastor's sermons and the desire for the return of the Rev. Dr. Vernon, the former pastor, who is now in Kansas City.

FIREMEN IN CONVENTION.

Delegates from All Parts of the State Assemble at Long Branch.

The twelfth annual convention of the New Jersey State Firemen's Relief Association was held at Long Branch yesterday. There were 250 delegates representing the fire companies of Asbury Park, Atlantic City, the Atlantic Highlands, Bayonne, Belleville, Belvidere, Beverly, Bloomfield, Bordentown, Bridgeton City, Burlington, Camden, Cape May City, Carlstadt, Crosswick, Dover, East Orange, Eatontown, Egg Harbor City, Elizabeth, Farmingdale, Flemington, Glouster City, Guttenburg, Hackensack, Hackettstown, Haddonfield, Harrison, Hightstown, Hoboken, Jersey City, Kearny, Keyport, Lambertville, Long Branch, Madison, Manasquan, Matawan, Millville, Montclair, Morristown, Mercerville, Mount Holly, Newark, New Brunswick, New Durham, Newton, Ocean Grove, Orange, Palmyra, Passaic City, Paterson, Perth Amboy, Phillipsburg, Plainfield, Princeton, Rahway, Raritan, Red Bank, Rutherford, Park, Salem, Somerville, Southbright, Somerville, Trenton, Vineland, Washington, Weehawken, Westfield, West Hoboken, Woodbury and the town of Union. Gen. Byrd W. Spencer, of Passaic City, was made President; John McKiernan, of Paterson, was elected Treasurer, and Horace E. Brown, of Newark, was chosen as Secretary. Seven Vice Presidents were also elected. The Treasurer's report showed that the Association was in a flourishing condition. The convention next year will be held at Trenton. A banquet at Kalb's Hotel and a ball at the Ocean Theatre wound up the day's festivities.

Gleanings from our Exchanges on Political Topics.

Gen. Grubb is one of the most popular men in the State.

* * *

The Republicans of New Jersey polled 144,344 votes for Benjamin Harrison last year. If they poll within ten thousand of that number for Gen. Grubb next November—and there is no reason why they should not—he will be the next Governor of the State. There are scores of Democrats for every county who will not vote for Abbett, and his total is certain to fall below 130,000.—Bridgeton Pioneer.

* * *

—There is an unmistakable falling off in the number of marriages of young city men of moderate means. The growth of club life is largely accountable for this. Now every young man has his hobby, to enjoy which, he must be a member of a club catering thereto. The pursuit of these hobbies almost monopolizes the thoughts outside of business, and he does not care to enter into a condition of life which will compel him to abandon his favorite line of entertainment. These sports entail no little expenditure for the proper paraphernalia for their enjoyment and for the club dues. The young man of moderate means cannot enjoy married life and belong to a club. If he does, in most cases ungallant enough to say, "Not that I love the woman less, but sport more."—Ex.

PLAINFIELD EVENING NEWS
NEWSPAPER OF PLAINFIELD AND VICINITY, IS PUBLISHED AT 430 COTTAGE STREET AFTERNOON, AT NO. 11 SOMERSET STREET,

E. W. NORRIS, EDITOR AND PROPRIETOR.

IS DELIVERED BY CARRIERS TO ALL PARTS OF THE CITY AT TEN CENTS A WEEK, OR, IF PAID IN ADVANCE, AT $5.00 PER YEAR.

President Harrison has given assurance that there is about him nothing of the Socialist or Nationalist, as the fashion is to call it in New England. He told the committee from the western waterways convention that while he was in favor of improved navigation to the utmost extent, yet he was firmly of opinion that the people along the Mississippi should build their own levees.

Nothing shows the advance in naval guns and ships so much as the case of the thirteen old monitors left over from our civil war. Twenty-five years ago they were considered almost invulnerable for coast defense. Their iron plates are five inches thick, and on the turrets eleven inches thick. Now a ball from an enemy's 6-inch gun could easily pierce their armor at a distance of several miles. The reason we have so little navy is because other nations have gone past us and left us.

Mr. Robert Ray Hamilton has been greatly pitied because he chivalrously married a woman, knowing her character to be off color, and then was systematically deceived by the woman, who lived in a constant row with him besides. But here is the view of it taken by a gray eyed little typewriter: "It served him right, and I don't pity him a bit. What did he want to marry a creature like that for, when there were so many nice women he could have got?" By the way, this story about Mr. Robert Ray Hamilton recalls a certain escapade in the life of his distinguished great-grandfather, Alexander Hamilton.

Growth of Catholicism.

Cardinal Gibbons, of Baltimore, has called attention anew to the marvelous growth of the Roman Catholic church in the United States. A hundred years ago, in 1790, there were in the whole country only 40,000 Roman Catholics, including the priesthood, and only one convention, skill and good workmanship, so that our output is beyond our home needs, and must come in foreign markets with the manufacturers of the old world.

New York City's Fair Claims Indorsed.

George P. Sloane, of Oswego, was chosen permanent chairman and spoke at length, criticising the office of Governor Hill's vetoes. Carroll E. Smith, of the committee on resolutions, read his report which congratulates President Harrison upon the success of his administration, reaffirmed the Republican platform of 1888, recommended liberal pension laws, and the rehabilitation of the navy, urged the prevention of trusts, etc., and closed with the recommendation that the world's fair of 1892 be held in New York city. The report was adopted.

O'Brien's Delegates Ousted.

The committee on contested seats reported 31 to 28 in favor of unseating the delegates from the Eighth New York district, and the First, Second and Third Albany districts. The report was adopted with but feeble opposition.

The Ticket Nominated.

Nominations for state officers being in order Mr. Moffatt, of Clinton, presented the name of Hon. John C. Gilbert, of Malone, for secretary of state. The nomination was made by acclamation. The remaining nominations follow:

For comptroller, Martin W. Cook, of Monroe, by acclamation.

For treasurer, Ira M. Hedges, of Rockland, by acclamation.

For attorney general, Gen. James M. Varnum, of New York, by acclamation.

For state engineer and surveyor, Wm. P. Van Rensselaer, of Seneca, by acclamation.

The Fight for the Judgeship.

Mr. Sherman, of Oneida, nominated Judge Alfred Conkling Cox, of Oneida, for judge of the court of appeals. Mr. Andrews, of Erie, nominated Hon. Alfred Conger Fourth, of Dundee, of Onandaga, seconded Mr. Cox's nomination. Ex-Senator Lansing, of Watertown, also seconded the nomination of Judge Cox. Senator Coggeshall, of Oneida, vigorously supported the nomination of Mr. Cox. As Mr. Coggeshall took his seat there were loud calls for a vote. Ex-Congressman Payne, of Cayuga, and Senator Fassett seconded the nomination of Mr. Haight. The roll call resulted as follows: Haight, 440; Cox, 311. The nomination of Judge Haight, of Buffalo, was then made unanimous.

The New State Committe.

The new state committee is as follows:

First district, G. Cromwell; Second, I. L. Wood ruff; Third, Geo. W. Meade; Fourth, A. V. White; Fifth, F. F. Williams; Sixth, J. W. Jacobs; Seventh, C. Van Cott; Eighth, John Collins; Ninth, George Campbell; Tenth, J. T. Gregory; Eleventh, Sheridan Shook; Twelfth, Solon B. Smith; Thirteenth, Frank Raymond; Fourteenth, James W. Wadsworth; Fifteenth, D. B. Odell, Jr.; Sixteenth, Lewis F. Payne; Seventeenth, Thomas Carnell; Eighteenth, A. A. Quackenbush; Nineteenth, George Campbell; Twenty-Fourth, A. V. White; Twenty-first, John M. Weaver; Twenty-second, W. J. Frost; Twenty-third, Charles A. Chickering; Twenty-fourth, Robert Kruse; Twenty-fifth, J. C. Berry; Twenty-sixth, George W. Dunn; Twenty-seventh, J. M. Knapp; Twenty-eighth, Edwin Adams; Twenty-ninth, Charles L. Parkhurst; Thirtieth, George W. Aldrich; Thirty-first, Frank D. Mosher; Thirty-second, Charles G. Warden; Third-third, George Irvin, Jr.; Thirty-fourth, E. D. Jones.

The convention then adjourned. The new committee met immediately after the adjournment and decided to convene at the Fifth Avenue hotel, New York, on Thursday, Oct. 3, for formal organization.

Sketch of Judge Haight.

BUFFALO, Sept. 26.—Albert Haight, the Republican nominee for judge of the court of appeals, is one of the youngest as well as one of the soundest and most able of the justices of the supreme court. He was born at Ellicottville, Cattaraugus county, Feb. 20, 1843, and at the age of 20 was on a farm near Aurora, this county. After admission to the bar Nov. 18, 1863, at the early age of 21 years, he began the practice of his profession with Hon. Lewis Ely, and when he was elected county judge of Erie county. Previous to this election Mr. Haight had been for three years a member of the board of supervisors of the county and a clerk of the surrogate's court for one year. He was elected county judge at the age of 30, and four years later was elected to the bench of the supreme court.

Martin W. Cooke's Life.

ROCHESTER, Sept. 26.—Martin W. Cooke, who was nominated at Saratoga for state comptroller, is in his 50th year, having been born in Washington county in 1840. He has lived here since 1853. He was graduated with high honors from the University of Rochester in 1860. Here he was admitted to the bar and has since been the foremost in his profession. He was for some years a partner of the late Chief Justice Church, but recently has practiced alone with signal success. In 1879 he received nearly 250 votes in the state convention for attorney general. He has been for many years an examiner of students for admission to the bar, and was for two years president of the New York State Bar association.

Democratic Conventions.

UTICA, N. Y., Sept. 26.—The Oneida county Democratic convention made the following nominations: For county, James H. Hunt; county judge; district attorney, T. S. Jones, of Utica; surrogate, J. T. Rogers, of Utica; special county judge, W. J. Shields, of Clinton; justice of sessions, George Beach, of Waterville.

WILSON, N. Y., Sept. 26.—The Democratic Second Niagara assembly district convention nominated for assembly, Thomas H. Bishop, George Eddy, Jr., of Lewiston, and ex-Postmaster W. D. Hoyt were elected delegates to the state convention. The Hon. J. V. Harwood, of Newfane, was nominated for member of assembly.

Bay State Republican Ticket.

BOSTON, Sept. 26.—John Quincy Adams Brackett will lead the Republican hosts this year. The first ballot settled it, the vote standing: Brackett, 743; Crapo, 674; Spooner, 9, and Long 1. The nomination was then made unanimous.

The ticket was completed as follows: Lieutenant governor, William H. H. Hale; auditor, Charles R. Ladd, renominated; attorney general, Andrew J. Watterman.

There were 1,428 delegates present out of 1,445, which is the largest list of delegates ever in attendance at a state convention. The convention was held in Fremont Temple, and was presided over by ex-Governor Robinson. A letter from Hon. John Sherman was read by Henry Cabot Lodge, congratulates President Harrison "upon the practical wisdom and honest purpose with which he has dealt with the complicated and difficult matter of appointments."

Mississippi's Republican Ticket.

JACKSON, Miss., Sept. 26.—The Republican state convention has nominated Gen. James R. Chalmers for governor; W. C. Mathison (colored), for secretary of state, and Fannie D. Lynch (white), for lieutenant governor.

RAVENOUS WOLVES.

Overrunning the Northern Part of Aitkin County, Minn.

AITKIN, Minn., Sept. 26.—The northern portion of Aitkin county is overrun by ravenous wolves, whose depredations are so numerous that farmers are afraid to venture from their homes after nightfall. Last Friday evening a band of over eighty of the animals ran through the streets of the village of Kimberly.

The terrified villagers locked themselves in their houses for two days thereafter. Today a party of engineers engaged in locating a railroad route near Hickory found the remains of a man in the woods lining the south bank of the Little Willow river. There were evidences of a desperate struggle in the spot where the bones and remains of clothing were found, indicating that the unfortunate man had kept the wolves at bay for a long time before surrendering his life.

His bones were scattered over an area of twenty feet in diameter, and on the ground was a double barreled shotgun, the stock of which was covered with blood and hair of wolves. There was also a cartridge belt and lunch contained in it. Of course the body of the victim will be found in the spring.

Andrew Oleson, a well to do farmer living at Nichols, disappeared suddenly on Sunday, and there is no doubt that his body was found today by the surveyors are those of Oleson. The county authorities will organize a posse of hunters and endeavor to rid the county of the man eaters.

Mr. Harrison at Cumberland.

CUMBERLAND, Md., Sept. 26.—President Harrison left Deer Park at half past 10, accompanied by Senator Davis, Capt. W. E. Griffith, Col. R. D. Johnson and ex-Mayor W. J. Reed, the usual reception committee. The trip was made in the private car "Baltimore." They reached Cumberland at 12:20, where they were met by a regiment of the Maryland National Guard. The president was loudly cheered as he drove along the streets to Court House square, where he reviewed the military and civic parade. The court house was finely decorated, and Mr. Harrison pictures are seen at every window. The president's party returned to Deer Park at half past 3 p. m.

Engineer Twombley Was Drunk.

CHICAGO, Sept. 26.—Engineer Twombley, the engineer of the freight train that dashed into a suburban train on the Rock Island road, killing half a dozen people, has been arrested. Twombley, it is said, was drunk, and his carelessness caused the accident. Twombley was chased through the streets by a crowd of infuriated citizens, and had he been captured he would undoubtedly have been lynched.

Killed Her Five Children.

OSWEGO, Sept. 26.—A school teacher named Sause committed suicide whereupon his widow became insane and killed her five children. She threw the bodies of three of the children out of a third story window, and taking the other two in her arms jumped from the window and was instantly killed.

Murder at Syracuse.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Sept. 26.—Robert Griswold and Dennis Dennis, tramps in Cortland county, quarreled about some cattle. Griswold got an old musket and discharged a load of buckshot into O'Shea's abdomen. O'Shea died in a few hours. Griswold gave himself up and claimed that he acted in self defense.

Christian Scientists Elope.

NEW YORK, Sept. 26.—The Star says that A. Bentley Worthington and Mrs. Plunkett, the Christian Scientist who was tried in Philadelphia recently vindicated, eloped from this city a few days ago and are supposed to have gone to Australia.

Judge Brundage Injured.

BUFFALO, Sept. 26.—While riding on horseback in the park Judge Frank Brundage was thrown from his horse, the animal becoming frightened by a large dog. The judge's left thigh and forearm were broken. He is said to be resting comfortably.

Baby Beatrice Leaves Atlantic City.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Sept. 26.—Mrs. Rapp, Nurse Mary Ann Donnelly and Baby Beatrice left for Philadelphia this morning. Philadelphia Mrs Rapp said that Robert Ray Hamilton had instructed her to take good care of the infant.

DARING TRAIN ROBBERS

They Rifle a Mobile and Ohio Train of $2,700.

$70,000 IN CASH WAS OVERLOOKED

The Engineer and Fireman Given Instructions at the Muzzles of Two Revolvers—Registered Mail Matter Taken. $1,000 Reward Offered for the Robbers.

MOBILE, Ala., Sept. 26.—The Mobile and Ohio southbound mail and passenger train was boarded by thieves at Buckatunna, Miss., seventeen miles north of this city. As the train was leaving that station two men mounted behind the tender and crawled over into the cab of the locomotive. There they covered Engineer Jack Thorn and Fireman Hunt with their revolvers. The robbers, who were well masked, ordered the engineer to stop the train at the bridge, two miles south of Buckatunna creek. This order was given at the point of a revolver, and the engineer was compelled to obey it. Arriving at the bridge the engineer and fireman were ordered to detach the mail and express car from the balance of the train and to pull these two cars across the bridge away from the other cars.

$70,000 Was Overlooked.

At that point two other men joined the robbers. The express messenger was then forced to dump the contents of a safe into a canvas bag. The amount thus obtained was about $2,700. The robbers overlooked $70,000 of registered money, en route for Florida. The mail car was then raided and a pouch filled with registered mail matter secured. This pouch was made up at Meridian and the value of its contents are unknown.

Train Man Fired Upon.

The robbers then fired several shots at the train men and disappeared in the dense growth. The train then proceeded to Citronelle, where a posse was made up and started in search of the robbers.

$1,000 Reward Offered.

The Mobile and Ohio Railroad company offers $1,000 reward for the arrest and conviction of the robbers. The leader of the gang is believed to be Rube Burrows, a desperado who is known in the northern part of the state. The suspected parties have been camping in the vicinity of the bridge for several days past. A posse is now in pursuit of them, and it is believed that they will be captured within a few hours.

Held Up for $16,000.

FORT WORTH, Tex., Sept. 26.—As the northbound Sante Fe train was leaving Crowley, ten miles south of this city, it was boarded by robbers, who covered the trainmen and passengers with their guns. The express said to contain $6,000 each. The robbers then fled. A posse is in pursuit. Another report state that the robbers secured $30,000.

MAJ. WARNER'S LETTER.

He Declines the Pension Commissionership for Business Reasons.

DEER PARK, Md., Sept. 26.—Maj. William Warner, of Missouri, has finally declined to accept the office of commissioner of pensions. He telegraphs that he must adhere to his original declination, and his letter of declination is as follows:

WASHINGTON, D. C., Sept. 26, 1889.

SIR—After due deliberation, I am compelled to decline the appointment of commissioner of pensions. The salary of the office is insufficient paid me by the tender of the commissionership, and did not business engagements, which I have not the right to break, I would accept and esteem it a high honor to be commissioner of pensions under your administration, and at once I could in carrying out your wise and liberal policy toward the old soldiers and sailors entitled to pension under existing laws and to co-operate with you in securing the necessary additional legislation for the nation's defenders. Feeling, as I do, that I cannot be spared from the liberal administration of the pension laws, it is with the sincerest regret that I make this declaration, especially after the full and frank conversation I had with you and the honorable secretary of the interior on Saturday last, reassuring me, as it did, that our counsels have no truer or more former friends. Thanking you for the confidence expressed in me by your offer and again expressing my deep regret that I am compelled by what I esteem high duties to others than myself to decline the office, I beg leave to subscribe myself, sincerely your friend. WILLIAM WARNER.

Arrested for Dueling.

ATLANTA, Ga., Sept. 26.—Governor Gordon has honored a requisition made upon him by Governor Seay, of Alabama, for the arrest Col. J. D. Williamson, Col. Pat Calhoun, Maj. Jack Kloss, of Rome, and Capt. Harry Jackson, all engaged in the recent duel, and also for Crafty and E. W. Barrett, the two newspaper men who are wanted as witnesses. The gentlemen, upon being arrested, will give their word of honor to appear in Montgomery on Monday, where they will ask to have a suitable bond fixed.

Big Purchase of Glass Factories.

OTTAWA, Ills., Sept. 26.—In the course of an interview concerning the purchase of the Ottawa glass factories by the United Glass company, of New York, Mr. Thomas D. Catlin, of the Ottawa Window Glass company, said that the United company had purchased the Ottawa, Streator and Rock Island factories—the only ones in Illinois—all the New York factories except the two at Clyde and Syracuse, four in northern Pennsylvania and two in Ohio and elsewhere, a total of fifty or more.

Vice Floods Trying to Burn a City.

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Sept. 26.—The evident intention of unknown incendiaries to burn Charleston is terrorizing the city. The fire department was called out four times during the forenoon, and at 3 p.m. four undoubtedly incendiary fires were started at once. Property worth over $60,000 was destroyed. Men armed with Winchesters are patrolling the streets and every suspected person is forced to render an account of himself.

The Walking Match.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Sept. 26.—The number of contestants in the seventy-two hour walk has dropped to eleven. Gurrero is doing the best work. He has out-down Hegelbach and two miles since noon. At 9 p. m.: Hegelman, 161; Gurrero, 152; Curley, 143; Connors, 137; Sherlock, 126; Smith, 124; Haven, 120; Fox, 120; Golden, 120; Dean, 116; Elson, 114.

Fought to a Draw.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 26.—Tommy Warren, of Los Angeles, Cal., and Frank Murphy, of Birmingham, England, fought to a finish at the rooms of the California Athletic club, for a purse of $1,800 and feather weight championship. The fight was declared a draw.

The Episcopal Diocesan Convention.

NEW YORK, Sept. 26.—The Protestant Episcopal church of the diocese of New York began its 103th annual convention in St. George's church. About two hundred and fifty delegates were present.

BOSTON, Sept. 26.—The annual meeting of the board of overseers of Harvard college was held. It was voted to concur in the re-appointment of the following instructors for 1889-90: Edward E. Kirby, in elocution in the divinity school; Henry P. Quincy, M.D., in ophthalmology; Kenelm Winslow, B.A.S., M.D.V., in materia medica and botany; David D. Lee, M.D.V., in anatomy. The following instructors were appointed for 1889-90: Edward B. Beckett, M.D.V., in veterinary surgery; John C. Rolfe, A.M., in Greek. The following were confirmed as professors: Frank W. Nicholson, A.M.; Edgar J. Rich, A.B.; Wilfred Bolster, A.B.; Livingston B. Stedman, A.B.; Frank C. Southworth, A.B.; Frank D. Pearis, A.B.; William B. Bentley, A.B.; Charles M. Thayer, A.B.; Collier Cobb, A.B.

The following were appointed a committee on athletic sports for 1889-90: Three members of the faculty, Professor John W. White, William E. Byerly and Assistant Professor Albert S. Hart; three graduates, Henry P. Walcott, M.D.; William Hooper, A.B., and George B. Morrison, A.B. Frank Winthrop Draper, M.D., was elected professor of legal medicine. The Hon. Charles R. Codman was elected president of the board and the Rev. Alexander McKenzie, D.D., was re-elected secretary for three years.

Recovering Quebec's Dead.

QUEBEC, Sept. 26.—Two little daughters of Michael Bradley were found in the ruins close beside each other. They were much bruised and probably died of suffocation. Joe Kemp, who was taken out alive, has also died. The wife of Mr. Bradbury was found in the ruins badly disfigured. Sir Adolphe Caron is expected here to receive Maj. Mayne's report on the condition of the cliff. Four more bodies have taken place, those of the Bradley children and Mr. and Mrs. Henry.

A Mining Scheme Collapses.

BUFFALO, Sept. 26.—The Big Bend Tunnel and Mining company, with the principal office in Buffalo, and a branch at Big Bend, Butte county, Cal., has practically collapsed. The capital stock of the company is $20,000,000, of which $2,000,000 has been paid in and $1,000,000 of bonds issued. The president of the company is the Hon. Roswell P. Pierce, ex-congressman and proprietor of the World's dispensary, of this city. Dr. Pierce is the head of the enterprise and owns 60 to 70 per cent. of the stock.

Struck by a Train.

GREELY, Col., Sept. 26.—At half past 6 a. m. E. H. Gale, Mrs. Jesse Gale and Miss Gleason, a niece of Mr. Gale, were starting out to the ranch of Mr. Gale, near Harden, when they were struck by a train of coal. Miss Gleason was instantly killed. Mrs. Gale fatally injured and Mr. Gale slightly hurt.

Postmaster Sargent Bound Over.

NORWICH, Conn., Sept. 26.—William H. Sargent, postmaster at Moosup last year and one of forty-two Rhode Island and Connecticut postmasters engaged in the illegal sale of stamps, was brought before United States Commissioner Tenney and bound over until Saturday next in $300.

Letters from Harrison and Gladstone.

PARIS, Sept. 26.—In the Sabbath observance case, involving the Sunday opening of the Paris Exposition, Senator Edmunds read letters from Mr. Gladstone. The latter attributed his long life with preserved faculties in great part to the privileges of Sabbath rest.

Mr. Morton's Invitation Delayed.

BOSTON, Sept. 26.—Vice President Morton has been asked to Mayor Hart's dinner, but have been glad to have visited Boston with the president in August, but the clerk of a Washington hotel detained the invitation until a few days ago.

Parading Firemen at Tarrytown.

TARRYTOWN, N. Y., Sept. 26.—A thousand uniformed firemen from all parts of the Hudson paraded here, with twenty steamers, carriages and trucks. Resolute Hose company, of Dobbs Ferry, won the prize offered the neatest appearing company.

A Murder Over Tanner's Removal.

CAIRO, Ills., Sept. 26.—B. B. Curtis, a merchant, and Charles Harper, a carrier, quarreled over the removal of Commissioner Tanner and Wallace was struck on the head with a molasses jug, receiving an injury from which he died an hour later.

Collided With a Wild Engine.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 26.—A construction train on the Philadelphia, Wilmington and Baltimore railroad collided with a wild engine near Claymont station. Three employes of the company were injured about the head and body.

$45,000 Fire at Buffalo.

BUFFALO, Sept. 26.—The Union Dry Dock company's elevator, containing 40,000 bushels of grain, with a quantity of lumber, pitch, etc., were burned. Loss, $45,000; fully insured.

PRONOUNCED A "FAKE."

Capt. Irwin on the New Brotherhood League of Blacksmiths.

PITTSBURG, Sept. 26.—In an interview with a Leader reporter, Arthur Irwin, captain of the Washington club, and representative of the League chapter in the Brotherhood, said:

"The Brotherhood was organized to protect the players, so the story wreckers. Our grievances will all be laid before the League, and there will be plenty of time to talk about getting even after our conference with the League committee in March. The publication this week of the Brotherhood's intentions is a 'fake' of the worst kind. The whole scheme was concocted by President Allen, of the Providence club; Radbourne and myself in 1885. It was prepared while we were members of the Providence club, and at a time when the League was talking of forming Providence out. It was published in The Providence Journal as a special from New York city, and created a great deal of excitement. The bluff was effective at that time."

"This same article was recently resurrected and published broadcast by the Associated Press."

Cigarmakers Elect Officers.

NEW YORK, Sept. 26.—The International Cigarmakers' union have elected the following officers: President, Adolph Strasser, of Buffalo, N. Y.; first vice president, George W. Perkins, of Albany; second vice president, Samuel Gompers, of New York; third vice president, W. Todd, Toronto, Canada; fourth vice president, William H. McKinzy, of Muskegon, Mich.; fifth vice president, William Neuroth, of Denver, Colo.; sixth vice president, Emil Lavy, of Evansville, Ind.; seventh vice president, James B. Dougherty, of Richmond, Va.; treasurer, Lindsay A. Bolin, of Westfield, Mass.

Ten New Cruisers.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 26.—In his forthcoming report Secretary Tracy will recommend to congress the building of constructing ten additional steel cruisers. Hitherto in all the efforts to build up the new navy the matter of the size of new ships, so far as tonnage and horse power are concerned, has been settled upon by congress, and the general scheme of the vessel has been laid down in committee room. It is proposed now that many power be given to the navy department.

The Wyoming Convention.

CHEYENNE, Wy. T., Sept. 26.—The corporation element has won the constitutional convention fight to fix a tonnage royalty on coal mined in the new state. The operatives are the Union Pacific, Colorado Coal and Iron company and several lesser organizations. They may contribute $400,000 less a year from Wyoming and only $11,200 taxes. Propositions making eight hours a legal working day and barring foreign police from the state, were also adopted.

The Ives Jury Disagree.

NEW YORK, Sept. 26.—The Ives jury, after being locked up since last night, came into the recorder at 11 a. m. that they could not agree. They were called into the court room and announced that they stood ten for conviction and two for acquittal. They were discharged and Ives was sent back to the Tombs. Ives was much disappointed at the result. District Attorney Fellows is preparing a motion for a new trial, which he will ask to be set for an early date.

An Elopement at Lynn.

LYNN, Mass., Sept. 26.—Frederick D. Wellland, foreman in factory D, of the Thompson Houston Electric Light works, has eloped with the wife of George Holland Jones, an Englishman who came here six months ago, accepted a place under Wellland, and went to live in the same boarding house with him. Mrs. Jones left a number of sad children to remember a handsome woman. Wellland leaves a wife and two children in Boston.

A JACK OF ALL TRADES.

He Saddles the Ribbon, Etc., but Quit When Asked to Act as Groom.

I once knew a young man who was coachman, footman, butler and several other things just as the situation offered, and I was very well acquainted with him, and I hope I will not be accused of trying to log it in if I say that we were in college together. After graduating in the classical courses and going through a law department with honor, he struck on a first-rate position as general assistant in the family of a gentleman in reduced circumstances, but still proud. My friend's name was William Perkins Perkins. After he had driven the poor but haughty family in the park, he would put the horses in the barn, give them a feed of oats and a little baled hay, and then go in the house and cook dinner.

After he got things ready he would sprinkle dust over the wine bottles which she boy had just brought, put on a pair of white gloves and go in and take his place by the sideboard. "William," his master would say—they had friends at dinner, of course—"William, James unharnessed the bays, I suppose?" "Yessir, yer honor," my friend would reply. "John put the carriage in, eh?" "Yessir, yer honor." "Is Charles at the door?" "Yessir, yer honor." "Did Mollers say that dinner was quite ready?" "Yessir, yer honor." "Well, William, Arthur is ill with the gout today, you will be obliged to bring up the dinner." Perkins would go down and bring it up.

When he brought in the wine he would make a great flourish at brushing off the bottles with a feather duster and tugging at the corks with a big corkscrew which worked some like an egg beater, and occasionally his master would send down a gentle reproof to Mollers about something that wasn't cooked just right. It kept Perkins busy, you may well believe, because frequently, right in the middle of the dinner, while looking after the cases de terre out of the kettle, or something, he would hear the off horse trying to kick the barn down, and would have to run out and hit him two or three whacks with an old wooden pump handle which he kept for the purpose, to make him stop. But he didn't mind it, and stuck to the place a long time, till, they say, he got him to put on a starched dickey and lace cap and wheel the baby out afternoons, when he quit.—New York Tribune.

Division of Labor.

Natalie—Oh, Mr. Decourcy, I am tired of this frivolous life! How fatiguing to sit and hold one's hands all day.

Mr. Decourcy—Why not have some one hold them for you?—Munsey's Weekly.

The New First Reader.

"Come, let us go and ride upon the street cars in the cool of the evening. How smoothly they glide! Wills what swiftness they skim along over the faces of the earth!"

"Yes, it is wonderful."

"With what luxuries and conveniences man has supplied his fellow man! Did you ever stop to think of it?"

"Very often."

"You board a street car built after the style of a palace, hand the conductor a bad nickel and away you go flying over the streets like some great bird. Time is annihilated, space reduced, comfort brought to your soul. We can never be thankful enough to the man who invented the street car. But for"

"What's the matter?"

"This makes me tired. We have been half an hour going six blocks, and the motion of this old rattle trap is enough to break one's back. Let us finish our journey in a wheelbarrow."—Detroit Free Press.

Ought to Be Cheaper.

Guest at Eatinghouse (grumblingly)—Bring me some roed birds. Seems to me fifty cents is a thundering price for them, though.

Waiter—Yes, sah. Roed birds is expensive. They ain't easy to get, sah, and we have to bring 'em a long distance. (Behind the screen some minutes later)—Lively, now; hurry up them English sparrows.—Chicago Tribune.

Confirmed Clumsiness.

Boylston—I upset my soup into Miss Hopgood's lap at dinner today, and when I deliberately offered to atone for the carelessness she deliberately insulted me.

Daisy—What did she say?

Boylston—She asked me what amount I was in the habit of paying on similar occasions.—Judge.

Many Orders Ahead.

Mr. Slowpay (airily)—I wish to get measured for a suit of clothes, but it will be about three weeks before I can pay for them, as our pay day comes only once a month now. How soon can you have them done?

Tailor—Um—let me see. In about three weeks.—New York Weekly.

Carlo Accounted For.

George—Did poor little Carlo have a pink ribbon around his neck when you lost him?

Clara—Yes, yes, the poor little dear! have you seen him?

George—No, not exactly—but here is a pink ribbon in this Frankfurter.—Epoch.

The Same Old Story.

Merritt—A ticket I bought in the lottery won a big prize."

Giles—How did you come to buy it?

Merritt—For a friend of mine.—Drake's Magazine.

Swinging in the Lane.

O, once I had a sweetheart,
As I dey called him "Tommy Bill."
He was sweeter on the surface
Nor a sugar coated pill;
As he and me we lay in love me,
But I love him like a child,
That he saddle blanket shows me,
Since he's swinging in the lane.

He was slick as any possum,
As I'm drowsy as a duck,
And his lamin' was as large as baby's,
For he neither smoked nor chewed,
O, the thought that he has left me
Fills my heart with pain,
For I've no one left me love me,
Since he's swinging in the lane.

I had noticed that his sleeves
Were a powerful length for hands,
Till one day he took a journey
On another man's dog cart,
Then another maiden stole him
And my troubles him kept again:
But he don't love her as me do
Since they swung him in the lane.

WOMAN AND HOME.

SOME OF THE "LET-GO'S" OF HOUSEHOLD DAILY LIFE AND LIVING.

The Welcome Is the Soul of Hospitality—A Treasure of Household Linen—Wonderful Drawn Work of Stanless Nuns—Physical Culture at Home.

It is rather strange, when you come to think of it, how many little things are "let go" in the home, that really fret the inmates and add friction to the household machinery, which should run smoothly. Most of these "let-go's" are in the kitchen. I might philosophize about that fact, but I will not, just now. A dull vegetable knife is one of these. The kitchen which contains a sharp one is the exception, yet its very exasperating to peel potatoes or apples, cut up beans, or slice turnips, with a knife as "dull as a hoe." In the first place one begrudges the money for a fine steel knife "when a ten cent potatoe will," never stopping to think that the better the knife, the cheaper it is for the sort of work. A sharp knife will pare thinner and waste less than a dull one, and will last longer. A good, small whet stone should accompany it, with instructions to use it, and not the stove pipe, stove edge, or sole of the cook's shoe. There is no old saying, that one of the few questions the devil cannot answer is: "What is a woman's whet stone?"

Another annoyance is leaking tins of various kinds, notably quart measures, dippers, dripping pans and sauce pans. Bits of rag drawn through the tiny holes, or flour paste rubbed on the bottom to form a patch, are common devices for getting along with these let-go tins, instead of carrying them to the nearest tin shop some morning and getting them back while and strong in the afternoon for a very small outlay of time and money. There is for sale, and I doubt not it is quite commonly used, a certain kind of solder that the dealers claim can easily be used at home. I think I have seen it advertised, but was not very successful in using it, probably from lack of skill. It in no way lessened my conviction that she should not be allowed to solder, who, when discovered, was made them so.

A clothes wringer that will not wring is another annoyance. Perhaps one of the rollers will not turn. We all have our need and fuss with it week after week, on wash day, and forget it the other days, all the time vaguely hoping it is only a "conniption fit" and the matter will "right itself," if we only wait long enough. It does not "right itself," and so the annoyance continues, the clothes are half wrung, or wrung by hand, when it would be so easy to drop a penny in the mail box to repair the wringer, and then have this one come to be a "let-go."

Dull scissors—who does not know them! Day after day some people "saw and wrap" with such a zeal, work their jaws meanwhile, and getting a "pain in their tempers," all because this is one of the "let-go's" that has grown to be chronic. "I can't keep it in order, is it not! I only know it is, and that I rarely have a friend, who visits me and uses my scissors, fail to say, "Why, how nice and sharp your scissors are!" and then lay them anywhere, taking up my work, without being very sure my scissors are with it, because I know what I will meet, nine times out of ten, if I borrow scissors.

Another "let-go" has a connection with tidies. Now tidies are very nice things, and very saving to the furniture, if they are properly made and adjusted; but how few are. Most of them are "variastingly falling off," and all because we fail to sew on little tapes for tying, or little tapes for pinning under seats. Some people are so fussy over these we pick them up and lay them on the sofa or chair; but somehow we let it go, and fret ourselves and others by so doing.

The neglect of the many garments is almost a religious duty in some few homes; but in how many are the little rents and rips, the lost buttons and hooks, the broken buttonholes, and worse yet, the tiny holes and thin places in hosiery, let go from time to time until nothing remains to be done but throw aside the garments. The "mending" time never used to be any to trite, but it is as just as good as ever, and when I find a home where mending is one of the "let-go's" I feel very sure there is a sad lack of thrift, and so of certain moral qualities that go with it.

I am well aware that "one cannot do everything," but let us not be self indulgent or self deceived when we say that, and let us find that the "let-go's" are things that we should do, and that neglect for other things that we prefer to do because they are pleasanter, or through a mistaken sense of duty, let go. Then the fewer "let-go's" we have the easier will life be, really.—Juniata Stafford in Good Housekeeping.

A Sensible Trousseau.

A wealthy and beautiful young bride-elect whose home is in Galveston, Tex., and who has been in Atlanta for some time, has a number of articles in progress for her wedding. The trousseau is a gift from her aunt and it includes all her house furnishing linen. This is now being embroidered in and initialed with every dainty kind of hand work at the Decorative Art society in New York. The sheets and pillow slips are to be hemstitched and embroidered with her monogram. The towels are all of the finest damask, heavily knotted and fringed with a band of drawn work above the monogram. The napkins and table cloths have the same monogram, and are of the most exquisite imported damask. There is something sweet and sensible in this new fashion of supplying brides with their household linen. It is a custom for all the little brides is not going to board; that she will make a home for herself and her husband, whereas treasures of the linen closet can be stored to descend to future generations of careful housewives.

It is in Germany that the linen closet is a fortune, which descends from mother to daughter, and the bride feels her self-respect in the lavender and rosemary scented home linen, than in an elaborate lot of garments she couldn't wear out in ten years.—Atlanta Constitution.

The Cost of Hospitality.

A friend came to my house for a visit once just as supper was on the table. I was overjoyed to see her, though my principal diet was bread and milk, so we invited her to that limited repast which I could ask by any possibility change them. "If I had known you were coming I should have given you a better supper, but you are just welcome to my bread and milk as my scalloped oysters."

"Yes," she replied, "you are one of the few persons I know who are able to give a warm welcome on bread and milk." And one of my feelings, do you suppose she mourned over the oysters?

We cannot entertain as we wish to. In this democratic country we who are poor often have friends who are rich. Shall we, in accordance of this disparity and because we cannot entertain them in their way, deny ourselves the pleasure of entertaining them at all? Indeed, no. Let us rather give them "the best we have in store" and with a welcome that shall make amends for all deficiency.

I have been entertained in homes where all the comforts that wealth could buy were lavished upon the guests, where carriages were placed at their disposal and trained servants anticipated every wish. I have forgotten the details of the years have gone by, but the memory of the welcome is as sweet and fragrant today as then.

I visit from time to time a country home where my husband and I are given a welcome to stay comfort, and I am allowed to enter the simple house life of the family. The luxuries and conveniences of the city are beyond their means, but they give of their very best in their own way with such unfeigned hospitality, they welcome me so cordially and show me in so many ways that my stay is a pleasure to them, that I always go away from the home without feeling that I have been royally entertained. Ah! the welcome is indeed the soul of hospitality.—Caroline H. Stanley.

Physical Culture at Home.

The careful and periodical inspection of the bodies of growing children, by the family physician as well as by the mother, would be the first step to the prevention of many physical deformities, and the basis for intelligent care and physical training. Such an inspection should be made in the case of growing children as often as twice yearly, and any deviation from the healthy condition found, be noted. The causes for such condition should then be inquired into and removed; and intelligent direction as to certain sports, plays, and exercises for children, gymnastics alone could take the place of backboard method. Once a year each children should be carefully measured to ascertain their chest girth, arm and leg growth, and their weight compared with height, and other data, which would prove not only of present interest, but the means of comparing them with the standard of development, and directing their home and school training accordingly.

The constant carrying of school books in the right hand, or else the habit of a heavy school bag suspended over the right shoulder, will tend to lower that side, pulling down one shoulder and leaving the other apparently raised. The habit of standing on one foot whenever the spinal column is sometimes bent a trifle to bring the center of gravity where it can sustain the burden.

Backboard plans of training in the case of children whose muscles are not strong may result in such faulty positions on the part of the tired player as to leave a permanent impression upon the figure. The wearing of corsets or garments which are even but a trifle too tight across the chest will prove to be a constant though mild restraint to the development of this body structure and the consequent limitation to expansion of the lungs.—M. T. Bissell in Home Maker.

Making Dresses Work.

Observation has revealed that what the industrious summer girl who spends her morning on the piazza with a silken reticule, out of which she produces a slim gold thimble, a little gold handled pair of scissors and a needle case, means to do with all these feminine weapons to make drawn work. It is the latest passion among the women who do fancy work, and the "drawing" is done by withdrawing the threads in various materials in bands of different widths, and with a needle and thread to twist the woof threads into all sorts of patterns. The fine flax of the linen brought here by women who have been making winter visits to Mexico, and who saw there the wonderful drawn work of the Mexican nuns, who have no rivals at that sort of thing. All manner of household belongings are ornamented in this laborious way, one dainty and industrious girl at West Hampton having made herself a complete set of sheets and pillow cases with drawn work edges. Tea cloths, dressing table scarfs, sets of sheets and pillow cases for baby cribs, doylies, even tea cloths "up and by them on the sofa or chair; but somehow we let it go, and fret ourselves and others by so doing.

The neglect of the many garments is almost a religious duty in some few homes; but in how many are the little rents and rips, the lost buttons and hooks, the broken buttonholes, and worse yet, the tiny holes and thin places in hosiery, let go from time to time until nothing remains to be done but throw aside the garments. The "mending" time never used to be any to trite, but it is as just as good as ever, and when I find a home where mending is one of the "let-go's" I feel very sure there is a sad lack of thrift, and so of certain moral qualities that go with it.

I am well aware that "one cannot do everything," but let us not be self indulgent or self deceived when we say that, and let us find that the "let-go's" are things that we should do, and that neglect for other things that we prefer to do because they are pleasanter, or through a mistaken sense of duty, let go. Then the fewer "let-go's" we have the easier will life be, really.—Juniata Stafford in Good Housekeeping.

A Sensible Trousseau.

A wealthy and beautiful young bride-elect whose home is in Galveston, Tex., and who has been in Atlanta for some time, has a number of articles in progress for her wedding. The trousseau is a gift from her aunt and it includes all her house furnishing linen. This is now being embroidered in and initialed with every dainty kind of hand work at the Decorative Art society in New York. The sheets and pillow slips are to be hemstitched and embroidered with her monogram. The towels are all of the finest damask, heavily knotted and fringed with a band of drawn work above the monogram. The napkins and table cloths have the same monogram, and are of the most exquisite imported damask. There is something sweet and sensible in this new fashion of supplying brides with their household linen. # WHAT SHALL WE WEAR?

APPROVED STYLES IN DRESS FOR THE AUTUMN SEASON.

Novelties in Jackets for Street and for House Wear—Three Imported Models Illustrated and Described—Princesse Costumes for Fall and Winter.

There appears a decided reaction in favor of jackets which, in many instances, are more ornate than formerly, and therefore worn on dressy occasions as well as the morning. There are jackets with waistcoats and jackets without waistcoats, jackets for the street and jackets for the house. English tailors are making many cloth jackets very plain, semi-fitting, stitched and quite devoid of trimming. French tailors are turning out very natty affairs to be worn with elaborate waistcoats, in illustration of which see figure in cut No. 1.

TAILOR MADE JACKET.

This charming model is in brown cloth, stitched with terra cotta silk to harmonize with the coat facings, collars and cuffs and waist tabs of velvet.

There are some very pretty military braided jackets in gray, hooked down the front and braided in black. Then there are "artilleryman's coats," consisting of a basque waist with jacket front opening over an embroidered waistcoat.

In the second cut is represented a jacket of dark red cloth, the fronts of which open over a checkinette of cream surah. The back is close fitting. The revers, collars and cuffs are in cream cloth, to match the checkinette, and are braided in red, the shade of the cloth jacket.

CLOTH JACKET—FRENCH TEA JACKET.

The remaining figure in cut 3 shows a French tea jacket of white brocaded gauze striped with open work. This jacket opens on a plastron in china crape, over which drops a cascade of lace, the upper part of which sags flounce of the same fabric. The bows and bands on the full sleeves are of corded ribbon.

Princesse Costumes.

Relative to the new princesse costume Harper's Bazar says: "A prettily fitting princesse dressmaker breadths closed to the foot of the skirt instead of flapping tail breadths form part of autumn and winter costumes. These are made of cloth, matelassé or velvet, and are worn over a skirt of contrasting material, such as silk, moire or velvet. The styles of the Directory are given to great extent, with very deep cuffs and jabot frills on the waist, but the large revers have been so generally used that lovers of novelty have abandoned them, preferring straight or indented sides to their bodice fronts, or else tongue like straps that are set about irregularly on the bodice.

For instance, a long coat of green velvet is of princesse breadth cloths, the fronts lapping to the left at the waist line, falling open below to show the front breadth of a skirt of green bengaline, which is cut in three deep scallops at the foot and edged with wide passementerie that ends in knotted fringe. Tapering bands of the passementerie without fringe are set up the sides of the coat front, and there is a soft gathered plastron of the bengaline above the waist line. The foundation skirt of this and of similar dresses is of alpaca, with two very deep cloth plaited low in the back to support the heavy coat but not to extend it.

A Distinctive Novelty.

The distinctive novelty this year is rather costly and very elaborate, viz., front breadths specially woven and intended to be used with that material. These appear in an infinite variety. Some have broad and narrow brocaded stripes, the brocade in silk and of a contrasting color, while some have broad stripes of wool alternating with corded silk, and rich velvet brocade on silk and wool. Others, again, with a silk brocaded stripe on wool, have the brocade run off the edges of weave and sides at both sides of the pattern. The Jacquard loom has played an all important part in the production of these several fabrics. In all cases such stuffs are used with the more elaborate weaving.

Fashion Briefs.

Silk brocades in which no velvet appears lack nothing in richness.

The plain cloths for ladies' wear have been improved upon but not greatly changed.

Hellotrope and Java are two fashionable colors.

Both the plain and fancy cloths are to be had in large range of colors.

Checks are coming in again in many varieties.

Camel's hair cloths, with decided stripes and outstanding hairs, make pretty gowns and have small checks often combined with the stripes.

Bordered cloths are made in every variety, usually with the silk brocade, but also with the classic and knickerbocker effects.

Gold beads continue to be worn.

JOTTINGS.

—Days of 1889 past, 270; days to come, 95.

—The course of Greenbrook, near Washington avenue is being changed.

—The Borough Council will hold its regular October meeting one week from to-night.

—Better get your stove ready—snow eighteen inches deep on the White Mountains.

—The Middlesex county Petit Jurors have been released from duties until October 7th.

—The contest for the secretary's desk at St. Mary's fair is to be held next week.

—It is the favorite time of year for judging by the finger whether paint is really as fresh as it looks.

—A gold charm that flies open, revealing enough court-plaster to cover 10 knuckles, is a new thing to hang on the vest.

—If the weather will permit there will be trotting on the grounds of Gentlemen's Driving Association to-morrow afternoon.

—The Union county Board of Freeholders will meet as the Court House in Elizabeth next Thursday afternoon at two o'clock.

—The new deposit safe, for the City National Bank, was put in position yesterday morning. It weighs ten and one-half tons.

—A person reading a paper and failing to scan carefully the advertisements, loses very many rare bargains in the course of a year.

—The Rev. George W. Hillman, of New York, who is a sweet singer and a good speaker, will aid the Warren Mission chapel Sunday evening.

—The Young People's Society for Christian Endeavor will hold a sociable in the parlors of the First Presbyterian church on West Front this evening.

—An electric spark has been photographed by means of a special camera in which the sensitive plate rotated at a velocity of 3,500 revolutions per minute.

—The game of base ball which was to have taken place yesterday afternoon between the Giants of Washington, N. J., and the Stars, of this city was again postponed on account of the weather.

—The barn on the Bronck property on Grove street is to be converted into a house. The property will be regraded and the large frame house now standing on the property will be remodeled into a dwelling for two families.

—The Sunday afternoon meetings in Reform Hall, are rapidly increasing in numbers and interest. The one led by Mr. G. H. Fountain, last Sunday, was especially spirited and interesting. Mr. Andrews of Hope chapel will be the leader next Sunday. It is hoped that a large audience will be there to welcome him.

—The fourth season at Miner's theatre was opened last night with "Captain Swift," by the Madison Square Theatre Company of London, as the attraction. A large and critical audience was present. The play was nicely staged. Arthur H. Forrest was excellent as Mr. Wilding, alias Captain Swift, the adventurer. Miss Rose Eytinge was capital as Mrs. Seabrook, mother of the adventurer. She was very effective in the emotional scenes. W. J. Constantine as Mr. Seabrook was excellent, and Wright Huntington was good as Mr. Gardiner, a Queensland squatter. Miss Beverly Sitgreaves was a sweet Mabel Seabrook, and Miss Grace Kimball was charming as Stella Dartsbeer.—Newark Journal. "Captain Swift" will be produced in Music Hall next Tuesday evening.

—The Republican leagues of the state of New Jersey will hold a convention in this city on the evening of October 15th. There is time enough between this date and that for all the Republican clubs to get together and attend this convention in full force. Those who were at the Asbury Park convention last year knew what an inspiring occasion that was. This ought to be none the less so, for this state election is one of the most important political events of a quarter century. Union county with her hundreds of old veterans and young Republicans ought to make a big showing in this convention. General Grubb will doubtless be present, and ought to have the warmest and most enthusiastic reception possible. Let the Republican clubs organize at once, all over the county.—Elizabeth Journal.

Middlesex County Indictments.

The Middlesex county Grand Jury yesterday presented indictments against Gen. E. H. Ripley, President and Col. C. J. Hobart, Vice-President of the Raritan River Railroad for malicious trespass, and W. H. Fisher, of Sayreville, for the same offense. The jury also indicted general Passenger Agent Hendrickson and Thomas Hendrickson of the same railroad for murder. Phillip Haymer was indicted for indecent assault; Mamie Reed for larceny, and John C. Raymond and Annie Benton for incendiarism.

NINE INDICTMENTS FOUND.

George Sanders, of North Plainfield, Among the Rest.

The Somerset county Grand Jury yesterday presented nine bills of indictment as the record of their labors.

An indictment against George Sanders for embezzlement was among the bills presented.

It will be remembered that Sanders was arrested about three months ago on complaint of Messrs. H. W. Rice & Co., whom he had been robbing ever since he had been employed by them.

It is reported that the amount he has stolen from the firm aggregates $1,500.

UNION COUNTY ROAD BONDS.

Sold at Elizabeth Yesterday at a Premium.

A committee of the Union county Board of Freeholders met yesterday afternoon at Elizabeth and disposed of the $150,000 in county road bonds.

The Union county Savings Bank purchased $12,000 worth of the bonds at 1 per cent premium.

The $138,000 remaining were purchased by Mr. George A. Benwell, a New York broker, at twenty-four-one-hundredths per cent. premium.

The O'Neill Contempt Case Dismissed on the City's Motion.

James O'Neill was ordered to show cause before Judge Bullman at 5 p. m. yesterday, why he should not be fined for contempt for not appearing on time in answer to a subpœna in the case of Joseph Sullivan. Corporation Counsel Marsh appeared for the city and read an opinion to the effect that as O'Neill had been subpœnaed and then twenty-four hours before the time set for trial, the Judge had no power to impose a fine.

Lawyer Charles A. Reed, for O'Neill stated that in his opinion the City Judge had no power to fine in such cases whether the subpœna was served twenty-four hours or twenty-four days in advance, and cited a case decided by the Supreme Court, holding that the Recorder, of Hoboken, had no such power, and stated that the portion of our City Charter involved in the question, was copied almost word for word, from the same act, under which Hoboken was incorporated.

Mr. Marsh replied that the case quoted from by Mr. Reed had no application to the present case in which the Recorder committed a witness for contempt of court, a power never claimed by the City Court. This was merely a proceeding to fine the witness or obtain evidence, not goods and chattels. Of course witnesses could not be committed by the City Court for contempt, but they could be fined and had been repeatedly during the last eight years.

The Court agreed with the Corpora ion Counsel and said that the other view would make a trial in the city court a farce.

The paper presented by the Corporation Counsel, stating that it would be illegal to fine Mr. O'Neil because he was served with subpœna only half an hour before the time fixed for his appearance in court and citing authorities to that effect, was filed by the City Judge, and as suggested by the Corporation Counsel, no fine was imposed and the case was dismissed.

Catching a Thief.

As Mr. Schorb, of East Front street, was leaving his place of business to go to dinner he heard his front door slam. Thinking it might be a customer he looked over the banister and saw a man standing inside the door stuffing something under his coat. The fellow did not see Mr. Schorb, and soon went out, holding his coat close to his body. The man's actions were so suspicious that Mr. Schorb, knowing he did not belong in the house, rushed downstairs and opened the door to see where the man had gone. As soon as he opened the door he saw that a pair of trousers which had been hanging before the window was missing. He also saw the man who had just gone out, was just turning the corner into Somerset street. Mr. Schorb ran after him, and, catching hold of him, said, "Hold on there." Before he could say anything more the man turned a white, frightened face upon him and, pulling out the trousers from under his coat, said, thrusting them into Mr. Schorb's hand, "Do you want these?" Mr. Schorb answered in the affirmative and, taking the trousers, told the man "he ought to be arrested," and then let him go. A crowd had quickly gathered, and the thief made off.

Somerville Fair.

The 20th Annual Fair, of the Somerset county Agricultural Society, will be held on their grounds in Somerville on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, Oct. 8, 9 and 10. Trotting Wednesday and Thursday, commencing at 12:30 p. m. each day. On the line of the Central R. R. of N. J., one hour's ride from New York.

PERSONAL.

Mrs Bridget Daly, of West Third street died suddenly last night from paralysis. Deceased was about fifty years old.

Mr. Walter Scott, of the Scott Printing Press Works was this week granted a patent for a dampening and feeding apparatus on a printing press.

Mrs. Bridget Connell, aged ninety years, died at her home on Terrill road, Wednesday. The funeral took place from her late home this morning. Interment was made in St. Mary's cemetery.

Mrs. Emma J. Martin, the niece of Mr. Isaac Scribner, of North Plainfield, has removed to Elmer, Salem Co., N. J., as the bride of Mr. Hiram Hixon, a retired farmer of that place. Deceased is a beautiful young woman, and regarded as a very fine mass generally.

Mr. W. D. Bird, of Somerville, and Miss Lauretta Sanders, of Liberty Corner, were married last Wednesday at the latter place, by the Rev. Peter J. Gibbs, of Millville. Mr. Bird and his handsome bride have located permanently at 61 Dunr street, North Plainfield.

OYSTERS AND THE "R" MONTHS.

Why the Bivalves Should Not be Eaten in Warm Weather.

According to the most learned of traditions—and no one but a cold and unsympathetic sci-ntist would think of doubting it—the months holds cramps and other evil spirits within its limits, and consequently when the clock pass the hour of 12 on the last day of August. A moment later he is transformed into a delicate tidbit by the appearance of the month of September. The man of learning smiles in a deprecatory sort of way at all this, and is not disposed to be hard on you for not knowing better; but he can't deny that an oyster is not good in any month that hasn't an "R" in it.

"One should be very careful about eating sea products during the warm months," said Dr. Storer, of the Smithsonian, to a reporter. "They spoil quickly in hot weather and care should be taken to eat them when they are just from the water only. The oyster spawns in the warm weather and is not fit to eat at that time. They are good to eat in the "R" months because they are the cool and the cold months. But we may have a hot September, and then the 'R' 'availeth nothing' for the oyster eater. The oyster has such delicate and fine tissues that it easily decomposes. Ignorant dealers sometimes think that as long as the shell is closed the oyster is alive and good to eat. But this is not true. They are often unfit for food long before they open. These bivalves are not good in the months that have no 'R' in them, for those months are invariably warm, but it does not follow because the month is spelled with an 'R' in it that the oyster may safely be eaten far from the place of taking. Crabs and other fish spoil easily in warm weather.

"There is a difference," said Dr. Storer, "whether the fish is salted or smoked. The scaleless fish spoils quicker. Some homœopathists in prescribing food for their patients makes a distinction between those fish having scales and those having none. They will let the patient eat the under-trained smooth fish when they object to the unrestrained use of the more hardly scaly fish. But all these fish of fast and tender tissues spoil easy and cannot be eaten when long out of the water, except in the Winter time. I should not advise the eating of oysters during a hot September.—Washington Star.

Complaining of Grove Street.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE NEWS:—In reading a report of a meeting of the North Plainfield Borough Council, I think it said the matter of streets was brought up and discussed. And that seems to be about all that was done, as the condition of Grove street from Front street to Green brook road, in the Grove Side place, has been deservedly complained of by everyone who has been compelled to use either thoroughfare (and I assure you no one uses them unless too pellet to) Grove street is dammed up near the bridge after every rain. The water will not run because the Pembrokers have neglected to have the mouth from the pipe that discharges the water into Green brook. Their attention was called to the matter three months ago, and they were also taken to the spot, and shown what the trouble was. It is said at that time have cost the two counties the enormous sum of two dollars to clear this pipe of all obstructions.

It is and has been for the past four months complained of by every resident who is compelled to use Grove street, and wade in water from four to twelve inches deep after every rain storm, or walk on a narrow strip of loose away in two pieces on the south side of said street, and is not replaced at night, on Sundays, or any other time. This should not be allowed by the authorities!

One Commissioner could not see how the street had been beautified by removing the dirt from the gutters. He said that the only man benefited is the man who sold the dirt, he ought to sell some from the gutters of Grove place, a number of people would then be benefited. I will drive you through Grove street in a side-bar wagon at an ordinary road gait and guarantee to throw you out three times in going over the crosswalks that are raised about eight inches above the road bed, unless you are injured in the first fall. Let the Grand Jury find out what would leave the road in such miserable condition as these thorough fares as should be brought to the notice of the Grand Jury and most surely indicted.

The gentlemen in power and authority ought to wake up, and sitting in council and looking wise, will not improve our streets or satisfy the people. ROADSTER.

Enormous Business of the United States Mails.

A report published by the postoffice department showing the business over the great railroad postal routes gives an idea of the enormous amount of mail matter carried on those trains. These being selected from the report, Post route, New York and Dunkirk carried as follows:

In July, 2,643,920 letters and 1,873,550 papers; in August, 2,652,900 letters and 1,620,000 papers.

New York and Pittsburg—July, 9,058,345 letters and 5,006,600 papers; August, 9,972,345 letters and 5,019,000 papers.

New York and Washington—July, 3,599,340 letters and 2,904,750 papers; August, 3,980,280 letters and 2,918,850 papers.

All of which goes to show what a mail matter was carried with the following errors: Against postal clerks, 2,121; against post-offices, 2,965. This is an excellent, showing as the placing of a letter in a package which belongs to another office when it on the direction of the letter is one error and a like figure one mark "Per."

Making an average of one error in each 10,336 pieces. It must also be remembered that bad writing by the senders of letters is the cause of a very considerable portion of the errors.

Some of the errors reported cause no delay in the transmission of mail matter, but are errors nevertheless.

The increase of letters carried on all railroad postal routes is as follows:

July, 1889, over July, 1888—Letters, 1,216,-105; papers, 123,952. August, 1889, over August, 1888—Letters, 2,060,250; papers, 250,303.

Gleanings from Our Exchanges on Political Topics.

There are two prominent candidates in the field: A Jersey City ward politician in favor of Rum, and Gen. E. Burd Grubb, the brave veteran, who stands on a high-license platform.—Monmouth Inquirer.

* * *

There is a boat on the Shrewsbury river named "Leon Abbett". The emphasis on this at the present time has a grim suggestiveness as on Nov. 4th it ought to be chartered to take the Great and Only Leon Abbett up Salt river.—Monmouth Inquirer.

* * *

No nomination made by the Republicans has been better received by the people than has that of Gen. Grubb for Governor. It was made by the people, free from any influence save their own. We regret that our crowded columns preclude comment this week either on the admirable candidate or the admirable platform.—Woodbury Constitution.

Samuel Sullivan Cox.

One of the most versatile men his country has produced was Congressman S. S. Cox. He did so many things admirably that one cannot say what he did best. In congress he was best known as a humorist. For years he was the wit of the national house. His reputation in this respect interfered with his ambition to be speaker of the house, and in other directions, as he himself used to say rather sadly at times. It was hardly thought that so funny a man could fill a high and serious office with dignity. And yet Mr. Cox had a fine dignity of his own.

As an orator, on grave and important questions, he could be earnest and forceful enough, when occasion demanded. His rhetoric was so brilliant, his knowledge so wide and his manner so irresistible that he was much sought after as a lecturer. In the very hour he died he would, if in health, have been speaking to an audience from the platform.

The four new states to come into the Union this fall owe Mr. Cox an especial debt of gratitude. It was his vote and his exertion in congress last winter that passed the bill for their admission. He had just returned from a trip to these young states when he was seized with his last illness. He it was, too, who was the founder of the government life saving service.

Yet, after all, perhaps it was as the literateur that he was at his best. Those who have read his "Arctic Sunbeams," "Orient Sunbeams" and "Why We Laugh" cannot help regretting that politics took any of his time away from literature. But since 1855, thirty-four years, he has only been out of congress five years. Strange indeed the house of representatives will seem without the presence of this gentle, genial, childlike, merry soul. The prayers and regrets of a thousand friends go with him as far as they can penetrate on the unknown journey where every man must travel alone.

The Whitechapel Murders.

Nothing in the annals of modern crime is at once so mysterious and so fiendish as the series of murders that have been committed in the slum Whitechapel district of London. In all there have now been found twelve bodies of murdered women and there is no clew to the slayer. Nine of the twelve bodies were found in Whitechapel. The women belong to the lowest outcast class. To one of the corpses a note was pinned saying that the murderer would desist when he had killed fifteen women.

Of the ghastly twelve bodies eight were disemboweled and mutilated in a peculiar manner, all the same way. The unknown person who committed these crimes is nicknamed Jack the Ripper. The four other dead women found in Whitechapel were killed by another hand, it is believed, since they were mutilated in a different manner, the heads and limbs being cut off and only the trunk left. It is simply inexplicable that in one of the most thickly populated districts of London, lighted all night and patrolled by police, with a detective force supposed to be equal to any in the world, the heads of four murdered women could be cut off and carried away and successfully concealed.

The case in hand reminds one of Poe's story of the mysterious Paris murders. The Whitechapel killings began April 9, 1888, and have been shocking civilization at intervals ever since. One supposition is that the original "ripper" is a ferocious lunatic with some fancied grudge at the unfortunate class of women named. But his work is too systematic and long continued for that. A horrible circumstance attending this series of crimes is that other wretches the world over read of it and attempt to imitate it. There seems a contagion about it.

Dr. Chauncey M. Depew has come back disgusted with the exhibit of the United States at Paris. Even poor old Mexico beats us. Every citizen of our republic comes away from the show amazed alike at the richness of the display of other nations and the poverty of our own. It is absolutely essential, he says, to our standing in the markets of the world that we hold in 1892 an exposition that will show off to the full our grandeur in agriculture, minerals and manufactures.

After careful consideration, the University of Michigan has abandoned all competitive prizes and honors. The system of rivalry among students is productive of more harm than good, they say. Science, oratory and literature should be studied for love of them, and not for reward, which is held out as an incentive, "like a bundle of oats before an ass' nose."

Tom Lee, a yellow skinned Oriental, who is known as the "mayor of Chinatown" in New York city, says his countrymen in America are now going into garden work to some extent, and that they make more careful gardeners than Americans do. He also declares that "some of these days Chinamen will do everything in America that any other skilled laborer can do."

The Report of the Pension Office Boiled Down.

TANNER'S LETTER TO DALZELL.

A Confidential Epistle from the Ex-Commissioner of Pensions to His Friend. Plain Talk from the Corporal Concerning His Resignation.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 27.—The Evening Capital has the following: The report of Messrs. Ewing, Campbell and Bruce, the commission that investigated the pension office, though closely guarded by the interior department officials, is gradually becoming known. Printed copies of this report are now and have been in the hands of all the members of the cabinet. Commissioner Tanner has one, as also has Maj. Warner and Col. Dudley. By degrees its contents are being divulged. It is known that the report takes up each rerating case separately, and each one is an exhibit in itself. Great use is laid upon the fact that Deputy Commissioner Hiram Smith, Jr., received over $6,000 as a rerating. This action of his comes in for severe criticism in the report. Whether Mr. Smith has returned this $6,000 or not the report does not state. Mr. Smith receives his pension at the Topeka agency.

Deputy Smith's Rerating.

Secretary Noble, in view of the report of the commission, has himself questioned Mr. Smith as to the facts attending the rerating. It is not known definitely whether Mr. Smith's explanation was satisfactory or not. Smith has been appointed to sign for himself as acting commissioner or by Commissioner Tanner. The papers in regard to his case went through during Mr. Tanner's absence from the pension office.

Mr. Squires Condemned.

The report also condemns Mr. Squires in round terms, especially for his action in making many reratings. It states that Mr. Squires possessed the stamp of Mr. Tanner as commissioner and affixed it to papers without the commissioner's knowledge. The number of these reratings is not stated, but it gives, and Commissioner Tanner criticised for his gross carelessness in thus entrusting his official prerogative to a mere private secretary, who violated the confidence reposed in him.

Still There's More to Follow.

The names of the pension office officials who comprised the commission, number of two things for the president to do, in view of our report, either to dismiss every one of us from the service as unworthy of belief, or else remove Mr. Tanner from office."

The same member intimated that the chief culprits were still in position, but would soon follow Mr. Tanner into private life.

TANNER TO DALZELL.

The Ex-Commissioner of Pensions Writes an Interesting Letter.

CALDWELL, Sept. 27.—The following letter from ex-Commissioner Tanner has been received by Hon. J. M. Dalzell:

WASHINGTON, D. C., Sept. 19, 1889.

Hon. J. M. Dalzell, Caldwell:

MY DEAR DALZELL.—I have yours of the 16th. I think I have read all that has been printed concerning from your lips or pen. For your great warmth of good feeling I thank you from the bottom of my heart, and now for all, about this despatchyle, I want to say to you that the president never said one word to me about my resignation, and I never left a note for all. you must not quote it; but it is God's truth. The one appointed free deputy was from Noble's state, and I had two tinks. Of course, I couldn't tick. I imagine that your keen eye has caused you to observe that Gen. Black has resigned with the effect in Ohio of two things recently done in the pension office. When I say recently I mean decisions by public officials with respect to commissioner, and will be until my successor is appointed and qualifies, I am taking no part in the matter of the rerating myself or have since.

While commissioner I issued two orders which I thought, and still think, were mighty good orders. One was that $6 a month should be the roll at less than $4 a month should all, unless they had had a medical examination within a year, be ordered to appear before a board of examiners, with a view to putting them up at least $4 a month pension or drop them off the roll. The other was that no one should be put on the pension roll, at a dollar a week is small enough to consider a pension. My object in the latter order was to check the assignment of a pension claim, the order of a private, if he had a man of good character and standing. I doubt exceedingly as much to the soldier who claims as the word of a man who had perhaps been in the shadow of the gallows for manslaughter. The acting commissioner revoked both of these orders, according to The Washington Post and Washington Star. It is not for me to say whether or not he has been rescinded, but you can see what the spirit is, and how under heaven's name are we to have economy if we believe that there is to be no change in the policy?

Smith also issued an order stopping all rerating. He did not mean by it to shut off cases of rerated him and put him up to $72 for the loss of his arm and leg, thereby putting $6,000 in his pocket. I said and still hold that he was clearly entitled to it, but is it not contemptible that a man who had had that done for him, and who accepted it, should be one of the first to rise and file an affidavit against the rerating of poor devils who, perhaps from the effects of malarial poisoning, had been rerated by some board from a less kind, suffer twice as much as a man does from amputation? I want to say to you that I did not intend that the pension office should be closed on both and to me in the same minute that the committee of investigating committee which has bothered them, pestered me and which could impeach the honesty of my action in the slightest degree. That is why I resigned. I thought I was man enough to decline to continue in a position where I knew my immediate official superiors did not have confidence, even considered in that I could say against their wishes, which was not at all true.

I have not the slightest doubt but that I would have been removed if I had not resigned, as they I know it. Noble had certainly promised his official action to be my head or his resignation, and of course I knew it. Of course, I would have embarrassed Harrison greatly. Now that I have the completed report, and have gone through it carefully, I am satisfied that I have given you the very good opinion I value, that all under heaven they charge me with is too much liberality and too much regard for the general welfare of the people. You will agree with me that we have had impossible pension appropriation enough, so that it would take more than one session of congress to bring it up to a decent average. Of the future I know nothing. If the boys, and particularly those in Ohio, propose to run me for anything than Tanner will be left where he is—in the soup.

I send the letter you enclosed in the pension office in the care of Harris & Fyffe, Caldwell, to be a member of the board of pension appeals in the secretary's office at $5.00 a year. He had been detailed for duty in the secretary's office for some months, and was appointed by the secretary one of the commission which investigated the pension office. I don't think that I would have looked a little better if they had rushed at least until I had passed out of official life before they promoted him. Rome will be synonymous with ingratitude to reflect discredit on me and reward. With all my heart, very truly yours, JAMES TANNER.

P. S.—I have written to you without permission. Do not give me any cause to regret it by saying anything about this letter. It is to you solely.

Mr. Tanner Pathers the Letter.

Pension Commissioner Tanner was seen at his residence on Georgetown Heights and questioned as to the genuineness of the letter purporting to have been written by him to Private Dalzell, of Pa. "Yes," replied the commissioner, "the letter as printed is substantially as I wrote it. It was written, however, in the strictest confidence to a man whom I believed to be my friend. I mean, under those circumstances, write that which under other circumstances would not and should not have been written. The letter," he continued, "was evidently stolen. I cannot believe that any man would so betray his friend."

Judge Goff Takes the Oath of Office.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 27.—Judge Goff, the new commissioner of the general land office, has taken the oath and assumed the duties of his new position. A number of changes are expected in the land office soon.

Fourth Class Postmasters Appointed.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 27.—Chester E. Rice, N. H., vice Rice, resigned. Ohio—Isaac Hall appointed postmasters at Parkville, Fayette and Seely Creek, fourth class offices in New York state.

A Suicide at the Capital.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 27.—J. W. Kee, aged 35, a native of Hancock county, Virginia, and his body was found under the long bridge with a revolver clutched tight in the right hand.

Burned to Death While Kindling a Fire.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 27.—Mrs. Emma A. Wood, the wife of George M. Wood, of the geological survey, was burned to death while kindling a fire.

A FRIGHTFUL EXPLOSION.

Six Men Engulfed by Molten Metal at Braddock, Pa.

PITTSBURG, Sept. 27.—Furnace "C," of the Edgar Thomson Steel works, at Braddock, Pa., has not working satisfactorily, and at 7 p. m. W. R. Jones, manager of the steel works, together with six of his men, went to work to remedy the trouble. It was discovered that a hard crust of cinder had formed inside the furnace. An orifice, fifteen inches in diameter, was made through the side of the furnace stack, which is eighty feet high and twenty inches in diameter. Through this hole a heavy iron bar was used to break through the crust. It is said that the crust gave way and a perfect river of molten iron and cinder rushed through the aperture, literally covering Capt. Jones and his workmen in a flood of flame and burning fire in all directions. Capt. Jones was picked up from the sand pit fully forty feet from the stack. The others were lifted about the same distance in a like direction. Jones Hargarian, who was in the party, has not yet been found. The burned are as follows:

Mike Quinn, foreman; Harry Connell, fatally burned; Frank Hughes, seriously burned; John Nee, seriously burned, and Capt. Jones is terribly burned.

The scenes immediately following the accident were heartrending in the extreme. The immense stockhouse being fairly overflowed with the seething liquid. The injured were brought to the hospitals here.

The Union Prohibitory League.

HARRISBURG, Sept. 27.—The Union Prohibitory league of Pennsylvania, having for its object the organization of the saloon outside of party lines, held its first convention, with about 100 delegates in attendance. President Kynett called the meeting to order, and the committees were then selected. The committee on permanent organization reported at the afternoon session as follows: President, A. J. Kynett, Philadelphia; vice presidents, A. J. Ricketts, Wilkesbarre; A. C. Rankin, Allegheny; secretary, Wellington E. Loucks, Philadelphia; treasurer, W. Wallace, Philadelphia. The report was adopted and the officers declared elected. The platform adopted recites the evils growing out of the liquor traffic, and declares that the only remedy is prohibitory amendment failed in June last because of the unfair political methods of those opposed to it. The league will favor the election of candidates to public offices without respect to party who will best represent its principles. Over a thousand dollars were raised before the adjournment, and more was contributed to the campaign fund in addition. Hon. Albert Griffin, of New York; B. C. Christy, of Pittsburg, and others made addresses at the mass meeting.

Lawyer Suydam in Trouble.

NEW YORK, Sept. 27.—Abraham Suydam, a well known lawyer of this city, was arrested for fraud, in attempting to negotiate the sale of a piece of real estate by means of a forged power of attorney, and receiving a $750 deposit on the deal, which he failed to return in the falling through of the negotiations. Inspector Byrnes says that Suydam has been in similar trouble several times before. On one occasion he received nearly $100,000 of $1,000 acres of land in Virginia to a Scotch syndicate before it was found that the abstracts of title were forged. Suydam is accused of killing a negro who was lately condemned to hang for murder. Suydam was arraigned in the Tombs court, remanded for examination and locked up.

Faulkner's Faithful Witness.

BUFFALO, Sept. 27.—In the Faulkner trial Comfort Allen, a farmer, testified that he worked on the docks in September, 1887, at the instigation of John Faulkner, and was paid $10 for the work. Mr. Daniel Lockwood cross-examined Allen, and made him admit that he had sworn falsely on the stand. "So help me God," but had muttered "so help me." Witness also admitted that Gen. Faulkner's partner once saved him from hanging but refused to do so. The trial will close in both end to one in the same minute that the committee report of the investigating committee which for months has pestered me and which could impeach the honesty of my action in the slightest degree. ## HIS ROYAL RECEPTION.

Minister Phelps and the Emperor William.

GERMANY'S KING ADMIRES US.

America's Enterprise and Inventive Genius Had Attracted the World's Attention. He Said—Mr. Phelps' Remarks—Other News from Across the Water.

BERLIN, Sept. 27.—Mr. William Walter Phelps, United States minister to Germany, has presented his credentials to Emperor William. He was cordially received and conversed with the Kaiser for some time. After an exchange of formal remarks the emperor detained Mr. Phelps, conversing so long that the American minister and Count Herbert Bismarck, who accompanied him from Potsdam, missed their train. Count Herbert Bismarck tendered a dinner to Minister Phelps, which was attended by a number of attaches of the American legation and visiting diplomats.

Minister Phelps' Speech.

In presenting his credentials Minister Phelps spoke of the relations between Germany and the United States as having never deviated from open cordiality. He would shirk no effort to maintain, and if possible strengthen the historical friendship of the two countries. He reviewed the prominent part taken by liberty loving Germans in aiding the American struggle for independence, and in since promoting the national welfare of the United States.

Emperor William's Kind Words.

The emperor, responding, spoke in English. He said the minister's utterances afforded him great satisfaction. The United States had greatly admired America, whose history so largely characterized by peace, had always excited his especial interest. Although the many prominent qualities of the American people, such as energy and sense of order, and above all their inventive genius, attracted the attention of the world.

President Harrison's Letter.

The Erie will apply for another trial.

Ruined by a Defaulter.

READING, Pa., Sept. 27.—The farm and other property of Valentine Kieffer in this county, valued at $50,000, was sold by sheriff on attachments for $5,000. Kieffer's failure is due to the flight of Tax Collector Isaac Eckert, who took $8,000 county money with him. Kieffer was one of Eckert's bondsmen.

Doctor and Lover Arrested.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 27.—Dr. Charles E. Hinkle was arrested here, and Max Herman was arrested in Camden, N. J. The former for performing operation on Miss Rose Ross, aged 19, and the latter for being responsible for the girl's condition. Herman will be brought here.

Fell Dead at His Friend's Funeral.

NEW YORK, Sept. 27.—While attending the funeral of Col. Gouverneur Carr, Jacob A. Westervelt, aged 70, a friend of Col. Carr, and a member of his regiment during the war, fell dead from heart disease.

Gen. Sherman Re-elected President.

CINCINNATI, Sept. 27.—The Army of the Tennessee held its business session at College hall, and the principal officers, Gens. Sherman, president; Hickenlooper, secretary, and Force, treasurer, were re-elected.

Suicide at Altoona.

ALTOONA, Pa., Sept. 27.—William E. Storey, aged 25 years, of this city, deliberately stepped in front of a shifting engine at Hollidaysburg, and was instantly killed. He was subject to fits of melancholy.

TIDINGS FROM THE RUSH.

She Was Surprised When She Reached Sitka

AND DID NOT FIND HER PRIZES.

The Canadian Sealers Seized Were Not at All Warlike in Their Action—The Rush Called a Pirate by Its Sealers' Captains.

VICTORIA, B. C., Sept. 27.—Capt. Russell Glover, of the revenue cutter Oliver, now in Fort Townsend, has received a letter from Lieut. Frank Tuttle, of the revenue cutter Rush, dated Sitka, Sept. 13, where she had that day arrived, eight days from Unalaska. The Rush arrived at Unalaska on Sept. 2, and will cruise in the sea until October. Lieut. Tuttle states that very few sealers were left in the Behring sea when the Rush came away. She had seized during her cruise six sealers and overhauled fifteen more, and has 2,470 sealskins aboard. She has eight Vancouver Island Indians aboard, who were lost during fogs and gales from vessels and got ashore at Unalaska. Free passage was given them to Victoria.

Fighting Done in Barrooms.

"The most dangerous weapons we saw," writes the lieutenant, "were a bottle of brandy and a box of cigars leveled at us by that captain who would never allow a United States revenue officer to come aboard his ship. Most of their fighting was done in barrooms before they had sailed for Victoria."

Lieut. Tuttle states that none of their prizes went to Sitka, as had been ordered. Capt. Tuttle was informed that the United States court at Sitka is condemning the sealed goods, which it was thought would occupy about a week. She would then sail for Victoria, where she expected to stay four days to have her bottom scraped. From there she will proceed to San Francisco.

The Rush's Officers Surprised.

A private letter from Sitka says that when the Rush arrived there on the 12th inst. all the officers were considerably surprised at not seeing any sealed schooners in port. A reporter interviewed Lieut. Tuttle, who told him that he was very much put out about it.

"But surely you did not expect the vessels to obey one man, and in some cases nobody at all aboard to obey your orders?" he asked.

"Yes I did," replied Lieut. Tuttle. "It is a breach of good faith. And the Victoria captains all gave me their word that they would put for Sitka. I naturally expected them to go."

The Rush Called a Pirate.

In reference to this statement of Lieut. Tuttle a reporter saw four of the five captains concerned. They were greatly surprising and "even if we had," they remarked, "we would have been perfectly justified to have said anything whatever in order to get to Sitka in charge of our own under instructions to commit piracy on the high seas."

THE HAMILTON AFFAIR.

Mrs. Rupp Dissatisfied—Nurse Donnelly to Enter a Dime Museum.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 27.—Mrs. Rupp, in whose cottage at Atlantic City Nurse Donnelly was stabbed by Mrs. Robert Ray Hamilton, has returned to her home in this city, and has sold to the proprietor of the Hamilton baby made famous through revelations brought to light during the trial of Mrs. Hamilton. Mrs. Rupp says Mr. Hamilton desires to have the care of the child himself, can otherwise arrange for it. Mrs. Rupp is dissatisfied with the amount of money paid her by Mr. Hamilton. She says that before leaving Atlantic City Mr. Hamilton told her that if she needed money to address him through his New York lawyer. She wrote to him, asking for $1,000. She thought this was reasonable, as she had been the cause of a great deal of trouble through the scandalous affair at her cottage, and her boarding house business had been entirely broken up. In reply to her letter she received a check for $250, which insignificant amount she looks upon as an insult. She will care for the baby, however, until Mr. Hamilton decides what to do with it. Mrs. Rupp says that Mary Donnelly, the nurse, has accepted an offer of $75 a week to appear at one of the New York dime museums.

Democratic Delegates Chosen.

WILSON, N. Y., Sept. 27.—The Democratic convention for the 32nd district of Niagara county elected the following delegates to the state convention: S. S. Pomeroy, Dr. George P. Eddy and William D. Hoyt. J. M. Harwood was nominated for member of assembly.

UTICA, N. Y., Sept. 27.—The Delaware County Democratic convention at Delhi nominated Dudley Ferris for county judge, Isaac H. Maynard for member of assembly and L. T. Raymond for district attorney.

A Policeman Tried for Murder.

WILKESBARRE, Pa., Sept. 27.—David W. Thomas, a policeman of the borough of Edwardsville, three miles west of here, is on trial for his life for the murder of the 15th of last month he entered the house of Thomas Schelling uninvited and placed Schelling under arrest without cause. Schelling resisted and Thomas shot him dead. The general opinion is that he will hang, as the commonwealth made out a very strong case against the prisoner.

Vassar's Ex-President Dead.

PROVIDENCE, Sept. 27.—Samuel L. Caldwell, D. D., LL.D., ex-president of Vassar college, died here this morning after a brief illness from septicaemia, aged 69 years. He was a native of Newburyport, Mass., and for more than fifteen years was pastor of the First Baptist church of this city, and was for seven years president of Vassar college.

He Loved Sister Camille.

EMPORIA, Kan., Sept. 27.—Sister Camille, of the Convent of the Sacred Heart, was brutally beaten and left for dead here by a man named Murray, who became infatuated with the young woman while she was stationed in Terre Haute, Ind., and who had twice before tried to kill her because she would not leave the convent and marry him.

A Girl's Mysterious Death.

WILLIA

MR. AND MRS. BOWSER.

He Tries to Show His Wife How to Clean a House—What the Result Was.

Last fall Mr. Bowser undertook to do our house cleaning to Advantage, but got discouraged and went out for a fortnight while I finished up. As I wanted to overhaul things a little this month, and as I wanted him out of the way, I said to him the other evening:

"Being you have been home all summer, I should think you would want to take a little trip this fall."

"It's!" he replied as he looked up from his paper.

"You don't look a bit well, Mr. Bowser. Your face is haggard, and I believe you have lost twenty pounds of flesh this summer."

This time he didn't say anything as he looked at me.

"If you wanted to go down to New Hampshire and see your relatives," I continued, "I could get you all ready in one day."

"Oh, you could!" he replied. "Mrs. Bowser, I see through your little game, and it won't work. You want to get me away so you can rip and tear and scrub and clean and wipe and dust and damage and destroy fourfifths of the contents of this house!"

"I want to clean just a little."

"Well, go ahead."

"But you—you——"

"Oh, yes, it's always me! One would think you were not to breathe unless I gave my consent in writing. Have I said a word against housecleaning? Don't I know that housecleaning must be done? I was wondering the other day when you were going to begin."

"But last year you raised such a fuss."

"Can't remember that I said one single word. If I did it was only in fun."

"And I may clean?"

"Not only that, but I'll help."

"But you needn't. You just be patient and put up with the mess for a few days and I'll get——"

"As I said, I will help, Mrs. Bowser. It will be a sort of vacation for me. Don't you worry about my finding my task."

It was with fear and trembling that I saw him put on an old suit of clothes next morning and heard him say:

"I'll begin on the parlor first. It's now 9 o'clock. We ought to be through with the whole house in two hours."

I—I—he afraid was no smart as that. We must go slow and give the house a thorough going over."

"Oh, we'll have everything shining like a new pin before we let up. You home and I'll do the work. You know, of course, that there is everything in the planning. Some folks make a whole week's job of housecleaning simply because they don't know how to plan. Mother and I used to clean house in half an hour, and you know how particular she is."

After breakfast the cook came in and said she was ready, and she likewise announced that the two colored women were in waiting.

"Waiting for what?" asked Mr. Bowser.

"To help us clean," I replied.

"Send them right home! Five of us to clean house! Who ever heard of the like! Do you want the neighbors to think we have been turned out into the house all summer? I'll start those colored women for home, and I don't want any help from the cook. Let her attend to affairs in the kitchen."

He went out and "started" the two women I had had engaged for six weeks, and then returned with the assurance that he was ready to start in on the spare bedroom, having already taken down the curtains and removed the bedding.

"All right—I'll have it done in five minutes!" he replied, as he spit on his hands. "You clear out and give me room to work. I think I can give you and all other women a pointer on house cleaning."

I went down stairs, and it wasn't over seven minutes before he called to me:

"All right, Mrs. Bowser—your room is cleaned! Come up and show me what to do next."

"What have you done?" I asked, as I found him seated on the window sill with a complacent smile on his face.

"Cleaned the room. Every picture has been taken down and dusted, the bedstead wiped off, and I have swept the carpet. Your three or four women would have been two days accomplishing the same task I have completed in less than ten minutes. I tell you, Mrs. Bowser, it is all in the planning."

"But that bedstead must come down, Mr. Bowser."

"What for?"

"Because the carpet must come up. Everything must be moved out of the room and the floor cleaned."

"Well, I should like to know what for! What's the matter with this room just as it is?"

"Dust, Mr. Bower. It blows and we can't help it. Moths get in now and then. If we don't do our work thoroughly we might as well let it go entirely. Take the bedstead down first."

"I'll take it down, but I protest. It's all bob hanging and every speck of dust. No one else does it. Get out of the way!"

He made a grab for the springs and lifted them out, but in getting them clear of the rail he fell over the bedstead and the springs fell upon him. He made use of several vigorous exclamations, kicked out in an effort to demolish them, and as I assisted him to get up he roared:

"I told you that these things ought to be left alone! The fool who invented them never intended they should be moved!"

I calmed him down after a bit and then asked him to take down the bedstead. He grabbed the footboard and gave a pull. Then he grabbed the headboard and gave a wrench.

"Mr. Bowser, don't you know how to take a bedstead apart?" I asked.

"Don't I?" Well, if I don't no one else does! I was taking bedsteads apart ten years before you were born! You always have to loosen the joints a bit. Now then——"

"But you don't bear down on the rail. You must lift up at the ends."

"I think I know my business, Mrs. Bowser," he replied as he worked away.

"But you don't. You are locking the rails instead of loosening them. See here."

I pulled at the end of a rail and unlocked it. Mr. Bowser pulled, crowed his hands on the end of his back and said:

"Mrs. Bowser, that settles it. I clearly see your object. We will have no more house cleaning this fall. I see what it would lead to. When a wife gets the idea that she knows more than her husband it is time to hoist the danger signal. Just drop things right here. I see you have planned to bring about this very thing to force a legal separation."

He dressed and went off down town.—Detroit Free Press.

A LITTLE OIL.

"Say! haven't you any sense?" he demanded of his friend as they crossed the street and left the third man to go on alone.

"What's up?"

"Why, you kept asking him if he'd been away this summer, and if he'd had a good time, and if he were fishing, and all that."

"Well, wasn't that common courtesy?"

"Not under the circumstances. You knew he'd been in the workhouse all summer!"—Detroit Free Press.

THE FIREMEN IN PARIS.

THEY HAD A WHOLE WEEK ALL TO THEMSELVES.

All the World Was Represented, "Even America," in the French Papers Announced with Some Show of Surprise. Some of the Contrivances for Saving Life.

HUNGARIAN FIREMAN.

FIREMEN'S week at the Paris exposition was a success, a great week, and nearly all the civilized world was represented—"even America," as a America included," says L'Illustration, as if it were a surprise for the world to get there. The international firemen's congress paid their first respects, of course, to President Carnot, and listened to some "able remarks," after which they gave vent to their feelings in what they could do, and closed the proceedings with the usual excursions and banquets.

The gathering of spectators was immense and the Parisians were much impressed. The visitors, on the other hand, admitted a surprise at the serious, solemn ways of the French firemen, especially at the custom of calling the names of those who "died in action." When their names are sounded at the regular roll call some one responds, "Died at the fire!"—"Mort au feu!" The various uniforms of the foreign firemen made the review a scene of great interest. There were present Portuguese, English, Luxembourgers, Hungarians, Italians, Russians, Americans and some others.

The English delegation attracted special attention because it contained a company of "firewomen" from Manchester, that is, women devoted to the life saving department of the work. They were young, agile and dressed in what would once have been called the "Diana costume," and gave the amazed rear exceptions of the best methods of rescuing women from the upper stories of burning buildings. By one method a cord is dropped from the window (all hotels are now supposed to keep them) and by it a long, stout sack—a tube of stout sacking rather—is drawn up and fastened, the lower end is held out by the firemen, and the rescued woman slides gently but rapidly to the ground. This when no fireman can reach the window. In case it is accessible, however, other methods are practicable. British firemen exhibited the plan of going down ropes with a woman hanging on to him in a style that delighted Paris.

For the free-for-all final trial an immense scaffold was erected before the official stand of President Carnot, the scaffold or open frame representing a six story building; there, at the "drop of the handkerchief" the different nations represented their methods of removing the inmates and saving the building. By the universal verdict the palm was awarded to the English in all particulars. The English women then gave an exhibition of their method of descending by a rope thrown about the waist, their downward velocity regulated by a rope held in the hands. They also maneuvered the English fire engines to demonstrate their lightness and facility of movement.

After the maneuvers the captains were invited to President Carnot's platform and decorations and medals were bestowed. The political reporters did not fail to note M. Grabesensky, representing Russia, received marked attentions, and when he came to the front the people shouted, "Vive la Russie!" Mad. Heath, commanding the English firemen, also received many compliments on the life saving apparatus and general efficiency of his corps.

It is to be regretted that the Parisian papers say so little of the American firemen than to merely mention their presence, as there is a deep seated impression "on this side" that America rather leads the world in that line. Any one of the large buildings a stranger generally hears in a new city is that they "have an unusually good fire department." But is American cities the buildings are so much higher, as a rule, than in Europe that totally different methods of life saving must be adopted. Of course the rope fire escape now required by law for hotels in many cities and the upright ladders now anchored into the walls, are excellent, but they require some presence of mind in the one who is to use them, and, unfortunately, three persons out of four go wild as soon as the house they are in takes fire.

For these and many other reasons heroic acts of life saving have abounded in all the annals of American firemen, especially in New York city. The exploit of James B. Mount, March 17, 1883, on the Bowery, was a famous subject of talk for years. He saved the third story of a four story and a paper store over burning stairs and rescued two persons, leaving two men, two women and two children in one room. The stairs were nearly ready to fall in when he dashed through and with his coat wrapped around his head (for the smoke was stifling) went up the ladder which had been spliced. It was several feet too short. The firemen below raised that and upon a hogshead and held it there by main strength. The two men reached it and climbed down; then the children, one at a time, were passed down to the ground and brought down; but now the lower rungs of the ladder were ablaze and the flames from the paint store were coiling up the side of the house.

ENGLISH MANEUVERS.

One of the women climbed some distance and fell, but was not seriously hurt; the other, Mary Kopper, weighed 240 pounds and was almost helpless from fright. Yet Mount succeeded in getting her over the window sill and across his shoulder. Step by step he descended—a fall to the pavement meant death to both. He got down in safety; he saw the rescuers on fire, then faint-ed; those below managed to break their fall, so that neither was seriously injured. The cur raised by the spectators even heard high above the roar of the flames. Mount's clothes fell off in cinders and the flesh was burned from the palms of his hands; but he recovered without permanent injury.

This is given only as an instance of acts done by many hundreds of Americans, acts which inspired the stirring lines of Eliza Cook:

When the red sheet winds and whirls
In the cell of frightful dusk;
When the hammer's mouth unfurls
And the smoke drinks off the breath;
When the fire-elf crowd appears,
Chasing in the midnight sky,
And some helpless form appears
In that furnace of despair;
Rush, oh, rush to the rescue!
But who plucks the human brand?
Who will fill the deed or die?
'Tis a fireman of the land!

Then give them honor, give them fame,
A health to hands that fight the flame.

The method of rescue by a sack, illustrated by the Manchester "fire women" in Paris, was used in a primitive form in London at least fifty years ago, but, like almost all devices for safety, it requires too much judgment and coolness in the one who is to use it. American experts have therefore generally decided that none of the Old World methods are quite suited to the peculiar New World conditions, and many ingenious contrivances have been invented. After all, however, it is conceded that the firemen must do their work—skill is genius and courage in the firemen, many lives will be lost, no matter how perfect the escapes provided. As it is, the ladder still remains the general favorite of those who must work outside the building.

In the French reports of the late international congress nothing is said about rank and pay, nor could Europe and America be compared without special study of the subject; but in the United States it is evident that the general standing of firemen has vastly improved since the early days. One hears no more of "runners," fights of feuds between different companies. The firemen of New York city, especially, are gentlemen in every respect, and on great days more proud of their appearance are more heartily cheered by the people. It is only reasonable to conclude that there is the same difference in pay as in other callings, and that in old and methodical Europe the days of riotous or even sportive firemen are far in the past.

stuhl. Capt. Eads was known as a bold and scientific thinker and as one of the first engineers of his time.

The model represents the captain as at work, arrayed in his dressing gown, standing with a plan in one hand and a compass in the other. The artistic feature of the statue is that of a man in a thoughtful mood, imbibed with a bright idea which has just occurred to him. Lost in thought, he is unmindful of all around him, even of the eagle by his side, a symbol of the boldness of his intellect. The boat proves, the dolphins and scientific instruments suggest his calling. A bas relief of the bridge piers, the river and jetties refer to the space between the grand engineering feats of this great genius. The fields of Capt. Eads' work—the ocean and the Mississippi—are symbolized by the boat prows, while the dolphins bear out the suggestion and will serve as fountains.

The proposed statue will be ten feet high and on a pedestal measuring twelve feet. The whole monument, with the foundation steps, will be twenty-five feet high.

The average white man who lives to be 70 years old has spent over a year of his life in shaving and two more on top of that in getting his hair cut. This is where the Indian is a long way ahead. He hasn't any whiskers, and lets the coyotes shave his hair off when it gets down to his tomahawk handle.—Detroit Free Press.

DAVID H. MOORE, D. D.

The New Editor of the Western Christian Advocate.

Among the important additions to the army of religious workers in the Ohio valley the new editor of The Western Christian Advocate, one of the leading publications of the Methodist church, Dr. David H. Moore, occupies a conspicuous place. He has now arrived from Galena, where he lately was pastor of the University of Denver, and, beginning with the issue of Sept. 18, The Advocate will be under his personal editorial supervision.

Dr. Moore was born at Athens, O., in September, 1838. He was the only son of Hon. E. H. Moore, one of the trustees of the Ohio university, at which institution the son was educated and from which he was graduated in 1855, receiving his master's degree three years later. He was converted in boyhood, and began preaching before he left college, immediately after graduation he married Miss Julia Carpenter, of Athens.

He joined the Ohio conference at its first session after graduation, and was appointed to the Bainbridge circuit, and subsequently was sent to Chimney Chapel, Marietta, O.

DAVID H. MOORE.

In 1862 he enlisted as a private soldier in the war for the Union, was chosen captain of his company, and went out at Hayes's Ferry, and was exchanged. He at once organized a new regiment, and served until the close as major and lieutenant colonel until the fall of Atlanta.

After the war he returned to the ministry and occupied charges in Ohio, at Columbus, Zanesville, Delaware and Cincinnati. In 1875 he was elected president of Wesleyan college, Cincinnati, and ably conducted the affairs of that institution, though greatly handicapped by financial difficulties. In 1880 he identified himself with the pioneer educational work of the church, and became president of Colorado seminary and chancellor of the University of Denver.

At the last meeting of the book committee he was unanimously elected editor of The Advocate, to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Rev. Dr. Bayliss. This was against his personal desire, but after the choice of the committee was announced and made known to him he responded, in the language of a patriot of 1860: "If the summons is imperative, I am a soldier."

THE LATEST JAPANESE DISASTER.

Map Showing the Location of the Flooded District.

China and Japan seem fated to astonish mankind by their recurring calamities in which the waste of human life is so enormous as to make the Johnstown flood, the Irish famine and the American civil war appear as small things. In the great Tae-ping rebellion 7,000,000 lives were lost; at one time 30,000 prisoners were beheaded, or more than the killed in battle in the late war. In the Chinese floods they number the dead by millions instead of hundreds as we do, and the loss by their last famine was more than twice the population of Ireland. In the fertile district of those countries people are crowded so thickly that a natural convulsion destroys them as we destroy nuts or flies.

Japan having a much smaller population and being for the most part a low plains, is less subject to destructive cataclysms, but is not wholly exempt. Long ago the country suffered a most peculiar affliction. A man in a fit of hate broke into a volcano, the whole mountain top was blown off by the steam, and, turning completely over in the air, buried several thousand people. And now the latest steamer from Yokohama brings information of a flood, accompanied by immense land slides, and the destruction of at least 15,000 people. To the nations of the west such a calamity would do the marvel of the age, and make an epoch in history; but in the great inundation of "China's sorrow," the Yellow river, it seems like a mere episode in the Orient.

ISLAND OF HONDO.

The flood devastated the provinces of Kii, in southwestern Hondo, one of the Japan islands. The rains of the late summer were a great deal more abundant than ever before known and so much detritus was carried to the mouths of the main streams that they were choked. On this came a sudden and heavy rain of unprecedented violence, the dams were broken, the embankments of streams swept away and finally all one side of a precipitous mountain, softened by the rain, slid into the valley and buried six villages. The dispatches give many details as to the villages, but these need not be repeated.

The nature and extent of the flood's work may be judged by the fact that for ninety miles along the coast foreign steamers find it impossible to enter any harbor or even get near the land. There was such a mass of floating trees, roots and wreckage that the wheels and rudders were clogged and the vessels could not force their way through it. This is the greatest disaster Japan has suffered for centuries, and the exact loss of life cannot be known for some time, as many entire districts are covered and not one person left alive to tell the tale.

Composite Portraits.

Composite photography has yielded some very interesting results, but it may be doubted if any such picture has been more curious than the portrait of the sultan of Zanzibar. The manner of its production, as described by Mr. Johnston, is very simple. It is a full length painting of his majesty, and is done in duplicate.

These two paintings are identical in every detail. They were manufactured in Paris. The artist had a splendid model to work from himself during his visit to London. It was in a sitting posture. He sent it to Paris with the order that it was to be enlarged standing, and then converted into two gilt paintings.

The Parisian artist, in no way at a loss, cut off the head of the sitting sultan and stuck it on to the decapitated portrait of some athletic Arab, photographed erect. The combination was enlarged, and in due time gave rise to the two oil paintings in the palace at Zanzibar.—Youth's Companion.

GREAT CATHOLIC EVENT.

THE FIRST AMERICAN CATHOLIC CONGRESS MEETS NOV. 10.

Pope Leo XIII Deeply Interested—No Such Complications Here as in Europe. Centennial of Bishop John Carroll, of Baltimore Diocese.

The arrangements for the most interesting as well as most important assembling of Catholic prelates and laymen ever held in America, namely, the first American Catholic congress, which is to be opened in Baltimore, Nov. 10, have been almost completed. A few unsignificant details remain to be attended to, but practically all is ready for the great convention, the first of its kind ever held in this country. The full programme has been drawn up. All the invitations to attend the congress are out, and most of them have been replied to. The committee in charge of the congress is receiving letters daily from all parts of the country until the time of its meeting.

This congress will be a new and an interesting event to the Americans of all creeds, being the first of its kind, and it is perhaps for that reason that interest is growing in it as it is. Such meetings of laymen are, of course, common in Europe. Congresses have been already held this year in Austria, France, Belgium, Italy, Spain and Portugal with much success, and across the Atlantic, where the relations between church and state seem always so delicate, these meetings have been the subject of much discussion. Here in the United States, where there is no quarrel between church and state, and, in fact, but little friction between the various denominations, the meeting of a Catholic congress will not have the same sort of significance as in Europe. Yet many reasons have been why the gathering is certain to be both important and interesting.

Despite his advanced years and fast increasing weakness Pope Leo XIII is said to take a lively interest in the coming conference. He has always favored the holding of similar congresses in Europe, and has never forthis district of those countries people are crowded so thickly that a natural convulsion destroys them as we destroy nuts or flies. failed to give each meeting some direct assurance of his favor. In this respect he takes the same ground as Cardinal Manning, of England, who advocates the holding of a congress of all English speaking Catholics at some early day. It is the opinion of these dignitaries that new zeal and interest is aroused by these meetings, as it gives to the layman a better chance to be a factor in the government of the church. It is going somewhat in the direction of Protestant bodies that give laymen a direct voice in the management of church affairs by allowing them to sit as delegates, with a vote in church conferences. Of course it is not going so far. Catholic laymen can have nothing to do with matters of church doctrine or discipline. Still, these congresses are a notable step toward a church democracy.

As the programme stands the celebration proper of the centennial of the establishment of the Catholic church in the United States will begin on Sunday, Nov. 10, and the business sessions of the congress will be held on the two following days.

Nov. 10 was fixed as the opening day of the big celebration for the reason that on Nov. 10, 1789, a few months after the inauguration of George Washington as first president of the United States, his friend and co-patriot, John Carroll of Carrollton, was named as first bishop of Baltimore, the first episcopal diocese created in the United States by the Catholic church. The propriety of opening the celebration as arranged is, therefore, manifest. Sunday, there will be none but religious exercises.

The high mass that will be celebrated in the Baltimore cathedral on that day, with Cardinal Gibbons at the celebrant, will furnish an imposing pageant. Pope Leo XIII will be represented by a papal delegate, who is to come from Rome for that purpose in consequence of Mgr. O'Connell, who is now rector of the American chapel at Rome, a position which he won by his work as secretary of the last plenary council at Rome. Then besides the host of priests who will be present sixty American bishops will assist in the mass, and Cardinal Taschereau, of Quebec, is coming to take part in the ceremonies. The sermon on this occasion will be by Archbishop Ryan, of Philadelphia, considered the first Catholic pulpit orator in the United States. There is no possibility that the cathedral can hold the people who will throng to it on this day. The big New York cathedral itself would be hard put, too, to do it.

On Monday, Nov. 11, the business of the congress will begin. William J. Onahan, of Chicago, who is chairman of the committee on organization of the congress, will call the meeting to order at 10 o'clock, and, after prayer, ex-Governor John Lee Carroll, of Maryland, who comes of the Carrolls of Carrollton, of whom Bishop John Carroll was one, will call for a permanent temporary president. After his address the other temporary officers will be named. Committees on credentials, rules, resolutions, permanent organization and future congresses will be appointed. Two special committees will be named. One will wait on Cardinal Gibbons. The other will wait on President Harrison, the desire being to carry the respects to the chief executive as well as the head of the Catholic church in the United States. As the afternoon session the reports of the committees on rules, credentials and permanent organization will be heard. The selection and installment of permanent officers will come next, and the rest of the session will be given up to the reading of papers upon the question of the day.

Cardinal Gibbons will open the second day's session with an address, and then the reading of papers, themselves, and the reports of minor committees will follow. In the afternoon the committee on resolutions and the committee appointed to wait upon President Harrison will make their reports. Then there will be further discussion of business general, when the congress will adjourn to go over to Washington to assist in the

REPUBLICAN TICKET.

FOR GOVERNOR
EDWARD BURD GRUBB,
OF BURLINGTON.

TRUTH COMES HOME TO THE MIND SO NATURALLY, THAT WHEN IT LEAVES IT FOR THE FIRST TIME, IT SEEMS AS THOUGH WE DID NO MORE THAN RECALL IT TO OUR MEMORY.—Fontenelle.

JOTTINGS.

—Days of 1889 past, 271; days to come, 94.

—Edsall is making a specialty of dress goods for a few days.

—There is no time in the year that a person should take more care of himself than now.

—The Essex County Country Club will visit Cranford Wednesday, Oct. 30th, at 2:30 p. m.

—Mr. Seeley Edsall will conduct the young men's meeting at the Y. M. C. A. rooms Monday evening.

—Oil of wintergreen mixed with an equal quantity of olive oil is recommended as a rheumatic pain-killer.

—The trial of Michael Watson for illegal liquor selling has been set down for next Monday morning at ten o'clock.

—A large hole in the road-bed on Front street near Grant avenue needs the attention of the Street Commissioner.

—Leal's foot-ball team have secured the ground of the Plainfield Crescent League for games every Saturday from October 1st.

—The Young People's Society of the First Presbyterian church held their monthly sociable in the church parlor last evening.

—A new trough to make connection with the Somerset street sewer was to-day placed under the temporary bridge crossing the race-way.

—The clothing factory of Schapelle & Co., closed last night and will not re-open until Tuesday. The firm is taking an inventory of their stock.

—Sidewalks on Front street west of Plainfield avenue have caved in for a distance of about fifteen feet and are a constant menace to pedestrians.

—It is estimated that the expense of maintaining the prisons of the United States amounts to $75,000,000 a year; but that is only a small part of the cost involved in the existence of criminal classes.

—Mr. M. H. Brandon's brown gelding "Wichita" won the 2:27 pacing race at the Monmouth county fair, at Freehold, yesterday. Time, 2:30 1-4, 2:34 1-2, 2:32 3-4. Mr. Brandon resides on East Front street, this city.

—There were 180 failures in the United States reported to Bradstreet's during the week, against 190 in the preceding week and 150, 166, 205 and 140 in the corresponding weeks of 1888, 1887, 1886 and 1885 respectively. The total number of failures in the United States January 1st to date is 8,306, against 7,330 in 1888.

—The Central Railroad of New Jersey, in connection with the Philadelphia and Reading Railroad, will soon open up a new route to the region around the Delaware Water Gap. The Lehigh and Susquehanna Railroad, which is operated by the Central railroad of New Jersey, and runs from Bethlehem to Wind Gap, Pa., will be connected with the North Pennsylvania Railroad at Bethlehem, and extended North to Stroudsburg.

—Over in Plainfield, the alleged "Colorado of the East," the tax collector is arresting delinquents who, after ten days' notice, do not pay their personal and poll tax. In a short time he has collected over $6,000 from delinquents, and will sell the property of those who refused to settle. Why can't Collector Wardell give some of the citizens of this city a dose of the above medicine?—New Brunswick Home News.

—The handsome new three-story brick building on North avenue, opposite the railroad station, built and owned by Mr. R. C. Mulford, the real estate agent, is about completed. It is a most substantial improvement in that section of the city, and is calculated to give a stranger upon entering the town for the first time a much better opinion than the structures which formerly existed there, and which Mr. Mulford, has had constructed. The building is 30 feet front, by 80 feet deep, and cost $8,000 for improvements. The property is estimated worth $15,000.

—The correctness of our statement a few days ago ascribing the cause of the recent failure of The New York Graphic to its advocacy of the "Free Trade" heresy during the Presidential campaign is disputed in our Free Trade cotemporary by a correspondent signing himself "Critique," who insists that the failure was because The Graphic swung over to the side of Protection of Home Industries, the policy by which the Republicans hurled the Democracy from power, with which it had been entrusted for the first time in a quarter of a century. After the campaign The Graphic reopened. The snake had fallen from its eyes, and then it professed to have experienced a change of heart. But it was too late. It had become so rotten while under the control of the National Democratic Committee, trying to boom Cleveland's Free Trade, that the Republicans had no use for it. The result was that it gave up the ghost and is no more.

IS WORSELY IN PLAINFIELD!

Serious Charges Against Him. Burglary and Bigamy Among Them. — Disappearing With a Paterson Girl.

Detective Edwin S. Worsley, who so greatly added in the endorsement two years ago of the firebugs, who had infested Plainfield for some twenty years previously, for which purpose he had been specially engaged by the Board of Underwriters of the insurance companies and by the city, is now himself a fugitive, is accused of many serious crimes, and is believed to be hiding in Plainfield, according to the following from the Paterson Call:

"Since Chief of Police Grual presented charges to the Board of Aldermen at their last meeting against Special Officer Worsley, the Broadway watchman, that officer has made himself scarce around Paterson. The police have been searching for him now for several weeks to serve on him a summons before the Police Commitee to undergo trial for attempted burglary and conduct unbecoming an officer.

Worsley was acting as night watchman for a number of residents along upper Broadway, and would have been there yet were it not for Officer Kilt who discovered that the pistol shots were fired from Worsley's revolver, the result of which appeared in the Call at the time. But Worsley has skipped. He is a married man and has two or three children, but this did not prevent him from making love to one of the servants in a prominent Broadway resident's home. Instead of patrolling the yards and examining the residence to see that all was secure, it is reported that Worsley would spend most of his time in the culinary department of one of his customers' houses sampling the cider and rehearsing the part of Romeo with the cook in the role of Juliet. Worsley claimed to have his heart's Juliet became so enamored with the midnight special that she has left her position and home to join her much married Romeo in Plainfield, where it is supposed he has gone. The news of the domestic's infatuation for the fellow with a speckled suit reached the ears of the brother and now he, too, has gone in search of the Plainfield detective so as to induce his foolish sister to return home."

PERSONAL.

Mr Charles Hyde, of East Front street, is having his house wired for electric lights.

Miss Nettie Whitlock, of Manning avenue, is slowly recovering from an attack of nervous prostration.

Miss Maud Cottrell has returned to her home on Cook avenue from a pleasant visit to the family of Mr. John P. Emmons, of Prospect place, North Plainfield. Her niece accompanied her.

George Kenman, the great Siberian traveler, and author of the very entertaining and much talked of articles on Siberia in the Century Magazine, will deliver a lecture in the Music Hall for the benefit of Muhlenberg Hospital, about the middle of November.

Run Over by a Beer Wagon.

A young son of Mr. Lawrence Bray, of West Third street, while playing on that thoroughfare at about seven o'clock Thursday evening was knocked down and run over by a beer wagon driven by Patrick McCann. The child received painful injuries about the lower limbs. It was at first thought that one of his legs was fractured, but upon closer examination it was ascertained that no bones were broken. McCann was drunk. He is the drunken rowdy who was committed last week for beating his father and mother and smashing their furniture.

Taken to State Prison.

James Dooling, William Hohnecke and Charles Haley, the men convicted of the robbery of the residences of Benjamin Darby and James R. English, of Elizabeth, were taken to State Prison yesterday to serve out the sentence of ten years each.

They were in the custody of Sheriff Glasby and Undersheriff's Samson and Krebs. The men are all young, scarcely more than boys. They seemed to enjoy the notoriety the proceedings gave to them. They were handcuffed together.

Somerset County Indictments.

The Somerset County Court yesterday disposed of the indictments presented by the Grand Jury. Christian Peterson pleaded guilty of larceny and was sentenced to thirty days in the county jail. Carl Smith pleaded not guilty to atrocious assault, W. H. Hall, pleaded not guilty to breaking and entering, and George Ewing pleaded not guilty of forgery.

Trial in the three latter cases was set down for October 7th.

Somerville Fair.

The 20th Annual Fair, of the Somerset County Agricultural Society, will be held on their grounds in Somerville on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, Oct. 8, 9 and 10, commencing Wednesday and Thursday, commencing at 12:30 p. m. each day. On the line of the Central R. R. of N. J., one hour's ride from New York.

—The county road bonds are of the denomination of $1,000 each, and bear interest at four per cent.

—P. E. Klusman & Co., have been awarded a contract to wire the Scott Printing Press Works for 100 horse power.

—Mr. W. D. Murray will teach a sample workers' training class at the Y. M. C. A. rooms Monday at 9 p. m. Classes will resume their regular sessions Sunday, Oct. 6th.

—The soldiers who attended the Second brigade re-union Thursday at Elizabeth looked like veterans indeed, there were many grey heads among them.—Elizabeth Journal.

—Sephyr Hose and Ladder Company will hold a special meeting Monday evening for the purpose of taking action on an invitation to participate in the parade of the Bayonne Fire Department.

—The young men's singing class will be taught by Mr. R. O. Embury at the Y. M. C. A., Monday at nine o'clock. Young men desiring further information are requested to apply at that time. Instructions free.

SUNDAY SERVICES.

What Will Be Done by Religious Societies To-Morrow.

[Fifteenth Sunday After Trinity.]

In Reform Hall to-morrow there will be the regular Sunday services at 9:15 a. m., 4, and 7:30 p. m. Rev. Asa Reed Dilla, pastor of the Park Avenue Baptist church, will occupy the platform in the evening. A sincere welcome awaits all who attend.

Special efforts are being made to make the W. C. T. U. four o'clock evangelistic meeting at 73 West Front street interesting and profitable. A special invitation to the numerous, brief, spirited remarks by Christian workers of all denominations. Everybody is heartily welcome.

Services will be held in Warren Mission chapel as follows: Sunday-school at 2:30 p. m. Service of song at 7:30. Devotional service at 8. Rev. George W. Hillman, of New York, who is a sweet singer and a fine speaker, will take part in both of the evening services.

First Church of Christ, of Plainfield, will meet at Reform Hall, Sunday at 10:30 a. m. Mr. Cleaver will (D. V.) speak on "The Memory Feast." At 12 m. "The Memory Feast." At 2:30 p. m. Bible school. Social meetings are held on the evenings of Wednesday and Friday.

State Christian Endeavor Convention.

The third annual state convention of the Christian Endeavor Societies of New Jersey will be held in the Tabernacle Congregational church at Jersey City, on Wednesday, Oct. 23d.

Three sessions will be held, beginning at 11 a. m., 3 and 7:30 p. m. Addresses will be delivered by the Rev. Charles F. Deems, D. D., of New York, Rev. W. R. Brokaw, of Spring-field, N. J., and others famous in the movement. Practical topics of society and local union work will be discussed. A chorus choir will conduct the singing. All the Y. P. S. C. E. in the State are expected to be represented by as many delegates as possible.

State Republican League.

W. L. Hazen, Secretary of the State Republican League of New Jersey, has sent out official notices to the club composing the League, that a convention of the several clubs now constituting the League, and such others as may prior to October 15th, perfect their membership therein, will be held at Temple Opera House, Elizabeth, on October 15th, at 12 o'clock, for the purpose of considering the manner in which the League can best promote the interests of the Republican party in the approaching canvass, and to elect the officers and delegates to represent New Jersey in the next meeting of the Republican League of the United States.

When to Expect Social Changes.

"Bismarck the girls and the boys will soon be married," says a writer. When mothers so educate their daughters as to demand more brains and less beer, more courage and less cigarette, more wisdom and less whiskey; in short, honor for honor, and purity for purity, we can expect a social revolution for the better. When these qualifications shall be required, in deed as earnest, and when the clear mind and strong muscles shall supplant the enervated body and muddled intellect, our boys and young men will see things in their true light and begin to climb to a higher plane.

Competitor Barton's Revenge.

Thomas Barton, a compositor employed until recently in the office of the Roselle Record, broke into the office of the newspaper Thursday night, piled all the type, knocked down the forms, upset the press and created general demoralization. The proprietor, Dr. J. P. Davis, had Barton arrested for breaking and entering. Barton declared that Davis owed him money which he was tired of calling on him for, and in a fit of anger he determined to have revenge. He was committed to the Union County jail at Elizabeth in default of $500 bail.

BITS OF BASE-BALL NEWS.

Information of Interest to Lovers of the Game.

The Stars of this city will play the Giants of Washington, N. J., on the grounds of the Plainfield Crescent League next Saturday afternoon, providing the weather will permit.

* * *

The Third Class Ball Club of the Plainfield High school defeated the Fourth Class team on the grounds of the Plainfield Crescent League yesterday afternoon by a score of 13 to 10. The game was closely contested one and was very interesting. The Third Class team played an almost errorless game.

The following players composed the teams:

Third Class—Van Alstyne, c. and ss; Lockrie, p. and c.; Anglemun, 2b. and p.; V. Rockwell, 1b.; J. Sutphen, s. s.; Daboll, 3b.; E. Vail, l. f.; Loisseaux, c. f.; Jenkins, r. f.

Fourth Class—Lang, c. s. s.; Flagg, p. and c.; Van Name, c. f. and p.; Elliott, 1b.; Fritts, 2b.; A. Sorrell, 3b.; Rockefellow, l. f.; Sorrell, c. f.; Conant, r. f.

To Help an Afflicted Child.

Florence Curtis, age seven, sends us a beautiful book, entitled "Play Days", and Louise Curtis, age five, sends us a box of building blocks, for little Willie Hamilton, of Union Village, who is now a helpless cripple from injuries received two years ago, by falling from a wagon. The sympathetic children are daughters of Mrs. Thomas Curtis, of 101 Park avenue. For the following account we are indebted to the Plainfield Daily Press, which has started a fund of contributions for the unfortunate little fellow:

"About two years ago little Willie Hamilton, living near Union Village, a few miles from this city, while playing in a spring wagon with his younger sister, lost his balance and fell to the ground, striking on his back. His sister, the Rev. W. Sorohtz's daughter, was very early in the morning in order to be at his work at the paper mills, three miles away, and had driven the horse. The accident, accident, no one knew of the accident and Willie did not say anything about it.

The following day Willie's father noticed that Willie was not so lively as usual, and after questioning him, sent the child to bed—for Willie promised his little sister not to, as they were forbidden to go on the wagon—he confessed how he had fallen off the wagon. Surgical aid was then summoned, but of no avail.

Spinal disease set in, and little Willie has not been able to walk since. His father is away all day at work at present on the railroad; his little sister is at school; and his older sister, who keeps house, must needs go to the village store frequently for groceries. So the little Willie, while bravely trying to be patient, is often left alone with nothing to amuse him or to while away the tedious hours."

Postmaster Force, who is a most frequent visitor at Demler's Hotel, on the mountain, had the matter brought to his notice, during a special call, and with the suggestion made to try and secure the cripple some of the cast off toys of other less unfortunate children. The result is that the child will have more toys than he knows what to do with, although even that will probably be better than no toys at all. Many kind-hearted mothers will have been aroused will feel better in the conscious-ness of having contributed toward the relief of the sufferer. Such impulses encouraged in children, make them grow up less selfish, and become better men and women.

Real Estate Transfers.

Following are the transfers of real estate as recorded in the Somerset county Clerk's office for the present month. It will be noticed that a large proportion of them are on property in the vicinity of Bound Brook, which is another straw indicating the activity of Bound Brook's boom:

| | |
|---|---|
| William H. and Virginia Brokaw to Conrad Rezl, lot of land in Warren township | $250 |
| Daniel Corey to Mary Adams, land in North Plainfield | 150 |
| John D. Voorhees to Susan L. Ramsey, property in Bound Brook | 1,600 |
| Susan L. and Henry K. Ramsey to Harry K. Ramsey, same property | 1,600 |
| Gertrude F. and W. Tunnell White to Abraham Quick, property in Bloomingdale | 3,000 |
| C. M. Kling to Catherine M. King, half of lot, Somerville Cemetery | 30 |
| A. A. Clark et ux. to J. H. Beebe, lot in Somerville | 1,800 |
| O. B. Reynolds to Estelle P. and H. H. Brokaw, lot on corner of High street and Mountain avenue, Bound Brook | 1 |
| Gertrude S. F. and P. D. Whitehead to Peter Koehler, Jr., lot in Bloomington | 300 |
| Henry Mallet to Adele F. Mallet, lot in Bound Brook | 1,250 |
| Eunice L. Hoyt to Marion DuPour, 44 acres in Franklin | 4,000 |
| Bound Brook Savings Bank to Mary Ann O'Shea, lot in Raritan | 1,600 |
| Wm. H. Hoagland to Henry Brinkley, lot in Bound Brook | 1,400 |

Hope Never Dies.

[From All the Year Round.]

The truth is that a man can better afford to sacrifice his dinner daily for a year than live without hope for a week. And nature has recognized that this is so. When a person is more common in our experience that the simple and familiar "I hope"? Nor is there any human being, however forlorn in material possessions or however afflicted, who was not originally endowed with this capacity of hope. Go to the hospitals, ye rich of empty purse; go where only the solid despair in many suppose it were easy to find despair in many instances, and the doctor will whisper to you that this or that invalid is doomed, and that he cannot, by all the evidence of human foresight and experience, live one day more. "Well, how are you?" you say to the sick man, and perhaps you cannot help betraying in your tone of voice, you feel for him, thus hovering but seven two worlds, about one of which alone, the one he is leaving, you are able to assure yourself that you know anything decisive. "Oh, much better," he replies, with strong hope in his voice and his eyes. "I think I shall soon be well."

Is it so be Grub, or Drink?

[Springfield (Mass.) Union.]

The Democratic funny men of New York and New Jersey are finding great arguments against the Republican party in New Jersey in well-worn puns on the names of General E. Burd Grubb, the Republican candidate for Governor. It might be retorted that the Democratic party in New Jersey is entirely controlled by its vilest Abbettites.

Lemonade is Good.

Lemonade made from the juice of the lemon is one of the best and safest drinks for any person, whether in good health or not. It is suitable for all stomach disease, gravel, liver complaint, inflammation of the bowels and fevers. It is a specific against worms and all kinds of complaints. The pippin crushed may be used with sugar and water and taken as a drink. Lemon juice is the best anti-scorbutic remedy known. It not only cures the disease, but prevents it. Sailors make use of it for the latter purpose. We advise every one to rub their gums with lemon juice to keep them in a healthy condition. The hands and nails are also kept clean, white, soft and supple by the daily use of lemon instead of soap. It also prevents chilblains. Lemon is used in intermittent fever, mixed with strong, hot, black coffee, without sugar. Neuralgia, it is said, may be cured by rubbing the part affected with a cut lemon. It is valuable also to cure warts. It will remove dandruff by rubbing the roots of hair with it. It will alleviate and finally cure coughs and colds and heal diseased lungs, if taken hot on going to bed at night. Its uses are manifold, and the more we employ it internally the better we shall find ourselves. A doctor-in-law is trying it experimentally in malarial fevers with great success, and thinks that it will in time supersede quinine.—Rehoboth Herald.

Improper Night-Wear the Cause of Colds.

[From the Detroit Tribune.]

The conventional notions of airy cotton night robe is in no small degree responsible for the prevalence of Winter colds. Most people sit during the evening in a room heated to 75 degrees or upward.5 They retire to a room perhaps at 60 degrees, and throw off most of their warm garments, put on an airy cotton night robe, get between chilly sheets, shiver until they give out sufficient warmth from their bodies to change the temperature. This sudden change from hot to cold is radically wrong, and before morning most of the feet will show to any sensible person the absurdity of such a custom. Good warm night garments are as essential to good health and comfort as are warm day clothes. Stronger night clothes and fewer bed clothes would be better for both children and adults. Woolen nightclothes allow the body to maintain a normal temperature, which is of the greatest importance. In nearly all foreign countries, when a change of bed clothes is made at night, wool or a mixture of silk and linen or cotton is worn. The backwoodsmen lies down in his woolen blankets and defies the elements.

Jersey Genius.

The following patents were granted to Jerseymen during the past week:

J. Allan, Hoboken, packing.
H. Barker, Newark, plate-washing frame.
J. W. Barnes, Newark, type-writing machine.
A. J. Corcoran, Jersey City, windmill.

What They Read.

An individual who travels much by steam cars and street cars has amused himself by observing what people read on a journey. In respect to their reading propensities, he divides the human race into three classes—girls, men and boys.

Men read newspapers. Men are the largest class both of travelers and readers. Whatever else they are ignorant of, they know what is going on in the world, and can talk about it. The half hour's ride in the street car in the morning is utilized to glance over the telegraphic dispatches, from a baseball game to a religious convention. At evening, going home, the man unfolds his newspaper again, either an evening journal or, if he is a poor working man, the half read one of the morning. His interest takes in the world.

Boys read the dime story papers up to the age of 15 or 16. Then they too take to the newspaper. In all his observations the traveler does not remember to have seen more than two men reading novels.

Girls, on the contrary, read novels universally, and the trashier they are the more common. Novel reading and gum chewing seem somehow to go together. They are a pair, as in the average girl's life. Sometimes a girl has a story paper, but generally it is a novel with a paper back. "That's why women never know anything," said the stony hearted observer. "If I ever see a girl perusing the news columns of a journal, I know at once she is a girl of brains and intelligence. But this is rare. I judge the race by what it reads."

"How about old ladies?"

"Old ladies don't usually read much of anything at all."

The Power of Switzerland.

It would not be so easy for Germany to crush the Swiss as might be expected. The Italian general, Corte, says their virile and patriotic education and their national training in the use of the rifle would make them a formidable enemy. Further:

In my opinion the Swiss, if they are united and prepared, can maintain in the upper portion of their country. And it must not be forgotten that in this portion they dominate the Rhone, the Rhine and the Inn. If Germany should attack, she would have Switzerland with it could easily threaten Lyons and turn the defensive works recently erected on the Franco-German line with the Vosges. But, on the other hand, a French army that could count upon the aid of the Swiss would be able from the Jura to the Cevennes to take all the defenses of the Germans on the borders of the Rhine and threaten the upper valley of the Danube. It would also fall upon Italy by the routes of Simplon, Saint-Gothard and the Grisons.

Even if Germany should attack Switzerland, the Swiss could hold themselves secure in their mountains in any case long enough for the French army to advance to their assistance. It is highly extremely unwise for Bismarck to antagonize the Swiss. He says:

It is beyond a doubt that in the present state of Europe, with the triple alliance on the one hand and the tacit or avowed sympathy of Great Britain and Russia on the other, this military action of Switzerland must exercise a preponderant influence upon the result of the war in case the belligerents should be compelled to abandon its neutrality.

That was a melancholy story of the suicide by hanging of a man who had once been a respected and widely known insane asylum superintendent. He had been in the company of lunatics so long that their vagaries finally fastened themselves upon him, and he too became insane. Years of rest and quiet failed to cure him. He hanged himself while out of his mind. It is by no means uncommon for attendants and keepers who have been about the insane for many years to become at last as crazy as those they take care of, and end their days in the very asylums where they have kept watch and ward over others. They seem somehow at length to lose the fine discrimination between the normal and abnormal manifestations of the human mind, and this is the effect of constant association with lunatics. In one sense, there is a deadly contagion in insanity.

The hue and cry about foreign vessels carrying nearly all the freight and passengers that leave our shores does not amount to much after all. Much American money is represented in the great steamships, although they do fly foreign flags. The worst feature of it is that their crews and officers are almost wholly foreigners, and American lads this can rarely learn seamanship and go to sea. Even in our coasting trade the crews and laborers are largely foreigners. Many Scandinavians are found among them, descendants of the Vikings. It must be remembered, however, on the other hand, that few native Americans would work for the pay that is given to steamer crews.

The contrast between the quick disposal of the Maybrick poisoning case in the courts of justice in England and the laggard and tortuous course of the Cronin murder trial in the United States is instructive to Americans, if not pleasing.

After long depression in prices indications are that they are preparing to go skyward. Tis ever thus. First a boom, then a panic, then long, dreary depression, then another boom, and so on to the world's end.

ROTTERDAM'S STRIKERS

Collisions Between Dock Men and Police.

STREET MEETINGS FORBIDDEN.

Several Strikers Slightly Injured—John Burns Has Gone to Their Assistance. London Views of the Trouble—Other Live Happenings from Abroad.

ROTTERDAM, Sept. 28.—The burgomaster has issued a proclamation prohibiting meetings of the strikers in the streets. There have been some collisions between the strikers and the police. A number of the former were slightly injured. The strike is spreading rapidly and affecting other branches of business. The employes of several large cigar manufactories joined the strikers, and headed by the local Socialist leaders and accompanied by bands of music, marched in procession through the streets. On one of the docks the strikers attempted to prevent the men from continuing their work, but the police interfered and drove the strikers away. Several ship owners have already decided to grant the strikers' demands for an increase of 25 per cent. in wages and a corresponding advance for over time.

London Views of the Strike.

LONDON, Sept. 28.—The course of the dockers' strike at Rotterdam is being watched here with great interest. The Socialists and labor agitators are confident that the causes which led to the success of the London dockers' strike will bring victory to their Dutch brethren as well. Others are delighted at this point. It is true that the Rotterdam strikers have Burns, but they have not Cardinal Manning as yet, and it is doubtful whether as many city officials and influential citizens will be found sympathizing with the Rotterdam strikers, as was the case in regard to the London strikers.

Docks Should Be Owned by the Public.

The irritation caused in commercial circles by this new strike gives great strength to the arguments of those who hold that the docks of every great city ought to be owned by the public and administered at actual cost for the common benefit. If strikes of laborers occur under such a system there would be no room for contention as to where the blame for the trouble lies, in the gins of meager profits on the part of the dock companies being eliminated from consideration. The increased value of dock facilities which comes from growth of commerce would, too, be then a public benefit, instead of accruing to private individuals.

Germany and America's Friendship.

BERLIN, Sept. 28.—The Tageblatt says that the emperor's reply to Minister Phelps will find a wide echo throughout Germany and the United States, unless the infringes upon his paternal rights.

Troops to Guard the Czar.

ST. PETERSBURG, Sept. 28.—Fifty thousand troops have been detailed to occupy the line of the railway over which the czar will pass if he returns direct from Berlin.

Patriarchs Militant Meet.

BINGHAMTON, N. Y., Sept. 28.—The unfavorable weather has somewhat marred the success of the annual encampment of the Patriarchs Militant and only about two-thirds of the men who had been told off took the parade. Canton Buffalo of Buffalo gave an exhibition drill in the state armory. Their maneuvers were frequently applauded. At the request of Judge Frank Bowen a handsome silk banner was presented by Hon. Elliott Danforth to Canton Danforth of Syracuse. Addresses were made by the donor and Judge Bowen, and the gift was accepted by Hon. O. W. Chapman of Canajoharie. In the afternoon there was an exhibition drill, after which a review and the degree of chivalry was conferred on Col. Noble P. Martin, of Utica; Deputy State Treasurer Danforth, of Bainbridge; Maj. W. H. Mosher, of this city, and five others not in the New York department. The next annual encampment will probably be held in Montreal.

The New Orleans Frauds.

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 28.—Attorney General Rogers has made official demand upon the following named parties for the amounts stated below and all of which are due to them by State Treasurer E. A. Burke out of the interest of 1880, '81, '82 for alleged fraudulent issues of bonds: Hon. Wm. Pinlps, $5,220; Maurice J. Hart, $20,760, and Alfred Jardet, $810. Mr. Jardet at once sent the amount claimed from him. The attorney general is in receipt of letters from the other parties.

Sarcastic at Uncle Sam's Expense.

LONDON, Sept. 28.—The Berlin press is inclined to sarcasm as well as irritation over the action of Mr. Edwards, the American consul, in regard to which particulars have been sent by cable. One of the leading journals says: "The city of Berlin declines to become a nursery wherein stripling statesmen of the United States may nurture their peculiar qualities which are considered essential to political eminence in that country."

"Black Bart" Did Not Escape.

CHICAGO, Sept. 28.—A special dispatch tonight to The Herald from Denomer, Mich., says the reported escape of "Black Bart" with other prisoners is utterly untrue. In addition to the jail being heavily guarded there are several bull dogs about the jail yard and it would be impossible for any one to get away.

Valuable "Old Rags."

BOSTON, Sept. 28.—The remaining eight bags of "old rags" which came from the state reformatory were examined by the authorities. They contained 65 pairs of trousers, 94 coats, 129 vests, 57 caps and 11 pairs of gaiters, besides a quantity of aprons and towels.

A Non-Combatant Shot.

TRENTON, Sept. 28.—A shooting during a fight between some Italian quarrymen, James Lamber, a spectator, was shot and probably fatally wounded by one of the fighters, who fled and is at once of the countrymen. No arrests have yet been made.

A Postal Clerk Falls Dead.

NEW YORK, Sept. 28.—Francis Buckley, aged 46, head clerk of the Pennsylvania news paper department in the New York postoffice, fell dead of heart disease while at work in the office.

A Chicago Lumber Dealer Assigns.

CHICAGO, Sept. 28.—Robert Larkin, a lumber dealer, has assigned. The liabilities are $95,000 and the assets about the same.

COLORED CHRISTIANS PROTEST.

Their Belief in the Catholicity of the Episcopalian Church Shown.

NEW YORK, Sept. 28.—The following memorial was framed at the session of the colored Episcopalians, to be presented at the general conference of the United States next week:

"We would respectfully, yet most earnestly, represent to your honorable body that we, the clergy and laity engaged in the work of the church among colored people, have been trained in the Protestant Episcopal church or have entered that communion with the understanding, first, that it was a branch of God of the holy church, bringing to us all the verities of Christ's religion and animated by his spirit; second, that the church knew no difference of race or condition; third, that it is the doctrine of this church that its priesthood is one—that it is not her intention to discriminate in her legislative capacity upon the sole grounds of color; fourth, that no action has been taken in some parts of the church which has either already deprived or will deprive the colored people of rights which were theirs at first sight by virtue of the apostolic ordinance, by instituting a movement looking to a separate organization of colored people. In consequence of this action the confidence of many among us and among colored people generally has been greatly shaken respecting the reality of the church's catholicity and of her practical interest in the spiritual welfare of the colored people.

"In view of the foregoing facts we ask, 'What is the position of colored men in the church?' Is it to be accepted as it now obtrudes taught by the church that, when men have once been admitted into the sacred ministry of communion of the church a new relation should be made in the civil and religious rights of the colored man which should not be made in those of a white man? We ask the general conference to give us the right answer to these queries to this, our earnest and almost despairing inquiry."

A committee consisting of Revs. W. V. Tunnell, of Brooklyn; George F. Bragg, of Norfolk; Francis L. Cardozo, of Florida; Bishop, of New York, and Thomas H. Cain, of Galveston, was appointed to present the memorial.

A motion to hold triennial conferences instead of annual was lost.

A Bogus Patent Company.

JACKSON, Mich., Sept. 28.—Thomas J. Smith, living near Jackson, owns a patent on a wire fence machine. Some time ago he received a letter from the Globe Patent company, of San Francisco, offering him a big price for the right to sell the machine on the Pacific coast, and requesting that Smith send $25 to pay for having the case and papers examined at Washington. Smith sent the money and the papers, but United States Express Agent Brown, thinking all was not right, instituted the San Francisco agent of his company to investigate. The result was the arrest of a gang of swindlers, the "Globe Patent company" proving to be a bogus concern that has been victimizing farmers throughout the United States by taking from them large sums of money for services not rendered. Smith will probably be summoned to California to appear against the members of the alleged company, who have been arrested.

Indians for Vermont.

RALEIGH, N. C., Sept. 28.—Some days ago Secretary of War Proctor wrote Governor Fowle in regard to the proposed removal of Geronimo and his band of Indians from Mount Vernon barracks, Alabama, to western North Carolina. Today Governor Fowle received a letter, in which he suggests that the Indians be colonized in Vermont—certain portions of that state being now abandoned by the white population. The governor sincerely thinks Vermont the happier spot could be chosen for his purpose.

Alleged Violators of Postal Laws.

NORWICH, Conn., Sept. 28.—James T. Goodrich, ex-postmaster at Norwichtown, was before United States Commissioner Tenney, charged with violation of the postal laws in the Fanning matter, and was held under $200 bonds to appear Monday for examination. James L. Downer, formerly postmaster at Columbia, has been held in $500 bonds by United States Commissioner Brandegee, of New London, charged with similar violation of the law.

Returned to Parliament.

LONDON, Sept. 28.—The election in the Sleaford division of Lincolnshire, made necessary by the appointment of the late member, Right Hon. Henry Chaplin, to the office of minister of agriculture, took place here. Mr. Chaplin was returned to the seat by a vote of 4,296 to 3,078 received by his Gladstonian opponent, Mr. Cecil Otter. In the last election Mr. Chaplin was returned unopposed.

A Large Industry for Colebrook.

LEBANON, Pa., Sept. 28.—A number of capitalists from Philadelphia took a special train and proceeded to Colebrook, where they inspected the Coleman furnaces. A company has been organized with a capital of $1,000,000 for the manufacture of steel rails. The Bessemer and telephone wires and insulated taps under a new process. It is understood that an extensive plant will be erected at Colebrook. Work to be commenced next week.

Westinghouse Works Scorched.

PITTSBURG, Sept. 28.—The three story building of the Westinghouse Electric Light works was partly burned. The fire started on the third floor and burned through the fourth and into the floors, used as a tin shop and lamp socket factory respectively. The origin of the fire is unknown. Loss, $60,000. Fully covered by insurance.

He Blew Out the Gas.

HUNTINGTON, Pa., Sept. 28.—W. B. Layton, aged 75, of Dupont, O., who stopped at the Brunswick hotel, this city, on his way to Fort Everett, Pa., was found dead in his room, having been suffocated by gas. He is supposed to have blown out the light instead of turning the gas off.

American Cattle for Europe.

LONDON, Sept. 28.—The first consignment of cattle for the new market in Hamburg, and contracts have been made for the importation of 5,000 head more during October. The success of the plan for shipments to interior cities of the continent is no longer doubtful.

Mail Bags Stolen.

ALLIANCE, O., Sept. 28.—Several mail bags were stolen at Salem depot as they were thrown off of the Wheeling express. No clew as yet. Dress is thought to be the motive of the robbery. The contents of a number of registered letters. United States inspectors are investigating.

Chinese Going Home.

RICHMOND, Va., Sept. 28.—Fifteen Chinese merchants and as many laborers from Boston passed through here en route for China. They refused to partake of the custom house here to return, good for one year.

The Elections in Servia.

BELGRADE, Sept. 28.—The returns thus far received of the elections for members of the skupchtina show that twenty Radicals and eleven Liberals have been elected.

A WRECK ON THE CENTRAL

Twenty-five Persons Are Reported Killed.

FOUR BODIES ALREADY FOUND.

Two Sections of the St. Louis Limited Come Together with a Terrific Crash Near Palatine Bridge—Sleeping Cars Telescoped and Crushed.

CANAJOHARIE, N. Y., Sept. 28.—A serious accident occurred on the New York Central road at 11:40 p. m., two miles east of Palatine bridge. The first section of the St. Louis express, which left New York at 6 o'clock, had broken down, an accident having happened to the engine coupling. When the second section, which was composed of eight vestibule sleeping coaches, drawn by the sixty ton engine, No. 683, in charge of William Horth, and running at the rate of thirty miles an hour, dashed into it.

Two Dead Bodies Found and Killed.

Four dead bodies have already been taken from one of the Pullman coaches and it is said the whole number of dead may reach twenty-five.

The first section was made up of engine 714, engineer Wood; mail, Conductor Abel, a baggage, mail and express car, three passenger coaches, which were packed with people, one Wagner sleeper and two private coaches. The rear private coach, the Kankakee, belonged the Wagner car of the first section to half its distance. The only damage done to the day cars was in the smashing of windows and lamps.

After the crash the second section with driver from the first section, but left a hole in the rear section of the Kankakee big enough to place a boiler in. The first, third and fourth tracks were littered with wreckage.

"Bad Business, Bad Business."

Just how the accident happened at this hour is not determined. Conductor Abel says his rear brakeman was sent back, but Conductor Smith, who is in charge of the train, has said that he did not see him, and the first he saw were the lights of the train. Horth is a bad way. He had a pillow under his head, and his face was ghastly white. Some kind hands had placed a cushion under his legs and back. He was suffering great agony and could only mutter: "This is bad business, bad business."

Saved by the Heavy Sleepers.

The second engine, No. 683, one of the latest and heaviest engines on the road, was thrown from the track by Wagner sleeping and private coaches that had sustained the shock and saved those three passenger coaches filled with men, women and children from destruction.

Six Wounded People Rescued.

There was not a surgeon or a doctor on the train, and it was with the greatest difficulty that whisky and brandy were procured for the wounded. It was not till a large bonfire was built on the north side of the track that a realizing sense of the disaster was obtained. Six wounded passengers, including one lady, had been taken from the Wagner sleeping car.

Assistance from Palatine Bridge.

The writer hurried to Palatine Bridge, and went from house to house in the morning wagons, who were hurried to the front as rapidly as vehicles could take them.

All trains east and west, freight and passenger, were held at Palatine. Within half an hour every doctor had gone forward, and assistance had been telegraphed to from Fonda and Little Falls. It was just by a miracle that the disaster was not rendered tenfold more terrible.

Another Narrow Escape.

Within five minutes after the crash the most expensive tourist train along on the fourth track at the rate of thirty miles an hour. It was stopped just in time else it would have dashed into the debris of the wreck.

The second Atlantic express, due in New York at 7:30 in the morning, was also halted at the station just as it was pulling out.

Red Nosed Mike's Betrayer Released.

WILKESBARRE, Sept. 28.—The last act in the mountain murders of Oct. 19, 1888, when Paymaster McGee and Hugh Flanagan were killed by "Red Nosed" Mike and his gang, has just come to a close, in the release of Francisco Chirincko, the Philadelphia detective, from jail. Chirincko was hired to get the murderers and handled some of the money taken from the paymaster after the murder. He was brought here last February and indicted as an accessory after the fact. He was used as a witness in the trial of "Red Nosed" Mike and his testimony aided in sending that rascal to the gallows. Robert J. Linden, chief of the Philadelphia Pinkerton force, came here in the morning and told the district attorney that he had no hope of convicting Chirincko and Villa, extradited. They were arrested in Italy, but the Italian government refused to give them up, and there is now no hope that they will ever be tried for the murder of McGee and Flanagan. Chirincko was therefore discharged, and is nothing at home in Philadelphia.

The Cigarmakers.

NEW YORK, Sept. 28.—At the session of the Cigarmakers' International convention, an amendment to the constitution was adopted providing that the salary of the president of the international shall be $1,800 per year. Its own working hours, provided they do not exceed forty-eight hours per week. An amendment providing that the unions of New York city, Brooklyn, Jersey City, Hoboken and Guttenburg shall constitute the district of New York, which district shall be entitled to one delegate to the national conventions for each 100 members, was discussed.

Gen. Perrine's Funeral.

TRENTON, Sept. 28.—The funeral of Quartermaster General Lewis Perrine occurred at 12:30 p. m. from his late residence on East State street. There was no military display. The funeral was largely attended and many distinguished persons were present. The remains were adorned in the uniform denoting his rank in the National Guard. After the funeral service the procession marched to Riverview cemetery, where the remains were interred.

Kansas Has a Candidate.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 28.—Private Daisell announces that he has information that Gen. Brown will succeed Commissioner Tanner. There is another candidate, however, who is now more than a possibility. This is A. R. Campbell, of Topeka, Kan. He has been a delegate to numerous conventions of the G. A. R., and has been commander of the department of Kansas. Under Governor Martin he was adjutant general of that state.

New Haven's New Collector.

NEW HAVEN, Sept. 28.—Secretary of the Treasury Windom has notified A. H. Kellam, of this city, of his appointment as collector of customs for the port of New Haven, the appointment to take place on Oct. 1. There has been a sharp contest for the collectorship between Kellam and Gen. Pierpont, the deputy commander of the G. A. R., and much interest has been taken in the matter by Republicans generally.

To Stop Oppression in Crete.

LONDON, Sept. 28.—There is now good reason to believe that one or two, if not all, of the powers will interpose objections to Turkey's flagrant violation of the treaty and compel a sweeping change in the administration of public affairs in that unhappy island. This course will be taken ostensibly because a community of alleged Christians are being persecuted by the officials of a Mussulman government.

Burned His Sister to Death.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Sept. 28.—A 5-year-old son of Mrs. Siler, left alone with the children while the mother was out, set fire to his little sister's clothing and held burning paper to her face, causing her death. Afterward, while the house was crowded with neighbors attracted by the screams, he attempted to set fire to the clothing of a little girl, and was only prevented by force.

A Car Wrecks a Train.

BELLEFONTE, Pa., Sept. 28.—A train on the Lewisburg and Tyrone railroad struck a cow and was thrown from the track about two miles from this city. The engine and baggage car were carried down an embankment. Two persons were severely hurt, and nearly all those on the train were bruised and battered.

Cocoa
Is Absolutely Pure,
and It is Soluble.
To increase the solubility of the powdered cocoa, various expedients are employed, most of them being based upon the action of some alkali, potash, soda or even ammonia. In Baker's Breakfast Cocoa, which is free from chemical processes, can usually be recognized at once by the distinct alkaline reaction of the infusion in water.
W. Baker & Co.'s Breakfast Cocoa is manufactured from the first steps to the last by perfect mechanical processes, no chemical being employed in its preparation, and by reason of the ingenious of these mechanical processes the greatest degree of fineness is secured without the sacrifice of the attractive and beautiful red color which is characteristic of an absolutely pure and natural cocoa.

THE ARIZONA KICKER.

A Few Sharp Remarks from an Honored Contemporary.

DUSTY BLAZES HIRE.—Last Tuesday night the city treasurer of this town jumped out with all the public moneys he could lay hands on. The aggregate sum was only $63, but no one should blame him for skipping out with that small sum. It was all he could get, and he had become so disgusted at having to associate with the members of the common council that he would probably have gone with $25.

FOX AHEAD.—Alderman O'Grady didn't take our remarks of last week in the right spirit. We called him a thief, liar and drunkard, and instead of admitting the charges like a gentleman he indulges in threats of personal violence. Come on, Mr. O'Grady! We'll lay and make it lively for you.

And, by the way, while on this subject, we feel to observe that of all the corrupt, dishonest, knavish, drunken public bodies ever convened in a room together our town council caps the climax. Next week we shall begin a war of extermination on these vipers, and if the fur don't fly it won't be our fault.

IT CAN'T BE DONE NOW.—For a year or more after we struck this town we could be kicked and cuffed with perfect impunity, even by a low down Indian. We were laughed down, hooted up and down the street, and had our nose pulled out of shape two or three times per week, and we never thought of resisting. We were a tenderfoot of the tenderfoodest sort, and it was a question whether we should pull through or not.

Let some one attempt to tweak our nose today! The offer of a hundred dollars in cash wouldn't tempt a man in town to try it on. We are no longer a tenderfoot. The man who sets out to "lift" us now has got to beat chain lightning. Every chap who has pied into us for the last ten months has had to be carried off on a shutter, and two of them, as the town records show, sleep peacefully among the daisies.

IT MELTED US.—It is well known all over town we have held a mortgage for the last three months on the entire outfit of our contemporary. It owners everything but his own worthless carcass, and can be foreclosed any minute. This being the case, we are often asked why we don't take possession when that luckless son journalism refers to us in such endearing terms as "Jackass, "liar," "hypocrite," and so forth.

We thought over one day last week calculating to turn him out on the sand hills, but he fell to weeping and melted us. While it seems hard for a man to be abused by his own property, we haven't the heart to kick away the barrel. And, besides, he runs such an abject apology for a weekly newspaper that The Kicker receives hosts of compliments by comparison. We are not going to be mean with him—not unless he quits abusing us and tries to publish a good paper.

A NEW DEPARTMENT.—As will be noticed by all our subscribers we add a new department to The Kicker this week—that of forecasting the weather. We have arranged a signal office on the roof of our own building and shall take observations hourly. We have also purchased a map of the United States and have arranged a programme by which we expect nine-tenths of our prophecies to be verified. That has been a long felt want in this locality and the enterprise of The Kicker will no doubt be duly appreciated.

We shall start out at a slow pace and do no rushing until the harness fits well. Our first prediction:—"Clearer; warmer; cloudy; cool; may rain and may not"—is a sort of a feeler, and we do not advise any of our readers to give up a fishing excursion or a Sunday school picnic on account of it. We hope in time to get used to the hang of the thing, and after we have we guarantee to beat the government out of sight or wear one shirt all winter.—Detroit Free Press.

Nothing More Obvious.

Attorney (chagrined)—I confess, your honor, this juror seems to meet all the legal requirements, and as to peremptory challenges are now exhausted we shall be reluctantly compelled to accept——

[Defendant leans over and whispers something in attorney's ear.]

Attorney (to juror)—One moment, sir. Have you not, within the last six months, paid off $2,000 of old debts, dollar for dollar, that were outlawed years ago and that you were not legally bound to pay?

Juror—I have.

Attorney (triumphantly)—I challenge him for cause, your honor. He is insane.—Chicago Tribune.

A Neat Translation.

The late Leigh Lewis met an acquaintance who had recently lost his teeth, and whose utterances, in consequence, were almost unintelligible. "I was Greek to me," remarked Odell, as the man left. "Greek?" replied Leigh; "gum arabic, I should call it."—Pittsburg Bulletin.

Mutual Interrogatories.

"William," said she, severely, "how many more times are you going to ask me to marry you?"

"Clara," said he, with equal sternness, "how much longer are you going to persist in refusing me?"—Merchant Traveler.

Drew the Line.

"Yes," said the sheriff, "I can do almost anything without compunction, but as for hanging—well, I draw the line at that." And he was surprised when some one said that they didn't see how he could do any other way.—Lawrence American.

Prudent.

Mrs. Simkins (the landlady)—Mr. Dashaway, let me help you to a little more chicken.

Dashaway—Thank you, madame, but my doctor has ordered me not to overwork myself.—New York Sun.

PHYSIOLOGY AND HYGIENE

Some Facts in Regard to Rabies and Its Relation Against It.

There is annually more or less excitement in large communities, during the heated term, over the real or supposed cases of dogs, and not infrequently a panic arises on account of some ugly bite inflicted by a suspicious animal. Dr John Crowell, bills in Science News that, as a rule, the terrible disease of rabies shows itself in man at a period of between fort and sixty days after the reception of the bite of an infected animal. The most prominent symptoms connected with the nervous system, which consist in a reflex action, especially of those nerves which control the power of swallowing, and respiration. The recourse of the frightful spasms at every attempt at deglutition is the most awful symptom of the disease, and this is so great that the sight of any liquid, or even the impulse of a current of cold air, is sufficient to induce the spasm.

The term "hydrophobia" is the cause of much needless confusion, for hydrophobia (fear of water) is one of itself constitute rabies, for this may exist without hydrophobia. The hydrophobia is apparently due to an affection of the general nervous system, for the hydrophobic dread is present before the patient attempts to drink, and it may be provoked by a variety of causes, like a bright light, or the sudden touch of some unexpected object, or the movements of the attendants, or, more especially, by the impression produced by the passage of a draught of air. The last symptom is considered one of the most important symptoms of true rabies, as it is never absent in the real disease, and seldom present in any of the other affections which are accompanied by symptoms of deglutition. The whole nervous system is in a state of super-excitation, and the terror from the fear of attack often brings on the paroxysm with increased violence. Visions, delusions, mania, fury, and hallucinations of the special senses follow each other with fearful certainty. The result is invariably fatal, and usually occurs within three days after the appearance of the disease.

According to Dr. Crowell, the general opinion of scientific men all over the world is that the inoculation treatment of M. Pasteur, the French savant, is not only an absolute protection to the patient against the outbreak of the rabic disease, but that it is free from any serious effects to the person inoculated.

An Unfounded and Dangerous Fiction.

The American Analyst suggested that it would be an exciting thing if physicians "could invent some other name than heart failure for about all the deaths which occur nowadays." It finds it worthless for any one conversant with the organs of the human body to understand how any human being can die without heart failure, while the cause of the failure of the heart often is one of very numerous. This might not be of serious moment were it not for the fact that hundreds of people are being nearly frightened to death by the constant use of the name for sudden deaths, and many people who are sick, and necessarily have some heart sym ptoms, are kept in constant terror by reading or hearing it stated that a lot of dead after by heart failure. It would be well if physicians who are too indolent or too ignorant to search out the disease lying back of the heart failure as a symptom were forbidden the use of

JOTTINGS.

—Days of 1889 past, 273; days to come, 92.

—The October term of the Union county court will begin to-morrow.

—Edsall, in his advertisement to-day, calls especial attention to lace curtains.

—The Union county board of freeholders will meet at the Court house in Elizabeth on Tuesday afternoon next.

—There will be a Mothers' Meeting in Reform Hall, at four o'clock, Tuesday afternoon. All are invited to be present.

—The Winthrop base ball club were entertained at Laing's Hotel at the conclusion of Saturday's game of ball with the Crescents.

—It is rumored that H. T. Williams has left the employ of John J. Bergen and will accept a position in Plainfield.—Somerset Democrat.

—In another column to-day Chief of Police T. J. Carey offers a reward of $10 for the arrest and conviction of any person caught breaking electric light globes.

—A large and appreciative audience was present at Reform Hall, last evening, and listened attentively to an address by the Rev. Asa Reed Dilts and Mrs. Laura Haviland.

—The young men's singing class and the sample workers' training class will both meet at the Y. M. C. A. rooms this evening, at nine o'clock. All young men interested are invited.

—Several trains were to-day taken off the Lake Hopatcong division of the Central Railroad for the Winter, as may be seen by referring to the time-table published in another column.

—The officials of the Raritan River Railroad, who were indicted by the Middlesex county Grand Jury at the Spooner avenue grounds. The game was called on account of darkness. The score was 11 to 10. Next Saturday the White Caps will play a return game at Westfield.

Injured by Reckless Racing on Public Highways.

Marshal Pangborn, who lights the public lamps of the borough, and is a watchman at the West side of Central avenue, near Fourth street and several persons narrowly escaped falling. The rope was evidently placed their with malicious intent.

—"A Reason for the Hope That is Within You," I Peter 3:15, is the topic for the young men's meeting at the Y. M. C. A. rooms, to-night. Leader: Mr. Seeley Edsall. Every man in the city is invited to be present and to join in the singing.

—The Gospel Temperance meetings for which the W. C. T. U., arranging to be conducted for two weeks in November by Mr. Burdick of New York, should meet with the hearty and prayerful co-operation of all our christian people.

—In another column is a notice calling a meeting of all persons interested in the formation of a co-operative grocery store. The meeting is called for Wednesday evening and will be held over Stelle's drug store, at the corner of Front street and Park avenue.

—Messrs. J. F. Laire & Co.'s timely announcement in another column is intended to direct your special attention to their line of stoves with which they are sure they can please you. Horses need blankets nowadays, and Laire & Co. have them at bottom prices, as indeed is the case with everything else sold at their reliable establishment, in which business seems always rushing.

—The meetings of the W. C. T. U., which were held yesterday, as usual were deeply interesting. Mrs. Haviland, of Chicago, was present at four o'clock, and her earnest words as a temperance worker for many years held the interested attention of her large audience until the close, and the testimonies of many which followed, proved that the pledge and the Gospel go hand in hand.

—He who advertises from year to year draws many customers from far and near. His sales are large, he is prosperous and wise, for the reason he never fails to advertise. His goods are new, his stock complete, and he is the busiest man you chance to meet. He is known at home and far around, and his store is the place where bargains are found. The number of his friends you cannot tell, for he is the man that has goods to sell. His fortune is made, for he has learned to think, and literally use printer's ink.

—John Kane, the garden truck raiser of Union township, whose ecombricty in driving on the railroad tracks has made him well known, was in Elizabeth Friday with a load of produce. As usual he sold his goods and drove back freely. He managed to keep clear of the railroads, and his team was breathing homeward on Cherry street when the drowsy farmer tumbled off his seat. When picked up he was found that his head was badly cut and his limbs bruised. He was placed in his wagon and taken to his home.

BITS OF BASE-BALL NEWS.

Information of Interest to Lovers of the Game.

The Winthrops of New York came to Plainfield Saturday. Their object in coming was to play a game of ball with the Crescents of this city. They were here a few weeks ago and were defeated by a score of 6 to 0. The "boys" felt bad over the defeat ever since, and they came here Saturday with the avowed intention of getting square, and they succeeded admirably, for when Saturday's game was finished the score stood 5 to 3 in favor of the visitors. The game was a well-contested one and several brilliant plays on both sides were loudly applauded. "Billy" Lee, the Crescents' third baseman made both of the runs for the home team. Annexed is the score in detail:

The Young Crescents of this city played a game of base ball on the Evona grounds Saturday afternoon with the Young Americans, of Dunellen. Eleven innings were played in all, and the Young Crescents were defeated by a score of 10 to 9. Features of the game were the catching of W. Theirs and the fielding of Force. D. Force and W. Theirs composed the battery for the Young Crescents and Richards and Burke acted in the same capacity for the Young Americans. Force struck out 13 and Richards struck out 9. The score innings is as follows:

Young Crescents...0 1 1 0 0 2 2 1 1 0—9

—"A Reason for the Hope That is Within You," I Peter 3:15, is the topic for the young men's meeting at the Y. M. C. A. rooms, to-night. Leader: Mr. Seeley Edsall. Every man in the city is invited to be present and to join in the singing.

—The Gospel Temperance meetings for which the W. C. T. U., arranging to be conducted for two weeks in November by Mr. Burdick of New York, should meet with the hearty and prayerful co-operation of all our christian people.

—In another column is a notice calling a meeting of all persons interested in the formation of a co-operative grocery store. The meeting is called for Wednesday evening and will be held over Stelle's drug store, at the corner of Front street and Park avenue.

—Messrs. J. F. Laire & Co.'s timely announcement in another column is intended to direct your special attention to their line of stoves with which they are sure they can please you. Horses need blankets nowadays, and Laire & Co. have them at bottom prices, as indeed is the case with everything else sold at their reliable establishment, in which business seems always rushing.

—The meetings of the W. C. T. U., which were held yesterday, as usual were deeply interesting. Mrs. Haviland, of Chicago, was present at four o'clock, and her earnest words as a temperance worker for many years held the interested attention of her large audience until the close, and the testimonies of many which followed, proved that the pledge and the Gospel go hand in hand.

—He who advertises from year to year draws many customers from far and near. His sales are large, he is prosperous and wise, for the reason he never fails to advertise. His goods are new, his stock complete, and he is the busiest man you chance to meet. He is known at home and far around, and his store is the place where bargains are found. The number of his friends you cannot tell, for he is the man that has goods to sell. His fortune is made, for he has learned to think, and literally use printer's ink.

—John Kane, the garden truck raiser of Union township, whose ecombricty in driving on the railroad tracks has made him well known, was in Elizabeth Friday with a load of produce. As usual he sold his goods and drove back freely. He managed to keep clear of the railroads, and his team was breathing homeward on Cherry street when the drowsy farmer tumbled off his seat. When picked up he was found that his head was badly cut and his limbs bruised. He was placed in his wagon and taken to his home.

PERSONAL.

U. will be held to-morrow at three p m, at 73 West Front street, and as several matters of importance will come before the house special interest are to come before the house special interest are to come before the house it is earnestly requested that every member will consider it her duty to be present. All others are welcome.

WATSON CONVICTED.

FOUR CHARGES PROVEN AGAINST HIM.

Fined $400.—An Appeal Taken to the County Court.—Held Under $1,000 Bail.

The case of the Treasurer of the city of Plainfield, vs. Michael F. Watson, charged with selling liquor illegally, came up before Judge Stillman in the city court room at ten o'clock this morning.

Corporation Counsel Craig A. Marsh conducted the case for the city, and Fred C. Marsh, the Chairman of the Democratic State Committee, and Walter L. Hetfield appeared for Watson.

The first complaint charged Watson with selling rye whisky and beer to James Doty and Andrew Muir, on September 14th. Both of these men were present and testified that they had procured liquor at Watson's place on the date named in complaint.

Watson's lawyer said that no defense would at present be presented and Judge Stillman adjudged Watson guilty and sentenced him to pay a fine of $100. It is counted stated, that his case would be appealed and an appeal bond would be filed.

The second complaint against Watson was for selling beer to the same men on September 7th.

He was adjudged guilty as in the previous case and was fined $100.

A charge of selling beer to Charles Peterson on August 15th, was next called and a similar fine was imposed.

The defendant was then charged with selling a bottle of beer to the same person on August 27th. On that date Peterson, accompanied by Chief of Police Carey, drove to Watson's place of business and at the instance of the Chief, Peterson purchased six bottles of beer paying thirty cents for the same. He then put them in his pocket and drove off and he and the Chief sampled the contents of the bottles to make sure it was beer. The bottles in which they were carried together with about five and a half bottles of beer were put in evidence. The same fine was imposed, making in all $400.

Watson's counsel stated that the four cases would be appealed and that the accused was prepared to furnish appeal bonds pending the decision of the higher court. Watson was formerly put under $500 bail for trial but upon appealing the case he is required to furnish $1,000 bail. In the former instance his father-in-law became his bondsman.

It is said that Watson did a rushing business previous to his arrest and that in order to avert suspicion the beer which he sold was bottled in bottles generally used in bottling ginger ale, soda water, mineral soda and such.

Watson's counsel made apparently only a nominal defense, and the defendant seems confident that he will on his appeal get clear at the county courts, which the saloon-keepers appear to think they control, to such an extent as to make it impossible to get a convicted gambler there. No matter how notorious the case, they somehow on appeal, appear to escape punishment. The courts, it is hoped, will teach the offenders that they cannot continue to violate our laws with impunity.

We have already published the history of this notorious case, and our readers will no doubt watch it closely and see if it goes the way of the other cases, where convictions have been secured in this city, for most flagrant violations of the law. Is it not natural with the cases on record during the past few years to not care as we being taxed to pay Judges high salaries simply to aid and abet rumsellers.

The greater the confidence manifested by the rumsellers in our County Courts the greater the want of confidence is likely to become in those interested in enforcing those laws of society, where they will not submit to being regulated, and treat our laws with contempt.

KNIGHTS OF HONOR.

The New Jersey Grand Lodge to Meet at Plainfield.

The grand lodge of the order of the Knights of Honor will meet in Reform Hall, Plainfield, on Wednesday, Oct. 9th. There will be about 115 delegates present, representing a membership of 4,015. There are forty eight lodges in this State, divided into twenty-two districts each district in charge of a deputy who visits the lodges under his charge.

The Knights of Honor was organized in 1870 with seven members, and numbers today 181,000 members. It has paid on death benefits over $230,000 monthly, and annually over $8,000,000. It has paid on 14,176 death claims, $28,090,534.99. The amount of death claims paid in New Jersey from October 1, 1887, to September 1, 1889, was 460,000. The death benefits paid by the Knights of Honor are $500, $1,000 and $2,000.

ALMOST A TRAGEDY.

Two Loafers While Fighting Draw Revolvers on Each Other.

Two young men named Becker and Flynn, apparently under the influence of liquor on Liberty street, Saturday night, became involved in a fight. During the fracas the participants drew revolvers and commenced firing them around in a promiscuous manner. Police Patrolman Higgins arrived before the loafers succeeded in using the weapons and they ran away. Warrants will be issued for their arrest, and they will be made to pay for their "sport".

Fell in a Fit.

A colored man, who recently arrived in this city from Delaware, fell in a fit at the corner of Front street and Park avenue Saturday night. A large crowd congregated around the unfortunate man. When he was covered he was taken away by some friends.

—During the month of October vespers will be sung in St. Mary's church every Wednesday evening at eight o'clock.

—A tramp known as "white whisper" was beastly drunk Saturday night and police officer McCue arrested him. This morning City Judge Stillman sent him to the county jail for five days.

PROF. COOK'S WORTH.

Estimated as Benefiting the State Millions of Dollars.

The Somerville Unionist-Gazette, of which Mr. A. V. D. Honeyman is the editor, pays the following merited tribute to the worth of the late Dr. Cook, whose services are said to have been worth millions of dollars to New Jersey:

It is reported of him, showing his Job-like integrity, that when he was about to complete his map of the clay beds of the State some wealthy capitalists offered him $100,000 to give them the advantage of his skill and control of those maps, if only for a certain period of time. The Professor, however, being above bribery of every sort, asserted his incorruptibility and showed by saying "that he was a servant of the State, and that every map he made he should become ,first, the property of the State.

Professor Cook lived and died a poor man having had great opportunities for enriching himself and spurning them, because of his great delight in serving the people of the State. He had added to his phase of integrity, a singular purity of character, which was extremely winning; and he was approachable by all, and never known to harbor a rancorous or envious feeling. He was public-by and privately one of Nature's noblemen —a man.

Probably few will ever know, and still fewer will appreciate, the immense pecuniary value which Professor Cook's busy life has been for our little State, including its farmers. He has every year discovered and uncovered its mineral and agricultural wealth, and laid for hundreds of men the foundations of fortunes, knowing all the while he did so that, by reason of his entire self-forgetfulness, he could not hope to reap one dollar of earthly reward.

There is not in New Brunswick, there is not in the State, a man qualified to take his place. There are those who in special lines have attained to a wider reputation, but Professor Cook, perhaps, but in his varying spheres of usefulness as a whole, he has so overmatched all his competitors that they could not fall on a successor.

For the above likeness we are indebted to The New Brunswick Home News.

The County Roads.

Friday, Messrs. B. M. & J. F. Shandley, the contractors, began the improvement of St. George's avenue as contemplated by the county roads law and which contract was awarded to them recently by the Board of Chosen Freeholders. The avenue will be graded and paved with telford, from the city line of Elizabeth into the city of Rahway. The work will be proceeded with as rapidly and possible, and the improvement will be finished this Fall.

Michael Mahon, the contractor for the road to Springfield, has a large force at work on the Morris turnpike at the Hummock, and another gang at the Springfield end of the route.

Crippled by Stepping on a Stone.

Mr. Richard A. Ross, of Bound Brook, who has a cash and blind factory on Somerset street, met with a peculiar accident about six weeks ago. He was helping an employe at Bound Brook unload mouldings from his wagon, and stepped on a round stone, which strained the sinews of the foot, so that he has been unable to use it since. Dr. Davis, of Bound Brook attends him.

A Runaway at Westfield.

A horse belonging to Mr. Albert E. Decker, of Westfield, left standing at the depot in that place at about seven o'clock Saturday evening became frightened and ran away. In its wild flight it collided with a wagon belonging to Mr. Wm. Jones and demolished the vehicle. The frightened animal was caught after an exciting chase, before doing any further damage.

NEW JERSEY NUGGETS.

Live News Notes from Various Parts of the State.

While fishing alone in Newark Bay, at Bergen Point, on Saturday night, David Jarvis is supposed to have been drowned by his boat capsizing. The empty craft was discovered about midnight.

Morris L. Richards, who was nominated for Sheriff of Mercer by the Republican City Convention on Saturday night, said yesterday that he accepted the nomination and would make a public card to that effect. The charter election takes place on October 8.

The safe of National Astfalk under the Bank of Elizabeth, was broken into by burglars some time during Saturday night and thoroughly ransacked. The place was completely demolished one of the large windows of the establishment. The police know nothing of the burglary until Sunday morning.

A large meeting of Chinamen was held yesterday afternoon at No. 185 Mulberry street, Newark, for the purpose of organizing a Masonic lodge. Over 100 Chinamen were present and adopting a delegation from Mott street, who are said to be officers and members of a Masonic lodge in New York.

The Fourth Precinct police learned at an early hour yesterday morning that a dog fight was in progress at the old Bull's Head, on Orange street, Jersey City, about a mile and a half from the police station. Sergeant Finley and a squad of men raided the place and found a number of dogs and two bulldogs. The prisoners were bailed to appear before Justice Young this morning for disturbing the "harmony" Finley, the proprietor of the place, was arrested yesterday.

LATEST NEWS BY WIRE.

FLACK CONSPIRATORS INDICTED.

Forgery, Perjury and Conspiracy the Basis for Action.

New York, Sept. 30th, Special.—The Grand Jury came to-day with a long presentment against Judge Bookstaver, and indictments for the following:

Sheriff James A. Flack.
William Flack.
Ambrose Mussell.
Joseph Meeks.
Mrs. Raymond.

The presentment handed in by Foreman Fosdick, of the Grand Jury, was a long one and a scathing one to all of the Flack conspirators.

The presentment charges the grossest fraud and infamy to all the persons connected with the procurement of the absolute divorce which separated Mrs. Flack from her husband, to whom she had clung for nearly half a century.

The Grand Jury found themselves called upon to investigate a mystery.

No crime was charged to any one, and to begin with there was no outward evidence that any crime had been committed.

Will Lay Its Tracks.

Elizabeth, Sept. 30th.—Despite the opposition made by the city authorities here to the Pennsylvania Railroad Company's receiving Broad street with its third and fourth tracks that company yesterday went on with their work. It seems the Central own the tract of land in dispute, and this fact was made known by the city officials for their action in stopping the Pennsylvania Company. Now the Central has given permission to the other road to lay its tracks through the territory, and this combination of the railroads against that city has rendered the latter powerless to interfere.

"Captain Swift".

The Rochester Advertiser has the following to say of "Captain Swift," the play to be produced at Music Hall to-morrow night.

The second season of the Lyceum Theatre opened last evening most auspiciously. The house was well filled, and the audience at the end of the play departed perfectly satisfied with the evening's entertainment. It was right that they should be satisfied.

The play "Captain Swift," produced by an exceptionally strong company, is one of great strength, and is one that will be for years popular with the theatre going public. The story is easily followed yet intensely interesting, and the situations are strong. It is a charming manner. Of the company playing the piece no more need be said than that each member is considered a favorite here, and the characters they represent in a life-like and acceptable manner. As much cannot be said of many combinations nowadays. The last performance of the piece will be given Wednesday evening.

—Another installment of the laws of New Jersey is publish to-day.

New Fashions in Funerals.

"Are you an undertaker?" asked a lawyer of a witness in court. "No, sir; I am a funeral director," was the reply.

That is one of the latest fashions in funerals. The man of the hearse now calls himself a funeral director. Large funerals are going out, too, as an adept in the burying art observes, except "among the poorer classes and among foreigners." Where there used to be forty or more carris es at a prominent citizen's burial, there are now not more than from four to eight. The reasons for this seem based on common sense. The long ride to a burial ground, the standing upon the damp earth while the last services are performed, added to the nervous strain and excitement, sometimes cause serious and fatal illness.

Especially this has been noted in times when pneumonia was prevalent. The lamented Dr. George M. Beard attended the funeral of one of his friends who died of pneumonia. The weather was raw and damp. Dr. Beard went home, was seized with pneumonia, and died in a few days. His wife attended his burial. In a week she was carried off with the same disease.

For the same reason—considerations of health—men no longer stand about a grave with uncovered heads in bad weather. The tendency, moreover, is now for ladies not to go to burials at all. These are attended only by the male relatives of the family who are in sound health.

The strain on the nervous system and the dangers to the health of women make the sanitary reasons doubly strong in their case. Indeed, burials are often now conducted so privately that scarcely anybody is present at the actual interment except the undertaker's men.

When there are pallbearers, hired assistants carry the coffin, while the pallbearers walk beside them. The heavy burden of the coffin would frequently enhance pallbearers completely, especially when they are old men. On the whole, all these modern changes seem dictated by a sensible regard for the health and comfort of the living.

Black and White.

The returns are all in from the expressions of opinion on the murder of an old negro and his daughter by white regulators at Lafayette, La. Almost without exception papers north and south denounce the atrocious outrage and cry for justice for those who cut the throat of a helpless girl. Southern papers generally call for the prosecution under the law of both races alike, and denounce both the outrage at Lafayette and that at East Point, Ga.

But in the midst of this come notes that ring an opposite tune. Senator Gibbs lately delivered in the Georgia senate a fiery speech on the negro question. Its echoes will certainly not die away till after the fall elections.

Senator Gibbs said the negro was useless, worthless and barbarous. He desired to help out of Georgia all negroes, good laborers or otherwise. Freedom had destroyed their usefulness. The colored race had increased immensely in Georgia since the war, yet the products of that state had fallen off nearly one-half. He wanted foreign white immigration and desired the tax on emigrant agents repealed. It was necessary to get rid of the negroes. The lives of southern women were hemmed in and bound through fear of outrage. He expressed the opinion that the time would come ere long when the white people of the state would rise and practically demand the emigration or extermination of the blacks. He concluded:

There is not room in this country for both the negro and the Yankee. Vast sums have been expended to educate negroes, who have never and will never rise to the level of the whites. In one way, they are always ready at the call of the carpet baggers and his base southern ally to do how all the harm in their power.

The New York Press recently sent a circular letter to a number of members of the next congress asking whether, in their judgment, the number of members of the house of representatives should be increased after the next census. Seventy-five replies were received, the majority of them opposing a larger congress. The house is quickly crowded for room already, and the organization is so large as to be unwieldy, opponents of the increase say.

Mighty is rhetoric in the hands of Boulanger, the French renegade. He asked the suffrages of the French people because he "did not represent the personality depicted by his calumniators, but a national sentiment aspiring to throw off the burden of a growing debt and the intolerable iniquities and humiliations to which the country is subjected." What American stump orator can beat that?

The legislative assembly of Hayti, with the bayonets of Hyppolite's soldiers at their throats, will shortly go through the farce of pronouncing the conqueror duly elected president. And maybe, then, "" will not be a revolution in the black republic for six months.

MORNING NEWS.

LIGHT ON THE MYSTERY.

Alleged Revelations in the Snell Murder Case.

WERE TASCOTT AND GILLAN ONE?

Or Was the Former Guiltless of Millionaire Snell's Murder?—The Alleged Ante-Mortem Confession of Convict Tascott Gillan to Father Sullivan.

CHICAGO, Sept. 30.—The Tribune says it is at last able to throw new and positive light on the mystery of Millionaire Snell's murder. It has discovered that three men took part in the crime. One stood guard outside the house, two went in, cracked the safe in the basement, and together shot Mr. Snell. One of these two was James Gillan, a noted thief and ex-convict. It has ascertained that Gillan made a full confession of the crime to Father Sullivan, of the St. Jarlath's church, the night before his death, six months ago, at the county hospital. More important still, a statement made by Gillan the morning after the murder to an old and reputable lawyer, whom he had long wished to retain in the event of his arrest, has been obtained in the lawyer's writing. A mass of collateral details, though not needed to verify the fact of Gillan's guilt, which is established by the confession and statement, has been collected with a view to the detection of his accomplices.

Were Tascott and Gillan One?

If the result of these discoveries does not show that the theory of the Snell case and Gillan was the same person it will show that Tascott was merely a catspaw used by Gillan for the purchase of tools and the selling of diamonds, articles of stolen property, and that others, hitherto as free from suspicion as Gillan, were the latter's partners in the murder. Gillan in his statement to his lawyer describes the shooting of Millionaire Snell as follows:

Gillan's Alleged Statement.

"Just as I got the parlor door open I looked up and there stood the old colonel at the head of the stairs. He saw me and swore at me. I lost no time in getting inside of the parlor, and was about to try to open the connecting doors when a shot was fired from the hall or stairway. This 'rattled' me a little, and, not daring to make a noise by forcing the doors, I went back to the door I had come in by from the hall. When the second time at the parlor door he again began his loud talk, saying he had me in a hole and he would catch me and break every bone in my body. Just then my companion stood at the rear of the hall and head of the basement stairs. The old man had been trying to fire his revolver at me, but could not make it go off for some reason. He then left the man at the head of the stairs. I thought to take advantage of this diversion and step past Snell through the hall, but could not. At this time he succeeded in again firing his revolver, and toward me.

How Snell Was Murdered.

"I had not shown mine, but finding his working again and fearing my life I shot without delighting or taking other aim than by holding the pistol toward him. Almost at the same instant I saw his flash my companion fired, and it was evident Snell was badly wounded by one or both of us, for he staggered and ina short time fell in the hall."

Was Tascott Innocent?

The Tribune says: "As to Tascott's part in the tragedy there is excellent reason for believing that Gillan's statement exonerating him from direct complicity may be correct. It is known from Gillan's former associates that he had no love for Tascott, and Tascott, who was not under the suspicion of the police, as an agent between himself and the purchasers of his stolen goods. It is the opinion of those best informed that Gillan, in being aware that Tascott had left the city about the time of the murder, put the papers from the Snell safe in Tascott's stove, where they were found a few days later. There were special reasons why suspicions once directed toward Tascott would take root, and they were not unknown to Gillan. They related to the fact that Tascott was acquainted with the family."

Why Tascott Fled from Chicago.

In this connection it is said on the authority of Tascott's brother that Tascott, after having while in Madison, Wis., that he was charged with the murder, came to Chicago on funds supplied by the brother to declare his innocence and clear his name. He entered the Snell street attorney. The attorney investigated the circumstantial evidence which had been heralded as sufficient to convict him, and advised him to stand trial. Tascott learned, however, of the discovery of a lot of stolen property in his closet which he had been secreting for Gillan. He learned that the property consisted of fine gold watches, dollins and silverware, had been identified by various west side residents whose houses Gillan had robbed. He realized that if he escaped on the charge of murder he would be convicted for receiving stolen goods, if not for robbery. He determined to leave Chicago again and did so.

Carnot Hopes for Peace.

PARIS, Sept. 30.—The exposition awards were distributed at the Palais de l'Industrie. President Carnot thanked the governments and exhibitors who had contributed to the success of the exposition. He expressed the hope that the exposition would introduce an era of peace. Those who had visited it could hardly fail to have had their views broadened, and this enlightenment must have an indirect effect upon the relations of nations. Premier Tirard spoke in a similar vein. Premier Tirard announced 905 grand prizes and 3,153 gold medals, 9,600 silver medals, 9,323 bronze medals and 9,070 honorable mentions.

The Girls Paid Expenses.

CLEVELAND, Sept. 30.—Nellie Ewing and Minnie Lee, two pretty girls aged about 15 years, eloped from Mount Vernon, O., with Artie Mann and another boy whose name is unknown. The girls furnished the money, they having about $100 between them. The search for the runaways has thus far proved unsuccessful, and it is supposed they have been married before this.

Mr. Edison Homeward Bound.

LONDON, Sept. 30.—Mr. and Mrs. Thomas A. Edison have been spending some days at Sir John Pender's country home in Kent. Mr. Edison and wife were invited to visit Mr. Edison. The visit was also enjoyable for the glimpse it afforded of English home life. Mr. Edison and family sailed for home from Havre yesterday.

An Ex-Senator's Crime.

CEDAR RAPIDS, Ia., Sept. 30.—Ex-Senator and County Treasurer Stedman, of Benton county, was found guilty of forgery at Vinton. There is another charge of embezzlement.

Prince Knights En Route.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 30.—The Knights Templar of Oakland, Los Angeles and Fresno have left by special train for Washington to meet the Pacific coast members.

SOCIALISTS MEET.

"Our Principles and Our Tactics" Discussed—Friends of the Government.

CHICAGO, Sept. 30.—A mass meeting was held at Vorwaertz Turn hall under the auspices of the Socialist Labor party. The topic was: "Our Principles and Our Tactics." Adelbert Hamilton, a local attorney, was chairman, and introduced A. R. Burke, of New York, as first speaker. Mr. Burke briefly outlined the fundamental principles of State Socialism. He declared that believers in Socialism were in no sense Anarchists or opposed to law and order, and that the delegates present at the convention were not there to pass resolutions regretting the hanging of Spies, Parsons and the rest. He declared that the Socialists were loyal to the government and believed in centralization of the executive and distribution of the legislative power.

L. Wonman, the next speaker, said the party could not countenance any sort of a combine with any other party, as such action would injure Socialism without helping the labor movement in the least.

Tommy Morgan, the local Socialist leader, followed with one of his characteristic speeches. He said that by reason of the private ownership of land the Socialistic principles were easily created. These pools were so strong that they defied even the law. Four men control the entire anthracite coal land, and sixty families all the railroads.

In the regular session of the convention little was done. Chairman Burke called for the report of Secretary Rosenberg of New York. The reading of it occupied over two hours. Mr. Rosenberg denounced Sergius S. Schevitch, editor of The Volks Zeitung, and Leclan Le Blanc, of the Progressive Labor party, as boodlers, and produced papers and documents to support his assertions.

THE ANTI-TRUST LAW.

The Great Combinations Will Fight It Hard.

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 30.—The circulars sent out by Secretary of State Lesueur to all corporations, manufacturers and business houses under the Missouri anti-trust law requiring affidavits to be signed and returned within thirty days testifying that they have not violated such law, and indicating that a determined effort is to be made for its enforcement, have caused renewed excitement in corporation circles and an animated discussion of the features of the law against the system of combinations and contract prices.

Relying upon eminent legal opinion, nearly all of the combination corporations will pursue active measures in defying the law and calmly await the issue of the first test case arising from violation of the anti-trust law of Missouri.

The American Congress.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 30.—Most of the foreign delegates to the International American congress reached the city and have had an informal conference with the delegates on the part of the United States for the purpose of discussing the matters to be considered by the formal organization on Wednesday. At 11 a. m. Wednesday the the delegates on the part of the United States will have a conference with the secretary of state and receive their instructions. Many telegrams have been received from various cities throughout the country which are not included in the programme of the reception tendered the foreign delegates, but to all of them the same reply has been sent. It is impossible at this late hour to make any change in the itinerary, as the whole of the details of the arrangements for the entertainment of the guests have been completed in nearly every city to be visited.

Gen. Grant's Last Resting Place.

NEW YORK, Sept. 30.—A New York paper publishes the reply of Gen. U. S. Grant to a telegram sent to him at Vienna calling the colonel's attention to the agitation now going on concerning the removal of the remains of Gen. Grant from Riverside park to Washington, D. C., or Springfield, Ills., and asking the colonel to say what the sentiment of the widow and family is in the matter. The colonel replies in effect that the widow and family "are ready to accede to any plan which the nation may decide upon, provided that the expressed wish of Gen. Grant that wherever he may be that a place shall be reserved for the burial of Mrs. Grant by his side, shall be carried out."

Boys Killed by Giant Powder.

HELENA, Mon., Sept. 30.—Albert Nelson and Harry Walton, aged 10 and 12 respectively, were killed at Elkhorn by the explosion of a can of giant powder they were experimenting. The powder had been carelessly left within their reach. The boys and their parents were guests of Superintendent of mines and there is great anger among the men at the carelessness which made the tragedy possible. If the person responsible for the affair is detected he will be severely treated.

Cardinal Gibbons' Advice to the Poles.

BALTIMORE, Sept. 30.—Cardinal Gibbons has laid the corner stone of the Church of St. Stanislaus Kostka for a Polish congregation. Cardinal Gibbons in his address to the Poles. He congratulated them for coming from a land of oppression to this country of civil and religious liberty, and appealed to them to be on their guard against and take other on tyranny in every form, and to be good citizens.

Smallpox in Port.

NEW YORK, Sept. 30.—The steamer Victoria, from Gibraltar, arrived at Quarantine with three cases of small pox aboard. The passengers were all removed to Swinburne's island. Three cabin passengers with whom the steamer carried were allowed to land. The vessel will be detained at Quarantine with the balance of the passengers, 487 in number, for four days.

Hon. W. S. Paine Resigns.

ALBANY, Sept. 30.—Hon. W. S. Paine, superintendent of the banking department, has resigned his office to accept the presidency of the trust company in New York city. His resignation takes effect on Oct. 1. It is understood that Governor Hill will not appoint a successor to Mr. Paine until next week.

Train Wreckers Foiled.

MANCHESTER, N. H., Sept. 30.—An attempt was made to wreck the northbound way freight about a mile south of here late on Saturday afternoon by placing a large piece of rail on the track which is at a sharp curve. The engineer of the freight saw the obstruction and stopped the train before reaching it.

Perry Belmont Will Not Run.

NEW YORK, Sept. 30.—Perry Belmont has written to the New York Herald from Newport that he is not a candidate for the Congressional nomination in the Ninth congressional district, and says that he has no present desire to return to congress.

An Incendiary's Work.

MANCHESTER, N. H., Sept. 30.—A house and barn owned by Mrs. William Leighton, in Amherst, were damaged by fire to the extent of $1,000. The fire is thought to have been of incendiary origin.

TROUBLE FOR THE RUSH.

The Seized Sealers May Revenge Themselves.

THEIR CREWS UTTER THREATS.

They Wis, Redress from the Cutter Which "Stole" Their Skins—The Militia Said to Be in Readiness for an Outbreak.

OTTAWA, Sept. 30.—British Columbia advices say that the United States cruiser Rush will soon call at Victoria on her way south, and it is feared trouble will arise between the crews of the seized sealing schooners and their friends and the crew of the Rush if the latter attempts to anchor in the harbor. The crews of the sealers, most of whom are now at Victoria, are in the wildest state of excitement over the loss of their summer's work and the confiscation of their skins. They say that if they cannot get redress through the British government they will take it out of the United States cutter that "stole" their sealskins.

The Militia Ready.

The militia is to be held ready to prevent any attack on the cutter. There are many men of the rougher element of Victoria who would join the indignant sealers if the latter attack the rush.

2,500 Skins Were Seized.

The Rush has captured the British Columbian sealers in Canadian waters and broken up the work of a dozen vessels in all. About 2,500 skins were confiscated, but all the vessels except one, a Japanese schooner, which put into Sitka as ordered, went to Victoria.

EX-QUEEN NATALIE'S VISIT.

Warmly Welcomed by the Populace—Ignored by the Government.

BELGRADE, Sept. 30.—Exqueen Natalie has arrived here. She was enthusiastically welcomed by the populace. The government ignored her presence.

It is estimated that 30,000 persons greeted the exqueen on her arrival in a veritable triumphal progress through the streets to her residence. Afterward she was obliged to appear on the balcony in response to the plaudits of the crowd. The Russian minister and all the members of the embassy visited the ex-queen. Meanwhile the palace gates were closed and guarded by troops, the government fearing a popular revolt.

He Shot His Sweetheart.

BALTIMORE, Sept. 30.—John Prince, aged 22 years, has been paying court for several months to Miss Georgie Stone, aged 19 years, who lives in the northern suburbs of Baltimore, and it was understood they were engaged. Prince met Miss Stone walking on the Falls road with Robert Moore. The jealous Prince upbraided the girl and told her if she did not cut Moore's acquaintance he would cut her's. She told him he could do so at once, whereupon Prince drew a pistol and fired three shots at Miss Stone. The first struck her in the eye, the second in the abdomen, the third missed the mark. Prince then fled and has not yet been captured. Miss Stone is lying at her home in a critical condition.

Empire State Turners Meet.

SUSPENSION BRIDGE, N. Y., Sept. 30.—The annual meeting of the Turners of New York state has begun here with a reception to the visiting Turners at the Falls Park. In the morning a visit was paid to all the points of interest, and later a picnic was held at Montezuma park and prizes competed for. Today field games and gymnastic exhibition took place. Turners from New York, Fort Plain, Bloomingdale, Rome, Utica, Auburn, Rochester, Brooklyn, Troy, Syracuse and other cities were present.

A Suicide at Chicago.

CHICAGO, Sept. 30.—Henry Watson Pratt, a young man of good family and social connection, agent for E. L. Hedstrom & Co., coal dealers, at their Twenty-second street yards, drowned himself in the lake. Albert Hughlett was passing on the lake from drive, and saw the young man leap from a pier. He ran to the spot and pulled the body from the lake, but it was too late to save the young man's life. Pratt's friends can imagine no reason for the suicide. His parents live in Washington, D. C.

Gen. Sturgis Dead.

ST. PAUL, Sept. 30.—Gen. Samuel D. Sturgis, U. S. A., died at his home in this city. He graduated from West Point in 1846, along with George B. McClellan, Stonewall Jackson, Stoneman, Pickett and many other famous soldiers. Gen. Sturgis engaged in some of the most important battles of the war of the rebellionand fought Indians for forty years in the northwest, retiring from active command three years ago.

Delaware's Quarterly Whipping.

WILMINGTON, Del., Sept. 30.—The quarterly whipping of prisoners took place at Newcastle jail. Ten colored men and one white man received from five to ten lashes of the cat on their bare backs. Seven girl five lashes and four ten. All were whipped for larceny and bore their punishment well, some leaving the post with smiles on their faces. The attendance was the smallest for years.

Sargent Held for Trial.

NORWALK, Conn., Sept. 30.—Assistant Postmaster W. H. Sargent, of Moosup, was brought before United States Commissioner Allen Tenny, of Norwich, for violating the postal laws in the Palmer case, and was held for trial to the United States district court, which meets on the first Tuesday in December at Hartford. He gave bonds in the sum of $200 for his appearance for trial.

Collided in the Darkness.

FALMOUTH, Mass., Sept. 30.—The schooners Almon Willis, of Thomaston, and Ellen B. Emery, of New York, were in collision in Vineyard sound during the night. The Willis carried away her topmast, tore her spanker and sustained other injuries. The Emery broke her jibboom and was otherwise damaged. Both schooners made repairs and proceeded.

Little Chance for Mrs. Ufler to Live.

UNION HILL, N. J., Sept. 30.—Mrs. Ufler, who was shot by her husband, Saturday, was still alive at noon, but unconscious. Another bullet wound has been discovered in the small of the back to the right of the spinal column, and from this the gravest consequences are feared.

An Alleged Cigar Thief in Custody.

BOSTON, Sept. 30.—William Walters, claiming to be from Kansas City, has been arrested here, charged with obtaining 10,000 cigars from Bril & in this city on forged orders.

UNCLE SAM'S DESERTERS.

A Court of Inquiry Will Investigate a Question Well in the Army.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 30.—The Herald commenting on desertions in the army, says: The large number of desertions has been noted, especially in the first year of their enlistment, has been time and again pointed out in these columns. Various reasons have been given for this fact, there was room for deduction of the solution, and that is the unnecessary hardships inflicted upon the men by the officers under whom they serve. This is the keynote of the whole situation. Gen. Schofield and Adjt. Gen. Kelton have given the matter considerable attention lately, and have received suggestions from a number of the leading officers of the service as to the proper remedy to be applied to correct this growing evil. A court of inquiry has been appointed on the subject, and will meet at Governor's Island, N. Y., on Tuesday.

The board will consist of Lieut. Col. Henry W. Lawton, Inspector Gen. and Capt. Frederick H. Ebstein, Twenty-first infantry. While the inquiry is confined exclusively to inquire into the causes of the large desertions at Jefferson barracks, it will also go into an investigation of the whole subject, with the view of ascertaining if possible remedy for an evil which, if not corrected, will sooner or later cause much trouble in the service. Both Gen. Schofield and Gen. Kelton are thoroughly convinced that the time has arrived for taking some decided steps in this direction.

MORE BOND FRAUDS.

Louisiana's Total Loss Discovered to Date Four Up $1,000,000.

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 30.—It is now stated upon what appears to be good authority that irregularities have been discovered in what are known as the Louisiana state bonds. Nearly all of these bonds numbered above 102,000 are reported to be fraudulent, and there are some irregularities in some of the lower numbers. The state officials and the treasurer will soon take up this branch of the investigation.

Attorney General Rogers admits that the "Louisiana bonds have been stamped and otherwise tampered with to the amount of $400,000. According to the calculations of Judge Rogers the total defalcation at state funds already in sight is over $1,200,000.

Still Feuding with the Falls.

NIAGARA FALLS, N. Y., Sept. 30.—Flotting from the Russian steamer, and all the members of the embassy visited the ex-queen. Meanwhile the palace gates were closed and guarded by troops, the government fearing a popular revolt.

HAPLESS MARIE BLAINE.

Fears That She Can Never Regain Her Health.

FRIENDS DESPAIR OF HER LIFE.

They Are Very Bitter Against the Blaine Family, James G., Jr., in Particular. The Young Wife Will Get a Divorce If She Recovers.

NEW YORK, Sept. 31.—A special to The Times from Philadelphia says: Relatives in this city of Marie Nevins Blaine, the beautiful young wife of James G. Blaine, Jr., have received the startling intelligence that she cannot recover from her recently developed illness. Since her removal from the house of her friend, Mrs. Doremus, in New York, to the home of her parents at 1331 West Forty-second street, her condition has changed for the worse. The inflammatory rheumatism with which she was struck down five weeks ago, while attending a rehearsal at the Lyceum Theatre, has defied all the efforts of the physicians. The latest letters of her parents to her relatives here show that they have almost abandoned hope.

She Suffers Great Torture.

Mrs. Mary S. Neil, an aunt of Mrs. Blaine, whose home is at Forestdale, but who boards the greater part of the time at the Aldine hotel in this city, has been in constant communication with Col. and Mrs. Nevins. She took more interest than anybody else in the accomplished young woman's aspirations for the stage. The latest information is as Mrs. Blaine's condition has so thoroughly alarmed Mrs. Neil that she intends to hasten at once to the bedside of her niece and remain there till the end. The severity of Mrs. Blaine's illness is indicated by the statement of her physician that it is necessary to keep her under the constant influence of opiates, in order that she may not be thrown into fatal spasms by the excruciating torture of her malady.

Very Bitter Against the Blaines.

The relatives of the young actress are very bitter in their denunciation of the Blaine family, but especially toward James G. Blaine, Jr., in particular. They declare that his intemperance and profligate conduct would have made it impossible for the young wife to live with him, even if he had contributed sufficiently to her support, which he failed to do. Miss Hopkins, a cousin of Mrs. Blaine, who lives on Eighteenth street near Chestnut, said:

Her Husband's Treatment.

"From what we have heard we all fear that Marie will not recover. The rheumatic inflammation seems to have been steadily growing worse. Her attendants now are afraid they cannot keep it from reaching a vital organ. Her treatment by her husband and his family has been simply beyond description. None of them have even sent to inquire about her condition since she was taken sick."

The Future of the Child.

The future of Mrs. Blaine's little child is already being considered by her relatives. The boy is now with his mother at the home of his grandparents. Either they or Mrs. Neil will probably take charge of him if Mrs. Blaine does not recover. It is known that the Blaine family will have nothing to do with the child by a second husband. James, Jr., passed his own boy, whose nurse was wheeling him in the street, a few weeks ago without appearing to notice him.

A Possible Divorce.

NEW YORK, Sept. 30.—Gen. Martin T. McMahon, counsel for Mrs. James G. Blaine, Jr., says that if Mrs. Blaine recovers from her present illness proceedings will be begun against her husband for divorce.

It has not yet been determined whether the suit will be for absolute or limited divorce. Mrs. Blaine's only wish now, Gen. McMahon added, is to be entirely free from the alliance. It is reported that just before her removal from Professor Doremus' house she asked that, in case her sickness had a fatal termination, Mr. Blaine should not be allowed to have her child.

Brutal Murder at Boston.

BOSTON, Sept. 30.—At 6 a. m. Mrs. Catherine Hanson was found lying in a pool of blood at the foot of the stairs leading to the apartments of herself and husband at 221 West Third street, South Boston. The officers who found her at once upstairs and found Mr. Hennessey wiping up blood in the hallway. Hennessey was arrested. He is a boilermaker, 27 years old. The oldest child says his father struck his mother several times on the head with a stick of wood, and then ordered the child to go to bed. Hennessey says that his wife fell down stairs accidentally, and claims that he does not know what caused her death.

An Ounce of Prevention.

Good Housekeeping says that "mod. frequently renewed, is an excellent remedy for the bite of a dog." Huh! A rock two or three inches in diameter applied to the ear of the dog about two seconds before he tries to administer the bite is worth all the mod in the next campaign. One application, if properly made, is sufficient—especially for the dog.—Bob Burdette in Brooklyn Eagle.

She Stood Him Off.

A landlord who was before one of the circuit court commissioners the other day to see about getting a non-paying tenant out of his house explained:

"It is now five months since I got a cent of rent. Their first excuse was the death of a child. Their second the sickness of the husband. Their third his being out of work. Their fourth was that a relative had died. Their fifth was given yesterday."

"What was it?" asked the commissioner.

"Well, I called at the house and rang the bell. My answer was then sent to the side door. No answer. Then I went around to the kitchen, where I found the woman. I told her I had come to make a last demand before appealing to the law, and she insisted that I go around to the front door and ring the bell. I did so, and she opened the door, looked me over from head to foot, and said:

"'Sir, if you have called to see my husband he is out.'

"But you'll do just as well, madam. I have come for the rent."

"'Who are you, sir?'

"'Your landlord, of course.'

"I can't place you, and I shall pay you no money until you are properly identified. Call with your papers some day next week."—Detroit Free Press.

Jokes 1,000 Years Old.

[From Hoosier Folk-Lore Journal about the middle of the Fifth century.]

A man, hearing that a raven would live 200 years, bought one to try it.

A robust countryman, meeting a physician, ran to hide behind a wall. Being asked the cause, he replied: "It is so long since I have been sick that I am afraid to look a physician in the face."

A man wrote to a friend in Greece asking him to purchase books. From negligence or avarice he neglected to execute the commission. But, fearing that his correspondent might be offended, he exclaimed when next they met: "My dear friend, I never got the letter you wrote me about the books."

A timid, bald-headed, bald headed man traveled together. Losing their way, they were forced to sleep in the open air, and to avert danger it was agreed to keep watch by turns. The lot fell first on the barber, who for amusement shaved the fool's head while he slept. He then woke him, and the fool, raising his hand to scratch his head, exclaimed: "Here's a pretty mistake! Rascal! you have waked the bald headed man instead of me."—Louisville Courmercial Journal.

Sun Fun.

A young lady generally finishes up her diary for the summer with chap. son.

A swallow tail coat may be just the proper thing for the bridegroom at a fashionable wedding, but for an elopement there is nothing like a cutaway.

The theatrical profession is going to pieces. George Francis Train with a vote of thanks for showing how to live through the summer on the least possible sum.

A pound of steel made up into hair springs for watches is worth $140,000. If ever we get hold of a pound of steel we are going to make it up into watch springs at once.

It is rumored that Queen Victoria thinks of becoming the Grand Duke Bath on Thomas A. Edison. In order to make him feel perfectly at home she will probably make it an electric bath.—Puck's Sun.

Shoes for a Family.

Father of Family—How much?

Shoe Dealer (figuring on back of package—Pair of shoes for the lady, $8; oldest girl, $3; boy, $3; other girl, $3; baby, $1.50. Just $20.50, sir. Thanks. Can't I show you some shoes for yourself?

Father of Family (wearily)—Oh, don't bother about me. I can go barefoot.—New York Weekly.

Heaven Forbid.

Miss Salina—Yes, I admit Mr. Plumpley is rather plain, but it's the sort of face that grows upon you.

The Major—Indade! Well, I'm sure 'tis not the sort of face I'd want to grow upon me!—London Funny Folks.

Barber (hastily)—Very clean, sir.—New York Weekly.

A Nautical Courtship.

"Oh, woo is me," cried Hannah Lee,
"No more my love I'll meet;
For alloo, my dear, you've off to sea
I've come to see you off.

"So more, in vain, coquettish slights,
I'll make you suffer pain;
For while the main rolls in its might
I'll love with might and main.

"Oh, must it be a last good-by?
Farewell, my love, farewell;
Now, by these tears which swell my eye,
I'll eye no other swell."

In quick embrace the maid is caught;
"My dear," the sailor cried,
"What care I, swells the tide or not
So our vessel know be tied?

"Enough! my sailor life is done,
My tar with you I swear."
So board they'd hack me to the mast,
You mask me to the bar."

And so away this couple ran,
Held fast in Love's pilot;
And they had to ship some other man
To help them mate the ship.

And so the tossle, with happy mein,
Put Cupid's fame to proof,
And so married in a trice
A pair just tied some oft.

So now a sorry moralization
They've only so one could wish,
And be sure you never marry those Whatever be your fish.

TO A TIRED MOTHER.

A little voice is heard at last,
Your tired ears have waited so much to hear,
A child's dear eyes are looking lovingly
From somewhere in a thicket of tangled hair;
Perhaps you do not hear, they're very small,
Or your weary fingers hinder you as so right;
You do not prize the blessing overmuch;
You almost wish you had to stay to-night.

But it is thoughtless! A year ago,
I did not see it as I do to-day.
We are so dull and thankless, and too slow
To catch the sunshine till it slips away.
And now I would be glad to have it so,
That, while I wore the badge of motherhood,
I did not miss more oft and pardonly
The little child that thought me only good.

And if, some night when you sit down to rest,
You miss the sister from your tired knee,
The restless baby head from off your breast,
The lagging tongue that stuttered constantly;
If from your eyes the dimpled hand had slipped
And never would nestle in your palm again,
If the white feet had gone beyond the grave
I wonder so that mothers ever fret
At little children clinging to their gown;
Or that the footprints when the days are wet
Are ever dark enough to make a frown.
If I could find a little muddy boot,
Or cap, or jacket, on my chamber floor;
If I could kiss a rosy, restless face,
And hear it patter in my home once more.

If I could mend a broken cart today,
To-morrow sudden like to reach the sky—
There is no woman in God's world could say
She was more blissfully content than I.
But, oh! the empty pillow next my own
Is never rumpled with a shining head;
My singing bird has flown, its nest has flown;
The little boy I used to kiss is dead.

A PREY TO SHARPERS.

To Carry Money in a Pocketbook, as Most Women Do, Is to Invite Robbery.

All those handsome, fashionably stamped leather portemonnaies, firmly strapped and clasped beyond the paradventure of mishap, as well as the long, cunningly knitted silken purses, artfully linked to deft Hight and honest fingers alike, are made exclusively for feminine use. No one ever hears of a man keeping his money in anything of the sort. If he owns a pocketbook at all it is a shabby affair, worn slick as glass and stuffed with memoranda, promissory notes, a couple of bills, possibly a receipt, some business cards, and ten to one a complimentary personal cut from the newspaper; all manner of odds and ends in the way of lottery tickets, a silky curl, registration papers, anything and everything, to carry all the garments bodily before the seemingly reckless man is dispossessed of his treasure.

Now those who have taken the trouble to observe a woman's tactics when shopping are familiar with the stereotyped rules she follows, and the poorest rogue has shrewdness enough to calculate upon the course she will pursue at an establishment. Get a shopgirl to describe how lotally indifferent, languidly, disdainful or coldly neglectful ninety-nine women out of a hundred look as they step briskly in from the street. They then have themselves well in hand, a firm purchase on parasol and purse, and a green clerk would wonder what on earth ever brought such disinterest in to be bored. Before ten steps have been taken, however, those wary glances are ensnared. Bargains boldly set forth on the counter soon fetch a glow of animation into listless faces, and every dilgnified muscle is relaxed as the light of trade shines like a lamp in either eye.

Here the fray begins. The thrifty shopper goes hard to work to see how much stuff she can get for the smallest amount of money. Bangs slowly dampen and pucurit powder like an daylight it never had been; collars insist; suits creep stealthily down the arm; veils moisten and part asunder, and yet never does the smart buyer's aitidiation desert for an instant. Inspired by devotion to the business in hand, she works faithfully and well; everything is forgotten save that ten cents' difference on the pocketbook, and as is invariably the case patience and perseverance conquer all difficulties. Flushed with triumph, reveling in the victory that will create envy in the breast of every woman friend, she promptly turns to count out the necessary nickels. Abomination of desolation! Where in heaven's name is her pocketbook? With shrieks and groans every article up and down the counter is overturned, tossed ruthlessly about or pushed hastily aside in one vain effort to catch a glimpse of its beloved form or wriggle of shape. Dashing this prolonged hunt every man, woman and child in the vicinity is suspiciously eyed. No one knows or has seen anything of the pocketbook, but the light of conviction makes the whole thing clear. The robbed woman sinks helplessly on the nearest stool and tells of those well dressed, refined ladies who sandwiched her between them at the embroidery counter. Too absorbed to notice aught beyond their sympathetic enthusiasm over the goods she was buying and jammed about with this result.—Atlanta Constitution.

Never Thought of It.

There is an esteemed and popular lady of Cambridge who recently had a somewhat remarkable experience. "I had been trying for a long time" she tells the story herself) "to get a No. 5½ glove that was small enough for me. That tried nearly all the glove stores in Boston. Now I thought I had got one that was small enough, and now it turned out, upon wearing, to be unpleasantly large. You don't know how much annoyance I had undergone in this way, when finally I went to a reputable dealer in gloves, insisted upon seeing the proprietor himself, took him aside and addressed him thus:

"'Now, Mr. Kidd,' said I, 'I have been trying in Boston for the last two years to buy a No. 5½ glove that was small enough for me, and I cannot do it. Do you suppose that you can furnish me or obtain for me such a glove?'

"'Ahem!' said he, 'did you find the ordinary 5½ glove somewhat large for you?'

"'Yes.'

"'Did it ever occur to you to buy a 5½ glove?'

"'It never had occurred to me," said the lady.—Boston Transcript.

Saves Her Money.

Lillian Russell, the Florella of the "Brigands," is said to be worth $100,000—some gossips make it more. She was never a woman who cared much for spending money, and as she has been very busy during her eventful life in earning it she is rich beyond a doubt. She lives in a flat in an unpretentious way, and watches over her adopted daughter Lillian with solicitous care. This little 8-year haired girl proudly informs all questioners that her name is "William Howard." Miss Russell was always a boisterous and never cared much for lilting, but when she finds that she can enjoy a romping without interfering with her work, she spends the leisure time in John George or Jerome. She is fond of boxing.

"I can't tell you why I care for the sport," she says, "unless it is because I am built to do anything."

YOUNG FOLKS' COLUMN.

A HALF HOUR'S PLEASANT READING FOR BOYS AND GIRLS.

A Brief Sketch of Dante, the Poet, and the Florentine Lady, Beatrice, Whom He So Reverently Loved.

In Florence, in the year 1265, was born the true patriot and mighty poet Dante. He could be mediocre in nothing, neither in thought, feeling nor action, therefore, as we shall see, his life was full of fire. Florence said his Lady Beatrice were both loved with a fervent passion, the echoes of which still vibrate.

THE YOUTHFUL DANTE.

The children lived near each other, and first met at an entertainment given by the little girls' father, to which Dante, with his parents, was invited. How he looked at this time may be seen in the exquisite statue by Civilelli, a Faleralian sculptor. In the accompanying cut, a reprint from St. Nicholas, is illustrated this statue for the benefit of our readers. As to the little lady, we are told that she had very delicate features, admirably proportioned, and, in addition to their beauty, of such dignity and charm that she was looked upon by Dante then and forever as the perfection of her sex. When Beatrice was about 20 she married Simone di'Bardi.

On the 9th of June, 1290, when only 24 years old, Beatrice "was made of the clay even of mortality." Little more than thirty years her poet worshiper survived, to honor her in deed and word, and to illuminate with her memory the stern pages of his "Divina Commedia."

Swinging on the Gate.

Now our merry little folks
Take a merry ride,
Ned and Goldie, Tot and May.
Two on either side.
Bright the eyes of blue and brown,
Rosy each curly pate,
Gay the little passengers
On the garden gate.

"Here we go, to and fro,
Don't you think 'tis fun,
Singing, swinging on the gate,
In the pleasant sun?"

First, they're bound for Boston town,
Wonderful sights to see;
Then for grandpa's dear old farm,
To a hunting tree;
Now for auntie's home to dine;
Surely they'll be late
If they wait to journey there
On the gate, gate!

"See us swing! hear us sing!
Happy hearts have we.
Never were the robin birds
Half so full of glee."

—Youth's Companion.

Shadow Buff.

The game of shadow buff differs very materially from blindman's buff, but it is equally as amusing. A large piece of white linen should be fastened neatly up at one end of a room, so that it hangs quite smooth. Buff or blindfold seats himself on a low stool, with his face to the linen, and a table, on which is a lighted candle, should be placed about four or five feet behind him and the rest of the lights in the room extinguished. Buffy's playfellows next pass in succession between the candle and him, distorting their features in as grotesque a manner as possible—hopping, limping and performing various odd antics, so as to make their shadows very unlike their usual looks. Buffy must then try to guess to whom the shadows belong, and if he guesses correctly the player whose shadow he recognized takes his place. Buff is allowed only one guess for each player, and must not turn his head either to the right or left to see who passes.

A Good Reputation.

There is nothing like a good reputation. If a man gains a reputation for doing anything well, his work will be thought more of than of others who have no reputation, even if their work is better than his.

A Greek sculptor, whose name is celebrated for his imitations of animals, was one day performing before a large audience, and amusing them by speaking like a pig. A simple countryman standing by declared that he could squeak better

THE LITTLE BOYS FED DISCLOSED.

The people laughed and called for a specimen of his ability. He immediately let out an ear piercing squeal, but only provoked derision. The audience hooted at him. "That is the squeal of a pig!" said one in disdain. "Not a bit of it," cried another. "Not in the least like nature," said a critic. The countryman was in danger of being hurt by the crowd for his presumption when his cloak flew back and disclosed a little live pig under his arm and whose bite he had endured to make it utter the squeal, which the critics had pronounced to be so unlike nature.

SHE FACED THE MUSIC.

THE ADVENTURE OF AN INDEPENDENT YOUNG WIFE.

She Thought John Was Needlessly Nervous, and So She Did as She Pleased—She Met a Tramp on the Lonely Road, but He Was Chivalrous and She Unnerved Him.

That in every man's nature the germ at least of chivalry exists was very amusingly proved by an incident which befell a fair native of New Orleans traveling two weeks in New England. The lady was alone, her husband having been compelled to remain over in Boston on business, while she continued on to join her sister rusticating in a rural village. When John bade her an affectionate adieu at the depot that morning she was immensely amused at his great solicitation for her welfare. Again and again he regretted the enforced delay, and laid many charges upon his young and pretty wife as to the safest way of reaching her destination. After leaving the depot she was obliged to take a branch road; an hour's ride landed her in the small town. Knowing his wife's passion for walking on country roads, the fond husband cautioned her under any and all circumstances to wait for the train, and not to think of attempting the distance on foot. She listened, as women will, determining all the while to obey her husband strictly if—his injunctions fell in with her convenience. The forenoon on the through line passed off without contretemps of any kind, but no Manhattan's thrills on stepping off at the wayside station, about 4 o'clock, a sleepy, cross eyed official greeted her with the unwelcome information that the train had gone on its afternoon trip, and would not leave again till some time after dark. Three long, lonely hours in a dull railroad waiting room was enough to try the patience of a less high spirited woman.

"Mean affair, John!"

The round orb hung in the western sky on its downward course; the foliage, freshly burnished by a passing shower, gleamed with jeweled rain drops; the earth gave out a sweet summery smell, tempting the veriest laggard to come forth and luxuriate in nature's smiling mood. The young woman looked up and down the long track with wistful, appreciative eyes, to where the steel rails narrowed and were lost in the heavy, overshadowing foliage. Would John mind very much if she began arguing with herself; it was such a step, those five short miles under the blue heavens with every living thing responding to the bright notion. Full of old fashioned prejudices, as she termed her husband's scruples regarding feminine prudence, it could not harm any human being if she stretched her cramped limbs by a brisk turn up the road. John should never know; it would be all right; and with a quieted conscience the disobedient wife went into the office, made all the necessary arrangements as to the forwarding of her luggage and with a light heart, stepped off at a sharp pace. "Myl what an idiot I would have been," she thought, "to have remained such a stupid fellow and spend this divine evening laufing round that stuffy little station. I'll be in it—long before dark and sleep like a top after the stroll." With long, springy strides she rapidly covered the distance, and soon the small red roofed depot faded far away in the back ground. Every breath of the pure wood scent was stimulating as elixir, and every foot of the way lent more interest to the charming vicinity. What had that tiresome John been thinking of to plan passing her out of so much innocent pleasure!

These reflections continued for some time, when, great heavens! about fifty yards ahead, a man's form leaned suddenly from the underbrush and made straight for the track, with his face set toward her. The poor little wife's heart fell like a stone, heavy as lead in her terrified bosom. Every moment brought new developments in the way of a torn, slouch hat, a rough, red beard, dingy, tanned skin, patched trousers and a pair of formidable looks fetching into closer prominence every movement the ugliest specimen of an unmistakable tramp. What should she do! Her trembling heart, fluttering like a crippled bird, sent every drop of blood into the throbbing brain which for a minute refused utterly to act. On he came, and to her excited imagination the sentiment for each step was of ferocity in his professional eye. Then, like a wave of fresh despair, her last lingering hope was washed away by the consciousness of a pair of big, solitaire diamond earrings, a jeweled hat pin and various other pretty, costly trinkets.

TOOK HIM UNAWARES.

"It's all that hateful John's fault, after all," the convenient conscience of this summer bride whispered; "if he hadn't given me such lots of handsome things that terrible tramp would never think of stealing them. But what could did it do abusing the much longed for and ever faithful John when that sulky brute was gaining fast! Now, in the long, slouch rays of the setting sun the coward saw the wicked, greedy look in those deep set, evil eyes. The bloated countenance as repulsive as those hard, cruel hands grasping the fence. Desperate, but outwardly calm, her resolve was quickly made, and quieting her throbbing nerves, the plucky little woman quickened her pace and in two minutes more was facing the music.

"Good evening," she began in a gentle, ladylike way. "If you please, be a very good as to tell me the distance to N——. I am entirely alone, have lost the way and want you to be kind enough to help me." It was too much. The man had plenty of grit and could have even that shoulder white throne, without winking; but to be appealed to as a friend and gentleman in such a straightforward, natural way, "knocked his pins" clean from under him. Every dastardly spark of manhood quickened in that rough old breast, and before he know it his hat was off and he bowed with positive grace.

Then he had to turn his covetous eyes from those sparkling diamonds, but he rose to the occasion all the same, and with chivalric grace replied, "Madam, I am very sorry, but really I am a traveler like yourself and rather a stranger in those parts. Is there anything else in which I could assist you? Not daring, on my present journey," and off that old tramp walked without once looking back.

John was told, and after the conventional lecture forgave his imprudent wife.—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

Women, take yourself out of doors, and stand with your weight resting on the balls of the feet, not on the heels. Draw in the chin, hold the head erect, throw the chest out so that a line dropped perpendicularly from the point of the chin would fall between the obdominal arch, draw in the abdomen, then forcibly fill and empty the lungs, compelling the vital breathing organs to work. Do this for ten or twenty minutes every day.—Philadelphia Press.

1. The inhabitants of the present fourth ward of the town of Bloomfield, in the county of Essex, and all persons who shall hereafter reside within the limits of the said fourth ward, shall be and remain a body politic and corporate, by the name of the town of Bloomfield.

2. And be it enacted, That the second section of the act to which this is a supplement, be and the same is hereby amended so as to read as follows, viz:

2. The said fourth ward shall be entitled to elect two members of the township committee of the township of Bloomfield, in the county of Essex, and the said township committee shall be entitled to receive an annual salary of two hundred dollars, which shall be paid quarterly by the authority of the municipal corporation in the manner provided by law; provided, however, that no person who heretofore have been elected or appointed to any office in said township and serve in any for-man, town or board of freeholders, a majority of the said township committee shall be entitled to receive from said township committee a

LAWS OF NEW JERSEY.

[BY AUTHORITY.]

CHAPTER CCXLIII.

An Act authorizing incorporated towns to provide for changing the width and boundaries of streets and avenues.

1. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That it shall be lawful for the mayor and common council of any incorporated town in this state, in the manner hereinafter prescribed, to alter the width of any map or plan establishing the boundaries of streets and avenues therein, by altering the width of any such street or avenue, or of section of proposed street or avenue, which has not been opened at the time of the adoption of such map; provided, however, that no street or avenue, or section of proposed street or avenue, shall be made less in width than it was at the time of the adoption of any such plan or map.

2. And be it enacted, That on the petition in writing of the owners of one eighth of the land fronting on any street or avenue, or section of proposed street, setting forth the change desired, and praying that the same may be made by ordinance, the same to be published, together with a notice stating when such petition will be presented to the mayor and common council for their action, and objections in writing thereto, in at least two newspapers published in such town, for the space of at least two weeks successively, at least one of which shall be published in the English language, and if no such publication be made, then by posting such notice in three public places in such town, for the space of at least two weeks successively, at least one week before the time mentioned in such notice for receiving objections; any owner of land fronting on the street or avenue, or section of proposed street, petitioning, may, at the time mentioned in such notice, object in writing thereto, at the time and place appointed for receiving the same; and if it shall appear that the owners of a majority of the land fronting on the street or avenue, or section of proposed street, petitioned to be changed have not objected thereto, the mayor and common council shall have full power to pass and adopt an ordinance in conformity to the petition, and in accordance with the terms of the last section; and if it appear that the owners of a majority of such lands have objected thereto, then such petition shall be considered void.

3. And be it enacted, That all costs and expenses incurred in the proceedings aforesaid shall be paid by the petitioners.

4. And be it enacted, That all acts and parts of acts inconsistent with this act be and the same are hereby repealed, and that this act shall take effect immediately.

Approved May 7, 1889.

CHAPTER CCXLIV.

An Act relating to the change of grade of street in cities of this state.

1. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That hereafter any city of this state has the right to change the grade of any street or part of a street opened or dedicated to the use of the public, and is erected, it shall be lawful for the municipal authorities in any such city, through its proper officers, to make, or cause to be made, the proper award for damages, if any, consequent upon such change of grade to owners of any such house or other building standing upon such street, or any other building affected by such change of grade, and the cost of the same, if the grade thereof is changed as aforesaid.

2. And be it enacted, That the damages mentioned in this act to be paid to such owner shall be assessed, and the cost of the same shall be collected, in the manner as is now herein provided for the assessment and collection of damages for the public purposes of the state, and that such shall be deemed a public act, and shall take effect immediately.

Approved May 7, 1889.

CHAPTER CCXLV.

A Further supplement to an act entitled "An act to authorize the state to construct sewers and drains, and to provide for the payment of the cost thereof," approved April eighth, one thousand eight hundred and eighty-two.

1. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That whenever objections in writing to the construction of any proposed sewer or drain, and to the assessment of the estimated cost thereof upon the lands and real estate benefited thereby, which it is proposed to assess, according to the number of lineal feet of frontage of land along the street or streets or parts thereof through which it is proposed to construct such sewer, by more than one-half of the owners or other legislative body of any such city may be presented, and such objections, if any, proceed to adopt an ordinance for the construction of such sewer or drain and to enter into contracts for the construction of the same or any part thereof; provided, however, that any such ordinance for the construction of any such sewer or drain shall require for its final passage a vote of more than two-fifths of the whole number of such board of aldermen or other body thereof.

2. And be it enacted, That all acts or parts of acts inconsistent with this act be and the same are hereby repealed and that this act shall take effect immediately.

Approved May 7, 1889.

CHAPTER CCXLVI.

An Act concerning cities.

1. Be it enacted by the Senate and the general Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That it shall be lawful for the president or presiding officer or the common council, board of aldermen or other legislative body however designated, of any city of this state, and they are hereby required, to sign all measures, resolutions, ordinances and appropriations passed by them before said board of action.

2. And be it enacted, That all acts or parts of acts general, public, local or special, inconsistent with this act be and the same are hereby repealed, and that this act shall take effect immediately.
